On the reading of the first clause, appointing Thos. McKee and T. B. McGrath at $500 each a year, Ald. Johnston said he had held that with the change in the assessment law there should be a commissionership created. It was a position that required time, and involved careful equalization of values. He could not see where two men would better the conditions to a certainty. A man who gave his full time to the position for the twelve months of the year would undoubtedly give better satisfaction than two men working for a few months in the year. To Ald. Johnston's mind it would be as wise to appoint a commissioner at the first of this year as later on. He could secure the help of assistants until the law was thoroughly understood. It would make for the removal of the Court of Revision grievances and there would be a full and more equal proportion in connection with taxes.

Ald. Crowe expressed himself in sympathy with Ald. Johnston's views. Citizens of the town had found fault with the way the assessing was done, and they looked to the Council to remedy it. He held that if two men were considered necessary, equally so were four. He was decidedly in favor of one appointment and the creation of a permanent position. The people have to pay and they should be given some consideration. Ald. Crowe said he had no complaint against the four assessors, but from what he heard the work might be done more satisfactorily under the system proposed. It would be possible for a man to consider his differences with the commissioner rather than go to the trouble of appearing in Court of Revision.

Ald. Begley pointed out that this question had occupied considerable attention in committee meetings. Such an appointment as proposed was a serious one and he was not in a position to state definitely whether it would be wise to appoint a commissioner this year. He had favored such a step and he regarded the provisions of the by-law as a valuable concession. Being a new councillor he held that he was free to receive further light on the matter.

Ald. Hicks could not see what difference there was between having two assessors and a commissioner with an assistant as would certainly be necessary the first year. By having two assessors the town would be saved some money.

Ald. Crowe held that the workingmen of the town would have a great advantage as it would then be more possible for them to see how the neighbors about him were assessed and would thereby be enabled to better judge of the equity of the assessment.

Ald. Adams held that the question was an important one, and for this cause the report was framed as read. Two men could better arrive at a conclusion under the new assessment law than could one man. Later on, when the town became a city and invested with new powers, a commissionership might be formed. The feeling some time ago seemed to be, that Wards being assessed by pairs, there was not as great uniformity as there might have been, although no ground probably existed for such contention. The work of the assessors this year would be of very great value, all things considered, and Ald. Adams was satisfied that the step was a right one, irrespective of any consideration of the future.

Mayor Best said that there had been a full discussion on the question and the decision to appoint two assessors was arrived at by a majority vote, but the appointments were made by ballot. The Mayor pointed out that number one Ward had paid every dollar of the bonuses to new industries by increased taxation. He questioned whether this was equitable or not, and he considered that it would probably be news to many of the Council.

On consideration of the other clauses of the by-law Ald. Adams pointed to the advisability of having a definite plan prepared for use in assessing in order that there be some definite basis to work on.

DEFINITE PLAN.

Ald. Adams presented an amendment to one of the clauses that the assessors prepare a plan of all the streets showing each lot and subdivision. They could obtain the assistance of the Town Engineer.

Mayor Best questioned whether the assessors would do the work at the figure named and Ald. Johnston was applauded from the gallery when he held that $500 would not pay the assessors for the job. The map should be something for future use. He approved of the system suggested.

Ald. Adams said he was prepared to pay them extra if it was considered necessary. He held that it would be an easy matter to prepare a ground plan.

Ald. Mason held that such a map should be prepared for the assessors. The map would be valuable for reference in the future.

Ald. Adams stated that he had seen such maps as he proposed, in the possession of Town Engineer, and used for plans in sewer construction. The assessors had four months in which to study the law and prepare for the work. Had the suggestion not been made, he expressed the opinion that they would have done the work any way.

Ald. Begley held that if the assessors did their work satisfactorily and prevented the howl which had been heard in the town during the past few years, they will have earned their salary.

Ald. Hall said that Ald. Adams' suggestion was a good one. He pointed to the fact that three lots in the south end belonging to him had been skipped for two or three years. Had there been such a plan they would not have been skipped.

Ald. Tovey thought it was hardly a square deal on the assessors to require them to draw a plan on parchment as had been suggested. The assessors might be required to furnish measurements of lots.

Ald. Adams took exception to the statement that things were not being done "square." It was the duty of the Council to see that a proper system was adopted. If the expense involved was greater than $500, he for one would agree to an increase.

Ald Tovey said he quite agreed that the town should get its money's worth, but the work proposed had not been spoken of in committee as being part of the assessors' work.

Ald. Crowe favored Ald. Adams' proposal. He thought a map should be prepared for the assessors by the town engineer. He did not think that there was so much in the act that required study.

Mayor Best moved that the clause as contained in the by-law be passed. There were four months yet to consider the survey and in the meantime the assessors could meet with the committee and consider what plan to adopt.

On going to a vote, Ald. Adams' amendment was declared carried by seven to five. The assessment is to be made between the first of July and first of October. The by-law was read a third time and passed.

PRESERVE THE WALKS

Ald. Adams introduced a by-law to provide for the preservation of granolithic sidewalks. It prohibited the sprinkling or depositing of salt, on the pavements, or the cutting and marking of the same in any way, such as the removal of ice by the use of an axe or other means, or the dropping thereon of heavy boxes and barrels such as would cause injury. The fine to be imposed is not to exceed $50 or 21 days' imprisonment. The by-law was passed.

OTHER BY-LAWS

Ald. Mason introduced a by-law granting $300 to the Children's Aid Society. The by-law was passed.

Ald. Hicks introduced a by-law to consent to the C.P.R. constructing a siding across Rink-st. in the Town of Peterborough. This spur is for the accommodation of the Shovel Co. The by-law was passed.

Ald. Scott introduced a by-law to provide for the execution of an option in favor of the Minister of Public Works for a site for an armory in the Town of Peterborough. The by-law involves the purchase of the property belonging to the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation on Murray-st. in accordance with report given above. The by-law was carried.

PLUMBING INSPECTOR

A by-law was introduced by Ald. Mason providing for the appointment of a plumbing inspector. The by-law was read a first time, and on the second reading Ald. Hall took the chair.

A communication was read from Duncan McGregor, who questioned the advisability of appointing an employee of a large corporation. If satisfactory work was the object, he held that the position should be independent of any other.

Mr. McGregor was on motion heard. He said he had been endeavoring to improve the sanitary condition of the town of Peterborough so far as plumbing was concerned. He had found it up-hill work in many cases, since the same standard was not observed by all. He was prepared to throw up his business in order to devote himself to improvement of sanitary conditions. The appointment of an inspector would tend to make mechanics more thorough in their work. The fees charged would be on the plumber and not on the person having the work done. Mr. McGregor held that plumbing was a peculiar trade, and it required a competent man to discover the tricks of the trade.

Ald. Leary moved that the second reading of the by-law be referred back to the Committee of the Whole Council with the object of including sewer connection supervision.

The matter was finally referred back.

Ald. Johnston rose and was about to suggest improvements in the fire department; when the mayor pointed out that this would keep for a future occasion and the Council adjourned.

TWO ASSESSORS APPOINTED LEGISLATION SUGGESTED

T. B. McGrath and Thos. McKee Will Assess the Town for $500 Each.

ALDERMEN EXPRESS VIEWS ON SUBJECT

Report Recommending Application for Incorporation as a City Was Adopted—Also to Adopt General Tax in Paying for Granolithic Walks—By-law to Appoint Plumbing Inspector Was Read First Time and Referred Back—Several Important Reports Presented—Communication With Regard to Post Office Improvements—Great Night for By-laws.

The regular meeting of the Town Council which was held last evening, lasted until about 11.30, and then it was unceremoniously adjourned as Ald. Johnston was on his feet about to suggest extension of the present fire hall premises. His plan has in view the use of the store adjoining the present fire hall, and in the increased room he hopes to bring about conditions in equipment that will be creditable to a town of this kind. The purchase of a chemical engine is one of the most important steps, proposed. Ald. Johnston also intends to urge the extension of the fire limits and the installation of a modern fire alarm system.

There was quite an audience at Council last night, and everybody expected that something interesting would happen. Two assessors were appointed—T. B. McGrath and Thos. McKee, at a salary of $500 each. There was a long discussion over a feature of the system proposed for their assessment. The by-law providing for the appointment of a plumbing inspector was only read a first time, when it was referred back to the committee of the whole.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee recommended the purchase of a large quantity of supplies for the Fire Department. The Town Solicitor was instructed to give notice of the intention of the Council to apply for some important Legislation, among other things, for incorporation as a city, confirmation of the purchase of the Separate School grounds, and authority to change the method of paying for granolithic walks to general tax.

A by-law was passed providing for the preservation of granolithic walks and another one granted $300 to the Children's Aid Society.

Much business was transacted and it was a very important session. There were present at the meeting, His Worship Mayor Roger, Aldermen F. Adams, W. Scott, Jos. Batten, G. J. Tovey, R. H. Leary, Adam Hall, T. J. Begley, W. J. Johnston, A. A. McIntyre, R. Hicks, E. F. Mason, J. J. Crowe.

The minutes of last meeting were confirmed

From Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr and Stevenson, Solicitors for the Board of Education, asking the Council to close the option given by the Bishop of Peterborough for the site for the Collegiate Institute. From Alfred J. Cameron, land surveyor, saying he estimated the survey of the reserve along the river front at about $150 which includes $75 already paid for work which will be used now.—Received.

From the Water Commissioners, asking that the Council incorporate in the bill to be presented to the Legislature a provision that all surplus money arising from the management of the waterworks remain in the hands of the Water Commissioners to form part of the Contingent Fund, which has been established under authority of the Act of Legislature, 1903, Chapter 74, section 3, and to obtain the necessary amendments.—Received.

CHAPTER I.

SHE did not put the sacramental phrase on her cards, as no invitations were sent out. These were delivered verbally by boarders desirous of seeing their friends present on Friday evening.

It was really a scratch party of nobodies, and they assembled as usual in the drawing room on this especial evening to play and not to work. Mrs. Taine laid aside her eternal knitting; Miss Bull dispensed with her game of "patience;" Mr. Granger sang his one song of the early Victorian epoch—sometimes twice when singers were scarce—and Mr. Harmer wore his antiquated dress suit. In her black silk gown, her lace cap and "the diamonds" Mrs. Jersey looked—so they assured her—quite the lady.

Was she a lady? No one ever asked that leading question, as it would have provoked an untruth or a most unpleasant reply. She admitted in expansive moments to having seen "better days," but what her actual past had been—and from her looks she had one—none ever discovered.

Few friends presented themselves on this particular Friday evening, for it was extremely foggy, and none of them could afford a cab. Even those who patronized the nearest bus line had some distance to walk before they knocked at the Jersey door, and thus ran a chance of losing their way. Either in light or darkness the house was hard to find, for it occupied the corner of a particularly private square far removed from the Oxford street traffic.

It was quite an asylum for old age. None of the guests was under fifty, save a newcomer who had arrived the previous week, and they wondered why he came among them. He was young, though plain looking, and he was fashionably dressed, though stout. This was the first time he had been present at madame's reception, and he was explaining his reasons for coming to Bloomsbury. Mrs. Jersey introduced him as "Leonard Train, the distinguished novelist," although he had published only one book at his own cost, and even that production was unknown to the boarders.

"Fashionable novelists," said he in a still, small voice which contrasted curiously with his massive proportions, "have overdone the business of society and epigrams. We must revert to the Dickens style. I have therefore taken up my residence here for a brief period to study old world types." Here he looked around with a beaming smile. "I am glad to find so rich a field to glean."

This doubtful compliment provoked weak smiles. The boarders did not wish to be rude, but they felt it was impossible to approve of the young man. Not being sufficiently modern to court notoriety, one and all disliked the idea of being "put in a book." Mrs. Taine, conscious of her weak grammar, looked uneasily at Miss Bull, who smiled grimly and then glared at Train. Granger drew himself up and pulled his gray mustache—he was the buck of the establishment—and Harmer nodded, saying, "Well, well!" his usual remark when he did not understand what was going on. Only Mrs. Jersey spoke. Train had taken a sitting room as well as a bedroom, therefore he must be rich, and as he had not haggled over terms it was necessary that he should be flattered. Mrs. Jersey saw a chance of making money out of him.

"How delightful," she said in her motherly manner. "I hope you will say nice things about us, Mr. Train."

"I shall tell the truth, madame. The truth does not flatter."

Mrs. Jersey became still more motherly and paid a compliment. "That depends, Mr. Train. If the truth were spoken about you, for instance."

It was really a very nice compliment, but Miss Bull, with malice aforethought, spoiled it in the utterance by laughing pointedly. Train, who had already set his face for a smile, grew red, and madame darted a look at Miss Bull quite out of keeping with her motherly manner. More than this, she spoke her mind. "I hope, Mr. Train, that you will speak the whole truth of some of us."

Miss Bull shrugged her thin shoulders and in direct contradiction to the traditions of the evening produced her pack of cards. To abstain on Friday evenings always annoyed her, and since madame had been rude Miss Bull seized the opportunity to show her indifference and enjoy by doing so her favorite pastime. She was a small, thin, dry old maid, with a pallid face and bright black eyes. Her mouth was hard and smiled treacherously. No one liked her save Margery, the niece of Mrs. Jersey. But Margery was supposed to be queer, so her approval of Miss Bull mattered little.

"Perhaps Mr. Granger will oblige us with a song," suggested madame, smoothing her face, but still inwardly furious.

Mr. Granger, who had been waiting for this moment, was only too happy. He knew but one song and had sung it dozens of times in that very room. It was natural to suppose that he knew it by heart. All the same he produced his music and read the words as he sang. Margery played his accompaniment without looking at the notes. She was as familiar with them as she was with the moment when Mr. Granger's voice would crack. This night he cracked as usual, apologized as usual, and his hearers accepted the apology as usual, so it was all very pleasant.

"If Mrs. Taine will play us the 'Canary Bird Quadrilles,'" Mrs. Jersey hastily intervened, "how pleased we shall be."

Mrs. Taine obliged, and madame, under cover of the music, talked with Train.

"You mustn't mind the guests," she said; "they are old and require to be humored."

"It's most amusing, madame. I shall stop here three weeks to pick up types."

"Oh, you must stay longer than that," said madame, smiling and patting his hand, still in a motherly way. "Now that you have found us out, we cannot lose you. By the way"—here Mrs. Jersey's eyes became very searching—"how did you find us out?"

"It was a friend of mine, madame. He knew that I wanted to get into the Dickens world and suggested this house."

"Do I know the gentleman?" asked madame, who seemed anxious.

"I don't think so. But he is coming to see me tonight."

"You must ask him in here and introduce him. I should like to thank him for having recommended my house."

"We were going to have a conversation in my room," said Train dubiously. "He's such a shy fellow that I don't think he'll come in."

"Oh, but he must. I love young people. Will your friend remain overnight?"

"He will if he comes at all," replied Leonard, looking at his watch; "but if the fog is very thick I don't know if he'll turn up. It is now 9 o'clock."

"We usually disperse at 11," said madame, "but on this night I must break up at 10, as I have"—she hesitated—"I have business to do."

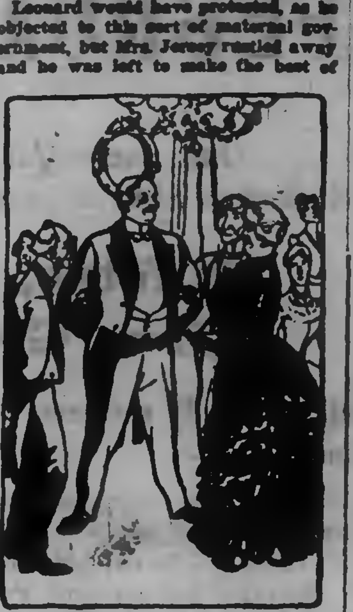
"I won't trouble you, madame," said Train. "My friend and I can have supper in my room."

"That's just it," said madame, and her voice became rather hard. "I beg, Mr. Train, that you and your friend will not sit up late."

"Why not? We both wish to smoke and talk."

"You can do that in the daytime, Mr. Train. But my house is most respectable, and I hope you will be in bed before 11."

Leonard would have protested, as he objected to this sort of maternal government, but Mrs. Jersey rustled away and he was left to make the best of it. Before he could collect his wits a message came that he was wanted. "By Jove, it's George," he said and hurried out of the room. Mrs. Jersey overheard the name.



"I am glad to find so rich a field."

"I suppose his friend is called George," she thought, and frowned. Her recollections of that name were not pleasant. However, she thought no more about the matter, but sailed across to Miss Bull. "The music doesn't please you, Miss Bull," she said in rather an acid tone.

"It's very nice," replied the old maid, dealing the cards, "but I have heard it before."

"You may not have the chance of hearing it again," said madame.

"It's a world of change," replied Miss Bull in her sharp voice. "Margery, was that a heart?"

Margery pointed a fat finger to the card in question, and Miss Bull muttered something about her eyesight getting worse. Madame knew that this was just done to annoy her, as Miss Bull's sight was excellent. To revenge herself she took Margery away. "Go and tell the servants to send up the negus and sandwiches," she said sharply.

Margery rose heavily. She was a huge girl twenty years of age and apparently very stupid. Why sharp little Miss Bull, who loved no one, had taken to her no one knew, but the two were inseparable. Seeing this, madame usually kept Margery hard at work in other quarters so as to part her from the old maid. But with the cunning of an animal—and Margery was very much of that type—the girl managed to see a great deal of her one friend. Madame had an idea of the reason for this, but at the present moment did not think it necessary to interfere. She was quite capable of crushing Miss Bull when the need arose. Meantime she vented her temper by sending Margery away. The girl departed with a scowl and an angry look at her aunt, but Miss Bull never raised her eyes, though she was well aware of what was going on.

Madame was not to be beaten. "I tell you what, dear Miss Bull," she said, smiling graciously, "since you have broken through our rule and have produced the cards, you shall tell all our fortunes."

"Yours?" asked Miss Bull, looking up for the first time.

Madame shook her head. "I know mine. Tell Mr. Granger's."

"I am at Miss Bull's service," said the polite old gentleman, bowing.

Miss Bull swept the cards into a heap. "I'm quite willing," she said in a voice almost pleasant for her. "Anything to oblige dear madame."

Mrs. Jersey smiled still more graciously and sailed away to send Mr. Harmer to the cards. But she wondered inwardly why Miss Bull had given way so suddenly. There was some reason for it, as Miss Bull never did anything without a reason. But Mrs. Jersey kept her own counsel and still continued to smile. She had quite made up her mind how to act.

"Ladies and gentlemen," she said, standing in the middle of the drawing room, "we must disperse tonight at 10. I have some business to attend to, so I request you will all retire at that hour. In the meantime Miss Bull has kindly consented to tell your fortunes."

Madame then retired to her throne and saw that the servants arranged the tray properly. She had a gigantic chair, which was jokingly called her throne, and here she received strangers in quite a majestic way. Mrs. Jersey was not bad looking. She had a fresh colored face, bright black eyes and plenty of white hair like spun silk. Her figure was stout, but she yet retained a certain comeliness which showed that she must have been a handsome woman in her youth. Her manners were motherly, but she showed a stern face toward Margery and did not treat the girl so kindly as she might have done. As a rule, she had great self command, but sometimes gave way to paroxysms of passion which were really terrifying. But Margery alone had been witness of these, and Mrs. Jersey passed for a dear, gentle old lady.

A moment later Train entered, and after him came a tall young man, fair haired and stalwart. He was handsome, but seemed to be ill at ease and pulled his yellow mustache nervously as Train led him to the throne.

"This is my friend," said Leonard, presenting him. "He just managed to get here, for the fog is so thick"—

Here he was interrupted. "Madame," cried Mrs. Taine, "what is the matter? Mr. Harmer, the water—wine—quick."

There was need of it. Mrs. Jersey had fallen back on the throne with a white face and twitching lips. She appeared as though about to faint, but, restraining herself with a powerful effort, she waved her hand to intimate that she needed nothing. At the same time her eyes were fastened not so much on the face of the stranger as on a piece of yellow holly he wore in his coat. "I am perfectly well," said Mrs. Jersey. "This is only one of my turns. I am glad to see you, Mr."—

"Brendon," said the stranger, who seemed astonished at this reception.

"George Brendon," interpolated Train, who was alive with curiosity. "Have you seen him before, madame?"

Mrs. Jersey laughed artificially. "Certainly not," she replied calmly, "and yours is not a face I should forget, Mr. Brendon."

She uttered the name with a certain amount of hesitation, as though she was not sure it was the right one. George nodded.

"My name is Brendon," he said, rather unnecessarily, and Mrs. Jersey nodded in her most gracious manner.

"I bid you welcome, sir. Any friend of Mr. Train's is also my friend. If there is anything to amuse you here?" She waved her hand. "We are simple people—fortune telling, a little music and the company of my guests. Mrs. Taine, Mr. Harmer?" She introduced them, but every now and then her eyes were on the yellow holly. Brendon remarked it.

"You are noticing my flower, Mrs. Jersey," he said. "It is rather rare."

"Most extraordinary," replied Mrs. Jersey coolly. "I have seen holly with red berries before, but this yellow"—

"There was a great bush of it in my father's garden," said Mr. Harmer, "but I have not seen any for years."

"Perhaps you would like it, Mrs. Jersey," said Brendon, taking it from his coat.

She hastily waved her hand. "No, no! I am too old for flowers. Keep it, Mr. Brendon. It suits better with your youth," she looked at his face keenly. "I have seen a face like yours before."

Brendon laughed. "I am of a commonplace type, I fear," he said.

"No; not so very common. Fair hair and dark eyes do not usually go together. Perhaps I have met your father?"

"Perhaps," replied George phlegmatically.

"Or your mother?" persisted Mrs. Jersey.

"I dare say!" Then he turned the conversation. "What a delightful old house you have here!"

Mrs. Jersey bit her lip on finding her inquiries thus baffled, but, taking her cue, expanded on the subject of the house. "It was a fashionable mansion in the time of the Georges," she said. "Some of the ceilings are wonderfully painted, and there are all kinds of queer rooms and cupboards and corners in it. Will you have some negus, port wine negus, Mr. Brendon?"

She was evidently talking at random, and offered him a glass of negus with a trembling hand. Brendon, evidently more and more astonished at her manner, drank off the wine. He made few remarks, being a man who spoke little in general company. Train had long ago gone to hear Miss Bull tell fortunes, and from the laughter it was evident that his future was being prophesied.

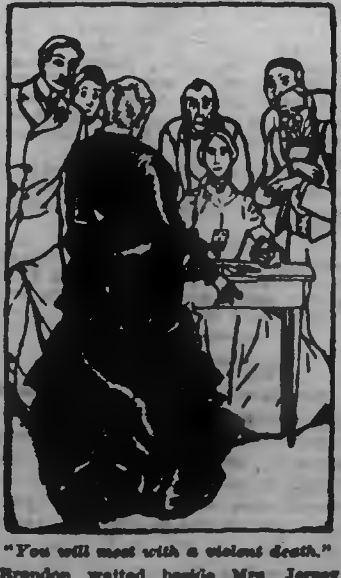
"No, no," cried Train, "I shall never marry. A literary man should keep himself away from the fascinations of female society."

"Do you agree with that, Mr. Brendon?" asked Mrs. Jersey curiously.

He shook his head and laughed. "I am not a hermit, Mrs. Jersey."

"Then Miss Bull must prophesy about your marriage. Come!"

At first Brendon was unwilling to go, but after some persuasion he submitted to be led to the table. Miss Bull was quite willing to do what was asked of her, and spread out the cards.



"You will meet with a violent death."

Brendon waited beside Mrs. Jersey with a most indifferent air. She was far more anxious to hear the fortune than he was.

"You are in trouble," announced Miss Bull in a sepulchral tone, "and the trouble will grow worse. But in the end all will be well. She will aid you to get free and will bestow her hand on you."

"She?" asked Brendon, looking puzzled.

Miss Bull did not raise her eyes. "The lady you are thinking of."

Brendon was rather taken aback, but seeing Mrs. Jersey's curious look he crushed down his emotion. "At my age we are always thinking of ladies," he said, laughing.

Train touched his arm. "It is"— he began, but Brendon frowned, and Leonard was quick enough to take the hint. Miss Bull went on telling the fortune. There were the usual dark and fair people, the widow, the journey, the money and all the rest of the general events and happenings which are usually foretold. But there was always trouble, trouble, and again trouble. "But you will come out right in the end," said Miss Bull. "Keep a brave heart."

"I am sure Mr. Brendon will do that," said madame graciously.

While George bowed to the compliment Miss Bull again shuffled the cards and fastened her keen black eyes on madame. "Will you have your fortune told?", she asked coldly.

"Oh, certainly," said Mrs. Jersey in a most gushing manner; "anything to amuse. But my fortune has been told so often and has never come true—never." And she sighed in an effective manner.

Miss Bull continued her mystic counting. She told madame a lot of things about the house which were known to most present. Mrs. Jersey laughed and sneered. Suddenly Miss Bull turned up a black card. "You will meet with a violent death," she said, and every one shuddered.

To be continued.

LAST DAY OF LIBERAL RULE

Premier Ross Will Tender Resignation This Afternoon.

WELCOME TO MR. WHITNEY

He Will be Accorded Monster Reception by Conservatives of Toronto and Three Yorks—40,000 People Will Take Part in the Demonstration.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—The Conservatives of the city and the three Yorks will embrace the opportunity to let themselves loose in an outburst of their still-bubbling enthusiasm over "the result" of Jan. 25, on Mr. Whitney's arrival in the city. All the local ward associations met last night and entered into the spirit of the occasion with admirable zest and completed arrangements for participation in the torchlight parade and the subsequent meeting in Massey Hall. It is expected that fully 40,000 people will take part in the demonstration. The parade will leave the Queen's Hotel at 8 o'clock and proceed via York, King and Yong streets to the hall. Torches will be distributed by the hundred. The Premier—for such he should be by to-morrow night—will probably have his carriage drawn by stalwart supporters. There will be three military bands, the Queen's Own, Highlanders and Grenadiers. Arthur VanKoughnet will marshal the parade, assisted by Capt. Thompson and J. E. Cameron. The doors of Massey Hall will be opened at 7 o'clock. The first gallery will be reserved, as usual, for ladies and escorts.

Last Day of Liberal Rule.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—This is the last day of Liberal rule in Ontario. At least for a time. Yesterday afternoon Premier Ross authorized the press to say that he would go to Government House this afternoon and place his resignation in the hands of Lieutenant-Governor Clark.

Premier-elect James Pliny Whitney will be in the city to-day. It is likely that he will come up on the fast train arriving in Toronto at 4.30 o'clock. The retiring Premier will resign about 3 o'clock and Mr. Whitney will be called to Government House immediately on his arrival.

Only three of Premier Ross' colleagues were with him yesterday afternoon—Messrs. Dryden, Mackay and Charlton. Hon. G. P. Graham, Hon. F. R. Latchford and Hon. Richard Harcourt went home Saturday. When the Ministers left the Council room, Hon. Mr. Charlton jocularly observed: "The last call for supper," and followed this up with the remark that the last official act of the old Administration had been performed. He did not say what the last official act was, but Hon. Mr. Mackay had in his hand a bundle of departmental papers which had been left over from Saturday. The Council broke up about 4.30 and Mr. Ross left for his home early.

The opinion prevails that Mr. Whitney will submit the names of his Cabinet to the Lieutenant-Governor to-night.

Ontario Railway Commission.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—The commission appointed by the Legislature to take evidence on the question of railway taxation will hold its final session in the Parliament buildings on Thursday of this week, when its report will be completed for submission to the Legislature.

AN ACT OF TERRORISM

Assassination of Procurator of Finnish Senate.

Murderer Came As a Friend—Four of His Shots Took Effect—Procurator Died Instantly, But His Son Engaged in a Duel With the Assassin and Both Were Wounded—Arrest of the Slayer—St. Petersburg's Idea.

Helsingfors, Feb. 7.—Soisalon Soininten, Procurator-General of Finland, who before he was ennobled was known by the name of Johnsson, was assassinated yesterday by a young man, whose identity up to the present time has not been determined. The assassin and Soininten's son were both wounded in a revolver duel following the killing. The motive of the crime apparently was purely political, the slain official being a prominent member of the Government party.

The murderer appeared at the procurator's residence at 11 o'clock yesterday and sent in a card bearing in French the name of Alexander Gadd, who is in the Russian service. The young man, who was smartly dressed in an officer's uniform, was promptly admitted to the officials private study, and on his entrance fired four shots from a revolver, one of the bullets piercing the breast of the procurator, who expired almost immediately.

Son Fights Assassin.

His 17-year-old son, hearing the shots, rushed in from an adjoining room and fired three or four shots at his father's assailant, whose right leg was broken below the knee by a bullet. He was also slightly wounded in the shoulder, and a finger of his hand was struck. The assassin fired the one bullet remaining in his revolver at Soininten's son, wounding him slightly in the calf of his right leg. He then endeavored to escape, but fell unconscious to the floor in the ante-room. There he was seized. Doctor Wasatjerna was called immediately, but found the procurator beyond need of his services. The assassin was removed to the surgical hospital, where he lies guarded by police, answering no questions and evidently unconscious. His recovery, however, is thought to be certain. Up to the present the authorities have been unable to identify him. He is of dark complexion and apparently between 25 and 30 years of age.

The Senator's Career.

Johnsson was born in 1856, and practiced at the Finnish bar. He was highly esteemed, and had held various Government appointments, including that of provincial judge. He was appointed Procurator of the Senate in 1901, and in the same year was made Procurator-General of the Duchy of Finland. Johnsson was regarded as a wise and patriotic official. It is understood that it was at his initiative that the Finns exiled by Governor-General Bobrikoff were allowed to return to Finland.

Precursor of Terrorism.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 7.—The news of the assassination of Soisalon Soininten, Procurator-General of Finland, though occurring before noon on Monday, was not known generally in St. Petersburg last night, but may be expected to produce an immense sensation when it becomes public, as it will be regarded as the precursor of an era of terrorism for which the events of January in St. Petersburg and throughout Russia gave the signal. Until the identity of the assassin is known it will be impossible to establish positively the motive for the attempt, but the present conditions in Finland render it almost certain that the crime is of a purely political character and of the same nature as that of Count Bobrikoff, the Governor-General of Finland, in June of last year.

Russification Opposed.

The Russification of Poland has been meeting with great opposition and creating much bitterness, especially since the formation of the party of active resistance, recruited from the bolder spirits of the original party of passive resistance to which the perpetrator of the latest crime probably belongs. With the conference of revolutionary parties of Russia, comprising representatives of the Finnish active resistance party, the Polish National League, the Russian Emancipationists and other revolutionary organizations in Berlin last November, a program for general concerted action was drawn up and the assassin of Soininten undoubtedly was in touch with the dissatisfied element throughout Russia.

Plot Against Government.

Berlin, Feb. 7.—The Vossische Zeitung's correspondent at Czestochowa send the following: "The military are taking sharp measures against the populace. Many soldiers and police have already been killed. Some high officers have been arrested for plotting against the Government. The people are living in extreme excitement and great fear. Many have fled to foreign countries. There have been a number of dynamite explosions caused by Socialists, but they have failed to do much damage. The schools have been closed.

How Trepoff Is Obeyed.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 7.—Lessners' torpedo factory here resumed work yesterday. The managers dismissed the employes in obedience to Governor-General Trepoff's orders and then re-engaged them.

Aged Official Dead.

Meaford, Feb. 7.—Thomas Plunkett of Meaford, for 42 years clerk of the third division court of Grey, died suddenly at his residence here on Saturday evening. He was born at Carleton Place, Lanark County, 77 years ago. From there he removed to Owen Sound, where in 1863 he received his appointment as division court clerk. He is survived by a widow, four daughters and one son.

DRAWBACKS FROM EVERYTHING.

Sweeping Decision of U.S. Officials Following Attorney-General's Opinion.

New York, Feb. 7.—The Washington correspondent of The Tribune, whose announcements upon Government policy are often official, declares that as a result of the decision of Attorney-General Moody, allowing a draw back of duty upon wheat imported for the manufacture of flour for export, free hides, free wool, free lumber—in a word, free raw and partially manufactured materials of every sort and description—are now at the disposal of American manufacturers engaged in the export trade. By the provisions of the circular of instructions issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, pursuant to the opinion of the Attorney-General, manufacturers may import every class of material, pay the duty at the time of its importation and recover 99 per cent. of such duty when it is shown that the imported article is contained in a finished product subsequently exported.

Fire At Portage La Prairie.

Portage La Prairie, Man., Feb. 7.—A disastrous fire broke out in Frank Sallow's furniture store in the Campbell block yesterday morning. The stores of Messrs. Bailey, Caldham and Cashes were in serious danger, as well as other business places within the block, where the Dominion Express Co., the C. P. R. telegraph office and a large photograph gallery are located. The fire was in the heart of the town, and it is hard to estimate what the actual loss is, but it will not be less than $40,000 or $50,000.

Managed By a Commission.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—The Dominion Government is to be asked to take over and run the affairs of Ottawa. At the City Council last evening a motion was unanimously carried appointing a civic deputation to wait on the Federal Government and ask that the City of Ottawa and part of the surrounding districts, which would take in some fine park areas, be constituted into a federal territory and managed by a commission. This is the way the affairs in Washington are conducted.

Judge Killam's Successor.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—(Globe Special.)—Rumor has it that Chief Justice Falconbridge will be appointed to the Supreme Court vice Judge Killam. The Governor-General yesterday signed the appointment of Justice Killam to the Chairmanship of the Railway Commission. It is expected that Mr. Killam will preside at a meeting of the Commission to-day, when the switching controversy between the C. P.R. and the G.T.R. will come up.

British Fleet Will Visit U.S.

London, Feb. 7.—The British squadron will visit American ports. Prince Louis of Battenberg will be in command.

Few People Realize

The Danger in That Common Disease, Catarrh.

Because catarrhal diseases are so common and because catarrh is not rapidly fatal, people too often overlook and neglect it until some incurable ailment develops as a result of the neglect.

The inflamed condition of the membrane of the nose and throat makes a fertile soil for the germs of Pneumonia and Consumption, in fact catarrhal pneumonia and catarrhal consumption are the most common forms of these dreaded diseases, which annually cause more than one-quarter of the deaths in this country.

Remedies for catarrh are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but very few have any actual merit as a cure, the only good derived being simply a temporary relief.

There is, however, a very effective remedy recently discovered, which is rapidly becoming famous for its great value in relieving and permanently curing all forms of catarrhal diseases, whether located in the head, throat, lungs or stomach.

The new catarrh cure is principally composed of a gum derived from the Eucalyptus tree, and this gum possesses extraordinary healing and antiseptic properties. It is taken internally in the form of a lozenge or tablet, pleasant to the taste and so harmless that little children take them with safety and benefit.

Eucalyptus oil and the bark are sometimes used, but are not so convenient, nor so palatable as the gum.

Undoubtedly the best quality is found in Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which may be found in any drug store and any catarrh sufferer who has tried douches, inhalers and liquid medicines, will be surprised at the rapid improvement after a few days' use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which are composed of the gum of the Eucalyptus tree, combined with other antiseptics which destroy the germs of catarrh in the blood and expel the catarrhal poison from the system.

Dr Ramsdell, in speaking of Catarrh and its cure, says:—"After many experiments I have given up the idea of curing catarrh by the use of inhalers, washes, salves or liquid medicines. I have always had the best results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets: the red gum and other valuable antiseptics contained in these tablets make them, in my opinion, far superior to any of the numerous catarrh remedies so extensively advertised. The fact that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold in drug stores, under protection of a trade mark, should not prejudice conscientious physicians against them because their undoubted merit and harmless character make them a remedy which every catarrh sufferer may use with perfect safety and the prospect of a permanent cure.

For colds in the head, for coughs, catarrhal deafness and catarrh of the stomach and liver, people who have tried them say that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a household remedy.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Feb. 6.—(Special.)—The receipts of live stock were [illegible] cattle, [illegible] sheep and lambs, [illegible] calves, [illegible] hogs. A feature of the trade was the continued strong feeling in the market for hogs, and prices advanced 20c per 100 pounds, which is due to the small supplies coming forward, and the good demand for the same from packers early in the day. Holders asked $6.25 for selected lots, but the best bid from buyers was $6.10, which figure they decided to accept later, and all offerings of such were sold, while mixed lots brought $5.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars. There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle. The feeling was steady, under a fairly good demand for the best grades, but common and inferior stock moved slow, as the market continues to be glutted with that class of beef. Choice cattle sold at 4½c to 4¾c; good at 4c to 4¼c; fair at 3½c to 3¾c; common at 2½c to 3c; inferior at 1½c to 2¼c per pound. The tone of the market for sheep and lambs was firm, owing to the small supply and good demand; sheep sold at 3½c to 4c and lambs at 5c to 5½c per pound. The demand for calves was good, but the quality of the stock coming forward is poor, and prices still low at $2 to $5 each.

Monkey Brand Soap removes all stains, rust, dirt or tarnish—but won't wash clothes.

Sunlight Soap is recommended, by those who have investigated the different kind of soaps, as being the best and purest on the market. Those who have gone still farther and tried the different methods state that the Sunlight way of washing is greatly superior to ordinary methods because it requires much less work and makes the clothes whiter and cleaner. Because Sunlight Soap is quite pure and free from adulteration it will not injure delicate fabrics or the user's hands.

PETERBOROUGH 5
SMITH'S FALLS 3

The Falls Team Defeated on Their Own Ice Last Night.

CLEAN AND FAST EXHIBITION

The Locals Should Have No Trouble Winning Round—Micmacs Fast but Very Light—Thursday's Game Will be Good One—Chaucer Elliott Was Referee.

The Peterborough seniors took another step towards the intermediate O.H.A. championship last night by defeating the Mic-Macs of Smith's Falls on their own ice by five goals to three. It was a fast and well contested game and was not very rough, only a few men being penalized. The locals report that the Falls team were very speedy but very light, especially on the forward line. They had practically no combination, depending on individual efforts to do the scoring.

The Peterborough team played nice hockey at all stages of the game. The defence especially put up a grand game, and the Mic-Macs worked hard for their three goals. Wasson stopped some nice ones, and the three that fooled him were at close range. Glover played the best game he has done this season, breaking up rush after rush and making some pretty dashes himself. Crowley also played a very effective game at cover. On the forward line all showed up prominently. Chaucer Elliott was a very efficient and satisfactory referee.

The game started very nearly on time and was fast from the beginning. Smith's Falls scored in five minutes, but the Peterboroughs came right after them and Cavanah soon tied the score. The next two went to the Falls, and this ended their scoring. Peterborough got two more before half time, Cavanah and Parnell doing the scoring. This left the half time score 3—3.

In the second half play was very close, and the only two goals in this half went to the Peterboroughs, Morgan getting them both.

The teams were:—

Micmacs—Goal, Mereau; point, Lee; cover, Hammond; rover, Poulin; centre, Dunn; right wing, Armstrong; left wing, Gallipeau.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Three Games To-Night.

Three games in the second round of the intermediate O.H.A. series are to be played to-night. Victoria Harbor play Parry Sound, Gore Bay at Thessalon and Woodstock at Goderich. Victoria Harbor, Woodstock and Thessalon on form should win.

Thursday night's game between the Mic-Macs of Smith's Falls and the locals should be a great exhibition. The game at the Falls last night was very fast and well played and the return game will doubtless be as interesting, as the Mic-Macs are a fast bunch.

The game between the Young Nationals and the Trinity College School Juniors of Port Hope has been called off, on account of an outbreak of measles at the school.

Dunnard a Star

The polishing room of the Lock Works defeated the moulders of the same institution in a wild and wooly exhibition last night by 7—2. The half time score was 5—1 Jack Dunnard at point for the winners was the feature.

Tie at Belleville.

Belleville and Cobourg juniors played a tie game at Belleville last night. It was a poor exhibition and neither team displayed anything like championship form.

OPERA HOUSE, THREE NIGHTS

Commencing Thursday next, Feb. 9th. Judging from criticisms from other cities where they have been seen Merritt and Pritchard's Biograph Company is one of the finest attractions that has visited Canada for years. The great Slocum disaster alone is worth more than the admission, without the other fifty attractions given by this Company. They come highly recommended from Quebec City. Prices, 10, 20 and 30c. Matinee Saturday, 10c., adults 20c.

Indigestion and Headache

Mr. Duncan McPherson, Content, Alta., writes:—"I was for many years troubled with indigestion and headache, and derived no relief from the many remedies I used. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and, after taking four boxes, the result is that I am once more in the full enjoyment of the blessings of good health."

IMPROVEMENT OF FIRE EQUIPMENT

Ald. Johnston Outlines Some Important Changes Proposed.

GOOD INVESTMENT OF $9,000

Does Not Intend to Erect a New Building But Make Use of Store Adjoining Fire Hall for Extension—Stabling Accommodation at Present Defective—New Chemical Engine.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee of Town Council will be called together by the Chairman, Ald. W. J. Johnston some night during the week to give consideration to a proposal made by the chairman for the improvement of the present fire fighting apparatus of the town.

This morning Ald. Johnston in an interview with the Review gave an outline of the changes which he considers would meet the requirements of the town. He referred to the fact that recently the town voted the sum of $30,000 for the purpose of improving the waterworks system of the town by laying additional hydrants, the object of which will be to provide a better fire protection to the town among other things. This Ald. Johnston believes is a step in the right direction and should be followed by other improvements in the fire fighting apparatus which his proposal will provide.

He referred to the fact that on two occasions by-laws have been submitted to the ratepayers to authorise the expenditure of money in the fire protection system, and on both occasions they were defeated.

The last thus submitted last summer was one which contemplated the expenditure of $25,000 for building a new fire hall at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer-sts., the purchase of a chemical engine and other apparatus. This by-law, however, suffered a like fate with the one preceding it, although Ald. Johnston does not consider the fact of the ratepayers defeating a by-law should be taken as an indication that they are opposed to any improvement being made to the system of fire protection at present enjoyed by the town, but attributes its defeat to other causes.

The plan which Ald. Johnson now asks the committee to consider is one which contemplates not the spending of $25,000, but of $9,000, and he is confident that equally good results will follow. In the first place he does not propose to erect a new building, but would enlarge the present fire hall to provide the extra room required. He would utilise for firehall purposes the store to the west of the present hall now occupied by Drummond & Duffus and owned by the town. This will give a frontage of 45 feet instead of 22 feet as at present.

Then a number of changes are contemplated at the rear of the hall. At present five horses are kept by the department, and the chairman is authority for the statement that the stabling accommodation is very defective, and not only is it inconvenient, but decidedly unsanitary, and some improvement in this respect will have to be made in the near future in any case. What Ald. Johnston proposes is to extend the stable across the whole 45 feet of the enlarged fire hall so that the horses will be directly behind the engine and hose carts, which they are not at present. He would also extend the building back 20 feet at the rear to meet the present weigh house, and would remove altogether the unsightly and unhealthy hog pen in connection with the market. This extension he would make two storied high, and a second story could be used for storing food, so that it would not be necessary to purchase it in small quantities as at present.

He would make two wide entrances, one from Water-st. and one from the market, which would make it easier to return the engines and hose reels to the hall after having been to a fire than to back in as is necessary now.

Ald. Johnston estimated that the improvements will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000, the expenditure of which amount will provide a building equal to all requirements of the town for years to come.

The other improvements will cost $6,000 divided as follows:—$3,000 for a new alarm system and an equal amount for the purchase of a chemical engine, ladders, hose, etc., and with this expenditure of $9,000 it is believed that the equipment will be such as to bring it fully up to the requirements of the Underwriters' Association, and consequently the fire insurance rates will be reduced a considerable extent.

Then, too, it is proposed to extend the fire limits slightly on George-st. They at present extend from Dublin to King-st., and the extension proposed is from King-st. to Dalhousie-st. south, and from Dublin to Antrim on the north. The extension, it is believed, will be no hardship on any one, and will ensure the erection of a much better class of buildings in the town.

These matters will be thoroughly discussed by the committee and later will be brought up in the Council.

ENJOYABLE LECTURE

Given by Mr. R. M. Dennistoun Before All Saint's Guild.

The open meeting of All Saints' Young Men's Guild last evening was very well attended and a most enjoyable time was spent.

The programme was opened with a well executed piano solo by Miss O. English, which met with much applause. At the conclusion of the lecture short speeches on the work of the Guild were given by Messrs. J. H. McClelland, D. Burrit and E. Poole. Mr. Poole in his address moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Dennistoun which unanimously passed.

Mr. C. Coleman contributed a delightful solo which was well received. A piano duet by Misses Ida Mulholland and O. English closed the evening's programme. YOUNG MAN EXPIRES

Death of Mr. Arthur Hobson, Aged 25 Years—Funeral This Afternoon.

The death of Arthur Hobson took place in St. Joseph's hospital last night. He has been residing in town about a year and worked for the Peter Hamilton Co. and later for a short while in the Canadian General Electric Co. Deceased came to this country from England about five years ago and resided in Toronto for several years. He has been suffering from an internal affection for some time. While in Toronto he was a member of St. George's lodge, Sons of England, but owing to poor health he was unable to sustain his membership. He was married a few months ago.

At a meeting of Lansdowne lodge, Sons of England, last night, it was decided to give assistance, and also communicate with St. George's Lodge in Toronto to which he formerly belonged. Mr. Allen, proprietor of the C.P.R. hotel, has kindly consented to take charge of the funeral arrangements. Any assistance from those feeling disposed to do so will be gratefully received.

The funeral took place this afternoon to Little Lake cemetery from Belleghem's undertaking establishment.

CHIEF FORGOT INDIGENT

Two Days White, of Berlin, Lived Without Food.

Lindsay, Feb. 6.—On Friday evening a man named White, who recently go out of work at Berlin, walked into this town from Orillia on his way to Peterborough. He had no money and at his own request was put into the lock-up by Chief Nevison. From that moment the chief forgot all about his man, and White saw nobody until Sunday forenoon, when his outcries and beating about his place of confinement attracted the notice of Driver Bell, of the fire department. During all that time White had nothing to eat, and only such water as he could get out of the heating radiator. If he had been in the inner cell of the lock-up he could not have been heard and might easily have perished, for the chief had entirely forgotten him.

Nervous Dyspepsia

Mr. George Bolen, Spry, Bruce Co., writes:—"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia for some years, and after using nine boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I felt better than I had for years. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is certainly the best medicine I ever used, and I say so because I want to give full credit where it is due."

The Poison of Dishonesty.

It is astonishing how men will play with the poison of dishonesty, which is so insidious at first, which intoxicates and stimulates one, but paralyzes and kills later. If every youth were only taught that to be successful a man must be greater than his occupation, that his character must not be for sale at any price, that he will always be rich so long as he retains it and just in proportion to its strength and integrity, and weak and unhappy and a failure, no matter how much money he may have, just in proportion to the weakness of his character; if he only started out with the conviction that only one real failure is possible, and that is the loss of self respect, the barter of one's character, either for pleasure or for money; if the youth were only taught that he cannot afford to deceive even a little bit in the quality of goods he is selling or in the quality of the service he is giving, what a revolution would come to our civilization!—Success.

Saved the Carriage.

In his "Reminiscences of an Irish Land Agent" the author, Sam Hussey, tells of one of the earliest private carriages used in Kerry: "The vehicle in question had just been purchased by a certain Miss Mullins, who regarded it on its arrival with almost sacred awe. A dance in the neighborhood seemed an appropriate opportunity for impressing the county with her newly acquired grandeur; but, the night proving wet, she insisted on reverting to a former mode of progression and rode pillion behind her coachman. The result was that she caught a violent chill, which turned to pneumonia. When her relatives were assembled round her deathbed the old lady exclaimed between her last gasps for breath, 'Thank goodness I never took out the carriage that wet night!'"

Semi-ready Dress Suit.

The Dress Suit is one requiring the most expert work of any garment handled by the tailor.

The Semi-ready Dress Suit is made of dull finish worsteds, which possess the most artistic lines. It is properly balanced; the shoulder is of natural width with very little padding; the formation of the skirt is particularly beautiful, as it is close fitting at the waist, sits gracefully over the hip and adheres to the side of the leg.

After seeing these your custom tailor will certainly have great difficulty in pleasing you. An examination of these garments is an education. It is certainly worth your while to see these Dress Suits before ordering.

Any necessary alterations to suit your particular individuality can be readily made, and even then you don't have to keep it, because you can have your money back without discussion.

CORDIAL RECEPTION

Delightful Evening Spent at St. Andrew's—Rev. A. Esler Speaks.

The Young People's reception in St. Andrew's church was a successful event last night.

The first hour from 8 to 9 o'clock was occupied in social intercourse. From 9 to 10 the meeting was of an intensely interesting character. Mr. J. S. Ferguson occupied the chair and after devotional exercises Miss Bella King and Mrs. Rehill contributed vocal numbers in a very pleasing manner. Mr. J. C. Miller also gave two selections on the cornet and was accompanied by Mrs. Mowat on the piano.

The feature of the evening was the vigorous and intensely practical address of the Rev. Alex. Esler, M.A., of Cooke's Church, Toronto, which was listened to with much interest.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. W. C. Ferman moved, Mr. F. R. Kerr seconded, a motion of appreciation, which was unanimously carried.

Was Cured of Asthma

"I first used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with my daughter, who suffered from a severe form of asthma. The least exposure to cold would lay her up and she would nearly suffocate for want of breath. I must say I found it to be a most satisfactory treatment and it has entirely cured her."—Mrs. A. A. LIVELY RUNAWAY

A lively runaway caused lots of excitement on Water-st. about half-past three this afternoon. A team attached to the Metropolitan grocery delivery sleigh was left standing near the Hunter-st. bridge and became frightened at a shunting engine and travelled up Hunter-st. at top speed. Near the post office corner the team collided with a cutter containing two women, and overturned it. The delivery sleigh was also considerably smashed and most of it left by the roadside. The women escaped without injury. Tearing down Water-st. the team crashed into the ice water fountain near the police station, knocked it over and collided with a cutter belonging to Wm. Fowler. This was badly smashed up. No damage was done to any of the horses involved in the mix-up.

DEPUTATION SAW MINISTER

As to Government Maintenance of Bridges Over Canal

HOPEFUL REPLY RECEIVED

Mr. Prefontaine Suggested That Counties Should Memorialize Government, Setting Forth Full Particulars—Prompt Consideration.

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—A deputation from the Counties of Peterborough and Northumberland and Durham were given a hearing at noon to-day, by Hon. R. Prefontaine, Minister of Railways and Canals. The deputation asked the Government to assume maintenance and operation costs of seven swing bridges at Hastings, Beaufort, Wallace Point, Locks, Chemong, Pigeon Creek and Gannon's Narrows, on the Trent Canal.

The minister replied that having been furnished with the cost of maintenance at the present time, he would look into the matter.

He made a suggestion to the municipalities interested that they memorial se the Government, jointly setting forth the full particulars in regard to the bridges in question so that the records would be on file, in case an Order-in-Council was necessary.

When this was done he hoped to give the matter prompt consideration.

TWO ENGINES STUCK TO RAILS

Lively Time at the Grand Trunk Station This Morning.

OWING TO A FROZEN VALVE

Street Car Also Was Stalled on the Tracks, Which Were Flooded From Charlotte Street to King—Men Employed to Clear Away the Ice.

There was an exciting time at the Grand Trunk station this morning shortly after eight o'clock.

The Belleville train had just arrived and the tender was being filled with water from what is known as the water column or stand pipe in the yard. When the men went to turn off the flow, it was found, owing to the intensely cold weather that the valve had become frozen, and would not work. The tracks were flooded for a considerable distance and the engine wheels were frozen fast to the rails.

Another engine had to be procured to push it out of the way. In the meantime the train from Port Hope, bound for Toronto came in on another track, and while the passengers were getting off, the engine became firmly attached to the rails and had to be helped off. To make matters still worse a trolley car on Charlotte street, while crossing the flooded railway tracks, became stalled and it was some time before it could be released. To close off the water another valve leading to the stand pipe had to be turned and this finally checked the flow.

The tracks were inundated more or less from Charlotte to King street and men were set to work to clear away the ice which had formed rapidly in a temperature that was several degrees below zero.

A somewhat similar mishap occurred in the C.P.R. yards on Saturday when a way freight at the west pipe was stalled, the valve becoming frozen and the water flowing out freely and freezing. Finally it was turned off, but there was an anxious delay for some time.

REASON Nº 11
WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Red Rose Tea

Because it is always fresh and sweet.

My teas are shipped to St. John direct from where they grow, instead of being imported from London, where teas often lie in warehouse for several months.

The sales of Red Rose Tea are so large that any one lot of tea seldom remains on hand more than a few weeks; fresh lots arrive by every steamer.

Then, in the grocery store, Red Rose Tea is never dead stock. Except where being first introduced, the demand is such that each shipment is sold in a very few weeks.

From start to finish, Red Rose Tea is handled so that the consumer is sure to get it while it is fresh and sweet.

PROTECT THE WALKS.

Ald. Adams deserves credit for the great interest he has in the granolithic walks of the town. The by-law, which he introduced and had passed in the Council, is one in the right direction and will insure good care being taken of the walks. Too often the granolithic footways are damaged in a wantonly reckless manner and henceforth any person found injuring them will be subject to a heavy fine. If the town desires to boast of good walks, every precaution must be taken to preserve them. The citizens generally will agree with the spirit and scope of Ald. Adams' by-law. It prohibits the sprinkling or depositing of salt on the pavements, or the cutting and marking of the same in any way such as the removal of ice by the use of an axe or other means, or the dropping thereon of heavy boxes and barrels such as would cause injury.

A RIGHT MOVE

The meeting in the town council chamber to-morrow night is one that will likely arouse fresh interest in the work which the recently organized Peterborough Sanitorium Association is carrying on and its excellent object in providing a free cot in the hospital for the treatment of consumptives in the Muskoka district.

The project is now ripe for consideration, at any rate, to see if some step cannot be taken to establish a local sanitarium. It may be on a small scale at first, but an undertaking in this direction, would, it is felt, be like the current of a mighty river—gather strength as it flows.

It is said that in the town of Peterborough alone there are fully 70 persons afflicted with that dread disease and fell destroyer of humanity—tuberculosis. The present certainly is a time for action and whatever decision may be reached will, at any rate, arouse interest and help. It is a good sign to see the Town Council, the Board of Trade, the Board of Health and the medical profession taking some concern in this matter. Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health has been indulging in some pretty plain talk in Toronto and elsewhere about neglect and general laxness in a matter that vitally affects so many and his address to-morrow night cannot fail to stir up a sense of duty in the minds of representative citizens. The needs, the claims, the importance of the work, the ravages and infectious nature of the disease and how it may be overcome were clearly set forth a few weeks ago by Rev. P. C. Parker when the local branch was formed. It is now felt by many that concrete action having been effected, it is eminently proper that a step more should be taken to see what can be done to establish a local sanitarium on a small scale.

Other towns and cities are moving and while no definite conclusion may be reached to-morrow night, a much needed agitation will be kept up and the plan of educating the people to the gravity of the situation will be advanced.

Like the isolation of smallpox, scarlet fever and diphtheria, the same means will shortly have to be adopted with respect to tuberculosis. As all movements tending to the alleviation of human suffering and the progress of medical science are worthy of support it is hoped there will be a representative attendance to-morrow night in the town council chamber and that some decision may be reached.

AMBITIOUS OTTAWA.

Ottawa is growing ambitious and its council has appointed a special committee to consider the details of a scheme for the creation of the city and district into an area to be governed by a commission, as in the district of Washington.

The move is undoubtedly one in the right line, and would further add to the beauty and attractiveness of the Capital, which is supposed to be more or less of a reflex of the country at large in culture, progress and development. Often a nation is judged by its capital, and it is important that the many visitors, who flock there, not only from our own, but foreign countries, should carry away with them the most favorable impressions. The Ottawa Improvement Commission has already done a work that is national in character, and all the public spirited citizens of Ottawa fully realize it, and the move just made by the city council is a practical recognition of what has been effected. It ensures a further desire to carry forward schemes which will make that centre a veritable "Washington-of-the-North."

Much as Ottawa is favored by the artistic nature of its surroundings—much as has been accomplished by the city itself in the way of administration and civic conveniences—not to refer particularly to the splendid improvements carried out by the Improvement Commission, which for five years has expended the annual federal grant of $60,000 in driveways, parks, pretty retreats and picturesque nooks—the city needs some other things—such as a scavenging system, an increase in fire fighting appliances, more paved thoroughfares and more hotel accommodation. Of course a commission would not supply the latter, but it would certainly manage the police and fire departments, the paving of the streets and the beautifying and control of the parks. With the new national museum and mint and the proposed new armory as well as a much needed new departmental block to relieve the congestion in the buildings on the hill, Ottawa will be more of a capital than it is to-day. Of course under a commission it would have no board of aldermen, and in that respect would, perhaps, not suffer, as in no city in Canada was such a personal, bitter and degrading fight carried on in the municipal arena, as in the recent contest for the civic chair. With the abolition of the present system of civic government and the total elimination of the ward boundaries the capital would, under a government commission, get rid of that miserable shibboleth of its citizens—upper town vs. lower town—and their allied interests. Ottawa could, under a commission, afford to blossom out and take in its suburbs, Ottawa East, Rideauville, Hintonburg, Mechanicsville and other places, making it a greater centre and a more united city or district. Then let it have as its two representatives in the Federal House the Premier and the leader of the Opposition. Let it be understood that for all time the chieftains of the two great political parties shall represent the district of Ottawa in the House and that they shall be returned by acclamation. This may, perhaps, be carrying out the district idea of government too far, but why should the Premier and Opposition chief not sit as representatives of the capital in parliament? Such an understanding once arrived at, would be equally fair to both parties and allow Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Borden to devote themselves all the more unreservedly and energetically to public affairs, without worrying at each succeeding election about their personal chances of success. It would also permit them to unitedly further the progress of the city as well as that of the Dominion. True, Ottawa citizens would, if they were returned unopposed, be disfranchised, but surely the citizens of a capital—or as is proposed a district—would not mind this in view of the immense benefits, direct advantages, and splendid help they will receive from parliament in having their municipal and administrative affairs looked after and generously provided for—no matter which party is in power—then Ottawa will be the centre of the nation—not only in the sense of being Capital, but in the larger typical one of setting forth the culture and progress of the people of Canada, from an educational, scientific, artistic, legislative and commercial standpoint.

The voice of the people has asserted itself in its might, and has declared with no uncertain sound that political corruption and fraud shall not be tolerated in the Province of Ontario. The patriotic stand taken by all honest men in this election, above party consideration, has made the result non-partisan. All the forces for good combined themselves in the overthrow of a government that was entirely in the hands of party parasites and barnacles. With the coming into power of a new and united party, under a patriotic and honest leader, the province bids fair to enter upon a prosperous and clean political period.—St. Luke's Parish Church Work.

A TREAT IN STORE

A treat is in store for all members of the Y.M.C.A., their friends and all ladies or gentlemen who are non-members on Saturday night.

This treat is in the form of a lecture by Mr. R. Max. Dennistoun on the famous "Jean Valjean" of "Les Miserables" written by Victor Hugo.

This is a most wonderful and thrilling story and is told by Mr. Dennistoun in a masterly manner.

There will also be a musical programme rendered by local talent.

This will be the first of a series of Saturday night "Pops."

Everybody, whether member or not is cordially invited. No charge for admission. Saturday night, 8 o'clock, Y.M.C.A. hall.

NO WORK ON SUNDAY.

Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr was in Campbellford last week, acting as prosecutor in a case that the local branch of the Lord's Day Alliance had laid against a Jewish tailor for working on Sunday at his trade. The Jew claimed that he could not work on Saturday, as that was his Sunday, but had to work on Sunday to keep up with his work. However, the the fact was impressed upon his mind that in Canada he must obey Canadian laws and not work on Sunday. He was fined $1.00 and $4.10 costs. The case is likely to be appealed.—Port Hope Guide.

PREMIER WHITNEY AND HIS CABINET

Summoned to Government House to be Sworn in.

WHO NEW MINISTERS WILL BE

Certain Members Asked to Come to Toronto at Once, and it is Believed That These Are the Favored Ones—Big Welcome to the New Premier.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Yesterday afternoon Hon. Geo. W. Ross drove from his residence to Government House, where, shortly after 1.30 o'clock, he tendered the resignation of the Government to the Lieutenant-Governor, and handed over the great seal of the Province. Mr. Ross was not accompanied by any of his colleagues in the late Ministry. He had luncheon with His Honor. The Government's resignation was, of course, accepted.

About 2.30 four of Mr. Ross' late Cabinet, A. G. MacKay, William A. Charlton, George P. Graham and John Dryden, called on the Lieutenant-Governor, but only in an informal way, as usage does not decree that any but the Premier should resign. Mr. Ross remained at Government House until 3.15.

Mr. Whitney Arrives.

Mr. Whitney arrived at ten minutes before 6 o'clock. His train was an hour and a half late. E. C. Whitney, the well known lumberman of Ottawa, brother of the new Prime Minister, accompanied by his Ethiopian valet, "Charlie," were also on the train. The brothers Whitney were met at the depot by Dr. Pyne, member-elect for East Toronto, and others, and walked to the Queen's Hotel. On his arrival Mr. Whitney received a package of letters and telegrams and at once retired to his room.

The summons from Government House came shortly after 6. Commander Law, secretary to Lieutenant-Governor Clark, called on Mr. Whitney, and verbally submitted His Honor's wishes, which were carried out by Mr. Whitney proceeding to Government House.

Accepts the Task.

"I accepted the task of forming a new Government, and I hope to get through with it to-morrow," Mr Whitney told the press in describing what transpired at Government House.

Mr. Whitney further said he expected he would have the men chosen for the Cabinet with him this morning. He had asked them to come to Toronto to-day, and would have to secure acceptance before the names were submitted to the public.

During the evening quite a number of members-elect called on Mr. Whitney. Among them were Dr. Willoughby, Dr. Reaume of Windsor, Adam Beck of London, A. C. Pratt of North Norfolk, Dr. Lewis of Orangeville, J. J. Foy, Dr Pyne, J. W. St. John and Dr. Nesbitt of Toronto.

Probable Ministers.

Though Mr. Whitney has not yet announced his Cabinet, it is surmised by unmistakable indications that he will be associated in the administration of the affairs of the Province with the following members-elect:

J. J. Foy, South Toronto.
W. J. Hanna, West Lambton.
Col. Matheson, South Lanark.
Dr. Reaume, North Essex.
Dr. Willoughby, East Northumberland.
Nelson Monteith, South Perth.
Adam Beck, London.
Major Hendrie, West Hamilton.

A new portfolio, that of mines, is to be created and in all probability W. R. Smythe of Algoma, will be placed in charge.

Dr. Pyne is slated for the post of Speaker of the new Legislature.

Mr. Whitney has summoned the above gentlemen to meet him at the Queen's Hotel early this morning. This means that he has made up his mind on his Cabinet, but as he has not consulted the men he proposes to honor the slate may be subjects to some modifications. It is not expected that any will decline to enter the new administration. There is, however, the possibility that there may be some refusals, but the choice is so large that Mr. Whitney will have no difficulty in filling their places.

Will Welcome Whitney.

Premier Whitney will to-night receive the plaudits of Tory Toronto, and the first Conservative leader of Government in this province in a lifetime—almost—will be honored in a manner worthy of the significance and importance of the event. It is expected that several hundreds of the members of the ward associations will be in line when the parade moves off from the Queen's at eight o'clock. Numerous business men along the route of march have intimated an intention to decorate, and a liberal display of pyrotechnics has been assured. The procession will leave the Queen's at 8 sharp.

Canadian Timber Burned.

London, Feb. 8.—Fire at the timber yard of Messrs. Watson & Todd, Liverpool, Monday night, destroyed some 30 stacks of Canadian pine and spruce deal boards stored in ventilated stacks. Much of the timber destroyed, it is understood, has been undergoing the process of drying for some years. The damage amounted to £15,000.

19,000 Miners Strike.

Mons, Belgium, Feb. 8.—In the Borinage district, to the south of Mons, and important for its coal mines, 19,000 miners are on strike.

Was Born in Guelph.

Grafton, N.D., Feb. 8.—D. W. Driscoll, former State Treasurer, is dead at his home here. He was born in Guelph, Ont., 55 years ago.

A FRENCH ULTIMATUM.

M. Constans Demands Instant Satisfaction From the Sultan of Turkey.

London, Feb. 8.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Constantinople reports that owing to the Sultan's decision to borrow money from a German group of financiers for the re-arming of Turkish artillery, M. Constans, the French Ambassador, has delivered an ultimatum demanding the instant satisfaction of the various outstanding French claims, failing which he will leave to-day (Wednesday) to consult his Government.

The German conditions of the loan, the correspondent says, were that all guns should be ordered from Germany. A French syndicate has been competing for the loan.

BOUQUETS FOR BORDEN

Floral Offerings to Conservative Leader From Both Sides.

Mr. Borden Takes His Seat in the Commons Amid Applause—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Most Gracious—Kept Place For Mr. Borden On Two Committees—Mr. Borden's Thanks—Mr. Fisher's New Statistics Branch Discussed.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—R. L. Borden, member-elect for Carleton, took his seat in the House a few minutes after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was escorted by Hon. George E. Foster and F. D. Monk. The Opposition members vigorously applauded as Mr. Borden entered the Chamber and when he took his seat after the formalities of introduction were complied with, the applause broke forth "afresh." Many members on the Government side of the House joined in the demonstration. And this was not the end of the amenities which characterized Mr. Borden's return to the House. A large bouquet of roses had been placed on his desk by his followers. The Liberals sent over another floral contribution in honor of the occasion.

Sir Wilfrid Most Gracious.

After routine Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that he had reserved for Mr. Borden a place on the Privileges and Elections Committee and also on the Banking and Commerce Committee. He welcomed Mr. Borden back to the House. Mr. Borden replied that he was grateful for the welcome extended to him by the Prime Minister.

"I have arrived a little later than I intended," added Mr. Borden, "but I think I am entitled to the sympathy of my right honorable friend, as he had a similar experience himself once."

A huge batch of petitions were presented protesting against the erection of telephone poles on the public highway without the consent of the municipality.

Bills Introduced.

The following bills were introduced:

An act respecting the Niagara and Welland Power Company.—Mr. Guthrie.

An act respecting the Regina & Hudson Bay Railway Company.—Mr. Scott.

An act respecting the Vancouver, New Westminster & Yukon Railway Company.—Mr. MacPherson.

An act respecting the Lake Champlain & St. Lawrence Ship Canal Company.—Mr. Gervais.

Census and Statistics.

A bill respecting the census and statistics was the subject of a long discussion. Mr. Fisher had charge of the bill, and he explained it with a wealth of words that first irritated and finally amused the House. The bill provides for the consolidation of three existing acts, and creates a new department for the collecting of statistics between the decennial censuses. The department, Mr. Fisher explained, is really an extension of the present statistical branch. Its operation during the next ten years will probably cost half a million dollars, but no one thought this a large expenditure after Mr. Fisher had told of the barrels of statistics that it would provide for public consumption.

W. F. Maclean suggested that if the statistics were as prosy as Mr. Fisher's introduction of the bill they would not prove very racy reading, but Mr. Fisher is used to such taunts. He went on triumphantly with his speech.

Overloaded With Statistics.

A. E. Kemp made bold to say that the public was already overloaded with statistics.

Robert Pringle of Cornwall, in the same unappreciative vein, pointed out that the statistics prepared and circulated by the Provincial Governments were as complete as anything Mr. Fisher's new department could prepare.

Mr. Fisher brushed aside these and numerous other arguments as if they had been so much cobweb. Finally he was inveigled by Claude Macdonald of Toronto, into explaining just how the census of 1901 cost half a million more than the census of 1891. Mr. Fisher has solved this conundrum many times in the House, but he essayed the job once again willingly, even cheerfully. Incidentally it came out that the census is not yet a finality, some statistics being still in the hands of the King's printer.

18 MEN MISSING.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 8.—The Furness Line steamer Damara went ashore at Pleasant Point, off Musquodoboit Harbor, near Halifax, yesterday morning, and one boat containing eighteen men is missing. The Damara, commanded by Capt. J. D. Gorst, was on the voyage from Liverpool to Halifax via St. John's, Nfld., which latter port she left Sunday night. The steamer struck during a thick snowstorm. Orders were at once given to reverse the engines, but as the water was making rapidly the effort to get her afloat was given up and it was decided to abandon her.

Two boats put off containing the crew and the passengers, thirty in all, one in charge of the captain and the other in charge of the mate. A few seconds after they left the ship, she was lost in the darkness, and the boats rowed towards what they thought was the land. The sea was running high and the weather was down to zero.

After hours of hard work, during which much suffering was experienced, the mate's boat made a landing in a desolate place miles away from the nearest telegraph office, but up to the present nothing has been heard of the captain's boat, and grave anxiety is felt for its safety.

Wrecking steamers will leave at once for the scene. The Damara was built at Glasgow in 1885, and is a vessel of 1,779 tons. She has a general cargo for Halifax.

She had three passengers.

Farmer Shoots Himself.

Beamsville, Feb. 8.—Robert Pook, an aged farmer of Clinton township, who lived near here, shot himself yesterday morning. He was dead before a doctor could arrive. His wife died Sunday, and, it is supposed that grief over her death drove him to end his life. He was 76 years of age. At breakfast nothing peculiar was noticed about his actions.

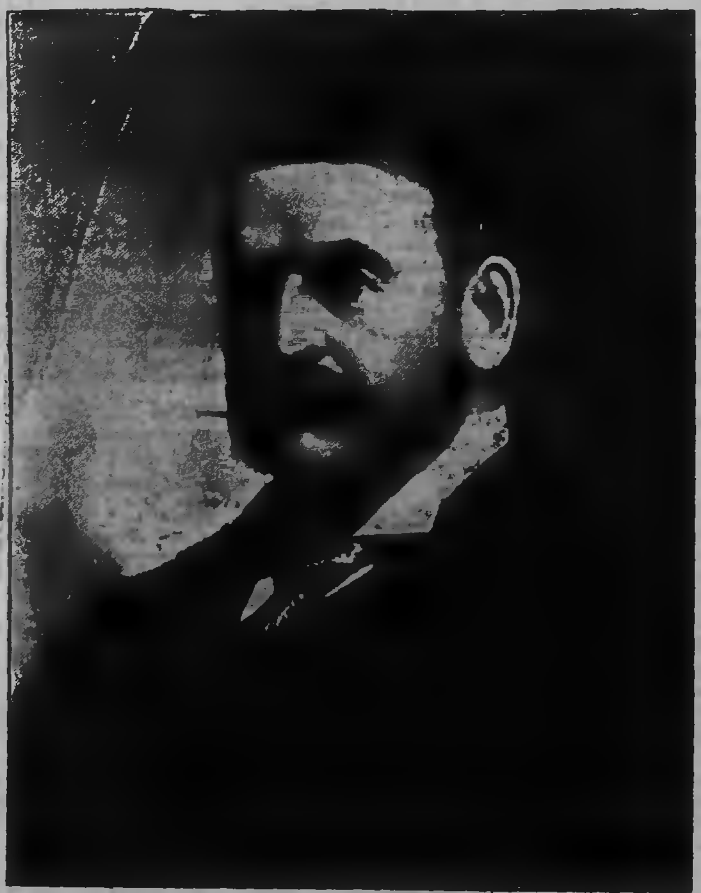
SOME CHARACTERISTICS OF ONTARIO'S NEW PREMIER

The Home Life of Mr. James Pliny Whitney and Popularity of His Family.

Everyone in Dundas County Believes Him to be Man of Sterling Honesty, Sound Principles and Personal Uprightness—A Man of Capacity and Resource — His Two Brothers are Liberals.

Hon. J. P. Whitney, who was to-day sworn in as Premier of Ontario, is a native of the county of Dundas, which he represents in the Legislature. He was born sixty-two years ago in the township of Williamsburg, about three miles east of Morrisburg, and when he was still a boy his parents moved to a farm in the adjacent county of Stormont. After being educated at Cornwall Mr. Whitney began the study of law with John Sandfield Macdonald, the first Premier of Ontario, and it was from him that the young student learned his politics. His father was a strong Liberal, and even now his two brothers. Mr. Albert Whitney, of Prescott, and Mr. E. C. Whitney, of Ottawa, are Liberals, so that the independent Liberals who voted for Mr. Whitney's administration on Jan. 25th can comfort their souls for the loss of G. W. Ross by believing that the present Premier is of Liberal descent.



Hon. J. P. WHITNEY,
Who was sworn in to-day as Premier of the Province of Ontario.

Shortly after being called to the Bar he began practice in Morrisburg, and it is confidently asserted by the wags of the town that the original shingle he hung out is still doing duty, although little but the initials, "J. P. W." are now visible. Rust has done its deadly work, and one gentleman made the suggestion that the sign should be taken to Toronto and placed in the care of Mr. Boyle in the museum of antiquities. As a lawyer Mr. Whitney was a distinct success until he entered politics, when, of course, he was not able to devote the attention to it that he had previously done. He still retained a fair amount of business, however, although it is said by his friends that if he had left politics alone he would have been in far better financial circumstances than he is to-day. He loved the work, however, and his success justifies the personal sacrifice he made for the interests of the Province which he has so ably served.

POPULAR FAMILY.

Mr. Whitney and his family are extremely popular in social circles at Morrisburg, and the greatest fear is now being expressed that it may be necessary for them to remove to Toronto. Little scraps of conversation which would seem to indicate that the family may remain in Morrisburg are eagerly treasured and repeated triumphantly. There seems no doubt that Mrs. Whitney would prefer to remain at her own home, but it is questionable if the Premier could spare sufficient time, even in the off-season, to go home every week-end. If such proves to be the case the family will remove to the city.

Of Mr. Whitney's personal character all classes of the community, headed by the clergymen, unite in highest praise. The consensus of opinion is that he is upright and decided, honest and uncompromising, generous and sympathetic. Even his enemies say this, for the only enemies he has are political ones, and paradoxical as it may seem, they are his friends. They think his political opinions are sadly astray, but they know those opinions are his own, reached after exhaustive study and research, and they can thus respect him, thinking nothing of the brusqueness which characterizes him. Said one good Liberal to the News: "It isn't the prickly outside that makes a man, but the condition of the inner kernel." Mr. Whitney's outside may be prickly to those not familiar with him, but the inner kernel is sweet and good and free from the worms of dishonesty and hypocrisy.

AN HONEST MAN.

A good example of the estimation in which he is held is provided by the election records, which show that his majority has been steadily increasing from year to year, until at the last contest he secured over 600. On Thursday morning last an old man from the country called at Mr. Whitney's house to see him, fearing that in the crush of the demonstration he would have no chance. When the Premier came down stairs he shook hands with the veteran; the old man almost wept with joy. He said, "I'm so glad. I waited for this for many years. On election night I went home and said, "Well, they did their damndest, but we have an honest man there at last." Mr. Whitney filled his admirer up with coffee, and sent him on his way rejoicing.

There is nothing of the trumpet blaring characteristic about the new Premier. On the contrary, he is excessively modest and dislikes anything which is likely to bring his private life into the public eye. An instance of this was related by a prominent citizen who did not desire his name mentioned.

It seems that some time ago Mr. F. H. McGuigan, manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, notified Mr. Whitney that he would be pleased to stop the fast express from Montreal at Morrisburg any time Mr. Whitney desired to travel. This would be undoubtedly a great convenience, for the only trains which regularly stop at that point are deliberate ones. Not once has Mr. Whitney availed himself of this privilege. On the contrary, when he desires to come to Toronto he takes the slow train to Cornwall or Prescott the night before, and gets the fast express the next morning. Not one man in a hundred, or even a thousand, would be found with such a humble estimate of his own importance.

MR. WHITNEY'S CHURCH.

Mr. Whitney is a devout and consistent member of St. James' Anglican church, of which Rev. G. S. Anderson is the rector. The church is a beautiful building, built about 12 years ago, and entirely free of debt. Mr. Whitney was rector's churchwarden for many years, and was a member of the building committee. He was a delegate to the last General Synod in Winnipeg, and is now one of the delegates to the Diocesan Synod. During the incumbency of Mr. Worrell, now Bishop Worrell, Mr. Whitney and he were warm personal friends, and he and Mr. Anderson now stand in the same relation. Mr. Anderson says that Mr. Whitney is always a regular and devout worshipper, taking a deep interest in parish and mission work, and giving liberally of his substance to these objects. His private life was in full accord with his profession as a Churchman, and for years he acted a lay reader at the church services.

HAS NO ENEMIES.

If a man can live for over 25 years in one town without making enemies other than political ones, if even these political enemies unite in commendation of the probity and personal uprightness of the man, if the estimation in which he is held by all classes of the community has gradually increased for a quarter of a century, if he is praised by his spiritual adviser as an earnest and consistent Christian, generous to the poor, liberal in his contributions for the spread of the Gospel, if this opinion is shared by business men and professional associates who have been in contact with him daily for years, if all his townsmen unite in saying that he is a man of great capacity, and high moral character, then, certainly, taking into consideration the virility and force of his public life in Opposition, Hon. J. P. Whitney is a man not unsuited for the high position to which he has been called as Premier of this Province.

HOW THE MONEY GOES

From Ottawa there has just been issued a little blue book—the Public Accounts for 1904—which tells a story of interest to the Canadian taxpayer. This volume informs us that the national expenditure of Canada for ordinary current purposes was $36,949,142 in the year 1895-6, and that for the last fiscal year it was $55,612,832. During the time that has elapsed since these two periods the yearly cost of administering the affairs of the country has been increased by $18,664,609. The thoughtful taxpayer who remembers that the present Government took office with the avowed purpose of reducing the expenditure is apt to ask some embarrassing questions. To such enquiries the official answer is that the country has expanded, and that, therefore, the cost of government has increased. The Yukon is pointed to as a justification of the increased demands upon the public. Nine or ten years ago the gold country was unknown to-day we have to provide it with government. The point is well taken as far as it oges, but it does not go very far. Our outlay on account of the Yukon is $638,387. When we deduct that sum from the increased expenditure we find that there remains more than $18,000,000 to be accounted for. Some other explanation must be found. A detailed examination of the financial statement makes it clear that on almost every item of expenditure there has been an enormous increase. The public debt absorbs a large share of our income. We paid in interest nine years ago $10,502,429; now we have to pay $11,128,636. This is a new burden of $626,207 a year on account of increased indebtedness. For civic government we have to pay $256,154 more than was spent under Conservative auspices. The administration of justice has gone up $225,982. The expenditure of the Public Works Department has experienced a decided expansion. It has risen from $1,299,768 to $4,097,230. Our railways and canals are costing us $8,397,000, whereas in 1896 they cost only $3,826,000. To-day the post office service expends $690,000 more than it did nine years ago. To collect the Customs duties and excise revenues we have to spend half a million more than formerly. The superannuation system, which the Liberals promised to abolish, demands $44,000 more than it did under Conservative auspices. Mr. Sifton is making us pay heavily for his reckless immigration policy. We had a good service in 1896 for $120,000; to-day we have to provide $744,600. For the North-West Mounted Police there has been an increase of $415,000. It will be observed that all these are for current services. They do not take into account the extraordinary projects of the Government. Thus we are reminded that we are paying dearly for our experiment at retrenchment. Experience is showing Canada that we had economical government prior to 1896 and since than an increasing wave of extravagance.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

STILL ANOTHER CASE

The New System Treatment, Anti-Pill, continues to work wonderful Cures.

When Dr. Leonhardt of Lincoln, Nebraska, gave Anti-Pill to the world he had unbounded faith in the treatment, but he did not foresee the world wide and wonderful results it is now achieving in the cure of disease.

Here is the story of another Anti-Pill victory:

"For many months I have been troubled with dyspepsia, dizziness in my head, cold chills and suffered most of the time from constipation, and was unable to do my housework. I tried every kind of pill and medicine that either the doctors or myself could think of, and finally tried Anti-Pill. This treatment has practically made a new woman of me. I am able to do all my own work. The dizziness has all gone, my stomach feels much better, and I am no longer troubled with constipation. I cannot praise Anti-Pill too highly." — Mrs. Thos. Tabb, 287 Emerald Street North, Hamilton, Ont.

If your mirror tells you that your face is losing its roundness, the eyes their lustre and the cheeks their glow, don't blame the mirror. You are losing flesh—there's a waste somewhere. These are all evidences that you need Scott's Emulsion because you need more flesh. Nothing picks up lost flesh or stops wasting like

TWO BRIGHT ADDRESSES

At the Meeting of St. Paul's Young Men's Guild Last Evening.

Considering the counter attractions there was a very fair attendance at the meeting of St. Paul's Young Men's Guild last evening in the Sunday school room of the church.

The programme was a most interesting one and the two addresses delivered respectively by Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen and Mr. R. F. McWilliams were much appreciated. The president, Mr. A. P. McLean occupied the chair.

After the meeting had been opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Torrance, Mr Homer Herd contributed a solo in fine voice and was much applauded.

Mr. Ketchen was then called upon to give his address on "My first sermon" which was very bright and witty and exceedingly well phrased. Mr. Ketchen possesses a fine command of the English language. In beginning he said while his subject was entitled "My first sermon" yet he proposed to give an article written by him on that subject for a school magazine and most of which was fiction. Mr. Ketchen handled his subject well and his address was very humorous. The story of the agonizing preparation for and anticipation of the coming ordeal and of the deliverance of the sermon in the little country church before the stern old Presbyters, with a farmer whose orchard he used to rob, a former school mate with whom he used to have daily conflicts, and with the bright eyes of his sweet-heart to disconcert him, furnished much amusement. The address was much appreciated.

A piano solo by Mr. Kenneth Shook was warmly received after which Mr. McWilliams gave his address. In beginning he stated that he did not purpose to talk entirely on the subject "My first campaign" but about first campaigners generally. Mr. McWilliams told several anecdotes of this and other campaigns which aroused amusement. He also, to illustrate the difficulties of winter campaigns in Canada, gave a sketch of the work and travelling done by him during one week of the last campaign. Amusing incidents relating to the last contest were also given. He also referred to the result of the election in the Province and stated that it was his belief that a system of compulsory voting would do away with much of the corruption which existed in the province.

At the conclusion of the addresses a vote of thanks moved by Mr. J. H. Connal and seconded by Mr. M. Rosenburg was unanimously carried. Rev. Dr. Torrance made a short, but humorous speech, after which refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening spent in social intercourse.

Miss London, of Montreal, will be at Messrs. Richard Hall & Sons' store for a few days, demonstrating a new novelty in a Fastener for Neck Ribbons. It is simple, neat and inexpensive, selling at 25 cents each. The economic feature of this novelty is that it does away with the trouble of remaking the bows every time you put a ribbon on and off, which does away with the soiling and creasing of them. She is also showing some New Styles in Bows and Knots, and will be pleased to make up ribbons into these styles for those purchasing the Novelty Fastener. 3431

THE NEW CABINET.

Premier Whitney has announced the personnel of his cabinet and, while it may create some surprise in the minds of many who thought they knew exactly who were to be appointed, it will nevertheless be received with general satisfaction.

Out of the large amount of available material, the Premier has made excellent choice and, though a few may be disappointed, there is not a man who was mentioned for cabinet preferment, but will give the prime minister his warmest and most loyal support in the splendid work of conferring upon the province honest government and administering its affairs in a capable, energetic and progressive manner.

It will be seen that like his predecessors, the late Sir Oliver Mowat and the late Hon. A. S. Hardy, Mr. Whitney himself, assumes the portfolio of Attorney General and, in this respect, his wisdom will be commended. Mr. Foy, who, it was believed, would be Attorney General, has been created minister of crown lands. Mr. Foy is one of the ablest, broad-minded and far seeing members of the Conservative party. Hon. Nelson Monteith, the new minister of agriculture, is a sound, practical and wide-awake farmer and should prove a capable administrator.

Hon A. J. Mathieson, who has long been the financial critic of the opposition, and who is thoroughly conversant with the finances of the province, is the new provincial treasurer. Hon. Dr. Pyne, who will have charge of the education department is the member of East Toronto and makes the second representative in the Queen City to be honored with a portfolio. He is a talented and well-read gentleman and is familiar with the educational needs of Ontario.

The new provincial secretary, Hon. W. J. Hanna, is one of the most successful lawyers of Western Ontario and comes from Sarnia, which properly might be called a cabinet making town, having in the past furnished such honorable representatives as Hon. Malcolm Cameron, Hon. Alex. MacKenzie and Hon. T. B. Pardee. Mr. Hanna is an exceptionally clever speaker and a Rupert in debate. Hon. Dr. Reaume, of North Essex, the new commissioner of public works, has for years been a foremost member of the opposition. He has done effective work in the party ranks and well deserves the tribute which has been bestowed upon him.

Hon. J. W. St. John, who will be the new speaker, is a lawyer by profession. He has proved to be a useful parliamentarian, who may be thoroughly relied upon to hold the scales evenly between the parties.

The ministers without portfolio are Hon. Adam Beck, of London, Hon. J. S. Hendrie, of West Hamilton and Hon. Dr. Willoughby, the veteran representative of the neighboring constituency of East Northumberland.

On the whole it will be seen that Mr. Whitney has surrounded himself by a band of clean, clever, upright and public spirited gentlemen — a strong company of earnest, experienced parliamentarians—who will render him faithful and aggressive service in furthering the moral and material interests of the people and giving Ontario honest and pure administration—one that will make for expansion, development and continued prosperity of the banner province of the Dominion.

THE LIFE OF NAPOLEON

Ably Described by Rev. J. J. Wright Before St. Andrew's Guild.

A fairly large number of members were present at the regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild last evening in the Guild room, and a most enjoyable time was spent. The president, Mr. C. E. Anderson, occupied the chair.

After the routine business had been disposed of the main feature of the evening took place, an address by the Rev. J. J. Wright, on the "Life of Napoleon." The speaker eloquently traced Napoleon's early life and military training, and described his fortunes in early and later years. The lecture was scholarly and interesting throughout, a great deal of information being given as to the relations existing between the various European nations at the time of Napoleon's power.

Mr. Wright applied the motive that a brilliant career without goodness must end as Napoleon's life ended.

A number of the members took part in the discussion which followed the lecture.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. W. S. Campbell, and seconded by Mr. H. H. Edmison, was unanimously accorded to Rev. Mr. Wright.

THE WORK CARRIED OUT ON TOWN STREETS DURING 1904

How Board of Works Appropriation Was Expended—Interesting Reports Presented by Town Engineer and Street Commissioner—Peterborough Has Now 15 Miles of Concrete Walks and Over 12 Miles of Sewers.

At the Council meeting on Monday night, Mr. T. A. S. Hay, Town Engineer, presented an interesting report of the public improvements made and work done during the year 1904. A summary of the report is as follows—

The appropriation for the Board of Works for 1904 was	$ 11000 00
Supplemented by	1000 00
	$12,000 00

On the first of January, 1904, the former village of Ashburnham became part of the town, adding thereby 1212 acres to the area, 9.61 miles of streets and 6.40 miles of sidewalk. On the first of July, 9 3-4 acres of Smith Township were annexed.

The total area of the town is now 2,798 acres, of which streets contain 391 1-2 acres, parks and squares, 78 acres, and river and lake 289 acres.

In 1903 the town having entered into an agreement with the Peterborough Radial Railway Company for opening the line formerly owned by the Peterborough and Ashburnham Street Railway Co., and extensions thereto, and operation of five miles of track to be opened for traffic on July 1, 1904, work was commenced June 15th. The line was extended to the river on Lake street, and a branch built from Charlotte street north along Park and McDonnell streets and Monaghan road to Jackson Park.

The length of line now in operation, exclusive of turn outs, is 5 1-4 miles, of which 4 1-4 miles were laid and operated prior to September 1, 1904.

Between September 13th and 20th, four new cars were put in operation, since when traffic has been regularly maintained.

In the spring of 1904 the town purchased, for the sum of $10,000, the property known as the Hilliard estate farm, containing about 66 acres. The buildings and greater part of the land are under lease, from which a revenue is derived in rent.

A gravel pit was opened at the north end in June at a cost in labor of $29.25.

SEWERS.

The total length of sewers laid in 1904 was 1.26 miles, at a cost of $8636.87.

The total length of sewers now in use is as follows—

	Feet
Brick sewer	9150
15 inch pipe	11197
12 inch pipe	21855
9 inch pipe	22507
8 inch pipe	889
	65,598

This is equal to 12.4 miles.

54 private connections with the sewerage system were made in 1904 in addition to those included in contracts.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

As part of a plan for disposal of storm water a 12 inch drain was laid along the north side of Simcoe street from halfway between Water and George street to the creek with a 9 inch branch south side of Simcoe street at the market lane, with catch basins at the upper ends and connected with old catch basins at George street. This drain is destined to relieve the trunk sewer. Work was done by day labor at a cost of $413.90.

At several places throughout town old wooden culverts have been replaced by cement pipes.

CONCRETE WALKS.

In April plans for construction of six miles of granolithic walks were prepared and tenders advertised for. It was found on opening tenders, that notwithstanding the modification in cost of material and composition, prices ranged from 12 1-2 to 14 1-2 cents per square foot. It was then decided to try a few sections by day work. After a fair trial it was found that it could be done at a cost not exceeding 9 1-2 cents per square foot. It was therefore decided to continue this method during the season. The work was carried on till near the end of October, when hard frost set in.

The season's work amounted to 140,788 square feet, or five miles, lineal measurement.

The total cost amounted to $13,-360.89 or 9 1-2 cents per square foot.

In connection with concrete walks the gravel, sand and stone taken from the Hilliard pit, cost for loading and hauling an average of 51 cents per cubic yard.

The total quantity of cement used was 2,884 barrels. It was "Monarch" brand made by the Lakefield Cement Co.

A concrete mixer was purchased, at a cost of $500, which was used throughout the season's work, being operated for 106 days, the cost for wages, gasolene and repairs being $2.25 per day. Total $237.50. The machine is estimated to save labor of three men. Net saving, after deducting cost of operation was $2.43 per day.

The total length of the sections of concrete walks built in 1904 was 26,-422 feet, which represents 5.01 miles or 140,787.72 square feet.

The total length of concrete walks completed is 79,791 feet or 15.12 miles. There remain yet to be renewed in permanent material 36.21 miles of wooden walks.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A large number of new poles were erected by the Peterborough Light and Power Company, they having been awarded the franchise for street lighting at $50 per lamp, 25 additional lamps being ordered by the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The Otonabee Power Co. also extended their lines, erecting 127 poles.

The Canadian Machine Telephone Co. having secured the franchise of the streets commenced construction in August. In the central part of the town conduits 42 inches deep with wood-fibre tubes laid in concrete for laying cables were constructed, with man-holes at street intersections.

The work done by this Company is of a very substantial nature in all respects.

The Bell Telephone Co. and G. N. W. Telegraph Co. have also extended their lines, improving their systems in many cases by replacing defective poles by straighter and sounder ones.

The Canadian Machine Telephone Co. has filed a general plan of all their lines and other companies are recommended to do the same, as such plans are necessary when considering applications for extensions.

GOOD BUILDING SEASON

Building operations have been very active during the year 1904, but principally outside of the fire limits. The building by-law has been generally well observed, but it is advisable that the fire limits be extended. I would suggest that Hunter-st. east as far as Mark-st. be included to cover a depth north and south, of say 100 feet.

All houses in Ward Five were numbered at a cost of $32.48. New houses in other wards were also numbered.

The total cost of trimming and pruning shade trees was $216.16, this work making a marked improvement as to appearance, light and air.

Owing to the pressure of work the proposed diversion of creek in Ward Five, which was to have been undertaken during 1904, had to be postponed. The preliminary work which was commenced will be resumed as soon as possible.

Mr. H. Evans, street commissioner, having been appointed to carry out the work of concrete walk construction, Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald was appointed to act in his place and performed the duties in a faithful and satisfactory manner from June to December.

MR. EVANS' REPORT

The report of Street Commissioner Evans for 1904 is—

Total cost of snow ploughing, shovelling, opening water courses, cutting ice in creek and sanding walks, $1099.-95.

The cost of street cleaning was $797.30.

The cost of purchase, inspection and measurement of 616 cords of field stone, $1892.85.

The amount of gravel taken from the town pit was 1141 cubic yards. 550 yards were purchased from builders, making a total of 1691 cubic yards.

The total amounted expended in general repairs to streets in 1904 was $2333.55. Cost of repairs to Wolfe-st. wharf, $58.87.

BRIDGES

Cost of repairs to town bridges	$ 332 12
Town's share for repairs to County bridges	1857 67
	$2189 79

WOODEN SIDEWALKS

The cost for repairs to wooden sidewalks was as follows—

Labor	$755 02
Material	94 60
	$849 62

Owing to the large quantity of old plank reclaimed by construction of 5 miles of concrete walks very little new material had to be purchased, the principal item of expense being new scantling and labor.

The following extensions to wooden walks were made during 1904.—

Aylmer-st.	220 ft.
Stewart-st.	240 ft.
Park-st.	450 ft.
Rogers-st.	130 ft.
Sophia-st.	150 ft.
	1190 ft.

In arranging contracts for concrete walks for the year 1905 it will be advisable to consider the following list of wooden walks requiring renewal—

Hunter-st., both sides, Bethune to Rubidge, 1020 feet.

Simcoe-st., north side, Bethune to Rubidge, 510 feet.

London-st., north side, Bethune to Reid, 750 feet.

Antrim-st., north side, George to G.T.R., 410 feet.

Reid-st., east side, McDonnel to Murray, 360 feet.

Gilmour-st., south side, Park to Lot 12, 480 feet.

Lake-st., north side, George to Aylmer, 850 feet.

Rogers-st., west side, Lot 22 to Haslett, 300 feet.

Rogers-st., west side, Hunter to Robinson, 720 feet.

Total, 5390 feet.

STREET WATERING

The watering carts were kept regularly in use during the summer, one of which was a new one, purchased in May. The total cost which was covered by frontage tax was $1657.-66. Miscellaneous expenditure amounted to $880.17.

SECOND CONCERT MEISTER SINGERS

Opera House Crowded With Delighted Audience.

ANOTHER SUCCESS SCORED

High-class Vocalism Which Earned Many Recalls — Humorous Sketches by Mr. Henry—A Varied and Most Pleasing Programme.

The Meister Glee Singers scored a second triumph on the occasion of their return visit to Peterborough last night. A large and thoroughly appreciative house greeted the vocalists, and the gentlemen who were instrumental in bringing this high class attraction here deserve more than a passing word of praise for their enterprise and foresight.

There was not a weak number on the programme, and encores were numerous, in fact the audience was so insistent that it was nearly eleven o'clock before the concert was over.

This talented troup is composed of William Sexton, alto; Ager Grover, tenor; Alfred Cunningham, baritone; Ford Waltham, basso; Madam Roland Henry, mezzo-soprano; Roland Henry, humorous musical sketch artist.

The quartette itself, composed of Messrs. Sexton, Grover, Cunningham and Waltham, appeared eight times (including encores). The ensemble effect of their splendidly trained and exceptionally well modulated voices was delightful. The time, tone, sweetness, precision and expression could not have been more clearly marked, and whether the contribution was humorous or sentimental the artists were equally at home. Some of their selections were: "The Little Church," "Breeze of Night," "Nellie Gray" (with imitation banjo accompaniment) "Jenks' Compound," and "Peter Piper," etc. The quartette was unaccompanied, and the beauty and richness of their voices were heard to decided advantage.

Mr. Alfred Cunningham possesses a baritone voice of great power and attractiveness, and his rendition of "Beloved, it is Morn," was a treat indeed. He responded graciously to a recall, giving "The Veteran's Song" in admirable style.

Mr. Ford Waltham, basso, sang "Sombre Woods," in a full, clear voice and was twice encored. His trombone song created a decided hit and fairly convulsed his auditors. The duet Balfe's "Ladies Fly from Love's Smooth Tale," was one of the gems of the evening.

Mr. Ager Grover in his tenor solo, "Fragrance of the Mignonette," pleased his hearers immensely. His voice is resonant, his enunciation distinct, while his expression left nothing to be desired. His encore number was "Awake."

Mrs. Roland Henry is a captivating vocalist, and her bright, lively and catchy songs were heartily applauded. She has a good stage presence and a winsome manner. She sang with pleasing effect Aspinall's "You Laugh at Love," and as an encore furnished "Sing Me to Sleep." Another selection by her was Molloy's "Never go to Sea on Friday."

Mr Henry as a musical sketch artist and raconteur is one of the best, if not the best, ever seen on a Peterborough stage. He is a born mimic, and his "skits" were uproariously received. He told stories, sang songs and personated peculiar characters in a way that created no end of merriment. He also played the accompaniments for the other artists in a most efficient manner. The piano used was the Heintzman.

The Meister Glee Singers have come and gone, but Peterborough citizens will always retain the kindest and most pleasant memories of their visit, and will be glad to welcome them back to this good town should they decide to make another Canadian tour.

GUILD ENTERTAINED

An informal discussion as to ways and means took place and it was decided to hold a Shamrock Social on the 17th of March, St. Patrick's Day, the proceeds to go towards the piano fund.

Dainty refreshments were served during the evening and music made the time pass very enjoyably.

McEWEN — SCOTT.

Quiet Ceremony— Will Reside in Smith — Former Teacher Married.

A quiet and pretty wedding was that which was celebrated at the residence of Mrs. N. McEwan, Wolsley street last evening, when her daughter, Mary E., became the bride of Mr. Fred W. Scott, of Smith.

Both bride and groom were unattended and only the immediate relatives of both parties were present. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Mr. McKinnon, of Gilmour Memorial Church, took place at five o'clock, under an arch of green and white, in the drawing room.

The bride was beautifully gowned in pale blue crepe de chene, with chiffon trimmings

After the ceremony a luncheon was served in the dining room, where the decorations were in pink and white. The bride has been on the staff of the Bridgenorth school and was the recipient of a handsome present at Christmas when her resignation took effect.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott will reside in Smith and their many friends will extend hearty congratulations.

THE DOG'S COLD NOSE.

Its Origin, According to the Log Book of Noah's Ark.

"The true story of the dog's cold nose has been handed down to us sailors from the log book of the ark," says a sailor in the New York Times. "Mrs Noah went down one morning to the potato bin in the lower hold for the vegetables required for the noonday meal. Her favorite collie dog, Nip, followed her, as was his daily custom. While Mrs. Noah was sorting out the tubers the ark collided with a small snag, which punctured a small hole in her side close to where the lady stood. Seeing that immediate action was necessary, she took off her woolen petticoat and apron and stuffed them into the hole, but the pressure of the water forced the things out, and so she put them back again and sat on them, calling loudly for assistance. But no one seemed to hear her, as the animals were making such a noise. In her position she leaned back so that the backs of her arms were pressed up against the cold sides of the vessel; hence the backs of women's arms are always cold. The water was coming in fast, and she began to fear for the safety of the ark, so she jumped up and, grabbing Nip, put his nose into the hole and bade him stay there until she went to the fore hatch and shouted for help. A carpenter's mate heard her and came down into the hold with a soft pine plug, released poor Nip and stopped the leak. The water outside was very cold, and Nip got a cold nose, and hence all healthy dogs have a cold nose."

THE INFERNAL REGIONS.

How They Are Depicted In Buddhism and Islamism.

The infernal regions of Buddhism are horrible. They comprise a great hell and 136 lesser hells. In these hells, according to the sculptures of the Buddhist temples, men are ground to powder and their dust turned into ants and fleas and spiders. They are pestled in a mortar. The hungry eat redhot iron balls. The thirsty drink molten iron.

Islamism says of the infernal regions: "They who believe not shall have garments of fire fitted for them. Boiling water shall be poured on their heads and on their skins, and they shall be beaten with maces of iron."

In the Scandinavian mythology, the mythology of Odin and Thor, we are told that "in Nastrond there is a vast and direful structure, with doors that face the north. It is formed entirely of the backs of serpents, wattled together like wickerwork. But the serpents' heads are turned toward the inside of the hall, and they continually send forth floods of venom, in which wade all those who commit murder or forswear themselves."

In the past Christian clergymen loved to describe hell. The present tendency, however, is to avoid discussion of this place—to dwell upon the gentler and more lovely side of Christianity.—Exchange.

Napoleon's Outrider.

Wernet, Napoleon's outrider, once saved his emperor's life. It was after the abdication of Fontainebleau and when Wernet drove Napoleon away from the palace that he received from a peasant information of a plot to fire on the coach as it passed through the forest. The outrider, representing that there was an obstruction on the road, persuaded the emperor to leave the coach and ride around in another direction, while he brought the carriage as best he could to meet him. This was done, and Wernet encountered a furious fusillade, which, however, left him unscathed, as it was directed not at the box, but at the interior of the empty vehicle. Wernet lived to be outrider to Louis Philippe.—Westminster Gazette.

The Corset In 2000 B. C.

Mr. Arthur Evans, the Oxford archaeologist, who made so many interesting discoveries in the so called palace of Minos, in Crete, found in a subterranean sanctuary certain very ancient small earthenware statues, representing some goddess and two of her servants. The dress of the figures is highly modern. The goddess, we grieve to say, wears a corset—just such a corset as contemporary man shyly wonders at in the windows of a department store.—Everybody's.

CHAPTER II.

If Miss Bull wished to make madame uncomfortable she certainly succeeded. From being voluble, Mrs. Jersey became silent, the fresh color died out of her face and her lips moved nervously. Twice did she make an effort to overcome her emotion, but each time failed. Afterward she took a seat by the fire and stared into the flames with an anxious look, as though she saw therein a fulfillment of the dismal prophecy. Her depression communicated itself to the rest of the company, and shortly before 10 the friends took their departure. The idea of being alone seemed to cheer Mrs. Jersey, and she accompanied her departing guests to the front door.

It was a comparatively thick fog, yet not so bad but that the visitors might hope to reach their homes. For some time Mrs. Jersey stood in the doorway at the top of the steps and shook hands with those who were going. The boarders, who were old and chilly, were too wise to venture outside on such a dreary night, so Mrs. Jersey had the doorstep all to herself. "If you lose your way," she called out to the visitors, "come back. You can tell the house by the red light." She pointed to the fanlight of crimson glass behind which gas was burning. "I will keep that alight for another hour."

The voices of thanks came back muffled by the fog, but Leonard and George waited to hear no more. They walked upstairs to Train's sitting room, which was on the first floor. The windows looked out on to a back garden, wherein grew a few scrubby trees, so that the prospect was not cheering. But on this night the faded crimson curtains were drawn, the fire was lighted and a round table in the middle of the apartment was spread for supper. On one side a door led to Leonard's bedroom; on the other side was the room wherein George was to sleep. As the firelight played on the old fashioned furniture and on the mellow colors of curtains and carpet Leonard rubbed his hands. "It is rather quaint," he said cheerfully, and lighted the lamp.

"Not such a palace as your diggings in Duke street," said Brendon, stretching his long legs on the chintz covered sofa.

"One must suffer in the cause of art," said Train, putting the shade on the lamp. "I am picking up excellent types here. What do you think?"

"There's plenty of material," growled Brendon, getting out his pipe.

"Don't smoke yet, George," interposed Train, glancing at the clock. "We must have supper first. After that we can smoke till 11 and then we must go to bed."

"You keep early hours here, Leonard."

"I don't. Mrs. Jersey asked me particularly to be in bed at 11."

"Why?" Brendon started and looked hard at his friend.

"I don't know, but she did."

"Is it an understood thing that you retire at that hour?"

Train shook his head and drew in his chair. "By no means. I have sat up till 2 before now. But on this night Mrs. Jersey wants the house to be considered respectable and therefore asked me to retire early. Perhaps it's on account of you, old man." Here he smiled in an amused manner. "She hopes to get you as a boarder."

"I wouldn't come here for the world," retorted Brendon with quite unnecessary violence.

"Why not? Have some tongue?"

"Thanks," responded George, passing his plate. "Because I don't like the house, and I don't care for Mrs. Jersey."

"Why did you advise me to come here, then?" asked Train, pouring out a glass of claret.

"Well, you wanted something in the style of Dickens, and this was the only place I knew."

"How did you know about it?"

George deliberated for a moment and then fastened his eyes on his plate. "I lived here once," he said in a low voice.

"But you didn't like Mrs. Jersey."

"She was not here then."

"Who was here?"

"My grandfather on the mother's side. That's fifteen years ago."

Leonard looked at the handsome, moody face of his friend musingly. "I never knew you had a grandfather," he said at last.

"Do you know anything at all about me?" asked Brendon.

"No; now I come to think of it, I don't. I met you three years ago at Mrs. Ward's house, and we have been friends ever since."

"Acquaintances, rather. Men are not friends until they become confidential with one another. Well, Train"—George pushed back his chair and wiped his mouth—"tonight I intend to turn you from a mere acquaintance into a friend."

"I shall be delighted," said Train, rather bewildered. "Won't you have more supper?"

Brendon shook his head, lighted his pipe and again stretched himself on the sofa. Train, being curious to know what he had to say, was on the point of joining him, but he was yet hungry, so could not bring himself to leave the table.

Train's parents were dead and had left him an income of £5,000 a year. Not being very strongminded, and being more than a trifle conceited as to his literary abilities, his money speedily attracted round him a number of needy hangers on, who flattered him to the top of his bent.

Poor Leonard thought that all women were angels and all men good fellows with a harmless tendency to borrow. He was called a fool by those he fed, but none could call him a rogue.

It was simplicity which inspired Brendon with a pitying friendship, and Brendon had done much to save him from the harpies who preyed on this innocent. In several cases he had opened Train's eyes at the cost of quarrelling with those who lost by the opening, but George was well able to hold his own, and none could say that he benefited pecuniarily by the trust and confidence which Leonard reposed in him. To avert all suspicion of this sort he had refused to become Train's secretary and companion at an excellent salary.

Now that Train came to think of it, Brendon was rather a mysterious person. He lived by writing articles for the papers, and was always well dressed. His rooms were in Kensington, and he seemed to know many people whom he did not cultivate. Train would have given his ears to enter the houses at which Brendon was a welcome guest, but for the most part George preferred to live alone with his pipe and his books. He was writing a novel and hoped to make a successful career as a literary man, but as he was barely thirty years of age and had been settled only five years in London his scheme of life was rather in embyro. He appeared to have some secret trouble, but what it was Train never knew, as Brendon was a particularly reticent man. Why he should propose to be frank on this especial night Leonard could not understand. After supper he put the question to him.

"You can depend upon me, George. Anything you tell me will never be repeated."

Brendon nodded his thanks. "Also," he continued, "I wish you to lend me £300."

"A thousand if you will."

"Three hundred will be sufficient. I'll repay you when I come into my property."

Train opened his eyes. "Are you coming into money?" he asked.

"That I can't say. It all depends. Do you know why I suggested this house to you, Leonard?" he asked suddenly.

"To help me in my literary work."

"That was one reason, certainly, but I had another and more selfish one, connected"—George sat up to finish the sentence—"connected with Mrs. Jersey," he said quietly.

This remark was so unexpected that Leonard did not know what to say for a moment. "I thought you did not know her," he gasped out.

"Nor do I."

"Does she know you?"

"Not as George Brendon, or as I am now."

"What do you mean?" Train was more puzzled than ever.

"It is a long story. I don't know that I can tell you the whole."

Train looked annoyed. "Trust me"—

"All in all or not at all," finished Brendon. "Quite so." He paused and drew hard at his pipe. "Since I want money I must trust you."

"Is it only for that reason that you consider me worthy of your confidence?" asked Leonard, much mortified.

George leaned forward and patted him on the knee. "No, old man. I wish you to help me also."

"In what way?"

"With Dorothy Ward," replied George, looking closely at his pipe.

"Was she in your mind tonight when that old maid was telling the cards?" asked Train, sitting up with a look of interest.

Brendon nodded. "But I do not wish you to mention her name. That was why"—

"I know. I was foolish. Well, she's a pretty girl, and as good as she is pretty."

"Which is marvelous," said Brendon, "considering the fashionable mother she has."

Train smiled. "Mrs. Ward is certainly a leader of fashion."

"And as heartless as any woman I know," observed Brendon. He glanced affectionately at the yellow holly. "Dorothy gave me this tonight."

"Did you see her before you came here?"

"Yes. I went to afternoon tea. We"—Brendon examined his pipe again—"we understand one another," he said.

Leonard sprang to his feet. "My dear chap, I congratulate you."

"Thanks, but it's too early for congratulation as yet. Mrs. Ward wants her daughter to make a good marriage. George Brendon will not be the husband of her choice, but Lord Derrington!"

"Does she want her daughter to marry that old thing?"

"You don't understand, Leonard. I mean that if I become Lord Derrington when the old man dies Mrs. Ward will consent."

Train sat down helplessly and stared. "I don't understand," he said.

"I'll put the thing in a nutshell," explained Brendon. "Lord Derrington is my grandfather."

"Your—but he never lived here?"

"No. The grandfather who lived here and with whom I stayed was my mother's father. He was called Lockwood. Derrington is my father's father. Now do you understand?"

"Not quite! How can you become Lord Derrington when he has a grandson—that young rip Walter Vane?"

"Walter Vane is the son of my father's brother, and my father was the elder and the heir to the title."

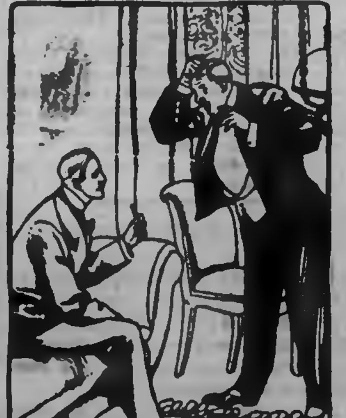
"Then, if Lord Derrington dies you become"—

"Exactly. But the difficulty is that I have to establish my birth."

Leonard jumped up and clutched his hair. "Here's a mystery," he said, staring at his friend. "What does it all mean?"

"Sit down and I'll tell you."

Leonard resumed his seat and glanced at the clock. "We have a quarter of an hour," he said, "but I think we'll defy Mrs. Jersey and sit up this night."



"Here's a mystery."

"No," said Brendon hastily, "we may as well do what she wants. I wish to conciliate her. She is the only person who can help to prove my mother's marriage."

"Humph! I thought there was something queer about her. Who was she?"

"My mother's maid! But I had better tell you from the beginning."

Train sat down and produced a cigarette. "Go on," he said. "No, wait! I want to know before you begin why Mrs. Jersey was so struck with that yellow holly?"

This time it was Brendon who looked puzzled. "I can't say, Leonard."

"Do you think she connected it with some disaster?" asked Train.

"From her looks, when she set eyes on it, I should think so."

"Does Miss Ward know Mrs. Jersey?"

"No. She knows nothing about her."

"And it was Miss Ward who gave you the yellow holly?"

"Yes. When I was at afternoon tea."

"Then I can't see why Mrs. Jersey should have made such a spectacle of herself," said Leonard, lighting his cigarette. "Tell your story."

"I'll do so as concisely as possible," said Brendon, staring into the fire. "My mother was the daughter of Anthony Lockwood, who was a teacher of singing and lived here. She was very beautiful and also became famous as a singer at concerts. The son of Lord Derrington, Percy Vane, saw her and loved her. He subsequently eloped with her. She died in Paris two years later, shortly after I was born."

"And you came to live here?"

"Not immediately. I was but an infant in arms, but my father would not part with me. He kept Mrs. Jersey—she was my mother's maid, remember—as my nurse, and we went to Monte Carlo. I am afraid my poor father was a bit of a scamp. He was, at all events, a gambler and lost all his money at the tables. He became poor and his father, Lord Derrington, refused to help him."

"He was angry at the marriage, I suppose."

"That's the point. Was there a marriage? But to make things clear I had better go on as I started. My father went to San Remo, and from that place he sent me home to my grandfather Lockwood.

"By that time Mrs. Jersey had left. I had another nurse, and it was she who took me to this house. My grandfather was delighted to have me, as he always insisted that there was a marriage. I grew up here and went to school, afterward to college. My grandfather died, but there was just enough money to finish my education. The house was sold, and by a curious coincidence Mrs. Jersey took it as a boarding establishment. Where she got the money I don't know. But I passed out of her life as a mere infant, and I don't suppose she thought anything more about me. Perhaps she recognized me tonight from my likeness to my father, as she mentioned that she had seen my fate before. But I can't say."

"What became of your father?"

ASSASSIN IDENTIFIED

Karl Hohenthal, Former University Student At Helsingfors.

The Assassination Was Due, It Is Believed At St. Petersburg, to Political Causes—More Disorders and Killings in Russian Poland—Events of the Past Day Have Been Quite Serious—The War News—Will Kuropatkin Stay?

Helsingfors, Finland, Feb. 8.—The assassin of Soisalon Soininen, Procurator-General of Finland, who was shot and killed Monday at his residence by a young man dressed in an officer's uniform, has been identified as Karl Lenard Hohenthal, formerly a student at the Imperial Alexander University here.

Hohenthal, who latterly had lived in Stockholm, returned to Finland, Jan. 18. He maintains obstinate silence.

The assassin was removed yesterday from the Surgical Hospital to the Russian Military Hospital, where he lies not fully conscious.

It was at first thought, that his comatose condition was the result of a drug, but his head was badly injured while he was being dragged downstairs after the murder.

Due to Political Causes.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—The assassination of Procurator-General of Finland, Soisalon Soininen, is believed to be undoubtedly due to political causes. Soininen was long ago marked for vengeance by the Young Fenoman, and no man was regarded as more of a traitor to his country. As Procurator-General he held a position independent of and in some respects even superior to that of the Governor-General, and he also was the leader of the old Fenoman party, the influence of which is no longer dominant in the Diet, though it is still preponderant in the Senate.

Deplored By the Finns.

The crime is deplored by the Finns, who still hoped the Emperor would entertain the Diet's petition for a return to the former liberal Administration, and it is feared it may provoke a policy of repression, and especially in view of the recent disorders in Helsingfors. Is Finland about to witness a series of political murders? This is the question asked on all sides here.

BLOODSHED IN POLAND.

Men Who Went to Work Killed By Strikers.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, Feb. 8.—Several men were killed here yesterday by strikers in bakeries and elsewhere, where attempts were made to resume work. Many arrests have been made.

Strikers yesterday morning attempted to bring out the employes of the electrical plant of the lunatic asylum, but the doctors succeeded in pacifying the men.

According to a report from Radom, 20 workingmen have been killed or wounded in strike disorders there yesterday, while at Sjarsysko 24 have been killed and forty wounded.

Grave trouble is also reported at Kutno to-day. Troops have been sent to Kunto from here.

Afraid to Go to Work.

Lodz, Russian Poland, Feb. 8.—The factories were opened yesterday morning, but scarcely any of the workmen appeared. At one factory the men worked until lunch time, and then left and refused to return, saying they did not want to be killed by a bullet from the street fired through the door. Another factory abruptly ended work.

The situation appears to be growing worse, and a critical time is expected on Thursday, the date on which some of the largest manufacturers have decided to pay their employes the balance of their wages, dismiss them and shut down the mills indefinitely.

The strikers are becoming more aggressive. Yesterday morning they forcibly entered a mill and destroyed the machinery.

Getting Worse in the South.

Batoum, Caucasia, Feb. 8.—The strike situation here is growing worse. Business is practically at a standstill, although some steamers have succeeded in getting away. Food is becoming more scarce. The military Governor has issued a proclamation, warning the inhabitants against assembling in crowds.

They'll Get Him Yet.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—The Berlin Tageblatt yesterday printed a report to the effect that Emperor Nicholas recently found in his study a letter threatening him with assassination. An investigation of the rumor elicited a semi-official statement that it was unfounded.

Something For Trepoff.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—It is understood that Governor-General Trepoff is likely to become Minister of the Interior shortly or receive the specially created post of Minister of Police.

BAYONETTED 50 JAPS.

Cossacks, Commanded By Prince Magaloff, Attack a Village On Feb. 5.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—General Kuropatkin reports that a detachment of Cossacks commanded by Prince Magaloff attacked a village occupied by the Japanese the night of Feb. 5, bayonetted fifty men and retired without sustaining any loss.

Gen. Myloff, commander of the Eighth Army Corps, has been appointed to replace General Grippenberg in command of the Second Manchurian Army.

Will Kuropatkin Be Allowed to Go?

The same widespread and high-placed influences which agitated for Gen. Kuropatkin's removal after the battle of Liaoyang are now endeavoring to induce the Emperor to accept his tendered resignation. It is suggested that either Grand Duke Nicolas Nicolaievitch, a cousin of the Emperor, who commands the Russian Cavalry; Gen. Sakharoff, Minister of War; or Gen. Linovitch, commanding the First Army in Manchuria, be appointed to succeed Gen. Kuropatkin as commander-in-chief.

National sentiment sympathises with Gen. Kuropatkin, although the Southern Russian papers increasingly reiterate that the Russian soldiery is good, and that only the leadership is bad.

The War Must Go On.

The renewed peace talk resulting from the seeming concurrence of recent events in Washington finds no echo in official and diplomatic circles here, where Emperor Nicholas' repeated declaration that the war must be carried to a satisfactory conclusion remains the keynote of the situation. The prevailing opinion among diplomats here is that Japan and Russia would choose France rather than the United States when the time arrives to discuss terms of peace.

Setting Towards Peace.

The present current of press and public opinion in Russia appears to be setting towards peace. The newspapers no longer proclaim the necessity of continuing the war at all costs. Articles appearing in The Russ and The Novoe Vremya, over the signatures of well known war correspondents who have just returned from Manchuria, criticize the conduct of operations there in unmeasured terms, while these papers editorially declare that hopes of victory are remote.

The war has never been altogether popular. Present distress and discontent of the working classes, the general desire for reform evinced by the upper classes, may develop a strong peace movement with which the Government may have to reckon.

TO REVISE PRESS GAG LAW.

Committee of Ministers Institute a Special Conference.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—The committee of Ministers has decided to institute a special conference to revise the censorship and press laws. The president of the conference will be appointed by the Emperor, and its membership will consist of officials especially cognizant of the question, members of the Imperial Academy of Science, prominent writers and representatives of departments. The president of the conference will have the right to invite persons from whom useful information can be secured and members of the provincial press. The president will present a draft of the revised laws direct to the Council of State.

The committee of Ministers has decided the following points:

First—Precedent to definite revision to abolish the right of the Minister of the Interior to prohibit the publication of items in newspapers.

Second—To abolish the existing order and permit of the transfer of a newspaper from one editor to another, conditioned on information of the transfer being given to the press department of both editors.

Third—The Minister of the Interior is only authorized to prevent street sales of newspapers. The Minister of the Interior may demand the name of the author of an article if needed for purposes of prosecution or in the interest of the security of the State.

Fourth—To request the Emperor to order that before a book is suppressed by the Minister of the Interior copies thereof shall be sent to scientific institutions.

Fifth—Grant the Minister of the Interior the right to revise censorship regulations.

Sixth—To request the Minister of Instruction and the Minister of the Interior, after conference with the Governor-General of the Kieff Academy of Science and the Universities of Kharkoff and Kieff, to revise the Imperial decree restricting the use of the little Russian language in books.

All these decisions were confirmed by the Emperor on Feb. 3.

"Mad as a Hatter."

What is the derivation of the phrase "Mad as a hatter?" One explanation is that it was originally French, "As mad as an oyster" (huitre), that bivalve being supposed to be extremely unintellectual. Another theory is that the phrase had reference to Collins, the English poet, author of the "Ode to the Passions." He was a hatter at Chichester, and it has been said that the lunatics with whom he was confined at one time called him "the hatter" and that the phrase originated then.

JUSTICE IDINGTON WILL GO.

Appointed to the Supreme Court Bench As Killam's Successor.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Justice Idington of Toronto has been appointed to the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy created by the appointment of Justice Killam to the chairmanship of the Railway Commission.

Justice John Idington was appointed to the High Court bench in Ontario last year. He is in his 65th year, having been born near Morriston, Ont., Oct. 14, 1840. He graduated LL.B. at Toronto University in 1864, was called to the bar that same year and entered upon the practice of his profession at Stratford where he continued until called to the bench.

The salary of a High Court judge is $5,000; of a puisne judge of the Supreme Court $7,000.

Mr. R. C. Clute, K.C.

Mr. R. C. Clute, K. C., succeeds Judge Idington on the High Court Bench.

Not For Him.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Chief Justice Falconbridge said yesterday that he would not accept an appointment to the Supreme Court bench even if it were offered. It would mean leaving Toronto for Ottawa, make him a junior judge and make no difference in salary.

LORD ONSLOW ON EMBARGO.

Does Not Believe in Taking It Off From Canada Yet.

London, Feb. 8.—Lord Onslow, in the course of a speech at Yeovil to a gathering of influential farmers' clubs, said there was another trouble which came upon his shoulders from brethern in Canada. In 1896 the Government found it absolutely necessary to pass the act prohibiting the importation into this country of any animals from abroad, from British colonies as well as from foreign countries, except for immediate slaughter at the ports of debarkation.

The leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons only a few days ago announced that he was in favor of re-opening British ports to cattle coming from Canada. Such a step would be most impolitic and dangerous.

Killam Takes Seat.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—When the Railway Commission met yesterday Justice Killam took his seat as chairman. The London switching case was up for consideration. Before proceeding with this case M. K. Cowan for the Grand Trunk and Charles Drinkwater for the C.P.R. wished Judge Killam the same success on the board as he had on the bench. The new chief commissioner thanked Mr. Cowan and Mr. Drinkwater for their remarks.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A CURE FOR ALL.

Not a Patent Cure-all, For a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure for Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, seem to think their medicines will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely sure to cure every dyspeptic, and he need look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is, that for indigestion and various stomach troubles Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no farther than this, and any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it that the facts will not fully sustain.

It is a modern discovery, composed of harmless vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. It rests the overworked organ and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves, creating a healthy appetite, giving refreshing sleep and the blessings which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food and take these Tablets at each meal, thus assisting and resting the stomach, which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the Tablets will be no longer required.

Nervous Dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per package.

"I used to think when it first came out that there were other shoe polishes equal to it, but now is the only shoe polish I keep. I fill my window with it and draw a crowd. I believe if I filled my store with it I could easily sell it all. No kicks now from selling 'just as good goods.'"

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

THE ROBE AND COAT

Event of the Season

The beginning of February marks an important event—a Clearing Sale of Fur Robes and Fur Coats.

As Furs have been getting higher and higher priced each season and this sale's prices will be lower than last season's prices, isn't that reason enough for present buying?

Read our short list of February prices, which you will find but a sample of what we are doing in our entire Fur stock, and then figure it out if it isn't better than banking money.

for the purchase of these high-class Furs, but there are others. Protection of health should not have money consideration. An hour's exposure to extreme weather might cause irreparable damage—and don't forget the after years of comfort. Come in and have a look through, as our stock is not of the cheap class made so often for no other purpose than to be sold by auction, but is all home manufactured and guaranteed.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Good Record.

Last night's game at Smith's Falls makes the ninth league game in which the local seniors have participated this season. Of the nine, six have been won, two lost and one tied. In the nine games they have scored 98 goals to 44. Their record is as follows—

Jan. 6, Peterboro 21, Port Perry, 8.
Jan. 9, Peterboro 4, Lindsay 8.
Jan. 13, Peterboro 17, Lindsay 5.
Jan. 16, Peterboro 5, Port Perry 5.
Jan. 20, Peterboro 11, Port Perry 4.
Jan. 23, Peterboro 13, Lindsay 3.
Jan. 27, Peterboro 11, Lindsay 6.
Feb. 1, Peterboro 5, Port Perry 6.
Feb. 6, Peterboro 5, Smith's Falls 3.

To Play in Cobourg.

The T.A.S.-Campbellford difficulty has at last been settled and the tie between the two will be played off at last. The two teams will meet in a sudden death game at Cobourg on Thursday night. The Abstainers are in good shape and expect a victory.

To-Morrow's Game.

Keen ice is almost certain for tomorrow night's big game with Smith's Falls, which should be one of the fastest and most scientific of the season. The game at the Falls was a clever exhibition and both teams travelled at full speed all the way through. The Mic-Macs are a very speedy bunch, and although they are two goals behind, may be depended upon to make a big struggle to win out. It will be one of the best exhibitions of the winter, and an enormous crowd will no doubt be in attendance.

The Telegram dope artist was sadly out in his calculations when he called Smith's Falls to beat Peterborough.

Fenelon Beat Lindsay.

As we expected, Fenelon Falls trimmed Lindsay right in Scugogville on Tuesday night by four goals to three. The score at half time was two all. It was a fast and well contested game.

The Lindsay Post, in answer to ex-Lindsayite's letter, published in the Review on Monday night, makes another mean attack on "Bill" Crowley, the popular cover point of the Peterborough team.

One from Lindsay.

Peterborough intermediates are gradually climbing up. In the second round they defeated Smith's Falls on their own ice last night by 5 to 3 in a good game. Peterborough played their old trick—that of coaxing out their opponents' forwards and defence men and then making a fast three-men raid and scoring. Goals count in this round. Go it, Pete.—Lindsay Post.

Tickets for tomorrow night's match between Peterborough and Smith's Falls are on sale at Sanderson's jewelry store, Clarke's fur store and the Oriental Hotel office.

King in Game.

Chatham were defeated by Detroit last evening by 7 goals to 5. Harry King formerly of town, palyed right wing for the visitors and scored most of their goals.

The Trent Valley Finals.

It is likely that the first game in the Trent Valley League finals will be played on Tuesday night of next week. The tie existing in No. 2 District between Campbellford and T.A.S. will be broken at Cobourg on Friday night. Mr. Leo Brown, of Port Hope will officiate as referee. The teams are evenly matched and the game promises to excite a good deal of interest. The winner of No. 1 District is Fenelon Falls and of No. 3 Cobourg and of No. 2 Campbellford or T.A.S. It is the intention of the executive to order home and home games between three group winners, the first to be played in Fenelon Falls on Tuesday between the team of that place and the winner of the T.A.S. Campbellford contest at Cobourg on Friday night.

T.A.S. in Good Shape.

The T.A.S. team will be in the best of shape for Friday night's game and expect a victory over the fast Campbellford outfit. If a sufficient number of people promise to go the Abstainers will run a special excursion. At any rate a large number of rooters will accompany the team.

The hockey match which was to be played to-night between St. John's Young Men's Guild and George street Young Men's Guild is postponed until further notice.

The executive of the City Hockey League will meet to-night at 7.30.

Last Night's Games.

In the Intermediate O.H.A. games last night Victoria Harbor defeated Parry Sound in the latter town by 10 to 6. Contrary to expectation Goderich trimmed Woodstock by 6 to 4.

WINDSOR SALT is the best Salt for Table and Dairy—No adulteration—Never cakes.

CURLING.

Three rinks of curlers go to Lakefield on Friday next for a friendly game with that town.

Four rinks of curlers go to Orillia next Tuesday to play for the Sheppard-Neill trophy.

Six rinks of curlers go to Toronto on Friday, February 17th, to have a game with the Queen City Club. The local club will run a monster excursion to Toronto on that date.

At the meeting last night it was decided to hold a big bonspiel here the last week in February. It is expected to be a big success, as several outside clubs have already signified their intention to be present.

The following games were played last night:—

Nervous Dyspepsia

Mr. George Bolen, Spry, Bruce Co., writes:—"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia for some years, and after using nine boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I felt better than I had for years. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is certainly the best medicine I ever used, and I say so because I want to give full credit where it is due."

HAPPY AND HEALTHY.

A Beautiful Canadian Girl Saved From Catarrh of the Lungs by Pe-ru-na.

MISS FLORENCE KENAH.

Miss Florence E. Kenah, 434 Maria street, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"A few months ago I caught a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and remained there so persistently that I became alarmed. I took medicine without benefit, until my digestive organs became upset, and my head and back began to ache severely and frequently.

"I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had little faith I felt so sick that I was ready to try anything. It brought me blessed relief at once, and I felt that I had the right medicine at last. Within three weeks I was completely restored and have enjoyed perfect health since.

"I now have the greatest faith in Peruna." F. E. KENAH.

WOMEN should beware of contracting catarrh. The cold wind and rain, slush and mud of winter are especially conducive to catarrhal derangements. Few women escape.

Upon the first symptoms of catching cold Peruna should be taken. It fortifies the system against colds and catarrh.

The following letter gives one young woman's experience with Peruna:

Miss Rose Gerbing is a popular society woman of Crown Point, Ind., and she writes the following:

"Recently I took a long drive in the country, and being too thinly clad I caught a bad cold which settled on my lungs, and which I could not seem to shake off. I had heard a great deal of Peruna for colds and catarrh and I bought a bottle to try. I am pleased that I did, for it brought speedy relief. It only took about two bottles, and I considered this money well spent.

"You have a firm friend in me, and I not only advise its use to my friends, but have purchased several bottles to give to those without the means to buy, and have noticed without exception that it has brought about a speedy cure wherever it has been used."—Miss Rose Gerbing.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

—The Manager of the Street Railway Rink has secured an attraction for Thursday night, in the shape of an immense phonograph, which will play a programme of music all evening. The remarkable thing is that the instrument has the power and force of a full band. The selections played will be reproductions of music by world famous bands. All who can spare the evening should turn out and hear the novelty.

—Notices are being sent out by the Secretary of the Board of Trade, Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, calling attention to the joint meeting which will be held in the Town Council Chamber tomorrow night to discuss the proposed establishment of a sanitarium in Peterborough for the treatment of tuberculosis. The members of the Board of Health, the Town Council and the medical profession are cordially invited to be present.

—All senior intermediates of the Y. M.C.A. are requested to be at the gymnasium class Monday night from 8.15 to 9 o'clock for regular work. After class all will repair to the parlor where a cheery fire will be burning in the grate. Light refreshments will be served by the leaders' corps, music rendered by local talent, and addresses presented by the most prominent business and professional men. This is a special effort to get all the men once more in regular working line. Come and bring another gym. man.

Mrs (Rev.) J. G. Potter will receive on Thursday instead of on Wednesday of each week until further notice.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., who has been confined to his home for a week with an attack of the grippe, is able to be around again.

Mr. James Kendry is confined to his room by illness. When in Toronto recently he contracted a severe cold, which developed into the grippe. He was reported somewhat better this morning.

Indigestion and Headache

Mr. Duncan McPherson, Content, Alta., writes:—"I was for many years troubled with indigestion and headache, and derived no relief from the many remedies I used. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after taking four boxes, the result is that I am once more in the full enjoyment of the blessings of good health."

—In yesterday's report of the Town Council meeting on Monday night, the Review reporter wrote in one paragraph "Mayor Roger," instead of "Mayor Best." The Review has had this error pointed out by about 136 people, which shows that folk read the Council reports and read the Review. The error is an illustration of what is termed force of habit the press having for the last two years been writing the name of Mayor Roger, especially as the press relations with the late Mayor were agreeable and helpful, and he was ever considerate of the knights of the quill. Apologies are due Mayor Best for the inadvertant omission of his name, with promises that it will not occur again.

On Friday evening of last week the residence of Mrs. Jas. About midnight a dainty and well ordered supper was served, the tables of eighteen covers being done in pretty color effect, after which the beautiful home was converted into one spacious recreation hall where tender clasps and loving eyes told tales on happy hearts. The company included guests from Peterborough, Campbellford, Warsaw and the surrounding country.

ANOTHER BANK FOR PETERBORO'

Bank of Nova Scotia Succeed in Getting Office.

WILL OPEN VERY SHORTLY

To Occupy Offices Situated at Corner of George and Charlotte Streets—Town Engineer and Tax Collector to Have Offices Over C. N. Brown's on Simcoe Street.

Mr. E. T. Hammet, of the Inspectors' staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is in town to-day and states that he has secured a lease of the offices occupied by the tax collector and town engineer, at the corner of George and Charlotte-sts. and that arrangements will be proceeded with immediately with the object of opening a branch of the bank in Peterborough. He will be given possession next Wednesday and hopes to have everything ready for business within one week afterwards. This will only be a temporary arrangement, as it is the intention to become more centrally located as soon as possible.

The Bank of Nova Scotia is one of the oldest in Canada, having been established in 1832—seventy three years ago, and it has now over fifty agencies in Canada. This will be the seventh in Ontario, and Mr. Hammet states that there will be others shortly to follow. The Bank is considered to be one of the strongest in Canada, the capital being $2,000,000 and the reserve fund, $3,200,000. The capital is being increased by $500,000 and this will bring the reserve up to about $4,000,000 and the capital $2,500,000. Of the Bank's assets, 54 per cent. are immediately available.

The Bank of Nova Scotia is a progressive financial institution and the seventy-third annual report, which will appear in the Review will be read with considerable interest. This will be the fifth bank agency in town, and it is the establishment here of such institutions as these that point to the fact that Peterborough is assuredly going forward.

Offices are now being fitted up, over C. N. Brown's store on Simcoe-st. for the town engineer and tax collector.

DEATH OF MRS. HOWDEN

Relict of Late Robert Howden Passes Away After Long Illness.

The death of Mrs. Robert Howden occurred at an early hour this morning, after an illness of long duration. Death was hastened by apoplexy, from which Mrs. Howden suffered a stroke some two or three weeks ago. By her death there has been removed one of the most beautiful types of consistent Christian character, a woman broad-minded, generous, kind, greatly endeared to those among whom she moved and an ideal mother. Her death will be deplored by all who were acquainted with her.

Mrs. Howden's former name was Jane Sharpe, and she was born in Cavan Township. Her husband, the late Robert Howden, died one year ago on the 12th of this month. Mr. David Sharpe, of Cavan Township, is a brother, and the surviving children are Miss Ella Howden, at home; Mrs. A. E. Scott, Winnipeg; Mrs. W. H. Staples, Cavanville. The late Mrs. Robt. Fair was a daughter. 20 years ago the family moved to Peterborough from Cavan, and took up residence at 678 Bethune-st. which has been their home ever since. Mrs. Howden was a member of George-st. Methodist Church and the sense of loss in her death will be keenly felt by both old and young in the congregation.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. from the family residence 678 Bethune-st. to Little Lake Cemetery.

CHARLOTTE ST. CHURCH

Gentlemen Who Will be its Representatives on Quarterly Board.

At the annual congregational meeting of Charlotte-st. Methodist church held last night in the lecture room, the following gentlemen were selected as representatives to the Quarterly Official Board for the coming year:—Messrs. W. P. Adamson, A. B. Cunningham, Joseph Forster, Jas. McCreary, Geo. Minorgan, J. L. Hughes and Andrew Brown. The first six named were representatives last year. The vacancy occasioned by the removal of Dr. Jeffs was filled by Mr. Brown.

WAR IN FAR EAST

Interesting Illustrated Lecture at the S. A Hall Last Night.

Ensign Edwards, of Montreal, delivered an interesting lecture last night in the S. A. Hall to an appreciative audience. His subject was "The War in the Far East," illustrated by beautifully colored views.

The Ensign spoke of many of the incidents in the campaign in a way that delighted his hearers. He also spoke of the S. A. war in Japan, and gave many figures which proved that the hold the Army has in the Land of the Rising Sun is remarkable.

MRS. MORROW'S CLASS

About 60 Members Present at the Meeting in the T.A.S. Hall.

Mrs. Morrow's Chorus Class still continues to retain quite a large membership. At the meeting which took place last evening in the T.A.S. Hall about 60 members were present, and all showed by the active interest which they displayed that they recognise the necessity of a musical training, and fully appreciate the value of the instructions imparted to them. Last evening's class was not merely instructive for those who are advanced in the theory of music, but was, moreover, highly interesting and highly entertaining for the members who still consider themselves beginners. At the opening of the class Mrs. C. B. McAllister, Miss Gertrude Moloney, Mr. R. N. Jolliffe and Mr. Vernon Morphet contributed vocal solos. For Mrs. McAllister and Mr. Jolliffe praise is unnecessary. Their finished musical education and the richness of their voices always assure the success of the numbers which they contribute. The members of the class were greatly pleased with their solos, and were incited to persevere in the work which will eventually bring such pleasing and beneficial results.

Miss Gertrude Moloney, of Ennismore, and Mr. Morphet are considered as junior pupils, but their solos were certainly well rendered. Their youthful appearance might not at first lead the audience to expect more than ordinary songs, rendered in an ordinary fashion. But the manner in which they sang deserves more than ordinary praise for beginners. Miss Moloney's voice has a good range and training has certainly added to it a pleasing fulness. Mr. Morphet has a strong and sweet voice and will become, by the development of these qualities, a singer who will always please.

After the solos the chorus work was taken up, and this was followed by a lesson in the theory of music.

The members are evidently well pleased with the work, and indeed they have every reason to be pleased. It is to be hoped that all will attend the classes regularly and thus aid their teacher in bringing about the desired beneficial results.

THURSDAY, FEB. 9, 1905.

PEN POINTS.

The Whitney ministry is a strong one.

The reign of clean, honest and decent government has begun.

If the new Cabinet does not suit you, perhaps you are hard to satisfy.

Mr. St. John will make a most judicial looking Speaker of the new Assembly.

"Premier Whitney" sounds well, looks well in print and is easily pronounced.

The new Ontario Cabinet is composed of four lawyers, three doctors one manufacturer and one farmer.

Perhaps the new Minister of Education, Hon. Dr. Pyne, will act as Minister of Minds for a while.

There will be no more guessing contests so far as cabinet construction is concerned for some time.

Character, worth and work were taken into consideration by Mr. Whitney in the formation of his new Ministry.

Dr. Willoughby, of East Northumberland, well deserves the prefix of Honorable which has been placed before his name.

A Grit exchange complains that Mr. Whitney in conferring honors should not have gone outside of Ontario all the way to St. John.

The reason more leading Conservatives could not be taken into the cabinet is because there was not any more Reaume.

Mr. Whitney evidently believes that Pyne makes good cabinet material. Most of his followers will agree with him in the present instance.

As soon as Mr. Whitney and his new cabinet were sworn in and Mr. Ross transferred to the cold shades of opposition did you notice how the weather moderated?

Well, if your name is not included in the list of cabinet preferments do not be disappointed. Think of the worry and responsibility of which you are relieved.

The magnificent demonstration tendered Premier Whitney in Toronto last night was of the most cordial and enthusiastic character. It shows the esteem and respect in which an honest man and an upright statesman is held.

"A Daily Reader" sends to the Review a post card reminding the Health Board, which is so particular about the cleanliness of milk and bread tickets, that the Post office authorities send out oft-used and filthy cards with the legend, "Call for Parcel." The suggestion is that as these cards, being sent out over and over again, get into every kind of hands, the Health Board should not overlook them.

The Ontario Government patronage has already been switched from the Grits to the Tories, says the Kingston News. On Friday last a Tory butcher received an order from an officer of a provincial institution for five quarters of beef, and a boot and shoe dealer for goods in his line. Both affirmed that it was a strange experience, never before having had a Government order for goods.

In selecting his Cabinet Premier Whitney has stood pretty well by the old guard—the men who walked the wilderness with him. The two surprises in the selections made are the giving of a portfolio to Dr. Reaume, who made his first appearance in the Legislature in 1902, and the placing of Dr. Pyne over the Department of Education. Dr. Pyne's name was not mentioned by anybody in connection with that appointment and it comes as a surprise. The naming of three ministers without portfolio at the very outset of the Administration's career indicates the difficulty the Premier encountered in choosing his colleagues.—Toronto Star.

Mr. Whitney has shown public recognition of the debt he owes to the influence of his wife. Every man, he says, will find in his book of holy memories that his best and most sacred moments and his greatest successes have been stamped by a woman's influence. It is, perhaps, as well for Mr. Whitney that he did not make this acknowledgment during the election campaign. How eagerly it would have been seized upon as a confession of his lack of ability! Things are different now, however, and many people who a few weeks ago could not think of Mr. Whitney as anything else than a failure and a fraud, are now willing to confess, not only that he is a man of brains and integrity, but that they always knew it.

New Prime Minister Presented With Appreciative Address—Congratulatory Speeches—New Cabinet Ministers Sworn in—First Meeting of New Administration Will be Held To-day—Early Calling of New Legislature.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—Shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday Mr. J. P. Whitney announced that the Lieutenant-Governor had approved of the following gentlemen constituting his Government:

Premier and Attorney-General—Hon. J. P. Whitney, K.C., M.P.P., Dundas.

Minister of Crown Lands—Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., South Toronto.

Minister of Agriculture—Hon. Nelson Monteith, M.P.P., South Perth.

The Swearing In.

Premier Whitney's cabinet was sworn in by J. Lonsdale Capreol, clerk of the executive council, at government house at 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They will take charge of their departments this morning. Mr. Whitney has given it out that this cabinet is subject to modification. Mr. Foy will be attorney-general in a couple of months with the view to considering the question of law reform. This means that there will be practically a reconstruction with Mr. Whitney probably minister of education, Mr. Hanna minister of crown lands and Dr. Pyne provincial secretary.

The Farmer-General.

All the new cabinet ministers were on hand early, except Mr. Monteith, the minister of agriculture. He did not arrive until nearly 12 o'clock, and was greeted on his entrance by Mr. Whitney, who had grown rather restless waiting for the last one to come. "Oh, we are waiting for you, Monteith," the premier said as he grasped the hand of the new farmer-general and led him up the staircase. In three minutes Mr. Whitney came down and announced to the waiting newspapermen that his cabinet was complete, and that he would be back from government house in ten minutes after submitting the names to the lieutenant-governor. The waiting ones were rewarded within the time specified, and were taken upstairs, where the new cabinet were having an informal session.

Of Course He Will.

After naming the cabinet Mr. Whitney said he expected Mr. St. John to be the speaker of the next legislature.

Asked when the house would meet he said he had no idea—that will probably be settled at an early meeting of the new cabinet.

A department of mines is to be created, and it is expected that this will be one of the early acts of the new administration. The general public will have some time yet to guess who will be the head of this department.

Supped With His Honor.

The new premier secured an appointment with the lieutenant-governor for 4.30, and at that hour the cabinet proceeded to government house to be sworn in. After the ceremony the cabinet ministers had supper with his honor and returned to the Queen's about 5.30. Major Hendrie had to leave early to catch a train for home and was consequently not in the city to attend the celebration ceremonies.

The first meeting of the baby administration will be held this afternoon. Probably the first act will be to call upon the clerk to issue the writs for the by-elections. All the members of the cabinet except the ministers without portfolio will have to go back their constituencies for re-election. It is not likely that any of the ministers will be opposed.

To Call the Legislature.

The cabinet will also at the earliest opportunity fix the date for the opening of the legislature. It seems to be the idea that the house will meet within a month.

2,000 CARRIED TORCHES.

Despite the Bad Weather Toronto Outdoes Itself Honoring Whitney.

The elements were not kind last night. The air was of the "eager and nipping" sort, and the southeaster that blew had in it more than the gentle caress of a summer's zephyr. It was, in truth, a pneumonia-laden breeze, that even the healthiest circulation might not lightly defy, and that caused shoulders to involuntarily huddle, as it dealt forth its blasts. It was a night of a sort to cause the fireside to hold forth exaggerated charms, and to place unusual premiums on domesticity, but for all that many's the Tory head of a family who last night buttoned up his great coat after a hasty supper and betook himself to the firing line, which, in this particular instance, was the Queen's Hotel and its immediate environs. As Emerson puts it, "In truth the heart if stout within can arm impenetrably the skin."

The Best Ever.

As a feast for the eyes last night's parade was not a conspicuous success, as a party demonstration, it overtopped anything Toronto had hitherto seen, and will set a mark for years to come. The triumphal procession, whose head had formed on York-street, about half way between Front and King, got moving, about 8 o'clock, with strains of music, exuberant skyrockets and cheers. The premier, as he descended the hotel steps and took his place in the waiting cutter, was greeted with applause by those who were in his immediate neighborhood and aware of his identity. First came the usual platoon of mounted police. The students were to the fore with the Second (headed by I.O.F. Trumpet Band under Major Emery), First and Third Wards (headed by two pipers, following in the order named. In a carriage heading the Second Ward delegation were E. R. Ryckman, E. Strachan Cox, Thomas Gearing and W. Purvis. The Queen's Own Band was sandwiched in between processionists. The band of the 48th had the honor of immediately preceding the carriage drawn by four horses containing the premier, Hon. J. J. Foy and Ald. McGhie and Geary, representing the Central Conservative Association as president and secretary. A guard of honor from the Young Conservative Club, bearing torches, escorted the carriages. Behind came the East York contingent, then the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Ward associations, while the Cadets' Band headed the long line of a couple of hundred or more carriages that tailed away at the end.

Who is Who?

The impression left upon the average beholder was a confused one, in which the torchlight effects stood out most prominently. Who were the notables and who were the semi-notables thousands of anxious citizens strained their eyes in vain to discover. "Where's Whitney?" was a question heard on all sides, even the premier's distinctive whiskers failing to betray him in the uncertain light and the generally happy-go-lucky manner of conducting the affair.

The procession, as it moved along King and Yonge-streets, was viewed by several thousand people. There were about 2000 in line.

At Massey Hall.

Now, while there was not that frenzied hip, hip, hurrahing at Massey Hall that has characterized some political gatherings, it does not necessarily follow that the heart was not sound. Far be it from so! But somehow Conservative audiences, even in the moment of their greatest exhilaration, in joyous anticipation or in triumphant realization, are not altogether renowned for sheer noise. It is the sincerity that counts and encourages, and no more loyal offering of homage could be made than that which the vast auditorium, packed to standing room, tendered Premier J. P. Whitney as he came upon the platform. Long before the processionists arrived the balcony and gallery were full. Ladies were there in force, a fact which was noticed by several graceful references from the platform to the power of the gentler sex in local politics.

There was no lavish decoration strung. Across the platform was the banner inscription, "WELCOME TO OUR LEADER." From it was suspended a large oil painting of Mr. Whitney, with the words, "Our new Premier." Large British flags draped around the platform and around the balcony rails completed the garnishings. The real decoration to the hall was furnished by the solidly filled rows of seats on the lower floor as the occupants, with red cheeks and full of cheer, jumbled in fresh from their street show of allegiance and respect. Hundreds of processionists got no further than the doors.

While the platform began to fill up the orchestra resumed its medley of popular airs and seemed to strike a half reminiscent mood when it drifted into the melody, "It was not like this in the olden days." When Alex. McCowan, M.L.A., for East York, strode across the stage in his big coon skin coat, he was bidden to "Stand up," and bowed his acknowledgements. Herb. Lennox, who redeemed the north riding, was also promptly recognized and applauded.

The Time to Cheer.

And then the orchestra broke into "The Maple Leaf," and the audience, knowing what it signaled, burst into a roar of applause as Arthur Van Koughnet led a distinguished, if miniature, procession to the forefront. There came Ald. McGhie, chairman of the evening, and with him the premier, then Ald. Geary, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, Hon. Mr. Foy, Hon. Dr. Reaume, Hon. Dr. Willoughby, Hon. Mr. Matheson, Hon. Dr. Pyne, Hon. Mr. St. John, Hon. Mr. Beck, Hon. Mr. Hanna, Hon. Mr. Monteith, Edmund Bristol, A. C. Pratt, M.L.A., who defeated Charlton in Norfolk, and then a number of members of the committees of arrangement. Owing to illness Thomas Crawford was unable to be present.

It was almost 9 o'clock by this time and the oratory was limited. There was cordiality for each speaker, but a significant indication of feeling, after Mr. Whitney had spoken, were the immediate cries for "Gamey." Several times thereafter the same demand was voiced until at last Chairman McGhie said that the member for Manitoulin was not present, otherwise he would be glad to call upon him.

The new premier spoke for little more than a quarter of an hour, and all the time he held in his hand the beautiful bouquet of crimson carnations presented to him when he arose. He was in splendid voice, and his remarks indicated a sincere appreciation of the responsibility which he and his cabinet have now to bear. He spoke of the past lessons learned as to the manifest desires of Toronto in the matter of government, from his attendance at political rallies here; of the example of British government that one party be not too long sustained in a position of power; and of the honest upheaval among true Liberals. He said that, while we should never forget the excellent record of the Conservative party in the past, neither should it be forgotten that the Reform party also had some good things to its credit. An autocratic government meant stagnation in politics, or combinations fraught with untold evils. The surplus of cabinet material had made light his burden of choosing a government.

While enthusiasm and jubilation was the dominant tone of the gathering, there was no gloating. It was rather a sort of thanksgiving for a night of darkness ended, a day of hope begun.

The Other Speakers.

After stirring addresses by Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, Hon. J. W. St. John, and Hon. Dr. Willoughby, Ald. Geary read the following:

Address to Mr. Whitney.

The following address was read to Premier Whitney:

To the Hon. J. P. Whitney, K.C., LL.D., Premier of Ontario:

The Central Conservative Association of the City of Toronto extend to you a most hearty welcome, and offer to you sincere and cordial congratulations on your accession to the high office of premier of this province. In these congratulations we feel that the citizens of Toronto generally concur and that we but voice the common sentiment in this public expression of respect and approval. This is evident by the strikingly large majorities recorded on Jan. 25 for the four candidates who were on that day elected by the city to support the government of which you are the head. The attitude of our citizens has also been shown by the manner in which the result of the election has been greeted by the independent press and by many persons who were formerly opposed to the Liberal-Conservative party. You assume the responsible duties of the premiership under the most favorable circumstances, because your course as a public man has not only been endorsed by an unprecedentedly large majority of the constituencies, but also by a decisive majority of the popular vote. It is clear that your advent to power is hailed with satisfaction not only by your own political party, but by people of different political opinions in every part of Ontario. This general confidence in your rectitude and sincerity is based upon your record in the legislature during 17 years, when your devotion to the public business, your concern for the general welfare, and your zeal in maintaining the honor of public life have earned for you a high reputation in this and other provinces of the Dominion. The fact that you have promoted progressive legislation on every fitting occasion, and that you initiated such important lines of policy as the reform of abuses in the educational system and the upbuilding of native industry in the domestic manufacture of sawlogs, are accepted as evidence of the enterprising spirit which shall govern your administration. Your past work and history satisfy us that you will uphold the interests of Ontario, administer public affairs without fear or favor, and as prime minister, establish a record that you and we shall have occasion to be proud of. In the great and important task that you now have to perform, and the high duties and trust you have assumed, at the command of the people, you can confidently count, as in the past, on the loyalty and devotion of this association, and upon the assistance of its members. We wish you and the members of your family every happiness and prosperity, and express the belief that success will attend your efforts to re-establish honest and efficient government in Ontario.

J. H. McGhie, President.
G. R. Geary, Secretary.

Mr. Whitney was followed by Hon. J. J. Foy, Hon. W. J. Hanna, Hon. Dr. Reaume, Rev. Dr. Chambers, Hon. Adam Beck, Hon. Col. Matheson, and Hon Nelson Monteith, each of whom delivered eloquent speeches suitable to the occasion. They all eulogized the new Premier for his many private and public virtues.

With cheers for the King and Premier the meeting was brought to a close a few minutes past ten.

Their Last Appointments.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—It is announced that the late Government made the following appointments before retiring:

Angus McDougald, bailiff of second division court at Alexandria, for Stormont and Glengarry; Welber L. Phelps of Kemptville, clerk of fourth division court of Leeds and Grenville; James Coleman, bailiff at Newcastle, for the second division court of Northumberland and Durham; George A. Aylesworth of Newburg, to be re-appointed clerk of fourth division court of Lennox and Addington, and David G. Gemmell, bailiff of third division court at Sault Ste. Marie.

A Matter of Change.

"What a change a woman can make in a man's life!" sighed the very young man.

"Right you are, my boy," sighed the scanty haired man who had been up against the matrimonial game for many years, "and what a lot of change she requires while doing it!"

The Language of Beggars.

In describing their possessions and their environment professional beggars use nicknames. Thus a cent is known as an "Indian." Other coins are known as "white money." A detective is a "bull," and a policeman is a "bull in harness." A thief is a "gun," and a pickpocket is a "dip." A gold watch is a "red kettle." Stamps are known as "stickers." Money is "cush." A horse car is a "rattler." When a beggar is arrested he is said to "fall." The workhouse is known as the "band house." The penitentiary is known as the "big house." A revolver is a "rod." A beggar who gives out cards on which are printed appealing bits of rhyme is known as a "throw out." One who sits cross legged on the walk is known as a "flopper." One who holds you up on the sidewalk is known as a "strong arm." So it runs on, with so many expressions covering so many figures of speech that one not familiar with their argot might listen to their talk for hours without catching the real meaning of the conversation.—Theodore Waters in Everybody's Magazine.

The Curse of the Permanent Job.

It is interesting and possibly important to note that the chief cause of matrimonial failures is the chief cause of failure in other directions. It is what may be called the curse of the "permanent job." Give a man what is or seems to him to be a permanent job, and he begins to go to seed. Ambition dies, industry withers, skill dries up. Before it is too late transfer him to a job where there are but two certainties—that he can keep it if he does well, that he will lose it if he doesn't. At once there is an amazing change, and the man who was degenerating into a sour, querulous failure is developing into a cheerful, useful success. The husband who says, "Now I've got her" and ceases to try to please or the wife who acts in the same spirit is on the way to matrimonial disaster. Whether or not the marriage was made in heaven, it's got to be lived on earth. Nor are the laws of human nature suspended for the benefit of the married.

RALPH SMITH'S LABEL BILL.

Unions May Get Power to Register From the Dominion Government If They Become Incorporated.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—The Minister of Railways stated in the House yesterday that there are 21 persons on the staff of the Railway Commission and 80 persons on the staff of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Commission.

The first sitting of the railway commission, Mr. Blain was informed, took place on Feb. 9, 1904. There has been paid on salaries to Mr. Blair $9041, to Mr. Bernier $6000, and to Mr. Mills $6300. The commission has cost, exclusive of salaries, $37,966. No private secretaries are employed by the board.

The total receipts and expenditures of the Intercolonial Railway and branches for the current year up to Dec. 31, 1904, were stated by Mr. Emmerson to be as follows: Working expenses, $4,104,018; receipts, $3,621,263. The amounts spent on the Intercolonial, including the purchase of lines, were, in 1897, $146,143; in 1898, $282,307; in 1899, $1,081,980; in 1900, $1,796,848; in 1901, $3,633,836; in 1903, $4,621,841; in 1903, $2,254,306, and from June 30 to Dec. 31, 1904, $733,321.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated in reply to Major Fowler that the minister of finance was considering the question of calling in and redeeming at their face value worn silver coins.

Mr. Henderson was informed that one charter has been granted by the governor-in-council under the penny bank act of 1903. The company has not, however, received the certificate of the treasury, which would enable it to carry on business.

Mr. Lancaster introduced a bill to amend the act respecting certificates to masters and mates of ships. He explained that the bill standing for a second reading contains an objectionable clause. He would, therefore, drop the first bill and introduce a new one.

Mr. Foster asked about the letter containing Mr. Blair's resignation as chairman of the railway commission, also the telegram to the prime minister on the same subject. Sir Wilfrid replied that both the letter and the telegram would be submitted to the house.

Mr. Bergeron called the attention of the government to the political crisis in Quebec. He said a member of the Dominion government had gone to Quebec to straighten out the tangle. He had heard it rumored also that Premier Parent had been promised a place on the Grand Trunk Pacific construction commission, provided he would retire from the premiership at the end of the session.

Sir Wilfrid jocularly dismissed Mr. Bergeron's suspicions, and assured the house that no promises of any kind had been made to Mr. Parent.

Union Labels Bill.

When the House went into committee on Mr. Smith's Labor Union Labels Bill, R. L. Borden declared that it was the duty of the Government to state its attitude towards the measure and to give the House a declaration of policy. He read from high authority to show that the Government is in duty bound to accept responsibility for all important measures.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier accepted the principle thus laid down, but the Government was not bound to declare its policy on all measures brought before the House. The bill before the House, he said, was not one which the Government should take up as a Ministerial measure. The Government was in the position of neither supporting nor opposing the measure.

Many members opposed the bill on the ground that the unions were not incorporated, and this principle was finally accepted on motion of Mr. Demers. The committee rose and reported progress.

The House adjourned at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Reford Accepts.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—Robert Reford, whose refusal of the chairmanship of the Transportation Commission in succession to the late John Bertram, stated yesterday morning that he had withdrawn his refusal and would accept the post.

This is taken to mean that the Ottawa Government has acceded to his demand as to salary and that Mr. Reford will receive a much higher rate than that given Mr. Bertram.

Was Cured of Asthma.

"I first used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with my daughter, who suffered from a severe form of asthma. The least exposure to cold would lay her up and she would nearly suffocate for want of breath. I must say I found it to be a most satisfactory treatment and it has entirely cured her."—Mrs. A. A. VanBuskirk, Robinson Street Moncton, N.B.

IMPORTANT SUBJECTS

Will be Considered at Fair Convention in Toronto Next Week.

Letters vitally affecting the interests of the Agricultural Societies of the province will be discussed at the annual convention of the Fairs and Exhibitions' Association, which will be held in Toronto, February 14th to 16th.

A great majority of the societies have appointed delegates to this convention in order that they may have an opportunity of expressing their views on the subjects under discussion.

The most important subjects which will come up for discussion are; "Should Horticultural Societies be separate in the Agricultural and Arts Act from Agricultural Societies?" "Should the number of Agricultural Societies be reduced?" "How many fall exhibitions should be allowed in each County?" "The best method of reducing the number of fall exhibitions." "Should the distinction between township and district societies be abolished and the societies receive their grants in proportion to the amounts they expend for agricultural purposes?" "Should the Government grant be withheld from Societies that permit games of chance at their exhibitions?" "Should the Legislature be asked to vote a special appropriation to assist in stamping out games of chance at agricultural exhibitions?"

Other subjects of a general nature which will be considered include "Ownership of Stock by Agricultural Societies," "Spring Stallion Shows." Supt. H. B. Cowan will present his report of fairs' work in the province during the year.

Owing to the importance of the subjects the convention this year will last three days instead of two days as usual. Reduced rates have been secured over all the railways.

TREATMENT OF PILES

Permanence of Cure the True Test

Many so-called pile remedies will afford the user slight temporary relief and the majority of those afflicted do not expect more than this.

The average sufferer, after having tried every preparation recommended for the cure of piles, comes to the conclusion that there is no cure except by an operation, and rather than undergo this "last resort," he suffers on, resigned to the situation, so far as may be. The attention of those interested is invited to the following experience:—

"After ten years of suffering from blind, bleeding and protruding piles, and after using every remedy I could hear of without any benefit, I finally bought a fifty cent bottle of Pyramid Pile Cure, and used it with such good results I bought next a dollar box, which finished up the job. That was nearly six years ago, and as far as piles is concerned I am cured, and have never felt a symptom of them since.

"Many others have used this remedy by my advice, with the same results, and I always recommend it to sufferers with piles." C. H. Potts, Burlington, Kans.

Testimony like this should convince the most skeptical that Pyramid Pile Cure not only cures, but cures to stay cured. It is in the form of a suppository, can be applied in the privacy of the home, directly to the parts affected, and does its work quickly and painlessly.

Druggists generally sell this famous remedy for fifty cents a package, and sufferers are urged to buy a package now and give it a trial tonight. Accept no substitutes.

A little book describing the causes and cure of piles is published by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., and same will be sent free to any address for the asking.

A novel theory has been advanced with regard to the human eye. It is that in the color of people's eyes is a protective adaptation to surroundings. Natives of regions where blue light is predominant—Swedes, Norwegians and sailors, for instance—have blue eyes, while near the equator or in sandy lands like South Africa, where intense yellow light is experienced, the eyes take a rich, dark, yellow hue, as those of Kaffirs and Malays, Italians and Spaniards.

Tempering Tools.

Heat the tool to blood red and quench in a mixture of one ounce of white arsenic, one ounce of spirits of salts, one ounce salammoniac, dissolved in four gallons spring water. Draw gently over clean fire until spittle flashes off, then let it cool. Keep the mixture in an iron receptacle for use.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

Easy Money.

Teacher—Johnny, write on this blackboard the sentence, "Two heads are better than one." Now, Johnny, do you believe that? Johnny—Yes'm, 'cause then you kin get a job in a dime museum and make lots of money.

Making Himself Solid.

Miss Hint—Every one says I'm the picture of mamma. Do you think so? Mr. Wise—Yes, but a very flattering picture.

The regard one shows economy is like that we show an old aunt who is to leave us something at last.—Shenstone.

WATER WORKS EXPENDITURE

Annual Financial Statement of the Department.

EXTENSION OF THE MAINS

Net Rates for the Year Amounted to $25,806 —Balance of $306.52 Carried Forward to the Credit of Profit and Loss Account.

The following interesting report was presented to the Water Commissioners on Monday by Town Clerk Armstrong:—

"I herewith submitt the financial statements of the Waterworks Department for the year 1904.

The amount expended in the extension of mains and setting hydrants was $7,699.92, and in laying services $3,006.21, a total of $10,706.13, expended in construction work. The practice inaugurated in 1903 of charging the whole cost of engineering and superintendence to expense account has been followed in 1904.

On the first of April the rate of discount allowed to consumers for prompt payment was increased from 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. The expenses on the dam were much larger than in 1903. Including the cost of procuring a report and plan from Mr. C. H. Keefer, C.E., these amounted to $3,798.27, as compared with $524.14 in the previous year, and were paid out of revenue.

The net water rates for the year amounted to $25,806.86, and the expense accounts, including interest on debentures and sinking funds and 15 per cent. written off tools and plant for depreciation, amounted to $25,500.34, leaving a balance of $306.52, which has been carried to the credit of profit and loss account.

Respectfully submitted.

Once Was Enough For Him.

A piano tuner in an uptown apartment had just settled down to his work when the woman of the house came into the room, dressed for the street.

"Are you going out?" he asked.

"Yes," she answered, with some surprise. "Why do you ask?"

"I heard you tell the maid when she went out a few minutes ago to be sure and be home by 10 o'clock."

"I did. It is her evening out."

"And there is nobody else in the apartment?"

"Certainly not," replied the woman, showing some irritation. "Are you afraid to stay here alone?"

"Sure, I am," answered the piano tuner, gathering up his tools, "and I don't mean to either. The firm does not ask us to unless we wish. I had my lesson two years ago. After I had worked in an apartment alone a man called to polish the furniture. He worked alone too. Next day several valuable articles were reported missing, and I was visited by the police. I knew I hadn't taken them. The furniture man swore he hadn't, and I believed him. It was a week of suspicion and misery for me and my family that I'll never forget. I take no more chances. I'll come back tomorrow when the maid is here."

Disorders of the Liver

BILIOUSNESS, STOMACH TROUBLES BOWEL DERANGEMENTS DISAPPEAR WHEN THE LIVER IS REGULATED BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Pale, muddy complexion is an indication of liver troubles.

When the liver gets torpid and sluggish the "bile poison" is left in the blood and poisons the whole system.

The tongue is coated.

You have attacks of headache.

Appetite is fickle and digestion impaired.

There are feelings of oppression about the stomach and pains under the left shoulder blade.

Constipation and looseness of bowels alternate.

The spirits are depressed and the temper is bad.

The most satisfactory regulator of the liver is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

This well-known medicine has a direct and specific action in the liver, enlivening it in its work of filtering the blood and restoring its health and vigor.

In a wonderfully short time Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver pills set the liver right and overcome the symptoms of liver complaint, indigestion, biliousness and constipation.

Not relief merely, but lastingly beneficial results are obtained by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The liver, kidneys and bowels are cleansed and invigorated and the whole machinery of digestion set in perfect working order.

Mr. R. Beach, 235 Sherbrooke st., Peterboro, Ont., states: "About two years ago I became subject to cramps, which were caused I was told from acute indigestion. I was so bad that I would be laid up for weeks at a time. These attacks came on periodically and distressed me greatly.

"I then began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and have found them a wonderful medicine. They have entirely prevented a recurrence of my trouble, corrected the derangement of my digestive organs and made me feel like a different person."

Are Brothers Polite?

Are brothers polite to their sisters? This is not a suggestion for a "silly season" correspondence, but a question of serious import. On the answer to it depended a sister's reputation when she was seen home to her boarding house after the theater by a young man. "Brother?" cried the indignant lady who had sat up to open the door to the late comer. "That was no brother! Why, I saw him raise his hat to you when he walked away!"—London Chronicle.

The Cost of Impatience.

In the impatient mood we are apt to spend far more than is required in the doing of our work, and this excess is lost. We cannot estimate the value of the power thus misplaced. When the impatient mood becomes the habit of a lifetime, you can understand that failure and perhaps loss of health and energy are inevitable.—Emily S. Bouton in Magazine of Mysteries.

His Humor Lost.

"This payroll is too big," exclaimed the manager of the "Hamlet" company. "Can't we get along with less people?"

"You might give up the ghost," suggested one of the gravediggers.

And the manager, wrongly thinking the suggestion referred to himself, discharged the humorist instanter.

Why, Indeed?

"Why, oh, why," remarked the observer of events and things, "will a woman smile with delight when she sees a hat in a milliner's window and frown when she sees the same hat on her neighbor's head?"

The Dead Line.

Outer—It's a dreadful responsibility to bring up a boy in the way he should go. Flouter—Dead easy. Just take good care he doesn't go the same way you go.

Dead counselors are the most instructive because they are heard with patience and reverence.—Johnson.

ORIGIN OF WHIST.

The Game Was First Called Triumph and Afterward Trump.

Whist was first called triumph, a name which was afterward corrupted into trump. The eighteenth century saw whist in its primitive form, the whole object of the game being to win tricks by leading high cards or by trumping. Then came the era of Hoyle, which may be said to have lasted from 1730 to 1830 and taught players to think not only of their own hands, but of the other hands also, and to take advantage of the positions of the cards in them. Hoyle also taught that trumps might be more profitably employed than in simple trumping and showed that they might be used to disarm the adversary and to obtain secondary advantage in trick making by other suits of less apparent power. It was not until 1860 that the philosophical era can be said to have begun, and the origin of the new movement was a knot of young men at Cambridge, England, known as the Little Whist school. This body kept records of its games, but no one thought of making the data known until 1861. Coherence in the system of play was still wanting, and this was supplied in 1864 with Dr. Pole's essay on the theory of the modern scientific whist.

THE ART OF EATING.

Food Must Please the Mind as Well as the Palate.

Pawlow has established the physiological importance of the mental state on digestion, having shown, for instance, that delicacies produce secretion of gastric juice as soon as they are perceived by the eye, even before they are eaten.

The food must not only be palatable, but must be served in an attractive manner—fine dishes, table decorations, etc.

In eating we must take time to chew our food thoroughly. This serves a double purpose—first, through the act of mastication the coarser particles of food are broken up; second, more saliva is secreted and is thoroughly mixed with the food. The digestion of starch is thus materially aided, and the proteids are made more easily accessible to the action of the gastric juice.

Water should accompany each meal. It increases the appetite and the enjoyment of food.

After eating we should rest a little while before returning to our work.—Dr. Max Einhorn in Medical Record.

A DIFFICULT PENANCE.

Irish Pilgrims to the Skellig Rocks Risk Their Lives.

Ten miles off the coast of Kerry, in the west of Ireland, lie the Skellig rocks, one of which has been for years the scene of a difficult penance. A zigzag path leads up some 700 feet to a lighthouse, but 700 feet more must be climbed before the summit is reached, where stand the ruins of St. Finian's monastery and a cross of St. Michael.

Here on the anniversary of St. Michael devotees risk their lives in performing their devotions. First they have to squeeze themselves through the Needle's Eye, a tunnel in the rock thirteen feet long, the passing up which is like the ascent of a chimney. Then they creep on all fours up the Stone of Pain, on whose smooth surface one false step is fatal; then, getting astride the Spindle, a rock 1,500 feet above the Atlantic and projecting some ten feet, each pilgrim must "ride a cock horse to St. Michael's cross," say a Paternoster and shuffle back as best he can.

His Deep, Deep Grief.

The Fulton (Kan.) Gazette reports that a minister of that town was moved by the grief of a husband whose wife was to be buried and sought to commiserate him in the following manner: "My brother, I know that this is a great grief that has overtaken you, and though you are compelled to mourn the loss of this one who was your companion and partner in life I would console you with the assurance that there is another who sympathizes with you and seeks to embrace you in the arms of unfailing love." To this the bereaved man replied by asking, as he gazed through tears into the minister's face, "What's her name?"

SWING BRIDGES ENTAIL COST

Counties Ask the Government to Take Charge of Them.

INTERVIEW WITH MINISTER

Reply of Hon. H. R. Emmerson Considered Very Satisfactory—Representatives of Counties Waited Upon Him Wednesday—15,000 Feet of Bridges to Maintain in Peterborough County.

With the object of effecting no inconsiderable saving in the annual expenditure in connection with roads and bridges of the County of Peterborough and of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, quite a large deputation of representative gentlemen waited on the Minister of Railways and Canals, at Ottawa yesterday. They asked that the Government assume the cost of maintenance and operation in connection with eight swing bridges along the line of the Trent Canal. These are Trent Bridge, Bensfort, Wallace Point, Locks, Chemong, Gannon's Narrows and Pigeon Creek. The gentlemen forming the deputation were:—From the Counties of Northumberland and Durham — Warden John Kennedy, of Pontypool; Councillors Thos. Baker, Salem, Chairman of Roads and Bridges; Thomas Davidson, Hamilton Township; Thomas Tweedle, Brighton; Thos. Donaldson, Cavan; W. J. Bragg, Darlington; R. H. Holland, Cobourg. Counties Solicitor—W. J. McColl, M.P., Cobourg; H. A. Ward, M.P., Port Hope; Edward Cochrane, M.P., Brighton. The gentlemen from Peterborough were—Warden W. T. Buck, Norwood; Councillors Dennis Moloney, Warsaw, Chairman of Roads and Bridges; John Menogue, Chandos; T. J. Johnston, Otonabee, Chairman of Finance; Samuel Stinson, Smith; H. C. Garbutt, Smith; Thos. Webster, Dummer; Jas. Andrews, Asphodel; E. A. Peck, County Solicitor; John Belcher, County Engineer; R. R. Hall, M.P., West Peterborough; John Finlay, M.P., East Peterborough. Through Mr. Hall and Mr. Finlay, an interview with Mr. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals, was obtained at noon yesterday. The speakers on behalf of the Counties were Mr. Holland, Mr. Donaldson, Mr. Peck and Mr. Belcher. Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, the Deputy Minister, was also present during the interview. The argument presented was that on account of the growth of navigation on the Trent Canal, during the past few years, the maintenance and operation of swings on the bridges built by the Counties had entailed an increasing expenditure, and since the Government had, by the construction of the canal, made such swings necessary, it seemed but reasonable that they should assume the cost in connection therewith. They had established a precedent in accepting the responsibility in connection with other bridges. The reply received from the minister was considered very satisfactory by the deputation. He asked that a statement of cost in connection with the swings be submitted in writing together with other information, such as would be of value should an Order-in-Council be deemed necessary. This done he would give the matter prompt consideration.

Hon. H. R. EMMERSON,
Minister of Railways and Canals, who was interviewed by the County Council.

ARGUMENT PRESENTED

The deputation was introduced by Mr. R. R. Hall and Mr. Holland was the first speaker. He pointed out that though the Trent Canal consisted in a series of stretches of water in their natural flow and also artificial courses the Trent River had not formerly, in one sense, been a navigable stream, nor had the Otonabee River, from Rice Lake to Peterborough—so far as extensive commercial enterprise was concerned. The Government, however, by the construction of a dam at Healey's Falls, raised the water to a level necessary for navigation. The counties through which the waterway passed had found it necessary to build bridges, and the one to which the speaker first directed attention was that at the Narrows of the Trent, which was maintained by the County of Northumberland, together with the swing for the accommodation of navigation. The Government assumed responsibility in connection with the Hastings bridge swing. Coming to the Otonabee Mr. Holland stated that the cost of Bensfort bridge was defrayed by contribution from the Dominion and Provincial Governments and by the Township of South Monaghan. The Wallace Point bridge was constructed entirely by the Counties jointly. A few years ago there was comparatively little navigation on these waters and the cost in connection with the swings was trifling. Since the erection and completion of the lift-lock, distances being extended, the traffic had largely increased, the Government had constructed wharves at certain points on Rice Lake, and business was growing from year to year. Mr. Holland emphasized the fact that the waters of the Trent were not naturally navigable and were only rendered so by reason of the dams built by the old Province of Canada, maintained under Confederation. The expense of the Counties had been largely increased, as a result, in keeping up the swings of the bridges. There were no convenient houses for the bridge keepers, and it being necessary to employ persons living nearest, they were in a position to dictate as to terms. There should be no substantial difference between the cost of maintenance of the bridge at Hastings and the others. In constructing the swings it was necessary to submit to the supervision of a Government engineer. The traffic would undoubtedly increase and the time was not far distant when it would be necessary to erect houses for the bridge keepers. It was pointed out that but for the swings the bridges would entail but little expense so far as maintenance was concerned.

WOMAN DID THE WORK

Mr. Donaldson emphasized the point that as the Government had made the waters navigable they should take over the swings which had been rendered necessary for navigation purposes. He pointed out that last summer's traffic had been such that it was often necessary to open and close the swings thirteen or fourteen times a day. It was not so long ago when only two swings a day were required. In some cases, a woman did this work, but the traffic was assuming such proportion that this was now out of the question.

PETERBOROUGH BRIDGES

Mr. Peck dealt specifically with bridges which had not been referred to. The Bensfort bridge had been built mainly by Government aid—the Dominion and Province both contributing sums. The Township of South Monaghan and Counties of Northumberland and Durham also assisted, but the County of Peterborough had contributed nothing and was not largely interested in its maintenance but swing should, he held, be taken over by the Government. Coming up the river, there was the Locks bridge, between the County and Town of Peterborough, which would require no swing were it not for the canal system. The bridge was situated a few hundred yards above a lock. Continuing north, there were three bridges entirely in the County of Peterborough. At Gannon's Narrows there was a floating structure to which the Government had contributed $1000 two years ago. Then there were the Chemong Lake bridge 3-4 of a mile long, and Pigeon Creek bridge, both of which cross waters directly tributary to the Trent system. The County of Peterborough has a very large extent of waterway, and the construction and maintenance of bridges entails considerable expense in order that proper communication might be established. The Trent system was considered by the speaker as not being simply a local affair, but its construction had been urged because of its benefit to the Dominion as a through way from the Northwest to the sea-board. There was, therefore, no reason why the County should have to bear the expense in connection with the swings. In reply to a question by the Minister, Mr. Peck stated that the cost of maintenance of the Chemong swing was $250 annually; of Gannon's Narrows, $100; of the Locks bridge $100 jointly with the Town; Wallace Point $90 and Bensfort $90.

BURDEN OF BRIDGES

Mr. Belcher, County Engineer, pointed out that there were in the County of Peterborough 15,000 feet of bridges to maintain and Mr. Emmerson observed that this was quite a burden. The Chemong Lake bridge was 3200 feet and Pigeon Creek, 4150 feet. The former was first built 35 years ago, but was renewed 2 years ago. The one at Gannon's Narrows was on the direct line of canal, but owing to the large district opened up, the traffic through the other two was quite large. The Locks bridge was of steel, and had a length of 200 feet clear span. The Bensfort bridge was also of steel, being 400 feet and Wallace Point 300 feet.

The Minister asked if there was any occasion to use Chemong Lake for navigation purposes prior to and irrespective of any Government operations for canal purposes.

Mr. Belcher replied that there was no occasion to use it until the development of the country made it necessary. Prior to the construction of the dam at Buckhorn, he had been told that the lake was very shallow and could be crossed without a bridge at certain points, although soundings he had taken did not seem to bear out this statement. There were however, large stretches of sand bar in certain places. The Chemong bridge was first built 35 years ago and the dam was built in 1835 and used for canal purposes about 25 years before there was any bridge. There was no swing at Chemong until about 10 or 12 years ago when the Government built a wharf and there was considerable development at that point. Mr. Belcher said he had cut out a small swing then, but prior to that the lumbermen had to shove their logs through under an elevated portion.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson in replying stated that he would like to have a statement presented as to the cost of present maintenance and operation of the swings. He could quite understand that it was in anticipation of an increase in cost that the Counties were now wishing to place the cost on the Government. It may be properly so placed, said he, although I do not express any opinion on it. I would like to look into the matter and have it reported on. I had in my mind a suggestion to the municipal authorities interested, to jointly memorialize the Government, setting forth in detail the facts and giving a statement of the actual cost of the difficulties in connection with the maintenance and operation of these swings. Continuing he stated that their able presentation of the case had given him a very good version, but he would like to have the information as a matter of record, so that he could present it to his colleagues should an Order-in-Council be necessary. If this was done promptly he would try and have prompt consideration given to the matter.

Messrs. W. T. Buck, Dennis Moloney, T. J. Johnston, E. A. Peck and John Belcher returned home from Ottawa by the early morning train.

PUBLIC LAVATORY NEEDED

Trades and Labor Council Make Good Suggestion—Peter Thompson for Plumbing Inspector.

A well attended meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held last evening. All of the officers were present, and Mr. C. P. Murty, the President, was in the chair. Several matters of considerable importance were discussed. Alderman Johnston's scheme for improvement to the fire hall and equipment was heartily endorsed.

That there should at least be one public lavatory, and that centrally situated, in Peterborough, was the concensus of opinion expressed at the meeting of the council, and it was contended that this was a matter calling for immediate action on the part of the town's representatives.

The appointment of a plumbing inspector, one of the planks in the Trades and Labor Council, came up for consideration, in so far as the selection of a capable man was concerned. There seemed to be a unanimity of opinion that Mr. Peter Thompson was the one most entitled to the job. He is a plumber of considerable experience, and though he is without the use of one leg, it is contended that this will not handicap him in filling the position satisfactorily to all concerned.

The next meeting of the Council will be held on the 22nd of February.

FAIR DIRECTORS HELD MEETING

The Adoption of Reports and Election of Officers.

MR. HUGHES-CHARLES, PRES.

Mr. Eardley-Wilmot Desirous of Retiring as Secretary—Prospects of Next Year's Show—Votes of Thanks Passed—Good Balance on Hand.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Fair Directors was held yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon in the Town Council Chamber. There were present Messrs. D. Hughes-Charles, K. Eardley-Wilmot, Robert Fair, Alex. Elliott, R. J. Munro Whitfield, J. H. Garbutt, G. W. Bennett, A. Rountree, Wm. Collins, J. M. Brooks, and others.

The President, Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, presided.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The President then presented his report, which was as follows—

"I think upon the whole we may be satisfied with the result of our past years work, for although our receipts were about $350 less than our expenditure, we have still a balance of $500 on hand and our prize money, which was large, was promptly paid and therefore we are firmly establishing the credit of our Exhibition. So far as the directors are concerned they have nothing to be ashamed of, but I honestly think that they ought to get heartier support from the town and county than they have received in the past two years. A well conducted Exhibition is as good an advertisement as the town can get and with the liberal prizes we are offering an impetus should be given to stock raising in the county and this is much needed.

We have a large increase in the number of entries in horses and cattle and the exhibits were of a high class nature, but sheep, swine and poultry were not well represented. To put down professionalism the directors made the following rule—"That exhibitors in dairy products, agriculture products, horticulture, fine arts and ladies' work must be residents of the County of Peterborough and the Townships of Cavan, Emily, Hamilton, Hope, Manvers and South Monaghan," but I doubt if this rule were fully understood, for the entries in those classes were very few; and if a better display be not made this coming fall I shall strongly recommend that those classes be cut out altogether. I doubt if the public generally know how much prize money we pay out and how it is distributed and I think it well to draw their attention to this important matter and I want them to carefully read the following statement—

Horses, prizes offered $914, prizes paid $799.

Cattle, offered $578, paid $395.

Sheep, offered $240, paid $117.

Swine, offered $158, paid $101.

Poultry, offered $192, paid $48.

Dairy products, offered $46, paid $21

Agriculture, offered $98, paid $53.

Horticulture, offered $90, paid $39

Fine Arts, offered $95, paid $49.

Ladies' work, offered $120, paid $51

Horse races, offered $900, paid $833

In conclusion I may just say that the directors cannot run the exhibition without the hearty support of the town and county and if they want the exhibition to succeed they must give it, and indeed if they want the exhibition to go at all they must do much better in the future than they have done in the past."

The report was received.

The financial statement, published in last evening's Review was read by Mr. K. Eardley-Wilmot and was on motion adopted.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The election of officers resulted as follows—

Hon. Pres.—T. E. Bradburn.

Pres.—D. Hughes-Charles.

1st. Vice-Pres.A. Elliott.

2nd Vice.-Pres—E. M. Elliott.

Directors—P. Moloney, J. H. Garbutt, K. Eardley-Wilmot, H. C. Winch and J. M. Brooks.

Honorary members—R. M. Dennistoun, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, R. R. Hall, J. Finlaw, Wm. Anderson, Mayor Best, Warden W. T. Buck, J. W. Flavelle, R. A. Morrow, E. G. Patterson, H. Waddell, Robt. Stuart, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, Fathers McColl, Fitzpatrick and Phelan.

Auditors—J. Crane, P. Campbell.

Mr D. Hughes-Charles, accepting re-election as president, said he would act for only a year longer unless the people in general and the citizens of Peterborough in particular give the exhibition better support. He said there was no use in he and others trying to build up the show and providing a first class attraction each year if a more generous patronage was not extended. He trusted that the people would wake up and accord the exhibition next year that measure of assistance to which it is justly entitled.

RESOLUTIONS.

It was moved by Mr. R. Fair and seconded by Mr. Alex. Elliott that Mr. J. H. Garbutt be a delegate to represent the directors at the annual meeting of the Fairs Association held in Toronto.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. J. H. Garbutt, seconded by Mr. J. M. Brooks, that the thanks of this meeting are due to the town council for use of council chamber and for grant. To the County council for liberal grant, and the press for courtesies in the way of free advertising matter.

The election of a Secretary-Treasurer was left over until the next meeting. Mr. K. Eardley-Wilmot does not want to occupy the position, but the directors desire him to once more look after their affairs.

The meeting then adjourned.

DELIGHTFUL CONCERT

Under Auspices of C. G. E. Benefit Society—Good Programme.

Only a very small crowd attended the concert given under the auspices of the Canadian General Electric Company Benefit Society held last evening in the old Labor Hall. The concert was one of a series which are to be given every Wednesday evening for the next four or five weeks.

Last evening's entertainment was a varied and exceedingly enjoyable one. Every number was well given and warmly received.

Mr. Jas. Hickey made a very efficient chairman. The Misses Dorris opened the programme with a charmingly rendered piano duett. Miss May Callaghan contributed with delightful effect the solo, "Just for the Sake of Society," and for an encore gave that popular little song. "Teasing."

Mr. George Lynch who is surpassed by none in Peterborough as an entertainer, recited in rich brogue, "The Adventures of an Irishman with a Slot Machine," and as an encore number gave "An Englishman's Idea of This Life." Both selections were very well given and aroused much merriment.

Miss K. Garvey's rich soprano voice was heard to good advantage in "Sing Me to Sleep." She received a hearty encore and responded with a Japanese love-song.

A vocal solo, "Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-bye," by Mr. W. Williams was one of the features of the evening. For an encore he gave "Down on the Farm," in excellent voice.

A recitation by little Miss Christie, a tot not five years old, captivated the audience. It was very cleverly done and she was heartily applauded.

Mr. Jos. Legg, one of Peterborough's most popular vocalists, gave a very well rendered solo and was forced to respond to an encore.

Mr. C. Coleman made a hit with his character songs. His costumes were good and the numbers well executed. His numbers were "Waking Early in the morning," and "That's a Yarn I Heard Aboard a Ship."

The selection "Gentavive," by a quartette composed of Messrs. Weir, Williams, McGregor and Pope, closed the programme. It was well rendered.

Miss A. Dorris was a most efficient accompanist. At the conclusion of the programme the floor was cleared and an hour or so pleasantly spent in dancing. The Misses Dorris provided the music.

Another of these concerts will be given Wednesday evening of next week when it is hoped there will be a much larger attendance.

SATURDAY POP

At the Y.M.C.A. pop on Saturday evening Mr. R. M. Dennistoun will tell the story of "Jean Valjean," and a good musical programme has been arranged. Ladies are invited to attend.

A Reserved Hour.

The whole of the day should not be daytime nor of the night nighttime, but some portion be rescued from time to oversee time in. All our hours must not be current; all our time must not lapse. There must be one hour at least which the day did not bring forth, of ancient parentage and long established nobility, which will be a serene and lofty platform overlooking the rest. We should make our notch every day on our characters, as Robinson Crusoe on his stick. We must be at the helm at least once a day. The Soul of the Tailor.

The soul of the craftsman can express itself more fully and clearly in tailoring than in any other trade. If the tailor's thoughts are poetic, he can issue pastorals in colors that are charmingly suggestive of hillside or meadow, foliage or waving grain. He can make his overcoats speak of bleak December, his dress suits of frolic and festivities, his frock coats of dignity and wealth, his cutaways of self content and his sacks of strenuousness, and he can make his waistcoats jingle like limericks, his trousers sing of sunshine or of rain and mud, his spring suits chortle of hope and joy and his summer suits prattle of flowers. If he is an artist, he can make overcoat, undercoat, waistcoat or trousers seem a sonorous hymn, a reverie in color, a riot of action or a vigorous portrayal of conflicting emotions in a decimated field of desolation, and if he is a musician he can impart to his sartorial creations an expression that suggests the bleating of a lamb, the clashing of cymbals, the rattat of a drum, the ragtime movement of a cakewalk, the wail of despair, the shout of triumph, the roar of a lion or the bray of an ass.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Company

"That is the tragic part of the story. He was murdered at a masked ball at San Remo. The assassin was never discovered, but he was supposed to be some passionate Italian lover. My grandfather Lockwood was so angry at the way in which his daughter had been treated that he never stood up for my rights. I would not do so either but that I love Miss Ward. Now, it is my intention to see Mrs. Jersey tomorrow and get the truth out of her."

"What does she know?"

"She knows where the marriage was celebrated and can prove that my birth is legitimate. That is why I came here, Leonard."

"Why did you not speak to her tonight?"

"I think it is better she should be in a quieter frame of mind," said Brendon. "She has never seen me since I was a small child, and my name of Brendon is quite unknown to her."

"Why do you call yourself Brendon?" asked Train.

George began to pace up and down the room.

"Pride made me do that," he declared. "When my father was murdered at San Remo. Lord Derrington denied the marriage and refused to do anything for me. My grandfather Lockwood gave me his own name, and I was called George Lockwood for many a long day. At the age of fifteen Mr. Lockwood died, and then a note came to my guardian saying that Lord Derrington proposed to allow me a small income."

"For what reason?"

"I can't say. Perhaps it was remorse."

Train shook his head. "I have met Lord Derrington, and if such an old tartar feels remorse, then there is a chance that pigs may fly."

"That's an elegant illustration, Leonard," observed George, with a smile; "but to continue (as I see it is nearly 11), even as a boy I felt the indignity put upon me. I refused, with the permission of my guardian, the offered sum and continued at school. When I left to go to college I changed my name so that Lord Derrington should not have the chance of insulting me further or of knowing who I was. My guardian suggested Brendon, so, as that was as good a name as another, I took it. Hence Mrs. Jersey can't possibly know me or why I came to see her. She will be wiser in the morning," added Brendon grimly.

"But she evidently saw in you some likeness to your father."

"Evidently. From all I have heard Mrs. Jersey was in love with my father, even though she was only a lady's maid. But I know very little about her. My business here is to learn."

"But why has she kept silent all these years?"

Brendon shrugged his shoulders. "She has had no inducement to speak out," he said. "That is why I wish you to lend me £300, Leonard. She will require a bribe."

"And a larger one than that, George. A woman like Mrs. Jersey would not part with such a secret for so small a sum."

"Oh, I can pay her what she demands when in possession of the estates. But at present she will want to see the color of my money."

Train stared into the fire, meditating on this queer story, which was quite a romance. Then he saw an obstacle. "George," he said, "even if you prove that you are the heir, you won't get any money. Lord Derrington is still living."

"Yes, and from all accounts he means to go on living, like the truculent old tyrant he is. But the estates are entailed and must come to me when he dies, and of course the title is mine, too, when he is done with it. If Mrs. Jersey learns these facts she will come to terms on a promise of money when I inherit."

"Then you will speak to her in the morning?"

"Yes. She is the only person who can right me. But I mean to be the husband of Dorothy Ward, and my only chance to get round the mother is to prove my legitimacy."

"I don't think Miss Ward cares much for her mother."

"Who could?" asked Brendon cynically. "She is a worthless little canary bird. But I tell you, Leonard, that, frivolous as Mrs. Ward appears to be, she is a most determined woman, with an iron will. She will make her daughter do as she is bid and will sell her to the highest bidder. As Lord Derrington's grandson and acknowledged heir I have a good chance. As George Brendon"—he stopped as the clock struck 11—"as George Brendon I am going to bed."

Train rose to light the candles which stood on a side table, yawning as he did so. He was much interested in Brendon's story, but the telling of it had tired him. "I shall sleep like a top tonight."

"Well, get to bed. I'll put out the lamp," said George, and did so.

"No," said Leonard, taking a candlestick in either hand. "I'll see you to your couch," and he preceded him into the bedroom.

It was a quaint apartment, with heavy mahogany furniture and a Turkey carpet. Entering from the sitting room, George saw that the bed was directly opposite the door. "It's been moved since my time."

"What," cried Leonard, setting down the candles, "is the furniture the same your grandfather had?"

"Yes. Mrs. Jersey bought the house and its contents. They are old fashioned enough in all conscience. It's years and years since I slept in my old bed," said Brendon, taking off his coat. "I should dream the dreams of childhood now that I am back again. But you needn't say anything of this, Leonard."

"Of course not," replied the other. "And you need not smash your yellow holly by leaving it in your coat all night. Put it in water."

"No." George stopped the too officious Leonard. "Dorothy put it into my coat and there it shall remain. The berries are firm and won't fall. I'll see to that. Hush!"

"What's the matter?" asked Train, startled.

For answer Brendon quickly extinguished both candles and pointed to the door of the sitting room, which stood half open. "Not a word," he murmured to Train, grasping his wrist to enforce attention. "I heard a footstep."

The two men stood in the darkness, silent and with beating hearts. A glimmer of light came from the fire and struck across into the bedroom. Leonard listened with all his ears. He distinctly heard stealthy footsteps coming along the passage. The footsteps paused at the sitting room door. They heard this open, and scarcely dared to breathe. Some one entered the room and waited for a moment or so, evidently listening. Then the door was opened and closed again and the footsteps died away. Even then Brendon stopped Leonard from lighting the candles.

"Go to bed in the dark," he said softly.

"Was it Mrs. Jersey?" asked Leonard.

"Of course it was. She came to see if you were in bed."

"But why should she?"

"I can't say. There's something queer about that old woman. Get to bed, Leonard. You can light your candle in your own room. I shall not light mine."

Train was bursting with indignation. "But it's absurd to be treated like a couple of schoolboys," he said, taking his candlestick.

"There's more in it than that," said Brendon, pushing him to the door. "Get to bed and make no noise. We can talk in the morning."

Train darted across the sitting room and retired. Brendon closed his door softly and listened again. There was no return of the footsteps, so he slipped into bed without relighting the candle. The clock in the sitting room chimed a quarter past 11.

CHAPTER III.

The kitchen in the basement of Mrs. Jersey's house was a large stone apartment and even on the brightest of days not very well lighted. On this particular morning the gas was burning and was likely to continue alight during the day, as the fog was as thick as ever. The servants collected round the table were having an early cup of tea. To assist the progress of digestion they talked of their mistress and of the boarders. Miss Bull in particular seemed to be disliked.

"She's a sly cat, with that white face of hers," said the cook. "Twice she said the soup was burnt. I never liked her."

"Madame don't, either," said Jarvey, the errand boy, ruffling his short hair. "They've been quarreling awful. I shouldn't wonder if madame gave her notice."

"Ah, Miss Margery will have something to say to that," chimed in the housemaid; "she likes Miss Bull."

"'Cause Miss Bull makes much of her and no one else does," said Jarvey.

"Well, for my part," said the cook, "I'm always civil to Miss Bull, though she is a cat. If the mistress died, Miss Margery would govern the house, and Miss Bull governs her. I don't want to lose no good situation through bad manners. Here's madame's tea. Take it to her sitting room. She's sure to be up and waiting."

Jarvey went grumbling up the stairs. Mrs. Jersey was an early riser and usually had a cup of tea in her sitting room at 7 o'clock. After this refresher she gave audience to the cook, looked over her tradesmen's books and complained generally that the servants were not doing their duty. Madame was not at her best in the morning, and Jarvey went up most unwillingly.

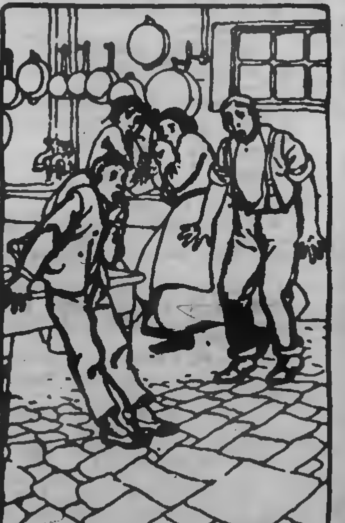
When the boy went the servants continued chatting and eating. It was just on 7, and they were reluctantly rising to begin their duties when a crash was heard and then a clatter of boots. "There," cried the cook, "that brat's been and smashed the tray. Won't madame give it to him? Mercy, mercy"—her voice leaped an octave—"he's mad!"

This was because Jarvey, with his hair on end and his face perfectly white, tore into the kitchen. He raced round and round the table, his eyes starting from his head. The servants huddled together in fear, and the cook seized the toasting fork. They all agreed with her that the page was mad. Suddenly Jarvey tumbled in a heap and began to moan, with his face on the floor, "Oh, the blood—the blood!"

"What's he saying about blood?" asked the scared cook.

Jarvey leaped to his feet. "She's dead! She's murdered!" he shrieked. "I see her all covered with blood. Oh, mother—oh, I want my mother!" And down he dropped on the floor again, kicking and screaming.

The boy was scared out of his life, and the other servants, headed by the valiant cook, ran up the stairs and burst into madame's sitting room, which was on the ground floor and no great distance from the front door. The next moment they were out again, all shrieking murder and calling loudly for the police. The sleeping boarders took the alarm and in the lightest of attire appeared on the stairs with white faces. The terrible word shrieked by a dozen voices through the silent house curdled the blood in their aged veins.



"She's dead! She's murdered!"

An hour later the police were in the house, summoned by Miss Bull, who alone of the boarders retained her head. As Margery, who was next in command after her aunt, could not be brought to do anything Miss Bull took charge. It was Miss Bull who first ventured into the sitting room where madame, huddled up in a chair drawn to the table, lay face downward in such a position as to reveal a gaping wound in her neck, and it was Miss Bull who sent the servants back to the kitchen, who closed the door of the death chamber and who told Jarvey to fetch the nearest policeman. Consequently it was Miss Bull whom the inspector addressed, as she seemed to be the sole person in authority. The little old maid from being a nonentity became a person of first class importance. She displayed perfect tact and self control in dealing with the terrified old men and women, and no one would have given her credit for such generalship. But the hour had come for Miss Bull to assert herself, and she proved to be equal to the occasion.

"Now, then," said the inspector when he had posted his men and was alone with Miss Bull in the drawing room, "what do you know of this?"

Miss Bull, her face white and drawn, her eyes sharper than ever and her manner perfectly composed, shook her head. "I know absolutely nothing," she said in her monotonous voice. "Last night we had our usual reception, but it broke up at 10 o'clock. Madame dismissed the guests at that hour and stood in the doorway to do so. I retired to my bedroom with madame's niece, and after a game of 'patience' I went to bed."

"Does Mrs. Jersey's niece sleep with you?"

"Margery? No, she sleeps in a room above. It was a few minutes to 11 when she left me. I was in bed shortly after the clock struck the hour. I am sure Margery had nothing to do with it. She was quite devoted to her aunt, and as the poor girl has no money I don't know how she will live now that madame is dead."

"The room is not far from the front door," mused Inspector Quez. "Could any one have entered?"

"No, I am sure of that," put in Miss Bull emphatically. "Madame always locked the front door every night herself and kept the key. It could not be opened in the morning until she chose."

"Who opened it this morning?"

"I did. I knew that the key would be in madame's pocket."

"And it was?"

"Yes. She must have locked the door as usual and then have gone to put the light out in her sitting room before going upstairs."

To be continued.

Premier Parent Loses Control and May Be Ousted.

Three Dissatisfied Quebec Ministers Who Retired From the Cabinet Have Majority of the Legislature Behind Them—Laurier's Attempt At Truce-Making Was Not Very Successful and His Quebec Friend Is in Peril.

Quebec, Feb. 9.—(Special.)—Supporters of the three resigned ministers of the Parent government, to the number of 48, met last night at the Chateau Frontenac and passed a resolution approving of the action of the three dissatisfied members and pledging to support them in the future. This is a majority of the members of th eassembly.

The Parent faction, numbering 22, met in the parliament buildings and was in session until 12.30 this morning. When the meeting broke up all those present would say was "The meeting has been adjourned." They would not say what took place.

Yesterday morning Hon. Mr. Brodeur and Senator Dandurand arrived from Ottawa and had a conference with Gouin and Turgeon at the latter's residence. Treasurer McCorkill was also present, representing Parent. These also are reticent about what took place.

It is said that the delegates from Ottawa were sent down by Laurier to try and patch up a truce between the contending parties. They do not appear to have been very successful, as all kinds of rumors are flying about the city.

POLITICS IN PLEAS.

Senator Choquette's Legal Document Resembles Campaign Attack.

Quebec, Feb. 9.—An interesting development in the Parent-Gouin-Choquette case yesterday was the filing of pleas by Senators Choquette and Legris in the actions for damages brought against them by Prime Minister Parent. These documents resemble vigorous campaign attacks rather than judicial processes. Senator Choquette starts off by admitting that the plaintiff is Prime Minister of the province and needs the public esteem, but adds "It is no fault of defendant if he does not possess it." The plea also admits that plaintiff is a member of the Legislative Assembly and Minister of Crown Lands, but denies that he holds a prominent position in politics, and especially in the Liberal party. The Senator admits the writing and the publication in L'Evenement of the letters complained of, but claims such publication was in the public interest. Defendant admits he was a judge and now occupies a certain position in public life in the Liberal party, and adds that he does his best to fill that position in the interest of his country and his party, unlike the plaintiff.

McMaster's Intentions.

Montreal, Feb. 8.—Donald McMaster, K.C., is leaving Montreal at the end of June for London, England, to take up practice before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for the next three years. His intention is then to return to Canada and restrict his practice to court counsel work and consultations.

Midland Railway Sold.

Montreal, Que., Feb. 8.—At a conference held yesterday between the directors of the Midland Railway Company of Nova Scotia and General Manager Gifkins of the Dominion Atlantic, the purchase of the Midland by the Dominion Atlantic was agreed to for the sum of $1,500,000.

New States Created.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 8.—The United States Senate has passed the statehood bill without division. It provides for statehood for Oklahoma and Indian Territory as one state and New Mexico as another.

Old Man Found Dead.

Niagara Falls, Feb. 8.—Hiram Sutton, an old resident of Lundy's Lane, was found dead Monday. He was sitting in his chair. Mr. Sutton, who was 75 years of age, lived alone.

Japanese Catarrh Cure
Cures Catarrh after all else has Failed.
It is remarkable how many times Japanese Catarrh Cure completely cures catarrh after all other treatment was a failure. We have on record hundreds of testimonials from prominent people, telling us of their experience with specialists, tablets, tonics and blood purifiers. They tried everything they ever heard of—spent hundreds of dollars in a vain effort to get relief. But it was not until Japanese Catarrh Cure was used, that they began to mend. Let this experience guide you.
"I had been a great sufferer from Catarrh for over fifteen years, during which time I tried a score of doctors and every remedy I thought would relieve me, but the result was only temporary. About a year ago, I used six boxes of Japanese Catarrh Cure, and since completing this treatment, have been entirely free of catarrh. I can recommend it with every confidence."
J. H. CROW, Vancouver, B.C.

EX-M.P.P. DIES OF BURNS

Got Two Warnings to Escape But Fire Bewildered Him.

W. R. Beatty, Ex.-M.P.P. For Parry Sound, Succumbs to Burns Received At Revelstoke, B.C.—Jumped to the Ground Ten Feet Below With His Night Clothes On Fire—A Genial, Large-Hearted and Generous Man Gone.

Revelstoke, B. C., Feb. 9.—W. R. Beatty died in the hospital of this city yesterday morning at 1 o'clock from the effects of burns on his head, shoulders and hands, just 24 hours after receiving injuries in the fire at the Arrow Head Lumber Co.'s boarding house.

Fire was discovered in the building at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning. It was caused by an exploding lamp. Five men, including Mr. Beatty, were in the building asleep at the time. All were aroused and three escaped without injury. Robert Taggart was burned to death after saving the life of one of the employes and trying to save another man.

Became Bewildered.

Mr. Beatty was aroused and could have escaped with the company's foreman, A. Edgar, whose room adjoined Beatty's, had he followed him through the rear, as he was requested by the foreman to do. Twice Edgar returned to Beatty's room after him and twice Beatty started to follow Edgar to safety, but became apparently bewildered, and turning back, made a rush through his room to the verandah and through the flames. He jumped to the ground ten feet below with his night clothes on fire.

Represented Parry Sound.

W. R. Beatty represented Parry Sound for two years in the Ontario Legislature, being first elected as a Conservative and afterwards as an independent. He was widely known in lumbering circles by his varied interests, being engaged alternately in Ontario, Nova Scotia and British Columbia. His sudden death created widespread sorrow at Parry Sound, where his personality was well known. By his geniality, his large-hearted sympathies and generosity, he was without doubt the most popular man in the Parry Sound district. W. R. Beatty was elected to the Legislature in the general elections in 1894 and 1898.

Switchman Run Down.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—Struggling with a gang of section men in an attempt to combat yesterday's blizzard and keep the switches at the Bathurst street junction clear, Jesse Rockover was struck by a train and so badly injured that he died in the Emergency Hospital within a couple of hours. Rockover was a married man with a wife and family in the city. He was 40 years of age.

Toronto Man Dies in New York.

New York, Feb. 9.—J. G. Strehmayer, a furrier of Toronto, was found dead in his room at the Hotel St. George, Broadway and Eleventh street, yesterday afternoon from gas asphyxiation. The police believe death was accidental. Strohmayer, who was about 60 years old, came here to purchase furs.

Falls to Her Death.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—Mrs. Mary McMillan, aged 45, who lived in the upper flat of 82 Elm street, fell and killed herself last night. Chas. Colby, who occupied rooms on the same floor, found her lying at the foot of the stairs. Dr. J. M. Johnston was summoned, but the woman died before she could be removed in the ambulance. The neighbors know little about her. She was supposed to have a couple of children living in New York. The body was removed to Stone's undertaking rooms.

STRIKERS PROMISE VIOLENCE.

Situation At Lodz Remains Uncertain and Masters Inactive.

Lodz, Feb. 9.—The situation here remains uncertain, and nothing definite will be known until Friday, when some of the largest manufacturers have decided, after paying off to-day, to open their mills and give the men a last chance to return to work. The masters say that if there is no response they will close their mills indefinitely.

Little hope is expressed that the strike will be settled, though the men apparently are frightened by the violence of the agitators. Many of the masters oppose concessions, fearing that it will handicap them in competition with Moscow and St. Petersburg, where wages already are lower than here and the hours of work longer.

It is reported that the strikers have decided to resort to serious violence in case the mills are closed down.

Russians Shelling.

Tokio, Feb. 9.—Reports from the Manchurian army headquarters say that the Russians shelled various parts of the Japanese lines last Monday and Monday night. Small forces of Russian infantry attacked at various points, but all were repulsed. It is further reported that the Russians continue to entrench in the vicinity of Litajentun, Chenchiehpao and Heikoutai.

To Secure Peace.

Tokio, Feb. 9.—A report emanating from London to the effect that the Grand Dukes of Russia, determined to secure peace, had asked the friendly offices of Great Britain, was published in Tokio yesterday. The Foreign Office denied having any knowledge of the matter.

Togo At Kure.

Tokio, Feb. 9.—Admiral Togo arrived at Kure yesterday and immediately raised his flag on the battleship Mikasa.

The Hay-Bond Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The Senate in executive session for four hours yesterday considered the Hay-Bond Treaty and adjourned without reaching any conclusion regarding the measure.

ROASTED JUDGE CARON.

Gaynor-Greene Case Decided By the British Privy Council in Favor of United States Government.

London, Feb. 9.—The Privy Council rendered its decision yesterday morning in the Greene-Gaynor case in favor of the American Government. The court reversed the two judgments of Justice Caron of Quebec, Aug. 13, 1902, and ordered the respondents to pay the cost of the appeal.

The Council's decision caustically criticizes the action of Justice Caron in releasing Greene and Gaynor, and Caron's "extraordinary intervention," and adds:

"Where a prisoner is brought before a competent tribunal charged with an extradition offence and is remanded for the express purpose of affording the prosecution an opportunity of bringing forward evidence whereby the accusation is to be supported, if in such a case upon a writ of habeas corpus a learned judge treats a remand warrant as a nullity and proceeds to adjudicate the case as though the whole evidence was before him, it would paralyze the administration of justice and render it impossible for proceedings in extradition to be effective."

John R. Carter, second secretary of the United States Embassy, was present to hear the decision, and also to watch the appeal against the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada in the case of the fishing steamer Kitty Doe, captured by a Canadian cruiser on Lake Erie.

Yankees Satisfied.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The United States Attorney-General, speaking yesterday of the decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, in the Greene-Gaynor case, said that for various and obvious reasons, and especially before the receipt of the full text of the opinion, it was impossible to speak of its effect, and the precise result upon the future program of the Government toward the accused. "The Government is, of course, greatly gratified at the result," he said.

Active proceedings to secure removal will now be resumed, as soon as the King's order is received in Canada. This is the real judgment and mandate in the case, the judgment of the Privy Council being simply a report of the Judicial Committee to the King-in-Council, upon which the King-in-Council makes order and decree.

Few People Realize

The Danger in That Common Disease, Catarrh.

Because catarrhal diseases are so common and because catarrh is not rapidly fatal, people too often overlook and neglect it until some incurable ailment develops as a result of the neglect.

The inflamed condition of the membrane of the nose and throat makes a fertile soil for the germs of Pneumonia and Consumption, in fact catarrhal pneumonia and catarrhal consumption are the most common forms of these dreaded diseases, which annually cause more than one-quarter of the deaths in this country.

Remedies for catarrh are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but very few have any actual merit as a cure, the only good derived being simply a temporary relief.

There is, however, a very effective remedy recently discovered, which is rapidly becoming famous for its great value in relieving and permanently curing all forms of catarrhal diseases, whether located in the head, throat, lungs or stomach.

The new catarrh cure is principally composed of a gum derived from the Eucolyptus tree, and this gum possesses extraordinary healing and antiseptic properties. It is taken internally in the form of a lozenge or tablet, pleasant to the taste and so harmless that little children take them with safety and benefit.

Eucoylptus oil and the bark are sometimes used, but are not so convenient, nor so palatable as the gum.

Undoubtedly the best quality is found in Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which may be found in any drug store and any catarrh sufferer who has tried douches, inhalers and liquid medicines, will be surprised at the rapid improvement after a few days' use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which are composed of the gum of the Eucolyptus tree, combined with other antiseptics which destroy the germs of catarrh in the blood and expel the catarrhal poison from the system.

Dr Ramsdell, in speaking of Catarrh and its cure, says:—"After many experiments I have given up the idea of curing catarrh by the use of inhalers, washes, salves or liquid medicines. I have always had the best results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. the red gum and other valuable antiseptics contained in these tablets make them, in my opinion, far superior to any of the numerous catarrh remedies so extensively advertised. The fact that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold in drug stores, under protection of a trade mark, should not prejudice conscientious physicians against them because their undoubted merit and harmless character make them a remedy which every catarrh sufferer maypp use with perfect safety and the prospect of a permanent cure.

For colds in the head, for coughs, catarrhal deafness and catarrh of the stomach and liver, people who have tried them say that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a household necessity.

Some important changes in the C.P.R. timetable are expected to be made very shortly, though nothing definite has been announced. A special local, it is understood, will be put on between Toronto and Havelock, arriving here from the west shortly after ten, and on the return trip to Toronto leaving here about half past one. This local will relieve the through passenger trains from the necessity of stopping at small places and greatly improve the accommodation between here and Toronto and will be appreciated by the public.

Jarvis Held For Trial.

Windsor, Feb. 9.—Police Sergeant Nash appeared in court yesterday in the cases against Samuel Jarvis, the burglar, who nearly caused Nash's death several weeks ago. It was Nash's first appearance in public since the shooting. His face had a careworn look and was almost bloodless. The wound in the neck had healed, but the arm is still helpless. The bullet is still in his body, and he suffers a good deal of pain. The court was packed to its utmost capacity. Nash's evidence did not throw any new light on the shooting, but it was enough for the detention of the prisoner. Magistrate Bartlett held Jarvis for trial at the spring assizes on four counts, three of burglary, with offensive weapons, and one of murderous assault.

Frosted Wheat Pays.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 9.—U. S. District Judge Lochren has handed down an order reversing the decision of the board of appraisers at Minneapolis and declaring that frosted wheat imported from Canada must pay the regular tariff rate of 25 cents per bushel. The case was that of F. W. Pereaux Co. of Minneapolis, which had imported a quantity of frosted Canadian wheat. The company contended that as the wheat was good neither for milling nor for seed, it should be rated as "unclassified," and subject to an ad valorem of 10 per cent., amounting to but five cents per bushel.

Given Hard Labor.

Windsor, Feb. 9.—Lodema Beaver, the Flying Roll disciple, was sentenced by Judge Horne to two months' imprisonment at hard labor in the county jail for spreading obscene literature on the public streets of Windsor. The Israelite colonists both in Windsor and Detroit say they will call down vengeance on Judge Horne.

All Safe.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 9.—The captain's boat from the Damara arrived at Point Pleasant Tuesday at 5 p.m., all safe.

Capt. Gorst and fourteen others were left on the sinking ship when the first boat left and their fate was uncertain.

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.
Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.
Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?
YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Nationals for Port Hope.

The Young Nationals will play in Port Hope to-morrow afternoon with the T.C.S. juniors. The local kidlets will have their strongest line-up on and expect a victory. They have not met with a defeat this season. The team for to-morrow will be:—

Goal—L. Giroux.
Point—Conroy.
Cover Point—Pentland.
Rover—Coughlin.
Centre—Nicholl.
Right Wing—Gorman.

To-Night's Game.

The biggest crowd of the season will be at the Brock-st. rink to-night to witness the contest between the Smith's Falls Mic-Macs and the locals. The game should be one of the fastest and most scientific seen here this winter. Both teams are in the best of shape and will be able to go the entire distance. The game at the Falls on Monday night was a fine exhibition, and to-night's contest promises to arouse lots of excitement. A win for the locals gives them the round. The line-up for to-night will be as follows:—

Peterborough.		Smith's Falls.
	Goal
Wasson		Mareau
	Point.
Glover		Lee
	Coverpoint.
Crowley		Hammond
	Rover.
Cavanah		Poulin
	Centre.
Morgan		Dunn
	Right wing
Parnell		Armstrong
	Left Wing
Graham		Gelligean

High Grades Won.

Grafton's High Grades administered a scientific trimming to Fair's Golden Lions last evening, winning out by five goals to nothing.

The Local's Chances.

If the locals are successful they will go into the next round in which will be found only six teams. They probably will be Peterborough, Orangeville, Berlin, Woodstock, Victoria Harbor and Thessalon. The locals should trim Orangeville, which would leave them with the last three teams and even into the finals if they are lucky enough to draw a bye.

To-Morrow's Game.

The T.A.S. will journey to Cobourg to-morrow to play Campbellford in the deciding game of No. 2 district. They are in good shape and should win out. The winner meets Fenelon Falls in the first game of the finals on Tuesday night of next week. It is not likely that the Abstainers will run an excursion. Mr. Geo. Brown, of Port Hope, will handle the bell.

All Saints' 8; Charlotte-st. 4.

Only one game was played in the Guild League last evening, All Saints' defeating Charlotte-st. by 8—4 after a hotly contested game. The score at half time was 2—1 in favor of All Saints', and at full time a tie 4—4. Five minutes extra each way was played, and when the smoke had cleared away All Saints' had found the nets four times. The final score was therefore 8—4 in favor of the Anglicans, who look like the League winners.

The game was a fast and clever exhibition and both sides played nice hockey. Charlotte-st. had the advantage in the first half, but went to pieces in the second period. Mr. Geo. Morgan made a satisfactory referee.

The teams:—

Charlotte-st.		All Saints'
	Goal
Ryan		McCabe
	Point
F. Reddy		Rickey
	Coverpoint.
Moore		Hopkins
	Rover
H. Reddy		O. Dusty
	Centre
McWilliam		Bush
	Right Wing
Saunders		L H Campbell
	Left Wing
Alfords		B. Dusty

Turn Out To-Night.

The locals are playing great hockey these days and should win out to-night, although the game will be a hard fought one. Turn out and root for the boys, who certainly deserve your support. There will likely be a record crowd in attendance. Smith's stated that they played in hard luck on Monday night, and they will put up a great game to-night.

Third Round Intermediate.

The following games have been arranged for the third round of the intermediate O.H.A. series—

Winners of Victoria Harbor-Parry Sound at Thessalon on Feb. 14, and return on Feb. 17.

Winner of Orangeville-Markham at winner of Peterborough-Smith's Falls on Feb. 14, and return on Feb. 17.

Winner of Berlin-Welland at winner of Woodstock-Goderich on February 15, and return on February 17.

This will leave three clubs to go into the semi-finals the week of Feb. 20. The northern club will have a bye.

The three clubs left for the semi-finals will in all probability be Victoria Harbor, Berlin and Peterborough. The Harbor will have a bye, and the locals will have to beat Berlin to reach the finals. It is a tough proposition, but the locals will give them all a good run.

Cobourg Beat Belleville.

1,200 spectators saw Belleville juniors go down to defeat at Cobourg last evening by a score of 5—4. This gives Cobourg the round, and they will go up against Queen's III in the second round.

At the meeting of the City Hockey League executive last night the schedule for the final games of the first round will be played on the undermentioned dates—:

Colonials vs. T.A.S., 8 p.m.—Thursday, Feb. 16th.

Karnots vs. Earl Greys 9 p.m.—Thursday, Feb. 16th.

Verniers vs. T.A.S., 8 p.m.—Thursday, Feb. 23rd.

Final games as follows:—

Thursday, Feb. 23rd 9 p.m.—Karnots vs. Farriers.

Thursday, March 2nd, 8 p.m.—Winners of Karnot-Farrier game vs. the Colonials or T.A.S.

To make a double-header night of Thursday, March 2nd, the Verniers will play the Earl Greys at 9 p.m.

Farriers, Karnots and T.A.S. have each been allowed to sign one more man.

Berlin easily trimmed Welland last evening at Berlin by 14.

Battle Royal Tonight.

There promises to be something doing in hockey tonight when Cressman's Sounter Hoppers meet a Picked team from Turnbull's and man's Counter Hoppers meet a follows—

Goal—Pass Me Not McWilliams.
Point—Kill 'Em Quick Johnston.
Coverpoint—Blankets Miller.
Rover—Semi-Ready Bell.
Centre—Flanenette Cressman.
Left wing—Cheesecloth Harper.
Right wing—Corsets Cressman.
Spare—Towling Hawley.
No spectators allowed.

The George street Guild hockey team will practice tonight on the Y.M.C.A. rink from 7 to 8 o'clock. They accept the challenge of the St. Andrew's team whenever the Brock street rink can be secured.

Likely Elliott.

Chaucer Elliott, of Kingston, will in all probability referee to-night's game between Smith's Falls and the locals. This is a guarantee of clean, fast hockey.

The Young Giants and Dublin-st. sevens played last night on Dublin-st. rink. After a hard struggle, the Dublins won by 6—4 The score at half time was three all. The teams—

Giants		Dublins
	Goal
Fitzpatrick		Wade

Kearns		Bogue

Sanderson		Harrison
	Rover
Little		S Wade

Fitzpatrick		Emmerson

CURLING.

For the fourth time in eight years Lindsay carried off the Ontario Tankard yesterday, beating St. Mary's in the finals by a majority of 34 shots. Both Lindsay rinks were up, W. McLennan winning from W. Anderson by 14 shots, and G. A. Little downing J. Oddy by 20.

Nervous Dyspepsia

Mr. George Bolen, Spry, Bruce Co., writes:—"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia for some years, and after using nine boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I felt better than I had for years. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is certainly the best medicine I ever used, and I say so because I want to give full credit where it is due."

—Mr. Richards, traffic manager of the American Cereal Co., arrived in town yesterday from Chicago. He had an interview with Mr D Hughes-Charles, President of the Board of Trade. He left last night for Montreal to try and secure a concession from the railways so far as freight rates are concerned in their relation to the cereal industry.

TWO INDIANS IN COURT

Charles Taylor Assaulted Geo. Johnston and Was Fined.

George Johnston and Charles Taylor, two Chemong Reservation Indians threshed out their grievances before County Magistrate Edmison today. Johnston charged Taylor with assault, alleged to have taken place on Jan. 31st. Taylor tried to excuse himself on the ground that Johnston's wife was his sister, and that he had been ill-treating her. Taylor went to their house and accused Johnston, but apparently was not satisfied with this and so struck the other fellow. Johnston in turn accused Taylor with running off with his wife. After hearing the evidence, the Magistrate imposed a fine of $1 and and $9.45 costs.

Wm. McCornack, the Englishman, who was brought hither from Havelock, as being insane, will come before the Magistrate today. An attempt will be made to have him committed to an asylum.

BARRIE'S FORWARD MOVE

Will Make Extensive Change to His Already Handsome Store.

Mr. Thomas Barrie contemplates some very important changes in his already handsome store on the corner of George and Simcoe streets. It is his intention to have the front completely remodelled. According to plans now being prepared by Mr. Argue, there will be an entrance by means of a corridor off George and Simcoe streets, a handsome show case running to within about two feet of the ceiling. There will also be a space made for display on the inside of the corridor. The change will not require any greater space than at present taken up by the display windows, and it will be carried out on a design that will be reproductive of an effect entirely modern in store fronts. The work rooms are also to be remodelled with the purpose of utilizing available space to better advantage. It is a pleasure to note the progress and enterprise indicated by the proposed changes.

THE FORMAL OPENING

Recital to be Given at the Conservatory by Her Wilhelmj and Faculty.

The Conservatory of Music will be formally opened on Monday evening, February 13th. The organization in connection with this institution has been before the public for some time, and there will undoubtedly be great interest manifested in Monday evening's event. A recital by Her Wilhelmj and other members of the faculty has been arranged. Mr. R. M. Dennistoun will deliver the opening address.

MODEL HOSPITAL TENT.

A hospital tent which should prove of great interest to sanitary authorities is now being exhibited in miniature model form by J. J. Turner & Sons. It is now on view in their window, and is of the kind designed by them for use in the treatment and isolation of contagious diseases. It is double and made entirely of satin, the inner dimensions being 14 by 29 feet, and the outer 18 by 39 feet. Many orders have been received from all parts of the Dominion for these tents, and the city of Cleveland, Ohio, not so very long ago gave recognition of their merit by placing a large order. The model is to be exhibited in the permanent display at Toronto Hospital, and will undoubtedly claim for the enterprising Peterborough firm a place among those who have done much to solve the problem involved in the treatment of contagious diseases.

Hams.

A mother sent her twelve-year-old daughter to the pork butcher with money to purchase a ham. "Tell Mr. —— that I want a ham exactly like the last two I bought," she said, and when the little lady arrived at the shop she delivered the message thus: "Mr. ——, mamma says she wants another ham off the same hog as the last two she bought." How many of us wish that when we accidently pick up a first rate ham the same hog could keep on producing its like for time and eternity! As the butcher says: "Hams run peculiarly. We may have 'em all fine for a month or two; then they suddenly get tough and dry and hard and altogether disappointing."

Antiquity of Brewing.

The ancient Egyptians understood and practised the art of brewing several centuries before the Christian era, as did also the ancient Greeks. Spaniards and Britons made a fermented drink from wheat, which was used in Spain under the name ceria, and also in Gaul. Tacitus tells us that in his day, about 100 A. D., beer was the common beverage and that the Germans understood how to convert barley into malt. Six hundred years later Charlemagne gave orders that the best brewers should always accompany his court.

A Continuous Round.

"Blivens seems very proud of the fact that he has a bank account."

"Yes; it has developed him into a financier of the continuous type."

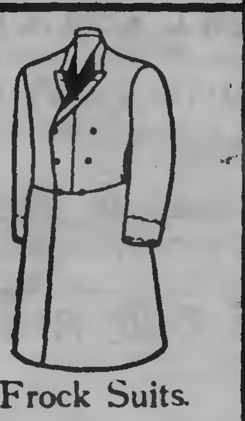
"How is that?"

"He checks his money out just for the pleasure of putting it back again."

A "Practical" Wedding Gift.

Pearl—Oh, we had a delightful wedding and received so many silver presents. Ruby—That was fine. And did your father give something in silver too? Pearl—No; he gave us a bottle of acid to test the other presents with.

It doesn't take any grit to grumble.—Chicago Tribune.



Frock Suits.

The Frock Suit gives the designer a finer opportunity to show his ability than any other suit excepting the Dress Suit.

Our enormous output permits us paying salaries which induce the best designers in America to enter our employ. The average merchant tailor cannot do so.

The ideal Frock Coat is the Semi-ready Frock Coat. It is close fitting at the waist; long, medium width collar, and lapel slightly convexed to end of roll.

The coat is large and easy at chest, broad shoulders tapering to the waist, shaped naturally over the hips and the beautiful bell skirt completes the perfection in design.

A Japanese Peculiarity.

"When a Japanese servant is rebuked or scolded," says a traveler, "he must smile like a Cheshire cat. The etiquette in smiles is very misleading at first. I often used to think that Taki, my riksha 'boy,' meant to be impertinent when he insisted on smiling when I was angry at him. But when he told me of the death of his little child with a burst of laughter I knew that this was only one of the curious details of etiquette in this topsy turvy land."

No Encouragement For Him.

"So she refused you? Well, didn't she give you any encouragement at all?"

"No, not a bit. She told me that before she'd consider the matter again I'd have to get a job and prove that I had it in me to support a family."

OMEMEE'S NEW SCHOOL

Opening Ceremonies Took Place To-day—Plans by Mr. Belcher.

The new High School at Omemee, which was recently completed at a cost of $8,000, is to be opened to-day. The plans for this building were prepared by Mr. John Belcher. It is stated to be a very fine looking school, affording ample accommodation for Omemee's educational requirements. The County of Victoria contributed $600 toward the cost of the building.

Another evidence of Omemee's progressiveness is the fact that during last summer quite a stretch of granolithic walks was laid in that village. This work was also done under the supervision of Mr. Belcher.

$30,000 PLANT NOW COMPLETED

New Dam and Power House Built by Mr. John Belcher.

FENELON FALLS ENTERPRISE

Wheels Now Running and the Town Supplied With Electric Light and Power—Dam 200 Feet Long and 24 Feet Head

Mr. John Belcher, C.E., has returned from Fenelon Falls, where he was present at a test of the machinery installed in the new power house at that place. He prepared the plans for and supervised the construction of the very fine new electric lighting and power plant which was recently built by the town at a cost of about $30,000.

The work was begun early last summmer, and the machinery has now been running for two or three days. The contract involved the construction of a concrete dam 200 feet long and with 24 feet head. The power house itself is of concrete blocks. A 600 horse-power generator has been installed. It is of Swedish make, supplied through Kilmer & Co., of Toronto, and fills the conditions satisfactorily. The horizontal turbines were put in by Jencks, of Sherbrooke. The entire plant has been built on modern principles, and Dr. Gould, the chairman, and members of the committee who had charge of the work, are to be congratulated on the successful outcome of the enterprise, which places Fenelon Falls in a proud position among those places believing in municipal ownership of public utilities.

Mr. Belcher states that the plant does the town great credit. In having employed him to carry the work to completion it can certainly be said that Fenelon Falls will find they made no mistake, as he has much experience in connection with contracts of this kind. Satisfaction in this case, as in many others which Mr. Belcher has been identified with, may be assured. The machinery is now running, factories are being supplied with power and the town is being thoroughly illuminated by means of electricity.

ELECTION IS VOID.

Wentworth Will Now Have Another Contest—The Spoiled Ballots.

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Ont., Feb. 10.—The Wentworth election for the House of Commons was this morning declared void.

Chief Justice Meredith in delivering judgment, with which Justice Teetzel concurred, said that enough votes to turn the majority into a minority had been disfranchised, by reason of the fact that every ballot paper supplied at polling station No. 23, when it was handed to the voter was so marked as to render the voting by means of it void. Therefore, neither the respondent, E. D. Smith, (Con.) nor the petitioner, W. O. Sealey (Lib.) were entitled to the seat. No costs were awarded to either party.

PETERBORO' WON SECOND ROUND

Smith's Falls Again Defeated by the Locals.

VISITORS WERE FAST BUNCH

The Largest Crowd of the Season in Attendance—Game Was Fast and Well Contested—Peterboro' Will Meet the Winners of Markham—Orangeville Group Here on Tuesday.

The largest crowd of the season saw the Mic-Macs of Smith's Falls, go down to defeat at the Brock street rink last evening, at the hands of the fast Peterborough team by 8 goals to 2. This victory gives Peterborough the round by a score of 13 to 5 and they will meet either Orangeville or Markham here on wusnday night in the third round. Last night's game was a fast and hard fought contest and provided lots of amusement. In spots it was slow and both teams lagged, but on the whole it was a good exhibition with plenty of fast playing on both sides to arouse excitement. Though several were ruled off, the game was comparatively clean.

The visitors were dangerous, especially in the first half, when they did some brilliant work and had the locals worried. The Peterborough defence was equal to all emergencies and broke up nearly everything. The second half was all Peterborough but hard luck and clever goal keeping kept the score down.

The home team played good hockey but by no means the best they have done this season. The forward line couldn't get working together as they generally do. They, however, kept always in the lead and the game was never very much in doubt. The defence played a splendid blocking game and rush after rush was broken up when a score seemed inevitable.

Wasson played a nice game in goal and stopped some very dangerous shots. He had hard luck with a long lift from Gallipeau. Glover played one of the best games he has this season. Rarely did the man with the rubber get around him. He used his body to advantage and broke up many bad rushes with well directed body checks. He also made many pretty raids down the ice and although he failed to score, came very near it on several occasions. Crowley, at coverpoint, also played superbly. His checking could not have been improved upon. His speed and long reach help him greatly in breaking up rushes. His rushing was also very effective and was instrumental in scoring two goals.

THE FORWARD LINE.

The forwards did not display as effective combination as they usually do, the fast checking of the visitors' rush line interfering with them to a considerable extent. However, they did some brilliant individual playing and now and then tore off a pretty piece of combination. Cavanah did some fine rushing. He is very fast and kept the visitors' defence guessing all the way through. His long range shots, while they did not result in a score, were always on the nets, with plenty of steam behind them, and Moreau had a busy time turning them aside. Graham played very effectively at left wing. His dashes up the side were of material assistance. He also checked back well. Morgan worked hard at all stages of the game and did some nice stick handling. His brilliant rush through the whole visitors' team for a score was one of the features. Parnell handled his stick nicely and hung to his man closely, with the result that the latter hardly ever got a shot.

The visitors had a very clever little team who in a couple of years will take a lot of beating. They are young yet, most of them none too old for junior hockey. The forwards were especially fast and if they would do more combined playing they would be very dangerous. Often, at times they would sweep down the ice three or four abreast, and when the man with the puck reached Crowley or Glover he wouldn't pass, with the result that Peterborough generally got hold of the rubber. Poulin, at rover, was probably the lightest and fastest man on the ice. He skates like lightning and his stick handling is on a par with his speed. It is said that he is only fifteen years of age. However that may be, he is certainly a wonder and should improve as he grows older. Dunn, at centre, was almost as fast, and the paid did some very clever individual work. The wings were not quite as speedy, but played great hockey. The defence was not overly strong, only the fast checking back of the forwards saving a larger score. Moreau in goal stopped innumerable shots. His work last night stamped him as a goal keeper, par excellence.

Chauncey Elliott, who is most popular with local people, officiated and gave entire satisfaction. He was thoroughly impartial and saw everything.

THE TEAMS.

The line-up was as follows—

Peterborough		Mic-Macs
	Goal
Wasson		Moreau
	Point.
Glover		Lee
	Coverpoint.
Crowley		Wild
	Rover.
Cavanah		Poulin
	Centre.
Morgan		Dunn
	Right Wing
Parnell		Armstrong
	Left Wing
Graham		Gallipeau

The game started off at lightning speed and several end to end rushes failed to score. Crowley made a nice dash and passed to Parnell, but the latter failed to connect and there was nothing doing. Finally, after a nice piece of combination, Cavanah scored on a pass from Graham. Score 1—0.

Parnell went off for one minute for mixing it up too freely. The Mic-Macs were checking back fast and the locals could not shoot effectively with an aggressive forward line nagging at them from behind. After several shots had been stopped at each end of the rink, Gallipeau lifted the rubber from near centre and scored. Score 1—1.

The locals got the next in short order, Morgan making a beautiful dash through the whole team for a goal. Score 2—1.

Smith's Falls were always pressing. Three of them broke clean away and a score seemed inevitable, but the puck was not passed, and Glover took the man, nicely relieving a dangerous situation. Glover made several pretty rushes but no scoring was done. Finally after several attempts Poulin located the nets. Score 2—2.

This ended the visitors' scoring. Peterborough livened up. Cavanah made a nice rush and passed to Graham, who scored easily. Score 3—2.

Crowley was given one minute for tripping. On his return he worked in a nice rush, but his shot was blocked. He succeeded in finding the nets, however, with a shot from the corner. Score 4—2. Half time.

The visitors wilted considerably in the second period and the locals should have scored more than they did. Cavanah got the first on a nice shot from the side. Score 5—2.

Graham went off for slashing and on his return Dunn went off for a similar offence. Parnell and Wild followed for scrapping. Smith's Falls rushed, but Crowley was in the way and went up the ice and scored. It was a pretty rush. Score 6—2.

The next one came soon. After a number of shots had been blocked, Morgan brought the rubber around from behind and scored. Score 7—2.

The last goal was the longest of the match and much hard playing was done before the rubber landed in the nets. Morgan went off for bodying and on his return Cavanah was sent to the boards for a similar offence. Glover was soon after penalized for tripping. Peterborough worked hard but did not seem to be able to locate the nets. Crowley went off for tripping, and Armstrong was also sent to the time-keeper for bodying. A few moments after Crowley again went off. Finally Graham scored from a scrimmage with time almost up. Final score, Peterborough, 8; Smith's Falls, 2.

The following is the summary—

1, Peterborough, Cavanah.
2, Smith's Falls, Gallipeau.
3, Peterborough, Morgan.
4, Smith's Falls, Poulin.

A Cabinet Council will be held today.

New Ministers Gather.

Early yesterday morning the staffs of the various departments gathered to prepare for the reception of their new chiefs. The Ministers arrived about 10 and several of them embraced the earliest opportunity of getting acquainted with those who will labor under their direction.

There was a full meeting of the new Cabinet, which broke up before 1 o'clock.

After the meeting the Premier received the press in his own room, which is that formerly occupied by Hon. J. M. Gibson, and announced to them the date of the bye-elections. This was all the news he had for the public. The Cabinet lunched in the building and the afternoon was devoted to the reception of visitors, of whom there were a great many, most of them calling merely to tender their congratulations. One of the late callers was R. R. Gamey, who was closeted with the Premier for some time. The man from Manitoulin had met the Premier and other Cabinet Ministers in the morning at the Queen's Hotel. He was received by them in the most gracious manner.

More Room Needed.

It was announced that all the Ministers are to have offices in the Parliament buildings. Rooms are now being fitted up for the three Ministers without portfolio, in the west end, as well as one for Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education. Dr. Pyne will spend his forenoons among his department clerks at the Normal School and his afternoons at the Parliament buildings. The rooms occupied by Mr. Harcourt has been preempted for Hon. J. A. Matheson. None of the Ministers will have sleeping apartments in the building, the rooms occupied by the old Ministers being required for offices.

Hon. J. S. Hendrie, Hon. Adam Beck and Hon. W. A. Willoughby left for their homes yesterday afternoon, and will not be present at today's Cabinet meeting.

Speaker-to-Be Meets Press.

Mr St. John, who on the opening of the Legislature will be elected Speaker, met representatives of all the newspapers in the morning and asked their views respecting improvements to the press gallery. The gallery is difficult of access and another stairway is absolutely necessary. The provincial architect was called in consultation, and will report today. It is fully expected that the wishes of the press will be met.

Appointments of Old Ministry.

Announcement was made yesterday that the late Government before going out of business made a number of appointments. Robert Emmett English, son of the late John English, will succeed his father as chief turnkey of the Toronto Jail; William McLeod of Orillia, was appointed sheriff of Simcoe County, to succeed the late Charles Drury; Matthew Martin was appointed jailer at Chatham, and George Bush of Clinton Township, will become jailer at St. Catharines. These late appointments have caused a good deal of dissatisfaction, and it is probable that the majority of the appointees will be required to step aside. The Orders-in-Council bear date of Jan. 31, but reached the assistant secretary on Feb. 7. It is probable that the appointments were dated back.

Railway Taxation.

The Railway Taxation Commission, consisting of H. J. Pettypiece, ex-M.P.P.; Prof. Shortt of Queen's University, and Judge Bell of Chatham, met in the Parliament Buildings yesterday to complete their report. Mr. Pettypiece, the chairman, called upon Premier Whitney and was instructed to go on with the report just as if there had been no change of Government. The Commission have spent some months investigating the methods of obtaining Government funds from railway corporations, in a number of the states of the neighboring republic, and will make their report to the Legislature.

Hon. Nelson Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, has promised to preside at the annual meeting of the Fairs Association, which will be held in Victoria Hall on Tuesday next.

Where Will They Reside?

Most of the new ministers have not yet decided on their place of residence. Hon. W. J. Hanna proposes to continue to reside at Sarnia. He has an extensive law practice there and has capable associates who will look after his business in his absence. Hon. Dr. Reaume will reside at Windsor, and some of the other ministers may not take houses in Toronto. The Premier will doubtless remove his family to Toronto, but he has been so engrossed with the affairs of state since he came here that he has not given the matter any consideration. Hon. Dr. Pyne proposes to relinquish his practice, but will continue as registrar of the Medical Council.

Salary For Mr. Ross.

The Whitney Cabinet has decided to give the leader of the Opposition a salary equal to that received by a Cabinet Minister. He will also be provided with a secretary at the expense of the country.

U.S. DRAW BACK PLAN

W. F. Maclean Warns Government—Favors Export Duties.

Questions Answered in the House of Commons—Some Interesting Facts Concerning Railways and Railway Projects—Mr. Fisher's Fruit Package Bill Discussed in Committee—Private Bills Committee Passes Ottawa Electric Bill.

Ottawa, Feb. 10.—U. S. Attorney-General Moody's far-reaching decision on the question of drawbacks was brought to the attention of the House yesterday by W. F. Maclean. The drawback decision is in effect that raw and partially manufactured materials of every sort and description are now at the disposal of American manufacturers engaged in the export trade. Mr. Maclean re-echoed the opinion of La Canada of Montreal, that Mr. Moody's decision means an economic revolution. As a cure for the evil he advocated export duties. He said: "I say the time has come when we, as Canadians, especially since we have embarked upon the N.P., ought to keep our own markets for our own manufacturers, and our own work for our own work people. We may be forced by reason of this new policy in the United States to adopt and extensively to adopt the principle of export duties. The principle has been applied with marvelous success in the Province of Ontario with regard to saw logs."

Mr. Blair to Sir Wilfrid.

A copy of the telegram in which Hon. A. G. Blair announced the resignation of the chairmanship of the Railway Commission to Sir Wilfrid Laurier was laid on the table of the House yesterday. It is dated Oct. 18, 1904.

Free Mail Delivery.

Mr. Wilson asked what was the total cost of free mail delivery in towns and cities in Canada, where such system is utilized.

The Postmaster-General supplied the following figures: Salaries of letter carriers, $415,241; uniforms, etc., $17,253; conveyances for delivering letters from stations, $10,252; a total of $432,748. The Department keeps no record of the number of letters, newspapers, parcels, etc., so delivered, and the Postmaster-General was not willing to make an estimate.

Mr. Roche was informed that the Grand Trunk Pacific Co. has not proposed or submitted to the Government any plan of the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway west of Winnipeg.

The Minister of Justice explained to Mr. Lake the various steps taken to obtain an authoritative interpretation of the meaning of the Canadian Pacific Railway contract, in relation to the exemption of the lands of that company from taxation in the Northwest Territories. The case is now in the Supreme Court of Canada, and a decision is expected in a couple of weeks.

Mr. Lake was also informed that there have been sold of school lands in Alberta 304 acres, Assiniboia 143,431 acres, Saskatchewan 237 acres. The price obtained in Alberta was $19 per acre, in Assiniboia the highest price was $37.50 per acre, and the lowest price $7.20 per acre. The Saskatchewan lands brought a top price of $107 per acre, while the lowest price was $40 per acre. The average price in Alberta was $19 per acre, in Assiniboia $6.69, and in Saskatchewan $86.54.

No Safety of Ships.

The House went into Committee on Mr. Sinclair's bill to amend the act respecting the safety of ships. The bill enables ships to carry during winter navigation lumber between the main and shelter decks. This is now forbidden by existing law. The various clauses of the bill were passed, but the bill will be held over till it is approved by the Board of Trade of England.

E. M. McDonald, Pictou, N.S., introduced a bill respecting the Grand Trunk Railway. The purpose of the bill is to authorize the Grand Trunk Railway Co. to acquire bonds and preference and common shares of the Canada Atlantic Railway Co., and hold the same either by themselves as a company or in the name of trustees, also to provide that the company may guarantee the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds so acquired and to be held by them, not exceeding the sum of £5,292,300 sterling.

Mr. McDonald introduced another bill respecting the Canada Atlantic Railway. This bill proposes to repeal section 8 of chapter 90 of 1903, to empower the company to issue bonds to the amount of £3,292,000 sterling, to be secured by mortgage on the company's property. Both bills were read a first time.

Mr. Fisher's Resolution.

Mr. Fisher moved the House into Committee to consider a resolution respecting the packing and sale of certain staple commodities. The resolution provides that:

(1.) When apples are packed in Canada for export for sale by the box, they shall be packed in good and strong boxes of seasoned wood, the inside dimensions of which shall not be less than ten inches in depth, 11 inches in width and 20 inches in length, representing as near as possible 2,200 cubic inches.

(2.) Every person who offers or exposes for sale, or who packs for export, apples by the box otherwise than in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this section shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty of 25 cents for each box of apples so offered or exposed for sale or packed.

3.) When apples are packed in boxes or barrels having trays or fillers wherein it is intended to have a separate compartment for each apple, then the provisions of section 4 and 4a shall not apply.

Mr. Fisher added two important amendments to the resolution, one that the legislation should apply only to boxes for the export trade, and the other that the clause should not come into force till June 1, 1906.

After some explanation and discussion, Mr. Fisher moved that the committee rise and report progress.

The House went into Committee of Supply, taking up an appropriation of $1,250,000 for the Victoria Memorial Museum.

Conservatives For the Public.

The Ottawa electrical interests scored a distinct triumph in the Private Bills Committee yesterday. Aided by a strong lobby, the sympathetic support of the Government and the activity of the Liberal Whips, the bill, which in effect wipes out lighting competition in Ottawa, was carried on a vote of 27 to 16. It was almost a straight party division, the Conservatives, with one single exception, voting for the protection of Ottawa's rights and the Liberals, save and except Duncan Bole of Winnipeg, voting for Ottawa's corporate tyrant.

Railways Bills Passed.

The Railway Committee yesterday passed four bills as follows: Respecting the Columbia & Western Railway Company—Mr. Gilliher; respecting the Atlantic, Quebec & Western Railway Company—Mr. Guavreau; incorporating the St. Mary's & Western Ontario Railway Company—Mr. McIntyre; respecting the Ottawa, Northern & Western Railway Company—Mr. Delcourt.

PARENT SHOULD QUIT.

Gouin-Turgeon Combination Backed By 50 Members Out of 74 in the Legislature—Consents to Resign.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—There has been a complete calm yesterday after Wednesday's storm. Fifty-seven members of the Legislature are now assured to the Gouin-Turgeon combination, and Dr. Lacombe, M.P.P. for St. Mary's gave in his adhesion, so it looks as if Hon. Mr. Gouin would have fully 50 members out of the 74 by the time the House meets on March 2.

Parent to Resign.

Ottawa, Feb. 10.—It was stated last night that Hon. L. P. Brodeur's mission has been at least partly successful, and that Parent has consented to resign the Premiership on certain terms offered him on behalf of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. According to this report Hon. Horace Archambault, who now sits in the Legislative Council, will become Premier, and Mr. Gouin will lead the Government party in the Assembly. Mr. Parent will probably go on the Grand Trunk Pacific Construction Commission.

SIFTON'S ORGANIZER.

Warrant Issued For His Arrest—Sensational Development in D.R.O. Trial.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 10.—A sensational turn was given to the trial of William Kitson, deputy returning officer for Provencher, in the recent Dominion elections, yesterday. He is charged with tampering with the voters' lists. Alexander Ayotte, returning officer for the riding, who was recently committed for contempt of court, and who was subsequently released on his engaging to tell all he knew as to erasures of Conservative voters from the lists previous to the election, gave evidence directly incriminating R. E. A. Leech, Mr. Sifton's organizer for Brandon, and the organizers for the Liberal party in Manitoba.

Consequently, a warrant was immediately sworn out before Magistrate McMicken at the instance of the provincial authorities, for Leech's arrest. So far, the warrant has not been served, as Leech appears to have suddenly left the city, though it is rumored, he is in Ottawa.

Soon after the general elections, Leech received his reward in the shape of an appointment under the Ministry of the Interior as Dominion timber inspector.

As it has been several times announced, the Provincial Government intends pushing this and cognate cases to the utmost. It is understood that an arrest will now be made in connection with similar charges affecting the elections for Selkirk, Marquette and other Manitoba ridings, a special sum having been voted at the recent session of the Legislature for this express purpose.

In washing woollens and flannels, Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) will be found very satisfactory.

Messrs. R. J. Graham and J. A. Sexsmith attended the annual meeting of the County Orange Lodge of East Peterborough at Norwood on Tuesday afternoon.

One of the sports of the town, by way of a joke last week, managed to secure the Constable's hand cuffs at the McNicholl hotel, and jokingly fixing one section on his own wrist, fastened the other to the wrist of a well known insurance man, who happened to be in town. The funny part of the sport began in reality when, on trying to release themselves, they found that they could not do so, and on acquainting the Constable with the fact, that official found he had left the key at home. The two gentlemen had to remain self-arrested prisoners until the Constable, at his leisure, journeyed to the east of the town, where he lived and brought the key back. It is needless to say that the policeman's handcuffs will not be so carelessly tampered with in the future.

HALL'S GLEN

Miss Wilson, of Stoney Lake, was visiting here for a few days last week

Miss Payne, of Hastings, is spending a few days with her many friends and relatives in this vicinity.

The News printing press is now in good running order, after being carefully repaired from the breakdown of a few weeks ago.

The Apsley grain market is fully supplied at present with oats, this being the busiest season on record. If the grain buyers of our village would pay a higher price, the farmers here would not have to seek a market at a distance. We fear that there will be a great scarcity of oats in this neighborhood the coming spring.

A programme will be given in the Hall on Thursday evening, 16th inst., by the literary society, and any persons who have not had the privilege of hearing the Black Watch band and are so desirous, may do so on this occasion by coming out to the entertainment, which will doubtless surpass all others hitherto furnished by the society. This notable band will render, it is expected, several choice selections.

There has been some talk lately of establishing an electric light system in our village. This, we think, would be a good thing, providing the inauguration of such would not raise the taxes of the few merchants, mechanics and local tradesmen here too high.

The scarcity of feed among some of our local farmers has resulted in raising the market price. The few farmers having hay or straw for sale find a ready market at present.

The impromptu debate and lunch social which was held in the town hall last Tuesday evening under the auspices of the H. G. L. Society was a decided success. The debate, "Resolved that city life is preferable to country life," was ably presented and ably argued out by the leaders and their assistants, and was listened to with interest. The report of the judges was given in favor of the negative.

Another serious disaster befell the Hall's Glen stage last week. It appears that the stage driver with his high spirited team had scarcely passed the suburbs of the village on his tri-weekly trip to Lakefield with His Majesty's mail, when his horses taking fright, became unmanageable. Mr. D. Madill was luckily thrown from his seat just before the "Black Maria" was violently capsized, incurring as little damage to this valuable conveyance. Fortunately no passengers were aboard the coach at the time of the accident.

WILLIAM H. FIFE DIED IN ALAMEDA

Former Peterborough Man and Brother-in-law of Mayor Best.

SKETCH OF HIS BUSY CAREER

Deceased, Who Was Brother of Hugh Fife, of Otonabee, Was One of the Early Settlers of Tacoma—Interested in Many Industries—His Large-Hearted Generosity.

Word has been received of the death of William H. Fife, who passed on January 21st. The deceased at one time resided near Peterborough. Mr. Hugh Fife of the 4th Concession of Otonabee is a brother, while Mrs. Best, wife of Mayor Henry Best is a sister. Many old friends in town will learn with deepest regret of the demise of Mr. Fife. A Tacoma exchange of January 23rd 1905, just to hand, gives the following particulars—

The funeral of the late William H. Fife took place yesterday afternoon from the First Methodist Episcopal church. After most impressive ceremonies all that was mortal of the man who at one time was one of Tacoma's best known, richest and most influential citizens found a last resting place in Tacoma cemetery.

Despite the extremely inclement weather, it was one of the largest attended funerals witnessed in Tacoma in years. It was an admirable tribute to the deceased and showed the respect that he everywhere enjoyed. Besides relatives and the large number of friends and intimates, many were present who had not enjoyed a personal acquaintance with Mr. Fife, but came to pay honor to one whose life had been so closely linked with the history of Tacoma.

The funeral was under Masonic auspices, being in charge of Tacoma lodge, No. 22, of which Mr. Fife was a charter and a life member. The members met at Masonic temple shortly after one o'clock, proceeding at once to Hoska's undertaking parlors, where the body had been lying since its arrival Thursday from Alameda, Cal. From here began the solemn march escorting the body to the church of which the departed was one of the founders, a trustee of the congregation and a life-long member.

The services at the church were impressively simple as befitted the unostentatious man in whose memory they were held.

The floral pieces were most numerous and of exquisite beauty. They were mute testimony to the esteem in which Mr. Fife had been held and testified to the extent of his friendships in Tacoma. From the sorrowing widow and the children a beautiful laurel wreath came. From the grandchildren a tribute in the shape of pink carnations was presented. The California Society of the Army of the Philippines was the donor of a pretty laurel wreath. These pieces were left on the casket as it was lowered into the grave.

NUMEROUS FLORAL DESIGNS

A floral design in the shape of the Masonic emblem, a square and compass, came from Tacoma lodge, No. 22, while the Tacoma Elks gave a large wreath on a standard. Cyclamen chapter No. 65, Order of the Eastern Star, of Auburn, where Mr. Fife had in recent years made his home, presented a beautiful piece in the shape of a star on an easel. The other designs came from leading citizens.

During his long residence in Tacoma Mr. Fife was particularly active in religious circles. Besides being one of the founders of the first M. E. church and the Puget Sound university, he was one of the first trustees of the Seamen's Bethel and was president of the auxiliary for Pierce county for the American Bible society. He was also one of Tacoma's first school directors. He was ever foremost in all movements looking to the moral upbuilding of the city.

COMES TO TACOMA IN 1874

Coming to Tacoma in April, 1874, on the steamer Ajax, from San Francisco, Mr. Fife was a traveling companion of C. B. Wright, father of Tacoma. Mr. Fife enjoyed the distinction of being the first postmaster of New Tacoma, being appointed by President Grant and holding office under the three succeeding presidents. He was one of the first promoters of the coal mines of the Wilkeson district. He saw Tacoma grow from a village of thirty or forty people to a metropolitan city of 60,000.

Mr. Fife established the first general merchandise stores in New Tacoma, one on Pacific avenue and the other at the wharves. He also started mercantile establishments at Ainsworth and Texas Ferry, on the Columbia river, Grange City on Snake river, Medical lake, Spokane, Alderton and Sumner.

Then for a period of years he was engaged extensively in real estate and mining in Washington, Oregon, Alaska, California and Nevada. During this time he erected the Fife hotel in Tacoma, the Lyceum theatre and other business blocks. He was also among the promoters of the Tacoma theatre, Tacoma smelter, woollen mills, Puget Sound dry-dock, and was president of the Tacoma Coal company.

SEEKS WEALTH IN ALASKA

After his financial reverses, he went to Rossland, B. C., and again engaged in mining. When the rush to Alaska began, he removed to Fort Wrangel, where he established a successful store as well as one at Skagway. He soon went into the Atlin diggings.

Shortly after this the great Nome excitement began and he went to the far north for a season. Coming back he closed out his business at Skagway and then engaged largely in mining and timber enterprises, making his headquarters in Tacoma and Seattle. His friends often heard him say he would rather die in the harness than rust out.

With his usual sagacity and far-sightedness, he conceived the idea of obtaining land along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad, the new Canadian transcontinental line, and latest reports from his associates in British Columbia show that his judgment was correct, as one of these large tracts has been selected for a townsite.

MINING CLAIMS IN NEVADA

Receiving advices from friends in Nevada, of good prospects, he went into that state and acquired valuable mining claims, which give promise of meeting his most sanguine wishes. He never forgot his christianity and was always charitable to others and faithful as a husband, father and friend.

Mr. George Bolen, Spry, Bruce Co., writes:—"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia for some years, and after using nine boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I felt better then I had for years. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is certainly the best medicine I ever used, and I say so because I want to give full credit where it is due."

TWO FINGERS CUT

Frederick Holyome Met With Painful Accident Yesterday Afternoon.

Fred. Holyome, blacksmith, employed at the Canadian General Electric works, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon. His left hand was caught in a pair of shears, and it was found necessary to amputate the first two fingers above the first joint. Dr. Young attended. What makes the mishap all the more regrettable is that Mr. Holyome, who is a young man, boarding at No. 3, Wescott street, has only started to work again yesterday, after an illness of six weeks.

SPLENDID PICTURES

Displayed at the Opera House Last Night—An Appreciative Audience.

The Opera House was comfortably filled last night with an audience that thoroughly enjoyed the biograph picture show.

The pictures were of both an instructive and comic nature, and were exceptionally clear and distinct. Last night's performance was somewhat late starting, owing to the Company being unable to make calculated transit between Brockville and Peterborough on time. The Company did not arrive until 6 o'clock, after which their apparatus had to be placed.

Tonight's performance, however, starts sharp at 8 o'clock and an entire change of programme will be presented. Merritt & Pritchard's Biograph Co. have scored successes in every town visited and come highly recommended.

SATURDAY NIGHT "POPS"

First of Series at Y. M. C. A.—Mr. Dennistoun's Talk.

A series of Saturday night "Pops" will be given to the Association members and their friends from now on.

The first one commences tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

The chief feature of the evening will be the story of "Jean Valjean," the famous character depicted in Victor Hugo's novel "Les Miserables," told by Mr. R. M. Dennistoun. This is not a lecture, but a wonderful fascinating story of the most famous and beautiful character in fiction. The setting of the story is that of the great French Revolution. The story will also be very interesting because of its similarity to the social and industrial upheaval in Russia today.

There will also be rendered some choice musical selections, both vocal and instrumental by the best local talent.

Everybody, both ladies and gentlemen, are cordially invited. There will be no admission charged.

ASSOCIATION FORMED TO STAY RAVAGES OF CONSUMPTION

That is the Object Which Peterborough Sanatorium Association Has in View.

EXCELLENT PAPER READ BY DR. HODGETTS

Representative Meeting Discussed the Question—Dr. Boucher Elected President—Medical Men Express Their Views—Hilliard Farm Favorable Site for Sanatorium—Some Interesting Statistics by Secretary Provincial Board of Health.

The Peterborough Sanatorium Association was formed at a meeting of representative citizens last evening, and just what the result of the organization will be must depend on the activity and application towards recognized objects by the following officers:—

President—Dr. Boucher.

Vice-President—Mr. E. B. Edwards

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. J. W. Bennet.

Executive Committee—The officers, Mayor Best, Ald. Johnston, Robert Neill, W. H. Moore, R. M. Dennistoun, Wm. Eyres, Rev. Dr. Crothers, Dr. Halliday and Dr. McNulty, who will have power to add to their numbers.

THE BEGINNING.

The movement which resulted in the organization of the Association last night had its birth among the members of a committee formed a short time ago to procure subscriptions for the purpose of endowing a bed or beds in the consumptive Sanitarium at Muskoka. The question suggested itself, why send money away from town when a Sanitarium might be erected here? This question was thoroughly threshed out last night and much assistance in considering it was derived from an excellent paper by Dr. Hodgetts, of Toronto, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health. He impressed the fact that other contagious diseases did not compare with the ravages made by consumption. He reviewed the growth of the sanitarium movement from the time of its birth in England in 1835, up to the present, and he quoted eminent authorities with regard to the manner of conducting a sanatarium in order to obtain best results. Dr. Hodgetts expressed the opinion that a situation near Peterborough for such an institution should be easily possible, and that climatic conditions were very favorable. He, however, pointed out what things were to be avoided and what adopted.

REPRESENTATIVE GATHERING.

There appeared to be great unanimity in the meeting on the resolution to form an Association, and the enthusiasm in evidence augurs well for the movement. Lieut.-Col. Edwards, on motion, took the chair, and other gentlemen present were: Rev. Dr. Torrance, Rev. Dr. Crothers, Rev. J. G. Lewis, Mayor Best, Aldermen W J Johnston, Arch. McIntyre, T. J. Begley, Jos. Batten and G. J. Tovey. Messrs. J. W. Bennet, J. Coyle Brown, Wm. Eyres, W. H. Moore, R. M. Dennistoun, G. M. Roger, R. B. Rogers, A. H. Stratton, W. H. Bradburn, Dr. Halliday, Dr. Boucher, Dr. McCullough, Dr. Marshall, Dr. McNulty, Dr. Gray, Dr. Brown, Mr. S. R. Armstrong, Town Clerk; Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, Secretary Board of Trade.

The meeting was called in response to a letter sent out by those interested in the sanitarium movement, the chairman of the committee being Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, and the secretary-treasurer, Mr. J. W. Bennet. The letter was sent to the Mayor, the chairman of the Board of Trade, the medical men, and the members of the Board of Health, and the result was that the Council Chamber was well filled.

ACTION URGENT.

The chairman explained the purpose of the meeting. It was desirable to discuss ways and means whereby the plague of consumption could be most effectively dealt with. Time was when small-pox was somewhat prevalent, yet if it took the place of consumption to-day, the whole community would be stirred to its foundation in anxiety to have it stamped out. Reference was made to the excellent work being done by the Muskoka Sanitarium, and it was emphasized that the condition of affairs within this municipality was such as to demand immediate attention. No inconsiderable number of people now suffered from the disease in Peterborough alone, and it was pointed out that one in every eight throughout the Dominion died from consumption. The responsibility of the situation was therefore clear.

AN ABLE PAPER.

Dr. Hodgetts was called upon and read an able paper referring to the subject immediately under discussion. At the outset he remarked that the other contagious diseases were as nothing compared with the ravages made by consumption, and this fact the people of the Province have not yet learned to appreciate to the full. Continuing he said:—

Like that great blessing to mankind, vaccination, the sanitarium treatment of tuberculosis had its origin in England, and in both instances the originators were country physicians. In the year 1835, Dr. George Bodington advocated treatment by pure air and out door life, but so great was the opposition of his associates and the ridicule heaped upon him by the public that he had to give up practice and abandon the sanitarium. The result of his work was, however, published in 1840. Some 24 years later the second sanitarium was erected in Germany by Dr. Gorbersdorf, of Brehmer. From this time on work gradually extended, chiefly, however, for the treatment of those in more comfortable circumstances, until at present there are the following sanitoria: In England, 25; France, 21; Germany, 43; Russia, 11; Switzerland, 8; United States, 63; Canada 5; besides many others in different portions of Europe.

The methods pursued in Germany being somewhat different to those adopted on this continent may, with interest be briefly referred to. Many of the sanatoria have been established by the State, others by the Government Insurance Companies, and still others by philanthropists, and some as good investments by capitalists. During 1902 the Insurance Companies expended nearly two million dollars, half for the erection of sanatoria and the other half for their maintenance.

Since 1891, all hired workmen in Germany, estimated at over twelve million, are insured against invalidity, employer and employee paying equal parts so as to insure an annuity to all persons who are more than two-thirds incapable of self-supporting, or over seventy years of age. This insurance is affected under the the supervision of the Imperial State Insurance Departments, also the Territorially Limited Insurance Companies. Naturally, therefore, these offices take a financial interest in deferring invalidity, for the longer the invalidity is deferred the longer the annual premium is paid. Hence these wealthy departments and companies, with funds amounting to seven hundred and sixty-four million marks in 1900, after nine years existence come willingly forward to assist in the sanatoria work.

CLASSIFICATION.

These Sanatoria may be classified as follows—

A. Those built and supported in whole or in part by the State.

B. Those built and equipped by philanthropic persons to give climatic and other advantages to persons unable to pay for them, the excessive charges of hotels and boarding houses, the rate usually being $5 per week, while the cost to the institution is from eight to ten dollars per week, the difference being made up by philanthropy.

C. Those built as commercial speculations and are self-supporting, the charges ranging from fifteen to twenty-five dollars per week, or more.

The object of these three classes of santaoria is to have the patients spend a large portion of each day in the open air, and by giving as much of the right kind of food as they can assimilate thereby improving the general nutrition, and for this purpose rules are laid down for their daily guidance, these, of course, differing slightly in each institution. In the main they are breifly as follows—

8 a.m.—Attendant closes windows, lights fires and serves light breakfast, after which the patient is comfortably placed in a chair out of doors protected from wind and weather.

10.30-11—Nourishment is brought, consisting of milk, eggnog or bullion.

Noon—Dinner is served, after which promenade is indulged in of various degrees, according to the condition of the patient, after which the reclining chair is then sought.

4 p.m.—Nourishment is given.

6-6.30—Dinner, followed by promenade and out of door reclining chair.

Dr. A. Hillier, in his recent work on "The Prevention of Consumption" page 129, very clearly sums up the three classes of institutions required as follows—

(a) Sanatoria for early cases who are able to get about and in whom there is fair prospect of cure.

(b) Special sanatoria or homes for advanced cases, who are unable to be up, and in whom the prospect of cure is not great.

(c) Open air colonies which would be supplied for both classes (A and B). For "A" with patients who had improved but were still not cured; for "B" with that small number of consumptives who, in spite of their advanced condition, had rallied sufficiently to be able to be up and follow some light occupation.

SANATORIUM REQUIREMENTS

A sanatorium should be placed on the southerly aspect of a hill at a sufficient altitude to obtain a bracing air, with woods in its near vicinity and some acres of ground to permit of the construction of walks and the erection of summer houses. The soil should be, by preference, sandy, or on rock, dry, with slope to ensure drainage. Given these a consumptive must have all the sunlight it is possible for him to get. The following are given by the Commission of New Hampshire, appointed to consider a desirable site for a State sanatorium, as essentials in making a choice:—

1. A considerable tract of land, one hundred to two hundred acres, partly wooded, preferably, but not necessarily with pine, with southerly or southeasterly slope, at least for building sites, within easy access of railroad, at an elevation of not less than 500 feet above the sea level, with dry, porous soil.

Altitudes — Peterborough, G. T. R. station, 649 feet; Lakefield, 770; Gravenhurst, 818.

2. Its proximity to railroad communication is essential, not only for the convenience of patients, but for the furnishing of coal and other supplies. It is not necessary that it should be close to an existing station, if it is near a line where a new station could be established.

3. Another requisite is a sufficient amount of good water for all the purposes that might be required, with opportunities or facilities for good drainage.

4. If the property should consist of a farm, the character and condition of buildings, number of acres under cultivation, number of woodland, also distance of property from village or city should be considered. The location must be near a city or village, but not in it; must be remote from the dust of towns, and where the air is known to be pure.

5. The location must be such that the scenery will be pleasing and somewhat attractive; a near-by lake or pond would be an attraction.

CONSTRUCTION OF SANATORIA

Having indicated the objects to be gained by sanatoria treatment and the various kinds necessary for the proper treatment of cases, and also indicated the locations most suitable on which to erect the same, we naturally have to consider the class of buildings that must be erected by a municipality or district. Naturally enough they are divided into the building in which either incipient, incurable or chronic cases are to be treated.

There is a good deal of difference in the construction of buildings in Europe. They consist of a central building containing offices, dining-room, etc., with wings leading to bed-rooms which open on to broad piazzas.

In the States the plan prevailing for construction is to build a large number of small detached cottages, accommodating each from four to eight patients, these being grouped around a central building. Such in part is the system adopted at Gravenhurst, where tents with properly constructed floors and wooden roofs are used. In this manner patients are at all times breathing fresh air. The advantages of the American system are, the patients are not brought into such close contact; surroundings are more agreeable and possibly the amount of fresh air obtained is greater. The chief disadvantage is the extra cost of heating, which in our cold climate is always heavy.

One other point to which I would like to refer before quoting statistics regarding Peterborough, is the objection so often advanced when the suggestion is made to erect a sanatorium in a particular locality, viz. that of it being a danger to the neighborhood. Experience in Europe has shown that a properly conducted sanatorium is not a source of danger. The greatest danger is the phthisical patient at large. Houses without control are a source of danger, whereas in a sanatorium precautions are taken to disinfect sputum.

LOCAL NEEDS

In considering the provisions that would have to be made by the district of Peterborough for the care of consumptives, I have collected the figures of deaths recorded during the past six years in the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, Peterborough and Victoria, which were as follows—

Northumberland and Durham, population, 1901, 62669; 1898, 97; 1899, 110; 1900, 112; 11901, 78; 1902, 91; 1903, 71.

Peterborough, population, 1901, 36,426; 1898, 69; 1899, 60; 1900, 78; 1901, 46; 1902, 44; 11903, 44.

Victoria, population 1901, 32,271; 1898, 50; 1899, 41; 1900, 39; 1901, 36; 1902, 28; 1903, 33

Northumberland and Durham, 1902, total deaths, 872; total death rate per 1000, 13.9; per cent of deaths, 8.1.

Peterborough, 1902, total deaths, 518; total death rate per 1000, 14.2; per cent of deaths, 8.5.

Victoria, 1902, total deaths, 383; total death rate per 1000, 11.9; per cent of deaths, 8.4.

To be brief in summary it may be stated that one-twelfth of the total deaths happening in 1903 in the Counties referred to were due to tuberculosis. In the County of Peterborough alone 44 died from consumption in 1903, being its quota of the 1,095,000 victims of the white plague for that year. This County lent its aid to the 3000, who died each day of the year, and as each minute of the day two persons fell, so twenty-two minutes of the time were used in this County.

THE DEATH ROLL

Estimation of number of cases:—With a death roll of 44 it may be justly computed that there are at least at the present time in the County of Peterborough 150 living in all stages of the disease, and allowing that there are as many in the incipient stage as die annually, then the figures would be about one-third of this total for each of the following classes—incipients, advanced, chronics—and for this number provision would ultimately have to be made; not that all those of the first class would be in the sanatorium at the same time, for it is found that after six months treatment and education in personal hygiene this class of patients are often able to return to their homes, having increased in weight and improved in general health. The chief bill of expense will be providing for those in the last stage of the disease, for these, of course, the sanatorium wards are, as a rule, their final resting place, though even for this class of individuals in some instances much can be done.

Regarding the chronics, who are able to engage in light work, it is more of a question of providing a house where industrial pursuits may be followed.

NECESSARY PROVISION

This brings us to the consideration of the question of what provision should be made for the care of tubercular patients in this district. In considering the district you may include the County of Peterborough as this city is almost at the junction of four counties, the larger district may be considered. In either case, however, the requirements would be similar.

REAL ESTATE DEAL

Mr. G. R. McGregor, Confectioner, Purchases Good Property on George St.

Another deal in real estate on George street was effected this week when the executors of the William Loeb estate sold to Mr. G. R. McGregor, the property, 415 George-st. recently occupied by E. W. Gardiner, baker and confectioner.

The property was sold for $6,000. Mr. McGregor will open up a first class and up-to-date confectionery shop in the premises which are just one door north of Wm. Loeb & Sons. He has already taken possession. The new proprietor is well and favorably known in town and will doubtless be successful in his business enterprise.

TOWN DEBENTURES

Town Solicitor and Chairman of Finance Consider State of Money Market.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall and Ald. E. F Mason were in Toronto yesterday consulting brokers with reference to the condition of the money market, in view of the fact that the town has a considerable amount of debentures to dispose of in the near future. They found the market to be fairly satisfactory. The debentures to be issued are for the following purposes: $50,000 for new Collegiate Institute. These will be issued in instalments, and will run for 30 years, drawing interest at 4 per cent. $20,000 for waterworks, extending over 30 years at 4 per cent. $10,000 for armory site purposes, extending over 30 years at 4 per cent. $12,000 for the opening and extensions of certain streets, extending over 20 years at 4 per cent.

NEW INDUSTRY COMING.

The Manufacture of Sand Lime Brick—Outlook Very Promising.

There is every reason to believe that a company for the manufacture of sand lime brick will be formed here in the very near future. The project has been under consideration for some months past, and by the time spring approaches things will be in good shape for a start.

Manufacturers of brick making machinery were in town this week, discussing the step with local gentlemen who are interested. There is considerable variety in the kind of machinery used, and it is the intention of the promoters to get the very best. It is estimated that the cost of the plant will be in the neighborhood of $25,000. At the start about 15 men would probably be employed.

Mr. Roland F. McWilliams is promoting the enterprise. The Review made extended reference to the manufacture of brick from lime and sand some time ago, and it is only necessary at the present time to say that the material is growing rapidly in favor for all kinds of buildings in the United States, where it was introduced a few years ago. In Germany, however, it has been in use for many years and has given great satisfaction wherever employed, whether on Government works or residences. The lot on which it is proposed to locate the industry here is situated a short distance west of the Roman Catholic cemetery, containing about 10 acres.

CONSERVATORY OPENING

The formal opening of the Conservatory of Music on Monday evening promises to be an event of great interest. The faculty will be pleased to meet all of their friends on that occasion. Admission will not be by invitation, but those wishing to be present should apply to the Conservatory for a programme which will admit them. The recital to be given will prove very enjoyable. Herr Wilhelmj, who appeared with Mr. Frank Welsman, the celebrated piano virtuoso, in Toronto recently, is said by that gentleman to be a true artist. His visit to Peterborough will doubtless be appreciated by music lovers.

Indigestion and Headache

Mr. Duncan McPherson, Content, Alta., writes:—"I was for many years troubled with indigestion and headache, and derived no relief from the many remedies I used. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after taking four boxes, the result is that I am once more in the full enjoyment of the blessings of good health."

Paterson's Baby Sodas are in the lead. Have you had a box.

MARKHAM TOURNAMENT.

The Lindsay Post in speaking of the Markham tournament informs its readers that there is a rumor that a team composed of the following players will figure in the tournament Gould and Deyman, Fenelon Falls; Crowley, Peterborough; Irving, Duffus and Taylor, Lindsay and Whitcroft, of Midland. This is doubtless another of the Post's pipe dreams.

A SCHOOL FOR SPIDERS.

The Insects Taught to Weave Their Webs Only on Bottles.

"This is my spiders' school," said the young woman, and with a little stick she brushed a few webs from the wall. "Not much to look at, is it? Only a dozen rows of wine bottles, a great many spiders and a great many webs. I make nevertheless a little money out of the school.

"Spiders' webs are in demand among surgeons and among the makers of certain astronomical instruments, the surgeons using them to stop hemorrhages with and the instrument makers using them in certain very delicate instruments—instruments wherein, strange to say, a human hair would not take their place, because a hair is neither fine enough nor durable enough to serve the required purpose.

"Besides selling the webs I also sell the spiders. A corrupt class of wine dealers buy the spiders. These men put them among bottles of new wine. I train the spiders to weave on bottles only—I tear down webs woven anywhere else—and it is amazing how quickly these well schooled pupils of mine will cover a case of port or claret with cobwebs, giving to the wine an appearance of great age.

"Six spiders in a week will add two years to the aspect of a dozen bottles of wine; hence you will readily see how valuable the ugly little creatures are to wine merchants of a certain type."

SEWING COTTON.

The Humble Origin of the Great Thread Industry.

The origin of sewing cotton was told at a cotton manufacturers' meeting by the head of the great thread house of Paisley, Scotland. It was discovered in 1803 by his grandfather, who had a little business in Paisley, making silk twine for heddles, which were used by every weaver. The silk came from Hamburg, and in 1803 Napoleon caused the stock held there to be burned in order to hamper British trade. The weavers were in despair, but James Clark conceived the idea that cotton yarns could be twisted together to form the twines.

The experiment succeeded, and from this grew the idea that cotton could be substituted for flax in the manufacture of sewing thread and would not be so coarse and harsh. He began the manufacture of the thread in a very small way. It was at first put up in skeins and had to be wound into little balls by the purchaser, and then Mr. Clark invented the modern spools. He had them made by a wood turner, half a gross at a time. They cost him sixpence a dozen, and he charged the purchaser of the thread a halfpenny for the spool, which, however, was refunded when the spool was returned. The ladies of Paisley used to come to his shop with their spools and wait while he wound the thread on them. From this small beginning grew a great industry.

Young Hunter's Hard Luck.

"Some years ago," said a hunter, "when I lived down on the eastern shore of Maryland, where I was born, I had passed a whole day gunning rabbits and had not killed one. On my way home through the woods I met a boy who had a live rabbit. Ashamed to go home empty handed, I gave the boy 25 cents for his rabbit.

"I then said to myself, 'I will tie Mr. Rabbit to a bush and kill him, and the folks at home will say Ed shot a rabbit.' I took a shoestring and fastened the rabbit to a bush and then stood off, took aim and fired. When the gun had stopped kicking I saw Mr. Rabbit flying through the woods. My bullet had cut the shoestring in twain and had set the little animal free."

Sword Stands In Churches.

Sword stands came into use in London churches when it became customary to carry the city sword before the lord mayor as he went to church in state. During service the sword was placed in the stand or case provided for it, and in his own church the lord mayor generally had the stand placed conveniently near to or in his family pew. This custom, which was quite common before the end of the sixteenth century, apparently began in the reign of Elizabeth. The state visits to the city churches were discontinued in the mayoralty of Sir R. N. Fowler, 1883.—London Standard.

Was Cured of Asthma

"I first used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with my daughter, who suffered from a severe form of asthma. The least exposure to cold would lay her up and she would nearly suffocate for want of breath. I must say I found it to be a most satisfactory treatment and it has entirely cured her."—Mrs. A. A. VanBuskirk, Robinson Street Moncton, N.B.

The Yellow Holly

"Was that before 11?"

"I can't say. I did not leave my room after 10. But Margery may have seen some one as she went up to her bedroom when she left me."

"I'll question the girl," said Quex, and entered the sitting room.

It was of no great size, with one window, which looked out on to the square. This was locked, and, even if it had not been, no one could have climbed in, as Quex saw that the area was below. "And madame chained the area gate every night with her own hands," explained Miss Bull, who was watching him.

The inspector turned suddenly toward her. "It seems to me that the deceased was overcautious. Was she afraid?"

"I think she was," admitted Miss Bull. "She had a habit of looking over her shoulder and, as I have stated, was particular as to bolts and bars. But she was a secretive woman and never said anything to me about her fears, if she had any."

Madame was still in the black silk dress which she wore on the previous night. Seated at the round center table, she had evidently been struck from behind and killed before she had time to cry out. Her arms were on the table and her head had fallen forward. The furniture of the room was not in disorder; the red tablecloth was not even ruffled. The murder had been committed without haste or noise, as Quex pointed out to Miss Bull.

"Whosoever murdered her must have been a friend," said he.

"It doesn't seem a friendly act to kill a defenseless woman," said Miss Bull, looking coldly on the limp figure.

"You don't quite understand. What I mean is that Mrs. Jersey knew the person who killed her."

Miss Bull shook her head. "I don't agree with you," she observed, and Quex was astonished that she should dare to contradict. "She was struck from behind before she had time to turn her head."

"Quite so. But the assassin must have entered the room, and unless the deceased was deaf"—

"Madame had particularly sharp ears."

"Then that makes it all the more certain. Had any one unexpected entered she would have been on the alert; there would have been a struggle. Now, we see that the furniture is not disturbed; therefore we can argue from this that Mrs. Jersey was in friendly conversation with the assassin. She was seated at the table and the assassin was at her back, which shows a certain amount of trust. In fact, Miss Bull, the person who committed this murder was the last person Mrs. Jersey expected to hurt her in any way."

"I understand. But I don't fancy that madame had any friends. She was a woman who kept very much to herself."

"Do you know anything of her past?"

"Absolutely nothing. She took this house some fourteen or fifteen years ago, I believe. I have been here ten and was very comfortable, save that madame and I disagreed on many points. She was always rude to me, and I don't think she was a lady." Miss Bull drew herself up. "My father was a general," she declared proudly.

But Quex was too busy examining the room to attend to Miss Bull's family history. He searched for the weapon with which the crime had been committed, but could find none. There was no blood on the furniture, although some had trickled down from the wound on to the tablecloth. The blow must have been struck strongly and surely and with the power of a deadly hatred. It was at this moment that the doctor arrived, and, turning the body over to him, Quex conducted Miss Bull back to the drawing room, where he examined all who were in the house.

The first witness examined was Margery, and she refused to open her mouth unless she sat by Miss Bull. The old maid held Margery's hand and coaxed her into answering when she proved recalcitrant. Quex could not but admire the way in which Miss Bull managed the lumpish creature.

"You left the drawing room with this lady?" he asked, indicating Miss Bull and speaking in a persuasive tone.

"Yes. We played 'patience' in Miss Bull's bedroom."

"At what time did you leave?"

"About 11—just before it."

"Did the clock strike the hour when you were in your own bedroom?"

"No," said Margery, trying to collect her wits, "when I was in the passage."

"What were you doing in the passage? It would only take you a few minutes to get to your room, would it not?"

"Yes," put in Miss Bull. "My bedroom is on the second floor, and Margery's is on the fourth, right above my head. You could easily have got to your room before the clock struck, Margery."

"I did try to," admitted the girl, "but my aunt kept me talking."

Quex sat up. "Did you speak to your aunt at that hour?"

"Yes. She met me walking up to my room and scolded me for being out of bed at that hour. I said I had been with Miss Bull, and my aunt said that every one was in bed but me, and that she would not have it. The clock struck 11, and she called me names. She then took me by the arm and pushed me into my room and locked the door. Yes, she did," nodded Margery vindictively; "she locked the door."

"Why did she do that?" asked Quex, staring.

"I don't know. I wasn't doing anything," grumbled Margery, "but she said she wouldn't have me wandering about the house at all hours of the night and locked me in. I couldn't get out this morning till Miss Bull let me out."

"Margery usually brings me my cup of tea," explained Miss Bull, "and as she did not come this morning as usual I was anxious. When the alarm came I went to look for Margery in her room. The key was in the door, but the door was locked. I released Margery."

"Oh, the key was in the door," mused Quex. "It would seem, then, that the deceased simply turned the key and left it. Humph! I wonder why she locked the girl in?"

Miss Bull shrugged her thin shoulders. "It was spite on her part," she said. "Madame never cared to see Margery with me."

While Quex was thus examining the witnesses Train and Brendon were seated in the sitting room of the former discussing the crime. Brendon was gloomy, for in the unexpected death of Mrs. Jersey he saw the downfall of his hopes of proving his legitimacy. "There's no chance of my marrying Dorothy now," he said, with a sigh. "I'll remain plain George Brendon to the end of my days, and a bachelor at that."

"It's awful!" gasped Leonard, who was white and haggard. "I never expected that my search for types would lead me into the neighborhood of a tragedy. Who could have killed her?"

"I can't say."

"I wonder if her death has anything to do with your affairs?"

Brendon looked up suddenly and with a stern, flushed face. "Train," he said sharply, "whatever you do, say nothing about what I told you last night."

"Yes. But what you told me might lead to the discovery of the assassin."

"I don't care if it does," said Brendon angrily and rising to his feet to emphasize his determination; "you are to keep my confidence."

"Oh, I shan't say anything. But do you think"—

"I think nothing. But I am sure that my affairs have nothing to do with this death. I came to see Mrs. Jersey, and this morning I should have had the truth out of her. But she is dead, and so all my projects go to the four winds. But I don't want them spoken of."

"You can depend upon me," said Leonard, dominated by the strong will of his friend. "But who could have"—

"I tell you I don't know," cried George restlessly. "How you do harp on that subject!"

"It is the subject of the hour," retorted Train.

"And a most unpleasant one. Here I shall have to remain until that police officer questions me."

"What story will you tell?"

"Any story but the one I told you," retorted Brendon.

"Well," said Leonard, after a pause, "you can rely upon me. I shall not say anything to get you into trouble."

Brendon laughed, but not pleasantly. "My good fellow, I have done nothing wrong. Even if my tale were told I could not be accused of having to do anything with this murder."

"Oh, I didn't mean that for one moment," protested Train uneasily.

"I know you didn't. Nevertheless if this police inspector knew what I told you he might get it into his stupid head that—well"—Brendon broke off abruptly—"I don't know what he mightn't think. However, I shall answer his questions as to my visit here and then go away."

"I'll go also," said Train, with a shudder. "I can't stop here after what has occurred. It's terrible. To think of that poor woman murdered! How lucky I locked my door last night!"

Brendon stopped in his walk and looked sharply at the young man. "Why did you lock your door?" he asked, surprised.

"Well, you see, after Mrs. Jersey came into the sitting room I didn't like to think of her prowling about. One is so helpless when one is asleep," and Train shuddered.

"Did you expect her to murder you?" asked Brendon derisively.

"I didn't expect anything," retorted Leonard, rather nettled. "But I didn't want her to come into my rooms, so I got out of bed and locked the sitting room door."

"Not your bedroom door?"

"No, the sitting room door. So both you and I were quite safe from her prying."

Brendon looked steadily at Train and gave a short laugh. "Yes. As you locked the sitting room door she could as little enter as you or I could go out. Leonard"—he paused and pinched his lip—"I do not think it will be wise for you to tell the inspector this."

"Why not? You and I are innocent."

"That goes without the saying," answered George sharply. "But the less we have to do with this unpleasant matter the better. I suppose we, in common with every one else here, will be called to give evidence at the inquest. Once that is done and Mrs. Jersey is safely buried I wash my hands of the whole affair."

Train shuddered. "So do I," said he. "I am the last man in the world to wish to pursue the subject. But who can be guilty? It must be some one in the house?"

"I suppose so," replied Brendon, "unless Mrs. Jersey had a visitor last night."

"She might have had," said Leonard. "When I locked the sitting room door, and that was about half past 11, I think, I heard the closing of the front door."

"The deuce you did!"

"Yes. I put my head out and listened to see if all was quiet. I distinctly heard the front door close."

"She must have had a visitor," said Brendon thoughtfully. "Yet as she alone could have let that visitor out, and as she must have been alive to do so, the visitor cannot be the assassin."

"The visitor might have killed her and then have closed the door himself."

"Himself? How do you know the visitor was a man? It might have been a woman. Besides, Miss Bull told me that the door was locked as usual, and that she took the key this morning to open it from Mrs. Jersey's pocket. No, Train, the person who killed Mrs. Jersey is in the house. But were I you I should say as little as possible to the inspector about this."

Leonard took this advice and when questioned simply stated that he had retired to bed at 11 and had heard nothing. Brendon made a similar statement, and Quex saw no reason to doubt their evidence.

He questioned all the boarders and all the servants, but could learn nothing likely to throw any light on the darkness which concealed the crime. No one had heard a noise in the night, no one had heard a scream, and it was conclusively proved that every one in the house was in bed by 11 o'clock, the majority, indeed, before that hour. Margery, who saw madame at the striking of that hour, was the last person to see her alive. Mrs. Jersey went to her own sitting room and there had been struck down.

"It was about 12 o'clock that she was stabbed," said the doctor after he had made his examination, "but I can go only by the condition of the body. I should say a little before or after 12. She was stabbed in the neck with a sharp instrument."

"With a knife?" said the inspector.

"No," rejoined the doctor decisively, "it was with a dagger—by a kind of stiletto. It was not by an ordinary knife that the wound was inflicted."

CHAPTER IV.

On account of its mystery the murder of Mrs. Jersey made a great sensation. The season was dull and there was nothing of interest in the newspapers, therefore the mysterious crime was a godsend to the reporters. From being a peaceful neighborhood Amelia square became quite lively.

The boarders found all this most unpleasant. This rude awakening from their sleepy life was too much for them, and the majority made preparations to leave as soon as the inquest was over. Until then they were under surveillance and could not leave the neighborhood, a restriction which in itself was sufficiently unpleasant. Brendon found it particularly so, as he was anxious to get back to his own rooms at Kensington and to his work. But even when he told Inspector Quex that he was merely a visitor and knew nothing about the matter that zealous officer objected to his going. Perhaps, had Brendon insisted, he might have gained his point, but he did not think it was worth while to make the fact of his stay in the Jersey mansion too public and therefore held his peace. He stopped with Leonard as usual, but the two men were not such friends as they had been.

Why Train had changed toward him Brendon could not understand, but ever since Leonard had been submitted to the ordeal of seeing the corpse he had been an altered man. From being gay he was now dull; instead of talking volubly, as he usually did, he was silent for hours at a stretch, and he appeared to shun Brendon's company. Fool as Train was, Brendon liked him sufficiently to resent his altered demeanor.

At the inquest nothing was discovered likely to elucidate the mystery. Not one scrap of evidence could be found to show that any one in the house could possibly be guilty. The boarders were all old, the servants all ordinary human beings, and no motive could be assigned to any one person for the committal of so cruel a crime. Moreover, the fact that the instrument used was a stiletto (and the doctor held to that) showed that the crime must have been committed by a foreigner. The jury brought in a verdict of murder against some person or persons unknown, and that was all that could be done toward the elucidation of the Amelia square crime.

"There's only one thing that wasn't spoken of," said Quex when he saw the boarders in the drawing room for the last time; "it seems that Mrs. Jersey always put out the light above the door at 11, or when the guests departed. On this occasion it burned all night, and as it shines behind crimson glass such a red window might be a guide to any one who did not know the house, but who had been given that sign whereby to distinguish it."

"I can explain that," said Granger, who was present. "When madame was bidding farewell to her guests she thought that some of them might be lost in the fog. Therefore she called out after them that she would let the light burn later, so that any might be able to retrace their steps."

"In that case," said Quex, rising to take his leave, "there is nothing more to be discussed. Who killed Mrs. Jersey or why she was killed will probably never be known. Ladies and gentlemen, good day," and the inspector bowed himself stiffly out of the room with the air of a man who washed his hands of the whole concern.

Profitable Inventions.

No one class of inventions has been so profitable to both the manufacturer and the inventor as musical instruments and appliances for same. Numerous improvements to the piano have been a source of large fortunes, and various devices are at present being continuously applied. Radically new instruments possessing real merit are the inventions needed in this line. The public is always ready to adopt almost anything new in both wind and stringed instruments.—Inventor.

STRIKERS' BLOOD FLOWS

Sosnovice Scene of Latest Bloody Russian Conflict.

Fifteen Or Fifty Were Killed and Thirty-Five Were Wounded—Rumors of Another Collision At the Nifka Mine in Which 150 Persons Were Killed—Another Governor Slain By the Strikers At Moscow.

Berlin, Feb. 10.—Press despatches from Sosonovice describe the bloody character of the conflict between the military and strikers at the Katherinen Iron Works. One correspondent telegraphs that 15 persons were killed and 35 wounded, while another gives the number killed at 50. The military fired eight volleys. Another collision occurred at Nifka mine, beyond Modrzeff, where it is rumored 150 persons were killed. A third collision occurred yesterday afternoon near Milevice, but this affair was bloodless. It was feared that numerous outbreaks would take place last night in various parts of the strike district of Russian Poland, since strikers were gathering in groups, gesticulating and talking in a threatening manner.

Another Governor Slain.

London, Feb. 10.—Special despatches from Warsaw, published in the morning papers here, report the death of Governor-General Tchertkoff of the Province of Warsaw, who was wounded in the encounter between the troops and the strikers.

It Looked Grave.

Lodz, Feb. 10.—At several establishments the strikers yesterday were paid three days wages as an advance, although it was claimed that nothing was legally due them. The managers of Heintzel's mill refused to pay anything, and the workmen threatened to wreck the place. The military prepared to fire, and for a moment the situation was grave, but the management yielded. Another manager refused payment, but at the point of a revolver was compelled to promise payment to-day. Employers are paying only as a method of expediency. There were serious disturbances yesterday at Pabianive. The troops fired on the workmen, killing one and wounding two.

More Trouble Due.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—The men in two more factories, one of which is a small concern, employing only 300 hands, ceased work yesterday, and more of the employes of the Putiloff Iron Works joined the strikers. The renewal of the strike, however, has not yet assumed a threatening form. At the Putiloff Works about one-third of the force are said to have quit work at the expiration of the night shift. Two battalions of troops are stationed at the works. Four other establishments are idle.

Gives Great Satisfaction.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—M. Witte's policy favoring the widest discussion of the reforms, is giving the greatest satisfaction. It is understood that Privy Councillor Kobeko will summon a conference of editors before proceeding to discuss the press reforms and the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg is convoking ministers of all creeds prior to the consideration by a special committee of the point in Emperor Nicholas' ukase dealing with religious tolerance. The liberality and energy displayed by M. Wittee in directing the whole question of reform has startled the reactionaries.

BEFORE THAW TAKES PLACE.

Oyama and Kuropatkin Will Clash Before Country Is a Bog.

Tokio, Feb. 10.—The impression prevails here that the impending battle between the armies of Field Marshal Oyama and Gen. Kuropatkin will occur before any material thaw takes place, which would convert the country into a slush bog and render the movement of guns, ammunition and stores impossible until the roads harden.

The Emperor and Empress of Japan have given 100,000 yen ($49,000) to the army and navy departments to purchase wines and delicacies for the celebration of the national holiday, which will take place on Saturday next, Feb. 11.

Vice-President Tokahasi of the Bank of Japan, will leave for America and England, via Vancouver, on Feb. 17, to hold preliminary conferences with financiers of those countries regarding terms of a fourth domestic loan. Minister of Finance Yoshiro is arranging to meet Japanese bankers and capitalists on Feb. 18, to discuss the rate of interest and time for which this loan will run.

To Replace Kuropatkin.

Berlin, Feb. 10.—The Lokal Anzeiger says it learns that Grand Duke Nicholaivitch will, in a few days, be sent to Manchuria, either to relieve General Kuropatkin or be viceroy, and that Kuropatkin will have to report to him. Prince Leopold of Prussia, it is added, will go with him. Emperor Nicholas, it is understood, telegraphed an invitation to Prince Leopold. The latter intended to go to Manchuria as an observer in September last, but the Siberian Railroad was then regarded as unsafe.

Year's Review of the War.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—Reviewing the twelve months of the war, the newspapers, with the single exception of The Nashashian, do not display discouragement, though they frankly record the almost unbroken series of reverses.

Lamsdorff Caused It.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—M. Souvorin, editor of The Novoe Vremya, in a pessimistic review of the first year of the war, in yesterday's issue of his paper, attributes the responsibility for the Russian disasters, firstly, to Foreign Minister Lamsdorff, former Viceroy Alexis and Baron Rosen, late Russian Minister to Japan, whom he accuses of drawing Russia into a terrible war by complete ignorance of the true state of affairs in the Far East. M. Souvorin declares the reason for the fall of Port Arthur before the complete exhaustion of its means of resistance was the death of Major-Gen Kondratenko, "who was the real hero of the defence of the fortress, and who filled both the civil and military men with courage, while Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel only manifested civil courage."

MINE SHAFTS SEALED.

Five Men Buried in Mine and Without Doubt Are Dead—Smothering the Fire.

Calumet, Mich., Feb. 10.—All shafts at the North Kearsage branch of the Osceola Consolidated Mining Company, where 10,000 pounds of dynamite exploded Wednesday, have been sealed at the surface. There have been no developments since the rescue party left the mine Wednesday. Not one body has been recovered, and at least five men are buried in the mine. They are dead beyond the slightest doubt. A drill boy, who was burned by escaping steam, is dying. The hospital at the mine is crowded with injured and the mine officials are besieged by relatives of the injured and missing miners. As all the openings into the mine are sealed, the fire will eventually be smothered, but when it will be possible to open any of the shafts cannot be said.

Broken Rail Causes Disaster.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 10.—Two men were killed, 24 persons were injured, eight passenger cars and engines are piled in the ditch, and a 200-foot bridge wrecked as the result of a broken rail on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, near Melbourne, yesterday.

Many Killed in Explosion.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 10.—A report has just reached this city that many persons were killed in an explosion at the Birmingham Powder Mills, five miles north of Birmingham. The shock of the explosion was felt for miles.

Nineteen Severely Injured.

New York, Feb. 10.—Nineteen persons were seriously injured in a rear-end collision between two trains on the Third avenue elevated road at the 149th street station in the Bronx last night. One of the injured will probably die and another's recovery is doubtful.

Rescues 20 From Steamer.

New York, Feb. 10.—After having collided with and sunk the Norwegian steamer Leif Eriksen, off Cape Romaine, Fla., in a dense fog on Feb. 4, the Standard Oil Company's steamer City of Everett, returned to this port yesterday, bringing twenty of the crew of the sunken steamer.

Aged Woman Burned.

Otterville, Feb. 10.—A terrible accident happened to Mrs. Robert Tichbourne of this village about five o'clock yesterday afternoon, which will likely cause her death. She was lighting a fire with coal oil when her clothing became ignited, burning her terribly. Mrs. Tichbourne is over 70 years of age.

The Sixth Victim.

Langton, Feb. 10.—John Gee, another victim of the terrible saw mill explosion a few weeks ago, has succumbed to his injuries. This makes a total of six killed in this disaster. Mr. Gee was highly respected. He leaves a widow and family.

Hockey Player Killed.

Pembroke, Feb. 10.—During a hockey match here last night between Mackie & Ryan and Delahay & Company Robert Fraser, aged 16, son of Mr. Robert Fraser, fell on the ice, breaking his neck. He died instantly.

Dr. Heggie's Narrow Escape.

Brampton, Feb. 10.—About one o'clock yesterday morning The Brampton Conservator printing office was pretty severely scorched. The inside woodwork was entirely burned, and the type badly pied, but the presses were not seriously damaged. The fire originated under the stairway, and Dr. D. L. Heggie, who was trying to locate the fire, fell through the burnt stairway into the blaze. How he escaped being burned to death is miraculous. The loss will be probably $3,000; fully insured.

London In King James' Time.

King James I., in a letter to the lord mayor of London wrote as follows: "You will see to two things—that is to say, to the great devils and the little devils. By the great ones I mean the waggons, which, when they meet the coaches of the gentry, refuse to give way and yield as due. The little devils are the apprentices, who on two days of the year, which prove fatal to them, Shrove Tuesday and the 1st of May, are so riotous and outrageous that in a body three or four score thousand strong they go committing excesses in every direction, killing human beings and demolishing houses."

CHURCHES GET TOGETHER.

Presbyterian Bodies in India United Into One Assembly.

New York, Feb. 10.—Information has been received by the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church in this city that the Presbyterian Churches in India have been united into one general assembly, after a series of meetings at Allahabad. The News comes from Principal A. H. Ewing of the Allahabad Christian College. The churches included are:

The Church of Scotland, United Free Church of Scotland, Presbyterian Church of Ireland, Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, Reformed (Dutch) Church of America, and Presbyterian Church of Canada.

They have 33 Presbyteries and 332 churches, and a total community of 73,983.

This is said to be the first occasion in which churches of America and Europe have been united.

Snow Stops Legislatures.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—A despatch from Charlottetown states that the storm there was so severe Wednesday that all trains and boats were hung up. As a result the members of the Legislature were unable to reach the capital, and as there was not a quorum here for the opening of the session, it had to be adjourned for a week.

Lieut.-Governor MacKinnon reached the capital in time by trudging in on snowshoes.

The storm also delayed the opening of the Nova Scotia Legislature, which was to have been opened yesterday afternoon. So many members were snowbound that the opening was postponed till to-day.

Hold Elections First.

London, Feb. 10.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Spencer, Liberal leader in the House of Lords, in a letter to Gorrie Grant, the Liberal member for Rugby, says no conference can settle the fiscal question until the country has pronounced its opinion on it. It should be impressed on all classes that a tariff with low duties, as now proposed, admits the principle of protection. When once that is admitted, pressure, which will be irresistible, will force up low duties to high ones. Then every article of food and clothing, every article necessary in building, agriculture and manufacture, will be enhanced in price.

This Hits Canada Also.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—The Senate Committee on Commerce yesterday authorized a favorable report on the Elkins Bill, providing for the amendment of the laws admitting foreign built vessels to American registry. The bill provides that foreign vessels wrecked on the American coast shall not be admitted to American registry unless repairs have been made in American shipyards, equal to three-fourths of the value of the vessel.

Separate Church and State.

Paris, Feb 10.—The Government's new bill, providing for the separation of church and State, was presented in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday amid applause, and was referred to a committee. The bill does not differ materially from the project of ex-Premier Combes.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A CURE FOR ALL.

Not a Patent Cure-all, For a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure for Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, seem to think their medicines will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely sure to cure every dyspeptic, and he need look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is, that for indigestion and various stomach troubles Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no farther than this, and any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it that the facts will not fully sustain.

It is a modern discovery, composed of harmless vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. It rests the overworked organ and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves, creating a healthy appetite, giving refreshing sleep and the blessings which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food and take these Tablets at each meal, thus assisting and resting the stomach, which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the Tablets will be no longer required.

Nervous Dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per package.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Some Sound Advice.

To the Sporting Editor of the Review

Sir—I noticed a letter a few evenings ago over the signature of ex-Lindsayite taking exception to the Lindsay Post's reports of the hockey games between our boys and the team of that town, especially the remarks made in speaking of Bill Crowley. Now, Mr. Editor, I have been connected with sports for twenty years or more and a more gentlemanly sport both on and off the field, I never met than the same Bill. The Lindsay Post seems to suffer from an attack of Crowleyitis every time he appears in their midst. On the occasion of the visit of the T. A.S. lacrosse team they had the Chief of Police posted to arrest him on sight, and to show how well they knew Bill when they see him they pointed out the wrong man. When the chief rushed on the field he arrested Tom Corbett, remarking at the same time, "I have been laying for you all day, Crowley." At the time Bill was at the other end of the field playing the game of his life. I understand this same gentleman paid our boys a visit before the last game of hockey in Lindsay and proceeded to give some fatherly advice to the boys. I also understand he got a warm reception which he richly deserved. Now, Mr. Editor, this kind of childishness makes me simply ashamed of the old town. If they cannot play the game and take their bumps like men, for Heaven's sake turn in and play ping pong or marbles. Yours, etc.

LINDSAY OLD BOY.

Orangeville Defaults.

Orangeville notified Secretary W. A. Hewitt last night that they would not play the return game with Markham tonight. Markham thus wins the round and will meet the locals here in the third round on Tuesday night.

Marlbores Lost.

Queen's University trimmed the Marlbores at Kingston last night by 9 to 2. The champions had their full line-up on, with the exception of Winchester.

Third Round Games.

Last night's victory makes Peterborough champions of No. 1 and No. 2 districts and they will meet the winner of No. 3 and No. 4, which will probably be Markham, here on Tuesday night in the third round. The locals should have no trouble in doing up Markham as the latter were defeated at Lindsay early in the season by 11—0. The locals will go to Markham on Friday night.

Doing Well.

Well, the boys have reached the third round and are one of the last six teams left in the running. A win over Markham will leave them in with the last three. To win the championship the locals will have to defeat Markham, either Berlin or Woodstock and Victoria Harbor.

T.A.S. for Cobourg.

The T.A.S. team left this morning for Cobourg where they will meet Campbellford in a sudden death game to decide the championship of No. 2 district of the Trent Valley League. Leo Brown, of Port Hope will referee. The Abstainers are in the best of shape and should win without much trouble. A number of rooters accompanied them, including the Young Nationals who will stop off at Port Hope long enough to do up the Trinity College School juniors.

The T.A.S. team will be as follows—

Goal—Clasey.
Point—Meagher, capt.
Cover point—Quigley.
Rover—Deforge.
Centre—T. McGrath.
Right Wing—Rowe
Left wing—F McGrath.
Spare—Kenneally

The Young Nationals will line up thus—

Goal—L Giroux.
Point—Conroy.
Cover point—Pentland, capt.
Rover—Coughlin.
Centre—Nicnell.
Right wing—Gorman.

Fair's Didn't Score.

Crossman's Counter Hoppers administered a scientific trimming to Fair's Golden Lions last evening at the Brock-st. rink. The Hoppers landed six goals in the first half and four in second. The Lions failed to locate the nets, leaving the final score 10—0.

The teams were as follows—

McWilliams		White

To begin the work of caring for consumptives I would not do more than recommend a central administration building, containing dining room, offices, kitchen and other rooms for staff, with possibly two wings having broad piazzas; these wings could be used possibly for the advanced cases, while tents similar to those used in the Adirondacs, Gravenhurst, and other American Sanatoria, could be constructed.

Regarding financial assistance from the Provincial Government, I would state that owing to the efforts of the Hon. J. R. Stratton, when head of the Department, an act was passed by the Legislature whereby municipalities or joint municipalities on receiving the approval of the Provincial Board of Health of their plans are granted an aid in the purchase of land and erection of buildings, a sum not exceeding $4000, and thereafter an annual allowance of $1.50 per week per patient. It is quite apparent, however, that the Legislature for once went ahead of public opinion, for unfortunately no municipal authority has as yet availed itself of the offer.

SOME QUESTIONS.

Mr. Edwards enquired whether, inasmuch as incipient cases were mostly dealt with at Gravenhurst, it would be advisable for the Peterborough Sanitarium taking up more advanced cases. Dr. Hodgetts replied that this depended largely on the number to be dealt with. He advised beginning with incipient cases and other work could be taken on later if it was seen fit. He hoped the time was not far distant when there would be specific notification of all tuberculosis cases.

THE EPENSE.

Dr. McNulty upon being asked to express his views, said he was in hearty sympathy with the object. It would require a great deal of perseverance and energy on the part of those who undertook the work. The financial side was, of course, the most serious. There were more public spirited citizens in England than in Canada to enlist their assistance in advancing this kind of work.

In reply to Dr. Torrance, Dr. Hodgetts pointed out that the Provincial Government would grant up to $4,000 towards the cost of any building erected for the purpose described, or as Mr. Bennet put it—one-fifth of the total cost of any structure. Dr. Hodgetts expressed the opinion that such a building as could reasonably be expected to answer the purpose for this neighborhood would cost from $10,000 to $15,000. The style of building and the price paid for labor were important considerations.

HILLIARD PROPERTY.

Mr. E. B. Edwards pointed out that the Hilliard property was in mind as a site for the sanitarium, and a building at present thereon had been suggested as suitable for the purpose with some alterations, and wings could be built adjoining. It was suggested that a staff such as at present at the hospital, with a lady superintendent, might have charge, and considerable expense thereby being rendered unnecessary. It might be thought advisable to use tents holding two, for those patients who were of able circumstances, while a number of tents holding four each might also be obtained. The respective costs of these were $100 and $125. The larger ones, he considered would be satisfactory for cases in the initial stages, while houses for two would be available for those more able to pay. The opinion was expressed that a suitable central building could be fitted up for about $2,500 if the principle was adopted of confining operations to the county of Peterborough alone. Dr. Hodgetts had sketched out the work on a larger scale, but Mr. Edwards expressed the opinion that action should not be deferred until other adjacent counties saw fit to co-operate. The way to get sufficient money had not yet been worked out. It was necessary first to discover whether there was absolute necessity for undertaking such an attack upon the disease in Peterborough county. In his own opinion, Mr. Edwards held that the more energetically it was attacked the better.

FIGURING ON EXPENSE.

Mr. Bennet asked medical men to express opinions as to whether such an institution is necessary here. Peterborough was very happily situated as far as site for a building was concerned, and he expressed the opinion that the house on the Hilliard farm might be utilised. It would be possible, he thought, to accommodate Peterborough patients at $5 a week, and give them all that was necessary, the best of food and fresh air—in fact everything necessary to a sanatarium. Peterborough was advantageously situated as far as climatic conditions were concerned. If the sanitarium could get hold of cases before they reached the stage where they had to give up work, and in some cases were approaching the last stages, the effect would be very beneficial. The maintenance was the all important point, and Mr. Bennet figured that it would be possible to operate on $5 a week from patients who were able to pay it. He also took into consideration the $1.50 per week per patient from the Provincial Government. The salaries for staff might cost about $1,100 a year.

GREAT NECESSITY.

Dr. Halliday observed that there was no question as to the necessity for the institution. He considered that Dr. Hodgetts' statistics were quite within bounds. The great difficulty in starting such an institution was the expense. Five dollars per week might meet the outlay as to the necessaries of life, but he questioned as to whether it would also be sufficient for expenses. Dr. Halliday expressed the opinion that an infectious disease hospital might also be placed on the Hilliard farm. It might be well to start with incipient cases, but medical men know that nearly every case has reached an advanced stage before coming under their care, and it would seem that there is more necessity for a place where people in advanced stages could spend their last moments properly cared for and isolated. It is a duty we owe to those not able to provide the means for getting the necessaries of life in their last moments, said Dr. Halliday.

THE HILLIARD HOUSE.

Dr. Boucher agreed with this opinion. The mortality from all other diseases did not come within 500 of the mortality from consumption alone, and it was desirable to have some place where cases might be isolated. He pointed out that the convention of Health Board representatives held recently at St. Louis, had considered the best way of treating tuberculosis, and the concensus of opinion was that municipal sanatoria should be strongly advocated all over the country, and they preferred the cottage hospital plan to any other. In regard to moving the Hilliard house and making it suitable, he doubted very much if this plan would prove satisfactory. The house was very old, the rooms small, the ceilings low and it was only a storey and a half high. A considerable amount of money would be needed to put it in condition, although the site was an admirable one, having a southerly and easterly aspect. The essential thing in the treatment of consumption was plenty of air and light, and dryness. Shacks with wooden roofs and canvass wall might be used here in connection with the central building.

Mr. Eyres expressed the opinion that something should be done to convince the people of the necessity for such a building. All of the facts should be laid before the people, and money being the great necessity, they could vote on the question intelligently.

ANOTHER SUGGESTION.

Dr. Gray said his experience was that consumption would never be stamped out, unless those having the disease were separated from healthy people. He had seen it go straight through families one after another. He did not believe the disease was hereditary. The small hospitals did very well in their way, but a sanitarium to accommodate 1,000 could be maintained at about one-quarter the cost of the smaller ones answering the same purpose. New Ontario was a grand country for a sanitarium. The Hilliard property had been purchased for $10,000, but that amount would purchase four or five township in New Ontario, and he thought the Government should be memorialised to set apart 10 townships for sanitarium purposes. It should be a district where there is plenty of running water. Those in incipient stages might clear the land, and thus kill two birds with one stone. Lots of boats was also conducive to their health, and the burning of lime might form a part of effective treatment. One objection to a local sanitarium is hat the cases cannot be isolated. Place them in a colony and you have them all right. Until that can be done the town or county should build a sanitarium on a small scale. The new Government will have a thousand and one things to look after before they think of the public health. Some are in favor of endowing beds in Muskoka hospital. Why not send them a little further into the north country, outside of civilization and keep them there? Dr. Gray advised that no effort be made to patch up the old Hilliard building. A new one would be cheaper in the long run. The consumptive, above all things, wants to have a building well ventilated. In the north country they could build log cabins for themselves.

In reply to Dr. Torrance, Dr. Halliday expressed the opinion that a sanitarium and infectious hospital could be both built on the Hilliard farm and be placed under the same supervision, but not with the same attendants. In answer to a question by Mr. Bennet, he stated that consumption was conveyed largely by the sputum, and if the patients were instructed to have with them small vessels containing an antiseptic, in which to place the sputum to be afterwards carefully disposed of, one of the great dangers might be dealt with effectively. The breath and evacuations were also sources of infection.

RESOLUTION PASSED.

Mr. Dennistoun pointed out to the meeting that a committee was formed a short time ago to procure subscriptions for the purpose of endowing a bed or several beds in the Sanatarium at Muskoka. Those who formed that committee thought it would be well to have a meeting of representative citizens called to discuss the whole question. It seemed to him that the meeting recognised that something of the kind proposed was necessary, and the next step would be to appoint somebody to take the necessary step. If there was an organised association with regularly appointed officers and members they would take up the question of ways and means. He moved that an Association to be known as the Sanitorium Association be now formed.

Mr Eyres seconded the motion, and it was carried.

PROVINCIAL ASSOCIATION.

Mr. Bennet pointed out that the committee referred to by Mr. Dennistoun had forwarded $214.00, and it required about $90 more to endow one bed. It was thought that better use could be made of such an amount by having a building in the municipality. There was an Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, which was disseminating literature and doing other educational work. By amalgamation with this organization the same purpose might be answered.

Dr. Hodgetts expressed the opinion that an Association could be formed on the lines of the resolution, or there might by affiliation with the Provincial Association referred to.

H. C. McLEOD,
General Manager.

The Town Clerk had told him that there were 28 deaths in Peterborough last year from tuberculosis. Looking at it from an economic point of view, each one of these carried away in the prime of life, represented a loss of $15,000, or altogether about $50,000.

It was suggested that Rev. Dr. Moore, representing the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, might be requested to speak here in the near future.

Mr. G. M. Roger said he was much disposed to support the resolution. The sum of $300 was a considerable amount to send out to Gravenhurst, which was somewhat remote from the population of this municipality. The proposed organization might accomplish the erection of a sanitarium without being a burden on the municipality and he did not see why it should not be undertaken without asking much of a contribution from that source. On the other hand, the county and town might give a certain amount toward the treatment of needy people in the institution who came from within their borders.

The resolution being carried, the officers above given were elected. They will consider the question of amalgamation with the Provincial Association, together with other matters of importance looking to the object in view.

Ald. Johnston, upon being asked for an expression of opinion, stated that he was heartily in sympathy with the movement.

The next meeting will be held on the call of the President.

TOURIST CAR BADLY DAMAGED

Peculiar Accident Occurs at the C. P. R. Station.

SUDDEN ALARM OF FIRE

Supposed That Coal Oil Lamp Exploded—Fire Brigade Saves Car From Total Destruction.

A peculiar accident occurred at the C.P.R. station last night, by which the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had one of their second class tourist cars almost completely gutted.

When the midnight express from Toronto pulled into the station, the second class coach, which was immediately behind the baggage car, was noticed to be on fire, and smoke was pouring from the roof. A brakeman was sent back to investigate and found that the compartment at one end of the car was in flames. The few passengers seemed unaware of this, but got out in plenty of time.

The train crew tried to extinguish the fire, but it spread rapidly, and soon got beyond their control. The brigade was then sent for and soon checked the fire, although not before it had done much damage to the car, which was uncoupled and run on a siding. The car next to it caught fire also, but a few buckets of water soon had it under control. It was not damaged enough to prevent its being taken on with the express, which left the station over an hour late.

The damaged car is almost ruined. One end of the conveyance is completely gutted, the windows all broken and the seats and cushions destroyed, and the rest of the car is also badly scorched, the roof especially. The loss is estimated at $600.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but from the rapidity with which the flames spread, it is supposed that an oil lamp at the end of the car exploded. It must have occurred only a short distance from the station, as it was not noticed until the express reached here. The damaged car will be sent back to Toronto Junction for repairs.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

The Shop Windows Decorated With Various Caricatures.

St. Valentine's day—a day sacred to St. Valentine—falls on Tuesday next, Feb. 14th, and the custom of sending love tokens through the mails will again be in vogue.

The practice is, however, declining and the postmaster reports that there is very little, if any, increase in the mail delivery for a day which was once famous for the extra work it gave the employees. Even the shop windows on George-st. are not decked out as in days gone by, all reminding us that the worship of the Ancient Saint is now faint hearted.

No longer, as in Charles Lamb's day, does the postman groan beneath the weight of a load of delicate embarrassments not his own. The sentimental valentine shrinks in the background, the most conspicuous places being taken by pictures of a libellous character, accompanied by scurrilous verses. As a rule, these refer to the occupation of the victim, it being regarded as a matter of reproach and discredit to him that he should be a tailor, or a laborer, or follow any other honest calling. On the question of unionism the satirists are impartial, the union man and the non-unionist being equally held up to scorn. The effects of a recent moral wave are apparent in a caricature of a plugger.

WILL BE BURIED HERE

Body of Late Mrs. Eaton Expected to Arrive From West on Monday.

It is expected that the body of the late Mrs. W. A. Eaton, who died at Oxbow, Assa., a few weeks ago, will arrive here on Monday's midnight train and the funeral will be held on the following Tuesday to Keene.

Referring to the death of the late Mrs. Eaton, the Oxbow Herald of the 28th of January says—

She was of a cheerful and kind disposition, was a faithful and indulgent wife and a good and true neighbor, who numbered her friends by the score.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the Presbyterian church to the Oxbow cemetery, the Rev. T. R. Scott, assisted by the Rev. J. G. Elliott, officiating. The body was placed in the new vault, pending future arrangements for its final interment, in the presence of a large concourse of people. The pall-bearers were T. W. Baird, E. Crossley, A. Dunbar, Dr. J. H. Tripp, M. D. Weir and Thos. Wigmore.

Besides a grief-stricken husband and a nine-months old baby daughter, the deceased leaves as mourners two brothers, who live near Gleichen, Alta., her step-mother, Mrs. Miller, who was in attendance at the funeral, and four sisters in the east. Those present from a distance at the last sad rites were J. H. Cruickshank, of Calgary, Alta., an uncle; Mrs. T. Barrie, Melita, and John F. Anderson, Regina, a friend of the family.

LARGE AUDIENCE DELIGHTED

Miss H. M. Cahill Read Able Paper on Joan of Arc.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Ladies' Literary Association of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held last evening, when an able essay on "Joan of Arc" was read by Miss H. M. Cahill.

Miss Cahill introduced her subject by giving a clear and concise sketch of the events that brought about the dark and fermenting storms that had been gathering over France for many years—how France had become a province of England; how the battle of Agincourt had but re-opened the wounds of France; the great importance of the taking of Orleans by the French was cleverly dealt with.

Miss Cahill carried her audience in imagination to the village of Domremy, on the marshes of Lorraine in France, where the heroine of her sketch was born in 1412. In beautiful language she described the early childhood of this noblest of girls; the awning of Christian sanctity that spread over her childhood home, the sweet, saintly demeanor and angelic gentleness of this marvellous peasant girl. It is needless to wonder that with such a prayerful heart she should see angelic visions and hear angelic voices, which forever whispered to her the duty of delivering France. After five years of inward struggles she left her home forever, to present herself at the Dauphin's Court.

Her teaching the Dauphin to blush at the idea of giving up the struggle, her entry into Orleans, her final taking of the city, her engineering skill unprecedented in Europe, her crowning of the Dauphin at Rheims, her deep sympathy for her own soldiers and pity for the suffering enemy were most beautifully portrayed.

The crowning excellence of Miss Cahill's essay was her attractive picture of Joan's capture by the Burgundians, her trial for sorcery, her cruel martyrdom and most edifying death.

The artistic excellence of Miss Cahill's paper brought forth favorable comments from her audience.

Miss Fanny Holmes presided at the meeting and presented the following programme.

PEN POINTS.

The new Whitney ministry is a plain business men's cabinet.

The faction fight among the Liberals of Quebec goes merrily along.

Whitney's majority in the Province, according to the official figures, is 24,055—nearly five times as much as in the contest of 1902.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt at the Toronto demonstration said that the new Cabinet was "strong enough to keep out every grafter and healer," and he is right. Individuals of that ilk have had altogether too long an innings, and it is up for them.

Nomination day in the constituencies where representation has been rendered vacant by reason of the acceptance of office by Ministers, will take place on Tuesday, February 21. It is not likely there will be an opposition offered. The elections will take place in Dundas, South Toronto, East Toronto, South Perth, South Lanark, West Lambton and North Essex.

Grit papers are threatening to to chop off the heads of federal officials if the Witney government decapitates Grit partisans. This is a silly threat, inasmuch as there are far more provincial officials in Ontario than federal, and if it comes to a fight to the finish the Grit officials in Ontario would get the worst of it. However, the Grit papers need not worry their heads about the matter; offensive partisans in Ontario will get their deserts, regardless of fear or favor.

At the Victoria County Council it was decided to petition the Legislative Assembly of the Province, praying that they will so amend the Municipal Act that Municipal Councils may have the power, where bonuses are granted for the purpose of erecting wire fences on the principal or leading roads, to make the removal of all the fences causing snow blockades on the leading highways, compulsory, same to be replaced by wire fences.

There is no seed of value to mankind that will sprout so quickly and bear fruit so soon as the seed of advertising; but to accomplish the best results it must be planted in fertile soil, and where it will get plenty of the sunshine of publicity. The time to sow is all the time, and the harvest may be gathered the year round. There is no more productive ground for this kind of agriculture than the columns of a good home newspaper.

Mr. Whitney showed that he was a man of large calibre and of broad view when he opposed any excessive demonstration in honor of his splendid victory. If ever a man might have been pardoned for exuberant rejoicing it was Mr. Whitney. After years of bitter opposition and years of discouraging hardship Mr. Whitney won a remarkable triumph, yet in the flush of his success he had sufficient self-restraint and broadmindedness to take it quietly and temperately realizing the responsibility of the confidence placed in him by Ontario. Mr. Whitney is a man of decided character and firm convictions so that his attitude is all the more creditable to him.

The returns show that Canada has on her shipping registry 2,466 steamers. One of these is between 4,000 and 5,000 tons register, four are between 3,000 and 4,000 tons, five between 2,500 and 3,000 tons; seven between 2,000 and 2,500 tons and forty-seven between 1,000 and 2,000 tons. 2,085 or over 84 per cent. range from under 10 tons gross to 200 tons and of these 2,085, 543 are under 10 tons and 964 between 10 and 50 tons. Of the steamers on our registry 2,081 were built in Canada, 275 in the United States and 75 in Great Britain. The remaining 35 were built in different places or the record is wanting. The United States built vessels on our registry are mostly pleasure boats of less than ten tons gross. The larger steamers are chiefly British built.

Why a Torpid Liver Makes the Temper Bad

The Real Cause of Indigestion, Biliousness and Constipation Due to Inactivity of the Liver—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills a Great Liver Regulator.

"Oh, it's his liver is bad," you say when you find a person cross and disagreeable without apparent cause.

This is a common saying which is founded on scientific facts.

The liver, when in health, filters bile from the blood—where it is poison—and pours it into the intestines—where it is necessary to digestion and a proper working of the bowels.

Once the liver becomes torpid and sluggish in action the "bile poison" is left in the blood, where it causes biliousness, jaundice and headache.

The flow of bile to the intestines being cut off, the food is delayed in the canal, and fermentation instead of digestion takes place.

The result is sour stomach, flatulency, feelings of weight and oppression, smothering sensations in the chest, dizziness, loss of appetite, drowsiness after meals, despondency and bad temper.

Symptoms:

Coated Tongue.
Headache and Indigestion
Sour Stomach.
Muddy Complexion.
Wind in the Stomach.
Feelings of Weight and Oppression.
Smothering Sensations in the Chest.
Pains Under Left Shoulder Blade.
Drowsiness After Meals.
Despondency, Bad Temper
Biliousness, Constipation.

By setting the liver right Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively overcome these symptoms and bring about a thorough and lasting cure.

It is a common mistake to dose the stomach and overlook the liver—the real cause of such troubles.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are made to act directly on the liver because the liver really controls the digestive organs as well as influences the kidneys and bowels.

By the use of this great family medicine you cleanse and purify the organs of digestion and excretion, and ensure a natural, healthful working of these organs.

Make a test of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and you will find a cure for indigestion, biliousness and constipation and remove the cause of much ill-temper and unhappiness of life.

There is some discussion over a proposal to increase the salaries of the Ontario Premier to $10,000, and of other ministers to $8,000. The Conservatives will probably be afraid to take the initiative, for the present at least, as it might have the appearance of a salary grab, and it is suggested that the proposal should come from the Opposition. But the Opposition may think, in view of the size of Mr. Whitney's majority, that there is no great necessity for haste. It is a question that should be considered altogether apart from party politics. If, as is claimed, the salaries are not sufficient to enable the recipients to live respectably, and make the necessary provision for old age, there should be no hesitation about making the increase. Ontario can afford to pay, and the people of Ontario will not begrudge the money. It is said that after twenty years of ministerial service Hon. G. W. Ross goes out of office empty of pocket, and compelled to face the problem of making a living for the remainder of his days. The people of Ontario have no right to expect, and do not expect, any man to sacrifice all his personal interests to the public service. It is probably the truth that every man whose name has been associated in a large way with the political life of Canada, has left the public service comparatively poor. That there are and have been politicians who have made a good thing of politics merely emphasises the fact that the big men as a rule have grown poor instead of rich. This should not be.—Woodstock Express. (Independent.)

WILL GRANT NO LEASES

Chief Paudash Receives an Assurance—Families Receive Annuities.

Chief Paudash, of Hiawatha, was in town yesterday, and stated that he had authoritative assurance that no leases of parts of Rice Lake for hunting and fishing purposes would be granted to private parties by the Government.

With regard to the money which came to certain families from the Department of Indian affairs recently, Chief Paudash stated that the families were entitled to it under the annuity system. They had not collected it for some years, preferring rather to have it come in large sums than in quarterly dribbles.

Chief Paudash expects to go to Ottawa very shortly with a request that reserves be made of certain valuable rice beds on the lake.

SEPTIC TANK FOR WARD FIVE

Some Interesting Information as to Method of Operating.

ECONOMICAL SEWAGE SYSTEM

Claimed Also to be the Most Natural, Most Scientific and Simple System in Use To-day—Will Not Freeze in Winter.

The proposal to erect a septic tank in Ward Five, as a means of disposing of sewage gives considerable local interest to an article by a writer in the Hardware and Metal Journal for January. A few extracts are reproduced—

"In the matter of public sanitation, the question of disposing of sewage in small towns and villages, as well as in less populated districts, where by reason of its great cost, a general system of sewerage is impossible, is daily becoming of greater importance, and as the title of my paper would indicate, that is the phase fo the question with which I propose to deal. The system to which I intend to refer is known as the septic tank system, and I believe that nearly all who have studied it are agreed that it is at once the most natural, most scientific, simple and economical system in use today, and speaking from a personal knowledge of scores of the systems, I am in a position to say that it is worthy of all the good things that are said about it.

A PURIFYING AGENT.

It is a matter of common knowledge that living earth, or top soil, is a powerful purifying agent, but comparatively few are aware that the presence in it of countless numbers of bacteria or microbes, is alone responsible for the chemical changes brought about in waste matter placed beneath its surface, and that these bacteria, not only through their action remove and destroy the dangerous properties of such waste matter, but actually convert them into plant food, which, being taken up by the vegetation is again consumed for the sustenance of life. Pasteur divided these microbes into two classes, viz., Anerobes, or those which lived apart from air, or derived their oxygen from decaying compounds, and aerobes, or those which require plenty of fresh air for their development, and as both classes are considered necessary for the complete reduction of waste matter, it will be seen that if sewage is placed too deep in the earth as for instance in a cesspool, where, owing to the absence of air, the necessary aerobic bacteria cannot exist; it may pass down deeper in a putrid state, and, finding its way into the water supply, not unfrequently results in an outbreak of typhoid fever or some intestinal disease.

RESULT OF WORK OF MICROBES.

The two classes of microbes referred to have properties somewhat differing from each other, but the net result of their work under proper conditions is the breaking down of the solid matter in the sewage, the disintegrating of its constituents and the conversion of the whole into liquids and gases, in which form it leaves the septic tank, the former to be distributed under the surface of the earth, where, by reason of its contact with free oxygen, bacterial life is most active, there to be still further reduced and finally converted into nitrates, which are readily taken up by the vegetation on the surface, and the latter passing up high into the air, as hereinafter described.

Briefly, the operation of the system is as follows—

The sewage from the building enters through a soil pipe, filling a compartment in which all solid matter is retained until it is reduced by the contained bacteria which multiply and develop very rapidly. In a liquid form it is allowed to enter a second compartment through an overflow, which is turned down because of the presence of the bulk of the organic matter in suspension on or near the surface.

When the liquid has risen in the second compartment to the height at which the unlocking float on the valve has been set, the valve automatically opens, and discharges the contents of that department, be it fifty or a thousand gallons, into a system of field tiles, through which it percolates into the surrounding earth, to be taken care of by nature.

As the tank takes from twelve to twenty-four hours to fill, it will be observed that there will be an abundance of time in which the water in the tiles may soak away before it again discharges.

To prevent the gases of decomposition escaping through other than the proper channel the tank must be covered first with rough plank, and then with five or six inches of earth, which in turn, if desired, may be sodded over.

In answer to a question which arises in the minds of most people who have given consideration to the system, I may say that it will not freeze in winter, even when the frost penetrates the ground for several feet everywhere except where the tiles are laid, and, as may be expected, splendid results may be obtained in vegetables or flowers if the tiles are laid under a garden.

In conclusion I would simply refer to a few of the principal points which should be kept in mind in constructing such a system, viz.—

Have the tank covered with a few inches of earth, to prevent the escape of gases, except through the soil pipe stack. See that the valve discharges at least once before the tank is covered in. See that no trap is placed on the main soil to prevent the free passage of air across the tank, and up to the roof, and that the necessary space for the air is left in the top of the centre partition, and, finally, take care that no disinfectants or chemicals of any kind are allowed to enter the tank, if the life of the bacteria, upon which the system is dependent for its success, are to be preserved."

—Constable Lee, of Orillia, went to a house to make an inventory of some furniture that was under seizure. The man was away, but his wife grabbed the officer by the whiskers and proceeded to haul him outdoors. The officer choked her and they both fell to the floor, and fought for some time. The constable left with wrecked whiskers, torn coat, and scratched face, but without the list of furniture. He put the woman in the police court on a charge of assault.

DEPRESSION IN LUMBER TRADE

Uncertainty Characterized the Market During 1904

HOW EXPORT TRADE FELL OFF

142,000,000 Feet Less Than in 1903—London Market Light—The Commercial Inactivity in England and Presidential Election Were the Causes.

The Canadian lumber industry did not have a prosperous year in 1904, according to the annual review contained in the February number of the Canadian Lumberman. This authority says:—

"Uncertainty characterized the lumber trade of Canada during the year 1904. Confidence was lacking on all sides, and there was a strong inclination towards conservatism.

"The record, therefore, is unfavorable with the previous year. The two most important influences were the commercial depression in Great Britain, which was more severe in lumber than in many other commodities, and the Presidential election in the United States.

"Lumber prices in the British market declined steadily during the first six months of the year, and shippers who had contracted for stock at the higher prices ruling in the winter of 1903-4 were face to face with very small profits and in some instances actual loss. The result was an early decision to restrict shipments as far as possible, which action was responsible for a partial recovery in the British market towards the close of the year. The import by the United Kingdom from all countries was 9,308,278 loads, as compared with 10,108,564 loads in 1903. The London import was exceptionally light, being more than 3,000,000 pieces less than in the previous year.

ALL OWING TO ELECTION.

"The Presidential election ceased to be a market influence early in the fall, when the return of the Republican party to power was almost unanimously conceded. But during the summer months the lumber in the United States reached a low point, and the manufacturers, in order to preserve their home market, exported largely to Canada. This competition was felt keenly in the west, as in many instances the imported lumber was sold below the cost of production. The exports from the State of Washington are an indication of the extent to which American lumber was shipped into this country. The shipments of lumber via the Canadian Pacific Railway were 1,962 cars of lumber, as compared with 682 cars in 1903 and 823 cars in 1902. Calculating on 10,000 feet to the car, the Canadian Pacific Railway brought into Canada last year from Washington alone 19,620,000 feet of lumber.

"The export trade of the year shows a considerable decline, the shipments from Montreal and other St. Lawrence ports being 142,000,000 feet less than in 1903. New Brunswick is responsible for a falling off of 30,000,000 feet, and British Columbia for approximately 20,000,000 feet."

WAS DISCUSSED IN THE HOUSE

Sir Wilfrid Refers to Political Crisis in Quebec.

GOVERNMENT TAKES NO PART

Hon. G. E. Foster Said That Sir Wilfrid's Utterance was Neither Skilful Nor Frank—Haggart Talks on Conservative Trouble of 1896.

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—Quebec's political crisis, with its Federal ramifications, was brought to the attention of the House by F. D. Monk and Dr. Leonard of Laval yesterday afternoon. Dr. Leonard of Laval asked if Mr. Brodeur had been sent to Quebec as Sir Wilfrid's special emissary.

Sir Wilfrid said he regretted being unable to gratify the very fastidious curiosity of the hon. member. It was true there was a political crisis at Quebec, as there had been crisises before and would be again. But the Government of Canada was taking no part in the crisis, and no part would be taken by it. If the Minister of Inland Revenue went to Quebec, he went as Mr. Brodeur and not as a member of the Government.

Mr. Foster observed that Sir Wilfrid had made neither a long statement nor a strong statement, nor one that could be characterized as either frank or skilful. The fact is, he said, that Sir Wilfrid was making common cause with Mr Parent, as he once before did with Mr. Mercier when they each agreed to deliver a majority to the other, for a consideration.

Sir Wilfrid denied that he had sent Mr. Broduer to Quebec, or had given Mr. Brodeur any instructions, certainly none involving money considerations, as hinted at by Mr. Foster. There had been dissensions in the Conservative party, but the breach had been healed, and he hoped he himself would have the same good fortune in this case.

The Crisis of 1896.

Alex. Martin of Queen's P. E. I., made an enquiry concerning the mail service between the island and civilization. In replying Sir William Mulock referred to Mr. Foster's "past," and bad blood immediately flowed. Mr. Foster paid his respects in unqualified language to Sir William's "past," and Hon. John Haggart unravelled the history of the crisis of 1896, exonerating Mr. Foster from the charge of knifing his leader, Sir Mackenzie Bowell. Mr. Taylor upheld the explanations offered by Messrs. Foster and Haggart.

Read a Third Time.

The following bills were read a third time and passed:

Respecting the Columbia and Western Railway Company—Mr. Galliher.

Respecting the Atlantic, Quebec and Western Railway Company—Mr. Beauvreau.

To incorporate the St. Mary's and Western Railway Company—Mr. McIntyre.

Respecting the Ottawa, Northern and Western Railway Co.

Several bills were advanced a stage, and the House again went into committee of supply, and the estimates of the trade and commerce department were taken up.

Mr. Paterson's Reply.

Mr. Paterson explained that there was no change in the appropriation for the Atlantic mail service.

Thereupon Mr. Maclean asked if there was to be no improvement in the service between Canada and Great Britain.

Mr. Paterson replied that there would be an improved service when the two new turbine steamers of the Allan Company were put on, one on March 23 and the other in April. Their speed would be an average of 17 knots, which would mean a trans-Atlantic passage in about six days.

Private Bills.

The following private bills were introduced in the House yesterday:

Respecting the Toronto and Hamilton Railway Company—Mr. Calvert.

Respecting the Century Life Insurance Company—Mr. McPherson.

To incorporate the Calgary and Battleford Railway Company—Mr. Turriff.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value, when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carrys them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much-improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

AN ENGINEER'S MISHAP.

—What might have proved a fatal accident occurred at Sturgeon-st. crossing, Omemee, on freight train No. 44, from Belleville to Lindsay, on Saturday night. The eccentric of the engine broke, liberating the large lever, which struck Engineer George Napier on the side of the face. The blow was so severe that the unfortunate engineer was driven into unconsciousness while standing at his post, applying the emergency brakes. He was soon carried to the Presbyterian manse, which was heartily thrown open to him by Rev. and Mrs. Whitelaw. Drs. Keith and Cameron attended to his wounds.

FACE STRIKE RENEWAL

Workmen of St. Petersburg Are in a Very Ugly Mood.

30,000 Workingmen Are Out Already and Numbers Are Likely to Increase—Troops and Police Use Energetic Measures to Prevent Former Tactics—Rumors of Many Strikers Killed and Wounded in Other Centres of Population.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 11.—St. Petersburg is face to face with a renewal of the labor upheaval, the immediate incitement being the failure of the workmen to secure payment for the time they were out on strike, added to the fact that there has been no adjustment of the demands which led to the strike last month. The Putiloff Iron Works, where the former strike originated, is playing the principal role.

There are 30,000 workmen already out within the metropolis, and the workmen at the torpedo factory at Kolpino, eighteen miles distant, also have joined the strikers. There is a strong prospect of the movement extending. Only energetic measures by the troops and the police prevented the resumption of the former tactics of the strikers, marching from factory to factory and inducing or compelling employes to lay down their tools Thus far there has been no disorder in St. Petersburg, but circumstantial reports that the revolutionary element is about to join with the strikers and resort to bomb throwing are causing grave apprehensions.

The workmen yesterday held several orderly meetings in open fields, and big assemblages are scheduled for to-day. Sunday will be the crucial time. The position of the workmen is distinctly weaker than it was three weeks ago, for they are without money.

The chief storm centre is about the Putiloff Iron Works and neighboring industries. The scenes in this vicinity resembled those of the troublous times in January.

26 Killed, 36 Wounded.

Sosnovice, Feb. 11.—On Thursday a mob invaded the yards of the Katherinen Works, demanding that the workmen in charge of the electrical machinery there join in the strike. A company of soldiers intervened and a Polish officer gave the order to fire, with the result that 26 persons, including a high school pupil, fell dead, and 36 were seriously wounded. These latter were removed to a hospital, where five of them have since died. A number of others were slightly wounded.

Czar Plans "People's" Assembly.

London, Feb. 11.—The correspondent at St. Petersburg of The Daily Chronicle says Emperor Nicholas received in audience for two hours on Thursday Count Tolstoi's son, Count Leo Deonvitch, who brought his father's draft of a scheme for a "people's" assembly. The Emperor told Deonvitch that he himself had been working on a similar scheme, which would shortly be put into execution.

4 Killed, 68 Wounded.

Lodz, Russian Poland, Feb. 11.—Four persons were killed and sixty-eight wounded in a riot at the Chiebler factory, and seven were killed and forty wounded at the Marcus Kohn factory. It is said that a general railroad strike will commence Feb. 14 throughout Poland.

24 Killed, 40 Wounded.

Berlin, Feb 11.—According to press despatches from Kattowitz, Russian Poland, a collision occurred between 15,000 strikers and the military at Skarzyske, in which 24 strikers were killed and 40 wounded.

SEARCH WITTE'S HOME.

St. Petersburg Police Go Through All His Private Papers.

London, Feb. 11.—The correspondent at St. Petersburg of The Daily Mail sends to that paper the extraordinary report that the first act of the new Minister of the Interior, M. Bouligan, on arriving in St. Petersburg on Friday was to have the residence of M. Witte, President of the Council of the Empire, searched by the police, who removed a mass of documents for examination. M. Witte was at home at the time and the police made a systematic and thorough examination of all the private papers in the house.

Nationalize Records.

Montreal, Feb. 11.—The Dominion Cattle Breeders' Association met here yesterday and passed a resolution in favor of nationalization of the association and its records, of removal of offices from Toronto to Ottawa and of the committee to carry these things into effect. Fifty dollars each was given to Ottawa, Guelph and Amherst farms. Following are the officers elected: Hon. president, F. W. Hodson, Ottawa; president, Alex. Hume, Menie; vice-president, Robert Hunter, Manville; provincial presidents, Ontario, A. Clarke; Quebec, Robert Ness; B. C., A. C. Wells; N.B., M. M. Parlee; P. E. I., James Eaton; N. S., C. A. Archibald; Assiniboia, J. C. Pope. Executive and revising committees re-elected.

Will Get Husband in Canada.

London, Feb. 11.—(C.A.P.)—During an application at one of the London police courts with reference to a daughter who refused to go home, it was stated the latter was going to Canada. The magistrate said that was an excellent thing, as she would be sure of getting a living there, as well as a husband, property and happiness.

Former Mayor McCue Hanged.

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 11.—J. Samuel McCue, former mayor of this city, was hanged in the County Jail here at 7.34 o'clock yesterday morning, for the murder of his wife, on Sunday, Sept. 4, 1904. McCue confessed.

THE COLLIE DOG IS MYSTERIOUS

Continues to Haunt the Beach at Port Hope.

NO REASON YET APPARENT

Man Who Got Off Train from North Has Been Missing Since January 25th—Strange Woman Seen on Beach.

Port Hope, Feb. 10.—The mystery of the collie which haunts the beach at the foot of King-st. is as great as ever, and the riddle remains unsolved, although several theories have been exploded. The dog still haunts the lake shore as if searching for its lost master ,but no steps have been taken to drag the water and there is still no definite clue to the mystery.

There is a possibility that the dog's owner was a woman. Mrs. W. Ray ,of King-st., was looking out of her window on the evening of Tuesday, January 24th, and noticed a lady walking among the iceburgs on the beach at about the spot which the dog has still haunted. She wore a light coat and was of moderate height; a dark dog was with her. Mrs. Ray did not give the matter much attention until the collie was discovered on the beach on the following Thursday. No one knows who the woman was or whether she was the owner of the dog or not.

During the week there have been many rumors in circulation to explain the collie's conduct, but it is difficult to ascertain what foundation they have. On Wednesday morning, January 25th, the morning before the dog was discovered on the beach, an old man, accompanied by a black collie, is said to have been seen getting off the 9 o'clock train from the north. No trace of the man or dog can be discovered.

Another rumor was that Mr. Gibbs, who lives near Trinity College School, drowned some puppies in the lake, and that the dog was their dam and was looking for them. This story is without any foundation. Mr. Gibbs did not drown any pups and has no dog, and, besides, the dog on the beach is not of the female persuasion.

It was also rumored that Mr. Greenway, who also resides near the College, had left on a visit to Toronto and had not been heard of since, but Mr. Greenway has not left home, so that rumor is also exploded.

Another story was that a rig and team of horses had been left at the Royal hotel on election day and had not been called for. A similar rumor was also in circulation about the Queen's Hotel, but neither has any foundation.

On Sunday Mr. William Ray, King-st., who is keeping the homeless dog, received a telephone message from Mr. Cross, of Niagara Falls. Mr. Cross said he had heard of the stray dog at Port Hope. He had an English collie with a white breast and tail answering to the name of "Tony," which had got on the ice at Niagara Falls and had drifted away. The description did not correspond with the dog here.

The dog at Mr. Ray's is a collie. The upper half of its body and its head and tail are black and its legs and lower part of the body a greyish brown. Mr. Ray locks the dog up ever night, but when it is released in the morning it still immediately runs to the lake and onto the icebergs, where it stays looking into the water. It does not stay in one particular spot, as the iceburg on which it was found on the first day has been carried away. The dog when hungry returns to Mr. Ray's house for food.

Although Sunday was intensely cold, large crowds made their way to the lake all day long to get a glimpse of the faithful dog.

If the owner of the dog is drowned it is possible that the body may be washed ashore in the spring.

HAD SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The Port Hope Brewing and Malting Company's Annual Meeting.

Port Hope, Feb. 10.

The annual general meeting of the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Company was held at the Brewery on Tuesday afternoon. Among those who attended were Alex. Elliott, President, E. Field, Vice President, R. W. Smart, Secretary, Messrs. W. A. Bleeker, J. M. Brooks, J. E. Ketcheson, James Haw, O. F. Cronkhite, T. E. Bradburn, A. P. Pousette, B. Crawford, C. Pickering, C. Britton, W. Irwin, R. J. Munro, H. A. Ward, T. J. Maher, I. Eastwood, J. J. Roberts, G. Schaffer, J. N. Brown, C. Williams, C. Nixon.

The following officers were elected.

President—Alex. Elliott.

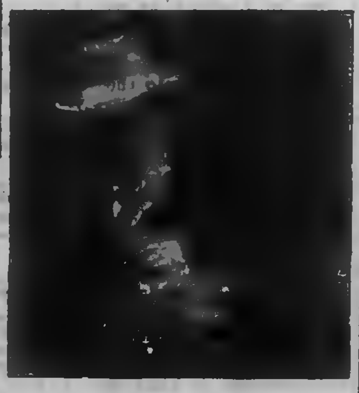
Vice-President—E. Field.

Sec.-Treas.—R. W. Smart.

Directors—The officers and Messrs W. A. Bleeker, L. G. Bennett, B. Carrie, N. F. Doyle, S. N. Boyle, I. Eastwood, C. Gauthier, Jas. Greig, J. M Brooks, W Irwin, J E Ketcheson, Meagher, J. McGuire, J. A. McNiebot, R. J. Munro, J. M. Martin, W. L. McLean, E. O'Connor, A. P. Pousette, J. Schaffer, A. Tyo, G. Whitty, C. Pickering.

Executive Directors—Messrs. W. A. Bleeker, W. Irwin, J. E. Ketcheson, R. J. Munro, G. Schaffer.

The proposition which was brought up at the last meeting to establish a larger plant was again left over, as the company has all it can do now to supply the wants of their customers for its famous ales and the orders increasing daily. The directors report was highly satisfactory. The president's address was as follows—



MR. ALEX. ELLIOTT,
President of the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Co., Limited.

The Directors in presenting their first annual report have pleasure in congratulating the share-holders upon the excellent showing made by the Company. The period actually covered by the operations of the Company is only nine months and ten days. The paid up capital on the first of April, 1904 was about $10,000. There are now 192 shareholders with a total paid up capital of $31,272. The net earnings amount to $11,576.87, out of this sum a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum has been paid, amounting to $16,888.84, and the balance of $9,888.08 has been appropriated as follows — $8000.00 has been transferred to Reserve Fund and $1888.08, to Contingent Account to meet any unforeseen expenditure that may occur as well as reorganization expenses.

The sales for the last six months amount to $19,258.68. It is expected that the total for the year 1905, will not be less than $100,000. The malt house, which for many years was leased by the Company has this season been operated by our selves, not only realizing a considerable saving upon Malt used in our own Brewery, but a fair profit on Malt sold, besides manufacturing a better article than we could procure.

The Company formerly supplied a large quantity of Malt to Brewers in the Eastern Provinces. An effort will be made this year to restore that trade and thus enable us to run the malt house to its full capacity which would be a source of considerable profit.

The directors are pleased to be able to testify to the efficiency of the Company's employees. This is amply evidenced by the results. The outlook is in every way encouraging.

The statement of Assets and Liabilities and of Merchandise Account are submitted herewith.

The books have been thoroughly audited as shown by the Auditors' certificate appended.

ALEX. ELLIOTT,
President.

HE TOOK HIS WIFE'S ADVICE

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cured the Stomach Troubles That Confined Henry A Coles to His Bed.

One of the unpleasant features of Indigestion and Dyspepsia is that it is always getting worse. Take the case of Henry A. Coles, of St. Mary's River, Guysboro Co., N.S. He says:

"I had Stomach Trouble for about five years more or less, and at last I was taken to my bed and the doctor called in. He did me no good. I was suffering a great deal and did not know what to do."

Everyone must admit Mr. Cole was in a bad way. But that's what Indigestion leads to if you neglect it. But if Mr. Coles did not know what to do, his wife did. She said, "Try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets." Like a wise man he took his wife's advice, and of the result he says:

"I took seven boxes, and I have not felt any of the trouble since. I heartily recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to any sufferer from Stomach Trouble. They cured me."

VICTORIA ORANGEMEN

The annual meeting of the county Orange lodge of the county of Victoria, was held in Lindsay on Tuesday. Every district lodge in the county was represented. A special committee was appointed to draft an address of sympathy to the families of the late Thos. Stephenson, who had been a member of the order for fifty years and a past county master, and Josiah Perrin, a past district master of Fenelon and a member for fifty-two years.

The following were elected officers for the ensuing year—Rev. J. M. Whitelaw, county master; William Warren, deputy master; William Thornbury, chaplain; John Kelly, recording secretary; J. J. Vout, secretary; Joseph Brown, treasurer; W. H. Roberts, director of ceremonies; Neil MacGillvary, lecturer; W. H. Henderson and Joseph G. Beatty, deputy lecturers.

Was Cured of Asthma

"I first used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with my daughter, who suffered from a severe form of asthma. The least exposure to cold would lay her up and she would nearly suffocate for want of breath. I must say I found it to be a most satisfactory treatment and it has entirely cured her."—Mrs. A. A. VanBuskirk, Robinson Street Moncton, N.B.

CONDUCTOR DISCHARGED

The Campbellford Herald says— We understand that the conductor in charge of the special train which conveyed the Campbellford hockey team to Peterborough a couple of weeks ago, has been discharged. The secretary of the Campbellford club received word from Mr. Irwin, of Lindsay, expressing regret at the inconvenience to which the team and its supporters were subjected, and stating that the case would be thoroughly investigated. It was not on account of the "kick" coming from Campbellford that caused his discharge, but owing to a different circumstance entirely. What the G.T.R. will do in the way of compensation to Campbellford is as yet unknown.

PRICE OF FURS HAS ADVANCED

Mr. Thos. Brightman Gives Some Particular Instances.

OTTER SKINS EXPENSIVE

They Range From $10 to $20 Each—Furs That are in Favor in This Part of the Country—Decrease in Coon, Red Fox and Muskrat.

The price of furs, according to Mr. Thomas Brightman, who is an extensive dealer, has experienced quite an advance during the past month. He points out that in the London market, which has considerable to do with the regulation of prices in this country, advances and declines were pretty evenly divided. Of Canadian furs, muskrat seemed to be the failure. All varieties, except black, declined 7 1-2 to 20 per cent, wolf being 40 per cent lower. Fox was in some cases higher and in some lower. Mink has led the advance, and it was followed by martin, otter and beaver. On the whole it might be said that the advances in Canadian furs were fully equal, or greater, than the decline.

Mr. Brightman this morning quoted prices of some of the furs more popular in this part of the country. Otter skins ranged from $10 to $20 each, which is an increase of about 25 per cent. over last year. Beaver skins run from $2 to $4, and this also is an increase of 25 per cent. Minks range from $1.00 to $4.00. Red fox skins run from $1.00 to $2.25, whereas some time ago the top notch was $4.25, and there is also about 20 per cent. of a decrease in coon, the prices now ranging from 50c. to $1.35 for the Canadian fur, whereas those known as the Michigan coon, being darker, bring higher prices. The skunk has a price of from 35 to 55 cents placed on his hide, but this does not come as high as some of his American brethren, whose fur is darker. Muskrats are away down selling from 8 to 15 cents. It is a fact, that not so very long ago the price of kitten rats jumped from three cents to twenty cents each, because it was found they could be made to imitate moleskin. This did not prove as successful as was anticipated, however, and the price again took a drop.

There are many tricks known to the fur manufacturers, whereby costly furs can be imitated by the application of certain methods to cheaper material, such for instance as the dyeing of the red fox skin and the sewing in of grey to represent silver fox. The genuine Siberian sable is frequently imitated by rabbit, and there are scores of other methods known to the trade.

The best muskrat skins come from Rice Lake, where the food is seemingly better than in the northern country. There appears to be considerable mink in this locality, and the creek running through town is said to have recently been a very popular resort for these animals. Red fox, coon and skunk hides are also supplied in fairly large numbers from the country lying to the northward. Mr. Brightman has at the present time a big stock of very fine furs. He states that some of his best customers are among the American dealers. He has several fine bear skins. The price he quotes on this kind of fur is from $8 to $9 each.

THE PRICE OF SUGAR.

Takes a Drop of Ten Cents per Barrel—Local Grocers Advised.

Sugar has dropped ten cents a barrel in the wholesale price.

Word to this effect was received yesterday by local grocers. Granulated sugar is now being sold at $5.76 per barrel and $5.26 for yellow.

Ald. E. F. Mason said to-day that the raw sugar was just beginning to come in and he anticipated another reduction in the near future. The high prices at present are due to the fact that the capitalists have a corner on sugar, but this is not expected to last long.

Of course, the reduction of ten cents per barrel (300 lbs) will not make any difference in the store sales. The present selling price is 6 and 6 1-2 cents and it is claimed that this is as low as the average grocer can afford to sell at considering the wholesale cost.

"Still the game was not devoid of excitement and it was certainly noisy. Lindsay had a train load of rooters along who wore yellow ribbons and cheered not only the good shots their own players made, but, forgetful of curling etiquette, roared lustily when a St. Mary's man made a miss. This speedily turned popular sympathy towards St. Mary's, and there were times when roars of joy or groans of sorrow followed every shot."

THE NEW COLLEGIATE.

Tenders Will be Received up to Friday, March 3rd, for the Building.

The Building Committee of the Board of Education met last night and decided to call for tenders for the erection of the new Collegiate Institute in Central Park.

Tenders will be received up to Friday March 3rd, and must be addressed to W. G. Morrow, secretary of the Board. The plans and specifications of the new building which have been finally approved by the committee may be seen at the office of Mr. J. E. Belcher, architect.

There were present last night, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, chairman; W. G. Ferguson, Dr. Morrison, J. J. Hartley and R. B. Rogers. It is probable that Mr. R. M. Roy will take some views of the side and front elevations of the building as finally agreed upon. The Collegiate will likely cost $50,000.

T.A.S. WON FROM CAMPBELLFORD

Desperately Fought Game at Cobourg Last Night.

GAME WAS VERY STRENUOUS

Victory Gives Locals Championship of No. 2 District, T.V.L.—T.A.S. Badly Cut Up—Free-for-all Scrap at the End, in Which Abstainers Received Hard Usage.

T.A.S. trimmed Campbellford at Cobourg last evening by 5 goals to 2, thus winning the championship of of No. 2 District, Trent Valley League. The half time score was 2 0 in favor of the T.A.S. The game was a desperate struggle of the rough house variety. The second half was especially rough. In the first period some good playing was done and the game was fairly fast. In the second half Campbellford saw that the contest was going against them and went in to chop the T.A.S. to pieces, as they did Keene. The referee, Geo. Brown, of Port Hope, was impartial, but couldn't control the players and the game became very strenuous. The T.A.S. players were all badly cut up, but managed to keep their lead.

There was a large crowd at the rink, including a number from Campbellford and Trenton, who rooted lustily for the villagers. T.A.S. had all the best of what hockey was displayed. They shot better and had superior combination, although the close checking made it hard to do any combined playing. T.A.S. got two in the first half, T. McGrath and Deforge doing the scoring, and blanked their opponents.

In the second half there was something doing all the time and the game was very rough. Campbellford got the first one, but T. McGrath soon scored for T.A.S.; Campbellford got the puck to the front of the nets and claimed a goal, which referee Brown refused to allow them. While they were disputing Quigley had scored for T.A.S. Campbellford threatened to leave the ice if their goal wasn't counted or if the T.A.S. were allowed the one scored by Quigley. The T.A.S. allowed them to have their way on both points, and the game went merrily on getting rougher all the time. T.A.S. got two more before time was up, Deforge and T. McGrath doing the scoring. Just before time was called two of the players got into a mix-up and the spectators crowded on the ice and a free for all scrap occurred. Goal umpire Cole, of Campbellford, struck T. McGrath over the head with a stick and knocked him down. Quigley was also made the victim of an attack from some of the Campbellford supporters. Cole was arrested by the Cobourg Chief of Police, who saw the blow struck, and he will have to stand trial for assault.

It was a disgraceful proceeding and the Campbellford team should be ashamed of their supporters. The worst of them was the bunch from Trenton.

During the game Meagher received a severe cut across the face, and all the T.A.S. team were badly cut up and bruised.

The teams were as follows—

T.A.S.		Campbellford
	Goal
Clancy		Shaw
	Point
Meagher		Smith
	Cover Point
Quigley		Tait
	Rover
Deforge		Shannon

T. McGrath		Garvey

'TWAS FOR SWEET CHARITY'S SAKE

Delightful Ball Proved in Every Way Successful.

LARGE NUMBER ATTENDED

The Arrangements Were all That Could be Desired—Brilliant Scene Presented in the Ball Room at Oriental Hotel.

Most delightful in every way was the ball held last evening for sweet charity's sake. The arrangements, which had been carried forward so successfully during the past couple of weeks, proved that excellent foresight was a strong characteristic of the committee in whose hands the preparations had been placed.

The ball was held in the spacious dining hall of the Oriental Hotel, and the generosity evident in this accommodation and the many other kindnesses which contributed to the success and enjoyment of the occasion, bear tribute to the cordial interest on the part of the proprietor of the hotel, Mr. G. M. Graham. He had virtually thrown his doors wide open, and all efforts looking to ultimate enjoyment were given every assistance. The floor was in good condition for dancing, and the other properties of the hall were such as to be greatly appreciated by the large number of people who participated in the pleasures of the occasion. The decorations consisted of patriotic designs and colors, artistically arranged and grouped. The entrance to the cloak rooms on the second floor was by the newly carpeted stairway approached by the corridor a short distance east of the main entrance, so that it was unnecessary to seek admission through the public rotunda of the building, which, however, later in the evening was used to some extent for sitting out.

When the ball was at its height the scene presented was a brilliant one. The intimation that the affair would take the form of a "bal poudre" was quite largely recognised by the ladies, and charming appearance in feature and costume was further enhanced as a consequence. The attendance was quite large, not a few of those present being from out of town. No element of pleasure was lacking, the music, indeed, being exceptionally good, the Glionna-Marsicano orchestra, of Toronto, having been engaged. The programme was a lengthy one, but this was one of the many qualities that tended to its great merit.

The patronesses of the dance were: Mrs. H. D. Burnett, Mrs. P. Campbell, Mrs. J. Crane, Mrs. R. S. Davidson, Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun, Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmot, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. L. M. Hayes, Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. D. J. Lundy, Mrs. J. H. Larmonth, Mrs. C. B. McAllister, Mrs. R. B. Rogers, Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. J. R. Stratton.

The stewards were: Messrs. P. Campbell, R. M. Dennistoun, H. D. Burnett, H. C. Rogers, John Crane, A. H. Stratton, K. Eardley-Wilmot, L. M. Hayes, T. E. Bradburn, F. D. Kerr, H. Rush, jr., Jas. Hamilton, W. P. Reynolds, and H. Ritchie.

Mr. A. A. Hollingshead was the Honorary Secretary, and to him and the energetic committee in charge of arrangements, considerable credit is due for the great success which marked the charity ball. The spirit which prompted the undertaking was a most commendable one, and those who enlisted their efforts on its behalf are to be heartily congratulated on the outcome.

The members of the committee express hearty appreciation with regard to assistance rendered them through the kindness of Mr. Graham, Mr. Harry Long, Mr. Robert Fair, the three newspapers, and others.

Among those from a distance were: Messrs. J. L. Hopwood, Toronto; T. H. Kilbourn, Chas. S. Tanner, Lakefield; George W. Nicholls, Toronto; H. C. Freeman, Toronto.

TUXEDO.

The Tuxedo Coat usually gets a little rougher usage than the Dress Coat. It requires to be well made to retain its shape.

The Semi-ready Tuxedo has no objectionable sharp points on the edge of the front of the coat, such as is usually seen on the ordinary tailored garment. The line from the collar to the bottom of the coat is a graceful curve.

Just notice the difference in the Tuxedo worn by your friends whom you think are paying the high class tailors fancy prices.

If it is a particularly handsome coat you're likely to find it is a Semi-ready.

AN INFORMAL BANQUET.

Tendered Mr. H. Lambert by Sheet Metal Workers.

The members of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union held an informal banquet at McCallum's restaurant last night. It was in honor of one of their number, Mr. H. Lambert, who is shortly leaving town. He is an esteemed member of the Union, and regret at his departure found frequent expression last evening, and there were many sincere assurances that the good wishes of his friends here would accompany him. Succeeding the dinner a pleasant hour or so was spent over a comfortable pipe, and in discussing matters which the occasion rendered congenial.

Mr. Lambert will engage in business in Hastings.

PAINFUL ACCIDENTS

Mr. Bert Moncrief Breaks a Leg—Mrs. Armour an Arm.

Mr. Bert Moncrieff, 440 Sherbrooke street, who is employed by the Peterborough Hardware Co., met with a painful accident in the Brock street skating rink last night. He had the misfortune to fall and fracture his left leg just above the ankle. Dr. Scott attended to the injury. Mr. Moncrieff will not be able to resume work for some time.

As Mrs. George L. Armour, 81 London street was coming out of the post office yesterday afternoon she slipped and fell. She broke a bone of her left arm near the wrist and was severely shaken up. Dr. Scott reduced the fracture and the injured lady is now progressing as well as could be expected.

HIS ANNUAL VISIT

Mr. Geo. Buskin the Well-known Colporteur Again Comes to Peterborough.

Mr. Geo. Buskin, agent of the International Evangelical and Colportage Mission of Algoma and the Northwest, is making his annual visit to Peterborough, in behalf of the 22 years' work of disseminating the Holy Scriptures and Scriptural literature through the districts, the influences of which are for much good in the land.

This work is undenominational. The travels and work of the past year were more extensive than of any previous year, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans, visiting 105 cities, towns and villages, and Bibles and books were supplied in ten languages numbering 2,746 copies, and many more were given but not entered, and many thousands of the mission publications were also distributed free of costs. $228.91 was received from sales. There is still an indebtedness on the work of $3,000 which has accumulated during the past 19 years. $600 is also necessary to meet the costs of publishing the second part of the Ojibway Indian dictionary, which will be a valuable help to the Indians, both in Christian and general knowledge. The costs will be a small matter compared with the benefits settlers have derived in the land of the Indian, and the sacrifices they have had to make for the enlargement and gain of their white brothers.

The depot at 102 King street east, Toronto, is kept continually open at a cost of $600 annually for the supply of Biblical literature, and necessary improvements there cannot be undertaken for lack of funds. The donations in Peterborough last year in aid of the Mission were $41.15, which the missionary gratefully acknowledges.

Indigestion and Headache

Mr. Duncan McPherson, Content, Alta., writes:—"I was for many years troubled with indigestion and headache, and derived no relief from the many remedies I used. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after taking four boxes, the result is that I am once more in the full enjoyment of the blessings of good health."

THE SUCCESS OF P. C. I. GRADUATES

Their Prominent Part in Student Life of Victoria College.

HAVE WON HIGH HONORS

Some Interesting Facts Presented—Great Credit Due to Ex-students of Peterborough Collegiate Institute—Testimony to Excellent Work Done at Victoria.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir—

"Tis a pleasant task to rear the tender thought,
To teach the young idea how to shoot,
To pour the fresh instruction o'er the mind,
To breathe the enlivening spirit, and
To fix the generous purpose in the glowing breast."

It is still more pleasing to "wielders of the birch" to learn of the success of their pupils, when, in time, the latter are forced to forego the pleasure of basking in the sunshine of their kindly dispositions, and are enrolled as pupils in the harsh, stern school of life.

It is but natural that teachers in watching the course of their pupils in after-life, should sympathise with them in their failures and take pride in their successes.

As a ray of consideration to such pupils as look upon the years of their collegiate life as dull, monotonous and gloomy, let me say that the purest ore is produced from the hottest furnace, and the brightest thunderbolt is elicited from the darkest cloud.

From time to time my attention has been called to the very prominent positions held by ex-pupils of the P. C. I. in the student life of Victoria College.

Thinking that it might be of interest to your readers to learn what the "old boys" and—I was going to say "old girls," but that would be unpardonable—the "sweet girl graduates" of the P.C.I. have done, and are still doing at this seat of learning, I present herewith the following facts.

STIMULATING EXAMPLE

In publishing this, well merited honor will be bestowed upon those who so richly deserve it; a stimulating example will be set for their successors to copy; and pleasure will be given to their numerous friends.

Victoria University has had but a small percentage of ex-pupils of the P.C.I. among its students, but these have played a part in college life altogether out of proportion to their numbers. W. J. Spence, who was at College, as at the Collegiate, preeminently a student, and in this capacity won high honours, was also an influential member of the Literary Society and one of the best editors of personals and exchanges that Acta Victoriana, which, by the way, is one of the very best of College journals, has ever known.

D. J. Thom also played a conspicuous part in College life, being at different times Leader of the Government and 1st Vice-President of the Union Literary Society; and local editor and president of the editorial board of Acta Victoriana.

Mr. J. Herman Beer, another of the "old boys" has been 2nd and 1st vice president of the Union Literary Society; has served Acta Victoriana, first as scientific editor, later as literary editor, and president of the board; has been president for one year of the college Y.M.C.A.; and in his year of post-graduate work was chairman of the Conversazione Committee.

Mr. W. J. M. Cragg also carried a variety of honors in the Y.M.C.A. and the Union Literary Society, and in his final year was business manager of Acta Victoriana.

Mr. G. E. Porter, another of Vic's college luminaries, served in a single year as athletic editor of Acta, leader of the Government in the Union Literary Society, 3rd year representative on the executive of the Athletic Union, business manager of the Glee Club, and manager of the Rugby Football Club; and his other years were almost as busy.

MORE PROUD HONORS

After a couple of year's break a new group of Peterborough students entered Victoria. Of these, Miss A. L. O. Fife, in addition to several minor offices, held the vice presidency of the Y.W.C.A., and the presidency of the Woman's Literary Society, probably the proudest honor a woman can hold in Victoria.

H. H. Cragg has been recording secretary, and leader of the opposition in the Union Literary Society, treasurer of the Y.M.C.A. and of Acta Victoriana, first editor of personals and exchanges, and, this year, president and editor-in-chief.

Mr. Percy Campbell has been an officer of the College Classical Association, served two years as Athletic editor of Acta, has been a standard bearer in Y.M.C.A. work, and in the management of College Athletics, and now in his final year has been honored with the presidency of his class.

Miss Maggie Hamilton has been a leader in the athletic life of the women students and has served well in various class honors.

Last, but not least, Mr. Alex. Elliott has figured on the Acta board as secretary, local editor and literary editor; on the executive of the Union Literary Society, as Corresponding secretary and leader of the Government; and on the Alma Mater Society, the most comprehensive and authoritative of student organizations, as one of the framers of its constitution, its first secretary and its second president.

These facts are very significant in view of the fact that there are only four men and three women students from the P.C.I. in a student body in the neighborhood of 300.

Perhaps these facts are even more striking when presented in another light. In the academic year of 1899-1900 five of the most important members of a board of 12 of Acta Victoriana were Messrs. Thom, W. Cragg, Beer, Spence and Porter, all P. C. I. "old boys" and representative of about 10 Peterborough students in a total of 250.

A similar condition has come over Acta again in the present generation, where in their final year, the two most significant offices on the board are held by Messrs. H. Cragg and Alex. Elliott, the former being editor-in-chief and the latter literary editor. In their junior year Messrs. Cragg, Campbell and Elliott held sub-editorships; and in their second year Messrs. Campbell and Elliott were on the board.

Or again, at present H. Cragg is at the head of Acta; P. Campbell is president of the fourth year class; G. Brown, president of 3rd year class and Alex. Elliott is president of the Alma Mater Society.

At the present time D. Thom is practising law; W. Spence adorns a professional chair; G. Porter is pursuing advanced studies; and Messrs. Beer and W. Cragg are doing ministerial work.

GREAT CREDIT DUE

All the more credit must be given to these pupils because of the fact that during their Collegiate course they did not get as much help as they should, and would have got, had there been better facilities for attending to the corporate life of the school. In anticipation of the new Collegiate there has been during the present academic year an awakening along this line. The annual field day for sports was again held; a flourishing literary society meets at the Y.M.C.A.; and in the near future, a school journal is about to make its appearance.

In conclusion, though not an alumnus of Victoria, I am pleased to bear testimony to the very excellent work which is being done there. There is every facility afforded for an all-round development and amongst its students there is to be seen a strong esprit de corps which is good evidence that affairs are in a good state. Victoria is not, as some suppose, merely a preserve for "sky-pilots," nor an El Dorado for millinery artists. Yours truly,

D.R.O. DISFRANCHISED VOTERS

And, As Result, a New Election Is Ordered in Wentworth.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—A new election for the Dominion House must take place in Wentworth, Chief Justice Meredith and Justice Teetzel yesterday declaring that "neither the respondent (Smith, Conservative), nor the petitioner (Sealey, Liberal) is the duly elected member for the electoral district of Wentworth." The judgment follows a stated case hinging solely on the question of election, resulting from a deputy returning officer numbering the ballots after the poll closed. Sealey was elected, but on the recount, the numbered ballots were ruled out, and Smith secured the seat.

There Will Be An Appeal.

Hamilton, Feb. 11.—There will be an appeal from the judgment of Chief Justice Meredith and Justice Teetzel in the Wentworth protest case. During the progress of the argument here W. O. Sealey, the Liberal candidate, said that he would enter an appeal unless the Chief Justice decided that the ballots numbered on the back by Deputy Returning Officer Valens should be counted. His lawyer, J. P. Stanton, stated yesterday afternoon that the case would be carried to the Supreme Court, as it was very important that the point should be settled for good and many conflicting decisions have been given. The seat will be vacant pending the appeal.

Earl of Kenmare Dead.

London, Feb. 11.—Valentine Augustus Browne, fourth Earl of Kenmare, died yesterday in London, aged 80 years. Lord Kenmare is remembered in Ireland for the relentless vigor of his evictions during the disturbed period of twenty-five years ago. He was born on May 16, 1825, and succeeded his father in the title, in 1871. He was a member of Parliament for County Kerry from 1852 to 1871. From 1880 to 1886 he held the office of Lord Chamberlain. His heir is Viscount Castlerosse. His estate comprises 18,000 acres.

Alliance Meets to Convene.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—The advent of the new Government finds the prohibitionists on the alert, and the executive committee of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance came to the conclusion yesterday that a big gathering of the temperance people was necessary to force intelligently the demands of the new situation. It will be held on Thursday, Feb. 23.

Starving in Luxury

Many people with plenty, suffer from ruined stomachs and must sit idly by and watch others enjoy their meals. Late suppers, too much rich food, and irregular meals, have placed them in this terrible condition. The stomach is the seat of many ills and should receive your best care if you wish to keep all the faculties clear.

Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets are a sure cure for all such ills. They clarify the stomach and assist the digestive organs in performing their duties. They are made from pure Pineapple extracts, easy to take and certain in results. A tablet before and after each meal will work wonders in rebuilding your stomach. Run Over By Train.

Gravenhurst, Feb. 11.—A young man named Gander was found yesterday morning on the G. T. R. track about three miles south of this town, evidently struck and run over by the southbound midnight express. He was about thirty-five years of age, one arm and a leg were taken off. He was a son of the Rev. Mr. Gander of Uffington.

Detective Cullen Dead.

Montreal, Feb. 11.—Andrew Cullen, Montreal's widely known ex-chief detective, died at noon yesterday at an advanced age. Mr. Cullen was one of the best known and most successful police officials on the continent. He leaves two sons and three daughters, one son being Rev. Father Cullen of St. Mary's parish.

Lady Curzon Sails.

London, Feb. 11.—Lady Curzon of Kedleston and her three children sailed for India yesterday on the British steamer Arabia. A crowd of friends bade them farewell at the docks.

CURE WAS QUICK AND PERMANENT

Dodd's Kidney Pills Soon Drove Away Rheumatism and Dropsy.

Case of a Windsor Man Who Suffered two Years Before he Discovered the Right Remedy.

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 10.—(Special).—How quickly Rheumatism and Dropsy can be cured when the right medicine is used is shown in the case of Mr. John McDonald, a retired farmer living at 130 Langlois Avenue here. Mr. McDonald says:—

"For two years I was troubled with Rheumatism and Dropsy. My legs were terribly swollen, and though I tried many medicines nothing gave me any relief till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Two boxes of them cured me so completely that I have had no return of the diseases in years."

Rheumatism and Dropsy are caused by the poisons disordered Kidneys Kidneys fail to strain out of the blood. Cure the Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills, and the cured Kidneys will remove the cause of the Rheumatism or Dropsy. Without cause there can be no disease.

EXPORT DUTY ON WHEAT.

London Standard Says Much to Commend in Mr. Maclean's Proposal.

London, Feb. 11.—(C.A.P.)—Referring to W. F. Maclean's proposal to impose an export duty on Canadian wheat, The Standard says the difficulties and objections to the course proposed in Canada are obvious. It is problematical whether America will ever take the greater part of Canada's surplus wheat. For that the United Kingdom is the chief market, but is the United Kingdom to be penalised also? We do not think the Canadian farmer or average Canadian Imperialist would readily agree to that, yet there would be difficulty in drawing a distinction.

The crux may be got over, but even then there remains the increasing body of Canadian farmers to reckon with. Their object is to sell as much wheat as possible, and though he may succeed we think that Mr. Maclean will have some work to do before convincing wheat growers that "sending wheat to the United States might temporarily benefit the Northwest farmer, but in the long run it would be to his disadvantage."

There is much to commend the proposal, much in it to command the sympathy of the Mother Country. After all, it is for the trade of the United Kingdom that the millers, both of Canada and the United States are contending. Canadians may be assured that we mean to do what we reasonably can to help the industry of our fellow citizens in the Dominion.

Humors of the Law.

Law and equity are two things which God has joined together and man has put asunder.

When a prisoner in Justice Maule's court was asked whether he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon him, he replied, "I wish God may strike me dead if I stole the ducks." Maule waited for about a minute and then said: "Prisoner, as Providence has not interfered I must. Three months' hard labor."

A mayor on taking his seat on the bench for the first time informed the bar that during his year of office he would spare no effort to be neither partial nor impartial.—Address of Sir Albert Rollit in London.

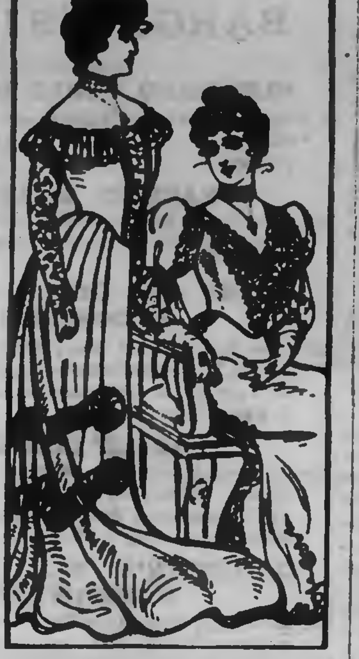
THE MODES OF 1905

A NEW ATMOSPHERE OF DRESS AT FORMAL SOCIAL FUNCTIONS.

The Chic Skirt of the Present Is Ample, Soft, Fluffy and Scant of Trimming—The Dainty Little Lace or Tulle Chemisette.

Gowns for evening functions and those of the demitoilet or dressy day variety present an entirely novel effect this season. Contrast the two new gowns for dinner or theater wear, here shown, with the models of a year or two past.

Simplicity is certainly the present keynote of the chic woman's toilet. Those who are foremost in the vanguard of fashion strive to display an effect of simplicity in style and finish. There are a few, however, who spend a fortune on the quality of their materials and trimmings.

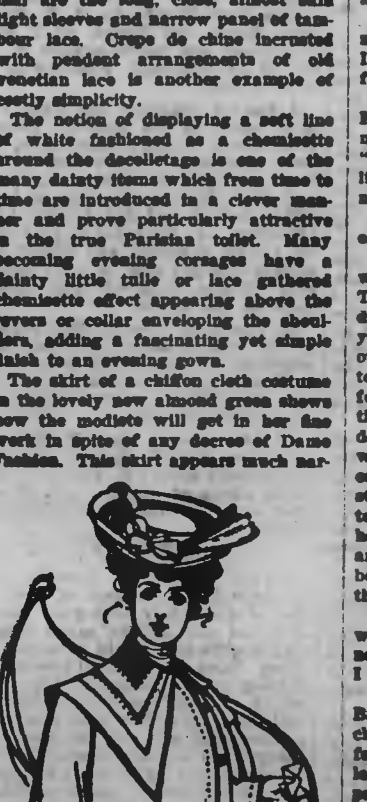


NEW GOWNS FOR DINNER AND THEATER.

The elect skirt of the season must be very simple, very soft and fluffy and have very unobtrusive trimming. The new tendency appears in the models illustrated. A dress of chiffon plush offers a study of hydrangea tints in combination with its full frilled bertha flounce, finished off with cravat folds and the broad silk muslin puffing on the trained skirt edged with a pretty ruche of valenciennes. Especially original are the long, close, almost skin tight sleeves and narrow panel of tambour lace. Crepe de chine incrusted with pendant arrangements of old venetian lace is another example of costly simplicity.

The notion of displaying a soft line of white fashioned as a chemisette around the decolletage is one of the many dainty items which from time to time are introduced in a clever manner and prove particularly attractive in the true Parisian toilet. Many becoming evening corsages have a dainty little tulle or lace gathered chemisette effect appearing above the revers or collar enveloping the shoulders, adding a fascinating yet simple finish to an evening gown.

The skirt of a chiffon cloth costume in the lovely new almond green shows how the modiste will get in her fine work in spite of any decree of Dame Fashion. This skirt appears much narrower than those to which our eyes have become accustomed, for it is fashioned in close, shapely plaits, creating a somewhat princess effect. Each plait is outlined with a design of green silk braiding from waist to hem. These long lines of braiding are most becoming in giving length and elegance to the figure. The bodice, too, is distinguished in style, fashioned in a sharp point in front, while the material is draped tightly crosswise over a yoke of almond green velvet.



A THREE-QUARTER BOX CLOTH COAT.

The plainness of the popular skirt lends exceptional facility to the wearing of a directoire velvet or silk coat or habit corsage. AMY VARNUM.

"When are you going back to Duke street?" asked Brendon as he took his leave of Train.

"This very day," replied the young man gloomily. "I don't want to stop a moment longer than I can help in this awful house."

"I expect many of the others are of your way of thinking, Train. But, so far as I can see, there is no hope of learning who killed the woman."

"If you had only allowed me to tell Quex about the door being opened he might have traced the assassin."

"I don't think so." Brendon shook his head. "It was a foggy night, and whosoever entered would be able to slink away without being seen."

"All the same I wish I had told Quex."

"Well, then, tell him if you like," said George, vexed with this pertinacity.

"But you asked me not to."

"Only because I fear, with your weak nature, that one question will lead to another until the whole of my private affairs will come to light. I don't want these to be known at Scotland Yard, let alone the chance that I might be accused of the crime."

"Oh, that's ridiculous! You could not have left the sitting room unless I had let you out, and there is no door from your bedroom."

"That is true enough," answered Brendon, with an ironical smile, the significance of which was lost on Train. "But if the whole of my story came to light you might be accused of helping me to get rid of the woman."

"I?" Leonard's hair almost rose on end. "How could I be mixed up in it?"

"Well, see here," argued Brendon, who thought it just as well to make Train's own safety depend upon the discretion of too free a tongue. "I tell you about this house, and on my recommendation you come here. I come to stop with you and reveal my reasons for coming. These have to do with the possession of a secret by the murdered woman. All that to a policeman would be suspicious. What would be easier than for me to go down the stairs and, when the woman refused to confess as to my legitimacy, to stab her? Then I could return to my bed, and you could prove an alibi on my behalf by your tale of having locked the sitting room door."

Train shuddered. "I see how easily we can get into trouble. I shall say nothing. I wish I had not come here. I shall go abroad until all blows over."

"I am going to see Dorothy," said Brendon, "and tell her that there is no chance of our marriage. Nor is there, for I cannot see my way to prove my legitimacy. We must part, and I shall probably go down the country for six months or so to finish my novel and to get rid of my heartache."

Train remained silent, looking at the ground. Then he glanced at his friend in a doubtful way. "What has become of your yellow holly?"

Brendon produced it from his pocket. "It withered, so I took it out of my coat and put it into this envelope."

"Do you know if Miss Ward gave any one else a piece of yellow holly?"

Brendon stared at this strange question. "Not to my knowledge. Why do you ask?"

Train shuffled his feet and looked down again. "It is an exceptionally rare sort of thing," he said uneasily, "and its effect on Mrs. Jersey was so strange that I wondered if she connected it with any trouble or disaster."

"You made the same remark before," said Brendon dryly, "and we could arrive at no conclusion. But, in any case, I don't see that Miss Ward giving me the holly has anything to do with Mrs. Jersey's alarm—if, indeed, she was alarmed."

"I think she was," said Train decisively, "and if I were you I would ask Miss Ward why she gave you the holly."

"What would be the sense in that?"

"You might learn why Mrs. Jersey was startled."

Brendon laughed and shrugged his shoulders. "Your active brain is building up a perfect romance," he declared. "There can be no connection between Dorothy and Mrs. Jersey."

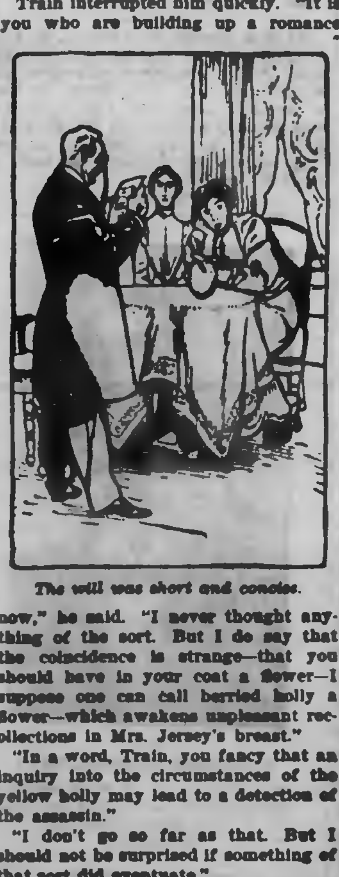
"Did she know you were coming to stop here on that night?"

"Yes. I told her so when I met her in the park in the morning. It was then that she asked me to afternoon tea."

"And at the afternoon tea she gave you the holly?"

"Yes. You seem to think she did it on purpose that Mrs. Jersey"—

Train interrupted him quickly. "It is you who are building up a romance now," he said. "I never thought anything of the sort. But I do say that the coincidence is strange—that you should have in your coat a flower—I suppose one can call berried holly a flower—which awakens unpleasant recollections in Mrs. Jersey's breast."



The will was short and concise.

"In a word, Train, you fancy that an inquiry into the circumstances of the yellow holly may lead to a detection of the assassin."

"I don't go so far as that. But I should not be surprised if something of that sort did eventuate."

"Then you do go so far as that," said Brendon, with a shrug. "However, there is nothing more to be said. My advice to you is to hold your tongue lest we should both get into trouble."

The two parted, Leonard to pack up and Brendon to journey with his bag for Kensington. Both men were conscious of a relief when they took leave of each other.

Of course the economy of the mansion was disordered when the crime was committed. But, thanks to the firm handling of Miss Bull, who now took the reins which had fallen from the hands of madame, a few days put a different complexion on affairs. Margery knew where her aunt kept the money, and Miss Bull made several of the boarders behindhand pay up. Thus there was enough money to go on with, and Miss Bull decided to wait until after the funeral before deciding what she intended to do herself. When Mrs. Jersey was buried her lawyer made his appearance with the will. It was read to Margery, and Miss Bull stopped beside the poor girl as the only friend she had in the world. The will was short and concise, as it seemed that there was very little to leave. The lawyer read it and then looked at Margery to hear what she had to say.

"You do exactly what you like, dear Miss Bull," said Margery, rising, and then turned to the lawyer. "Let Miss Bull do exactly as she likes. I leave all in her hands."

"The most sensible thing you can do," said the legal adviser under his breath, and when Margery had left the room he turned to the old maid. "Is she an idiot?"

"By no means. But she is not very clever. I have taken a great interest in her, as, to tell you the truth, Mr. James, she was badly treated by her aunt."

"It is lucky she has such a friend," said Mr. James.

"About this will," said Miss Bull, laying one thin finger on the document. "Madame leaves to Margery Watson, her niece, the money in the green box in her sitting room and also her jewels."

"Yes. Also, if you will recollect, the clothes of the deceased lady."

"Is there nothing else?" asked Miss Bull, raising her black eyes inquiringly. "What of the lease of this house?"

"That is the property of Lord Derrington, and he only let the house to Mrs. Jersey by the year."

"Is not that rather strange?"

"Very strange. But the whole connection of Lord Derrington with my late client is strange. I know that she received from him an annuity of £500 a year and the lease of this house—by the year, remember—from December to December. Now she is dead the annuity lapses. The lease ends on the 31st of December and it will not be renewed. Lord Derrington, so far as I know, has no interest in Miss Margery Watson."

"What interest had he in Mrs. Jersey?" asked Miss Bull, scenting a scandal, and her eyes brightening.

"I can't tell you that, and if I could I would not."

"Quite right. I beg your pardon for asking, but you see, in the interest of that poor girl, I wish to know exactly how matters stand."

"They stand as I tell you," said James, and he rose to go. "I have nothing more to do in the matter, and my connection with the late Mrs. Jersey ceases here."

"One moment," said Miss Bull quietly. "What of the furniture?"

"That is also the property of Lord Derrington. He bought the house as it stood from the executor of the last owner, Mr. Anthony Lockwood, fifteen years ago. Mrs. Jersey wished to set up a boarding house, so Lord Derrington placed her in here. Every stick in the place belongs to him. Should Miss Watson leave, she goes with the jewels, the money in the green box and with her deceased aunt's clothes."

THE YANKEE MAN'S BURDEN.

United States Having Trouble With the Dominican Authorities.

Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, Feb. 11.—Rear Admiral Sigsbee has notified the Dominican authorities that if any harm is done to Lieutenant Commander Leiper, the United States cruiser Detroit's executive officer, who is in charge of the Custom House in Monte Cristi, they would be held responsible for the consequences. He landed alone, without arms, and some persons threatened him.

The authorities in Monte Cristi pretend that they have received no instructions from the Dominican Government to hand over the direction of the Custom House. The telegraph wires are being cut.

Merchandise landed from the Seminole has been placed in bond. As the Dominican authorities decline to permit Lieutenant Commander Leiper to despatch it to its destination, Rear-Admiral Sigsbee also refuses to let the Dominican collector act. The people are threatening to take the goods by force. The cruiser Newark kept a searchlight on the Custom House last night and had boats ready to land bluejackets in case of any trouble.

Many persons of unimportant standing in Monte Cristi have signed a protest against the protocol, but, generally speaking, it is accepted gladly by the rest of the country as being the best arrangement for the settlement of the claims and debts. The country is perfectly quiet.

CAUGHT ON AN ICE FLOE.

Crew of British Brig Have Awful Experience in Woods.

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 11.—The crew of the British brig Vidonia, which was caught in an ice floe and blizzard while bound out of this port Tuesday night, were found Thursday wandering in the woods and badly frost-bitten, and were taken to Petty Harbor. The Vidonia was broken up amid the ice floes Wednesday night, and the crew abandoned the wreck and reached land on foot on the ice. Being unacquainted with the coast, they were compelled to remain on the beach all night unsheltered in a gale and snow. A furious storm was raging on Thursday morning when they left the beach and attempted to find a settlement. Losing their way they wandered through the woods and were in dire extremity when a rescuing party from Petty Harbor found them, too feeble to walk further, and carried them back to that village on dog sleds.

The brig Energy, which was also held fast in the ice, held together until yesterday, but it is feared she will go to pieces, as a heavy sea was running.

WHOLE TRAIN DITCHED.

Narrow Escape of Passengers 400 Yards From Bridge.

Medicine Hat, N.W.T., Feb. 11.—No. 1, the westbound transcontinental express of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in charge of Conductor Burton, was ditched Thursday night.

The entire train left the track with the exception of the engine.

The accident was caused by a broken rail.

The injuries received by the passengers were so slight that it was unnecessary for any to be removed to the hospital, although a special train was sent to the scene of the accident from Medicine Hat with physicians.

The accident occurred only 400 yards from a bridge.

One of the [illegible] cars was completely [illegible], but the passenger coaches remained on the tracks.

The [illegible] were brought to Medicine Hat on a special, and a new train made up here will carry them on [illegible] to the coast.

RAPID TRANSIT TO NEW LISKEARD.

Settlers Given Quick Schedule and Government Line Prospers.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—J. H. Black, traffic manager of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, was in the city yesterday trying to arrange for joint freight rates with the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways on settlers' effects going into New Ontario.

A great number of settlers are now going into the country and the traffic receipts so far have exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the management. A train of new cars now runs from North Bay at 10 a.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, which arrives at New Liskeard about 6 o'clock the same evening. By taking the midnight train from Toronto on Sunday, Tuesday or Thursday nights the New Ontario settler can arrive at New Liskeard at 6 o'clock that evening.

His Head Torn Off By Crane.

Montreal, Feb. 11.—Amedie Dausais, a young man of 24 years, employed by the C.P.R. at the Angus shops, suffered the terrible fate yesterday of having his head torn off by a steam crane. The young man in some way got entangled in the machinery, and before the horrified onlookers could stop the machinery the headless body fell to the ground.

French Cruiser Sinks.

Paris, Feb. 11.—According to a private despatch received at Toulon last night the French cruiser Sully, which hit a rock in Allong Bay, northwest of the Red River Delta, Tonquin, has glided off the rocks and sunk. There is no confirmation of this report.

Found Dead in Bed.

What Sulphur Does.

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and, mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a teaspoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health: sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this remedy."

At any rate, people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers, a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

Lever's Y-Z (Wise Head) Disinfectant Soap Powder is a boon to any home. It disinfects and cleans at the same time.

INTENTIONS OF JAPAN

After War is Ended Will Aim to Be China's Principal Adviser.

Mikado's Ambition Now Is to Invade a Small Portion of Russian Territory—Armies Closely in Touch All Along the Line of Front—Both Japs and Russians Harassing Each Other—Vladivostock Blockaded.

London, Feb. 11.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Tokio claims the best authority for the statement that Japan intends after the war to establish herself in Pekin as China's principal adviser.

The correspondent adds that the warship which Japan is reported to have purchased is said to be the Chilean battleship Captain Pratt. The negotiations, he continues, were carried on through an American firm. The orders for four large battleships have been placed in England, and also contracts for guns to the value of $2,500,000.

The Japanese ambition he says undoubtedly now is to invade a small portion of actual Russian territory, and an active siege of Vladivostock, therefore, is expected soon.

Armies Closely in Touch.

Headquarters of the Russian Army, Huanshan, Feb. 11.—At present the attention of the Japanese is mainly concentrated on the narrow line east and west of the railway, where also pass the two main roads to Mukden. The armies are closely in touch all along the line of Sandiapu, Fuchsingtun, Chenlianpu, Liuchangtun and Shakhe.

Notwithstanding the numbers of the quasi-fortresses, the Japanese are not slackening their energy in entrenching, but persist in working in the daytime in the face of the Russian batteries, and at night the loud noise of rumbling of carts gives evidence of their untiring labors.

The Russians are equally persistent, and besides harrassing the Japanese working parties with rifle and canon fire, themselves are fortifying and re-fortifying.

Rojestvensky's Crews Dispirited.

Port Louis, Mauritius, Feb. 11.—Arrivals from Nossi Be (off the coast of Madagascar), report that the Russian second Pacific squadron was still there on Feb. 2. The Russian ships will not leave Nossi before Feb. 28. They are getting little news from St. Petersburg and the crews are dispirited owing to the fall of Port Arthur.

Japs Blockade Vladivostock.

Tokio, Feb. 11.—Information given out by the Navy Department last night shows that the harbor of Vladivostock has been practically blockaded by the Japanese naval forces.

Entry to Vladivostock from the sea is now limited to Tsushima Straits (Straits of Corea) and Tsugaru Straits (between Hokkaido Island and the Island of Hondo). The Soya Straits (La Perouse Straits, between the Island of Hokkaido and the Island of Sakhalin) are barred by ice.

Reports received here from Hokkaido (the northernmost island of Japan) and also from coasting vessels say Soya Straits are not frozen over, but are filled with floes and bergs, making navigation practically impossible.

It was reported from Vladivostock, under date of Feb. 1, that the Russian armored cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi had been repaired, but it is doubted whether they will emerge from the harbor on account of the extensive seizures by the Japanese of coal-laden ships bound for Vladivostock. Large stocks have been purchased by Japan, which has not ceased purchasing coal.

Kuropatkin Loses Will Power.

New York, Feb. 11.—The Herald's correspondent in St. Petersburg cables: This town is talking of nothing else but the return of General Grippenberg and the revelation he will make. Society is divided into parties over it, taking sides for either of the generals.

Dr. Botkine, who has returned from the front, expresses himself freely that General Kuropatkin is suffering from a malady taking the form of loss of will power. Coming from such an eminent physician, this opinion causes a sensation.

The town is perfectly calm. Alarmist rumors circulated yesterday are a humbug.

I am told on what I am bound to consider good authority that the grand ducal party has decided definitely in favor of peace on the best terms obtainable. This is the result of a meeting at which a vote was taken.

Where Grippenberg Rests.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 11.—General Grippenberg, former commander of the second Manchurian army, is resting in the doctors' hands, near Irkutsk, Siberia. The Emperor has sent an aide-de-camp to the general to receive important documents which General Grippenberg intended to personally hand to His Majesty.

Stoessel Arrives At Aden.

Aden, Arabia, Feb. 11.—The French Line steamer Australien, from Japan via Shanghai and Colombo, with General Stoessel and his party on board, arrived here yesterday.

Dies At Stratford.

Stratford, Feb. 11.—William Mowat, a resident of Stratford since 1855, died yesterday afternoon. Two weeks ago he had a stoke of paralysis from which he did not recover. He was proprietor of The Stratford Beacon until 1863. Later he conducted a private bank, which failed a few years ago.

To Be Tried April 10.

Sandwich, Feb. 11.—Samuel Jarvis, held on the charge of shooting Sergt. Nash of the Windsor police force, was arraigned before Judge Horne yesterday morning, and elected to be tried at the Sandwich Spring Assizes, April 10.

ONLY ROUTINE BUSINESS.

New Cabinet Authorizes Patents For New Companies.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—At yesterday's meeting of the Provincial Cabinet a number of Orders-in-Council were passed, creating joint stock companies. No matters of policy were discussed.

Edward Gurney, one of the Temiskaming Railway Commissioners, called upon the Premier, but nothing was said about the resignation of the Commissioners.

Hon. Mr. Monteith got through early and went home, as did Hon. Dr. Reaume. Hon. W. J. Hanna stayed in his office till after 6 o'clock, and has a number of routine matters for his consideration to-day, which will prevent his making a week-end trip to his home. The Premier will also remain in Toronto over Sunday. He has not yet decided when he will move his family to this city.

Premier Whitney met representatives of the press at noon yesterday and promised to have the suggested improvements to the press gallery carried out at once. A spiral stairway will be cut immediately behind the Speaker's chair.

Premier Whitney, when asked by a Globe representative as to the truth of a newspaper report that the Cabinet had decided to give the leader of the Opposition a salary equal to that received by a Cabinet Minister, replied: "It is news to me. The leader of the Opposition will, as was formerly the case, have a secretary during the sessions. But the question of a salary has not been discussed or considered by me, nor has it been brought to my attention other than in the report mentioned.

Premier Whitney has appointed Horace Wallis of The Mail and Empire staff his private secretary.

Arthur Sample, private secretary to the late Premier, is acting in that capacity for Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary.

Yesterday, armed with his appointment from the late Administration, Robert E. English presented himself to Governor Vanzant and awaited installation as Deputy Governor. The Governor received him cordially, but declined to accept the appointment until the new Provincial Secretary confirms it.

Few People Realize

The Danger in That Common Disease, Catarrh.

Because catarrhal diseases are so common and because catarrh is not rapidly fatal, people too often overlook and neglect it until some incurable ailment develops as a result of the neglect.

The inflamed condition of the membrane of the nose and throat makes a fertile soil for the germs of Pneumonia and Consumption, in fact catarrhal pneumonia and catarrhal consumption are the most common forms of these dreaded diseases, which annually cause more than one-quarter of the deaths in this country.

Remedies for catarrh are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but very few have any actual merit as a cure, the only good derived being simply a temporary relief.

There is, however, a very effective remedy recently discovered, which is rapidly becoming famous for its great value in relieving and permanently curing all forms of catarrhal diseases, whether located in the head, throat, lungs or stomach.

The new catarrh cure is principally composed of a gum derived from the Eucalyptus tree, and this gum possesses extraordinary healing and antiseptic properties. It is taken internally in the form of a lozenge or tablet, pleasant to the taste and so harmless that little children take them with safety and benefit.

Eucalyptus oil and the bark are sometimes used, but are not so convenient, nor so palatable as the gum.

Undoubtedly the best quality is found in Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which may be found in any drug store and any catarrh sufferer who has tried douches, inhalers and liquid medicines, will be surprised at the rapid improvement after a few days' use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which are composed of the gum of the Eucalyptus tree, combined with other antiseptics which destroy the germs of catarrh in the blood and expel the catarrhal poison from the system.

Dr. Ramsdell, in speaking of Catarrh and its cure, says:—"After many experiments I have given up the idea of curing catarrh by the use of inhalers, washes, salves or liquid medicines. I have always had the best results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets; the red gum and other valuable antiseptics contained in these tablets make them, in my opinion, far superior to any of the numerous catarrh remedies so extensively advertised. The fact that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold in drug stores, under protection of a trade mark, should not prejudice conscientious physicians against them because their undoubted merit and harmless character make them a remedy which every catarrh sufferer may use with perfect safety and the prospect of a permanent cure.

For colds in the head, for coughs, catarrhal deafness and catarrh of the stomach and liver, people who have tried them say that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a household necessity.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for idemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Nationals Won.

The Young Nationals added another victory to their string yesterday, when they journeyed to Port Hope and administered a scientific trimming to the Trinity College juniors. The score at the half was 3—0 and at full time 4—2 in favor of the Nationals. The College boys had the advantage in weight but the Nationals were faster and played better combination. It was a fast and clean exhibition, only one man being penalized. The Nationals lined up as follows—

Goal—L. Giroux.
Point—Conroy.
Cover point—Pentland, capt.
Rover—Coughlin.
Centre—O. Giroux.
Right wing—Gorman.

T.A.S. in Finals.

Last night's victory puts T.A.S. in the finals with Cobourg and Fenelon Falls. Home and home games will be played between the three, the first in Fenelon Falls on Tuesday, between T.A.S. and the home team. If the locals play the hockey they have been doing they should go a long way towards winning the championship.

Fast Juniors

The Young Nationals have a record of eight straight victories in which they have scored [illegible] goals to 9. Most of their victories have been scored over teams much heavier than themselves.

During a hockey match on Thursday night at Pembroke, Mackie and Ryan and Dalahay and Co., Robert Fraser, aged 16, son of Mr. Robert Fraser, fell on the ice, breaking his neck. He died instantly.

No. 2 District, T.V.L.

The standing of No. 2 district, T.V.L., is as follows—

	Won.	Lost.

Friday's Game.

Next Friday's game with Markham will be one of the best exhibitions of the season. The visitors have been playing great hockey and it will keep the locals guessing to beat them. They captured No. 3 district from Marlboros II, Waverly I, St. George's II and Newmarket, defeating all the Toronto teams right in Hogtown, and it takes a pretty fast bunch to do that. The locals are practicing faithfully, and are going to stop the visitors' winning streak, if possible. At all events it will be a great exhibition.

Change in Schedule.

A change has been made in the third round of the intermediate O.H.A. series. Instead of Markham playing here Tuesday the locals will journey to the tournament town on that night, while the Markhamites will play the return game here on Friday night. It will be the game of the season.

The Riversides, of Peterborough, will play a game of hockey with Bobcaygeon this evening in the northern village.

Two rinks of Peterborough curlers journeyed to Lakefield yesterday and defeated their opponents on their own stamping grounds, the visitors being one up at the finish. Skip C. N. Browne was defeated by Skip L. Payne by 7 points, and Skip S. Clegg defeated Skip Strickland by 8 points. The other members of Mr. Brown's rink were F. McPherson, R. J. Winch and R. Neill and of Mr. Clegg's rink Geo. Stephenson, Jas. Bogue and T. Rutherford.

One from Belleville.

The Belleville Intelligencer arouses itself from the gloomy silence it has preserved since Cobourg trimmed the Belleville juniors, to make the following remark— :

"The Peterborough intermediates have captured two rounds in the O.H.A. series and look like good things until they bump up against Berlin. The Dutchmen should beat them easily."

Karnots vs. Colonials.

The Karnots will play the Colonials on Monday at 5.45 sharp. The Karnots will be represented by the following line-up:—

Goal—Kingscote.
Point—Dormer.
Cover Point—O'Dette.
Rover—Campbell.
Centre—Mulhern.
Left Wing—Gilman.
Right Wing—Quinn.

All the above players are requested to be on hand sharp on time.

Colonials to Practice.

The Colonials are requested to be at the Brock-st. rink on Monday afternoon at 5.30 o'clock sharp, as they will practice with the Karnots at 5.45.

REASON № 12
WHY YOU SHOULD USE

Red Rose Tea

Because it is Recommended by the Best Grocers.

You will generally find Red Rose Tea in a store which deals in standard brands of high-class goods.

These are the merchants who do not look for goods which give them the largest profit, because it pays them best to sell goods which are the most reliable and give their customers the greatest satisfaction.

Ask a grocer of this kind his opinion of Red Rose Tea—his opinion will be honest, because nearly all other teas pay him a larger profit than Red Rose. He probably uses it in his own house, and will tell you in a very few words why he recommends it.

REAPED AS HE SOWED.

The Crop That Was Raised by Meissonier's Clever Gardener.

Meissonier, like many other celebrities, had a passon for gardening. His gardener, an accomplished botanist, knew to perfection the seeds of every plant, and his master had often tried in vain to throw him off his guard.

"This time I have him," the artist remarked to a party of friends at the dinner table. And he showed them a packet containing the dried roe of a herring. He then sent for the gardener.

"Do you know this seed?" Meissonier inquired.

The gardener carefully scrutinized the grains.

"Why not?" he said at last. "They are the seeds of the 'Polpus finnamus,' a very rare tropical plant."

"How long will they be coming up?" Meissonier asked, with a chuckle of suppressed exultation.

"About a fortnight," was the reply.

Two weeks later the guests were again assembled at Meissonier's table, and after dinner the gardener was announced.

"M. Meissonier," the man said, "the seed has just come up."

"Ah, you surprise me!" the artist exclaimed as he rose and led the way into the garden to examine the botanical phenomenon.

The gardener lifted a glass shade and disclosed to view a small bed with three rows of pickled herrings' heads peeping out of the earth. Everybody laughed. Meissonier dismissed the gardener on the spot, but took him on again next day.

THE DANCE IN SPAIN.

It is an Essential Part of the Life of the People.

Dancing is a universal instinct with Spanish women. The great annual feria at Seville is largely an orgy of dancing. As evening approaches everywhere one begins to hear the sound of castanets and to see the gracious movements of the seguidilla, the universal Andalusian dance.

But the fundamental instincts of the Spaniard for dancing and the serious and profound way in which it expresses the temperament of the people are perhaps shown by nothing else so much as by the existence of religious dancing in Spain. At the time of St. Thomas of Villaneuva, bishop of Valencia, it was customary to dance before the sacred elements in the churches of Seville, Toledo, Jeres and Valencia. Religious dancing continued to be common in Catalonia and in Roussillon (the most Spanish of the French provinces) up to the seventeenth century.

But a real and unique survival of religious dancing is the dance of the seises in Seville cathedral, when the choristers, wearing the same costume as they were 400 years ago, perform a dance to the accompaniment of castanets in the space between the high altar and the choir.

Dancing is something more than an amusement in Spain. It is part of that solemn ritual which enters into the whole life of the people.—Twentieth Century Home.

Tree That Turns to Stone.

There is a tree that grows in Mexico called the chijol, or stone tree. It is of enormous proportions, both in circumference and height. It has a number of branches spreading out widely and carrying leaves of a yellowish green color. The wood is extremely fine and easily worked in a green state. It is not given to either warping or splitting. The most remarkable thing about it is that after being cut the wood gets gradually harder, and in the course of a few years it is absolutely petrified whether left in the open air or buried in the ground. From this timber houses can be built that would in a few years become completely fireproof and would last as long as though built of stone.

SHE FOUND A DIFFERENCE.

A Buffalo Lady says— Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill differs from the old Method in Medicine as day from night.

Mrs. J. H. Rebera, of 169 London St., Buffalo, N.Y., says of Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill—the Great System Treatment:

"Its action is so different to anything else I ever used—Anti-Pill is so mild and gentle that I never thought it would cure my chronic Constipation, but it did.

"Soon after the birth of my first child, 14 years ago, Constipation became troublesome. I used everything I heard of, but temporary relief was all I got. I must have used fifty different medicines in that time.

"I finally got very bad and at times I would have no relish for food, and what I did eat would distress me afterwards. I had headache, bloating, bearing down pains, backache, could not sleep well, easily tired and never felt rested.

"From the very first dose of Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill I began to improve. Now I am well. It is wonderful."

Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill is sold by all druggists, or The Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont. Sole agents for Canada. The price is 50c.

Names of Tennessee Towns.

When it came to naming her towns Tennessee did not forget the Good Book. She put an Ark in Meigs county, a Noah in Coffee, a Genesis in Cumberland, a St. John and a St. Luke in Jackson, a Joshua here and a Caleb there, here an Elijah and there a Samuel. Ruth and Naomi were not forgotten, and two Ebenezers were raised up, one in Knox and one in Humphreys county.

But Tennessee did not lay too much stress on Scriptural names. On the other hand, looking at the map one may readily ascertain that in the naming of her towns Tennessee played no favorites. From mythology she obtained Juno, Venus, Vulcan, Bacchus, Diana, Hercules, Neptune, Olympus and Delphi; from Shakespeare Romeo and Othello; from the Greek alphabet Alpha, Beta and Omega; from the church Methodist, Baptist, Priest, Pope, Friar and Tabernacle; from the family hearth Mamy, Bud, Aunt, Home and Family; from the poets Dante, Milton and Homer.

English Tailors' Vernacular.

The plaintiff in a recent libel action was not the "ninth part of a man" or he would have known that "jiggery-pokery" was tailor's slang for humbug. There are still many terms employed by the trade which are unknown to the outside public, and some of them show a pretty turn of fancy.

A young lady friend is a "long haired chum," a man's wife is his "left forepart," and the master's wife is the "marm puss" or "jiffness." "Legs and arms" is beer with no body in it, and to "give his pint for a man" means that he will vouch for him to the utmost of his power. Going to America is "crossing the damp pot." To spoil anything is to "make pig or pork" of it. A badly worked buttonhole is a "dead sow's eye," and a collar or lapel too large for the coat is a "pig's lug." A "paralytic fit" is a misfit, and a "misfit" is a man of awkward figure.—London Chronicle.

A Legend of the Seven Stars.

To the naked eye six of the Pleiades, or "Seven Stars," seem to be of about the same magnitudes, while the seventh is very dim. The dim star, the legend says, is Merope, one of the seven daughters of Atlas and Pleione, and her paleness is a punishment visited upon her for having married a mortal. The other sisters all married gods. Alcyone and Celaeno married Neptune. Electra, Maia and Taygeta were wedded to Jupiter and Sterope to Mars. Poor Merope united herself to Sisyphus, a common mortal, and was doomed to eternal dimness for her rash act. Besides this her husband must throughout all eternity roll a huge stone up a hill. As soon as it gets to the summit it rolls back, and his never ending task is again resumed.

Iodine.

If iodine be taken continuously for a length of time what is known as iodism results. Different individuals are affected differently by this drug. There are three forms of iodic intoxication—first, that in which the symptoms are those of gastric irritation; second, that characterized by nervous troubles, neuralgia, ringing in the ears, convulsive movements, disturbed intellect, and, third, that characterized by rapid emaciation, commencing mostly in the face, and severe nervous palpitations of the heart, with excessive appetite, which sometimes precedes and sometimes follows the loss of flesh. These symptoms are said to be most easily induced in goitrous persons.

FIERCE BLAZE IN NORTH MONAGHAN

House Occupied by Mr. John O'Brien Totally Destroyed.

NO INSURANCE ON CONTENTS

Occupants Had Narrow Escape—Contents Were Consumed—Local Fire Fighters Present But Unable to do Much—House Property of Mr. J. J. Lundy.

A disastrous fire occurred early yesterday morning in North Monaghan, by which the house occupied by Mr. John O'Brien and owned by Mr. J. J. Lundy, of town, was totally destroyed with its contents. The house, a red brick building, situated on the east side of the G.T.R. track on the road south of the Roman Catholic cemetery, was burned to the ground, and none of the contents were saved. The occupants escaped in their night clothes.

Just how the fire originated is a mystery, but it is supposed to have started in the woodshed adjoining the house. The family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien and nine children, the eldest of which is about fourteen years, retired early. About half-past three one of the children woke up and found the house a mass of flames. The family got out with difficulty, some of the children being taken out through the windows in their night clothes.

The fire had been noticed in town, and a sleigh in charge of driver Parnell and carrying seven or eight fire fighters went down to the scene of devastation. When they got there they found a number of neighbors fighting the flames with snow and other means. Of course, the local firemen were unable to do much on account of the scarcity of water, but they carried the children on a mattress over to Mr. Williams', who is the nearest neighbor. The little ones were almost perishing with cold.

The barns and outhouses were saved owing to the energetic efforts of the neighbors, but the house was totally destroyed. It was the property of Mr. J. J. Lundy, of town, and was valued at $600, $400 of which is covered by insurance in the London and Liverpool Insurance Co. There was no insurance on the contents, which were all consumed.

Mr. O'Brien worked for three hours in the bitter cold, protected only by his night clothes and a blanket, to save his barn and its contents, and was at last successful after tearing down some of the other outbuildings.

BRIGHT AND ARTISTIC

Elaborate Premises Being Fitted Up by the New Firm of Pappas Bros.

The Greek firm, Pappas Bros., will open a shoe shining parlor at No. 337 George street, recently occupied by C. Wilbelmy, that will be the most elaborately fitted and furnished between Toronto and Montreal. The alterations being made are very extensive. The large double doors now on the south side of the front will be placed in the centre. Inside the base is marble, as is the stand containing the foot rests for those who want a shine. The customer will sit on a very easy cushioned chair, while the walls are lined with expensive plate glass mirrors. All is decorated with handsome brass fittings. The back of this store is being fitted up as a shooting gallery, which will be equally as well arranged as the front. The same firm have commenced remodelling the premises on the corner of George and Charlotte streets, lately occupied by George Carton, as a grocery store. These premises, the firm promise, will excell anything in its line ever established in Canada. It will be the middle of March before both places are completed and ready for regular business.

STILL HARPING AWAY.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir—I notice that the Examiner is still harping away on the wonderful administrative powers of the Ross government and hints that the Whitney party can't possibly produce men good enough to fill their shoes. What bosh! Utter rubbish! Does the Examiner claim that such men as Davis, Latchford, Stratton, Mackay and Graham are heaven-born statesmen? Or are they merely smart politicians.

The editor of the Examiner can go out on George street to-day at noon and pick up twenty men who could safely be put in charge of the departments managed by those I named and make just as good a job of their work. It is time the Examiner stopped whining—it will find out soon enough that all the good apples don't grow on one tree. Yours,

RECEPTION TO DR. REAUME.

Minister of Public Works Promises to Administer For the People.

Windsor, Feb. 13.—Friends, neighbors, political allies and political opponents to the number of nearly 500 gathered in the old Masonic Temple here Saturday afternoon for the purpose of extending congratulations and best wishes to their fellow-citizen, Dr. Joseph O. Reaume, M.P.P., upon his election to the Whitney Cabinet. The reception was participated in by nearly every prominent Conservative in the riding of North Essex.

President Cada, after stating the object of the meeting, explained that, owing to the necessity for Dr. Reaume's immediate return to Toronto, a formal welcome and reception had been arranged for a later date. He then called upon Dr. Reaume, who was received with cheers and the greatest enthusiasm. After thanking his friends for the loyal manner in which they had supported him in the late campaign, the new Minister said thay had not come to Windsor to discuss political issues. As regards his new duties in the Cabinet he could only say that the promises made in the campaign by Mr. Whitney to give a clean and honest Government to the people of Ontario would be carried out in their entirety and that so far as his own department was concerned he could only say that all his actions would be in full accord with his leader and that he would do his utmost to conduct the Department of Public Works as it should be done for the best interests of the people. He would return to Windsor in time for the bye-election on the 21st inst., he said and he trusted to be returned by acclamation.

Stirring addresses were also delivered by Dr. H. R. Casgrain, Mayor Wigle, Solomon White and others.

Up to date we are enjoying an old time Canadian winter, in the steady, bracing cold, and the snows.

Our enterprising sawyer, Mr. Smith, is doing more than the usual trade in turning the logs into boards.

The Point Mill, about four miles up the river, has been moved down to Campbelltown, and is being profitably operated by Mr. J. Millar.

Mr. Geo. Finnie, sr., of Carman, Man., visited relatives in and around here recently.

Mr. Arthur Fletcher and family, of Deloraine, are again enjoying the charms of winter in Ontario.

Local aid in connection with the Woman's Missionary Society was considered by members present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Emberson, on Tuesday afternoon, 7th inst.

Mr. Geo. Finnie, jr., and cousin, Mr. T. Dawson, are profitably spending the winter months attending the commercial college at Belleville.

Mrs John Emberson received an answer recently from Miss Monroe, in behalf of the W.F.M.S., who is acting as missionary to a settlement of Galicians, near Edmonton, Alberta. Miss Monroe, who has had experience in the work in the Far East, in writing to Bensfort, acknowledged the receipt from here of valuable goods in the way of clothing, sent to her for distribution.

BISHOP O'CONNOR'S PASTORAL ON ERECTION OF NEW DIOCESE

His Lordship Reviews What Has Been Accomplished During Past Fifteen Years.

SEVENTY-TWO NEW CHURCHES BUILT

Forty-nine of These Were Within the Limits of the Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie—Nineteen Presbyteries Have Been Erected—Catholic Population is About 27,000—Severing of Happy and Intimate Ties Causes Pang of Regret—The New bishop Has Proved Pious, Zealous and Energetic Pastor.

REV. FATHER SCOLLARD,
Who has been appointed Bishop of the new diocese of Sault Ste. Marie.

In St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday morning Rev. Father McColl read the following pastoral letter of the Right Reverend Bishop of Peterborough on the erection of the Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie, and the appointment of the Right Reverend David Joseph Scollard to the new Episcopal See.

Richard Alphonsus O'Connor, by the grace of God and the favor of the Holy See, Bishop of Peterborough.

To the Clergy, Religious Communities and Laity of our Diocese, health, peace and benediction in the Lord:

Dearly Beloved Brethren:

The Apostolic See, ever watchful over the interests of the Catholic Church, and solicitous for the spiritual needs of her members in every portion of the Christian Commonwealth, places Bishops to rule the Church of God, and dispense the mysteries of religion to the faithful. As country becomes more populous, and the wants of the people are multiplied, new Dioceses are created and Bishops are appointed to direct and govern them.

On account of the large influx of settlers of late years into New Ontario, which embraces the northern and western part of the Diocese of Peterborough, the Holy See has been petitioned to establish a new Diocese in that district.

Our Holy Father Pius X. has been graciously pleased to grant our request and has erected the new Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie, which comprises the western part of Nipissing District, the Districts of Algoma and Thunder Bay, including Manitoulin and St. Joseph Islands. This new Diocese will extend from North Bay west about 810 miles to the eastern limit of the Rainy River District, whilst the Diocese of Peterborough will comprise the Counties of Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough and Victoria, with the Districts of Muskoka and Parry Sound.

RAPID GROWTH

A glance at what has been accomplished in the western portion of the Diocese during the fifteen years of our administration will, no doubt, be interesting, as well as showing the rapid growth of the Catholic population in that district. During that time, 72 churches have been built, 49 of which are within the limits of the new Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie. In addition, 22 other churches have been enlarged or improved. To provide suitable dwellings for the clergy, 19 Presbyteries have been erected, and of these, 13 are in the new Diocese. Four hospitals have been constructed, and three of these are located in important towns of the new Diocese, viz.—Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur, and Sudbury—suitable centres to afford relief and consolation to the sick and injured that are brought from the surrounding districts. In most of the parishes and missions Catholic schools are established, where the children receive religious and moral training. Moreover, there are about 6000 Catholic Indians, or 82 per cent. of the total Indian population in the Diocese. These are provided with three boarding schools, where the children are educated and trained by devoted and self-sacrificing Sisters, under the direction of the Jesuit Fathers. Besides, there are several day schools where the rudiments of a religious and literary education are imparted to these aborigines.

LARGE TERRITORY

The Catholic population of the Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie, is about 27,000, with 35 priests and 64 churches whilst the Catholic population of what will henceforth constitute the Diocese of Peterborough, is about 24,000, with 29 priests and 45 churches. Thus, the new Diocese will contain a larger extent of territory and also a greater number of priests to attend to the spiritual welfare of the people.

From these few details it can be easily perceived why the Holy Father was pleased to establish a new Diocese and appoint a Bishop, who will build upon the foundations already laid, and continue more effectually the works of religion in that section of the Province. In the action taken to urge the partition of our Diocese, we sought not to avoid the burden of personal labor in God's vineyard, but were actuated by the desire of providing for the increasing demands of religion and of promoting the expansion of the church. Experience has taught us that many of the descendants of the early Catholic settlers of Ontario have been lost to the Faith, owing to scarcity of priests, who would seek them in their isolated homes, and to the want of churches in which they might assist at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, receive the Sacraments and secure a knowledge of their religion.

THE NEW BISHOP.

Our Holy Father, Pius X., has selected as Bishop of this new Diocese Right Rev David Joseph Scollard, pastor of the flourishing parish of North Bay. For several years he was our secretary and chancellor, and discharged the duties of these offices with marked ability and fidelity. During the past nine years he has proved himself a pious, zealous and energetic pastor, whose labors have been blessed with much fruit and great success. The faithful of the diocese of Sault Ste. Marie will find in their new Bishop a kind and loving father, who will be ever ready to encourage them in their undertakings and sympathise with them in their trials. We part with one of our devoted and gifted priests, a true friend who has ever been loyal to his church an obedient to his Bishop.

For many years past the opportunities for the development of New Ontario in agriculture, commerce, mining, manufacturing and other industries have been recognised, thereby causing a large increase in population.

It has been our constant desire that our religion should keep pace with the material advancement of the country. Hence our motive for building churches and schools where ever possible. the establishing of an Episcopal See in the midst of this extensive district will carry out our designs in regard to religious progress, and will encourage Catholics to flock into the vacant and fertile lands of these regions and to the centres of industrial enterprises.

PANG OF REGRET

The severing of the happy and intimate ties that bound us to the faithful of the new Diocese causes a pang of regret, and our heart is deeply moved at the thought of bidding farewell to this part of our beloved flock However, as the separation is for the greater advancement of God's church and the promotion of religion, we willingly make the sacrifice of our personal feelings.

We cannot forget the many sacrifices made by the new settlers to preserve the traditions of their fathers, and build up the works of religion and education in their new homes. With pleasure, we recall the many pastoral visitations to the distant missions of our Diocese, when we witnessed the strong faith of the people and their attachment to the practices of their religion, as well as their reverence and expressions of joy in receiving their Bishop into their humble dwellings. Our purpose was to bring them the blessings of Heaven and offer them words of encouragement and advice for their spiritual and temporal progress.

INDIAN MISSIONS

How edifying and consoling, on visiting the Indian missions, to behold the fervent faith and reverential conduct of those beloved children whose simple piety and fervor might well be imitated by those who enjoy a larger share of the benefits of civilization and learning.

We shall ever remember the noble and zealous Jesuit Fathers who have proved themselves worthy disciples of St. Ignatius in training the Indians to follow in the path of religion and infusing into them habits of morality, sobriety and industry. To these fellow-laborers who have charge also of the parishes and missions in the new Diocese, must be attributed the glorious successes attained by God's Church in this extensive district. They have borne the heat of summer and endured the hardships of winter, in bringing the Bread of Life and announcing of the word of God to the faithful of the sparse missions of early years and the more populous parishes of recent times. Like the Good Shepherd, they have labored in season and out of season, searching after the scattered sheep, guiding them into the true fold and to the fountain of living waters. Nor can we fail to extol the zeal and self-sacrifice of our secular clergy, who have likewise labored energetically in building up religion in the missions entrusted to them.

SELF-DENIAL.

We cannot praise too highly the religious Communities whose members are devoted to forming the moral and intellectual character of the youth, or consecrated by their life of charity, to alleviate the sufferings of the sick and helpless members of our Divine Lord. Their life of self-denial in promoting works of education and charity have won for them the love and reverence of the members of our Church, as well as the admiration and esteem of those who do not share our faith. Truly they are the spotless virgins who, after saving and relieving the afflicted of God's children, will be amongst those who in Heaven "sing a new canticle before the throne and follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth, . . . for they are without spot before the throne of God."—Apoc. xiv. 3, 4, 5.

We bid a paternal and affectionate farewell to all our beloved priests, devoted Sisters, and faithful people of the Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie Though no longer their Bishop we shall ever retain a pleasant memento of the many visitations we made to the parishes and missions, when we were amply repaid for the inconveniences attendant upon travel in a new country by the ardent faith and fervent piety we witnessed in these pioneers of religion.

AN EXHORTATION.

In conclusion, Dearly Beloved, we earnestly exhort you to pray Almighty God to bestow upon the new Bishop, in abundance, the graces of the Holy Spirit, that he may be spared for many years to zealously labor for the advancement of religion and the salvation of souls; that the Holy Ghost may enlighten, protect and guide him in all his ways; that the flock entrusted to his charge may afford him joy and consolation, that the priests and faithful co-operating with him, the Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie may become one of the most flourishing in the Province.

The Consecration will take place in our Cathedral, Peterborough, on Friday, February 24th, Feast of the Apostle St. Mathias.

This letter shall be read in all the churches and chapels of the Diocese as soon as convenient afterr its reception.

WARRANT FOR LEECH'S ARREST.

Liberal Organizer For the Province of Manitoba Is Wanted.

Winnipeg, Feb. 13.—Nothing has yet been ascertained as to the whereabouts of Rea Leech, Liberal organizer for this province, and therefore the warrant for his arrest, charging him with mutilating the Provencher Dominion voters' lists, has not been executed.

Fresh arrests of returning officers for other constituencies are expected and Conservatives claim to have evidence sufficient to unseat every Liberal in Manitoba with the exception of Dauphin, which went by acclamation.

The case against Returning Officer Ayotte, whose sensational evidence implicated Leech in the trial of Deputy Returning Officer Kitson and two more of his deputy returning officers for Provencher, will be heard to-day.

PANIC ON A TRAIN.

Crowded Second-Class C.P.R. Coach In Flames.

Peterboro', Feb. 13.—Friday night the occupants of one coach on the midnight C.P.R. express from Toronto to Montreal had an early morning experience and a narrow escape. Between Burketon and Peterboro' it is supposed that an oil lamp exploded, setting fire to a second-class coach filled with passengers, and when the train reached Peterboro' it was in flames. There was a stampede, the passengers rushing to another coach and leaving their baggage behind them. Here the coach was run on a siding, and the fire brigade called out extinguished the flames before it was completely destroyed.

Senate Opposes Roosevelt.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The Senate, by a vote of 50 to 9, Saturday passed an amendment to all the arbitration treaties substituting the word "treaty" for "agreement" in the second article of each. It was this amendment the President opposed. The treaties were then ratified. President Roosevelt sent a letter to Senator Cullom yesterday, announcing his intention to decline to submit to the other Governments the amended arbitration treaties.

Lew Wallace Sinking.

Crawfordville, Ind., Feb. 13.—Gen. Lew Wallace is sinking. The venerable soldier has been battling against death for nearly a week, with two nurses in attendance, and is declared to be at death's door. The friends and family of the general have been keeping his exact condition from the public, but late last night it was announced that his condition was hopeless.

PARENT HAS THE CARDS

Which Will Win Out For Him in the Quebec Emeute.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick Grants All the Parties Conferences On Sunday—Gouin Would Withdraw Opposition, But the Other Dissidents Want Parent's Head At Once—Parent Will Hang On.

Ottawa, Feb. 13.—While the utmost secrecy is maintained by common consent of the parties interested as to the result of the Federal interference in the Quebec Cabinet smash, enough has leaked out to indicate that Premier Parent holds the winning cards.

There were conferences yesterday in the office of the Minister of Justice, at which the dissidents met Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick. Mr. Parent arrived on Saturday morning, accompanied by his Cabinet adherent, Mr. Archambault. On Sunday morning Messrs. Gouin and Weir, two of the resigned Ministers, came to the capital. They were given a hearing by Sir Wilfrid and bound to maintain silence outside as to its purport.

Gouin Would Return.

It appears, however, that the offer was made by Mr. Gouin to withdraw his opposition, if not to recall his resignation, on condition of Mr. Parent's retirement after the session of the Provincial Legislature. To this the dissidents demurred. They maintained that the situation demanded Mr. Parent's immediate retirement, and nothing short of it would suit them and their friends.

The chief advocate in the Federal councils at Ottawa is Rodolphe Lemieux, Solicitor-General. But Mr. Parent's staunch champion is his law partner, Mr. Fitzpatrick, and the influence of the Minister of Justice, with the Prime Minister, seems to greatly outweigh that of the Solicitor-General. Thus has the disaffection at Quebec spread to the Federal capital so that Ottawa is at present the true storm centre.

Parent Will Hang On.

Moreover, Mr. Fitzpatrick's advocacy of Premier Parent's cause has been so effective here that Mr. Parent is making no secret of his determination to hang on to office and fight out the emeute to a finish with his opponents.

The part that the Minister of Inland Revenue is playing in the case is evidently that of a negotiator, pure and simple. If his services and influence are being exerted in favor of one side or the other he is artful enough concealing his hand.

Yesterday morning Mr. Brodeur took train for the east, and spent Sunday quietly at St. Hilaire, well out of the wrangle.

Mr. Parent is the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. Gendron, M. P. P., Hull, and will remain over till this afternoon to attend the funeral of the late John MacLaren, son of David MacLaren, vice-president of the Bank of Ottawa.

CHURCH AND STATE.

New French Cabinet Closely United On This Issue.

Paris, Fev. 13.—Premier Rouvier's ministry is still alive and even appears to be more firmly established. Debates in the Chamber and discussions in the press have shown that of the three reforms the ministry has adopted that on which it is most strongly united of all is the vote for the separation of church and state.

The other two reforms—that is to say, the income tax and workmen's pensions—present almost insolvable difficulties. For workingmen's pensions the necessary funds do not exist. As to the income tax, it is feared the taxpayers will be discontented.

On the other hand, the separation of church and state will not cost a cent and will even save money. That is why separation comes first.

It is almost certain there will be a majority of votes for this bill but we must not conceal the fact that with it we are entering into a period of interminable debates. This is the greatest event of the past week.

ROSS WILL GO TO BAHAMAS.

Will Lead Opposition in the House On His Return.

Toronto, Feb. 13.—Ex-Premier Ross will leave for the Bahamas shortly, probably Monday or Tuesday of next week. He said last night he had not quite decided on the date.

It is his intention to be away several weeks, and he may not be back for the opening of the session. On his return he will take his place as leader of the Opposition.

The Brockville Recorder, the organ of G. P. Graham, says: "Ere long Mr. Ross will be invited to a place in the Senate, and it goes without saying that the appointment would be very popular among all classes."

The early retirement of Mr. Ross is regarded by his followers as a certainty. He will probably lead the Opposition for one session only. In the event of his going to the Senate Mr Graham or A. G. MacKay will be in line for promotion The party will not be satisfied with one of the old leaders.

Sent Down For Three Years.

Regina, N.W.T., Feb. 13.—The trial of J. B. Davies was concluded Saturday at Regina. T. C. Johnstone, Crown prosecutor, called Messrs. Baubie, Boyd and McLeod, hotel proprietors of Virden, Whitewood and Regina, respectively, whom Davies had got to cash drafts. He drew on a fictitious company. A. M. Trant counsel for accused, put up the argument that Davies had made no false pretence. Judge Newlands, however, ruled that giving a succession of such drafts when the accused knew they would not be met, was false pretence by conduct, and he sentenced Davies to three years in the penitentiary.

STORM IN U.S. WEST.

Great Loss of Cattle Predicted—Poor in Cities Suffer.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 13.—Reports last night from Missouri, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, the Dakotas, Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Northern Texas, Indian Territory, Arkansas and Oklahoma, say that unusually cold weather prevails. High winds prevail in many localities, drifting the snow badly and delaying railroad traffic in all directions.

At Moran water tank, Kansas, yesterday a Missouri, Kansas and Texas double-header passenger train from Kansas City to Oklahoma City was wrecked. The water from the tank had formed a heavy coat of ice upon the rails which derailed the first engine, causing the second engine, two baggage cars and mail car to pile up. The engineer of the first engine was killed. From all parts of Oklahoma and Indian Territory come accounts of suffering as the result of the sudden northern storm, which began Saturday. The Territory is covered with a coat of ice and snow. Cattlemen say that range stock will suffer the greatest loss in years. In Northern Texas the worst blizzard in 10 years with the thermometer at zero and below prevails. The severe weather will inflict hundreds of dollars in loss to cattlemen. The poor in cities are suffering severely.

Sunday's Big Snowstorm.

Toronto, Feb. 13.—Ontario was again in the throes of Boreas yesterday, when a severe snowstorm blew in from the southwest. The storm was a general one, and extended west to Windsor and into the United States and north to Georgian Bay. The observatory reported the storm to be general throughout Ontario, with a fall at Buffalo about the same as at Toronto—about eight inches. In New England they had rain instead of snow. The highest temperature yesterday was 33, one degree above freezing, and the outlook for westerly winds, turning very much colder, which will last for several days. The snowstorm extended to Quebec, and the storm signals were displayed in the Maritime Provinces, where gales are expected. Nova Scotia is to be visited with rain.

Fortunately, the snow did not fall heavily for any continued length of time, and both the C.P.R. and G.T.R. found no great difficulty in keeping their lines open.

SHOT AT POLISH BISHOP.

Stranger Fired Two Revolver Shots At Bishop Kaminski of Buffalo.

Buffalo, Feb. 13.—An attempt to assassinate Bishop Kaminski of the Independent Catholic Church (Polish), was made Saturday night. Two revolver shots were fired at the bishop at close range, but he escaped uninjured. The would-be assassin escaped and no arrests has been made.

A stranger called at Bishop Kaminski's house late Saturday evening. He asked for the bishop, who at once went to the door. The stranger asked for money, and without waiting for a reply pointed a pistol at the bishop's head and fired. The bullet struck the door casing.

Bishop Kaminski hastily retreated to his studio, followed by the stranger, who fired a second shot before the revolver was knocked from his hand by another occupant of the house. The stranger then ran out of the house and escaped.

The secession of Bishop Kaminski's Church engendered much bitter feeling among the Poles on the east side.

CARS DERAILED.

Accident On C.P.R. in Which Six Persons Were Hurt.

Ottawa, Feb. 13.—Six persons were injured in an accident Saturday forenoon on the Gatineau division of the C.P.R. The express bound from Maniwaki to Ottawa was partly derailed near Low, two passenger cars leaving the track on account of a snow flanger attached to the rear end running off. The cars toppled over and nearly went down an embankment.

The injured were: J. A. Cameron, Rockland, head bruised, hand badly cut; A. W. H. Gibson, Hull, nose broken, leg cut; Lewis Henry, Ottawa, cut in head and back injured; Mrs. Thomas Grace, Ottawa, cut in face, teeth knocked out; M. Mahoney, Low township, head and chest injured; J. A. Gifford, Ottawa, left leg bruised.

The injured people were attended to by doctors from Wakefield and Ottawa.

Aged Farmer Found Hanged.

Brantford, Feb. 13.—With head partly severed, the dead body of Joseph Jellis was found dangling from a rope in an outhouse at 304 Chatham street yesterday morning. Jellis was about 70 years old and some time ago sold his farm near Cainsville and came here to live. On Saturday morning he disappeared. It was not until noon yesterday that he was found. He was well off and there is no reason for his rash act. The coroner, Dr. Fissette, has investigated the case and decided to open an inquest to-day.

Standard Oil Fights Kansas.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 13.—The Standard Oil Company has taken steps to defeat the purpose of the Kansas Legislature, who have dared to take a step in the direction of public control of the oil business in that state. The 900 hundred men who have been made idle by the Standard will not be returned to work until the lawmakers of Kansas say they will be good and not molest the Standard any more.

Schooner Gets Free From Ice.

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 13.—The schooner Energy, which has been fast in the ice floes for several days, got clear Saturday and entered the port. The steamers Portia and Eagle have arrived, and the steamer Silvia, for whose safety much anxiety was felt, is expected shortly.

A Liberal Reward

By Ethel Barrington

Copyright, 1905, by Ethel Barrington

Deep in the heart of each man and woman lies some unfulfilled ambition toward which his efforts tend as a goal. With Myra Darling it was a gold watch.

Her days were passed behind a counter where a variety of neckwear was displayed. The remuneration was small and served only to provide her with a "home" and the simplest of gowns. The watch for which her soul hungered might have been the moon or the Roc's egg. But more trying than the privations she endured was the cheapness, the narrowness of her life, so different from the gentle surroundings of her girlhood.

It was her birthday, her eighteenth year, and Sunday—a day free from the aisle walker's espionage, a happy combination which Myra enjoyed to the full. A long afternoon in the crisp, cool air of the park was a happy climax.

It was turning dusk as she left the park. The city lamps already shone in a long line down the avenue. On the side streets the shadows fell black and ugly, causing a few buildings to stand out in bold relief. Suddenly a flash from a passing automobile struck a small, round object that glittered near the curbing. Myra bent over to pick it up. Had some beneficent fairy godmother thrown the gift at her feet? It was a watch, and on her birthday! She seized it rapturously and, looking neither to the right nor left, fled up the steps of her boarding house, never pausing until she stood in the hall room she called her home. She lighted the gas and drew down the shade, then breathlessly examined her new found treasure. The small hunting case was of gold, with no mark to identify it, and set in diamonds.

"You little beauty," whispered the girl as she caressed it with her fingers. Then, with woman's curiosity, she tried to open the back. It was difficult, but at last Myra gasped with surprise. The face of a young man, with honest eyes and kindly mouth, looked into her own.

"I wonder if he owns the watch?" she thought. "No, it's a woman's trinket. He must have given it to the girl—and if so he"—

TOM HAD PRESENTED MYRA WITH A GOLD WATCH.

Myra abruptly closed the case. But she could not shut out the face from her mental vision.

She passed her evening rocking slowly in her chair, with a magazine between her fingers, the gentle ticking of the watch counting the passing hours. That night she dreamed not of the watch, but of a life which the watch typified, and through the dream stalked a man whose face was the face in the watch.

She awoke a little after 6 to revel in the delight of knowing the exact hour and turning luxuriously over for another fifteen minutes.

All day she thought about her wonderful acquisition and smiled happily to herself. The other girls noticed it and twitted her in their good natured if rather coarse way. Myra laughed, but guarded her secret and hurried home to pass another evening of delightful possession. Three days passed, and, though the watch itself was a never failing source of delight, as the actual realization of her dreams it was the picture that crept into her heart. She told her secrets to those honest eyes and called him "dear friend." He seemed somehow to understand her every whim.

"The whole world could trust you, and—I'd trust you absolutely," she told him one night very softly. "The other girl trusts you too? The other girl! How sorry she must be to lose your picture!"

Then suddenly, without any warning, Myra awoke to the truth. The watch, the picture, were not hers! She had no right to keep them. She turned to the window and looked drearily out over the roofs of houses.

"I never thought of it, not once. They're not mine. They are hers. Hers, and I kept them. It's the same as stealing. I never thought."

That noon she spent half an hour running over newspaper files in the library. She found the description in the "Lost and Found" column and made note of the address with eyes grown misty.

She put off the evil day until Sunday and decided to enjoy to the full her last day of the fairy gift which was to vanish so soon. She slipped a narrow black ribbon on the watch and recklessly wore it all day. She did not dare to look at it or exhibit it to the girls, but the knowledge that it was ticking steadily in her belt brought comfort.

• • • • • • •

"Can I see the lady—the one who lost her watch?" she asked, and she was at once shown into a room with luxurious appointments. There was a log fire in the grate, with comfortable lounging chairs and books in every available space. It carried Myra back to those other days now dim in her memory.

"You have found my watch? How glad I am!" The speaker came close to Myra, with outstretched hands and eager smile. She was as beautiful as any of the women whom Myra served during business hours.

The girl laid the watch in the other's hand. Surely with all Miss Shepherd possessed she could have spared this toy, but it was hers, and she must have it.

"It was my mother's," said Miss Shepherd softly. "That is why I cannot thank you enough. And you will accept this little acknowledgment?" she said, trying to press a roll of bills into Myra's clenched hand.

"No," said Myra. "It's yours. I want nothing."

"But I promised a liberal reward."

"And I had it—all the week. The watch was such good company." She did not mention the picture.

And to all Miss Shepherd's arguments and entreaties Myra reiterated "No." The picture held her firm. She could not take the money for that.

In the end she allowed herself to be persuaded to remain until the rain ceased and to drink a cup of tea.

"Here's Tom. You must meet him!" exclaimed her hostess proudly as the door swung open and there entered the original of the photograph.

One look from Myra, and then her lashes drooped in embarrassment. The others discussed the watch and its recovery. At first Myra could scarcely follow what they said, but they were so kind, so full of interest about her and her little experiences, that she soon found herself chatting freely and laughing at Tom's funny sayings; still she rose in trepidation to find how late it had become.

Tom (she had not discovered his other name) insisted that as his automobile was at the door he would take her home.

"Oh, no!" gasped Myra in distress, turning to her hostess. "I'd rather take a car."

"Don't you like motors?" questioned Miss Shepherd kindly.

"I've—I've never tried one," admitted Myra.

"Then that settles it," exclaimed Tom, and Myra found herself hurried to the door, with Miss Shepherd exacting a promise that she would come again.

"Yes, do!" urged Tom as they went down the steps. "She really means it. Isn't she jolly?"

"She's very kind. How happy she must be—so pretty and such a beautiful home, and—and you"—

Myra had not meant to say that at all. It just slipped out.

"You bet. She's the best sister that ever a fellow had."

"Your sister?" stammered Myra, and somehow in her surprise she nearly missed the step of the motor car, but Tom caught her.

"Of course. What else did you think?"

Myra felt her face flush hotly. She trembled a little, but she did not say just what she thought. In fact, she did not tell him until the following Christmas. Tom had presented Myra with what had once been the desire of her heart, a gold watch.

"I can't take anything so handsome," she had said, shaking her head earnestly.

Tom only laughed. The case flew back, and there was the one face in all the world for Myra.

"Sweetheart, I claim a liberal reward," said Tom. "Please take me too."

Why He Studied Law.

"I am going to study law," he announced in decided tones.

"And practice it?"

"Oh, no."

"Then why study it?"

"Well, I've always been told that a man never should sign a document that he does not thoroughly understand."

"That, I believe, is generally considered to be a sound business principle."

"And I'm going to be a thorough going business man or know the reason why."

"Well?"

"Well, I've just been looking over the lease of my house, and it occurs to me that if I study hard from now until the lease expires I'll have a glimmering idea what it's all about when I have to sign another. What the agent told me I was signing could have been put in 100 words; what I actually signed amounted to about 2,000 words, badly tangled. I've either got to study law or violate a great business principle."

HINTS ON HOW TO GET RICH QUICK

Editor of War Cry Tells of Short Cut to Fortune.

THE WEALTH THAT SATISFIES

Services of Great Interest in Salvation Army Barracks—Lieut.-Col. Friedrich and Adjutant Arnold Are Visiting the Local Corps.

Sunday was full of interest for the members of the local corps of the Salvation Army. Special services were held during the day, and addresses delivered by Lieut.-Col. Friedrich, editor of the War Cry. He was accompanied on his visit by Adjutant Arnold, of the Territorial Headquarters. Large congregations were present at the meetings yesterday and great appreciation of the Lieut.-Colonel's visit was evident. He is a gentleman of wide experience in Salvation Army work, and occupies the position also, at present, of Superintendent of the Alaska and British Columbia stations. He has come into close contact with the Indians and his illustrated lecture this evening on "The Red Man" will doubtless be largely attended. Adjutant Arnold is a skilful violinist and several numbers which he rendered yesterday were much enjoyed. The Salvation Army Band by their music also added greatly to the pleasurable occasion, and in fact, the services were all bright and of an inspiring character.

GET RICH QUICK

Lieut.-Col. Friedrich last evening discussed the subject, "A short cut to fortune," taking as his text the following words, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

At the outset he said he doubted not that all would agree with him, if he were to ask the question of any audience, "What is the leading ambition of our young men to-day"—that generation which makes the country what it is, on which the future of the country depends — that the answer would be, 'Our ambition is to make a fortune as quickly as possible and with least trouble to ourselves.' We see evidence of this all around in the way business is conducted to-day, said the speaker, and the almighty dollar has become mightier than ever. I want to show you a short cut to fortune; people like short cuts, but I am going to show you a genuine way. I believe there are legitimate ways of acquiring wealth.

ROOT OF ALL EVIL

That man who condemns wealth or money would be foolish to do so. It is not money that is the root of all evil; it is the love of it, and the mischief lies in the fact that people who have money, have the love of it. I would not give the snap of my fingers for the man who has no ambition to get out of his penniless condition, but is satisfied with anything. These kind of people are never very bad, chiefly because they don't know how. They are good because they cannot help themselves — good in their own way, but not in the way God Almighty wants them to be. A man should seek development under all circumstances. The goal is always reached by hard work and self-denial. There is no way to get money legitimately by making a short cut to it. If so, it fails to satisfy. It seems to be a natural belief that difficulties dissolve with the acquirement of fortune, but people who have become wealthy have failed to find that satisfaction for which they were looking. They have become the slaves, not the masters, of their money.

INCREASE OF GAMBLING

One outcome is the alarming increase of the gambling spirit. We see it growing in Toronto during the last eight or ten years, and I dare say you have it here. The racetrack in Toronto is crowded with people who have no business to be there, because they have not the means. They are approaching the downward way to crime and despair.

Money cannot buy health, it cannot buy a good conscience when it is gone. Money cannot buy a great deal more than you want now, nor than you can satisfy now. A far greater fortune to which a short cut has been found, is well worth striving for. There is a short cut to fortune if you are born rich, or inherit the money of rich people. But there is a short cut to the fortune of which I will tell you, by being born into it. You all must be born again. Seek ye first the Kingdom of God. It is impossible to serve two masters. You may call upon this fortune day by day; your account will never be found over-drawn. The speaker recalled many instances in which God's goodness had been put to the test and had never been found wanting, and he pointed to Him as the source of all munificence in the things of this life and that which is to come.

Sunday afternoon Lieut.-Col. Friedrich spoke upon the Army's work, among the Indians of British Columbia and Alaska, he having been one of the first to enter this field. A number of very interesting curios were exhibited during the course of the address.

THE FORTNIGHTY CLUB

Prof. Carruthers Lectures Friday Evening on Greek Sculpture.

Prof. Carruthers, of Toronto University, lectures on Friday evening next in the Y.M.C.A. Hall upon "Greek Sculpture." This is one of the series of lectures to be held by the Club this winter. Mr. Carruthers brings with him 125 slides, so that the electric lantern will set forth the finest specimens of the Greek plastic art. This lecture and the course by Prof. Clark later on are unquestionably the literary and artistic events of the season. It is not necessary to urge those interested to attend, but it may be pointed out to those whose tastes are developing, that such chances as these cannot be missed with impunity. It is a matter of gratification that the list for Prof. Clark is filling up rapidly.

STEPPED FROM MOVING TRAIN

Mr. F. E. Roper Coming to Town Missed by Friends.

GOT REFUGE FROM STORM

Had Been Ill For About Month From Nervous Prostration and Long Journey Was Too Exacting.

Considerable anxiety was felt in town this morning for the safety of Mr. F. E. Roper, who was on his way from New York to Peterborough for a short rest, after a month's illness from nervous prostration. It appears that the long journey from New York had an unfavorable effect upon Mr. Roper in his weakened condition, and as the midnight was leaving Leaside Junction he was missed by those who accompanied him. They were assured that he was in another car. Some time later, however, it was discovered that he was not on the train, and it was impossible to receive any tidings over the wire this morning as to his whereabouts. A despatch received this afternoon from Toronto, however, states that Mr. Roper stepped off the train as it was travelling just east of Toronto. He spent the night in a small house near the track and was this morning given proper attention by those who found him.

Mr. R. H. Fortye went to Toronto this morning and will doubtless return with Mr. Roper tomorrow. It was first thought that he had stepped off the train at a point where it would be impossible for him to obtain refuge from the snow storm and bitter cold. Mr. Roper is a son of the late J. H. Roper.

NEW BRAKE IN USE

All the Cars Will be Equipped With the Peacock Device.

The Peterborough Radial Railway Company has equipped Car No. 13 with the new Peacock brake, which is said to be a big improvement over the ones at present in use.

It is made in Toronto and and is giving general satisfaction. The new brake has greater leverage, stops the car quicker, is easier on the motorman and is safer and surer in every respect. All the other cars will likely be equipped with the Peacock brake at an early date. It is very popular with the motormen.

THE SUGAR SITUATION

Is Somewhat More Settled—Syrup and Molasses Advance in Price.

The market continues steady at the recent advance, although the reported weakness in European beet has had a staying effect. The situation at present is somewhat more settled; buyers have anticipated their wants and those who have any kind of a stock at all are laying back. The lack of activity in buying is having a salutary effect, although holders predict a further advance shortly on the claim that there is a genuine shortage of raws. Some are so bullish that they freely prophecy seven cent sugar in the near future. In sympathy with the sugar market, syrup and molasses have taken an upward tendency. The Barbadoes crop is reported short and the New Orleans product has not as yet come in. Altogether the conditions are somewhat hard upon the confectioner, who feels that he cannot advance his product to keep pace with the increased cost of his raw materials. Some advances have been made by individual concerns, but the majority are waiting to see what the other fellow is going to do about it.—Canadian Baker.

CONTEST AMONG BOYS.

The boys' section of the Red and Blue Membership contest at the Y.M.C.A. was organized on Friday, and promises to be a big factor in the Red and Blue battle, with the following line-up:—Reds—R. Dutton (captain), M. Dobbie, S. Madill, H. Kerns, H. Jeffries, G. Potter, M. Hartley, M. Turner, S. Pringle, M. Nicholls.

Blues—D. Dewe (captain), F. Turner, M. Fife, L. Brace, H. Johnston, E. Mann, H. Meldrum, H. Blackwell, H. Reid, R. Stewart.

Ho! For Toronto.

Are you going to make the trip to Toronto with the curlers? Train leaves C.P.R. station at 9.15 Friday morning. Fare for the round trip $2.65. Tickets good to return on any regular train up to the midnight on Saturday night.

And Made Their Way to Munro House Without Mishap on Saturday Morning—Pair of Good Travelers With Plenty of Life and Action.

Dr. Harrison, of Keene, drives a good team of horses in which he takes a just pride, but on Saturday the spirited animals proved a little too lively for him and came to Peterborough, leaving their owner in the village.

It appears the doctor received an early call on Saturday and on returning to Keene stepped out of the cutter to enter the store of Anderson and Skinner. He was absent only a short time but, when he came out, his horses were missing.

It seems that they took a sudden notion to come to Peterborough and started off without a driver. It was shortly after seven o'clock and the driverless travellers made the entire distance—fourteen miles— in good time and without mishap. They turned into the yard of the Munro House here, and stopped at the stable door, none the worse of their experience and apparently quite satisfied with their performance. When the doctor missed his team in the village he sent a messenger in hot pursuit, but the horses reached town a long time before their pursuer arrived. On the way in it was noticed that the brown led the bay animal and both kept up a spanking pace.

Later it is learned that a Mrs. Martin, of Otonabee, who was on her way to town was overtaken by the team about five miles out. She had no difficulty in stopping them and thereupon drove to town, no doubt appreciating the drive.

NEW ATHLETIC ARENA

What the Turf Club Proposes to Do in the Interest of Sport This Summer.

The Peterborough Turf Club, in view of the fact that an athletic grounds would be badly needed in Peterborough next summer, took time by the forelock last fall, and plowed up about ten acres of the large central area at the driving park, and otherwise put it into condition with a view of converting it into a first class athletic arena. The Murray street grounds will not be available this summer, and the fact that the driving park is now easily accessible by means of the street railway, will detract greatly from the popularity of Nicholls Oval. Peterborough has long felt the need of just such a grounds as the Turf Club now propose to arrange, and their work in this direction will no doubt be greatly appreciated by the different sporting organisations during the coming summer. A member of the Turf Club stated this morning that every possible effort would be put forward to have a field suitable in every way for athletics of all kinds.

WHAT THE SAINTS WILL RECEIVE

Rev. Mr. Steurnagel Conducts Memorial Service.

DEPARTURE OF SISTER BAKER

An Impressive Sermon—Saints are Looking Forward and Preparing for the Time of Meeting Christ—Crowning Day and Its Rewards.

The morning service at Bethany Tabernacle yesterday took the form of a memorial service on behalf of sister Fannie Baker, who was laid to rest the first of this month. There was a large congregation present. The pastor, Rev. A. E. Steurnagel, preached on the subject, "The Departed Saints Between Death and Resurrection."

In beginning Mr. Steurnagel referred to the olden times, when the departed saints went to a place called Paradise, not the present Heaven, but a place supposed to be deep down into the earth. The Lord Jesus descended into Paradise after the crucifixion, to announce that he had made atonement for their sins, and the saints ascended with him into the presence of God. Now when a spirit leaves the body it is at once enraptured and goes into God's presence.

There were three Heavens, the first consisting of the atmosphere, the second composed of the stars and beyond these two was the third Heaven, the place where those who had fallen asleep in Jesus went to. The departed saints are now in this Heaven, but there will be another Heaven at the second coming of the Lord. This is the Holy City which Christ is preparing for them, and where, when body and soul are again reunited they will live with Him.

There was one event to which all Saints were looking forward to and preparing for, the time of meeting Christ, the crowning day, the time of reward, revelation and glorification.

Paul has said in II. Corinthians, 4th chapter, Though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day." The inward man is the Christ life in us, immortal and imperishable which grows stronger and stronger as we yield ourselves to him.

Many people believe that the soul sleeps with the body in the grave until the resurrection. This was nonsensical.

Paul, in Corinthians II., 5th chapter, said, "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that everyone may receive the things done in his body."' This was the day of the assembling of God's true children, the judgment day of works and rewards. Every work, motive, act, and thought of this life will then be displayed and there our inner life shall be laid bare.

There were special rewards which would be given. An incorruptible crown would be given those who had been temperate in their habits. To those who had been faithful in testimony a crown of righteousness would be given. Those who had suffered much would receive a crown of glory. A crown of life would be accorded those who were faithful unto death and a crown of rejoicing to those who had been the means of saving souls.

In closing Mr. Steurnagel referred briefly to the loss the Tabernacle had sustained in the death of Sister Baker, and paid a tribute to her Christian life.

DELIGHTFUL EVENING

First of the Series of Saturday Night "Pops" Great Success.

The first of a series of Saturday evening entertainments was held the night before last and was enjoyed by a full house at the Y.M.C.A.

The programme was begun with a very pleasing piano duet rendered by Miss Gumpricht and Miss Tully, after which the chief feature of the evening was introduced by the chairman, Mr. Holmes, it being the story of Jean Valjean, the great and wonderful central figure in Victor Hugo's novel, "Les Miserables," told by Mr. R. M. Dennistoun in a very interesting and masterly manner. It was a most fascinating story, and everybody listened for an hour and fifteen minutes with unabated interest, and unwilling to lose a single thought.

At the conclusion of the story Mr. Dennistoun was shown the appreciation of the audience by hearty applause and personal thanks.

The evening's programme was concluded by all singing "God Save the King."

A series of these Saturday night "pops" has been arranged to be held every other week. The next one will be an old fashioned concert, on Feb. 25th, and this will be followed by an evening of Scotch, Irish and English wit and humor for March 11th. Ladies and gentlemen non-members are cordially invited as well.

THE BLACKSMITH.

His Profession Is Both an Art and a Handicraft.

There are few more attractive places for the average youth than the village blacksmith shop. Longfellow did not express the whole of it:

And children coming home from school
Look in at the open door;
They love to see the flaming forge and Hear the bellows roar.

It has a far more valid reason for hypnotizing the boy than this. The greatest charm of the blacksmith shop, both for the young and for grown folk, lies in the fact that, while it is a place where handicraft rules, both hand and brain are required to produce the desired results. It is both an art and a handicraft, for art is either constructive or imitative, while a handicraft is either useful or decorative. The blacksmith must be skilled in them all.

As for horseshoeing, in its best sense it rises to the dignity of one of the learned professions, for no one can shoe a horse properly and not understand something about anatomy and physiology. Looking at it in this way—and there is no other right view to be taken of it—the calling of a blacksmith is one of dignity and honor.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

STROLLING MINSTRELS.

West India Negroes Have Music and Masquerades Christmas.

Christmas in the West Indies is a very jovial, rollicking affair, at least in the estimation of the negroes. The great feature of the season is the series of masquerades or mystery plays enacted by strolling negro performers.

These are of two sorts, representations of such Biblical stories as that of David and Goliath, when you may see the jolly actors clad in such historically accurate garments as "bedtick" trousers and cretonne coats of flaming patterns, and those of a purely local character. Of these last is the mongoose play, which is peculiar to St. Kitts and the object of which is to wage mimic war against the destructive pest which is the curse of the island. These strolling players are the chief feature of Christmas celebrations.

They are quite an imposing lot of men, with a good ear for music, and as you watch their antics you might easily imagine that instead of being in a civilized British colony you were back in the heart of Africa, assisting at some savage death dance or other heathen rite.

FISHING LINES.

The Very Finest Are Those Formed From Silkworm Gut.

Silkworm gut forms the best line for fishing purposes partly on account of its great tenacity and partly because it is so transparent. Every year a sufficient number of Spanish silkworm grubs are selected for this purpose. After they have eaten enough mulberry leaves and before they begin to spin they are thrown into vinegar for several hours. Each insect is killed, and the substance which the grub in the natural course would have spun into a cocoon is forcibly drawn from the dead worm into a much thicker and shorter silken thread.

The threads are then placed in pure water for about four hours and afterward dipped for ten minutes in a solution of soft soap. The fine outer skin is thus loosened, so that the workman can remove it with his hands. The threads must be dried in a shady place and are often bleached with sulphur vapor until they acquire the bright appearance of spun glass.—London Telegraph.

HAD TO HIDE IT

A mother wrote us recently that she had to keep Scott's Emulsion under lock and key—her children used to drink it whenever her back was turned. Strange that children should like something that is so good for them. It's usually the other way. Scott's Emulsion makes children comfortable, makes them fat and rosy-cheeked. Perhaps that's why they like it so much—they know it makes them feel good.

We'll send you a sample, free.

NOBILITY OF TREES.

A Tribute to the Majesty of the Mighty Oak.

Directly in my path stood an ancient swamp white oak, the greatest tree, I think, that I have ever seen. It was not the highest nor the largest round, perhaps, but individually, spiritually, the greatest. Heavy, hollow and broken limbed, his huge bole seemed encircled with the centuries, and in this green and grizzled top all the winds of heaven had some time come.

One could worship in the presence of such a tree as easily as in the shadow of a vast cathedral. Indeed, what is there built with hands that has the dignity, the majesty, the dignity, of life? And what life was here! Life whose beginnings lay so far back that I could no more reckon the years than I could count the atoms it had builded into this majestic form.

Looking down upon him from twice his height loomed a tulip poplar, clean, boiled for thirty feet and in the top all green and gold with blossoms. It was a resplendent thing beside the oak, yet how unmistakably the gnarled old monarch were the crown! His girth more than balanced the poplar's great height, and, as for blossoms, nature knows the beauty of strength and inward majesty and has pinned no boutonniere upon the oak.—Dallas Lore Sharp in National Magazine.

CAUGHT BY THE CRY.

The Way an Australian Bandit Was Trapped in London.

"Coo-e-e" is the curious cry that was one of the signals of the native blacks of Australia. The cry was speedily adopted by the invading whites. The final "e" is a very high note, a sort of prolonged screech that resounds for long distances through the bush and thus enables separated persons to ascertain their relative positions. On one notable occasion this peculiar cry was heard in London. A daring bushranger made his appearance one morning in front of a bank in Ballarat and coolly posted a notice on the door to the effect that the place would be closed for an hour.

Entering, he terrorized the officials with his revolver and got clear away with $30,000. Some time afterward the authorities received information that the man had been seen in London. One day a detective thought he espied his man in the Strand; but, not being quite sure, he hit upon an expedient. He uttered a piercing "Coo-e-e."

Passersby stood fixed in astonishment, but the Australian, acting on the spur of the moment and recognising the familiar sound, hastened to the person who uttered it. He was promptly arrested and was taken back to Australia.

POWER OF PURPOSE.

Conceive Your Ambition Clearly and Follow It Courageously.

We all can measure the outward triumph of a man's life, but we rarely measure the forces out of which the triumph sprang. Men suddenly emerge into the blaze of fame, and then the world wakes up and wonders how it has all happened. There is no such thing as luck in any world over which God presides. What, then, is the secret? It is purpose. The great victories which men praise are always won first of all in a man's own soul. The great men who stamp themselves ineffaceably on the ages are always the men who are capable of conceiving a purpose clearly and of following it courageously through evil and good report. You may sweep aside as relatively trivial all questions of the range of their gifts, the scope of their intellectual life. The great thing which you have to reckon with is the immense strength and heroic persistency of their purpose.—W. J. Dawson.

Taste and Touch.

Touch, Dr. Andrew Wilson has reminded us, is probably the oldest of our senses. It is also, we may add, the most active where taste has always been assumed to be paramount—at the dinner table. It is a fact overlooked that we like what we like less because we taste it than because we feel it. What is there wonderful in the taste of your perfect, your ripe potato? Nothing or little. But, ah, the feeling! What have the resistance of bread, the sudden coolness of butter, the tenderness of asparagus, the crispness of biscuit, to do with taste? Something almost negligible.—London Chronicle.

Thunderer and Poet.

An early copy of Swinburne's "Poems and Ballads" volume (1866) came into the hands of Dallas, then chief literary reviewer to the London Times, who, after ruminating on what we will call the pygmy poems, strode off to Moxon's with an ultimatum. Either, said he, let them withdraw the book or he would denounce it and destroy it. As they had no wish to be denounced or destroyed themselves, they preferred to accept the former alternative. John Camden Hotten brought out the book.—Fortnightly Review.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,

Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Company

"A very poor outfit to start life on at her age," said Miss Bull, rising in her prim manner. "By the way, Mr. James, what is the name of the late Mr. Lockwood's executor?"

"Roger Ireland," replied the lawyer, looking rather surprised. "Why do you ask?"

"For my own satisfaction, Mr. James. If no one else will assist this poor girl I shall do so. Good day."

So far as James was personally concerned, he heard no more of the little woman. Miss Bull collected the boarders in the drawing room after dinner and made a speech. She said that it was Margery Watson's intention to keep on the house and that the terms would be as before. If any chose to stop they would be welcome, but those who decided to go could have their bills made out at once. Having thus acted as the mouthpiece of Margery, Miss Bull took the girl away to the sitting room of the late Mrs. Jersey, the very one in which the tragedy had taken place.

"Good child," said Miss Bull, "Lord Derrington is the owner of this house, and he leased it to your aunt by the year—a very strange arrangement, for which there ought to be some explanation. I am going to seek it from Lord Derrington. With regard to the annuity"—

"What annuity?"

"I forgot—you don't know about that. Well, there is no need that you should. But it seems that Lord Derrington allowed your late aunt an annuity of £500 a year. I don't know the reason why he did so, and as such reason is not pertinent to matters in hand I do not wish to know, but the annuity must lapse. It is not likely that Lord Derrington will continue it to you." She paused and looked at the girl. "Your parents are dead, I believe, Margery?"

"Yes. For many years I have been with my aunt. She was my only relative, dear Miss Bull."

"All the better. I don't want other people interfering," said Miss Bull in her icy way. "Well, Margery, I shall see if I can get Lord Derrington to renew the lease to you, and I shall be your security. With the money in hand—I have counted it, and with that in the bank it amounts to £200—we can continue the boarding house. A few of the boarders will go, but many will remain, as they will not get anywhere so cheap a place. You will be the nominal head of the house, but in reality I shall manage. Do you agree?"

"I am your slave," cried Margery, with melodramatic intensity.

"You are my friend," said Miss Bull, her thin lips relaxing. "I am a lonely woman, Margery, though I still have a surviving sister"—her lips tightened again as she said this—"and I love you, my dear, for your goodness. Well, we shall keep on the boarding house."

From that moment Miss Bull was in charge of the Amelia square establishment. Whatever means she used to induce Lord Derrington to consent, she certainly managed to get the lease renewed in Margery's name. Some of the boarders went, but others came in their place.

CHAPTER V.

EVERY one who was any one knew the Honorable Mrs. Ward. She was a fluffy haired kitten of a woman, more like a Dresden china shepherdess than a mere human being. Nothing could be prettier than her face and figure and nothing more engaging than her manners. With her yellow hair, her charming face and her melting blue eyes she managed to hold her own against younger women. The late Mr. Ward, Lord Ransome's son, had been a fast young man, devoted to the turf and to his pretty wife. But he was killed when riding in a steeplechase two years after his marriage and left his widow alone in the world with one daughter for consolation in her affliction. Mrs. Ward, being in want of money—for her deceased father had been a general with nothing but his pay—played her cards so well with regard to her father-in-law that he allowed her a good income and thought she was the most perfect of women. But Lord Ransome was the only one of the family who thought so, for the other relatives fought rather shy of the pretty, pleading widow.

Not that Mrs. Ward minded. She characterised the women as frumps and the men as fools, and, having enough to live on comfortably, set up a house in Curzon street. It was thought that she would marry again, and probably she would have done so had a sufficiently rich husband with a title been forthcoming. But somehow no one worth capturing ever came Mrs. Ward's way, and as time went on she chose to assume the role of a devoted mother and, as she phrased it, to live again in her daughter. This was quite wrong, as Dorothy Ward was a slim, serious minded girl of nineteen, not given to gayety, and was one who was anxious to marry a husband with mind rather than with money. How frivolous little Mrs. Ward came to have such a Puritan daughter no one ever could make out. She resembled her mother neither in face nor in manner nor in tastes. Mrs. Ward openly lamented that Dorothy was such a difficult girl to manage, which meant that Dorothy had refused several good matches and had declined to be guided entirely by her mother's opinion. When the Earl of Summerslea proposed and was not accepted Mrs. Ward was furious, but Dorothy said steadily that she would never marry a brute with a title.

"You'll marry any one I choose," said Mrs. Ward when the two were discussing the matter.

"Certainly not Lord Summerslea," rejoined Dorothy steadily.

"And certainly not that penniless George Brendon," retorted her mother. "You shall not throw yourself away on him."

"He is a good man and a clever man, and a man whom any woman might be proud of winning, mother."

"And a man with no money and no position. Who is he? What is his family? No one ever heard of him."

"You shall never see me the Countess of Summerslea. I know all about that man. He is bad and dissipated."

Dorothy respected as well as loved George Brendon and every time she met him grew to admire and love him more. Mrs. Ward became quite exasperated and redoubled her efforts to sicken Dorothy of the "creature," as she called Brendon. She took to praising him on all occasions and sometimes asked him to dinner. At the same time she constantly abused young Walter Vane, who was Lord Derrington's grandson and heir. He was the man she wished Dorothy to marry, as one day he would have a title and fifteen thousand a year. But in spite of this Machiavelian policy Dorothy still continued to love George and expressed a hearty dislike for Walter Vane, whom she characterised as a "weakling."

"You would marry me to the prince of darkness himself if it suited your purpose," said Dorothy, from which speech it will be seen that Miss Ward had small respect for her fascinating mother.

The two did not assimilate, as their dispositions were so different. Mrs. Ward complained that Dorothy was too religious, and Dorothy found the frivolous world in which her mother moved dull beyond words. It so happened that Dorothy stayed mostly at home or went out with one of her aunts, who was something of her type, while Mrs. Ward enjoyed herself at Hurlingham and Monte Carlo.

Things were in this position when the murder of Mrs. Jersey took place. Dorothy read about it in the papers, and, knowing that George had gone to stop in the house with Train, was extremely anxious to hear particulars. She wrote to his Kensington address asking him to call, but received no reply. Then she saw that he gave evidence at the inquest, and two days later George made his appearance at the Curzon street house. Mrs. Ward, who had been voluble in her expressions regarding Brendon's "love for low company," so she put it, sailed toward him with open hands. She always welcomed Brendon in this bright, girlish, kittenish way, as it was part of her scheme. She thought so serious a man would never relish a frivolous mother-in-law and hoped to get rid of him in this way. But Brendon was too much in love with Dorothy to mind the vagaries of her fashionable parent.

"My dear Mr. Brendon," cried Mrs. Ward in her usual gushing manner, "I am so glad to see you. The murder, you know! I saw your name in the papers. How exciting! How romantic! Tell us all about it."

"There is nothing to tell, Mrs. Ward," said George, glancing round the room and seeing that Dorothy was absent. "All I know is set forth in the papers. I was visiting Mr. Train there."

"Dorothy will be down soon, but meantime tell me the whole thing from your own clever point of view," said Mrs. Ward.

She was so pertinacious that Brendon had reluctantly to yield. He detailed events as they had been reported by the press, but concerning the confidence of Leonard he kept silent. Mrs. Ward expressed her disappointment when he finished. "You tell me nothing new."

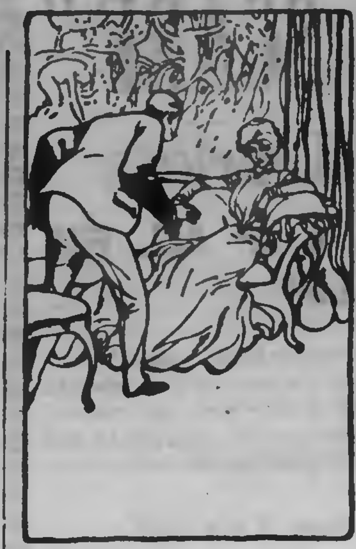
"I warned you that I would not," replied Brendon, wondering at her petulant speech.

"But surely you can throw some light on the matter?" said Mrs. Ward.

Brendon shook his head. "I fear not. I went to bed at 11 and slept soundly until I was awakened by the clamor."

Mrs. Ward thought for a moment. "Does Mr. Train know anything?"

"Nothing more than I have told you," declared Brendon uncomfortably. He disliked deviating from the truth even in the smallest particular, but he dared not risk the story of his birth becoming public property. It was strange, he thought, that Mrs. Ward should take such a profound interest in this case. He had never before heard her talk on such a subject. To add to his perplexity he saw that, in spite of her rouge, in spite of the shaded windows, she looked haggard. Yet it was impossible that she could be connected with the matter in any way. He ventured a leading question. "Why are you so anxious to know about this case?"



"Mrs. Ward, you don't suspect me!"

Mrs. Ward's reply rather astonished him. "I am not blind," she said quietly, "and I know well enough that you admire my daughter. You are poor, you are unknown, and should Dorothy marry you she would make a very bad match."

"I am aware of that," began George, "but"—

"Wait," cried Mrs. Ward, raising her hand. "I have not yet done. Notwithstanding all these disadvantages, I made up my mind to place no bar to your union with my daughter, as she seems to like you"—

JAPS BEAT BACK ENEMY

Friday and Saturday Russians Were Again Repulsed.

Russians Have Extended Their Right Along the Railway to Siaofangshien. Continuing Their Defensive Works—Japs Capture An Eminence South of Chank-Chichia—Russian Dead After the Battle of Keikoutai Totalled 2,000.

Tokio, Feb. 13.—Japanese Manchurian Headquarters telegraphs that a company of Russians attacked Waitaoshan Village on Friday night and were repulsed.

The Russian batteries on the western foot of the mountain shelled Putsaowo on Friday.

A company of Russians attacked Liuchientun early on Saturday morning and were repulsed.

The Russian artillery then slowly shelled Liuchientun and vicinity.

The Russians have continued their defensive works to Liuchientun, and seem to have extended their right along the railway to Siaofangshien, which is about a mile and a quarter east of Mentapaon.

Dead Numbered 2,000.

Tokio, Feb. 13.—The Japanese captured an eminence south of Chankchichia on the morning of Feb. 9, driving off two companies of Russian infantry.

The Russians have continued shelling Field Marshal Oyama's centre and left since Thursday.

The Russian dead who were buried after the battle of Keikoutai totalled two thousand.

The Japanese on that occasion captured two thousand rifles.

Kuropatkin Reports.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 13.—General Kuropatkin reports:

"Our sharpshooters repulsed Thursday a Japanese attack on a hill three miles southeast of Tunkou."

Large bodies of Japanese troops have been noticed in the last few days manoeuvering on the Russian right flank, where part of General Nogi's army is. The Japanese are energetically fortifying Vandzyanopu, Yatzupo and Malandan Villages, south of Sandepas, and also the districts of Toutoitzi, Tzutsaphedzi and Hunantai, on the right bank of the Hun River.

Kuropatkin and Grippenberg.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 13.—There is a new crop of rumors concerning General Kuropatkin and Lieut.-Gen. Grippenberg. One of them is that Vice-Admiral Bezobrazoff has gone to Irkutsk to try and persuade Gen. Grippenberg to return to Manchuria. Gen. Grippenberg's illness is declared to be not serious. Another is to the effect that the admiral's mission is to report to the Emperor the truth concerning allegations made that Gen. Kuropatkin is no longer fitted to command.

To Join Rojestvensky.

Algiers, Feb. 13.—The Russian torpedo boat destroyers Prosolivy and Prouzitelny, after having been repaired, left here Saturday to rejoin Rear-Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron.

German Steamer Seized.

Tokio, Feb. 13.—The German steamer Paros, bound for Vladivostock, was seized off Hokkaido on Friday. Her cargo consisted of shipbuilding materials and food stuffs.

ARABS PLAN EMPIRE.

Appeal to European Powers and U.S. to Remain Neutral.

Damascus, Feb. 13.—A great national Arabian movement is at present in progress in Mesopotamia, Syria and Palestine, the object of which is indicated by the motto adopted by its executive committee: "Arab Countries for the Arabs." Branch committees have been formed in all of the chief towns of these three countries whose operations are directed from Egypt and Europe.

The ultimate aim of the leaders of this movement is to establish a great Arabian Empire free from the tyranny of the Turk, governed by a constitutional and liberal monarchy of which the head shall be an Arab Sultan. Incidentally, it is hoped to help in the liberation of the other oppressed nationalities at present within the Turkish Empire.

An appeal has been addressed to the European powers and the United States begging them to remain neutral in respect to the Arabian national movement, the leaders of which undertake to assume and maintain all the international obligations and guarantees of the present Turkish Government relative to the Christian churches and peoples of the Near East.

NO RENEWAL OF STRIKE

Appearance of City of St. Petersburg Normal On Sunday.

Czar's Creation of a Joint Commission of Masters and Workmen Chosen By Themselves to Investigate the Causes of Discontent Has Good Effect—Strike Situation in Warsaw Still Serious—Police Make a Threat.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 13.—The anticipated renewal of trouble among the workmen yesterday was not realized. Neither strikers nor students made the slightest attempt to demonstrate, and throughout the day the city presented a normal appearance. The Emperor's creation of a joint commission of masters and workmen chosen by themselves to investigate the causes of discontent among the laborers has made an exceedingly good impression, being considered definite evidence of the Government's purpose to compel some of the rapacious masters who have paid starvation wages to do justice to their employes.

The Imperial decree ordering the formation of the committee, reposes the presidency of the body in Senator Chidlovski and instructs the committee to ascertain immediately the causes of discontent of St. Petersburg workmen and devise measures to prevent such discontent in the future. The committee consists of representatives of Government departments, the various industries and the workmen. The president is authorized to report in person to the Emperor and determine the number and mode of selection of the committee.

At the Mali Theatre last night, a scene was created by cries of "Down with the autocracy!" and personal abuse of the Emperor. The demonstrators were ejected from the theatre. The police continue to make arrests. M. Souverin, in the course of a sarcastic editorial article in The Novoe Vremya, suggests that the best egress from the present trouble is to invite an American syndicate to come in and take over the Government, "as Americans make the best managers of big enterprises."

The Strike in Warsaw.

Warsaw, Feb. 13.—Baron Von Nolken, chief of the police of Warsaw, who had just returned from a conference with Governor-General Tchertkoff of the Province of Warsaw yesterday gave the following details regarding the state of affairs in this district.

"The strike continues in all of the big factories. To-morrow the manufacturers are coming to me to discuss the situation, and Tuesday I purpose seeing some representatives of the strikers.

"Unless the strikers return to work, the police will expel all those living outside of the Warsaw district. If they will not work they must go home. The men have no money, and it seems impossible that the strike can continue much longer. Our task is one of great difficulty. We are fighting not an economic, but a political movement, having its origin in St. Petersburg.

"The worst troubles, however, probably are over. Small disturbances may break out here and there, but not on such a scale as the earlier riots here."

Czar Grows Wise.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 13.—The news that the Emperor has endorsed the scheme for the revival of the Zemsky Zabor has spread through the city and created intense satisfaction among the Liberal classes. The newspapers this morning were filled with articles descriptive of this ancient Russian institution. The general verdict is that the Emperor has succeeded in shaking off reactionary influences and now proceeds in good faith to summon the Zemsky Zabor. He will rally to his support the Liberals, and perhaps arouse a wave of genuine enthusiasm.

KOSSUTH SEES EMPEROR.

Presses View of Independence Party On the Emperor-King.

Vienna, Feb. 13.—Francis Kossuth, the leader of the Independence party in the Hungarian Parliament, was received yesterday morning by the Emperor-King and discussed for an hour with him the Hungarian political situation and Cabinet crisis. Owing to the sweeping victory at the polls on Jan. 26 the Opposition now controls the Lower House.

Herr Kossuth has declared that it is now impossible to govern Hungary without the help of the united Opposition party or against its wishes. He expressed fully the views of himself and his party. The Emperor listened attentively, but did not make any reply affecting the situation.

Herr Kossuth's interview with the Emperor is regarded in Austria and Hungary as an historical event because, it is believed, it will actually lead to closer relations between the House of Hapsburg and those Hungarians who have been opposed to the existing double form of Government.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH BURNS.

For the Second Time Knox Presbyterian Is Destroyed.

St. Mary's, Feb. 13.—About nine o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the basement of Knox Presbyterian Church, contiguous to the furnace, and, despite the efforts of the brigade, the building was completely destroyed.

This is the second time this church has been destroyed by fire since its erection. The last fire was about thirteen years ago. The present loss, including a new pipe organ, which had only been installed a few weeks ago, will probably reach twenty thousand dollars, insurance $7,000 on building, and $1,600 on organ.

INTERNATIONAL FARMERS' AID.

Plan Meets With Favor in Austria, France and Italy.

Rome, Feb. 13.—Austria and France have given their adherence to the International Agricultural Institute, proposed to the King of Italy recently by David Lubin of Sacramento, Cal., and warmly welcomed by the King.

The plan is to hold a conference here on May 5 to consider the formation of an international body which will collect and furnish reliable statistics of crops and labor in all parts of the world, promote measures for the control of diseases of plants and animals, guide immigration movements, exercise influence in the furtherance of rural co-operation and the development of agricultural insurance and agrarian credit and otherwise aid agricultural interests.

The Emperor Joseph and President Loubet warmly congratulated Mr. Lubin on the initiation of the movement.

Welshmen For Canada.

London, Feb. 13.—(C.A.P.)—Much uneasiness is created in tin plate trade circles of Llanelly, owing to the determined efforts being made to establish the industry in Canada. Inducements are offered several well known Welsh manufacturers to open works in Toronto. Canada at present is one of the best customers of tin plate. A most notable feature is that the Sheffield cutlery trade exports to Canada in January were double those of January, 1904.

To Enforce Bait Act.

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 13.—Much disappointment is felt here over the rejection of the Hay-Bond Treaty. Newfoundland probably now will enforce the Bait Act against American vessels as well as against those of France.

Palace of Peace Plans.

The Hague, Feb. 13.—The Weekly Journal of Architects says the administrators of the Carnegie Palace of Peace have decided to admit architects of all nationalities to the competition for the selection of plans and designs.

Get An Increase.

Detroit, Feb. 13.—The first labor contract concluded this season on the great lakes was signed here Saturday night when the Great Lakes Tug and Dredge Owners' Protective Association reached an agreement with the International Brotherhood of Steam Shovel and Dredge men. Improved incidental conditions are considered equal to a general increase of 7½ per cent.

Struck By a Train.

Cobourg, Feb. 13.—At an early hour Saturday morning a fatal accident occurred at the Division street crossing, when Jean Palmer, a young woman who has been employed as a domestic at the Commercial House here, was struck by a passing train and instantly killed. A coroner's inquest will be held.

Iron Mine Begins Work.

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 13.—The first iron mine in this immediate vicinity has commenced operations, and ore is being shipped to the Algoma Steel Works at the rate of 35 tons a day. The ore comes from the Williams mine, a few miles back from the river. The output will be increased shortly.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A CURE FOR ALL.

Not a Patent Cure-all, For a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure for Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, seem to think their medicines will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely sure to cure every dyspeptic, and he need look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is, that for indigestion and various stomach troubles Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no farther than this, and any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it that the facts will not fully sustain.

It is a modern discovery, composed of harmless vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. It rests the overworked organ and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves, creating a healthy appetite, giving refreshing sleep and the blessings which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food and take these Tablets at each meal, thus assisting and resting the stomach, which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the Tablets will be no longer required.

Nervous Dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per package.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, itchiness of the skin, eruptions or blotches, ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general depression of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old fogy" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will protect you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the patient feels prepared anew for the duties and the pleasures of life. Harrison's Rejoinder.

Every schoolboy is familiar with the saying of Benjamin Franklin as the group of anxious faced yet loyal men stood around to sign the immortal Declaration of Independence, "Now we must all hang together or we'll all hang separately." But the rejoinder of the signer, Benjamin Harrison, to the above witticism is not so well known. Harrison, a portly man, looking down over his ample proportions, replied, "Yes, but when they drop us off at a rope's end some of you lightweights will be kicking and suffering long after I'm done for."

Duty of a Cheerful Face.

To wear a cheerful face when the heart is aching is not deceit. When a good housekeeper cleans the front steps and porch before she sets the house to rights she does not mean to deceive passersby. She merely shows some pride in her house and some consideration for her neighbors. We conquer our heartaches more quickly when we begin by considering the friends who are near us.

Lucky to Be Alive.

Patient—Great Scott, doctor, that's an awful bill for one week's treatment! Physician — My dear fellow, if you knew what an interesting case yours was and how strongly I was tempted to let it go to a postmortem you wouldn't grumble at a bill three times as big as this.

Not Unexpected.

"O'Rafferty is dead. He wus sthruck by lightnin'."

"Oi's not surprised at all. The lasht toime Oi saw him he wus lookin' mighty bad."

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

T.C.S. Here Saturday.

The senior team of the Trinity College School, Port Hope, will play an exhibition game with the West Ends here on Saturday afternoon.

To-Morrow's Game.

The seniors go to Markham to-morrow night to play the first game in the third round of the intermediate O.H.A series. They will have their strongest line-up on, and although Markham have been playing great hockey, the locals are going to do their best to trim them. It will be a great game and is billed as one of the star attractions of the Markham tournament.

Peterborough will have some great hockey players in a few years if present indications count for much. There are more hockey teams in town this year than ever before, and some of them are pretty fast outfits. Take the Furriers and Karnots for example, or among the younger teams the West Ends and Young Nationals. All of these teams should, and will develop stars if the teams hold together for a year or two.

City League Games.

The City League games on Thursday night promise to be of more than usual interest. The first game between the Colonials and T.A.S. is a most important one, as it determines which team is to go into the finals with the winner of the Karnot-Farrier game. The T.A.S. are in good shape and should win out, but the Colonials should put up a good game. The Karnots and Earl Greys will meet in the second contest, which will be a fast exhibition.

Cobourg Beat Queen's.

Cobourg juniors and Queen's Third played the first of their home and home games in Kingston on Saturday morning, and the former won by a score of 4 to 3. Mr. William Burke, of Belleville, refereed. It looks like a certainty for Cobourg going into the next round.

A Challenge.

The Rough Riders challenge the Northern Lights to a game as soon as the Brock-st. rink can be secured.

To-Night's Practices.

The seniors will practice to-night from 7 to 7.30 in final preparation for to-morrow night's game with Markham. The T.A.S. will practice from 7.30 to 8.10.

Port Hope in Trouble.

At the meeting of the O.H.A. executive on Saturday the case of Wilfrid McLean was taken up, and resulted in the suppression of the club, officers and players until such time as they give an explanation.

Woodstock's Case.

Woodstock's status was investigated at the O.H.A. meeting on Saturday. Five members of the team were former residents of Cornwall and drifted into Woodstock around Oct. 1st. The circumstanewes developed were so suggestive that the club was not conducted on an amateur basis that it was decided to continue the investigations ,and particularly to examine into the statements of some of the men under suspension.

Armstrong Mixed it Up.

Harold Armstrong was sent to the fence five times in the game between Marlboros and Barrie on Saturday night. He was mixed up in a couple of scraps.

The difference between T.A.S. and Campbellford is not settled yet, although the game on Friday night was supposed to put an end to the matter. The villagers, after cutting up the T.A.S. as badly as possible, are trying to keep them from enjoying their triumph as long as it is possible for them to do so. They have protested last Friday's game on the grounds that the referee, Mr. Geo. Brown, of Port Hope, was partial and favored the T.A.S., that he was not competent, and that there was one minute yet to play. This afternoon secretary E. S. Clarry received the protest and the necessary deposit from Campbellford. There is no chance of them winning the protest, as their reasons are absurd. The referee, as everybody who is acquainted with hockey matters in this district knows, is thoroughly competent and impartial and as to the time, one minute longer than necessary was played. There was a difference of two minutes between the times of the two timekeepers, and instead of splitting the difference as is usually done, the T.A.S. gave Campbellford the benefit of the doubt, and played the two minutes out. A meeting of the executive will be called for tomorrow evening to deal with the matter. In the meantime Cobourg and Fenelon Falls will likely come together.

CURLING.

Peterborough's third annual bonspiel will be held during the four days beginning February 21st, and ending Friday, 24th. The bonspiel will be open to the world, and promises to be one of the best ever held here.

TO YOUNG MEN ON LIFE'S OCEAN

Rev. Dr. Crothers Points to Hidden Rocks and Shoals.

CONQUERING DIFFICULTIES.

There is no Excuse for Idleness in Canada —Strong Drink Cause of Much Evil—Tendency too Great to Worship the Golden Image.

Rev. Dr. Crothers last evening delivered some very impressive words to young men, taking as his text, "So He bringeth them unto their desired haven—Psalm 107:30." There is a beautiful piece of word painting in this Psalm—as you read it you fancy yourself on the wind swept deck and hear the wind whistling through the rigging.

There is something very interesting in wandering about a harbor and watch the sea going vessels. As you see a beautiful ship moored at the dock—many questions enter your mind — you think perchance of the cargo and calculate its value, you admire the officers and crew, you find yourself wondering at the course the ship will take and thinking whether she will return or no. There is the possibility of danger and ships have sailed away and have not returned. No soul was left to tell the tale as to how she was lost.

The sea may be fittingly taken as a type of life. As you stand on the shore of the Atlantic and look away nothing but a waste of water meets your gaze. So far as your senses give you any information it is illimitable.

OCEAN OF LIFE

Life is like a vast ocean. We coast along the shore, but only by faith do we know anything of the other side. There is a port, a blessed haven, but there are dangers. Many a young man is just venturing out upon this sea. He carries a cargo more valuable than ever freighted the argosies of eastern seas. But there are shoals and quicksands and hidden rocks.

What are some of them? First, Idleness—I know that sometimes it is difficult to obtain work and that owing to changed conditions in industrial matters it is sometimes difficult to learn a trade, but we must adapt ourselves to those conditions and in this favored Canada of ours there is no excuse for idleness. The young man with no purpose and nothing to do is in great danger.

OVERCOMING DIFFICULTIES

By industry and thoroughness the greatest difficulties can be overcome. See Elihu Burritt and Hugh Miller. When Boniface landed in Britain he carried the gospel in one hand and a carpenter's rule in the other.

2.—Strong drink. I hold responsible for much of the sin that overtakes young men, the drinking customs of the day. The social glass has been the ruin of many a strong man.

3.—The desire for sudden wealth. There is a great tendency to-day to worship the golden image. Wealth after all is not the principal thing It is possible to make a fortune in a beggarly way and lose ones self-respect. It is grandly possible to do ordinary, manly work in a kingly way.

4.—A disposition to live beyond ones means. Debt and dishonesty are closely connected. (The speaker exhorted young men to be careful and pay their board bills.

5.—False friends. Avoid the man who speaks slightingly or disrespectfully of woman and the man who sees no good in any other person. Have nothing to do with the man who would weaken your faith in the divine. The Port may be gained The Pilot, the Blessed Master, offers to come on board to guide us through all the intricate passages of life.

Maidenly love for what is pure, brave and manly will crush the evil by which we are tempted, and at last through Christ we may hear the "Well done."

CONFIDENCE EXPRESSED

By Ministerial Association in its President —Anonymous Attacks Denounced.

At a special meeting of the Ministerial Association this morning Rev. Dr. Torrance, presiding in the absence of the president, the following resolution was moved by Rev. A. H. Brace, and seconded by Rev. J. G. Lewis, and carried unanimously:—

"The Ministerial Association of Peterborough have seen with much regret the letter which appeared in the Examiner of February 6th reflecting upon the consistency and honor of their president, Rev. J. C. Davidson, M.A. The Association wishes most emphatically to affirm that Rev. J. C. Davidson used no improper means to secure the presidency and never attempted to foist any political resolution upon them against the wishes of the members. The Association would further protest against attacks of a personal nature being made by any anonymous correspondent in the public press."

—At an early hour Saturday morning a fatal accident occurred at the Division street crossing, Cobourg, when Jean Palmer, a young woman who has been employed as a domestic at the Commercial House there, was struck by a passing train and instantly killed. A coroner's inquest will be held.

—Some needed repairs were made to the gas house yesterday when the carbureter was fixed up under the direction of Mr. Arthur Stevenson, Mr. G. Curtis doing the brick work. There was plenty of gas in the holder, so that consumers were put to no inconvenience. The carbureter and the generator are now in first class shape.

—Rev. R. G. McKay, a student of Knox College, whose home is in Oxford County, preached in St. Paul's church yesterday morning, and at the Mission in the evening. He is an able, forcible and earnest speaker, and delivered two excellent sermons, of Mr. Trotter, are cordially invited.

—The snow storm of yesterday did not effect the street railway. The sweeper was running all day Sunday and last night and the different lines were thus kept clear. A force of men was also engaged to do some needed shovelling. This morning the cars were running on regular time. The company deserves great credit for the way the service is maintained.

—James Chatten, a meandering, self-educated, head-the-sick, quack, who is charged with practising medicine in these counties without a license, was arrested at Peterborough on Saturday by Chief Ruse on a warrant issued at the instance of the Ontario Medical Council, Detective Rose, of Toronto, laying the information. He appeared before E. S. Barnum, J. P., on Monday evening, and was fined $25 and $17.06 costs, or 30 days in gaol. He paid the fine.—Cobourg Sentinel Star.

—The C. P. R. authorities are determined to prevent any blockade of their line to Bobcaygeon. A snowplow traversed the distance from Burketon to 'Caygeon twice Friday, and again Saturday. Some of our citizens have been comparing this bit of enterprise with that of the Grand Trunk, in allowing the Haliburton and Coboconk branches to become blocked. The train from Haliburton due here Thursday morning at 8.20 did not reach Lindsay until 9 p.m., and this morning it was 11 a.m., when Conductor Gall pulled in.—Lindsay Post.

—The singing in Charlotte-st. Methodist church yesterday was especially attractive. Among the numbers was "The Wayside Cross," a quartette rendered by Messrs. Freund, Mitchell, Jolliffe and Jones. Mr. Jolliffe sang in good voice "Angel Land." In the evening "Oh Tolling Bells" was rendered by Misses Belleghem and Gray, and Messrs. Freund and Jolliffe. Miss Belleghem also contributed a solo, "Oh Lord, Correct Me," with excellent voice. The anthems of the day were especially well rendered.

—In connection with the paragraph which has been going the rounds of the press to the effect that the leading circuses had decided to use only newspaper space in the future, Mr. Walter Stocker, town bill poster, has received advices that such is not correct. He has received an agreement signed by circus representatives and representatives of the associated bill posters to the effect that the shows will still continue to use bill boards and do a large amount of advertising by lithographs and posters. Street banners and window pictures will to a large extent be curtailed.

—Posters announcing the Eastern Ontario Live Stock and Poultry Show, which will be held in Ottawa, on March 6th to 10th, 1905, have been received. The show will be held in the new Exhibition Buildings, and the exhibits will consist of horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry and seed grain. The stallion show will be a feature and will provide an excellent opportunity for buyers to get some good stock. During each day of the show there will be practical live stock and poultry lectures, which should prove not only instructive, but interesting. Reduced rates will be given for freight and passengers on all railways.

—The Waterloo county council has passed a resolution to bring the assessors of the different municipalities in the county together at the court house at an early date to go over the new assessment act and prepare them for the work which they will shortly start out on. The idea met with favor, and such a conference will be held in Berlin. There are about 50 assessors in the county. The county will have Alex. Miller, K.C., the county solicitor, to meet them, explaining the act and give them such assistance as he can. Each of the municipalities is to bear the expense of its own delegates This conference will be held on Feb. 16.

CARLOAD OF ORANGES

Oke Bros., the George-st. fruit dealers are getting something more substantial than a breeze from the Sunny South these days. One day last week there arrived for this firm from California, a carload of the famous Clown Brand seedless oranges. There were about 370 boxes in the juicy consignment, and they are all in excellent condition. The orange season, so far as the northern buyers are concerned, is now at its best, and Mr. Oke states that he is but restocking a department of his fruit emporium which has grown in popularity with the wholesale and retail trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barrett Were Married at the Cathedral.

At St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, Miss Agnes Quinlan, daughter of Mr. Patrick Quinlan, of Otonabee became the bride of Mr. Edward Barrett, son of Mr. Wm. Barrett, of Ennismore. Mr. and Mrs. Barrett will take up residence in Geneva, New York.

BOY'S RE-UNION

Pleasant Affair Held at Y. M. C. A.—Interesting Addresses.

The boys responded heartily to the request of the physical director to make a special effort to attend gym. class last night. There were more boys on the floor than there has been for some time.

Class was closed at nine o'clock, after which 25 boys gathered in the parlor and were then served with refreshments by the Leaders' Corps.

The programme for the evening was opened with a vocal solo by Mr. Ridpath, after which Mr. Hughes-Charles, manager of the Bank of Commerce, gave the boys present a very delightful and particularly practical talk. He made very clear to them the importance of a sound body and a clear and healthy intellect, and the intimate relation existing between them. It means a good deal, both to the Association and to the boys, to have such a man as Mr. Hughes-Charles speak words of counsel and advice.

Next Mr. Chas. Coleman favored the boys with a comic solo, and it was comic indeed, and completely captivated the lads, who insisted that Mr. Coleman sing again.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, as a representative professional man, next addressed the boys. He was brimming over with wit and humor, which had the effect of at once gaining and holding the attention of all present. Then when he found that he had his audience just where he wanted it, he drove home shots that were very helpful to young men who are just emerging into manhood. He told how, in College days, the best man physically was the best man mentally, and vice versa. He particularly laid stress upon clean sport, and fairness and honesty in all games, and how such honesty was an indication of a man's honesty in his business and profession. He pointed out the necessity of a man putting his whole soul and strength into everything that he attempts. He also tried to awaken the boys to an appreciation of the opportunities of the Y.M.C.A., which is so earnestly extended to them.

At the conclusion of Mr. Kerr's talk Mr. William Coleman sang a solo, which was much enjoyed. Mr. Milner very kindly presided at the piano during the evening. The evening's entertainment closed with singing "God Save the King."

COSTLY GAME OF WAR.

In a general way it is known that in the struggle between Japan and Russia there has been unprecedentedly lavish expenditure of ammunition but details of certain phases of the war almost stagger the belief of those who are fairly familiar with the use of projectiles, great and small, in other conflicts of modern times. It appears that never before were so many bullets required to kill a soldier, never before so much steel, iron and powder to bombard a fortress or fight a naval engagement.

A writer in Collier's asserts that in the siege of Port Arthur the Japanese fired thousands of tons of shells into that fortress, at the average cost of $24 in gold for every shot. It is reckoned that the heavy gun bombardment cost $20,000,000. On the average the guns used discharged twenty times their own weight of metal. And probably not more than one shell in every two hundred killed or wounded any one. About one Russian shell in every four hundred hit a Japanese target.

In the same siege some forty million bullets were fired from rifles. It is certain that for every soldier killed on either side at least his own weight of metal was fired from great guns or small arms. Modern rifle bullets are not much thicker than a lead pencil, and they have wonderful penetrating force, but they are discharged at such great distance that it takes a vast number of them to kill a man, in the average tests of war. One veteran correspondent estimated that in the battle of Liao-Yang the Russians fired about 3,000 bullets for every Japanese they hit. Kuropatkin's men used at least 50,000,000 projectiles in that long battle.

In the light of such facts it is easy to understand why the best authorities believe the cost of the war in progress, taking both sides together, is not less than $2,000,000 a day, a million for each nation, if Russia's greater share were averaged with Japan's much smaller outlay. No civilized powers would wage so great a war at any such cost. It would be twice or three times as high if United States and Great Britain were engaged. No wonder that finance ministers are advocates of international peace, almost without exception.

PEN POINTS.

St. Valentine's Day and the weather show no signs of moderating.

The Town Council deserves credit for the business-like manner in which it concluded negotiations for the new cereal industry.

Mr Whitney's majority in Ontario is shown by the complete official returns to have been 34,055. Boiled down, this means that for every six votes cast for Ross seven were given for Whitney. This may not appear very much but when it is repeated often enough it is sure to cause a most depressed feeling in the bosom of he who gets the six.

It is stated that the coal companies have increased the price of domestic sizes of anthracite coal $1.14 per ton during the past five years. This means an annual burden upon the consumers of $40,000,000 a year. Argument is being heard by the United States Interstate Commerce commission to the effect, that the increased cost is due to a combine and is illegal. Should this prove true, cheaper coal may be looked for.

It seems that Col. Younghusband went beyond the commands of the British Government in writing his treaty with the Thibetans. Presumably he had some encouragement from the Indian authorities, for the Indian Government defended him for using his discretion in difficult circumstances when the British Minister criticised him. That such a conflict of opinion should occur is not surprising. Col. Younghusband is a soldier and was recently through the difficult operation of leading a military expedition to Lhassa, and so would make demands which seemed likely to obviate any such sacrifices in the future. The Minister in London had his eye on Europe, however, and did not want to leave the door open to intervention by any of the powers. The Indian Government would care less for Europe, and more for the expert opinion of the man who had crossed the Himalayas. It yet remains to be seen who was right. Was the civilian Minister right in yielding to the Boers after Majuba? Was he right again in leaving Gordon unsupported at Khartoum?

THE RED MAN

Intensely Interesting Lecture Given by Lieut.-Col. Friedrich.

The Salvation Army Hall was comfortably filled last evening, when Lieut.-Col. Friedrich, editor of the War Cry, gave his lecture on "The Red Man." It was most interesting and instructive throughout, and was heartily enjoyed by the large audience present. Lieut.-Col. Friedrich proved a most capable and eloquent speaker.

The lecture was illustrated by over one hundred magnificently colored stereopticon views, which gave a clear conception of Indian life and customs, as well as the appearance and characteristics of the different tribes. Many views illustrative of the beautiful scenery to be found in British Columbia and Alaska were also thrown upon the canvas, and evoked much admiration. The speaker dealt with his subject in a capable manner.

Lieut.-Col. Friedrich dealt with the customs of the red men and their peculiar life, and gave some idea of the difficulty of carrying on the operations of the Salvation Army among the natives of Alaska and British Columbia. Views of Army headquarters in some of the towns and villages on the Pacific Coast were shown, and the speaker briefly but clearly explained each, giving much interesting information about the work in each place. The portraits of many of the converted Indians were displayed and interesting anecdotes were told of each. A characteristic of the views of Alaskan houses illustrated was that before nearly every one was found a totem pole. Many pictures of these were thrown on the canvas and gave a clear conception of the various kinds to be found on the North-West coast.

TREATMENT OF PILES

Permanence of Cure the True Test

Many so-called pile remedies will afford the user slight temporary relief and the majority of those afflicted do not expect more than this.

The average sufferer, after having tried every preparation recommended for the cure of piles, comes to the conclusion that there is no cure except by an operation, and rather than undergo this "last resort," he suffers on, resigned to the situation, so far as may be. The attention of those interested is invited to the following experience:—

"After ten years of suffering from blind, bleeding and protruding piles, and after using every remedy I could hear of without any benefit, I finally bought a fifty cent bottle of Pyramid Pile Cure, and used it with such good results I bought next a dollar box, which finished up the job. That was nearly six years ago, and as far as piles is concerned I am cured, and have never felt a symptom of them since.

"Many others have used this remedy by my advice, with the same results, and I always recommend it to sufferers with piles." C. H. Potts, Burlington, Kans.

Testimony like this should convince the most skeptical that Pyramid Pile Cure not only cures, but cures to stay cured. It is in the form of a suppository, can be applied in the privacy of the home, directly to the parts affected, and does its work quickly and painlessly.

Druggists generally sell this famous remedy for fifty cents a package, and sufferers are urged to buy a package now and give it a trial tonight. Accept no substitutes.

A little book describing the causes and cure of piles is published by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., and same will be sent free to any address for the asking.

CONVERSATION SOCIAL

Held by Charlotte Street Epworth League Last Evening.

The Epworth League of Charlotte-st. church held a delightful Conversation Social last night in the Sunday school room, and the evening was most pleasantly spent. The President of the League, Mr. S. Armstrong, occupied the chair and gave a brief opening address.

The programme, which was a thoroughly enjoyable one, was as follows:—

Vocal Solo—Mr. R. Freund.
Recitation—Miss Sadie Free.
Violin Solo—Mr. G. W. Jones.
Recitation—Miss Mabel Christie.
Recitation—Mr. G. W. Jones.
Instrumental Solo—Miss May Huffman.
Recitation—Miss Sadie Free.

At the conclusion of the programme each person was given a card with a number of topics upon it, and each was supposed to seek out a partner with whom to converse for a certain period on each of the topics. This proved highly interesting as well as an effective means of promoting a social system among the audience. Delightful refreshments were afterwards served.

THE PLUMBING INSPECTOR.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—At the meeting of the council held on Feb. 6th, the legal committee in their report recommended that Mr. Sturgeon be appointed plumbing inspector for the town and their report was adopted. Now I have nothing to say against his qualifications as a plumber, but I do not think he is the proper person for the position as I understand he is an employee of a company, who own many buildings in our town and a large part of the plumbing in these buildings has been done by him, and, it is to be presumed, will still be done by him in any buildings they own. Is he to inspect his own work; if so, he is useless as an inspector for those buildings—take for instance the house I live in. The plumbing would not pass inspection by any person but the landlord and the man who did it or some other interested persons. Now suppose he did it, would it not be absurd to call him in to inspect it. It is natural to suppose that he would not condemn his own work. I think this fully shows the folly of appointing him. It is alright for the council to economize but cheeseparing in the appointment of an inspector is not the kind of economy the people want. This is a matter of both health and wealth to our town and the work should be given to a man who can do the work without fear or favor or prejudice of work already done. If our town cannot produce a proper man for the position then I think the councillors should go outside of the town and get one. I think any man in business or any man, who has done a lot of plumbing already in existence, is not fit and proper person for the position. No doubt the council cannot get a fit man for $400 a year but would it not be better to pay a good salary for a man and have him give all of his time to the work. I think the people would back the council in doing so, I do not think it is fair to the plumbers in town to appoint an interested man to the position.

I have waited a week to see some protest in the papers to the action of the council, and I have arrived at the conclusion that the people think it is a joke the councillors are playing on them and that they are not serious in the action they have taken. It does not look as though they were trifling with a serious matter.

I remain respectfully,
A VOTER.

WRIGHT CO. IN DOUBT.

Though Conservative Is Leading Both Sides Claim Victory For Seat Rejected By Sir Wilfrid.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—The bye-election in Wright County yesterday, caused by the retirement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was elected by over 1,200 in November, resulted in a close contest, and last night it was impossible to tell who is elected.

McDougall (Conservative) is leading by about 100 majority, with a number of places to hear from which will go Liberal. In the McDougall figures, however, is a claim of 127 majority in Eardley Township which cannot be verified. In November it went Conservative by 48. In Hull City McDougall leads by 34 majority, but his vote is only 68 more than the Conservative in November, showing that ex-Mayor Falardeau and Barrett, dissenting Liberals, did not cut much figure in the campaign for Mr. McDougall.

The votes so far as heard from was as follows:

Devlin's majorities: Maniwaki 51, Cameron 11, Egan No. 2 10, East Templeton 20, Wright 77, Chelsea 17, West Hull Township 17, North Wakefield 19, Low 75, Aumond 6. Total, 308.

McDougall's majorities: Hull City 34, Aylwin 36, South Wakefield 27, Aylmer 39, Kensington 12, Egan No. 1 4, Eardley 127 (reported), South Hull 51, Rupert 48. Total 388.

Cousineau's majorities: Gatineau Point 164, East Hull 6. Total 170.

Hay Fever Cured,

Never to Return, by Japanese Catarrh Cure.

Yes, we know that you have tried hundreds of remedies and physicians without success. But you have not used Japanese Catarrh Cure. Remember that the telegraph, typewriter, electric lights and automobiles were "impossibilities" until proven realities. Japanese Catarrh Cure is the only known cure for hay fever. It kills the germs and forever eradicates the disease from the system. The first treatment brings relief, the sneezing stops, the burning pain in the nostrils is soothed, the eyes stop aching, and you will enjoy a night's sleep in comfort.

Dr. R. S. Wilson, New York, says:—Japanese Catarrh Cure has met with the highest endorsement of the medical profession for the only reason that ever wins such endorsement, its distinct and proven value."

MR. CULVERWELL'S ENERGY

His Plan to Transmit It Across Country to the Front.

Newcastle, Feb. 11.—J. A. Culverwell, of Port Hope, called upon us on Monday on his way to Orono to meet Clarke Council in session that day and lay before them his plan of transmission of electrical energy from Burleigh Falls across the country by way of Newcastle and Orono to Bowmanville, Oshawa, etc., for power and light, and to have a by-law passed, giving his company the right of erecting poles, wires, etc., in the township, which the Council, after due deliberation, decided to do.

Healthy and Vigorous

Mr. John Shelton, the well known bridge builder of 101 Sherwood St., Ottawa, states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney and liver derangements brought on by exposure, and find them better than any pill or medicine I ever used. They cleansed my system and made me feel healthy and vigorous, and better in every way."

HYMNS OF SANCTUARY

Interesting Address by Rev. J. E. Trotter in Murray Street Church.

A pleasant evening was spent in the Murray-st. Baptist church last night, when Rev. J. E. Trotter, pastor of the Baptist church, Port Hope, formerly of Peterborough, gave an able and instructive talk on the Hymns of the Sanctuary before a large gathering. The address was delivered under the auspices of the Young People's Mission. Rev. F. J. Scott presided.

Mr. Trotter spoke on several well-known hymns, the personality of their authors, the circumstances under which they were written, the inspiration, zeal and piety which characterized their production, and in general gave a splendid review of the whole subject.

A quartette was rendered by Messrs. Raddon, Cunningham, Bagshaw and Miller, and during the evening several well known hymns were sung.

At the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Trotter by the chairman, and then an adjournment was made to the lecture room, where choice refreshments were served by the young people.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Trent Valley game between Fenelon Falls and T.A.S., scheduled for to-morrow night at the Falls, is, of course, off on account of Campbellford's protest against the local team, which will be settled at Wednesday night's meeting of the executive. Fenelon Falls and Cobourg will likely come together first.

Thursday's Game.

The City League games on Thursday night should prove highly interesting. The Colonials and T.A.S. meet in the first game, and as the winner will meet the winner of the Farrier-Karnot game in the finals, the contest should be a hard fought and exciting one. Both teams will have their strongest line-up and may be depended upon to put up the game of their lives. The Earl Greys and Karnots come together in the second game, and it will doubtless be a fast exhibition.

The Guild League.

There will be two games in the Guild League to-morrow night at All Saints' rink. In the first Charlotte-st. will bump up against St. John's and in the second All Saints' and George-st. come together. Both should be good exhibitions.

Port Perry's Rink.

Last evening's Toronto Star contained a sketch of the Lindsay and Port Perry teams in the game at Port Perry last week. It was entitled "Hockey in Country Rinks."

THE RING AND MAT.

Artie Edmunds, the well known Toronto wrestler and boxer, who has been working around New York and Philadelphia, is a victim of false pretenses. Some one masquerading under his name buncoed Mr. E. B. Richardson, of Cortlandt, N.Y., over a bout, and now the police in Toronto are looking for Artie under the impression that he engineered the fraud. Edmunds has always had a reputation in Toronto for integrity, and those who know him well deride the idea that he would go outside and by slippery work destroy what took him many years to acquire.

Richardson came to Toronto in search of Edmunds a couple of weeks ago, only to discover that he had been around New York. He corresponded with him and Edmunds was fortunately able to convince him that he had nothing to do with the bunco game or those who engineered it. The two men who were with this bogus Artie Edmunds at Cortlandt registered as Charlie Edmunds and James Flanagan.

If the real Artie meets this precious trio the chances are that there will be a catch-as-catch-can bout, with no holds barred, the articles to be signed after the melee.—Toronto Star.

LABOR UNION LABELS BILL

Effort Being Made to Hang Up the Measure.

DIRECT ISSUE BEING EVADED

After This Week There Will be Only One Private Members' Day a Week—Satisfactory Progress Being Made in the House in Supply—Mr. Maclean Speaks

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—When Ralph Smith's bill respecting labor union labels was called yesterday it was stated from the Ministerial benches that the bill could not be taken up in the absence of the Minister of Justice. An effort is evidently being made to "hang up" the bill. After this week there will be only one private members' day a week, so that private legislation is placed at a disadvantage. If by any process of juggling, it is possible to evade a direct issue on the union labor labels bill the Government and a large number of members of the House will be well pleased.

Progress Made in Supply.

Satisfactory progress was made by the House in Committee of Supply yesterday. The chief discussion was over steamship subsidies. One of the smallest of these proved to be the most contentious. It was a subsidy of $2,000 to a service between St. Catharines Bay and Tadousac, a distance of three miles.

Mr. Foster, Dr. Sproule and others contended that it was really a ferry service, and as such it should be provided by the Provincial authorities. Mr. Fitzpatrick pleaded that there were extraordinary conditions on the north shore of the St. Lawrence between Tadousac and Gaspe, and that great hardship would follow if a steamship service was not installed between St. Catharines Bay and Tadousac.

Applies Also to Railways.

There was considerable argument over an application of $146,000 for monthly communication between Canada and South Africa. It was contended by several Opposition members that the contracts did not provide sufficient guarantee against the possibility of discrimination against Canadian shipments.

W. F. Maclean said that this argument applied to railways as well as to steamship companies. Of the thousand million dollars invested in Canadian railways one-quarter was contributed by the people. Yet the railways were allowed to carry U. S. traffic to compete with ours on the British market at one-half the rate that is charged Canadians. Steamship services subsidized by Canada should be used in the interest of the Canadian public.

Get Better Information.

Mr. Maclean also found fault with the small amount of information furnished in connection with subsidized steamship companies. There should be a consular trade service in connection with such subventions. Reports should be required from the steamship companies, the Minister of Trade and Commerce, and from consular officers to inform the public of trade opportunities. The information should be sufficient to let the public know exactly what the subsidized steamship services were giving the country in return for the subsidies.

The Committee proceeded to the discussion of an appropriation of $4,000 for the administration of the Chinese immigration act. Mr. Paterson claimed that no Chinese had entered the country since the imposing of $500 poll tax, though it appeared there had been a very large influx the year before the act came into force.

Whence Come They?

Mr. Maclean said that between 1,000 and 2,000 Chinese had entered Toronto during the past year. He did not know where they came from, but he was satisfied that they did not all come from British Columbia.

With this conclusion Mr. Paterson disagreed.

The item passed and the Committee rose and reported progress.

The House adjourned at 10.40.

DOZEN PEOPLE FROZEN

18 Degree Below Zero Recorded At Chicago On Monday

Southwestern and Western States Suffer Great Hardships Through the Unprecedented Cold Weather—Fifteen Inches of Snow Under a Clear Sky At Kansas City—Great Suffering Among the Poor and Stock—Trains Delayed.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 14.—With almost unprecedented cold and deep snow, delays in passenger and freight transportation much loss of human life and some damage to live stock were reported from a vast territory, west, south and north of Chicago yesterday. Moderation set in last night north and west.

In Chicago the rare temperature of 18 degrees below zero was reported yesterday, causing great suffering among the poor. The most unusual of the present cold weather hardships are experienced in the southwest, including Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Arkansas, New Mexico, Missouri and Northern Texas.

With a record breaking temperature of 25 degrees below zero at Kansas City and fifteen inches of snow under a clear sky—and this indicates conditions in the whole southwest—a dozen persons have been frozen to death in Oklahoma, Indian Territory and adjoining States.

Snow Delays Trains.

Trains are delayed by snow drifts, but wheat is protected and live stock losses will not be extensive. The temperature in the southwest last night tended toward moderation. Henry Ball of Ponca City, Okla., was frozen to death while driving.

Chas. Williams was found yesterday near Guthrie, Okla., frozen stiff. In the middle west, including Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and adjoining States the cold was intense.

Trains are much delayed and coal is scarce at several places. Herders and travelers have been frozen on the prairies in several States.

Intense cold and deep snow are killing hundreds of deer and other wild animals in Northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. Even wolves' carcasses have been found. Farmers report that wild cats and wolves appear to have lost all fear, raiding chicken coops, pig pens and even cattle barns.

Greatest Live Stock Losses.

L. E. Bolton, secretary of the Oklahoma Live Stock Association, says the live stock losses this year will be the greatest since 1896. He places the number of head lost on the ranges in Western Kansas, Western Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas at 50,000 head.

Railways Blocked By Snow.

Kingston, Feb. 14.—The Kingston & Pembroke Railway is closed, owing to the snow blockade, and a large force is out clearing the tracks. The Bay of Quinte Railway has had no train into Kingston since Wednesday last. The Kingston Street Railway is only half open.

DIES FOR HER CHILD.

Mother Persisted in Entering Burning Building in Forlorn Hope.

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 14.—At Day Spring, a settlement about five miles from the Town of Bridgewater, Lunenburg County, yesterday, fire broke out in a house occupied by the families of Edward Rodenhieser and E. Leary. At the time the fire was discovered—about 2 a.m.—both husbands were away from home. Some neighbors who were attracted to the scene by the flames succeeded in getting the children from the burning building, with the exception of one child of Rodenhieser's family. The mother in spite of the protestations of those assembled, re-entered the burning building, and both mother and child perished in the flames. Mrs. Rodenhieser leaves six children.

Killed By Paper Machine.

Shawinigan Falls, Que., Feb. 14.—At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon a young man named Joseph Beauregard, single, 18 years, working in the Belgo Pulp and Paper Co.'s mill, was killed when working a paper machine. His arm got caught between the rollers and half his body was pulled into the machine.

Crushed Under Iron Ore.

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 14.—A terrible accident occurred in the Steel Mill yesterday morning, when Jacob Johnston, a Finn, was crushed under a slide of iron ore. He was moving the ore and was caught in the slide following a blast of dynamite.

Ladies Hurt in Car Crash.

Toronto, Feb. 14.—As a result of a trolley collision last night, at the intersection of Queen and Spadina avenue, Mrs. J. H. Hoar, 26 Macdonnell avenue, and a sister of Mrs. A. W. Smith of 25 Springhurst avenue, were badly bruised and had several teeth loosened. Internal injuries are feared. Several other passengers are suffering from minor bruises. A motorman was to blame.

Asphyxiated By Gas.

Buffalo, Feb. 14.—The dead bodies of Mrs. Mary Armstrong, aged about 40 years; Mrs. Cynthia Ford, aged about 35 years, a sister of Mrs. Armstrong, and Mabel Armstrong, aged 15 years, were found yesterday afternoon in their home, 88 Maple street. They had been asphyxiated by natural gas. Both women were widows.

94 Persons Drown.

London, Feb. 14.—(C.A.P.)—A despatch from Kobe, Japan, to The Express, reports that the small steamer Natori Gawa collided with the harbor works at Osaka on Sunday and sank, and that 94 persons were drowned.

Prussian Strike Ends.

Essen, Prussia, Feb. 14.—The coal strike is entirely ended. Full shifts went into the mines yesterday morning.

PARENT IS OUT.

Rumors and Statements From All Sources Seem to Agree in This Regard—Gouin For Premier.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—Conferences which have been going on here almost unceasingly between representatives of the Quebec Government and Sir Wilfrid Laurier seem to have been successful. It is understood that Premier Parent has at last consented to step down and out. He will be succeeded by Mr. Gouin, who, it is believed can command a sufficiently strong following in the Legislature. Mr. Parent will go south for six months. When he returns, the crisis will have been tided over, and Mr. Parent can have practically anything he asks from the Dominion Government.

Premier Parent left for Quebec yesterday to attend a meeting of his colleagues to be held there to-day. Prior to his departure, he informed a friend that in the present unsatisfactory state of his health he did not care to prolong the struggle, and would not do so unless absolutely compelled to it by his friends. He was in the hands of his friends.

Quits Within 24 Hours.

Quebec, Feb. 14.—A rumor, considered to be well founded, was in circulation here last night that Premier Parent will resign within 24 hours and that Hon. Lomer Gouin will then be asked to form a Ministry, in which Mr. Archambault will have a position. Premier Parent, Mr. Turgeon and Lomer Gouin have not yet returned from Ottawa.

An Inspired Despatch.

Toronto, Feb. 14.—The Globe's Ottawa correspondent last night wired his paper the following inspired despatch:

"Within 48 hours," said a member of Parliament from the Province of Quebec to The Globe correspondent this morning, "Mr. Parent will have resigned from the Premiership and Hon. Lomer Gouin will be at the head of the Provincial Government. Senator Choquette will withdraw his charges against Mr. Parent and peace will once more reign in the Liberal ranks. Mr. Parent has been for some time hopelessly out of touch with the party. He is a poor speaker, lacks savoir faire, and has always stood aloof from instead of going out and mixing with the people."

TREATIES A BACKWARD STEP.

Roosevelt Resents Action of Senate and Will Veto Them.

Washington, Feb. 14.—President Roosevelt will not present the arbitration treaties, as amended by the Senate, to the countries with which they were negotiated. In reply to numerous inquiries by representatives of the press at the State Department yesterday, Secretary Hay made, in substance, the following statement:

"The President regards the matter of the general arbitration treaties as concluded by the action of the Senate on Saturday. He recognizes the right of the Senate to reject a treaty either by a direct vote in that sense, or indirectly by changes which are incompatible with its spirit and purpose. He considers that with the Senate amendment the treaties not only cease to be a step forward in the cause of general arbitration, but are really a step backward, and therefore he is unable to present them in this altered form to the countries with which we have been in negotiation."

Secretary Cullom, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, after reading Secretary Hay's comment on the action of the Senate in amending the arbitration treaties, said:

"The Senate's position is right undoubtedly. If anything is done hereafter the President will have to take the Senate into his confidence. It might require a little more time, but otherwise I can see nothing in the Senate's course inharmonious with the President's interpretation of his treaty-making powers."

Read With Surprise.

London, Feb. 14.—The announcement of President Roosevelt's determination to proceed no further with the arbitration treaties in consequence of the Senate's action in substituting the term "treaty" for "agreement" is received with surprise, but with no evidence of concern in official circles here. Disappointment was expressed at the Foreign Office, but officials there said they were confident that a treaty upon which all parties could agree ultimately would be signed.

POLITICAL NOTES.

F. E. A. Evanturel, who was in Mr. Ross' reorganized Cabinet as Minister without portfolio, is seriously ill with inflammation of the lungs at his home in Alfred. He is being attended by Dr. Gibeault.

Owing to the illness of Judge Doyle, Huron County, the decision in the recount has been again postponed. It will probably be given today.

The Socialist element in British Columbia politics is making trouble for the Government of Premier McBride.

The Minister of Finance, Hon. W. S. Fielding, will sail from London on Wednesday for New York.

Election Case in Essex.

Essex, Feb. 14.—Chief Constable Brown has laid an information against William Robinson, a farmer, near here, charging him with an infraction of the Ontario Election Act. A portion of his land lies in Gosfield township and a portion in Maidstone township. Robinson, it is claimed, voted in both and is liable to a penalty of $300.

Mr. McCosh Both Protest.

Orillia, Feb. 14.—Mr. McCosh, the defeated Conservative candidate in East Simcoe in the recent provincial campaign, says he will protest the return of J. B. Tudhope, M. P. P., the Liberal member. Mr McCosh declares that there have been irregularities in all parts of the riding.

Where Extremes Meet

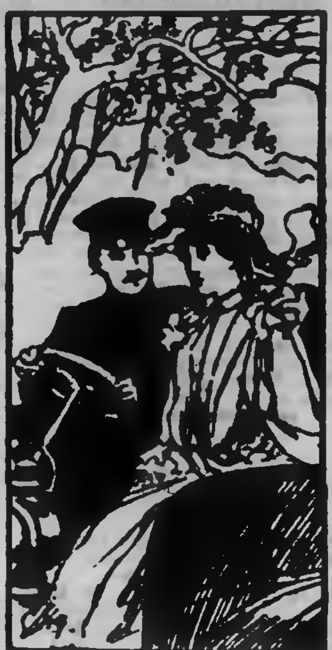
By Otho B. Senga

Copyright, 1904, by Otho B. Senga

Hammond, strong, alert, silent, guided his dashing automobile in and out amid the crush of traffic. His companion was silent also, which fact might have disconcerted a less observant man than Hammond.

He stopped the machine before a massive granite building and sprang to the sidewalk. Miss Markham watched him absently. He had said that he must stop at his office, but the waiting was not unwelcome to her. She liked to watch the great drays and heavy wagons and to observe the sights and sounds of this unfamiliar part of the city.

Presently she noticed that Hammond had not entered the building, but was standing in the doorway, looking up and down the street as if watching for some one. He caught her wandering glance and waved his hand, smiling brightly. Then he put both hands to his mouth, making a horn, and called something to her, which she could not hear above the roar of the street.



"SHALL WE LOOK FOR IT TOGETHER, ELIZABETH?"

"He is like a boy," she thought and laughed in sympathy with his evident joyousness. "There is never any gloom or any uncertainty about him," adding sadly: "Men are so sure of themselves—and of one another. I wish—I wish I knew if he thinks only of my money, as all the others seem to do."

Still watching his eager face, she knew that whatever he had been waiting for was coming, and he pointed up the street and laughed again as he ran lightly down the steps.

Two young Italians, a man and a woman, were making ready to play. The girl wore a rose wreath on her dark hair, and her eyes were filled with the light of love as she looked fondly in the face of her companion.

The strains of the music came to Miss Markham in fitful snatches, mingled with the noises of the street. She saw that Hammond was listening as if to a symphony, and she wondered a little as to the meaning of the scene. She saw him place something in the girl's small brown hand, and then the man took off his cap with low obeisance, and the girl courtesied prettily as Hammond raised his hat politely and made his way to the automobile.

"What is it?" she questioned briefly as he took his seat.

"Only the beautiful outcome of a little romance that I have watched as it blossomed here amid the sordid rush of business."

"They are lovers, these two?" falling in with his mood.

"Yes. Wedded last night. Two magnificent types of primitive humanity!" with the enthusiasm of artistic perception.

They watched the two as they went down the street, each pushing the piano with one hand, while the other hands were clasped.

"Will you tell me about them?" she asked as they reached a broad, quiet avenue away from the din and confusion of the city.

"Are you really interested?" turning to look at her curiously.

"Very much so. Please tell me."

"They are Antoine and Carita. They may have other names. These are all I know. I have watched them from my window all winter. He had a tiny fruit stand on the corner, and she was errand girl in a big millinery establishment on the next street. I saw the first love glances, and I swear by Bunker Hill they did not come from Antoine."

Miss Markham laughed softly.

"I watched Carita passing and repassing, making several trips by the little stand for each errand. Then there would be days when she did not come at all, and Antoine's neck would have been safer in those days if it had really been made of rubber instead of the material provided by the Creator."

Miss Markham smiled appreciatively. She could fancy the ardent Italian gazing up and down the street watching for his sweetheart.

"Well, occasionally making pretense of an abnormal desire for bananas, I rushed out to the stand while she was still lingering there, and so I sometimes overheard a few sentences—their soft Italian love words sounding like bird notes in spring. Can't you fancy them building a nest somewhere of boughs and moss—they wouldn't require much more than the birds, you know—and settling down like the birds to sing their love songs and rear their young?"

A new light shone in Miss Markham's clear eyes.

"And this is the man whom the girls describe as a mere business automaton," she thought, but she only said encouragingly, "Well?"

Hammond's head swam for an instant with a comprehension of the magnitude of what he meant to do, but he went on steadily.

"The day of the tornado—you remember it—when the wind tore shutters from the houses and overthrew chimneys and great limbs were stripped from the trees as the small boy pulls leaves from a twig—that day I witnessed the downfall of the house of Buona—in other words, the complete destruction of Antoine's fruit stand and peanut cooker."

Miss Markham sighed with quick sympathy. Hammond was unconsciously giving the little story a dramatic turn.

"Poor Antoine! He made one or two frantic endeavors to prevent the disaster, and then, crushed by the misfortune, he clung to the doorway of the office building and watched the gamins as they wildly scrambled for the scattered fruit."

"And was everything entirely ruined?" Miss Markham's hand instinctively sought her purse.

"The peanut cooker lay in the mud, bent and twisted out of all semblance to its kind. Antoine picked it up with trembling hands and then, realizing its uselessness, replaced it in the gutter, while the tears streamed down his cheeks."

"That isn't all?" expectantly.

Hammond continued obediently: "'Never mind, Antoine,' I said cheerfully—it's so easy to be cheerful over another's misfortunes, you know—'you'll soon be on your feet again. We must expect reverses in business.' At my words of sympathy the flood gates of his grief were opened, and the words fairly tumbled over one another, his soft broken English finally relapsing into Italian altogether as he told his story. He had been so careful of his money—he had saved twenty-three 'dolla.' They were to have been married tomorrow, he and Carita, and he was to have bought Carita a new gown and a rose wreath for her hair, and they would have been so happy! And now—then he pointed eloquently to the ruined peanut cooker, waved both hands in a gesture expressing the utter nothingness of his condition, and the ready tears came again.

"I missed him then for several weeks. The other day they came together and waited until I came out from the office. 'My brudda—he die,' began Antoine cheerily as soon as I joined them. 'An' leave Antoine seventy-four dolla,' said Carita, her eyes big with the magnitude of the fortune. 'An' his business.' Antoine added pompously. 'Did he have a stand?' I asked him. 'No, a piano. We marry ourselves tonight, Thursday.'"

Hammond paused abruptly. The expression on Miss Markham's patrician face was so unlike the usual air of polite indifference that he was almost startled into the telling of his own story, forgetful of the Italian lovers. "That is all," he added awkwardly.

"And how did you know they would be at your office this morning?" as if reluctant to leave the subject.

"Antoine hunted me up last night—at the club. Said his wife—you should have seen his eyes when he said the word—his wife wanted to come and play for me first, believing it would bring them luck. I hadn't intended to go downtown this morning, as you know, but I thought that was really very little to do if it would add anything to their happiness. Foolish things, aren't they?" He turned his head away. She would agree with this, of course, and he couldn't bear to have her do so.

She put her hand lightly on his arm.

"No, they are not foolish. They are wise. They have found the greatest thing in the world. Those who win love need look no farther; there is nothing more to have here. They who lose it lose everything.

He put his own strong hand over the smaller one resting on his arm.

"Shall we look for it—together, Elizabeth?"

She looked hastily about—there was no one near; they were quite in the country now—and raised her beautiful face to his. "I think we have found it already," she whispered.

A Very Large Mine.

There was once in Cripple Creek an odd character named Burns. He was an odd person, who always, no matter what his work, wore what used to be called a "Prince Albert." He struck a rich vein of ore and named that the Prince Albert. Being of a generous and convivial disposition, this lucky fellow was, of course, surrounded by many self seeking friends. When he and they were in their cups some of them, with an eye to the main chance, managed to wheedle out of Burns on one pretext or another a deed of a share in his mine. With royal prodigality he scattered deeds about among his retainers and camp followers until finally something had to be done, and the case was taken into court. One of the lawyers had Burns on the stand. "Now, Mr. Burns," said the lawyer, "will you please tell the court how you can explain your conduct? The evidence shows that you have deeded away twenty-nine twenty-fourths of your mine. What have you to say to that?" "Well, sir," replied the witness, "you must remember, sir, that the Prince Albert is a very large mine."

THE CONSERVATORY OPENED UNDER FAVORABLE AUSPICES

Delightful Musical Programme Marked the Formal Ceremonies.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS BY MR. DENNISTOUN

Objects of the Institution Explained in an Interesting Manner—Cultured and Critical Audience Greatly Pleased With Numbers Given by Members of the Faculty—Herr Wilhelmj Contributed.

A splendid and high-class musical programme marked the formal opening of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music last evening. The music throughout was of an uniquely high character and given with an artistic effect, greatly appreciated by the large audience, which was an excellent representation of the music-loving community—an audience both cultured and critical. The opening, indeed, was attended by those circumstances which made it a pleasureable possibility to prophecy a most successful future. The programme given last evening was of that character which renders significant the opportunities for high accomplishment in musical education. The members of the faculty who performed were received with delight by auditors thoroughly capable of appreciating merit, and nothing better can be desired of the other members of the faculty if the same high standard is obtained in their several departments.

Though the large concert hall was not equal to the demand upon its accommodation last evening, it may be said in passing that the building itself is exceedingly well adapted to the daily work of a conservatory, and Mr. Rupert Gliddon is to be congratulated upon the thorough manner in which he has arranged, fitted and equipped it for a purpose most worthy of public commendation.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

The inaugural address was delivered by Mr. R. M. Dennistoun. He spoke as follows:—

It is with great pleasure that we all join to-night in marking the progress which Peterborough makes by having in her midst this handsome Conservatory of Music, under the able directorship of Mr. Rupert Gliddon—a man who has labored unceasingly to elevate music to its proper position and to cultivate the musical taste of our citizens.

The objects of a Conservatory of Music are

1. To afford musical instruction upon a system both logical and scientific.

2. As part of such a system to advance pupils in regular progression, paying particular attention to the aptitudes and attainments of the individual pupil by means of a curriculum carefully prepared.

This cannot be done under private instruction in the same way, for each teacher has his own method, and and change of teacher means change of method, with most unsettling effect upon the student.

3. To afford opportunities for musical intercourse, which tends to develop a lively interest in music itself. In this building students will be afforded frequent opportunities for recital before audiences; this develops confidence and self-control, and exposes the pupil to educated criticism, which is, after all, the best educator and monitor.

4. Last, but not least, it will afford opportunity to many who have no particular talent for technical work to master the theory and fundamental principles of music and enable them to cultivate a musical taste which will open great and delectable sources of enjoyment which age cannot wither or misfortune obliterate.

The question whether or not the child shall receive instruction in music comes to every parent. The answer to this question is often given upon an entirely wrong hypothesis. It is generally thought that the child which shows no musical talent should, for that reason, have no musical education. We take particular pains to teach the child which is deficient in the rudiments of our common education the particular branches in which he is lacking. So it should be with music, poetry and the fine arts. Music occupies a unique position among the nations of the earth. In the language of Longfellow:

"It is the universal language of mankind."

Every ear can understand the tragedies or comedies which the great composers tell us, provided the ear has been trained to unravel these mysteries.

A father once objected to Dr. Arnold teaching his boy Latin, because he did not see what the child could do with it. Arnold replies, "Sir, it is not for the sake of what the boy will do with the Latin, but for what the Latin will do with the boy."

So it is with music. Our children may not become musicians. They may never charm large audiences or small ones, but the benefit which music may have upon their lives is incalculable. It will enlarge and uplift the intellect, assuage the ills of fortune and improve the morals of our race.

It will have a lasting and fostering influence upon the other talents which lie dormant until awakened, and may stimulate the child to efforts in quite unexpected directions. As Mme. de Stael says, so beautifully:

"Architecture is frozen music."

So, too, poetry, painting and sculpture are closely allied to it.

In conclusion, let us make this Conservatory an institution upon which the warmest affections of our people will centre, and let us endeavor, one and all, to use it for the improvement and enlightenment of our community.

I now declare this Conservatory duly opened for the work it has to do, and I wish the musical director and his most talented and efficient staff every success in their labors.

The first number on the programme was the Mendelssohn Prelude, in E minor, performed with artistic excellence, by the deservedly popular young pianiste, Miss Alice B Roger, who also opened the second part with a prelude by Chaminade. Miss Roger's execution is brilliant and expressive with a charming quality of tone.

The artist of the evening was Herr August Wilhelmj, the member of the faculty whose department is voice culture, and if his capabilities of teaching correspond to his capabilities as an artist, too much cannot be promised of his work as an instructor. Herr Wilhelmj, a son of the great violinist of that name, favored the audience with four vocal numbers, taking the place in two of them of Miss Helen Davies, prevented from singing by indisposition. His selections were classic in calibre and varied in character, and, in this respect, permitted of a display of the, so to speak, versatility of his voice. They were Lotti's "Pur dicesti o bocca bella;" "Dream in the Twilight," (sung to German words.) by R. Strauss; "Eldorado," by Clarence Lucas, (who, by the way is a clever Canadian composer, doing excellent work in London, Eng.); Schumann's "Nussbaum," and an extra number "Tis May," by Brahms, a beautifully dainty and sprightly song, given with charming effect. This applies to all the numbers, which, it will be seen by those who are in any way familiar with them, cover a wide range of style and motif. Herr Wilhelmj's voice is of rich clarity and even quality throughout, his register always retaining its pure character, in both piano passages and tours de force. He sings with just appreciation of the sentiment of his selection, his enunciation is good, his colouring warm; he is, in fine, admirably equipped with all the requirements of a genuine artist, and aspiring vocalists are fortunate in being able to avail themselves of his services. It must be mentioned that the accompaniments furnished by Miss Roger, were played with admirable judgment and artistic subordination.

W. E. Fairclough
Teacher of Organ and Theory.

Herr Klingenfeld
Instructor on the Violin.

Mr. Gilbert Markle, violinist, another member of the faculty, gave very satisfactory interpretations of two numbers, a "Sarabande," by Le-Clair and "The Bee" by F. Schubert, to which Miss Wilhelmina Gumpricht, another member of the faculty, supplied satisfactory accompaniments.

Altogether the opening recital of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, was promisingly successful, and the thanks of those privileged to be present are due Mr. Gliddon, who is to be congratulated upon the excellent beginning made.

THE FACULTY

The following at present compose the faculty—

Mr. Harry Field, Piano Pedagogue.
Herr August Wilhelmj, Voice.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., German

While the audience was gathering Gliddon's orchestra, stationed in one of the studios on the second floor, played in excellent manner several selections.

Have you tried our new Cream Taffy? It is delicious and harmless. Try it. Sold only by T. H HOOPER.

CHARITY BOARD

The Central Charity Board met last evening. There were present, Messrs. H. Rush, chairman; F. C. Miller, Wm. Fowler, Wm. Kemp, Wm Batten, Rev. J. G. Lewis, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Several cases were considered after which the Board adjourned.

MANY FURNACES INSTALLED

People of Peterborough Believe in Being Comfortable During Winter.

It is interesting to note the extent of operations carried on during the fall and winter by the men who have to do with the installation of heating appliances. One of these gentlemen has already put in 57 furnaces, the majority of which were for hot air; another man supplied 30 places with heating apparatus; another 23, and a fourth 12. This is but an evidence of the activity that has existed in this line of work during the past season. There is preference shown for the hot air appliance, one reason being that it is considerably cheaper, ranging in price from $125 to $150, while the hot water outfit is top-notched at about $500. The furnace is now recognized as the most approved means of maintaining a comfortable temperature. The agent of what is known as the Star Heater, a stove distinct in itself, burning soft coal or wood, states that he has already sold 87 of these, while all of the dealers speak of large sales in the ordinary heating stoves, all of which goes to show that the people of Peterborough have a healthy desire to be comfortable during the winter.

NEW COMPANY MEANS BUSINESS

One Carload of Machinery Already Here.

WILL BEGIN WORK SOON

The New Cereal Industry to Which the Town Gave Assistance Will Prove Valuable Concern.

The Peterborough Cereal Company undoubtedly mean business and no better proof of this can be obtained than the fact that there has already arrived one carload of machinery to be installed as soon as possible. It is the intention to use a portion of the buildings recently erected by Mr. W. H. Meldrum for manufacturing purposes and such machinery will there be installed at an early date as will meet the plans of the company preparatory to proceeding with active building operations in the spring. Until the proposed factory is complete the boxes necessary for packing such cereals or shredded vegetable foods as may be manufactured at an early date, will have to be made out of town.

The execution of the company's plans will give the town another very important industry, and is another step towards the building up of the water front. In fact reasonably optimistic people point to the time when docks will be erected along the town's reserve fronting the Otonabee, and when canal shipping may come and go, improving greatly the facilities for transportation as compared with those now existing.

THE COAL QUESTION

Some People Are Burning More Than Last Year—Quality Was Never Better.

Although this winter has not been as severe as last, some people are beginning to talk about having burned more coal for the same period this winter than they did last. One householder when questioned on the matter to-day stated that he was already on the second ton over and above his usual supply. On the other hand, a citizen who has coal consumption down to a science says that he has kept three stoves going where before he had two and he has not yet been called upon to look with trembling at his coal bin which is stocked with the same quantity every fall. One of the coal merchants stated to-day that he noticed, where a larger amount of coal was necessary, the householder was new at the business, in almost every instance and has not yet become thoroughly educated. The dealers state that they never had a better quality of coal on hand, and they have supply enough to meet all demands that may come their way until spring.

MAN WITH A PAST

William Flood Gets Three Months for Vagrancy This Morning.

Mr. H. Rush, J.P., presided at the Police Court this morning. The only case considered was that of William Flood, charged with vagrancy. He was found to have a very bad record and was sentenced to three months in the local goal. The following extract from a letter received by Chief Rossel from John C. Russ, Chief Constable of Cobourg, gives some information about Flood's past:—

"Wm Flood has been before our magistrate 29 times. He has been committed for theft, shop-breaking, assault, drunk, drunk and disorderly, and vagrancy. He served 18 months for breaking into Mr. Campbell's store and stealing three suits of clothes. He was arrested in Port Hope by Chief Douglas. He has also been committed from Port Hope for long terms for vagrancy and drunk and disorderly. He came out of Cobourg gaol on the 27th of January, 1905, after serving six months. He was only out of gaol about two hours when he was found drunk and ordered to leave town."

Permanent Cure For Bronchitis

"My second daughter was troubled with bronchitis from the age of three weeks. Often times I thought she would choke to death. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine brought relief and further treatment made a thorough cure. This trouble used to come back from time to time the cure is now permanent." — Mrs. Richmond Withrow, Shubenacadie, Hants Co., N. S.

ST. ANDREW'S Y. P. S. C. E.

The Regular Weekly Meeting Held on Sunday Evening.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S.C.E. held their regular weekly meeting Sunday evening after the evening service, at which was a very good attendance. The chair was occupied by Miss Anderson. After the devotional exercises, which were led by the different members of the Society, the topic, "Christ a Servant and we are Servants"—Phil. 2, 3-11, was very ably taken by Mr. F. E. Kerr, after which several took part. After a short season of prayer and singing the meeting was brought to a close by all repeating the Mispah benediction. A hearty invitation is extended to all the young people of the congregation to attend these meetings.

AN IRISH EVENING.

Given by Flower Committee of George Street League.

The Flower Committee of George-st. Epworth League entertained a large number of their friends last evening in an Irish Social, the characteristic feature of which was a programme made up largely of numbers freighted with the sentiment of the Green Isle. Mr. A. O. Kidd was in the chair, and those who contributed to the evening's pleasure were Mr. Mark Wilson, in a song "I'll take you back, Kathleen." As an encore he sang "She was bred in old Kentucky." Mrs. Dr. Morgan favored the company with a recitation, "Mrs. Herrigan Telephones," and on being recalled she gave a reading entitled, "Disciplining a Boy." "Larboard Watch," a duett by Messrs. Wilson and Gerrard was much enjoyed, and another duett "Kathleen Aroon," by the Misses Chasty was encored.

Refreshments were served at the close. The evening proved a very enjoyable one.

ENJOYABLE SMOKER

Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows and Their Friends Pass Pleasant Evening.

Otonabee lodge, No. 13, I. O. O. F., held an enjoyable and highly successful smoking concert last evening. There was a good attendance and a programme of rare excellence was presented.

All those, who had the good fortune to be present, were delighted with the proceedings and expressed the hope that the lodge would put on another entertainment of a similar character in the near future. Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller presided and, under his direction, everything passed off admirably.

Mr. George Lynch gave several recitations in inimitable style and was encored each time. He is especially good in dialect numbers, his gestures and expression being all that could be desired. He is a "whole show" in himself.

Messrs. Robert Beach and Frank McCoy in an instrumental duett on the piano and drum earned hearty plaudits by their clever work and were encored. Mr. Ed. Crow contributed several choice songs and rendered them with dash and spirit. He had to respond to recalls.

Mr. Gilbert Scott in his vocal numbers was also a prime favorite and sang with feeling and expression. He too had to re-appear each time. Mr. Mark Wilson was especially good in his songs and was accorded hearty applause. Mr. Wilson possesses a voice of great merit and power and in a duett with Mr. James Gerald was equally pleasing. They were encored and cheerfully responded. A wrestling bout between two local enthusiasts resulted in a tie.

Mr. George Schneider played the accompaniments of the evening in a most efficient manner.

After the programme which was concluded about ten o'clock, the members of the lodge and their friends adjourned to the refreshment room where games helped to pass away pleasantly a social hour or two. In the smoky surroundings good stories were told, jokes were cracked and apples eaten. The members of Otonabee lodge have every reason to feel satisfied with the results of an exceedingly well managed "Smoker." The committee in charge were Messrs. M. Breckenridge, George Payne, Jas. A. Tully, Frank Wise, James Dawson, Charles Thornton and W. A. Lewis.

The Benefits of Sugar.

A correspondent remarks that sugar has modified the history of Europe and of the world in more ways than one. Used in England four centuries ago almost exclusively in the preparation of medicines and long afterward an article of luxury only accessible to the rich, it has by enlarged production and cheapened manufacture been brought within the reach of all. The universal use of this practically pure carbohydrate, which is not only a freely burning fuel and proteid sparer, but a muscle food, increasing the power of doing work and lessening fatigue, must have had widespread and beneficial effects on the national health. Especially in the case of children, whose greed of sugar is the expression of a physiological want, has that food been valuable in conducing to growth, contentment and well being.

A Record Breaker.

Among the army of London carriage drivers is an Irishman noted for his native wit. It stood him in poor stead one day, however. Pat was engaged by a gentleman to drive to a hydropathic establishment.

On arrival at the gate the fare inquired, "What's your fare, driver?"

"Well, sir," said Pat, "the manest jintleman I ever drove here gave me 2 shillings."

"Is that so?" exclaimed the gentleman, who was a bit of a wag. "Well, here's a shilling for you, my man. I like the idea of breaking records."—London Globe.

To Prevent Rust.

A good mixture for use as a slush to prevent the rusting of machinery is made by dissolving an ounce of camphor in a pound of melted lard; skim off the impurities and add enough black lead to give the mixture an iron color. After cleaning the machinery carefully smear on the mixture. It can be left indefinitely, or if wiped off after twenty-four hours will prevent rust for some time. When removed, the metal should be polished with a soft cloth.

Brotherly Love.

Two brothers were fined at the Stratford police court for fighting in the street. "He struck me, and I hit him," pleaded one brother. "But it was quite friendly, sir," he hastened to add. "He is my brother, and I haven't seen him for a long time."—London Mail.

Pale Face, Weak Blood

YOU CAN MAKE THE BLOOD RICH THE SYSTEM STRONG, THE COMPLEXION HEALTHFUL BY USING DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Why do some people have healthful, rosy complexions while others are pale and wan in countenance?

Why are some people strong and able to defy disease, while others are weak and subject to all the ills of human kind?

The difference is in the blood. Pallor of the eyelids, gums and lips tell of blood that is lacking in quality and richness.

The person who has poor blood is subject to headache, dizziness, sleeplessness; the action of the heart is weak and there is sometimes palpitation; the breath is short, and there is lack of energy and strength.

This weak, anaemic condition is entirely overcome by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which is above all else a builder and enricher of the blood.

You can best prove this by noting your increase in weight from week to week, while using this great food cure.

Now, rich flesh and tissue are added, new strength and vigor take the place of weakness and suffering, and instead of taking cold or contracting disease at every gust of wind that blows you find yourself getting strong and robust.

Mrs. George F. Brisbin, Lake street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—"One of my children, a boy of fifteen years, did not have good health for a year or more. He seemed to have no energy, was weak and languid and suffered from nervousness. The doctors said he was growing too fast, but we became alarmed about him, and began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It was not long until we noticed a great change in his condition. His appetite improved, he had better color and soon became stronger and healthier. He is still using the Nerve Food, and we are perfectly confident that he is improving right along under this treatment."

"She loves me, Mrs. Ward."

"Nonsense. Dorothy is too young to know the meaning of the word. I say she likes you, so we can let it stand at that. But in spite of your poverty and obscurity"—Brendon winced, for Mrs. Ward's tone was insolent in the extreme—"I am not willing that you should marry Dorothy, unless"— She hesitated.

"Unless?" queried George, looking steadily at her.

"Now we come to the point. Unless your character is above suspicion."

"What do you mean?"

"You know well enough. Here you go to a house, and while you are there the mistress of it is murdered."

George rose with some indignation. "Good heavens, Mrs. Ward, you don't suspect me?" he cried.

"Oh, dear, no. But it would be unpleasant for my daughter to have a husband mixed up with such a shady affair."

"I am not mixed up with it, Mrs. Ward."

"It's unpleasant," said Mrs. Ward, willfully holding to her opinion. "I don't like it. Find out who killed that woman, and I say nothing. But until you do find out, and until the assassin is brought to justice, I must ask you to discontinue your visits to Dorothy."

Brendon saw that she was simply making an excuse to rid herself of his presence so as to leave the way clear for Walter Vane. But he was too strong a man to be foiled in this way and speedily made up his mind how to act. "Shall we leave the matter to Miss Ward?"

"That means you wish to see her," said the mother cleverly. "Oh, well, there is no reason why you should not. But it will be for the last time, remember. Your character must bear inspection."

"I think it does," cried George, rather nettled.

Mrs. Ward, who by this time was nearly at the door, turned lightly and replied in her most kittenish way: "Ah, my dear Mr. Brendon, I know more than you think. Lola Veles"—

"Lola Veles!" George looked and felt uneasy.

"You change color. Oh, I have heard all about you and that dancer."

"I assure you that my connection with that lady is perfectly innocent."

Mrs. Ward scoffed. "Lady!" she said, sneering. "What next? However, I do not wish to hear the particulars. Such creatures are nothing to me. And if you clear yourself of this very shady business in Amelia square by discovering the true assassin I shall overlook Lola Veles."

"There is no need to overlook her or me."

"I think there is," said Mrs. Ward frigidly and with a wave of her slim hand. "There is no more to be said, Mr. Brendon. You know my decision, and as Dorothy's mother I have some power, I hope. Now I will send her to you, and you can say what you like—in fact, you can communicate to her the state of my feelings. But," added Mrs. Ward, shooting a Parthian arrow, "I should not mention Lola Veles if I were you. Goodby. I shall not see you for many a long day, I expect."

"And hope," said Brendon, much mortified.

"And hope," replied Mrs. Ward coolly. "You are the last man in the world I should like for my son-in-law. Marry that dancer." And, with a shrill, unpleasant laugh, Mrs. Ward vanished.

Brendon paced the room, waiting for Dorothy. How Mrs. Ward had learned of his connection with Lola Veles he could not understand. Brendon was perfectly innocent, and what he had done for the dancer was dictated by pure kindness. But even if he explained the whole circumstances of his meeting and of his philanthropy to Dorothy, she was a woman, when all was said and done, and might not believe him. On the whole, he decided to take Mrs. Ward's advice and hold his tongue on the subject of the dancer. On some future occasion he might be able to explain, and at the present moment he had the satisfaction of knowing that his conscience was clear. He had just arrived at this decision when Dorothy entered the room. The next moment she was in his arms, and the two entered paradise at once.

"My dearest, I am so glad to see you," said Dorothy in her soft voice as they sat down. "I wrote, but you did not come."

"I was engaged, darling."

Dorothy nodded. "I know, at the inquest which was held on that poor creature."

"Why do you take an interest in the case, Dorothy?"

"Oh, because you went to stop at the house, and it was strange that she should have died on that very night."

"So your mother says," said George uncomfortably. "I really think she believes that I have something to do with the matter."

"Oh, that's nonsense," said Dorothy serenely, "but mother does not like you very much, George, and"—

"She hates me, you mean."

"Well," responded Miss Ward candidly, "if you ask me to tell the truth, I think she does. But you know what my mother is. I—no, if I cannot say good of her, let me at least say nothing bad. But I love you, George, you know that."

"My own heart," and Brendon took her in his strong arms, thanking God for the gift of so steadfast a heart.

Dorothy was tall and slim and dark. Her dark beauty contrasted well with the fair comeliness of George Brendon, and seated side by side on the sofa they looked an extremely handsome couple. Certainly they might have appeared happier, for Dorothy was downcast, and in Brendon's blue eyes there lurked a worried look.

"A penny for your thoughts, George," she said, taking his hand.

"I'll sell them as bankrupt stock," said Brendon, drawing her closer. And then he took his courage in both hands for the necessary confession. "This may be my last visit, Dorothy," he said.

She looked at him in surprise. "Why do you say that?"

"Your mother"—

"Oh, never mind my mother," broke in the girl petulantly. "I know she objects to our marriage, so"—

"On the contrary, she told me that she would not object if I could clear myself of complicity in this crime!"

"George! Did she accuse you of"—

"Not in so many words," interrupted the lover, "but I saw very plainly what she meant. The fact that I slept in that house on the night Mrs. Jersey was murdered is to her mind a proof that I have something to do with the matter."

"But you can prove conclusively that you have not," insisted Dorothy.

"Certainly. Mr. Train, with whom I was stopping, can prove that I did not leave my room. The key of the sitting room door was in his possession, and to get out I should have had to make use of him." George paused and thought for a moment. "But there is one thing"—

"What is it?" asked Dorothy, seeing that he hesitated.

"I don't know if I ought to tell you."

"Whatever concerns you concerns me," she said. "You know that I love you as dearly as you love me, and nothing you tell me shall ever part us."

"Oh, I don't think what I am about to say will have that effect," was Brendon's reply. "But I have a confession to make about my—my birth."

Dorothy looked at him in amazement. "About your birth?" she repeated.

"Yes. You may as well know all. And I know you will not betray me, even to your mother."

"To her least of all," said Dorothy vehemently. "Tell me quick."

Encouraged by her faith and by the tender clasp of her hand, George related to her the story of his birth and of his connection with Lord Derrington. Also he detailed how he had gone to seek Mrs. Jersey, and how she had been murdered before he could get the truth out of her. "Or even see her," finished George. "And now you know, dearest, why I do not wish you to repeat this story. If your mother knew it she might think—think—well, she certainly would not let you marry me."

"She has made her mind up already so far as that is concerned," said Dorothy quickly. "It is Mr. Vane whom she wishes me to marry."

"My cousin, although he does not know it," said George quietly; "but I want your advice, Dorothy, and will be guided by it. What shall I do? You see, now that Mrs. Jersey is dead there is no chance of getting at the truth."

"Why not advertise?"

"I have tried that for some months in every country paper in the kingdom, but there has been no response. My father and mother must have been married in some out of the way village, in some lonely church. The parson and those who know about the marriage may be dead. In fact, it is extremely probable that they are. Mrs. Jersey was present as my mother's maid, and she might have been able to tell me where the church is. I only want to find the register of the marriage and get the certificate. Then I shall see Lord Derrington and insist on my rights being recognized. He can't leave either the title or the money away from me."

Dorothy shuddered. "Your grandfather is a terrible old man. He always reminds me of one of those Italian despots. There is nothing he would not do provided that the law could not touch him."

"And I dare say, from your description, the things he desires to do are of the kind that the law would make him answerable for."

"George," said Dorothy after a pause, "do you think he has anything to do with this murder?"

Brendon turned slightly pale and set his lips firmly. "No, dearest," was his reply, but delivered with some uncertainty. "He does not know—at all events from me—that I am seeking for a restitution of my rights, and therefore would have no reason to rid himself of this woman. Besides, I don't know if he is aware of her existence."

It will be seen that Brendon was ignorant that Lord Derrington was the owner of the Jersey mansion and had allowed madame an annuity. Had he known this much he might have been able to shape his course better; but, being in the dark, he had to do the best he could with Dorothy's assistance. He had asked for her advice and she gave it.

"George, I should get back my birthright if I were you."

"But I may be dragged into this murder case."

"No. Mr. Train can save you from being accused of that. It is only right that you should take your proper position in society. You owe it to your dead mother and to yourself to show that you have the right to your father's name."

"The first thing I shall do will be to see Mr. Ireland, my guardian. He took charge of me after my grandfather Lockwood died, and it was by his advice that I changed my name to baffle the inquiries of Lord Derrington. He will know all about the marriage and may be able to indicate where my parents went when they eloped. I have never asked him for a detailed statement, but I shall do so now. Once I find a clew I shall not rest until I prove my legitimacy. For your sake, my dear—for your sake," and he kissed her.

They parted at the door. Brendon was just stepping out into the hall when a thought occurred to him. He re-entered and closed the door. "Dorothy," he asked in a low whisper, "why did you give me the yellow holly on that night?"

She looked surprised. "It was to please you," she said softly, "and to tell you the truth, George, I thought that the holly was a proof that my mother was relenting toward you."

"How do you mean, Dorothy?"

"It was my mother who gave me the holly," she explained. "I came from the park and told her you were going to stop with Mr. Train and that she could set her mind at rest, as I should not see you for a few days. She seemed pleased, and, taking the yellow holly from a vase in her boudoir, she gave me a sprig, saying that I could give it to you for consolation. Why do you ask me this, George?"

"There is no reason for my asking," he replied, suppressing the truth, "but yellow holly is rare."

"Very rare. I don't know where my mother got the sprig."

After this they parted, and Brendon walked thoughtfully away. Mrs. Jersey had been startled by the sight of the holly. Mrs. Ward had given the sprig to Dorothy, who had presented it to him. He asked himself if there was a reason for Mrs. Ward's action.

CHAPTER VI.

After his disagreeable experience in the Bloomsbury district Brendon was not very anxious to go there again, but it was necessary that he should do so if he wanted to see his guardian. From force of habit he still continued to call him so, although Mr. Ireland had long since ceased to act in that capacity. George had a sincere respect for him and frequently paid him a visit. Usually it was one of ceremony or of enjoyment, but on this occasion the young man went in search of knowledge.

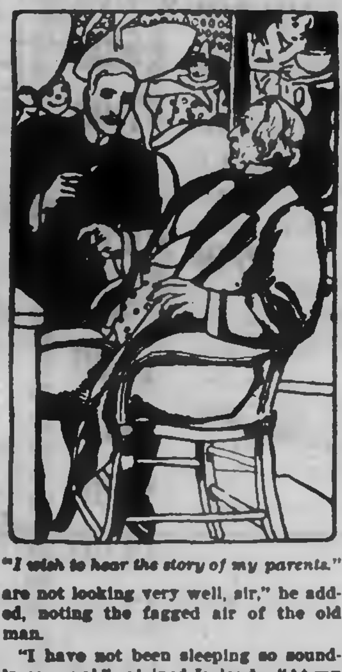
Ireland was an eccentric character who collected posters. Most collectors turn their attention to stamps, to snuffboxes, to autographs and such like trifles, but Mr. Ireland hunted for those gigantic and gaudy pictures which make gay the thoroughfares of the city.

He was a tall old man with rather long white hair and a clean shaven, benign face. His usual height did away with the impression of his excessive stoutness. George often wondered at his size, considering that the man ate comparatively little. Mr. Ireland was dressed in glossy broadcloth scrupulously brushed and wore an old fashioned Gladstone collar. He had mild blue eyes, rather watery, and a large mouth with full red lips. This hint of sensuality was contradicted by the serenity and pallor of his face and by his life, which was as correct as his dress and as methodical as his hours.

Never was there so methodical a man. He lived by the clock, and with him one day exactly resembled another. He rose at a certain hour and retired precisely when the hand on the clock indicated another. His meals were always regular, and he had stated hours for walking, when he went out whether it was wet or fine, sunny or foggy. The man was like a machine, and George, when living with him in his early days, had often found these restrictions irksome. It was 1 o'clock when Brendon called, and Mr. Ireland had just finished his luncheon. At 2 precisely he would leave the house for his one hour's constitutional. Brendon was aware of this and had timed his visit accordingly. Nevertheless Ireland looked at his watch and mentioned the fact.

"I can only give you an hour, George," he said. "You know my habits."

"An hour will be sufficient," replied Brendon, taking the one chair. "You are not looking very well, sir," he added, noting the fagged air of the old man.



"I wish to hear the story of my parents."

"I have not been sleeping so soundly as usual," rejoined Ireland. "At my age—and I am now seventy-five—I can't be expected to enjoy my bed so much as a young person."

DIVERGENT VIEWS.

No Torpedo Boats There Say British; Some Torpedo Boats There, Say Russians—Would Pay Indemnity.

Paris, Feb. 14.—The international commission, which is inquiring into the North Sea incident, yesterday heard the conclusion of the British and the Russian agents upon the testimony presented.

The British conclusion maintained that the testimony showed that no torpedo boats were present, and that, therefore, firing was unjustifiable, whereas the Russian conclusion held that the testimony showed that torpedo boats were present and that the firing was fully warranted.

However, the Russian statement closed with a declaration of profound regret at the fact that innocent lives had been sacrificed and announced the willingness of the Russian Government to pay an indemnity to the survivors and families of the victims, leaving the amount and partition of the indemnity to "The Hague Tribunal."

Yesterday's session practically closed the work of the commission until a decision is reached, when Admiral Fournier (the president of the commission), will call a meeting for the public announcement. The admirals in the meantime will hold daily private sessions to deliberate upon the decision. It is expected that some days will elapse before definite results are reached.

War Barely Escaped.

London, Feb. 14.—The diplomatic correspondence regarding the North Sea incident and leading up to the appointment of the Paris International Commission, issued last night, shows that the affair severely strained Anglo-Russian relations. The correspondence gives a significant conversation between Lord Lansdowne and Count Benkendorff, the Russian Ambassador, when the British Government was apprehensive that Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky would continue on his voyage to the Far East without calling at Vigo. Lord Lansdowne told Count Benkendroff that, "in that case we might find ourselves at war before the week is over," and pointed out the news of the concentration of the British fleets at Gibraltar and elsewhere.

Succession Duties Beat Records.

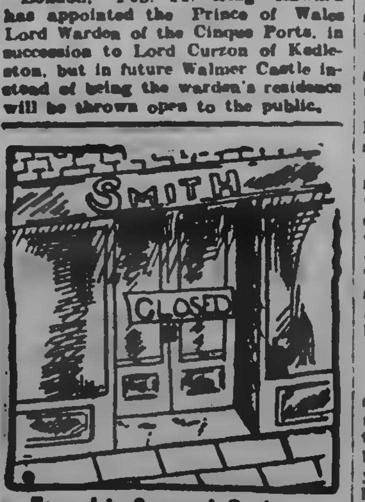
Toronto, Feb. 14.—The succession duties collected during the month of January have beaten all previous records. During the year 1904 the succession duties amounted to $458,-693, while for last month the duties were more than a quarter of that amount, being $128,267.

No Ad. For Canada.

London, Feb. 14.—(C.A.P.)—One of the best-known Canadians in London, and one in close touch with importers of Canadian goods, speaking to the Canadian Associated Press, said he knew many instances where Canadians goods were much inferior to samples shown.

Prince of Wales As Warden.

London, Feb. 14.—King Edward has appointed the Prince of Wales Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, in succession to Lord Curzon of Kedleston, but in future Walmer Castle instead of being the warden's residence will be thrown open to the public.



Forced to Suspend Business

Many business and working men neglect the first slight attacks of Rheumatism and Neuralgia and let it gradually develop until they are forced to suspend business and lie home ill. The same case is found with neglectful women who are absorbed with their house duties and other matters and totally blind as to their own condition and needs. The great can do more for such cases than twenty physicians. It gives immediate relief and cures completely after two or three days treatment. It has saved many men and women from years of agony and suffering.

Mrs. Bates, Toronto, writes:—"I was a great sufferer from rheumatism, all remedies failed to cure me until I tried your South American Rheumatic cure. It worked a grand cure and I trust other sufferers may follow my example with as satisfactory results." —6

If you have any form of Kidney disease then use South American Kidney Cure. It relieves instantly and permanently cures.

RUSS RESERVES MUTINY

Cossacks Fire Upon Them and Kill 18 and Wound 80.

Troops Cast Themselves Before a Locomotive Rather Than Die By Japanese Bullets—Japs Attack Bridge Near Fengtaikong and Damage Railway—Kaulbars to Succeed Gen. Gripenberg—Russians Bombard Oyama's Centre.

Berlin, Feb. 14.—Whatever the disposition of the Russian army as a whole, the army reserves in the Russian provinces bordering on Germany are not only disloyal but mutinous.

New and serious disturbances have broken out among the reserves and conscripts who are being mobilized or who are being sent to the Far East.

A large body of reserves looted the shops on the outskirts of Kieff, the great pilgrim city, which is called the "Jerusalem of Russia." The raw soldiers killed the officer in command of the police who tried to restrain them. Then a detachment of Cossacks fired on the reserves, killed eighteen and wounded more than eighty.

At Niefin, in the same neighborhood, a regiment of reserves was about to take train for the seat of war. When the train drew up these soldiers smashed all the windows in the cars.

When orders were given to get aboard and start the train, hundreds of soldiers gathered in front of the locomotive and swore they would not budge. Some even threw themselves on the rails, crying that they would rather be killed by a locomotive near their homes than by Japanese bullets in Manchuria.

At Kursk a party of reserves attacked the three officials who were directing their mobilization, killing one and badly wounding the others. After a summary trial the ringleaders were shot in the prison yard next morning

In the Provinces of Podona and Volhynie, 300 reserves, rather than start for the Far East, fled into the woods, where they are wandering about in the deep snow. They must be suffering great hardships. Parties of Cossacks have been sent to capture them, with strict orders to shoot them if they resist.

Japs Damage Railway.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 14.—A despatch from General Kuropatkin made public yesterday is the following:

"Early in the morning of Feb. 12 three hundred Japanese cavalry attacked a bridge near Fengtaikong and damaged thirty yards of the railroad. Train service was resumed after some delay.

"The Japanese bombarded Poutiloff (Lone Tree) Hill and Sekhoyan with siege guns Feb. 11. One officer was killed and several were wounded.

"According to corrected returns the Japanese prisoners captured from Jan. 25 to Jan. 29, total 348, of whom 221 were wounded.

Kaulbars Promoted.

St. Petersburg. Feb. 14.—A telegram from Sachetua says General Kaulbars (commander of the Third Manchurian Army), has taken over the command of the second Manchurian army recently vacated by General Gripenberg.

Bombarding Again.

Tokio, Feb. 14.—The Russians continued to bombard portions of Field Marshal Oyama's centre and right on Saturday last, Feb. 11. The Russians continue the construction of defensive works on their right, to the southwest of Mentapan, where they are erecting an epaulement for a battery of 24 guns. The Japanese recently surrounded a Russian cavalry detachment near Hsienchang, killing three of the enemy and wounding eleven.

STRIKE SITUATION IMPROVES.

All Works Except Three Have Resumed Operations.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 14.—The strike situation, according to reports from the interior, is everywhere improving, even in Poland. Here all danger of a renewal of an acute stage seems to have passed. All the works with the exception of the Putiloff Iron Works and two others have resumed work. The Imperial Ukase summoning a joint commission of masters and workmen, chosen by themselves, to investigate the causes of discontent among the laborers, was posted at all the works yesterday, creating a favorable impression. The Government has increased wages at all the Government shops and also the pay of the railroad employes by 15 to 20 per cent.

Revolution Within 2 Years.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 14.—In a statement M. Demchinsky, a prominent Liberal, expresses the opinion that autocracy will be swept away by actual revolution within two years. He says: "This is the threshhold of revolution; but revolution itself has not begun; for it we lack organization and experience. We must have ten or twenty years of such scenes as recently have occurred to teach us how to lead an attack properly. The masses must be educated."

Str. Silvia in Harbor.

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 14.—The long overdue steamer Silvia, from New York and Halifax, arrived here yesterday afternoon after a terrific experience in a blizzard, which struck here on Wednesday, driving her 80 miles to seaward.

MACEDONIAN SITUATION.

Resolution On Balkan Question Places Responsibility On John Bull.

London, Feb. 14.—A conference of the Balkan situation took place here yesterday. Lord Stanmore presided. Among those present were the Bishop of Hereford, James Bryce, Herbert Gladstone and the Earl of Lytton.

A resolution was passed urging the Government to take immediate steps to secure adequate reforms, asserting that a continuance of misrule in Armenia and Macedonia would be a disgrace to civilized Europe, affirming the direct responsibility of Great Britain for the establishment of reforms and setting forth that the only satisfactory solution of the situation would be the appointing of a European Governor of Macedonia at Adrianople, independent of the Sultan of Turkey, and responsible only to all the powers of Europe.

Mr. Bryce lengthily discussed the situation. He said it was useless to ask the Turkish Government to institute further reforms.

Hands Off the Falls.

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 14.—The effect upon Niagara Falls of withdrawing water for electric power purposes was the subject of a concurrent resolution introduced last night by Assemblyman Palmer, leader of the Democrats. A similar resolution was a feature of last year's session. It provides for a memorial addressed to the President and Congress of the United States requesting that they by treaty or otherwise, enter into negotiations with His Majesty's Government of Great Britain looking to some joint action "for the preservation of Niagara Falls from further waste and diversion of the waters thereof."

Jumped From Moving Train.

Toronto, Feb. 14.—While being taken to Peterboro by his sister on Sunday night, F. E. Roper, a lunatic, jumped from the moving train into the snow near Taylor's brickyards at Todmorden. He spent the night wandering around the vicinity and was taken in charge by the county police in the morning, and is now in custody awaiting inquiries from friends.

Sir Wilfrid Invites Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 14.—An invitation was received yesterday by the Provincial Government from Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the effect that he was prepared to receive a deputation to discuss the extension of Manitoba boundaries, and accordingly Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, and Colin Campbell, Attorney-General, leave to-day for Ottawa for this purpose.

Few People Realize

The Danger in That Common Disease, Catarrh.

Because catarrhal diseases are so common and because catarrh is not rapidly fatal, people too often overlook and neglect it until some incurable ailment develops as a result of the neglect.

The inflamed condition of the membrane of the nose and throat makes a fertile soil for the germs of Pneumonia and Consumption, in fact catarrhal pneumonia and catarrhal consumption are the most common forms of these dreaded diseases, which annually cause more than one-quarter of the deaths in this country.

Remedies for catarrh are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but very few have any actual merit as a cure, the only good derived being simply a temporary relief.

There is, however, a very effective remedy recently discovered, which is rapidly becoming famous for its great value in relieving and permanently curing all forms of catarrhal diseases, whether located in the head, throat, lungs or stomach.

The new catarrh cure is principally composed of a gum derived from the Eucolyptus tree, and this gum possesses extraordinary healing and antiseptic properties. It is taken internally in the form of a lozenge or tablet, pleasant to the taste and so harmless that little children take them with safety and benefit.

Eucolyptus oil and the bark are sometimes used, but are not so convenient, nor so palatable as the gum.

Undoubtedly the best quality is found in Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which may be found in any drug store and any catarrh sufferer who has tried douches, inhalers and liquid medicines, will be surprised at the rapid improvement after a few days' use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, which are composed of the gum of the Eucolyptus tree, combined with other antiseptics which destroy the germs of catarrh in the blood and expel the catarrhal poison from the system.

Dr Ramsdell, in speaking of Catarrh and its cure, says:—"After many experiments I have given up the idea of curing catarrh by the use of inhalers, washes, salves or liquid medicines. I have always had the best results from Stuart's Catarrh Tablets: the red gum and other valuable antiseptics contained in these tablets make them, in my opinion, far superior to any of the numerous catarrh remedies so extensively advertised. The fact that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold in drug stores, under protection of a trade mark, should not prejudice conscientious physicians against them because their undoubted merit and harmless character make them a remedy which every catarrh sufferer may use with perfect safety and the prospect of a permanent cure.

For colds in the head, for coughs, catarrhal deafness and catarrh of the stomach and liver, people who have tried them say that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a household necessity.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Feb. 13.—The receipts of live stock were 800 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 50 calves, 600 hogs. Owing to the very stormy weather the attendance of buyers was smaller than usual, but, notwithstanding this fact and the decline in prices of 3s to 5s in Canadian bacon in the leading foreign markets during the past week, the undertone to the market for hogs was strong and prices were fully maintained, as the prospects are that receipts will be very small for the balance of the week on account of the storm. Sales of selected lots were made at $6 to $6.25, and mixed lots at $5.75 per cwt., weighed off the cars. The trade in cattle was slow and as supplies were in excess of the requirements feeling was easier and especially so in common grades. Few choice beeves sold at 4½c to 4⅝c; good, 4c to 4¼c; fair, 3½c to 3⅝c; common, 2¾c to 3c; inferior, 1½c to 2½c per lb. The market for sheep and lambs was quiet, but prices were firm; sheep, 3½c to 4c; lambs, 4½c to 5½c per lb. Calves met with a fair sale, but as the quality was poor prices ruled low at $2 to $5 each.

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

R. G. STURGEON APPOINTED TOWN PLUMBING INSPECTOR

Special Meeting of Council at Which Important By-laws Were Passed.

ASSISTANCE GIVEN NEW CEREAL COMPANY

Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company Was Also Granted Aid—Plumbing Inspector's Salary $400 Per Year, Payable in Monthly Instalments—Otonabee Power Co. to Use C. G. E. Co's Power While Repairs Are Being Made.

At a special meeting of the Town Council which was held last evening Mr. Robert G. Sturgeon was appointed plumbing inspector at a salary of $400 a year. On the discussion of the by-law in the Committee of the Whole, Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that Mr. F. Bartlett be appointed, the contention being that should the town see fit to create the office of building inspector separately from that of town engineer, Mr Bartlett could fill that office and plumbing inspector beside, he being a sanitary engineer. There was unanimity of expression in favor of the appointment of a plumbing inspector, but not with regard to the man, the opinion being held by some that the official should be independent of any connection whatever with the plumbing business. In reply to this it was pointed out that this objection would be remedied very shortly. The representatives of the Trades and Labor Council did not vote on either the original motion, which was moved by Ald. E. F. Mason and seconded by Ald. Adam Hall, nor on the amendment, their stand appearing to be that the matter could stand further consideration, though they expressed themselves as believing that as far as Mr. Sturgeon's ability and experience was concerned, he will fill the position well. Ald. Crowe was in the chair in Committee of the Whole. He is to be paid in monthly instalments and will draw his first pay on the last day of March, his duties to commence on the first day of that month. He will regulate matters relating to plumbing and sewerage and see that by-laws governing municipal machinery of a similar character are carried out.

The Council passed two important by-laws, one granting a site and fixed assessment to the Peterborough Cereal Company and another providing in a similar manner for the Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company.

Mayor Best was in the chair, and the Aldermen present were Messrs. F. Adams, Wm. Scott, Jos. Crowe, T. J. Begley, G. J. Tovey, Arch. McIntyre, E. F. Mason, W. J. Johnston, Adam Hall and R Hicks.

PETERBOROUGH CEREAL CO.

Ald. Hicks introduced a by-law to aid the Peterborough Cereal Company. The by-law was given three readings and passed. The Company proposes to purchase from W. H. Meldrum, the buildings lately erected by him on part of lot 4, south of Simcoe and east of Water-st., together with the land in the immediate locality, and to erect and equip on the same, a flour mill and mill for the manufacture of cereal foods, and to erect a grain elevator and a warehouse in connection therewith at a cost of at least $100,000. They expect to have the said mills completed and in running order within 18 months from the passing of the by-law and to give employment to at least 30 hands and to increase the capacity of the same from time to time as the requirements of the trade demand. The Company requires of the town a grant of part of the reserve along the River Otonabee and also part of the land covered withwater, opposite the same, vested in the town by patent from the Crown, dated Feb. 1st, 1903.

The council consider it desirable and in the public interest to encourage the promotion of the said manufacturing concern and hence have passed the by-law which takes effect on confirmation by the Legislature. The land referred to shall be conveyed to the Company subject to specified terms and conditions. It is required that thirty hands shall be employed in the flour, cereal and vegetable mills, and the buildings are to be substantially constructed of brick, and the machinery is to be in all respects suitable and sufficient for the purposes aforesaid.

The Company shall construct a concrete drain or conduit at least four feet in diameter or of such other less capacity approved of by the Council, from the northern to the southern limit of the land to be conveyed and the Company must maintain and keep the conduit in good order. The Company shall not sell or otherwise dispose of the land in parcels, but that if sold en bloc, it must be for manufacturing purposes only. Provided the Company shall erect and equip, occupy and use the said buildings on the lands referred to within the specified time, the assessment shall be fixed at $10,000 for ten years from first of January. Should the land cease, within the ten years, to be used for purposes required or to be approved of by the Council, for a period of 12 months, the said land and buildings, machinery and erections shall revert and become the absolute property of the Corporation, unless the said Company shall within six months thereafter pay to the Corporation the sum of $1000. The property on which the Company propose to locate is lots 4 and 5 east of Water-st. and south of Simcoe-st. except the south 50 feet thereof and that part of lot No. 3 east of Water-st. and south of Simcoe-st. Should the Company fail to carry out the manufacturing business, they shall be assessed as provided by the Assessment Act.

MAKING REPAIRS.

Ald. Hall introduced a by-law to authorize the Canadian General Electric Company to furnish power to the Otonabee Power Company. It is the desire of the latter Company to make use of the C. G. E. Co's power until repairs can be made in its own power plant. The period for which this privilege is asked, is very short and the C. G. E. Company shall not be liable to pay any sum to the Corporation, such as pole rental, for so doing. The by-law was given three readings and passed.

THE SHOVEL COMPANY

Ald. Hicks introduced a by-law to aid the Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company. This concern proposes to erect a substantial brick building 200 feet long and 65 feet wide and install machinery therein to the value of $25,000, sufficient to manufacture 50 dozen shovels per day and to employ on an average at least 20 hands, and has applied to the Council for aid in establishing such manufactory by the grant of land for site for the same. The by-law passed some time ago granting the site to the Lock Manufacturing Co. is repealed, and the Council now sanctions the conveyance by the Town Trust Commissioners to the Shovel and Tool Company, of lots No. 10 and 11, north of Perry-st. and south of Rink-st., all west of George-st., provided the Company shall within one year have erected a brick building such as that previously referred to, and have installed therein $12,000 worth of machinery and shall employ at least 20 hands within 12 months of the date of the by-law. In the event of the land not being used for the purposes required, it shall revert to and become the property of the Commissioners, free from any claim of the Company, unless the latter pay to the Commissioners the sum of $4000 within six months after the expiration of 12 months, during which the said lands shall have to be used. The assessment of the said lands shall be fixed and remain fixed at the sum of $4000 for ten years, commencing at the first of January, 1905.

The by-law appointing Robert G. Sturgeon plumbing inspector at $400 a year was passed as stated above.

The Council adjourned.

TRAINS RUNNING LATE

The Stormy Weather Plays Havoc With Railway Schedule.

The stormy weather has not as yet very seriously impeded the trains on either the C.P.R. or G.T.R. The 11.35 from Toronto over the C. P. R. this morning was only about half an hour behind, the 5.10 morning train west bound, was about one hour late but the local was on time. Last night's mid-night express was well on time. The C.P.R. passenger trains are frequently hauled by two engines these days.

The G.T.R. have been running double headers on their trains for some weeks now. The most serious delay reported to-day is that of the noon Toronto train which was two hours late, and this caused delay to the Belleville train's departure. This morning's Port Hope train was about 20 minutes behind, and the train from Belleville missed schedule by about one hour. The 5.25 from Port Hope was delayed 30 minutes here last night owing to the fact that the water from the food tank could not be shut off and freezing on the rails prevented the engine from getting under way.

Bad Effect of Bitters.

Luckily absinth is not much drunk in England, but other bitters are, some that are only less injurious. Your readers should know that all bitter tonics, habitually indulged in, are apt to do harm—to depress, not exhilarate. Such tonics should be taken rather as medicines than as everyday drinks. You could bring yourself to melancholy by means of gentian, quassia or columba as well as by wormwood.—Doctor in London Mail.

How She Saved Trouble.

"Does your janitor attempt to show his authority?"

"No," answered Mr. Flatts. "He didn't have to show his authority. I started in by giving him to understand that I fully recognized it without any argument."—Exchange.

The Logical Cure.

"Did you ever have insomnia?"

"Sure," replied the man who pretends to know it all.

"What did you do for it?"

"Just slept it off."

Women are said to make excellent postmasters. Kind of know how to look after the males, as it were.—New York Mail.

Examining.

In Semi-ready Tailorey nothing is left to chance. Our system of specializing reduces to a minimum the chance of any detail being overlooked, but that's not sure enough.

Every suit is carefully examined by a high class tailor before it leaves our tailorey; some of our employees say he is a crank. They say he won't let work pass which is considered excellent by the average tailor. They say he will have nothing less than perfection. Well that's exactly what we pay him a big salary for, and we consider he earns it too.

GAME WAS LIGHTNING FAST

Peterborough Lead At Half Time by 4 - 2 — Each Scored Four in the Last Half — Markham Here Friday Night For the Return Game.

Markham, Feb. 14.—An O.H.A. game was played here to-night (semi-final) between Peterborough, winners of groups 1 and 2, and Markham, winners of groups 3 and 4. This game proved by far to be the fastest ever seen on Markham ice. Markham was short of their regular rover, G. Sullivan, who was so badly injured in the Orangeville game that he was unable to appear to-night, and W. Maxwell took his place. The Peterboroughs are a speedy bunch, and play a four-man combination that got through the strong Markham defence time and again. The score at half time was 4 to 2 in favor of Peterborough. In the second half Peterborough scored first in eight minutes, when Markham came back with a rush and scored four in quick succession, but they could not stand the pace, and the Peterborough team placed three more in the nets, making the second half a tie, 4 all, and the total 8 to 6 in favor of Peterborough. Markham go to Peterborough for the return game, with two goals against them. The teams were as follows :—

LAKEFIELD TRAIN STALLED

Snow drift near Auburn Did the Mischief. Yesterday Afternoon.

The village of Lakefield was cut off from the world yesterday so far as railway communication was concerned. The regular train attempted to make the run yesterday morning, but it encountered a big snow drift just north of Auburn and could get no further. The proposition could not be negotiated yesterday and after some of the passengers had shown their impatience, the train backed down to the station again. The track was cleared this morning and trains are running as usual.

NARROW ESCAPE

Miller Has Terrible Struggle With Death—Clothing Caught in Shaft.

It is not likely that Mr. B. Hoover, a miller of Garden Hill, will soon forget his terrible struggle with death while jammed to a whirling shafting in the mill of Mr. J. D. Gray. On Monday Mr. Hoover was making his usual trip of inspection in the mill, which took him to the top floor, where there are nine round reels, run by a line shafting and gearing. In some way Mr. Hoover's coat caught on a set screw on this shaft and in an instant he was whirled back to the gearing. Mr. Hoover is a powerful man, and by a great exertion of strength he managed to brace himself so as not to be drawn into the machinery, while the belt still continued to slip around the shafting.

In this position he called loudly for help and succeeded in attracting the atention of a ten-year-old boy named Rowes, whom he instructed to go down stairs and stop the machinery, explaining to the lad how to do it. Young Rowes did his best, but was not strong enough to accomplish his purpose, and returned to the top floor, where Hoover was still struggling to prevent himself from being drawn into the machinery. There was a slat of wood about seven feet long lying near, and this Rowes handed to Hoover, who, using it with one hand, managed to push off the eighteen-inch driving belt and stop the machinery.

Released from his perilous position, Mr. Hoover was almost completely exhausted by his half-hour's struggle, but was uninjured beyond a few bruises. His coat and vest, however, which were caught in the machinery, were torn to shreds. Mr. Hoover has been a mill operative for the past 22 years, and this is the first accident that has ever befallen him. Needless to say, he feels exceedingly thankful to have escaped so well from such a dangerous situation.

REASON No 13
WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Red Rose Tea

Because no premiums, prizes or coupons are ever given with Red Rose Tea, either to the merchant, clerk or consumer.

You don't get a premium with a pound of butter. Why? Because the butter is worth what you pay for it. Just so with Red Rose Tea; the tea itself is worth the full price.

A pound of tea is not worth the price when a premium is thrown in free. A premium costs something. You must pay for it.

If you are doubtful, use a pound of premium tea, then try a pound of Red Rose. You will soon discover why premiums cannot be given with Red Rose Tea, and if you like a rich, flavory, pure tea, you will use Red Rose in future.

UNJUSTIFIABLE ACT.

Without doubt the action of the moribund Ross Government in granting an exclusive shooting privilege of 21 years to certain Toronto gentlemen and others is one that can under no circumstances be defended. It is a high handed piece of injustice—an act that will in all likelihood be disallowed by the Whitney government.

Col. Pellatt, one of the company admits that the concession has been granted within the past three weeks. This is but another instance of the flagrant violation of public rights which has characterized the late regime and the move on the part of the late Premier and his colleagues should be wiped out.

The petitions, which have been in circulation against any exclusive franchises, have been largely signed by, not only the residents in the vicinity of Rice Lake, but in all the surrounding townships and villages. The petitioners agree to bind themselves to see that the law is not infringed upon in any way and, while expressing regret at the sale of ducks in the past, covenant to see that this is stopped in the future.

Shooting, it is said, has not been protected as it should have been. The petitioners declare they will use every effort to remove any grievance on this score. The right to hunt for ducks, undoubtedly belongs to the residents in the vicinity of the lake and why they should be excluded and a preserve created for the exclusive benefit of a few wealthy sportsmen will require some explanation.

Col. Pellatt says that if something is not done there will soon not be a duck left on the whole lake. He finally affirms that the slaughter has been of a wholesale character and that no attempt has been made to protect the birds. He also says the consent of the nearby farmers has been obtained to the concession about which there is "nothing wrong." It is doubtful if the consent has been obtained and if the law was not observed the chief fault lies with the game wardens, whose duty it was or should be, to see that its provisions are lived up to.

The residents have promised to protect the birds and observe the law and should not be deprived of their rights. Why should a long exclusive privilege be granted to any club and local sportsmen be robbed of the right to shoot? There is no rhyme or reason in the contentions raised. Ontario, in the matter of game laws wants no class legislation. It is to be hoped that Mr. Whitney and his colleagues will not approve of this high-handed act of the Ross Administration and will give ear to the representations as set forth in the petitions which have been so largely organized and the terms of which are fair and impartial in every sense of the word.

PEN POINTS.

Well, Lindsay can curl, if it cannot play hockey.

The search for that buried treasure—the Ontario surplus— is being prosecuted night and day.

The Town Council, before it was a month in working harness, has captured one new industry for the town. May the good work go on.

A Liberal exchange speaks of Mr. Whitney's rather "sickly attempt" to form a strong cabinet. That's pretty hard on the three doctors who have been incorporated in its makeup.

It is said that Ontario towns and cities are crowded with too many physicians. There is Resume, however, for another doctor in Windsor since the new commissioner of public works has decided to practically retire from practice.

Now that a plumbing inspector has been appointed, perhaps he will interview the clerk of the weather to ascertain why so many water pipes have been put out of business during the past few days.

Having lost his "right hand" by the overthrow of the Ross Government, it's no wonder that Sir Wilfrid is showing anxiety over the crippled state of his left hand, to wit, the Parent Government.—Hamilton Herald.

The scene of the Russo-Japanese hostilities has not actually been transferred to Canada, although the Montreal Gazette describes the recent hockey match between the champion Ottawas and the Wanderers as a "Reproduction of Savage Batchery." Well, now, that's as bad as the T.A.S.-Campbellford bout at Cobourg.

The receipts of the St. Thomas Municipal Street Railway for January were $773.12, and the operating expenses $1,125.75. The municipality is said to be looking for a greedy corporation upon which to load its burden. Municipal ownership is only a good thing after a private interest has assumed the risk and won.—Montreal Gazette.

"Nothing can check Manitoba," once remarked Sir John A. Macdonald and apparently nothing can check Winnipeg, as a recent return by the inspector of buildings shows that nearly $10,000,000 was expended in new structures last year. Taking into consideration its population, Winnipeg shows an enormously larger percentage in building than other cities, being even four times that of New York.

Ottawa is not anxious to be governed by a parliamentary commission. It wants to be a thriving business and manufacturing place as well as an artistic and picturesque metropolis. The Capital had better choose the latter. It will never become a teeming industrial centre—not until the second coming—if it does not make faster progress in the line of factories than it has during the past eight or ten years.

The "jiners" must be numerous in the United States. The growth of the secret and benevolent societies there is something marvellous. A return published lately states that during last decade—from 1894 to 1904—the membership of secret organizations in that country increased from 4,126,375 17,414,173. The Oddfellows increased from 746,464 to 1,198,749; the Masons, from 722,383 to 965,000; the Modern Woodmen of America from 85,617 to 711,982; the Knights of Pythias, from 418,944 to 562,327; and the Ancient Order of United Workmen, from 352,000 to 460,000. Several others have also increased in membership; for instance the Royal Arcanum has now 277,974.

The Ottawa Board of Trade has just adopted a resolution unanimously favoring a salary to the leader of the Opposition in the Dominion Parliament. The resolution is in the right direction but should have gone farther. Why should not the leader of the Opposition in this Province, Hon. G. W. Ross, be included. Whoever leads the Opposition is entitled to an allowance at least equal to an Ontario cabinet minister. Of course the Ottawa Board of Trade could scarcely include a memorial for an increased stipend to the leader of the Opposition in the neighboring Province of Quebec. There are too many of them just at present—in fact they outnumber the cabinet ministers.

Mr. Thomas Crawford, M.P.P. for West Toronto, is the only Conservative member who has expressed dissatisfaction at his ambitions for a Cabinet position not having been realised, says the Ottawa Citizen. He puts it on the ground that his constituency will be disappointed. Toronto is a good Conservative stronghold, but when two portfolios went to Toronto members that city got just twice as many as it had a right to expect, and we do not believe that Mr. Crawford's constituents would be so unreasonable as to expect more. There were a number of other members outside of Toronto who had equal or better claims to consideration than the member for West Toronto, but he is the only one who has been so inconsiderate as to express dissatisfaction with the manner in which the honors were divided.

Permanent Cure For Bronchitis

"My second daughter was troubled with bronchitis from the age of three weeks. Often times I thought she would choke to death. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine brought relief and further treatment made a thorough cure. This trouble used to come back from time to time the cure is now permanent." — Mrs. Richmond Withrow, Shubenacadie, Hants Co., N. S.

—Rev. R. F. Doole, M.A., B.D., of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, has been chosen to succeed Bishop Williams at St. James' Church, Stratford. He is an honor graduate of Trinity University and gold medallist of Montreal Diocesan College. He is a low churchman and one of the ablest preachers in Montreal.

GOVERNMENT HAD BEAUTIFUL NERVE

Toronto Parties Given 21 years Shooting Privileges.

ANNUAL RENTAL IS $160

An Act by the Ross Administration Which Mr. Whitney and His Colleagues May Not Approve— Incorporation to be Applied for.

Chief Paudash, the Keen Gun Club and the many others who have taken action towards requesting the Government to grant no exclusive shooting privileges on Rice Lake will be somewhat taken aback by news conveyed in the following news that the Ross Government in its dying days granted a 21 years' franchise to Toronto parties. The News says:—

"As time goes on it is becoming evident that during the last days of the Ross Administration official sanction was given to a number of Acts which may not be approved by Mr. Whitney and his colleagues. One of them is the exclusive shooting privileges granted to Messrs. H. H. Macrae, Col. H. M. Pellatt and others for 21 years over several miles of mars' on the border of Rice Lake at the annual rental of $160. A few weeks ago The Orillia Packet published an item to the effect that the residents and ratepayers in the vicinity of Rice Lake had decided objections to the granting of any exclusive shooting privileges, and mentioned the rumor that such a concession was being applied for.

"Col. Pellatt, when seen by The News this morning, said that there was nothing wrong with the concession. The land was absolutely useless for any other purpose than hunting and at the present time the hunting was bad. He and his associates desired to establish a preserve where the ducks could find a resting place to breed, for it was his opinion if something was not done soon there would not be a duck left on the whole lake. The slaughter had been of a wholesale character, and no attempt had been made to protect the birds. Col. Pellatt said that there had been a good deal of trouble about the concession, because it had been necessary first to get the consent of the near-by farmers. This had been obtained and he could not credit the report that the residents were making objections, and sending petitions to the Minister of Public Works.

"In answer to a question as to when the concession had been granted Col. Pellatt said, "Within the last three weeks." He hastened to point out, however, that the terms of the lease had been practically settled six months ago, but for some reason it had been impossible to get the order passed.

"The Colonel said that a number of Peterboro gentlemen were associated with him in the matter, but he really could not remember their names at the moment, nor could he remember the proposed name of the club which was to be formed. Its corporation would be applied for.

CAMPBELLFORD REPLIES

Did you ever hear such guff as the following letter to the Mail and Empire from W. S. Harrison, manager of the Campbellford Hockey Club:—

The Campbellford-Peterborough Trent Valley League game, played at Cobourg on Friday night, was most beautifully portrayed by your Peterborough correspondent in to-day's issue, and would lead the public (except those who witnessed the game), to believe that the husky T.A.S. had been badly abused by the little team from Campbellford, whose ages range from 16 to 19. The T.A.S. went in from the start to play rough, and continued it throughout the game, until a free-for-all fight took place over McGrath, of the T.A.S. deliberately striking Blute on the shoulder with his stick from behind, when the referee and puck were at the opposite side of the rink. In this racket the little fellows proved too much for their husky opponents until such time as the police interfered and quieted them. The referee, although time was not finished, called the game off, and we understand is to report the game in favor of T.A.S., although on Saturday night his report had not reached the secretary of the T.V.L. The assertion made that the goal umpire was arrested is untrue. He did strike McGrath, who at the time had his stick raised to strike Blute. In regard to Meagher being hurt, they should never chirp, as Meagher himself declared that it was purely accidental on the part of Garvey. They said nothing about Meagher putting Garvey out of business in the first half for nearly 15 minutes. The referee allowed off sides and rough-and-tumble play continually by the T.A.S. He was so unjust that most of the respectable citizens of Cobourg were utterly disgusted, and several times requested the Campbellford team to leave the ice. Immediately after the game the following was signed, without solicitation, and handed to the secretary-treasurer of the Campbellford Club:—

Cobourg, Feb., 1905.

"We, the undersigned, being present at the hockey game here between the T.A.S. Peterborough hockey team and Campbellford hockey team to-night, hereby state that the referee, Mr. Brown, was not capable in the capacity of referee, not having control of the teams, and allowing decidedly that he was acting by his decisions in favor of the T.A.S. The rulings were not fair, the game was not finished, and in every way the game was not a fair exhibition of hockey. (Signed), C. A. Munson, councillor; Fred Butler, ex-builder; W. H. Dundas, tinsmith; W. C. McCaughey, F. Mitchell, John D. Reddick, Thomas Cann, O. S. Johns,

The petition from the Cobourg people against the referee is easily explained by the fact that the referee comes from Port Hope, and it is impossible to find half a dozen people in Cobourg who think that anything good can come out of that place.

THE SUNDAY DRUG STORE

Writer in Lord's Day Advocate Says it is Unnecessary.

A writer in the Lord's Day Advocate discussing the question, "Is the Sunday drug store necessary?" expresses his opinion as follows although it does not seem to be applicable to drug stores in Peterborough:

"As one who is engaged in the drug profession in this city, I am interested in the above question, and allow me, therefore, to very briefly state my opinion.

"I state emphatically that it is not only unnecessary but that it is also a "humbug." I have been engaged in the drug business in this city for over two years and I think I can make the statement conscientiously that I have not during that time received one order for drugs which was absolutely necessary. And even if I have, physicians can always be secured at critical times, and they invariably carry a stock of drugs most essential in times of severe illness.

"I do not mind the labor part of Sunday drug stores as much as I do being robbed of church privileges those privileges, which, I believe, were ever meant to be encroached upon.

"Futhermore, the Sunday drug-store is a loafing place, in many instances for young men, where they tell their yarns, more or less coarse, etc.

"Futhermore, it encourages the sale of cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and equally harmful and unnecessary

"Cannot something be done by the Lord's Day Alliance to stop the sale of these articles, which are worse than useless on Sundays? It is a growing evil and must be stopped, if we expect to retain unmolested the glorious Sabbath, which we enjoy so much. I, for one, would hold up both my hands for the passing of any measure which would make the closing of drug-stores on Sunday absolutely compulsory. Why should we be robbed of life's best privileges, such as Sunday worship, any more than any other class of merchants? It is simply a custom which has existed for so long that people now look upon it generally as necessary. They are being blinded by mistaken notions The Sunday drug store is not necessary. I make this statement without fear of successful contradiction, and I would deem it the privilege of a life time to be able to shake hands with the man who would originate a plan that would compel druggists to close their stores on Sunday."

SPECIFIC
FOR THE TREATMENT OF
ALCOHOLISM.
Used in Connection With the Province of Quebec Probation System With Unvarying Success.

The City Council of Montreal has endorsed this marvellous discovery. The Finance Committee of Montreal recently voted $500 to defray the expense of placing the medicine in each of the city Police Stations, as prompt application of the treatment to bad cases will prevent the fatalities continually occurring in the cells.

No Sanitarium is required. The Treatment can be taken at home. No special diet required. The desire to reform is simply necessary and spirits avoided for a few days.

This medicine is now within the reach of all, the price having been reduced. The wonderful results obtained with worst class of drunkards coming before the Judges of the Recorders' Courts in Quebec and Montreal warrants the statement that the disease of Drunkenness can be cured—readily and surely—under ordinary circumstances and with the reasonable desire upon the part of an inebriate.

This treatment is simply the medicine of the medical profession—the only secret is as to its administration.

Dr. Mackay's discovery is the result of 25 years of practice as a specialist and expert. He is a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Province of Quebec.

The Government of Quebec through the Judges ordered over 500 boxes of the medicine for prisoners appearing in the Courts in 1904—Official Reports establish 90 per cent. of cures with these cases.

With the public and official endorsation and the record of results published it is unnecessary to waste money experimenting further. All communications private.

IS ROOSEVELT AFRAID?

Extraordinary Precautions Taken For His Safety in New York.

Guarded By Mounted Policemen and Secret Service Men Throughout the East End—Doir Steps Watched By Officers and Belated Residents of the District Taken Home—Crowds Assemble But All Passes Off Peaceably.

New York, N.Y., Feb. 15.—For the first time since the days when he was Governor of the State of New York President Roosevelt yesterday revisited the heart of the east side. He was guarded by mounted police and secret service men. The district through which the President drove and in which he dined is not the safest in the great city, and the police took no chances. So stringent were the precautions that not a flashlight photograph was allowed to be taken, and uniformed police, plain clothes men and detectives fairly swarmed inside and out of "Little Hungary."

They were stationed on roofs and fire escapes in the neighborhood, and for two blocks on either side of East Houston street, a cordon of police cut off the crowds. Ordinary police cards permitting entry into fire lines and similar places were suspended by order of Police Commissioner McAdoo, and no one without an invitation to the dinner and specially issued police card was permitted to pass the tautly drawn line of patrolmen.

The night was bitterly cold, but by 6 o'clock East Houston street and the intersecting thoroughfares for several blocks in all directions were blocked by as cosmopolitan a crowd as could be gathered in any city in the world. At that hour the police began to clear the streets and draw their lines through which admission was gained only by special ticket. A troop of mounted police rode slowly into the crowd and working east and west gradually moved the sightseers into side streets, where another line was established to keep them back.

Every entrance to a residence or store within the police lines was guarded by an officer, while on the housetops opposite the cafes stood policemen to keep these vantage points clear of any evil disposed persons. The men took up their stations with the certainty of well arranged plans, and whenever some belated home-comer whose residence was within the guarded zone appeared he was accompanied to his door by an officer and left with the caution to remain indoors.

President Roosevelt was punctual to his schedule. He was due at 7.30 and five minutes before that time a roar of cheers rolled up from Avenue B. The police lines came to attention and a band stationed near the cafe struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," but after the opening bar not a horn could be heard.

The President last night fulfilled a promise made to the Hungarian Republican Club several years ago, that he would be its guest at a banquet if its prediction came true, and he ever went to the White House

Cat Nearly Kills a Boy.

Port Blakeley, Wash., Feb. 15.—Adolph Peterson, aged 6, was nearly killed yesterday in a fight with an enraged cat. The animal is large, and it attacked the boy with great ferocity. Two fingers were so badly lacerated that they had to be amputated. There is a deep cut in the boy's side which threatens his life. His face was so badly scratched that the sight of one eye will probably be destroyed. The boy is still in the hospital.

BRITAIN'S PARLIAMENT

Sixth Session Under King Edward Opened By His Majesty.

Only Reference to War in Speech From the Throne Regrets That It "Unhappily Continues"—"The North Sea Incident" Gently Referred to—Thibet, Afghanistan and South African Matters Dealt With—Matters Before the House.

London, Feb. 15.—The sixth session of the first Parliament of his reign was opened yesterday afternoon by King Edward with all the historic pageantry which has marked the ceremony since his accession. The Sovereign himself read the speech from the throne to the assembled Lords and Commons in the upper chamber.

The only reference to the war, which His Majesty said "unhappily continues," was to announce that "my Government has been careful to observe in the strictest manner the obligations incumbent upon a neutral power."

The lengthiest paragraph, devoted to the Balkans, says the situation continues to give cause for anxiety. The measures adopted at the instance of the Austro-Russian Governments have been instrumental in bringing about some amelioration in the state of the disturbed districts, but "these measures have still to be supplemented by radical reforms, especially of the financial system, before any permanent improvements can be effected in the administration of these provinces of the Turkish Empire."

The speech also mentioned the international commission "entrusted with the investigation of the North Sea incident." The King expresses the hope that the steps to establish a representative constitution for the Transvaal would result in substantial progress towards the ultimate goal of complete self-government.

His Majesty referred to the Thibetan expedition, to the exchange of visits between a representative of Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, the viceroy of India, and the Ameer of Afghanistan to discuss questions affecting the relations of the two Governments, and concluded with mentioning the proposals for the redistribution of Parliamentary seats to be laid before the Commons, the alien bill to be introduced and the legislation dealing with the unemployed besides other important domestic legislation.

Having led the Queen to a seat on his left, the King seated himself on the throne and commanded the attendance of the Speaker, and members of the House of Commons. On the arrival of the latter the King rose and read the speech in a clear, firm voice. The short ceremony then ended, the King and Queen retired to the robing room, the procession was reformed and Their Majesties returned to the palace by the same route over which they had arrived.

Great Favorites.

The House of Commons assembled for the despatch of business at 4 p.m. The House was crowded. Joseph Chamberlain, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Arthur J. Balfour and other favorites were warmly greeted. W. A. Mount (Conservative), moved, and Samuel Roberts (Conservative), seconded, the address in reply to the King's speech. The first division approaching party lines occurred in the House of Commons when M. Dalziel (Liberal) moved the House censure Lord Arlington for breach of privileges by his action in the North Dorset election. Premier Balfour said nothing could be gained by continuing the discussion, and moved the previous question, which was carried by 257 to 291 votes.

Among the first of the new bills of which notice was given in the House of Commons were Home Secretary Akers-Douglas' Alien Bill and the bill of Mr. Long, President of the Local Government Board, for the relief of the unemployed.

Sir Henry to Attack.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, speaking on Mr. Mount's motion, assailed the Government, which, he said, was evading the fiscal question as shown by the failure of the mover and seconder of the address to mention this important subject. He added that the Opposition would shortly endeavor to secure a straight answer from Mr. Balfour, showing whether or not he was in agreement with Joseph Chamberlain's proposals.

Sir Henry attacked the Government's policy in Thibet and South Africa, and, in fact, at all points. He continued speaking almost up to 7.30 p.m., when Sir Edgar Vincent (Conservative) took up the debate and was speaking when the House suspended its sitting.

The first hour and a half of the night session was taken up with desultory speeches in the debate upon the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Balfour For Peace.

Premier Balfour arose at 10.30 o'clock to reply to Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman. Mr. Balfour justified the Government's action in Thibet, said it was the ministry's earnest desire to maintain the friendliest relations with Afghanistan, and that negotiations to that end were proceeding satisfactorily; touched on Chinese labor in South Africa and repeated Lord Lansdowne's pronouncement with regard to the future of the South African colonies. He also defended the sugar convention. Replying to Sir Henry's assertion that the Government was too feeble to carry out an effective policy, Mr. Balfour said the decision lay entirely with the House, whether effectively it could carry out the mandate of the people and the duties entrusted to it by the sovereign.

Mr. Balfour protested against bringing the fiscal question before this Parliament, and said it was entirely irrelevant. He was unable, he said, to make his [illegible] clearer than already he had [illegible]. He taunted the Opposition on the existing confusion concerning its future program. In conclusion Premier Balfour said Sir Henry's attack in some particulars, especially where he attributed improper motives to Mr. Lee, the Civil Lord of the Admiralty, in his recent Eastleigh speech, was most unnecessary and dangerous.

The House of Commons adjourned at 11.12 p.m.

Unionists Censure Wyndham.

London, Feb 15.—The position of Sir Antony MacDonnell, Under Secretary for Ireland, in the Unionist councils, threatens to bring a storm about the Government's head.

MacDonnell is credited with being responsible for Secretary Wyndham's more liberal policy towards Ireland, and is accordingly hated by the Ulster section of the Irish Unionists, who, led by Sir Edward Carson, are doing their best to overthrow him.

At a meeting of the Irish Unionists yesterday, a resolution was adopted openly censuring Mr Wyndham for "abdicating his position and responsibility in favor of a subordinate official with a policy of his own, directed to destroying the basis of Irish Unionism."

Favor Canadian Cattle.

London, Feb 15.—(C.A.P.)—Consequent on Lord Onslow's recent speech a special conference of the Glasgow District Co-Operative Defence Association met to consider the cattle embargo question. A resolution that the act of 1896 should be amended to allow Canadian cattle to enter the country without being slaughtered at the port of entry was carried unanimously. Sun Dogs Seen.

Kingston, Feb. 15.—A fine illustration of the astronomical phenomena, commonly known as "sun dogs," was witnessed yesterday morning between sun-rise and 9 o'clock. The "sun dogs" appeared at equal distances on each side of the sun, and were very plain, resembling somewhat a rainbow. The phenomena is not at all common in this part of the country, and never has it been more perfect. The "dogs" are taken as indicative of a severe storm.

Irish M.P.'s Active.

London, Feb. 15.—At a meeting of the Irish Nationalists in the committee room of the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, presided over by John Redmond, it was decided to at once commence an active campaign and move amendments to the address in reply to the speech from the throne on the subjects of Home Rule, Catholic universities and the Irish Land Act.

Strong Views On Chamberlain.

London, Feb. 15.—The Liverpool Commercial says: "If Mr. Chamberlain really believes that delay in arranging colonial preference will result in the disruption of the Empire, it would be shocking political criminality on his part to allow this fearful menace to the Empire to drag on through another session, and perhaps through another year."

Social Tragedy

Women Who Brave Death for Social Honors.

In the midst of one of the most brilliant social functions of the season, a noted society woman started suddenly from her chair with a scream of agony and fell insensible to the floor.

A few hours later the distinguished physician told her anxious husband that she was suffering from an acute case of nervous prostration brought on by female trouble, and hinted at an operation. Fortunately a friend advised her to try

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The result was that she escaped the surgeon's knife and to-day is a well woman.

The derangement of the delicate female organism sets every nerve in the body quivering with pain. Headaches, backaches, torturing bearing down pains and dragging sensations make women nervous and hysterical.

Mrs. T. E. Gillis, of Windsor, N. S., writes:

Dear Mrs Pinkham:—When I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was suffering with weakness and womb trouble, headaches, backaches, and that worn-out, tired feeling. I have only taken the Vegetable Compound a few short weeks, and it has made me well, strong and robust. I believe that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is without equal for female troubles.

Mrs. Laura Emmons, President Loyal Home Workers, Walkerville, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I am enjoying such good health that I feel it a duty to write and thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered for more than five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge and weakness which no amount of medicine, diet or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound however, reached the root of my trouble, cured me and made me strong, healthy and well. I want to say to every suffering woman, don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham's advice is free to all. Her address is Lynn, Mass.

Locomotive Firemen Satisfied.

New York, Feb. 15.—The committee appointed by the board of directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad to confer with a committee from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, met the firemen's committee at the Grand Central station yesterday. The conference was ended early yesterday afternoon, and at its conclusion the firemen would only say that they made their position plain to the directors, that the latter had it under consideration and that it was possible that no further meetings would be necessary. J. Pierpont Morgan was present and spoke at considerable length.

Twenty Years of Piles

"I suffered from itching piles for twenty years and cannot imagine any greater distress. Dr. Chase's Ointment gave me relief from the first application, and has now entirely freed me of this horrible disease."—Mr. S. J. McLaren, Farmer and Contractor, Tiverton, Ont. 7

A Visit From the Bayleys.

The servant at No. 1 told the servant at No. 2 that her master expected his old friends, the Bayleys, to pay a visit, and No. 2 told No. 3 that No. 1 expected to have the Bayleys in the house every day, and No. 3 told No. 4 that it was all up with No. 1 and that they couldn't keep the bailiffs out, whereupon No. 4 told No. 5 that the officers were after No. 1 and that it was as much as he could do to prevent himself from being taken in execution and that it was nearly killing his poor, dear wife, and so it went on increasing and increasing until it got to No. 20 that the detective police had taken up the gentleman who lived at No. 1 for killing his poor, dear wife with arsenic and that it was confidently hoped and expected that he would be executed, as the facts of the case were very clear against him.—London Mail.

Healthy and Vigorous

Mr. John Shelton, the well known bridge builder of 161 Sherwood St., Ottawa, states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney and liver derangements brought on by exposure, and find them better than any pill or medicine I ever used. They cleansed my system and made me feel healthy and vigorous and better in every way." 8

THE MINERALS OF CANADA

Expansion of the Cement Industry Shows Marked Development.

The report on the mining industry of Canada by the director of mines is comprehensive and full of interest. Each working mine is dealt with, the property described, and its prospects indicated.

The report covers not only the precious and economic metals, but also the non-metals, such as cement and petroleum.

In the nonmetallic class a good showing is made by petroleum and cement. The wages paid for the production of petroleum amounted to $165,760, while the value of the product was $1,566,674. The expansion of the cement industry is a marked feature of the mineral development of the province. The rapid growth in output is indicated by the figures supplied in the report. In 1899 the increase was 45 per cent over 1898; in 1900 it was 20 per cent over 1899; in 1901 it was 14 per cent; in 1902 it was 40 per cent over the previous year, and in 1903 there was a further increase of 23 per cent over 1902. Notwithstanding this remarkable expansion there was imported in the year ended June 30, 1903, 2,872,696 hundredweight, valued at $961,668, upon which the duty paid was $271,604.

As the uses to which cement is put have multiplied and the industry grown the price has fallen. It was $2.50 a barrel in 1891, and $1.70 in 1903. The erection of new plants is proceeding in Canada at a rate that the director of mines seems to think promises an era of over production in Ontario, with attendant curtailment or extinction of profits. This is a warning that investors will be obliged to heed, for since the capacity of the present plants is fully exercised, it would seem to be nearly if not quite sufficient to supply the demand the success of the industry will depend upon the discovery of new uses for the product.

EUCHRE PARTY

Given by Ancient Order of Hibernians Last Evening.

The progressive euchre party given under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, in the Foresters' Hall last evening was a decided success. There were about fifty couples in attendance and the evening passed most pleasantly. Card playing lasted from 9 to 11.30. The ladies' prize, consisting of a fancy sewing set, was won by Miss H. Dorris, while Mr. W Young captured the gentleman's prize, a pack of cards in a moroco case. At the conclusion of the card playing delightful refreshments were served.

CHANGED HANDS

The C. P. R. Hotel Purchased by Messrs. G. T. and J. F. Rickerby.

The C.P.R. Hotel on Simcoe-st., for many years conducted by Mr. W. J. Overend, and for the past six months by Mr. T. J. Allen, has again changed hands.

The new owners are Mr. George T. Rickerby, of town, and Mr. John T. Rickerby, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. The latter has had considerable experience in the hotel business, having for some time been part owner of the Grand Central Hotel at the Canadian Soo, and the hotel, which will still go under the name of the C.P.R. House, will be conducted in an up-to-date and business-like manner. The new owners will take possession on the first of March. Mr. Allen, the former proprietor, will remain in town until the early part of May, when he takes a trip to South Carolina to recuperate amid the pine groves and balmy breezes of that delightful State.

PERSONAL.

Mr. D. W. Dumble's condition is reported to be very much improved to-day.

Mrs. Wm. Garnett, and daughter, Elsie, of Port Hope, are visiting friends in town.

Miss Jean Eyres left this morning for a month's visit with friends in Toronto and Hamilton.

Miss Hattie Campbell, of Truro, N. S., is the guest of her mother, Mrs. James Campbell, Water-st.

Miss Maud Donnelly, of Toronto, after a week's visit with Peterborough friends, has returned home.

Mr. Walter E. Wesley, representing J. J. Turner & Sons, has gone on a business trip to Perth, Almonte and other towns.

Mr. B. W. Hatley, of Orillia, is in town, the guest of his brother-in-law, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt. He came down with the Orillia curlers yesterday.

President D. Hughes-Charles and Mr. J. H. Garbutt, of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are attending the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Fairs, now in progress in Toronto.

Miss Edyth Talbott who was so severely hurt at the Hall and Son's passenger elevator accident last July was discharged from St. Joseph's hospital last night, but is yet uncured. Doubts are entertained of even yet saving her injured limb.

WILL SPEND $100,000 IN BUILDINGS AND MACHINERY

Peterborough's New Cereal Mill Will be in Operation Shortly.

FLOOR CAPACITY OVER ONE ACRE IN AREA

Proposed Ultimate Expenditure $250,000—New Flour Mill Will be Running Early in March—Something About the Product of the New Factory—Cereals and Shredded Vegetable Foods.

As one of those places which are world-famed for the manufacture of breakfast foods, the town of Peterborough will take a step toward the front rank. The somewhat interesting announcement was made recently that the Peterborough Cereal Company, with a capital of $250,000 had been formed, the provisional directors being Messrs. W. H. Meldrum, W. A. Collier, William G. Ferguson, Adam Hall and R. R. Hall, and now there are positive evidences that the new concern will soon be a going one. The Review last evening had an interview with Mr. Meldrum and Mr. Collier, and was given to understand that the new flour mill, with a capacity of 150 barrels a day, will be running about the first week in March. The fact is somewhat auspicious that there is a ready market in town for the larger portion of the mill's output.

ABSOLUTE SUCCESS.

The central location of Peterborough, the very cheap electric power, and the assistance rendered by the town were some of the conditions which determined the new company to locate here, and there is no question in the minds of those at its head but that it can be made an absolute success. The property of the Company is about two acres and one-half in extent, and the portion given by the town is a little over half an acre, principally under water. It is the opinion, however, that the filling in process will not necessitate any great expenditure or trouble. A proposed siding from the C.P.R. spur will cover a good portion of the water lot. The Company's property has an extent of 128 feet on the C.P.R. spur line, 37 feet on Simcoe-st. and 205 feet on the central line between the blocks.

THE CEREAL MILL.

The present mill building and plant will cost about $25,000. In the southern portion as much of the cereal manufacturing machinery as possible will be installed at once, and Mr. Collier states that this department will be in operation by about April 1st. The machinery for the flour mill is being supplied by Wm. and J. G. Gray, of Toronto, while that for the cereal factory is being built at Battle Creek, Michigan, for the special purposes intended. Local industries will benefit to the etent of about $7,000 on work that can be done in Peterborough in connection with the plant. The present plans have in view the almost immediate expenditure of $100,000 on buildings and machinery. The new industry has been well financed, and the money to carry out this work is immediately available. The ultimate expenditure proposed is something like $250,000.

AN EARLY START.

The first carload of machinery for the cereal mill was unloaded yesterday. There will be 30 hands employed from the beginning of operations in the manufacture of cereals. Just as soon as the sod can be turned the construction of new buildings will be commenced. They are to extend eastward 180 feet from that portion of the present building where it is proposed to begin the manufacture of cereals. A fifty foot storehouse will be built beyond this, and a second one will have a front of about 60 feet on the spur line. The siding will enter the property from the north side and run between the mill and storehouses and the elevator. The lay-out will be such that there will be plenty of room for fire protection. The entire floor space of the buildings when completed will be 53,200 square feet, or something over one acre. There will be a box-making department in the factory which is to be erected this summer. It is also proposed to construct a new elevator, capable of storing from 50 to 60 thousand bushels.

THE PRODUCT

The process of manufacture which the Company will adopt is one entirely new, though thoroughly tested. The originator of the celebrated Malta Vitae breakfast food is the discoverer of the practicability of the process to be adopted here. The special lines of manufacture will be those of shredded cereal and vegetable foods. An example of shredded vegetable product may be had in the potatoe. Mr. Collier states that five pounds of ordinary potatoes can be made into one pound of shredded potatoes. It is known that potatoes are 90 per cent. water, so that by driving the water out of them by cooking in enclosed cylinders thus preserving the nourishing properties, then running through a shredding machine and drying by steam, the result is, that the potatoe loses none of its value as a food and can be used in all the forms in which it is used to-day, except in the whole. By adding a little boiling water, they are ready for the table in a very few minutes. Peas, beans, squash, pumpkins, in fact nearly every kind of vegetable can be put through this process. The cereal foods will also be thoroughly cooked, the material used being the very best, with a view to retaining the greatest degree of health giving foods. The manufacture of cereal coffees may also be undertaken by the Company.

Peterborough's situation is considered an excellent one, both in consideration of the source of raw material and of shipping facilities. "We are not afraid of the freight rates; they are all right," observed Mr. Meldrum. It is expected that a large market for the product of the mills will be found in the Old Country, and with the prominence which cereal foods have obtained all over the World, the introduction of the new form, which will be manufactured here, may be considered as having its career already well mapped out.

WEDDING AT ST. JOHN'S

Miss Mary Long Was the Bride and Mr. Samuel Jordan the Groom.

The bells of St. John's rang out right merrily shortly after one o'clock this afternoon in announcement of a very pretty wedding which had just been solemnized within the sacred edifice. The bride was Miss Mary Long, daughter of Mr. Charles Long, now of Edmonton, but formerly a resident here, and the groom was Mr. Samuel Jordan, of the firm of Jordan Bros., florists. Quite a large number of friends gathered in the church to witness the pleasing event. Rev. J. C. Davidson performed the ceremony. The bride was richly gowned in cream corded silk. She wore a bridal veil and carried a bouquet of roses. Miss Ethel Tully was bridesmaid. Her handsome gown was of white silk organdie, with hat to match, and she also carried a bouquet of roses. The best man was Mr. John Jordan, brother of the groom. The ushers were Master Gordon Long and Master Victor Tully.

Even though the weather conditions were at their best with Old Sol smiling broadly, the breath of June, the bridal month, seemed to pervade the air as the strains of the wedding march pealed forth from the organ and the happy party swept out of the church.

A delightful wedding dinner was afterwards served at the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. James Long, Reid-st., and from that until train time, congratulatory favors were freely bestowed. Many beautiful presents evidenced the existence of cherished friendships.

Mr. and Mrs. Jordan left by the C.P.R. upon a wedding trip in the West. On returning they will reside on Charlotte-st.

WEDDED AND AWAY.

At St. Peter's Cathedral this morning Mr. Archie Barbeau, an employee of the Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Co., was united in marriage to Miss Anna Guerin, daughter of Mr. Napoleon Guerin, 7 Louis-st. Rev. Father Galvin performed the ceremony. Mr. Francis O'Brien assisted the groom, and Miss Virginia Barbeau the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Barbeau left on a wedding tour to Toronto and other western points. Returning they will take up their residence on Louis-st.

THE NEW PROVINCES

Will There be Separate Schools Established—Mr. Langfeldt Writes to Mr. Borden.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt and Rev. Dr. Torrance have been appointed a committee by the Peterborough Ministerial Association to obtain information regarding the proposed Separate Schools for the new provinces in the Northwest. Mr. Langfeldt communicated with Mr. R. L. Borden, the leader of the Opposition, and Mr. R. R. Hall, the local representative. The following reply has been received from Mr. Borden:—"Your letter of the 13th inst. is before me. During the past three years the Conservative party has advocated the granting of a provincial status to the North-West Territories. Neither the party nor myself has made any pronouncement in favor of establishing Separate Schools in the new provinces. The intention of the Government will not be known until the measure is brought down. The Prime Minister has given an assurance that it will be introduced on Tuesday next, the 21st inst. I shall be very glad to send you a copy of the bill as soon as it is available."

CAMPBELLFORD T.A.S. DIFFICULTY

Secretary E. S. Clarry Gives Interesting Information.

Regarding the difficulty that is now pending in the Trent Valley League the secretary of the League, Mr. E. S. Clarry, when seen today said—

It is true that the Campbellford club have protested the game played in Cobourg on Friday night against T. A. S. of Peterboro, and a great mass of evidence on both sides has been filed with me. I was in hope that the series would be brought to a close without any protest or the like being lodged, but the Campbellford team have fully complied with the rules and regulations governing protests and the matter will receive due consideration. Now that the evidence is well in the executive of the league will be called. I am this afternoon in communication with Mr. Welsh of Bobcaygeon, the President of the Trent Valley League and if that gentleman is satisfied I will call the meeting for Friday night at the Oriental hotel. Asked as to his opinion as to the probable result of the protest, Mr. Clarry declined to commit himself but intimated that the charges were most unusual, viz. that of alleging that the referee favored the T. A. S. team.

In conclusion Mr. Clarry stated that this is his seventh season as secretary of the league and during that time he had witnessed some stirring times but it is doubtful if more rivalry ever existed amongst the teams of the league than at the present time. He hoped that the matter would be satisfactorily adjusted, that the series would be concluded in good time and that the best team might win the championship.

One of the charges brought against the T. A. S. team is that they played Bill Meagher, who it is alleged played O. H. A. this season. When asked concerning this Mr. Clarry stated that it was a fact, that the Trent Valley Rules did not permit the playing of players in their league who had played in O. H. A. matches the same season. It was also a fact that Meagher played with the Peterborough O. H. A. team on on one occasion in this year, but it was not the fault of the T. A. S. team that this occurred but a fault of his (the Secretary of the League) who had misinterpreted the O. H. A. rules and who at that time was under the impression that they could, replied as follows—

Peterboro, Jan. 6, '05.

D. Holland, Secretary T. A. S. Hockey Club.

Dear Sir.—I have been asked by your club in regard to the matter of several of your players playing with the Peterboro club in the O. H. A., I may say that at the annual meeting of the league a motion was introduced by Mr. T. J. Wallace and was carried whereby the Trent Valley League assumed the constitution of the O. H. A. excepting in such places as special mention was made of by the mover of the motion. The O. H. A. constitution permits of players playing in two leagues. I have seen Mr. Wallace in regard to his motion and asked him if I properly interpreted the motion that the O. H. A. players could play in the Trent Valley League. He assurred me that such was his intention. Under these circumstances I see no reason why I should not grant you the permits for these two men. And you are therefore as far as I am concerned at liberty to play them in your matches, notwithstanding that they have played with the O. H. A.

E. S. CLARRY, Secretary.

For this reason he could not see why the T. A. S. team should be punished for an error on the part of the League management. At the beginning of the season the secretary of the T. A. S. club, Mr. D. Holland, wrote the secretary of the League asking for information as to whether the T. A. S. men might also play with the local O. H. A. team. Subsequently Mr. Clarry discovered that the O. H. A. rule permitting its players to play in other leagues, referred to Bank leagues, city leagues and college leagues only and not to what might be called rival organizations. He therefore immediately wrote the secretary of the T. A. S. as follows—

January 12, 1905.

D. Holland, Sec. T. A. S. Club.

Dear Sir.—Regarding the Trent Valley League players of your club who have played for the O. H. A. this year, I beg to lay the following facts before you. I find that I was in error when I permitted these players to play with the O. H. A. as I was not properly posted on the O. H. A. constitution. I desire to state that it will be necessary for the players of your team to choose between the O. H. A. and Trent Valley. It will be impossible for them to play Trent Valley League match as if they continue to play in the O. H. A. from this date. With best wishes and that no players who only wish to play in the Trent Valley League will play with the O. H. A. team tonight.

E. S. CLARRY.

The T. A. S. team acted upon the instructions outlined in the last letter and Meagher chose the Trent Valley League while Crowley and Parnell, two of the T. A. S. team chose the O. H. A.

NEW PASTOR ORDAINED

Impressive Ceremony in the Lakefield Baptist Church.

The ordination of Rev. W. Quarrington, B.A., as pastor of the Lakefield Baptist Church took place on Tuesday afternoon and was an impressive ceremony.

The gentlemen from Peterborough who started out by rail were forced to return as the train was not able to get through. They then took a livery outfit and drove to the village, but arrived a little late in the afternoon for the commencement of proceedings. The following constituted the ordination council—Rev. O. C. Elliott, of Belleville; Rev. A. H. Brace and Mr. Gillespie of Park-st. church; Rev. J. L. Whiten, of Picton; Rev. L. McKinnon and Thomas R. Mann, of Gilmour Memorial church; Rev. J. E. Trotter, of Port Hope; Rev. F. J. Scott and Mr. George Lee, of Murray-st. church; Messrs. Gordon and Nicholls of Lakefield. They examined the new pastor in doctrine and other matters and reported him eligible for ordination. Rev. J. E. Trotter acted as moderator and Rev. F. J. Scott as clerk.

In the evening the proceedings were continued and there was a good attendance. Rev. L. McKinnon preached the ordination sermon and Rev. A. H. Brace offered up the ordination prayer. Rev. J. E. Trotter delivered the charge to the congregation and Rev. O. C. Elliott charged the new pastor. Rev. F. J. Scott then extended to Rev. Mr. Quarrington the right hand of fellowship on behalf of the Baptist church. The ordination ceremony then closed with the pronouncing of the benediction by Mr. Quarrington, who is a popular and aggressive young minister with a bright future before him.

THE INCUBATOR ITS MANAGEMENT

Best Machines Are the Cheapest in Long Run.

SHOULD BE ORDERED EARLY

Incubator Should Not Only Hatch Large Percentage of Chicks, but Those Hatched Must be Large, Strong and Lively.

At this season of the year the incubator question is an important one to the poultryman, says Mr. F. C. Elford, acting chief of the Poultry Division, Ottawa. An inexperienced person or beginner in the poultry business should exercise the same care and judgment in buying an incubator that a farmer would use in selecting an expensive farm implement. In other words, he should take care to buy the best. It is simply wasting money to buy a poor machine as it can never be depended upon. With a first class machine, all that the beginner has to do is to learn to run his machine according to the manufacturer's direction. Five or ten minutes, morning and night, will be all the time required to care for the machine, and it can be depended upon to maintain the proper degree of heat and bring the eggs to a successful termination of the hatch if the operator simply follows instructions and does not interfere with the machine or attempt experiments on his own behalf. He is not likely to know more about the machine than the manufacturer.

FIRST-CLASS MACHINE.

To be considered first-class an incubator must not only hatch a large percentage of chicks, but those hatched must be large, strong and lively. The test of incubation is not alone in the number hatched, but also in the health, vigor and hardiness of the chicks and their ability to live and thrive. Faulty incubators are responsible for the death of many small chicks. Being poorly hatched that is, hatched with ten or twenty per cent. less vitality than they should have, they struggle against heavy odds and die off in large numbers in the brooders. If, by buying a low priced and poorly constructed incubator, a man gets a twenty per cent. lower vigor in the chicks that do hatch he has bought the probability of failure in buying that machine.

A large batch of strong chicks cannot be expected, unless the eggs are from a pen of thrifty vigorous fowls. If the breeding stock is lacking in vitality, the chicks are sure to be weak. The fresher the eggs are, the greater is the vitality of the germs and the more chicks they will hatch. It is not advisable to use for hatching eggs that are more than ten days old and these should be tested twice during the incubation period. The use of a simple egg tester will enable a man to know what percentage of the eggs are fertile, and thus prevent him blaming the machine when it is not at fault.

THESE ARE ADVANTAGES.

The advantages of a really good incubator are summed up in the larger hatches and the greater strength and vigor of the chicks. Such a machine renders us independent of the vagaries of the broody hen, and enables us to get chicks when we want them. How much this means a study of the market prices reveals. Everyone knows that the price of eggs is very high in the fall and winter, owing to the fact that the hens have not recovered from moulting and the pullets have not begun to lay. Obviously then, if we want eggs to sell when prices are high, we should hatch our chickens of the American varieties in April and May and of the Mediterranean varieties in May; then feed the pullets for growth so that they will be mature and laying by November. The same thing holds good with chickens for the market. The greatest profits are made by putting our eggs, our broilers and our chickens upon the market when supplies are scarcest and prices highest.

If an incubator is to be purchased it should be ordered early, as there are apt to be vexatious delays in shipment and delivery and is always advisable to have the operator have an opportunity to run the machine for a few days before the eggs are placed in it, or until the regulation is understood and the temperature of the egg chamber can be maintained at 102 1-2 degrees Fahrenheit. The incubator should be placed in a well-ventilated room, preferably one unheated. The chicks developing in the shells require an abundance of fresh air. A bright airy cellar or a well-ventilated room having an even temperature is the best place. The ventilation should be so arranged that there will be outside air entering the room at all times, but without a direct draught blowing on the machine.

Finally let me repeat the advice to follow implicitly the directions that accompany the machine. Study carefully the instructions regarding the care of the lamp and the control of temperature, the turning, cooling and testing of the eggs and all other details.

Then, when hatching commences let the machine alone. It is too late to rectify mistakes in the management and interference can only spoil the hatch. The chicks should be left in the machine until they are thoroughly dry and should not be fed the first day. When feeding commences be careful to feed sparingly. More chicks are killed by overfeeding than by underfeeding.

WHAT ONE MAN HAS DONE.

The Remarkable Achievement of a Remarkable Man—A Splendid Example of what Untiring Devotion can do.

For years Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., studied the problem of how best to prevent and cure disease. He was not satisfied with the methods and treatments in general use, and after long study and much experiment he declared that:

"The poisonous products of the fermentation and decomposition of undigested foods absorbed by the system are the first cause of almost every disease."

He knew that all the medicines prescribed for the stomach and bowels contained resinous properties which left behind them a dried up condition of the mucous membrane lining of the stomach and bowels—this after effect invariably resulting in Chronic Complaints.

Dr. Leonhardt, therefore, determined that to correct disorders of the stomach and bowels he must produce an effective medicine containing absolutely no resinous substances, such as are found in the ordinary pill.

He succeeded and the result he called Anti-Pill.

Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill will cure permanently any case of Dyspepsia or other Stomach Trouble, Biliousness, or Constipation.

—Constable Lee, of Orillia, went to a house to make an inventory of some furniture that was under seizure. The man was away, but his wife grabbed the officer by the whiskers and proceeded to haul him outdoors. The officer choked her and they both fell to the floor, and fought for some time. The constable left with wrecked whiskers, torn coat, and scratched face, but without the list of furniture. He put the woman in the police court on a charge of assault.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Company

As time was short and Mr. Ireland would be sure to terminate the interview exactly at the stated hour George plunged immediately into the business which had brought him hither. "I wish to hear the story of my parents," he said deliberately.

The cigar fell from the fat fingers of Ireland, and he stared in amazement at the young man. "It is rather late in the day for that, is it not?" he asked.

"Better late than never," quoted George.

"A proverb is no answer," said Ireland testily.

"Then, if you wish to know, sir, I am in love."

"That is no answer either."

"It will lead to a very explicit answer," rejoined the young man coolly. "Love leads to marriage, and in my case marriage cannot take place unless I know that I am legitimate."

"Of course you are. I have always maintained that you are."

"What proof have you?" asked George eagerly.

Ireland hesitated and wiped his mouth in quite an unnecessary manner with a red silk handkerchief. "Your father always declared that Miss Lockwood was his lawful wife, and treated her with every respect."

"Did my father ever tell you where the marriage was celebrated?"

"No; I never asked, nor did your grandfather Lockwood. It was not till after your mother's death that Lord Derrington denied the marriage. Then Mr. Vane was in Italy and never troubled about the matter."

"He should have done so for my sake," said George indignantly.

"Certainly, and I urged him to do so," said Mr. Ireland heavily. "I was in Italy at the time, and you were only an infant in arms."

"Who was my nurse then?"

"Jane Fraser, the Scotch nurse who afterward brought you to your grandfather Lockwood when Mr. Vane was murdered."

"Do you remember the other nurse, the first one I had?"

Mr. Ireland grew indignant and puffed angrily at his cigar. "I do, indeed," he said wrathfully, "a vulgar, forward hussy. She was not bad looking either and set up for being a lady." Here he began to laugh. "Would you believe it, George, my boy, she was in love with your father and showed it so plainly that he was obliged to get rid of her?"

"What was her name?"

"Eliza Stokes. And she was handsome in a bouncing way."

"What became of her?"

"I can't tell you," said Ireland, with sudden reserve.

"Did you see her after she was dismissed?"

Ireland turned his cigar slowly and did not look at George when he replied. "Yes, I did. When and where it does not matter."

"But it does matter—to me!" cried Brendon anxiously. "It is to know about her that I came here to see you today."

"I thought you came about your birth," said Ireland sharply.

"That among other things."

The old man looked down again and appeared to be in deep thought. He was turning over in his own mind how much or how little he should tell George. And the young man looked at him anxiously. Much depended upon the speech of Mr. Ireland. At last the silence was broken, and by a most unexpected remark. "I loved your mother," said Ireland.

"I never knew that," said Brendon softly, for he saw that the man was moved at the recollection of some early romance.

"I never spoke of it before," was the reply; and Ireland laid down his cigar to speak more freely. "Yes, I loved Rosina Lockwood with all my heart and soul. I was not bad looking in those days, George, and I had a good income, but she preferred your father."

"I am sorry to be obliged to ask you for a story of the past," said Brendon apologetically, "but it means so much to me."

"I'll tell you all I can," said Ireland, taking no notice of the apology. He paused for a moment to collect his thoughts and then began abruptly. "I first met your mother at her father's house in Amelia square, where I went to take lessons in singing. Lockwood was famous for his method in those days, and his fame was increased by the appearance of your mother, Rosina, at many concerts. She was a most beautiful creature and was as much admired for her beauty as for her voice. Ah, what a voice! It was like the thrill of a lark, flexible and silvery, and with an immense range. She was quite the rage for a season and was called the English Jenny Lind. Many offers were made to her for the operatic stage. I dare say she would have accepted in the end had she not met with Percy Vane, and he"— Ireland's hand clinched.

Brendon saw that the recital was painful to him, and but that he was so anxious to get at the proofs of his birth would have asked him to desist.

"Percy Vane was a handsome man and rich. I warned Lockwood that he was in love with Rosina, but the old man would not heed. He was flattered by the attention Rosina received. All through that season Vane was in attendance on Rosina. At the end of it he eloped with her—yes. He met her outside St. James' hall and they eloped."

"Where did they go to?" asked Brendon eagerly.

"That I cannot say. Rosina wrote three weeks afterward from Paris, signing herself Vane and stating that she was the wife of Percy."

"Was my grandfather angry?"

"Yes and no. He was angry that he should have lost her, for she was of use to him as an advertisement of his method of singing and also she earned a great deal of money. The house in Amelia square was large and required a good deal to keep it up. Besides, Anthony Lockwood was extravagant. That was why you were left so badly off."

Brendon shrugged his shoulders. "It was good of my grandfather to leave me anything," he said, "but in what way was my—Mr. Lockwood pleased? You hinted that he was not quite angry."

"Well," said Ireland, "he was flattered that his daughter should have married into the aristocracy."

"Then there was no question of the marriage?"

"No. Lord Derrington said nothing till your mother was dead, and even then he said very little. It was when Vane was murdered at San Remo that he first decisively asserted that no marriage had taken place. He did so because Lockwood insisted that Derrington should acknowledge you as the heir. He refused to do so and said that his second son was the heir."

"That is Walter Vane's father?"

"Exactly. And now the father is dead Walter Vane stands in your shoes. I wish you could prove the marriage, my boy," said Ireland, shaking his head, "but it will be a difficult task."

"I don't care how difficult it is," replied Brendon resolutely. "I am determined to learn the truth."

"Who is the lady?" asked Ireland.

"Miss Dorothy Ward. You don't know anything of her."

Ireland shook his head. "I left the adoration of the aristocracy to Lockwood," he said, with something like a sneer, "but that's neither here nor there, my boy. To make a long story short, I met your mother in Paris, and shortly afterward she died, giving birth to you. Eliza Stokes was with her when she died, and you were given into the charge of that woman. Your mother was buried in Pere la Chaise. Vane put up a stone to her—oh, he behaved very well, I don't deny that," added Ireland, but with a dark face. "He was really fond of her, and I suppose there was a marriage."

"Did my mother ever say anything about it?"

"Never. You asked me that before. It was an accepted fact. After the death of Rosina her husband went to Italy. I was there, too, and it was at Milan that the episode occurred which led to the dismissal of Eliza Stokes."

"What was that?"

"Why, there was a young English waiter, quite a boy he was, who fell in love with Eliza when she was taking charge of you at the Hotel de Ville. She refused to marry him and hinted that she loved your father. Vane heard of this and taxed her with impertinence. The end of it was that Eliza said too much and was dismissed. And Jane Fraser was sent from England by Vane's mother to nurse you. That looks as though Lady Derrington believed in the marriage."

"It does," admitted Brendon hopefully. "She would not have sent a nurse had anything been wrong. On the other hand, if she had been quite certain about the marriage she might have offered to take charge of me."

"She did, I believe, but your father was so fond of you—for your mother's sake—that he could scarcely bear you out of his sight. However, Eliza went and Jane came, and then your father went to San Remo. You were then two years of age."

"Did not my father return to England during all that time?"

"No. When he left England with your mother he never returned. She died in Paris, and, with you in charge of a nurse, Vane wandered about the continent. I was twice in Italy and saw him—the second time it was at San Remo."

"If you disliked my father so much why did you seek him out?"

"To see you, George. You were her child, and I loved Rosina so dearly." Ireland stopped, gulped down his emotion, and proceeded more calmly, "Yes, I was at San Remo when your father was murdered."

"You never told me that before," said Brendon.

"I never told you anything before," replied Ireland dryly. "And I should not tell you now but that my health is getting so bad that I may not live long. I have an incurable disease, which will sooner or later carry me off—no, I don't want sympathy. Let me finish the story and then we need not refer to it again. I had intended to leave a written statement behind me for you, George, but this is better, as you can ask me questions about what you do not understand."

"I understand all so far," said George thoughtfully. "But about this murder, Mr. Ireland? Who killed my father?"

"That was never discovered. He went to a masked ball and was seen leaving the room in the company of a blue domino. His body was found on the stones of the beach early next morning. He had been stabbed to the heart."

"Who was the lady—the blue domino?"

WEST HURON RECOUNT.

The Seat Depends Upon Who Is Entitled to Two Ballots.

Goderich, Feb. 15.—The West Huron recount was resumed before His Honor Judge Doyle yesterday. There were practically only three ballots to be disposed of, two marked for Cameron and one for Holmes, at No. 5 Goderich Township, over which there has been considerable conjecture.

The judge held he could not count the ballots, owing to the fact of their being no initials on the back of them, and there being one more ballot in the box when counted than had been polled. This is supposed to be accounted for by the deputy returning officer giving a voter two ballots for one by mistake. The two had struck together.

Judgment was reserved on the two Cameron ballots and also on irregularities in No. 4 Goderich Town. The counsel for Holmes argues that the whole vote should be thrown out, because all the ballots were numbered on the back by the deputy returning officer. This division gives Cameron 15 majority.

If Cameron succeeds in holding the two ballots, he will have two majority, as a result of the recount.

A MANLY OFFICE HOLDER.

President Loubet Shortens His Term to Facilitate Business.

Paris, Feb. 15.—President Loubet will resign office before the expiration of his seven-year term, which ends on Feb. 18, 1906.

His reason for this step is that the triennial renewal of the Senate and the general election for members of the Chamber of Deputies will take place next year, and Parliament will not meet until the close of 1905.

Consequently, to avoid the election of a President by new members, he will resign in time for his successor to be elected by the present Chambers, re-united in national assembly in the palace at Versailles, according to the constitution.

Dundonald Will Be Back.

Toronto, Feb. 15.—Lord Dundonald may be in Toronto this summer. In a letter to Corp. Cameron, late of the Life Guards, and who is a personal friend of the late G.O.C., the general intimated that he expects to be back in this city before very long, and asked to be remembered to his "comrades" of the Army and Navy Veterans, mentioning Chaplain Nunn by name, and asking that certain papers in connection with his honorary life membership be forwarded to him. Lord Dundonald wrote from Shane's Castle, Antrim.

Masters and Mates Meet.

St. Catharines, Feb. 15.—Yesterday afternoon the Grand Lodge Canadian Masters and Mates began its annual session here in the new Murray Hotel, with a number of captains and mates present. Collingwood, Toronto, Kingston and Montreal are among the places represented.

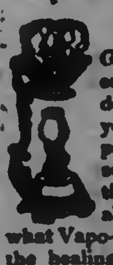
Devlin Is Elected.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—Returns complete, official and unofficial, for Wright County, give Devlin (Liberal) 142 majority. This will not be affected to any extent by official figures. The returns are incomplete, so that only the majority is obtainable at many polls.

Donors to Queen's University.

Toronto, Feb. 15.—The Toronto friend of Queen's University who has agreed to contribute $1,200 per year for the support of an assistant professor of Queen's is Mr. William Mackenzie of Mackenzie, Mann & Co.

The gentlemen who headed the endowment subscription list for $5,000 each are, Mr. Justice Maclennan, President of the Toronto Queen's Alumni Association, and Mr. Geo. Gillies of Toronto. Both are trustees of the University.



Your Throat.

Gargles can't go back far enough, sprays don't reach deep enough; but the air you breathe touches every part. Then why not put some healing medicine in the air and let them go along together? That is what Vapo-Cresolene is for. It puts the healing medicine right on the places that most need it. You now see why it so quickly cures sore throat, bronchitis, hoarseness, whooping-cough and asthma.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists [illegible] including a bottle of Cresolene [illegible] Leeming, Miles Co., Ltd. Agents, 288 St. James Street, Montreal, Can.

Public Works Department Estimates Under Discussion.

Hon's. Foster and Hyman Exchange Compliments As a Result of W. F. Maclean's Protest At Building Expenditure—Ice Crushers May Be Used to Prevent Floods On the Thames—Other Topics Discussed.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—(Special.)—The estimates of the department of public works were under consideration in the house to-day. Progress was by no means rapid. The opposition criticized the proposed expenditures very closely and vigorously condemned the practice of erecting expensive public buildings in small towns.

These bills were introduced:

An act respecting the Canadian Northern—Mr. Parmalee.

An act respecting the Canadian Pacific Railway Company—Mr. Bole.

An act incorporating the St. Anne's, Three Rivers and St. Maurice Electric Railway Company.

Mr. Geoffrion introduced a bill to amend the act respecting the jurisdiction of the exchequer court as to railways. The bill gives orders of the exchequer court regarding the sale of railways the same force in the matter of title to the purchaser as the order of a provincial court.

No Member for Yukon.

Mr. Borden called attention of the government to the delay in making the return of the election of the member-elect for the Yukon. The election was held on Dec. 16, and, according to information given the house, the member would not be able to take his seat before the end of March.

During all this time the Yukon would be disfranchised. Mr. Borden said that as he interpreted the law a returning officer could delay his declaration as long as he pleased. The law, he thought, should be amended to require the declaration to be made within a certain specified time.

The prime minister said if there had been any correspondence with the returning officer in the Yukon it was carried on with the secretary of state. He promised to make a statement to the house to-morrow.

Mr. Fitzpatrick concurred in Mr. Borden's interpretation of the election law, and admitted that an amendment was in order. The law, he said, had been in force for 25 years without any difficulty arising, but the Yukon case showed the necessity of an amendment.

More Information Needed.

The house went into committee to consider Mr. Fisher's resolution providing for the collection of statistics other than those contained in the census. The objects of this resolution were very fully considered in a previous debate, but Mr. Fisher found that the opposition's thirst for information was still far from satisfied. The minister of agriculture was questioned in regard to every aspect of the proposed statistical bureau. He answered as fully as he could, and on passing the resolution the house certainly did not act on incomplete information. The resolution carried, but the opposition declined to go on with the bill, and supply was called.

On the motion to go into supply, Mr. Clements of West Kent drew attention to the grievance existing by reason of floods of the River Thames, between Chatham and Lake St. Clair, which last year had caused damage to the farmers amounting to between $175,000 and $200,000. He suggested that an ice crusher be sent to break up the ice in the Thames between Lake St. Clair and Chatham.

Need an Ice Crusher.

Mr. Hyman admitted the importance of the matter, and promised to communicate with owners of ice crushers at Detroit, as Mr. Clements suggested, and ascertain if it would be possible to have an ice crusher sail thru Lake St. Clair to the mouth of the river.

Discussion was renewed on the appropriation of $26,000 for a public building in the Town of Antigonish, whose population as Mr. Ganong pointed out in the 10 years between 1891 and 1901 had decreased from 2723 to 1838, a loss of 885.

Mr. Malmac answered that the population which would be served by the proposed postoffice was about 2000.

On an appropriation of 15,000 for a public building at Canso, Mr. Maclean protested against the practice of expending large sums of money on public buildings in small towns. The money, he said, would be far better employed in providing for technical education.

Only for the Party.

Mr. Foster described the expenditure as a rank waste of public money. Much of it would have to be borne by the workingmen. The appropriation could be defended only from the standpoint of party interests.

Mr. Hyman accused Mr. Foster of doing the same thing when his party was in power. The system was not inaugurated by the present government.

As to Observatory?

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—Mr. Foster will ask, if it is the intention of the Government to bring down a vote for the erection of a new building for the meteorological service in Toronto, and, if so, when?

Banff's Aspirations.

Calgary, N.W.T., Feb. 15.—The advocates of Banff as the provincial capital are arguing that one strong reason for the location is that it can be easily defended in case of war. Yesterday C. W. Fisher, M.P.P., of Banff, addressed a letter to Premier Haultain, in which he said: "Although the times are peaceful and Canada desires peace, we ought to consider the possibilities of war. If such an unhappy event should occur, what spot in the west could be so easily defended? A capital on the prairie would be exposed to easy capture, while Banff in a few weeks could be turned into an impregnable fortress."

Gamey Still Draws.

Toronto, Feb. 15.—A banquet will be given at Richard's Landing on Friday night of this week in honor of W. R. Smythe, M.P.P.-elect. R. R. Gamey has received an invitation to be present. Mr. Gamey is also invited to attend a banquet to Charles Calder at Port Perry on Monday night next.

New Police Chief.

Port Arthur, Feb. 15.—Thomas Connor has been appointed chief of police of this town.

RUSS HARD PRESSED.

Officers Driven to Wearing Chinese Shoes—Exposure and Cold Causing Much Disease.

Tokio, Feb. 15.—Reports from Liaoyang place the total Russian force between the Shakhe River and Harbin at 450,000, of which 260,000 are on the fighting line. The condition of the prisoners and of the bodies of the dead indicate that the Russians are short of shoes and winter clothing. Some of the officers are wearing Chinese shoes. It is believed that exposure to the cold is greatly increasing sickness among the Russians. Later estimates of the Russian losses at Heikoutai place the number at 25,000.

Russians Repulsed.

Tokio, Feb. 15.—Manchuria headquarters, reporting yesterday, says: "The Russians shelled and twice attacked Waitao Mountain on Sunday, Feb. 12, but were repulsed.

"Small forces of Russian infantry attacked Lapatai and Hanshantai on Monday, Feb. 13, but were repulsed.

"The Russians continued to construct entrenchments in the neighborhood of Heikoutai."

Sink Them All.

Tokio, Feb. 15.—In discussing a report that colliers had refused to accompany the second Russian Pacific squadron on its way north, a member of the Japanese naval staff said yesterday: "Our commanders will fire and sink any colliers found in company with the Russian warships regardless of their nationality." Vice-Admiral Togo departed from Kure, Feb. 13, his destination being kept secret. It is presumed, however, that he is proceeding south.

Grippenburg Rumors.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 15.—The wildest reports are current concerning General Grippenberg. One is that he has been stopped at Harbin and disgraced. Another says he is at Irkutsk. Nevertheless, the true story appears to be that he is on his way here, although it is noticeable that not a single word is published as to his arrival at intermediate stations.

Strike Off.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 15.—The last visible vestige of the great St. Petersburg strike disappeared yesterday, when the employes of the Putiloff Iron Works returned. In all the works, ballots are being distributed for the election Sunday of representatives on the mixed commission of masters and workmen.

U.S. Spends $150,000 On Fort Niagara.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—The House committee on appropriations yesterday completed and reported the sundry civil appropriations bill of $65,558,990, an increase of $7,718,669 over the appropriations for the current year, and $8,992,467 less than the estimate of the various departments. New items in the bill include: For making boundaries between Alaska and Canada, $65,000; for the enlargement of Fort Niagara, $150,000.

Prominent Methodist Dead.

Newtonville, Feb. 15.—William Rich, a prominent Methodist Church official and superintendent of the Sunday school, died yesterday afternoon of heart failure, following an attack of pneumonia.

THINK IT OVER.

Something You Can See in Any Restaurant or Cafe.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from 60 to 80 years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile?

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous, sickly-looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantities any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels, and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly, and thus gives a much-needed rest and giving an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating, as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have pinned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages, and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

Cured Forty Consumptives

The Post-Graduate Hospital of New York reports that more than forty cases of consumption were cured by that institution alone during the year 1904. Many of these cases were treated at the homes of the patients. This proves conclusively that consumption can be cured and cured at home. Not every one can go to Colorado or spend weeks or months in a hospital, neither of which is necessary, but everybody can get Scott's Emulsion, and that IS necessary. It has been proved that pure, fresh air, light exercise, nourishing food and will come pretty near curing any case of consumption if there is anything to build on. Thousands of people have been restored to health by Scott's Emulsion alone. The advantages of Scott's Emulsion over the plain oil are seen in the ease with which Scott's Emulsion is accepted and retained by the stomach; the quickness with which it passes into the system; its almost immediate benefit to the affected organs, and its absolute uniformity of quality and purity.

The Earl Greys and Kazoots should also dish out fast hockey in their contest.

A Good Record

Last night's game at Markham makes the eleventh league game played by the locals this winter. Of the eleven, 8 have been won, two lost and 1 tied. With the full team on only one has been lost. In the eleven games the locals have scored 100 goals to 50.

Friday's Game.

Friday night's game is exciting a great deal of interest and the biggest crowd of the season will be on hand. The boys are nearing the top and another win over Markham would advance them another step. It will be a hard fought game as a loss for Markham will put them down and out. They may be depended upon to put up the game of their lives and as they have been playing great hockey, a fast exhibition of the great winter game should be given.

The Harbor Won.

Victoria Harbor defeated Thomaston in the latter place on Monday night by 5 goals to 2. The Harbor will in all probability win the round.

It looks like Berlin, Victoria Harbor and Peterborough for the last three.

Getting Near the Finish.

Woodstock has been suspended for playing a ringer team and Goderich and Stratford are still in the running. They will play home and home games, and the winner will meet Berlin. If Peterborough wins from Markham on Friday night Victoria Harbor will play here on Tuesday of next week, and the locals at the Harbor on Friday night. The winner will meet the winner of the western group, probably Berlin, in the finals, the week after next.

Guild League.

There will be two games in the Guild League to-night, Charlotte-st. vs. St. John's and George-st. vs. All Saints'. Both should be good exhibitions.

St. John's Line-Up.

St. John's will line up as follows for their game with All Saints' to-night:—

Goal—Staunton.
Point—Comstock.
Cover Point—Ellis.
Rover—Seymour.
Centre—Morphet.
Right Wing—Ray.
Left Wing—Weir.

The following team will represent George-st. Guild against All Saints' to-night:—Goal, Metheral; point, Wood; cover point, Humbers; centre, Mann; rover, Davidson; left wing, Robinson; right wing, Best. The team will meet at the Y.M.C.A. at 7.45.

City League Executive

The executive of the City League will meet this evening at the Y.M.C.A. at 7.30 o'clock. This is a very important meeting and all the clubs are asked to send representatives.

On All Saints' rink to-night Charlotte-st. and St. John's Guild teams will play at 7.15.

CURLING.

There will be a meeting in the rink parlors to-night at 7.30 to select the rinks for Toronto.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES

Record of Latest Happenings in the Town and Surrounding District.

—St. Andrew's Guards will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A.

—The official declaration of the vote in East Durham on January 25 gives Mr. Preston, Conservative, 792 majority.

—H. Wilmot Young's Big Bijou Comedy Company is announced to appear in Bradburn's Opera House all next week.

—A meeting of the curlers will be held at the rink to-night at 7.30 o'clock to select the rinks for the game which will be played with the Queen City club in Toronto on Friday.

—The Review is requested to state that the sum of $32.00, contributed in Peterborough in aid of the Evangelical and Colportage Mission of Algoma and the Northwest, is gratefully acknowledged by Geo. Buskin, missionary.

—The congregational prayer meeting of St. Andrew's church will be held this evening at eight o'clock. Subject, "Personal Evangelism." The ladies will meet at the close of the prayer meeting.

—At the evening service to-night in St. Luke's the delegates to the Sunday School convention will give their report. Teachers of St. Luke's Sunday School are especially asked to be present.

—Several gentlemen were seen arguing the other day as to whether the wood pile on the corner of Dublin and George-st. protruded on the street line or not. Probably the street commissioner may be able to settle the matter.

—It is said that a special train will be run from North Bay to Peterborough, on Friday, February 24, to enable the citizens of that town to attend the consecration in St. Peter's Cathedral of Rev. D. J. Scollard, the new Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie.

—A four-year-old son of John McIntosh, merchant, of Belleville, was last evening bitten by two dogs, which had him down on the snow, and would probably have killed him had not two ladies driven the brutes off. The child was severely bitten about the head.

—In connection with the Revival Meetings now being held in the Salvation Army barracks, a brigade has been formed called the Service-of-song Brigade. They will give their first special service on Thursday night. The title of the service is "Two Golden Lillies." It is a very touching story of the sea, showing how a little girl saved her father's life and nearly sacrificed her own in doing so. The story is interspersed with heart stirring solos, duets and quartettes. It will be very interesting. Admission free. All welcome.

PRETTY PAGEANT BROCK ST. RINK

Foresters' Carnival Proved to be Decided Attraction.

MANY SKATERS IN COSTUME

Strange and Beautiful Figures on the Icy Arena—Gay Decorations—Those Who Were in Costume—Most Successful Event in Years.

The Brock-st. rink was transformed last evening and a pageant of strange and beautiful figures flitted about, such as is seen there only once a year.

The occasion was the carnival held annually by Court Peterborough, No. 29, C.O.F. This is always looked upon as one of the events of the season and is eagerly anticipated, especially by the young people.

Last evening's event was one of the most successful ever held by Court Peterborough. There were an unusually large number of entries, a very large crowd of spectators and the costumes were far superior to anything displayed here before at a carnival.

The rink was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting. This was the work of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons and was most carefully carried out. The ice was in splendid condition and the proceedings were enlivened by delightful music discoursed liberally by the 57th Regiment Band.

The scene was a most beautiful and striking one, costumes of all varieties and colors were displayed and many original designs were shown, especially in the comic lines. Zulu Chiefs skated hand in hand with Japanese Ladies; Court Dames were found in company with Weary Willies and other varieties of the wandering profession; Boot Blacks and Organ Grinders jostled Courtiers and Noblemen. There was the usual profusion of Night, Day, Stars, Japanese Ladies, Tramps, etc., but many of the costumes were new and highly amusing.

Folowing is the list of costumes—

CULTIVATION OF MUSICAL TALENT

What is Being Done by Mrs. Morrow's Chorus Class.

FULLY 80 PUPILS ATTEND

Chorus Work is Progressing Admirably—Pupils Show Marked Ability—The Compositions Taken Up.

Teachers of literature lay down, for the guidance of their pupils, a very elementary, but, at the same time, a very comprehensive rule, which runs as follows — Persistent study of the best models, frequent association with the best speakers, and repeated attempts to imitate ideals thus placed before them, will undoubtedly improve the literary taste, and develop all the faculties, emotional and intellectual, to which good literature can appeal. A similar rule may be enunciated for the benefit of students in music, a rule which will not be disputed by sound critics in the art. Examination of the best musical compositions, and association with skilled and experienced teachers and with advanced pupils, will, if coupled with determined effort to excel, improve the taste and ear, and develop musical aptitudes which lie hidden in every man and woman who possesses a human soul.

The advantages here referred to will certainly be realized by the pupils of Mrs. Morrow's chorus class. All the conditions of the rule are fulfilled during the classes, and hence the good results mentioned will undoubtedly follow. The pupils perceive this, and they are weekly adding new members to their number. It is pleasing indeed to see so many take a deep interest in a work which cannot fail to be highly beneficial to all. Fully 80 pupils attended, and took an active part in, the class which was held last evening in the T.A.S. hall. This is truly encouraging to all who are concerned in the success of the class; but to none should it be more encouraging than to the members themselves. Their number is such as to inspire courage. They know from the large membership, that the work is appreciated by many, that it has the approval of others who cannot attend the classes and consequently they are incited to persevere in this study, the rudiments of which, it is true, like the rudiments of every art and science, might at first repel rather than attract.

The chorus work is progressing admirably, although there are among the members, some who have not yet sufficient courage to give full effect to their voices. The choruses now being rehearsed are the Hallelujah chorus from Handel's Messiah, and The Three Knights. Although only a few practices have been devoted to these pieces, the musical effect resulting from the combination of the various parts is pleasing indeed, and is quite satisfactory to both teacher and pupils.

Last night's class resembled more closely a first rate recital, than an elementary drill for beginners in music. However, both the recital and the elementary instruction were combined in such a manner as to keep up the interest of the pupils, and at the same time give to them the necessary training.

Miss Cline sang the Staccato Polka. Her singing proved that she has long since passed from the ranks of junior pupils. Few in the class ever heard such a difficult piece sung or even attempted, and certainly none ever heard a difficult piece sung so well. For an encore she sang the Spanish Bolero.

Miss Philipps, Miss Harris and Mr. Dawson also contributed to the evening's programme. It is no flattery to state that the share which they took was greatly pleasing to the class.

Some of their tones it is true, have not the ring or the sweet melody to be found in the voices of older singers, but the richness of many of their notes and the fulness which they give to them are a proof that training will shortly make them singers, who can appear, without fear of unfavorable criticism, before the most cultured musical audience.

As a crowning number to the evening's programme, Mrs. Morrow and Miss Cline played, at the request of some of the pupils, an instrumental duett entitled Grand Valsede Concert by Gottschalk. Both parts were it is almost needless to state, played in excellent time and with a correctness which bars criticism.

The class will be held on Wednesday next, but on Saturday of this week, the members of the sight reading class, both men and women, are requested to meet at 8 p.m.

Too much praise cannot be given to the members who take a very active interest in the class. The success already achieved is due, of course, chiefly to Mrs. Morrow, who is working so energetically for advancement of the pupils: but to Misses Coleman, Cahill and Haskett, credit is also to be given. Their work for the success of the class, deserves recognition on the part of the pupils, who, in turn, show their full appreciation of the services rendered by the three young ladies mentioned.

CHANCE FOR TEACHERS

Scholarships Offered for Three Months' Course at Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—The Minister of Education is prepared to grant fourteen scholarships to the value of $50 in the case of each woman, and $75 in the case of each man, to teachers taking a three months' course, commencing on April 4, at the Macdonald Institute, Guelph. An allowance also at the rate of five cents per mile for the actual distance from the teacher's school is offered from the Macdonald Rural Schools Fund, together with an allowance of $25 to every approved teacher who has taken a full course satisfactorily. Candidates are expected to hold at least second-class Provincial certificates, and to be recommended by the public school inspector. In making the selection, while the qualifications of each applicant will be the main factor, an effort will be made to have various parts of the Province represented. Courses to be taken at the Macdonald Institute for the teachers selected will have special reference to nature study, and such other subjects as will fit them to take charge of schools having school gardens, and to become teachers in consolidated schools. For any further information regarding the courses of study and work of the Macdonald Institute, inquiries should be made of the principal of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. Applications should be received by Mr. John Millar, Deputy Minister of Education, accompanied by the inspector's recommendations, not later than March 10th.

There is nothing like Sunlight Soap for Household Utensils.

When you have to use hard water it is not an easy matter to wash household utensils. To do good washing you should have good soap and soft water (rain water). If you use hard water you must have good soap, and the best soap you can get is Sunlight Soap because it softens the hard water and makes a copious creamy lather. The Daily Review

THURSDAY, FEB. 16, 1905.

LIFE IN THE WEST.

An interesting section of the report for 1903-4 of the Deputy Minister of the Department of the Interior gives the nationality of the homesteaders who made entry during the year. These were 26,073 in number, representing 69,381 people. Their origin is given as follows—

B. N. America	6,223
Great Britain	4,664
United States	7,730
Austria-Hungary	2,228
Russia	736
Germany	768
Sweden-Norway	542
Denmark and Iceland	257
France	154

There were also smaller numbers of Italians, Roumanians, Swiss, Belgians, Syrians, Hollanders, Bulgarians, Australians and three Chinese and one Persian. Besides these there there were 2,487 persons who had made previous entry, who were probably divided as to nationality much as the new-comers were. The Canadians include 525 returned from the United States. In round numbers the homesteaders may be classified as 12,000 British subjects and 14,000 foreigners, the latter including the 7,730 from the United States, who have been generally trained under laws and institutions similar to those of Canada, and about the assimilation of whom there is a question. Considering what has been done in the United States, and in some parts of Ontario, it does not seem that there will be any difficulty, if the present proportions are maintained, in the absorption of the "foreigners" into the mass of the Canadian people. The Germans, Danes and Norweigans adapt themselves naturally to the conditions they find on this continent, and become part of the people among whom they dwell. The conditions are slightly different in the case of the Austria-Hungarians and the Russians, the latter of whom include many Doukhobors and Mennonites, who to some extent are kept apart by religious as well as racial inclinations. It is noted, though, that some of the Doukhobors are breaking away from the communities into which they at first divided themselves, and establishing themselves and families on individual homesteads. If they give way to the conditions it should be hard for settlers of other nationalities to resist. The homestead figures differ somewhat from those of the immigration officials. The better indicate, however, the probable character of the future population. The man in the town moves often; the man on the land is a fixed influence.

PEN POINTS.

Mexico consumed 3,456,000,000 cigarettes last year. This beats the average small boy to a stand still.

A New Yorker has offered to give $1,000 to charity if it can be proved that any married man is perfectly happy.

The cost of living is increasing The Ontario Liquor Dealers' Association want a law prohibiting free lunches.

Well, there is one consolation. If it is a bit chilly in Peterborough it is the same in every place else in this fair land.

Some people are complaining that there is no more room for snow in their back yards. Have they tried throwing it over their neighbor's fences?

The snow is so deep in Prince Edward Island that the meeting of the Legislature has been postponed twice. The members may have to get there on snow shoes or forfeit their salaries.

Premier Parent, of Quebec, is going to F-I-G-H-T. There was a premier in Ontario who recently declared that he was going to do the same thing. Needless to mention the result.

In connection with the persistent attacks made upon Rev. J. C. Davidson by an anonymous writer in an evening contemporary, it would be just as well for the author to be brave enough to sign his name. To assail a respected and prominent resident of Peterborough while hiding behind a nom de plume is, to say the least, an indication of weakness and cowardice.

Race suicide is becoming a serious question in Boston, judging by statistics. The Boston Herald says.—

The lowest birth-rate was in Ward Ten, 1.2 of the ward population. It would be unfortunate if all the wards had such a record, for the deaths were considerably in excess of the births—321 to 284. The sociologist might find food for reflection in the circumstance that Ward Ten is one of the principal apartment house districts of the city. The apartment house discourages children as a family element, and with them the birth rate.

The annual report of the Department of Railways and Canals shows the total departmental expenditure for the past fiscal year to be $15,368,071. The total Federal expenditure on railways since Confederation to July 1st last was $282,240,763 and on canals $108,313,554. On June 30th last there were 19,611 miles of completed railway in the Dominion, an increase of 534 miles. The gross earnings of the year amounted to $100,219,436, an increase of $4,154,909; and the working expenses aggregated $74,563,162 an increase of $7,081,636, leaving the net earnings $52,656,274, a decrease of $2,926,729. The number of passengers carried was 23,640,765 an increase of 92,023, and the freight traffic to 48,097,519 tons, an increase of 724,102. The total number of miles run by trains was 61,312,002, an increase of 929,082.

Already trouble is arising over the deathbed appointments of the late Ross government. A chief turnkey was appointed for the Central Prison and a jailer appointed for Essex county, both in contravention of the rule that in each case respectively the appointment shall be on the recommendation of the governor of the county. In neither instance was the nominating official consulted, probably on account of the hurry with which the appointments were made, and in each case the officials have refused to accept the credentials of the appointee. Premier Whitney will no doubt cut the Gordian knot by cancelling the appointments, not only in these cases, but in every other instance where Ross undertook to distribute patronage which had ceased to belong to him.—Ottawa Citizen

PHYSICIANS EVERYWHERE

Know the Value of Pyramid Pile Cure.

Gratitude alone prompts me to testify to the efficacy of Pyramid Pile Cure. Last March I bought a dollar package at the drug store, which cured me of bleeding piles, and I was a sufferer from them for eight years; but I had not been troubled with them since, until last September, when I gave birth to a baby girl, and after that I had a very severe case of protruding piles, which a trained nurse said was the worst case she ever saw, and my doctor told me to get Pyramid Pile Cure again, which I did and was completely cured in three days. I have not had piles of any kind since, and it is all owing to this wonderful remedy. My nurse took a box, which I was glad to be able to give her, for I know she will be able to help lots of suffering people whom I could never see or know.

"I recommend 'Pyramids' whenever I know of any one suffering as I did. It gives me great pleasure to be able to say I am entirely cured, which my doctor says is true. I say God Bless Pyramid Pile Cure." From a former great sufferer, Mrs. F. Anectt, 1206 Unity-st., Frankford, Philadelphia, Pa.

This remedy, which is sold by druggists generally, in fifty cent and dollar packages, is in a suppository form, is applied directly to the parts affected and performs its work quietly and painlessly. Its value is evidenced by the testimony given above, and we urge all sufferers to buy a package now and give it a trial to-night. Accept no substitutes and remember that there is no remedy "just as good." A little book on the Cause and Cure of Piles is published by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., and will be sent free to any address.

IT IS DANGEROUS

to neglect Catarrh. Severe and fatal cases of Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Consumption, all develop from what many people term an insignificant attack of Catarrh. The mind becomes dull and stupified, you cannot think clearly, you cannot sleep well. All food tastes alike, your senses of taste, touch, hearing and seeing are all affected. Catarrh envelopes your entire system. It is a dangerous malady, why delay treatment. Nip it in the bud with Fruit is Nature's Laxative.

Fruit contains certain principles which act like a charm on the liver—and keep the whole system well and strong. But these principles in the fruit juices are too weak to have any marked effect on the internal organs. The value of lies in the secret process by which they are made. The fruit juices are so combined that they have an entirely different effect from fresh fruit. Their action is the action of fruit greatly intensified. They have a marked effect on the liver—toning it up—making it active. "Fruit-a-tives" are, without doubt, the only complete cure for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles.

Fruit-a-tives

or Fruit Liver Tablets

AWFUL HORRORS CAUSED BY WAR

130,439 Russian Officers and Men Afflicted.

PASSED THROUGH HOSPITALS

Killed in Battle Estimated Between 40,000 and 50,000—Recoveries From Wounds Show Very High Average—Details of Russia's Enormous Losses.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 16.—The official returns for the first year of the war, not including the Port Arthur statistics, show that 130,439 officers and men passed through the hospitals going north, of which number 1,710 officers were wounded and 1,308 were sick; 52,900 men were wounded and 73,561 were sick; 4,007 subsequently died in hospitals, 6,473 wounded and 11,240 sick were invalided; 9,429 returned to Russia and 21,554 are still in hospitals. Over 77,000, therefore, presumably returned to the ranks. These figures do not include the number of those killed on the field of battle nor probably those slightly injured. The showing is considered to be remarkably good. The proportion dying in hospitals is very low, the total loss to the active army in wounded and sick being a little over 50,000, of whom almost half have still a chance of returning to the ranks. The other half will be invalided or returned to Russia. The killed in battle are estimated to have numbered between 40,000 and 50,000.

Fired All Day.

Mukden, Feb. 16.—The Japanese began a heavy cannonade Tuesday afternoon on the Russian right flank, and the firing continued all through the day. It is thought the Japanese are preparing for a general attack. The Russian guns are replying.

Russians Take the Aggressive.

Tokio, Feb. 15.—(2 p.m.)—The Russians have begun an extensive cavalry movement against Field Marshal Oyama's extreme left. Last night they were attempting to cross the Hun River west of Liaoyang with 8000 horsemen. The operation began west of Chitaitsu.

One force of cavalry stole into Lentanshi and simultaneously another cavalry force approached Tacha, which is situated 12 miles southwest of Chitaitsu and 27 miles west of Liaoyang. Nine thousand cavalry with artillery approached the river a mile below Tacha and attempted to cross at 6 o'clock in the evening, advancing on Heikoutai (Pokewtai).

The shelling of Oyama's centre continues.

Russians Drive Japs.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 15.—Lt.-Gen. Sakharoff telegraphs that the Russians artillery, Feb. 13, destroyed the buildings and walls of Nangasi, from which the Japanese had been bombarding the Russian trenches. The Japanese were driven out. In regard to the attack on the bridge between Guapin and Funtsiatun, Feb. 12, Gen. Sakharoff says the Japanese force comprised 100 cavalry and 200 Chinese bandits. Russian frontier guards drove off the attackers, who subsequently destroyed a few rails, blew up a telegraph pole southward of the bride and then fled. The Russians were reinforced and pursued the Japanese 25 miles.

Special despatches from Mukden report the wiping out of an entire detachment of Japanese cavalry, which had destroyed the railway bridge between Mukden and Harbin. Russian cavalry overtook the raiders who refused quarter and fought until the last man was killed.

One Shell Told.

Russian Headquarters, Huan Mountain, Manchuria, Feb. 15.—During the Japanese bombardment of Poutiloff (Lone Tree) Hill, a projectile from a siege gun entered an underground hut and tore off the head of a lieutenant and wounded a colonel and two staff captains, who were playing cards. In front of Kondani on the right flank, the Russians are trying the effect of concentrated siege and mortar batteries, with good results, firing as many as 20 mortars simultaneously.

Russians Rejoicing.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 16.—The departure of Admiral Nebogatoff's division of four battleships, one cruiser and two auxiliary cruisers from Libau yesterday to reinforce Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron in the far east is a source of gratification to the admiralty in view of the difficulties caused by the strike. The point of rendezvous with Rojestvensky is not stated, but it is understood that it is beyond the Indian Ocean, Admiral Rojestvensky being instructed not to delay into the monsoon period the resumption of his cruise. Along the Hun River the booming of heavy guns is sounding the overture of hostilities that are likely to be opened within a short time.

Third Pacific Has Sailed.

Libau, Feb. 15.—The third Pacific squadron sailed at noon to-day. Grand Duke Alexis and Admiral Biriloff inspected the squadron before its departure. The icebreaker Ermak cleared the way. The battleship Vladimir Monomach was the first to start and the others were towed out in turn. All the vessels were out by nightfall.

Child Fatally Scalded.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Louise Gracey, the 2½-year-old daughter of J. J. Gracey, 7 Maplewood place, was fatally scalded last night. She had been sitting at the tea table and noticing her father's tea cup empty, attempted to get the tea pot off the stove. Her mother, seeing the danger, uttered a startled exclamation and the little girl let go the handle, but the kettle upset its contents over her chest, body and arms. Dr. Harris was called, but his services were in vain.

Another Bonanza Diamond.

Johannesburg, Transvaal, Feb. 16.—A diamond weighing 334 carats has been discovered in the vicinity of the place where the largest diamond ever unearthed was recently found.

Lew Wallace Dead.

Crawfordville, Ind., Feb. 16.—General Lew Wallace died last night at 9.10 o'clock. He will be remembered as the author of Ben Hur.

Conservatives Get Together.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—The Conservative caucus held yesterday under the chairmanship of J. G. H. Bergeron. The following were elected whips: Chief, George Taylor; Ontario, Messrs. Ingram and Lancaster; Quebec, Messrs. Worthington and Leonard; Maritime Provinces, Messrs. Ganong and Lafurgey; the west, Dr. Roches. Sir Mackenzie Bowell remained in his room in the Senate yesterday morning and did not attend the Conservative caucus.

Frail Girl's Folly.

London, Feb. 16.—A young woman arrived here from Toronto Tuesday night and, alighting from her railway coach, she looked about in expectation of meeting some friend. Being unacquainted, she enquired of the police, and her story awakened the suspicions of the officers, with the result that a young man who had been living here for some time was placed under arrest.

It was found that the prisoner had decoyed the young woman to this city, having answered an advertisement of hers, and promising to engage her as a nurse. The fellow admits his purpose. He had no need for a nurse. The police were unable to lay a charge against the man, who gladly paid the young woman's expenses in her trip to this city.

Mr. Tarte On Separate Schools.

Montreal, Feb. 16.—Although Hon. Mr. Tarte says he does not speak from the book, yet he thinks the Conservative party may oppose the policy of separate schools for the new provinces. The ex-Minister writes to La Patrie that the party of which Mr. Borden is leader receives its greatest strength from the Province of Ontario. "I would not be surprised," he adds, "if the Conservative Parliamentary party from Ontario should pronounce itself in the name of provincial autonomy against legislation that would force a separate school system in the new provinces. It would no doubt sympathize with Ontario in this matter." Mr. Tarte says Sir Wilfrid Laurier will bring down the bill.

Doherty's Organs Burn.

Clinton, Feb. 16.—About 5.30 o'clock yesterday morning fire was discovered in the machinery hall of Doherty's organ factory. The building, which was the largest solid brick building in the place, and was heavily stocked with organ cases in process of manufacture, was completely gutted. The company's fire equipment confined the fire to the one building. The loss, which is about $30,000, is fully covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Sportsmen Protest.

Peterboro, Feb. 16.—The action of the Ross Administration in granting a 21 years' franchise of shooting privileges on a portion of Rice Lake to Toronto parties is being severely criticized here. Chief Paudash of the Hiawatha Reserve is somewhat surprised at the report, his statement being that in an interview which he recently had with the authorities in Toronto he was given to understand that no exclusive leases would be made. The Keene Gun Club have placed a petition in circulation, which has already been largely signed, asking the Government to grant no such privileges. The position of sportsmen who have hunted and fished on Rice Lake for years is one of protest against the action of the late Government.

Proposal to Pension the Aged.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—E. Guss Porter has given notice of a resolution declaring:

"That the time is opportune and the necessities of the case require that provision should be made by act of Parliament to provide a pension fund for the relief of old, infirm and disabled citizens of Canada, who are unable to support themselves, and for distribution of accumulations on such fund amongst such deserving poor as will come within the restrictions and provisions of will."

Such a law already obtains in Germany, Switzerland and New Zealand.

Lever's Y-Z (Wise Head) Disinfectant Soap Powder is a boon to any home. It disinfects and cleans at the same time.

ROBERT JAFFRAY RESIGNS.

The Appointment of His Successor Not Yet Announced.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Robert Jaffray, chairman of the Temiskaming Railway Commission, has sent his resignation to Premier Whitney. The Premier received the resignation yesterday afternoon and told the press that he had asked Mr. Jaffray to hold office for a few days until his successor was appointed. The appointment of a successor to Mr. Jaffray has not yet been considered. Edward Gurney of Toronto, M. J. O'Brien of Renfrew, D. F. Folger of Kingston and F. E. Leonard of London are the other members of the Commission, and it is regarded as extremely likely that Mr. Gurney will be the new chairman. Mr. Jaffray's letter is as follows:

Hon J. P. Whitney, M.P.P., Premier and Attorney-General of Ontario, Toronto:

Dear Sir,—I have respectfully to tender my resignation as chairman of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission, to take effect at once, or when you have had time to reorganize the Commission. Allow me to take the liberty to say that while I took the position unwillingly (having already enough to occupy my attention) I have become very much interested in the great possibilities that are opening up for Ontario and the Dominion in that new district, and hope that your Government may see its way to follow up the development with credit to yourselves and great benefit to the province and Dominion.

I am, yours very respectfully,

(Signed) Robert Jaffray.

Feb 13, 1905.

Date of Legislature's Opening Uncertain.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—A brief meeting of the Provincial Cabinet was held yesterday afternoon and at its close Premier Whitney said the only business put through was the passing of a number of company charters. The Ministers were not all present, but a full meeting will be held at noon to-day.

Asked when the Legislature would meet Hon. Mr. Whitney said: "That question is miles off yet."

Fatal Shooting in Court.

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 16.—Owen Leadholtz yesterday was ordered released from jail by the coroner who conducted an inquest over the body of Miss May Brown. The young woman was killed and her mother seriously and probably fatally wounded by Leadholtz in a shooting affray in a justice court on Monday. Leadholtz had been brought into court upon criminal charges by Miss Brown. She was accompanied by her mother, and when the court announced a postponment of the case mother and daughter began firing at Leadholtz, who returned the fire, killing the young woman and injuring the mother. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Four Die From Gas.

Cleveland, Feb. 16.—Four persons were found dead in a small house on Central avenue yesterday. The dead: Charles Heller, Josephine Heller, his wife; George Nolan, a son-in-law; May Nolan, wife of George Nolan, and daughter of the Hellers. According to the statement of neighbors there had been much discord in the Heller house and that Mrs. Heller had recently said, "If things don't go better, death will come to all of us."

After completing an autopsy on the body of Heller yesterday afternoon Dr. Reed said he believed death had been caused by the inhalation of gas.

SAD MESSAGE TO FAIR OPERATOR

Former Bobcaygeon Telegrapher Learns of Lover's Death.

PATHETIC STORY OVER WIRE

Meaning of St. Valentine's Day Message—Happy Festival Was the Occasion of Profound Sorrow—Romance of the Telegraph—Amorous Conversations in Dots and Dashes.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—St. Valentine's Day was anything but a joy to one of the lady operators in the Great Northwestern office on Wellington-st. Indeed, this young lady—who in this must be nameless—found the happy festival an occasion for the profoundest sorrow. Where others rejoiced over innocent gifts she was sad over the sorrowful tidings that her lover, to whom in a few months more she would have been married, was dead.

ROMANCE OF THE TELEGRAPH.

The telegraph sounder has been responsible for many of the prettiest romances of modern life, not only on the prairie and in fiction, but in the actual everyday life of the big city. It is partly the romantic interest attaching to the telegraph that has attracted so many girls into the business. The fascination of talking over the wire to a man she has never seen, perhaps never will see, has made the click of the sounder a siren's call to many a girl. Many a lady operator has struck up a life-long acquaintance with an operator somewhere on her beat whose first intimation to her was in dots and dashes. Many of these acquaintances have developed into friendships; not a few into marriages. And on St. Valentine's Day many have been the unwritten valentines, innocent of printer's ink or decorative art, sent over the wires by young people whose first acquaintance came over the sounder.

Experienced operators aver that the touch of a correspondent becomes as familiar as his handwriting. An operator who for years had been in Montreal, for instance, and suddenly shifted to Winnipeg, could be located instantly by the sound of his "handwriting" over the wire.

What wonder that from repeated correspondences over the wire a young man often gets an insight into the character of a young lady on his "beat" that he might not get even in letters? The next step is a few dots and dashes requesting an exchange of photographs. And even without the formality of letters an engagement may be consummated.

THE TALE OF A MAY DAY.

It was on a bright May day of 1904 when Miss L—— came to the office of the G.N.W. She had been an operator in the north country, somewhere round Bobcaygeon. As she was an expert operator she had no difficulty getting a desk in the head office. She was put on the Woodstock line. The busy click and hum of the big office with its scores of impatient instruments, all clattering at once, was a vast change from the lonesome quiet of the little station in the north country. It was something of a new world to Miss L——; less of nature but more of life; no longer the call of the frog in the spring day, and the shouts of the village children in the gloaming; but the impetuous rush of a city and the nervous intensity of a big city office with its tentacles on almost every town and hamlet in the country.

Perhaps a telegraph office with much noise in it as an average factory is a strange place for a girl to fall in love. But there were already several girls in the office who had on their beats gentlemen friends they had never seen. Some had even got married as the result of such intimacies.

A CALL FROM WOODSTOCK.

Miss L.'s fate spoke to her over the wire from Woodstock. Just what was the first message she ever received over that wire even she has probably forgotten; and it may have been weeks before she had been able to distinguish the click of the sound or when "Mr. C." was at the other end. But there came a time during last summer when the click began to mean more to Miss L. than any other sound in the world. Sometimes there were lull's in the day's work when with fifty machines rattling about her in that big room she had time just to gossip over the wire with Woodstock—when as yet she had not seen Mr. C.

Photographs were exchanged. This was before October last. Last October, Mr. C. came to Toronto. In the office of the G. N. W. he was formally introduced to the young lady who for six months he had known over the wire. He stayed but a short time and returned to Woodstock. The "little birds" who are often seen about a big telegraph office whisper that there was already another engagement.

STRANGE SOUND AT THE CLICKER.

Weeks ago there came a message that Mr. C. was ill—but it was another operator's hand that sent it. Day after day came the strange click of the sounder, how different from the original none but Miss L. could know. A message came that Mr. C. was worse. Two weeks ago Miss L.'s desk was vacant for the first time. She had gone to Woodstock. In a day or two she was back; to those who knew her best less cheerful than before, but still hopeful. And day after day came messages with all their various story of hope and fear—sometimes, one, more often the other.

THE SAD VALENTINE.

St. Valentine's Day was coming near. Would he be able to send a valentine—the first? Bright and early Miss L. was at her desk, listening to the sounder, waiting between messages for some word from her lover. The morning wore away—no word as yet. Other girls in the office had already received valentine messages. Miss L. could tell by their faces. To thousands of people the world over was as full of joy as it had been to her but a few months before.

Eleven o'clock. The sounder at Miss L.'s desk clicked out like this .. . —.. .. . .—. — .. . . —.. .. .. .—. .. —.. ——. and the reading of it was "C died this morning."

Since yesterday noon Miss L's desk in the G. N. W. offices has been vacant. She is today in Woodstock. And to her the world just now is mostly "the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still."

Permanent Cure For Bronchitis

"My second daughter was troubled with bronchitis from the age of three weeks. Often times I thought she would choke to death. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine brought relief and further treatment made a thorough cure. This trouble used to come back from time to time the cure is now permanent." — Mrs. Richmond Withrow, Shubenacadie, Hants Co., N. S.

FURNISHING THE Y.W.C.A.

Citizens Will be Given an Opportunity to Assist in the Work.

The House Committee of the Y.W.C.A. desire to announce that as the building is nearing completion it is necessary that arrangements be made for the furnishing of the rooms.

The committee feel that very many of the citizens would like to assist in this matter. The custom in all public institutions is to have iron bedsteads, and in order to have uniformity in this particular, the committee intend purchasing these wholesale.

It is almost impossible to specify the articles required, but anything in the line of house furnishing will be thankfully received.

Donations in money or goods may be sent to the Y.W.C.A. rooms, over the Bank of Commerce, at as early a date as possible.

BASKET SOCIAL

Under Auspices of Queen Alexandra Lodge A. O. F. Last Night.

The Basket Social held under the auspices of the Queen Alexandra Circle A. O. F. in the Sons of England hall last evening was very largely attended and was decidedly a success in every way. The programme was a most delightful one and the audience thoroughly enjoyed it.

Mr. W. J. Johnston occupied the chair and opened the programme with a brief address. Miss Johnston rendered a delightful piano solo which met with much applause. A recitation by Miss Lizzie Smith was well received. Master W. Allen contributed a well-rendered solo. Miss Agnes La Vasseur gave a piano selection in a captivating manner. Miss Maud Titterson delighted the audience with a solo. Miss Alma La Vasseur again contributed to the programme with a recitation. Miss Edna Pratt gave a well-executed piano solo. A recitation by little Miss Lulu Walsh proved highly enjoyable. A splendid duett by the Misses Ohnsty closed the programme.

At the conclusion about forty baskets contributed by the ladies were sold at auction and their contents heartily discussed. Messrs. Morris and Ganey proved capable wielders of the hammer and as a result of their efforts a very handsome sum was realised.

Healthy and Vigorous

Mr. John Shelton, the well known bridge builder of 101 Sherwood St., Ottawa, states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney and liver derangements brought on by exposure, and find them better than any pill or medicine I ever used. They cleansed my system and made me feel healthy and vigorous, and better in every way." 8

CONCERNING FREIGHT RATES

Some Advantages Which This Town Has Over Lindsay.

In a letter written to the press Mr. Robert Kennedy of Lindsay, calls attention to the fact that Peterborough has some advantages over that town in the matter of freight rates and he particularises sugar. He says that on quantities less than carloads, there is a difference of 11c. per 100 lbs. in favor of Peterboro, as compared with Lindsay; on car lots there is a difference of 3c. per 100 lbs. in favor of Peterboro as compared with Lindsay. The following are the freight rates charged to customers in different towns on less than carload lots, viz. Toronto 9c. per 100 lbs.; Hamilton, 9c. per 100 lbs.; Peterboro, 11c. per 100 pounds; Lindsay, 22c. per 100 lbs.; St. Thomas, 21c. per 100 lbs. Guelph, 16c. per 100 lbs.; Owen Sound 16c. per 100 lbs.; Galt, 20c. per 100 lbs.

SALARIES OF MINISTERS

(Toronto News)

The Peterborough Examiner strongly opposes increase in the salaries of Provincial Ministers. It argues that the demands upon Ministers for entertainment and subscriptions are exaggerated, that no Minister is bound to entertain, and that $200 a year would cover necessary subscriptions for charitable and other purposes. We find it quite impossible to accept The Examiner's conclusions. Our own opinion is that $200 a year would not generally cover political subscriptions alone, while the annual cost of nursing a constituency is probably nearer $600 than $200. Then a Minister who does not entertain must refuse to be entertained. This means exclusion from the social life of the community, from clubs, and from all that intimate comprehension of social and financial influences which is of great value to a Minister who has to administer public affairs and meet upon equal terms the representative men of the country. Many a single social entertainment provided by the Ministers who have just withdrawn from office probably cost $200, and if only the men of private means may entertain, they are enabled to crowd better men to the wall, and, if unscrupulous, to build for their own advancement upon a judicious use of their wealth for social purposes. The truth is that if we are to maintain the dignity of public life and make Ministerial office desirable to the men best fitted for high political places, we must give such men the means to live as becomes their responsible positions. Otherwise the political calling will be rated low, only mediocre men will enter the Parliaments, and the public standards will steadily deteriorate.

POLICE COURT NOTES

James McGee Get Six Months—Fred Hubble Discharged.

Their Worships H. Rush and V. Eastwood presided at the Police Court this morning.

Jas McGee, a deaf mute, was given six months in the Central for vagrancy. The man appeared on a charge of vagrancy five or six weeks ago and was ordered to leave town. A few days after he was again charged with vagrancy and was sentenced to one month in gaol. He got out on Sunday and was found drunk yesterday. Last night he grew quite angry, and although he couldn't say anything he managed to make his displeasure manifest. The slate he used in dressing himself came flying through the barred door, and neatly picked off the electric lamp in the corridor. The bucket in the cell was the next to suffer. After that, when he could do no more damage, McGee quieted down again.

Fred Hubble, charged with vagrancy, was discharged, although he wanted to be sent down for six months.

DELEGATES' REPORT

Dr. Walter Smith's addresses were the features of the gathering, and greatly interested the hundred or more delegates. Rev. C. H. Marsh, of Lindsay, also gave an able address at the convention on "The Relation of the Sunday School to Missions." The local delegates were highly pleased with the success of the gathering.

REASONS FOR PETERBORO'S INCORPORATION AS CITY

There is Much to Gain Nothing to Lose.

INCREASED EXPENSE SMALL

Present is Most Opportune Time to Take the Step—Town is Applying for Special Legislation—Arguments in Favor of Immediate Incorporation.

At the Council meeting on the evening of Monday, 5th inst., the Legal Committee presented a report recommending that the Town Solicitor be instructed to give notice of the intention of the Council to apply for legislation for various purposes. To have the town incorporated as a city was one of these. Although the mere notice of such application is not binding, it would appear, on consideration of the circumstances, that the action recommended by the Legal Committee would be taken at a most opportune time.

At present all towns over 10,000 of population may seek incorporation as a city by applying for special act to that end. Places of 15,000 or over, however, only require the proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor to make them full-fledged cities, but it is required that a special census be taken in confirmation of the size of population. Peterborough's last assessment roll gives a population of 14,175, and there are not a few people who take the stand that the town should be allowed to grow into a city automatically, as they say; that is, that no steps be taken towards incorporation until the 15,000 mark has been reached. One does not require to have a great deal of optimism to prophecy that such a period in the town's history is not very far distant—else present signs are very deceptive. But, the question might be asked, what is there to be gained in waiting?

The argument of economy is very effectively met when it is considered that the town's application for incorporation at the present time may be included among other matters which, of necessity, will be specially legislated for, the total cost not being over $125. To take a special census, however, such as would be required should no action be taken until the population is 15,000 or more, would undoubtedly necessitate an expenditure somewhat larger than that now proposed. Apart from this, it is well worth while for the Council to now take the step that will give the town the advantages of a city at as early a date as possible. It has been often pointed out, and that quite truthfully, that there is much to be gained, and little, if anything to be lost.

SOME ADVANTAGES.

In the first place, it would not make a great difference to Peterborough, because, although all but very few of the towns are part of the counties for municipal purposes the same as villages are, Peterborough separated from the county in 1860, and then set up housekeeping on its own account. It does not seem, however, that incorporation as a city would make any difference in the relation with the county in regard to administration of justice, and other matters which are jointly managed now.

As to the changes in the form of government, there are, so far as observation shows, practically only two. The police force will be under the control of Police Commissioners, consisting of the County Judge, Mayor, and the Police Magistrate. The Police Commissioners would also have authority to license and regulate junk stores, livery stables, hacks, etc., and they could limit the area in which livery stables could be carried on. The amount of fee to be paid, in some cases at any rate, for these licenses would stil be fixed by the Town Council.

COURT OF REVISION.

The other change would be that the Court of Revision, which is now composed of five members of the Council, would then be composed of three persons, not members of the Council. This work would then be taken out of the hands of the Council. The statute is that in every city a Court of Revision shall consist of three members, one of whom shall be appointed by the City Council, one by the Mayor, and the third shall be the official arbitrator appointed under the Municipal Arbitrations Act, or where there is not an official arbitrator, then the third shall be the sheriff of the County. These members of the Court of Revision may be paid. In several cities of about the size of Peterborough, three members of the Court of Revision are paid $50 each year.

MAGISTRATE'S SALARY

The police magistrate's minimum salary, under the law, in a city is $1400. At present the town pays $1200. The $200 increase in the magistrate's salary and whatever might be paid to the members of the Court of Revision appear to be the only necessary increase in the expense of administration of the affairs of the town.

ALDERMANIC QUALIFICATIONS

One of the other changes is that the qualifications of members of the Council would be raised. At present the qualification for members is—freehold, $600; leasehold $1200. This would be raised to freehold $1000; leasehold, $2000; The qualifications for electors would be raised from $300 to $400.

POWERS OF CITY

It is interesting to note some of the powers which are exclusively a city's. Its accounts may be audited before being paid; the town's cannot. The County registrar can be asked to give a list of all the conveyances and the consideration at the rate of 5 cents each instrument. The Aldermen in cities are ex-officio justices of the peace. A city is not required to publish a detailed statement of receipts and expenditures on December 15th. Cities may spend a limited sum for the entertainment of distinguished guests and for travelling expenses on the business of the city. At present the town has to spend money in that way, but there is no legal authority to do it.

The city may impose a penalty of six months' imprisonment for non-payment of fines imposed for violation of city by-laws. The town's limit is 21 days.

The city may raise limited sums for re-building bridges, on the by-laws being approved by the Lieut.-Governor-in-Council.

The city appoints one auditor for the Administration of Justice Accounts. At present there are three auditors and although the town pays a considerable part of the expenses, the County appoints two auditors, and the County judge, a third.

Lands used for farm and garden purposes only, in blocks of two acres, are to be assessed on their value for those purposes. In towns, the size of the specified block is five acres.

In cities, the assessment may be taken before the first of May, and the first of October. In towns the assessors are confined to the first of July and the first of October.

In cities, if the office of mayor becomes vacant after the first of July the Council shall elect one of its members to fill the office during the rest of the term. In towns, they can only do it in case the vacancy takes place after November 1st.

In cities, the assessors and collectors need not be appointed annually, but may be appointed during the pleasure of the council as in the case of other officers of the corporation.

The above may be regarded as the most outstanding advantages which will accrue to Peterborough, as the result of incorporation.

In addition to these, it might be pointed out again that a city always receives more important consideration abroad than does a town. Peterborough has long been grouped among the places of indifferent proportions, in lists of cities, town's and villages of the Province, and it is time that its large population, its many advantages from a manufacturer's point of view, and its numerous other claims to prominence should now have proper classification as constituting "no mean city."

An instance of the disadvantageous position which towns occupy is shown in the fact that their debentures can seldom, if ever at all, be disposed of in the English money market. An effort was made some years ago, indeed, to dispose thus of some of this town's debentures, but was unsuccessful, the reply received being to the effect that they knew nothing about the Town of Peterborough. It would appear therefore that the cities are the only places which receive any great degree of consideration, not only in financial, but other circles which bear close relationship to the vital interests of the community.

The members of the Town Council have not yet considered the clauses of the application for special legislation, but on viewing the question from every angle, it is patent that, in endorsing the proposal to obtain incorporation, they will be taking a step that may well be regarded as in the best interests of Peterborough.

SEVERAL OTHER CLAUSES

The other clauses of the application for legislation are as follows—

To confirm a by-law aiding the Peterborough Cereal Company.

To confirm a by-law aiding the Shovel and Tool Company.

To confirm a by-law authorizing the borrowing of $3000 to pay for alterations to the heating apparatus in the Central School.

To confirm the purchase of sites for the armory and collegiate institute, and the conveyance to the Dominion Government and Board of Education, of the respective sites.

To authorize the change in the method of paying for granolithic walks, from the local improvement system to general tax.

To confirm debenture by-laws recently passed.

VALENTINE SOCIAL

Held by Girls' Guild of All Saint's Church Last Evening.

The Girl's Guild of All Saint's church held a delightful Valentine Social last evening in the Sunday School room. There was a very large attendance and the programme was a most enjoyable one.

Prior to the programme about half an hour was spent in mating valentines. A gentleman was given a half a valentine and some lady the other half and the gentleman had to search until he found the lady.

The rector, Rev. Wm. Major, proved a most acceptable chairman and gave a brief but enjoyable address on Saint Valentine. The programme which was heartily enjoyed was as follows.

Instrumental duett — Misses English and Mulholland.
Recitation—Miss Mabel Pringle.
Solo—Miss Daisy Sawers.
Cornet Solo—Mr. J. Miller.
Reading—Miss Alma McCollum.
Vocal Solo—Miss Marion Rush.

THE OUTLOOK FOR SEED CORN

Question of Getting Reliable Seed is Important.

THE TESTING ON THE FARM

Simplest and Most Convenient Way to do This — Some Valuable Pointers Given.

The difficulty of getting reliable seed corn of desirable types and varieties during the last two years and the expensive lessons learned by many corn growers who used seed of unknown vitality, make the question of reliable seed for 1905 of more than ordinary interest. A survey of the available supply of northern grown seed of this important fodder crop indicates that the difficulties of getting good seed will be even greater this year than during the two previous years. The best varieties for fodder or ensilage purposes, along the northern limit of the corn belt in Canada, are undoubtedly of the "Flint" type. In the latitude of Ottawa only a few special strains of the "Dent" varieties give good results for ensilage in the average year.

RELIABLE SEED CORN

Unfortunately for progress in corn raising in Canada our supplies of seed have been drawn largely from the country to the south and have been of types and varieties that required a longer season to mature than is afforded in some of our best dairy districts, where the corn crop is most needed and most valuable. We have a number of very good men who are making a specialty of growing corn for the purpose of seed along Lake Erie, and who have a limited quantity of good seed for sale this year. The Canadian Seed Growers' Association has taken up in a business-like way the matter of creating a supply of reliable seed corn, and it may be said that the future promises for a permanent basis of supply of a high-class article and of varieties that are exceptionally well suited for ensilage and fodder purposes in all parts of Canada where corn can be grown with success.

The severe frost during the early part of last autumn rendered the bulk of the corn crop in Ontario absolutely useless for the purpose of seed. A belt about a mile in width along the northern shore of Lake Erie was affected only slightly, and from some sections in this district there is a supply of very good seed.

REASONABLE COST.

The cost of the small quantity of seed corn that is required to plant an acre, in comparison with the cost for labor in cultivating and handling and the ultimate value per acre of a good crop, would seem to make it clear that the best available seed of the most satisfactory type and variety should be obtained at any reasonable cost. It would be much better for Canadian farmers if they were able to obtain their supplies of seed corn in the ear; they would then have a fair idea of what they were getting. While in the ear, the danger of injury to the vitality of the seed from damp and its after effects is reduced to a minimum. Corn that is shelled by a machine and left in sacks for six weeks or more will seldom germinate more than 75 per cent, unless the conditions for storage have been exceptionally good. The average vitality of seed corn, tested in the Seed Laboratory last year were for corn received in the ear 95 per cent. and for shelled corn 66 per cent.

It is much to be recommended then that, wherever possible, farmers obtain their supplies of seed corn in the ear only. To meet the demand for seed corn in this condition, growers would do well to adopt the style of shipping crate that is used for this purpose in the States of Iowa and Illinois. This crate is two feet nine inches long, one foot wide and one foot deep, and is made of half inch lumber, three inches in width. Its capacity is one bushel, or between one hundred and one hundred and twenty ears. If the corn can be planted in hills, this crate will hold sufficient seed for five acres. While it is true that there may be some additional cost for freight, on account of the weight of the cob and of the crate, and that extra work is required in shelling corn, these become insignificant when the difference in value between an acre of good matured corn and an acre of unsatisfactory crop is considered.

SEED TESTING.

To find out whether seeds are capable of producing plants requires neither expert knowledge nor special preparation. Satisfactory material is to be found in every farm home for making germination tests of practically any kind of seed used on the farm. The simplest and most convenient way to test seed of corn and other cereal grains and most of the root crop and larger vegetable seeds is to place a number of them—say one hundred—between pieces of moistened blotting paper, Canton flannel or cloth; set them in an ordinary dinner plate and invert another plate to cover them. The seed should be kept moist but not wet. The temperature of the average farm house living room would be quite suitable, but some care should be taken to guard against excessive heat or cold. All good strong seed of corn cereal grains, clovers or timothy, thus treated, will have germinated at the end of five days. Very small seeds of the finer grasses, of some of the garden vegetables and of beets or mangels may be germinated to better advantage by scattering them in a saucer (belonging to a flower pot) that has been soaked in water, and set on a cloth that should be kept damp, or in a pan containing not more than one-eighth of an inch of water, the object being to keep the saucer moist, but not wet. If such a saucer be not available, a brick will answer the purpose as well. In germinating seeds in an earthen saucer they may be exposed to the light, but not to the direct rays of the sun.—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Twenty Years of Piles

"I suffered from itching piles for twenty years and cannot imagine any greater distress. Dr. Chase's Ointment gave me relief from the first application, and has now entirely freed me of this horrible disease."—Mr. S. J. McLaren, Farmer and Contractor, Tiverton, Ont. 7

THE SUGAR SITUATION

How the Prices Have Gone During the Past Year.

From the Sugar Trade Journal some statistical information is obtained as to the course of sugar prices during recent years. The year 1904 opened with granulated sugar fetching 4.38c. per pound, which price declined to 4.28c. per lb. in February. After that a steady movement upward continued, an advance of 5 to 10 per cent. to 5.60c. per pound. The average price of granulated for 1904 was 4.772c. per pound, against 4.638c. per pound in 1903, a gain of .134 per pound in refined sugars against a gain of .234 in raw sugars. The average difference between raw and refined in 1904 was .798c. per pound, against .928c. per pound in 1903, a decrease of .13c. per lb. in refiners' returns for the year. In 1902 the average price of granulated was 4.455c. per pound; in 1901 it was 5.05c. per pound, and in 1900 5.32c. per pound. The average price of granulated for ten years has been 4.731c. per pound.

For the last week or two, the position of sugar in the Montreal and local markets may be described as stationary. Last week, an easier tendency developed, owing to reports from the European beet centres. This however, apparently did not have much effect on the New York cane sugar market, and there was no anxiety to market supplies. Another thing which kept values up was the firm feeling by Cuban holders. However, yesterday, rather as a surprise, there was a drop of 10c. on all grades, the first decline that has taken place for several months.

A feature which will be somewhat novel for Montreal is the expected arrival in the port shortly of raw sugar direct from the Fiji islands, for refining purposes. Some sugar has come from that part of the world into the Dominion before, but it has hitherto always come by way of Vancouver. On this occasion, the cargo will come to New York and will be transferred by rail to Montreal.

What Colds Lead To.

NOT ONLY THE LUNGS BUT EVERY ORGAN OF THE BODY IN DANGER FROM NEGLECTED COLDS.

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

Most people know that such ailments as pneumonia and consumption have their beginning in a cold, but all do not realize that other vital organs of the body are almost equally liable.

Not infrequently colds settle on the liver and kidneys, causing serious disease of these organs.

In other cases colds hang on until the system is run down and exhausted, and so left in a fit state to fall prey to contagious diseases.

The only safe way to speedily get rid of colds before they become fastened to the system.

This can be best accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

This medicine has come to be indispensable in the home as a cure for colds, bronchitis, croup, asthma and whooping cough.

Mrs. Jonathan Kelly, Copetown, Wentworth Co., Ont., writes— "We have been using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for our children. It is a wonderful medicine for whooping cough and we recommend it to others."

Mrs. E. H. Robinson, Tupperville, Kent, Co., Ont.—"My husband and baby had very bad colds and coughs Both were promptly cured by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every bottle.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Company

"No one ever learned. She was cloaked and masked. The whole thing is a mystery. Your father's body was taken to England, and as Lord Derrington refused to acknowledge the marriage Lockwood took charge of you."

"I remember, and Jane Fraser was my nurse for many years. She was at San Remo when the murder took place?"

"Yes, and so was Eliza Stokes."

"What was she doing there?"

"Well, this waiter—by the way, his name was George also, although you were called after Lockwood's father—well, George Rates, seeing that Eliza was dismissed, got her a situation at a hotel in San Remo. He came there also during the season, and I believe the two married. But Eliza Stokes never came near your father."

"What became of her afterward?"

Ireland hesitated. "I can't say," he said.

"But I can," observed George coolly. "She was murdered the other day at the Amelia square house as Mrs. Jersey."

"I heard of that crime. But how do you identify Eliza Stokes with Mrs. Jersey?"

"My old nurse, Jane Fraser, told me. When I began these inquiries I looked up Jane, who now lives in a little Essex village. She told me all she could, which was not much. But she stated that when here one day on a visit to you she had met Eliza Stokes, and in spite of her age and gray hairs she had recognized her. Eliza told her that she was called Mrs. Jersey and had taken a boarding house in Amelia square. I then determined to speak to Mrs. Jersey, who I thought might have been present at the marriage or at all events might know where it had been celebrated."

"It is probable she did," said Ireland, "as she was with your mother as maid when the elopement took place. Did you see Mrs. Jersey, or Eliza Stokes, as I still regard her?"

"I saw her, but she was murdered before I could manage to speak to her on the subject. Did you know"—

"I know that Eliza Stokes had changed her name to Mrs. Jersey and was in Amelia square," said Ireland, "but I only learned this the other day."

"Who told you?"

"A woman called Miss Bull," said Ireland.

"Miss Bull," repeated George. "I remember. That was the boarder who foretold a violent death to Mrs. Jersey. But you read about that in the papers."

Ireland nodded. "I did," he said. "And I also saw that you were in the house when Mrs. Jersey was murdered. You were a witness."

"I can tell you about that. I"—

"There is no need to tell me. I have not the time." Ireland looked at his watch. "In ten minutes I leave for my walk."

George remonstrated. "But this is so important."

"Not so important as my health. I can give you only ten minutes, George. This Miss Bull called to ask me about the lease of the house to Mrs. Jersey. I know nothing about that. When Lockwood died I sold the house to Lord Derrington"—

"What, to my grandfather?"

"Yes. But had I known he was the purchaser I should not have let him have it. He bought it through an agent. Since then I heard nothing more about the house. I did not even know it was a boarding establishment until it appeared as such in the papers the other day. I wondered what you were doing at the inquest"—

"I can explain."

Ireland held up his hand. "I need no explanation. I know that Mrs. Jersey was really Eliza Stokes. I gathered that from the description given by Miss Bull in the course of our conversation. My suspicions were aroused by the fact that Lord Derrington had leased the Amelia square house to Mrs. Jersey."

"Why did he do that?" George spoke more to himself than to Ireland.

"Well," said the old man, rising, "it is my belief that Lord Derrington knows there was a marriage and assisted Mrs. Jersey so that she should hold her tongue. Now there is no more time. I must go out." And Ireland walked to the door.

"One moment," said George on the doorstep. "This blue domino connected with my father's murder—was she never traced?"

"No. There was no means of tracing her. Except that she wore a piece of holly she carried no distinguishing mark."

"Holly!" cried George, astounded. "Yellow holly?"

"Yes. I don't know how you come to mention it, but the holly worn by the blue domino with whom your father went away had yellow berries."

CHAPTER VII.

As Brendon was in the neighborhood of Amelia square he paid a visit to the boarding house. Having learned from Ireland that Miss Bull had informed him how Lord Derrington was connected with the late Mrs. Jersey, George thought it just as well that she should be questioned. Certainly Miss Bull, who appeared to be a dour and secretive sort of person, might not speak. On the other hand, if he could induce her to be frank he might learn from her—presuming she knew—the reason why Lord Derrington had leased the Amelia square house to Mrs. Jersey.

On his way Brendon meditated on Ireland's remarks about the holly. He remembered the agitation of Mrs. Jersey when she saw the sprig in his coat. She had been at San Remo when his father was stabbed, and Ireland had mentioned that the woman with whom the deceased man had left the ballroom wore a sprig of yellow holly. Had the berries been red George might not have thought so much of the matter, but yellow holly is comparatively rare, and evidently Mrs. Jersey's alarm had been caused by her recollection of the murder. The sight of the holly had revived her memory.

"I wonder if she had anything to do with the murder," mused George as he turned into Amelia square. "Probably she had nothing to do with the blue domino or with the matter of the crime. From what Ireland says, however, a piece of yellow holly was mentioned in connection with the murder, and Mrs. Jersey, then Eliza Stokes, probably heard of it. That was why she shivered and turned pale when she saw the sprig in my coat."

Having thus decided the question, though not in a very satisfactory way, George rang the bell and was admitted into the sitting room in which the murder had taken place. It was empty, but Jarvey departed immediately to fetch Miss Bull.

George knew the room well. It had been used by his grandfather as a breakfast room, and many a meal had he enjoyed at that very table. As the furniture had been sold to Lord Derrington, together with the house, the table was the very article of furniture at which Mrs. Jersey had been stabbed when seated. Brendon looked from the table to the door and wondered if the assassin had entered stealthily with a bared weapon and had stabbed the wretched woman before she had time to turn her head. But on second thoughts he was inclined to think that the assassin had been in friendly conversation with Mrs. Jersey before inflicting the fatal stroke. Even in the short distance between table and door Mrs. Jersey would have had time to spring to her feet and give the alarm. "No," thought George as he seated himself; "what I said to Train is correct. The assassin engaged Mrs. Jersey in friendly conversation and then watched for an opportunity to strike from behind."

He would have continued trying to puzzle out the circumstances of the crime but that Miss Bull entered, accompanied by Margery. The little old maid looked whiter and more haggard than ever, but her eyes gleamed brightly, and she seemed to be in perfect health. Margery, now being the nominal head of the house, appeared more important, but she kept her eyes on Miss Bull's face and in all things took her orders from this superior being.

"How are you, Mr. Brendon?" said Miss Bull, smiling in her prim way, but without offering her hand. "I did not expect to see you again."

"Why not?" asked George quickly.

Miss Bull shrugged her thin shoulders and fastened her beady eyes on his face. "Many of the boarders left on account of madame's murder, so I thought you had done the same."

"I was only a visitor, Miss Bull. Had I been a boarder I should not have left. The murder did not scare me."

"No," replied Miss Bull indifferently; "I don't suppose it did. I only talked for the sake of talking."

Brendon was rather embarrassed how to begin the conversation, especially as Margery was present. Something of this showed itself in his manner, for Miss Bull drew Margery's hand within her own and nodded affably. "Miss Watson is the head of the house," she said. "Do you come to see her or me, Mr. Brendon?"

"I come to see you," said George hoping she would send the inconvenient third away. But she did nothing of the sort.

"In that case Margery can stop as my friend, Mr. Brendon. Anything you say before her will go no further. She keeps my secrets."

Margery stooped and kissed the old maid's hand. Miss Bull patted her head and turned cheerfully to her visitor. "Yes, Mr. Brendon?" she said in an interrogative manner. Again George felt awkward, but judged it best to plunge into the middle of the matter and get it over as soon as possible. "You called to see a certain Mr. Ireland," he said, "about the lease of this house. I have come to ask you why you did so."

Miss Bull stopped patting Margery's hand and her lips tightened. "I don't see what business that is of yours," she said tartly.

"On the face of it, Miss Bull, I admit that the question sounds impertinent. But I am anxious to learn something about Mrs. Jersey's early life, and since you know something"—

"I know nothing," interrupted Miss Bull quickly, "absolutely nothing. I came here as a boarder many years ago, and, as is my custom, I kept myself to myself. Madame and I did not get on well together. She was not a lady."

Evidently it was impossible to learn anything from so secretive a woman. Nevertheless George tried another tack. "Do you know if Mrs. Jersey left any writings behind her?"

He asked this because it struck him that Mrs. Jersey might have been tempted to write out her relations with the Vane family.

Miss Bull did not reply to this question herself. "That is not my business," she said. "Miss Watson took possession of her aunt's papers."

THE YUKON ELECTION

Answers to Questions By the Premier Very Vague.

Mr. Borden Was Not Satisfied and Declared That the Rules of Procedure Should Have Been Followed—Mr. Leach of Liberal Organizer Fame in Manitoba Comes in For Criticism—Census and Statistics Considered.

Ottawa, Feb 15.—(Special.)—Parliament is still in ignorance of the motives which prompted the returning officer in the Yukon to delay the declaration of the election of Mr. Thompson. Enquiries were made in the house the other day, when it was learned from Hon. Charles A. Fitzpatrick that an explanation had been asked for from the returning officer. To-day Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave the house certain communications received from the returning officer, which while pretending to explain the delay really explained nothing.

In a telegram, dated Feb. 8, the returning officer stated that he had the day before declared Mr. Thompson elected by a majority of 600. On Feb. 16, the returning officer explains, he was subpoenaed in a conspiracy case to produce ballots, poll books and all other papers connected with the election. He was instructed by the secretary of state not to produce the papers except in accordance with the Election Act.

The explanation did not suit Mr. Borden, who argued that the law required the returning officer to produce the certificates of election within a specified time.

Who is This Leach?

R. A. E. Leach, the individual who has come in for so much notoriety in connection with the recent Manitoba election frauds, was the subject of a question on the order paper to-day. Mr. Roche wanted to know if Mr. Leach was in the employ of the government. He was informed that Mr. Leach was appointed inspector of Dominion lands on Jan. 1 last.

Mr. Borden asked if there had been any correspondence between the Canadian government and the imperial government or with the different provinces in regard to the convention which dealt with the question of the disposal of real estate and property. The convention, which was signed at Washington on March 1, 1900, provided that it should not apply to the colonies and dependencies unless notice was given by the British representative at Washington, or by the United States secretary of state within one year after the certification of the treaty. The prime minister made a note of the question.

On Fisher's Bill.

Mr. Fisher moved the house into committee on the bill respecting the census and statistics and another long argument ensued. The minister indulged in fulsome explanations and the opposition, knowing his weakness, led him with all kinds of absurd interrogations. The debate was at times serious and at other times farcical.

Claude Macdonell of Toronto gave it a practical turn in a brief but effective speech. He showed that the bill would enable the department to put all kinds of embarrassing questions to business concerns. There should be a schedule appended, he said, to show what class of questions were to be asked. Mr. Macdonell termed the bill a piratical measure, proposing as it did to prints on information gathered by the province.

Liberal Love Feast.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—(Globe Special.)—The Ontario Liberal members of the House of Commons had a meeting yesterday. The idea was for the new men to become acquainted. It developed into a sort of experience meeting. Many of those present gave their impressions as to what ought to be done in the way of improving and keeping up the party organization in Ontario. Sir William Mulock and Hon. Charles Hyman were present.

Fielding On the Sea.

London, Feb. 16.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, the Canadian Minister of Finance, sailed yesterday by the steamship Baltic. Before leaving he received an encouraging telegram from Vienna stating that his daughter was making good progress.

TALK OF IMPERIALISM

Mr. Asquith Presses His Amendment To the Address.

He Distinguishes Between Mr. Chamberlain's Followers and Pure Balfourians—Replied to By the Chancellor of the Exchequer—The Importance of Decision On Future Generations—The Debate Continued Till Midnight.

London, Feb. 16.—The discussion in the House of Commons was robbed of interest by the unexpected and unusual calling of a second Cabinet meeting, which sat two hours last evening. It is believed that the meeting had no connection with Parliamentary affairs.

There is a rumor that it was owing to the receipt of important despatches from the Far East connected with the possibilities of peace, but nothing reliable is known on the subject.

London, Feb. 16.—(C.A.P.)—In the House yesterday, Right Hon. H. Asquith, M.P., moving his amendment to the address asking that an appeal should be made to the electorate on the fiscal question, asked Premier Balfour whether or not he sympathised with the efforts the "Missionary of the Empire" is making to "dispel the Cabinet clouds which prevent our people looking for fiscal salvation in that particular direction." Distinguishing between the followers of Mr. Chamberlain and the "pure Balfourians," he said the Balfourians will soon leave the unpromising subject of tariffs to draw the only arrow left in the shape of the colonial conference. He asked, where the representatives at such a conference to have unrestricted authority to entertain any proposal involving the taxation of food coming from abroad? He asked if a scheme were arrived at whether the next Parliament would be disabled from dealing with the matter until after another general election and a series of elections all over the Empire. Even Chamberlain had seen objections to this preposterous proposal, which would tie up the trade of the Empire for years. Thus he came to the main issue before the House, namely, what were to be the instructions to the members of the conference? This could only be solved by a prompt and direct appeal to the electorate.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying, dealt especially with the Imperial side of the question, which required the dispassionate attention of Great Britain. He could conceive no subject more fraught with good or evil for the Empire. A wrong decision in this would bring certain disaster and a heavy weight of responsibility in the eyes of future generations. He deprecated Mr. Asquith's assertion that the delegates to the conference should be instructed beforehand, emphasizing in that case the absurdity of inviting our colonial kinsmen to a conference at all, when the subject of most interest was tabooed. He hoped the Opposition would see what was at stake, and take its share in endeavoring to maintain the bond of union within the Empire. The debate continued till midnight, when the House adjourned.

Another British-Canadian M.P. Possible.

Montreal, Feb. 16.—All those who have appreciated Donald MacMaster's abilities at the bar, as well as in the House of Commons, will be interested to learn that his departure from this country may furnish another Canadian to the Imperial Parliament. It is said that the candidature for Parliamentary honors in an English constituency in the Chamberlain interest will be proposed to the Montreal lawyer and his acceptance may be counted upon. Mr. MacMaster was questioned yesterday, and although he was non-committal there came no denial. It is no secret that Mr. MacMaster had several interviews with Hon. Joseph Chamberlain during his recent trips to London. Mr. MacMaster formerly represented his native County of Glengarry in the Canadian House of Commons.

Died Under Chloroform.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Coroner Young has issued a warrant for an inquest on Charles O'Reilly, who died yesterday at St. Michael's Hospital.

O'Reilly went to the hospital to undergo an operation for blood poisoning. It is claimed that he was put under the influence of chloroform, and while unconscious the doctors were called away. When they returned he was dead.

Sends 40,000 Words An Hour.

Paris, Feb. 16.—Interesting experiments were made yesterday between Paris and London with a new rapid telegraph apparatus. The inventors, Pollak and Virag, claim that the instrument can transmit 40,000 words an hour with the help of six clerks. The messages arrive in written instead of telegraphic characters.

Political Organizer Prosecuted.

Winnipeg, Feb. 16.—R. E. A. Leech, Liberal organizer for Manitoba, arrived in the city this afternoon, and appeared before Magistrate McMicken, on the charge of tampering with the provincial voters' list, and a remand was granted to Feb. 23.

Found Not Guilty.

Regina, Feb. 16.—Thomas Johnston appeared yesterday before Judge Newlands and a jury on the charge of manslaughter, in connection with the Stalaluta railway disaster. The jury, after an hour's consideration, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Czar Still Hesitates.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 16.—In spite of Emperor Nicholas' personal inclination in favor of the assembly sober, as intimated to Count Leo Docnovitch Tolstoi, the Imperial decision to summon this Parliament has not yet been taken.

THAT CATTLE EMBARGO.

High Commissioner's Office Issues An Official Statement.

London, Feb. 16.—(C.A.P.)—The High Commissioner has issued an official statement regarding the cattle embargo. After touching briefly on the events leading up to the passing of the act of 1896, for which the statement adds there was no necessity, it adds that the Dominion Government "regretfully accepted an accomplished situation."

The statement goes on to say: "It is felt by the Canadian authorities that it is not for any Canadian public man to interject himself into political controversy in the United Kingdom, and this is the view of the people of Canada on the subject. But while this is the policy of the Dominion Government, it must not be assumed that the embargo is regarded with complacency in Canada. On the contrary, the Government and people of Canada are fully alive to the serious loss and waste inflicted upon the cattle producers and shippers of the Dominion by the present law."

Frenzied By Frost.

London, Feb. 16.—Driving his team, unhitched, aimlessly about a field near the village of Belmont, Paul McLarty, a well known Yarmouth farmer, was found Tuesday morning in a pitiable condition. He had been rendered speechless by the cold and his face and arms were frightfully frozen.

It is supposed that McLarty, while driving home in the severe storm of the night before, with the thermometer registering 16 degrees below zero, had been rendered frantic by the cold and had driven into the field, not knowing what he was about. Here he unhitched his horses and spent the night tramping about the field, the snow showing that the unfortunate man had been probably continuously on the move.

He was removed to a neighboring house, where all that is possible is being done to save his life.

Fire At Kingston.

Kingston, Feb. 16.—The Gardiner biscuit factory on the corner of Earl and Division streets was destroyed by fire last evening about 8 o'clock. The building was frame. The firemen confined the fire to the building and saved adjacent property. Considerable stock was saved. The factory was owned and operated by J. R. Carson, wholesale merchant. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $10,000, and was partially covered by insurance.

Capital Punishment Petitioned Against.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—A. R. Hassard, barrister of Toronto, was here yesterday and had a long interview with the Minister of Justice and A. Power, K.C., of the department, who has charge of capital cases, in favor of granting clemency to Alexander Martin, now in jail in Toronto, and sentenced to be hanged on March 10, for child murder. Mr. Hassard presented petitions signed by about 1,400 persons in favor of commutation.

May Increase Capital.

Halifax, Feb. 16.—At the annual meeting of the Bank of Nova Scotia yesterday morning a resolution was adopted authorizing the directors to increase the capital stock from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000, should they deem it advisable.

Will Ask For a Recount.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—The official majority of E. B. Devlin, Liberal, in Wright County, is 142, all polls have been heard from. McDougall intends to ask for a recount.

Edmonton Is the Capital.

Edmonton, Feb. 16.—Word was received yesterday morning that Edmonton had been announced as the provincial capital of new Alberta Province.

AT FIRST GLANCE.

It Would Appear That Local Remedies Would be Best for Cure of Catarrh.

It would seem at first glance that catarrh being a disease of the mucous membrane that salves, sprays, etc. being applied directly to the nose and throat, would be the most rational treatment but this has been proven not to be true.

The mucous membrane is made and repaired from the blood and catarrh is a blood disease and any remedy to make a permanent cure must act on the blood and when the blood is purified from catarrhal poison, the secretions from the mucous membrane will become natural and healthy.

In this climate thousands of people seem scarcely ever free from some form of catarrh; it gets better at times but each winter becomes gradually deeper seated and after a time the sufferer resigns himself to it as if it were a necessary evil.

Catarrh cures are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but are nearly all as inconvenient and ineffective as to render their use a nuisance nearly as annoying as catarrh itself; anyone who has used douches, sprays and powders will bear witness to their inconvenience and failure to cure.

There are a number of excellent internal remedies for catarrh, but probably the best and certainly the safest is a new remedy, composed of Red Gum, Blood Root and similar antiseptic remedies and other valuable catarrh specifics.

This remedy is in tablet form, pleasant to the taste and sold by the druggists under the name of Stewart's Catarrh Tablets, and anyone suffering from catarrh may use these tablets with absolute assurance that they contain no cocaine, opiate nor any poisonous mineral whatever.

A leading druggist in Albany speaking of catarrh cures says, "I have sold various catarrh cures for years but have never sold any which gave such general satisfaction as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. They contain in a pleasant, concentrated form all the best and latest catarrh remedies and catarrh sufferers who have used douches, sprays and salves, have been astonished at the quick relief and permanent results obtained after a week's use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets." All druggists sell full sized packages for fifty cents.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Feb. 15.—(Special.)—Business at the East End Abattoir market was anything but encouraging. The heavy storm of the past few days had caused more or less delay in the arrival of stock at the market, with the result that buyers were not any too well pleased with such a state of affairs. Prices gave evidence of a downward tendency along all lines, and the quality offered for sale was not any too satisfactory. Butchers were present in fair numbers, but as the choice was not select, trade dragged with a characteristic in keeping with the market. The feeling prevailed at the market that the farmers are now rushing into the city all surplus and common stock in order to give them a better opportunity to prepare for the Easter trade. The present offerings are quite discouraging to the butchers, while exporters will handle but very little of the stock now placed on local markets. Receipts cattle, 800 head; the best sold at 3⅛c to 4c; fair to medium, 3c to 3½c; common and lean stock, 2½c to 2¾c per lb. Sheep and Lambs—Arrivals, 75; quality pretty good; prices were steady, with demand satisfactory. Sheep sold at 3½c to 4c; lambs, 5½c to 6c per lb. Calves—Arrivals, 200 head; quality, only medium; prices were $2.50 to $8 each. Hogs—Arrivals were very light, as the shipments expected were delayed by the storm. The market was strong and prices advanced 25c, with sales of selected lots at 6½c to 6⅝c.

Princess On Her Muscle.

Florence, Feb. 16.—The affairs of the Countess Montignose, former wife of King Frederick Augustus of Saxony, took a dramatic turn yesterday. For some time the Countess has suspected that her German nurse, Mahote, was planning to abduct the little Princess Anna Monica Pia, and place her in the care of her father, the King. Yesterday, under the pretext that the German Consul was waiting to see the nurse at the gate of the villa, where the Countess is residing, the latter led Mahote to the gate. Then quickly pushing the nurse outside and closing and locking the gate, the Countess cried, "Go to your master, spy." Entering the house, the Countess ordered all of Mahote's belongings thrown out of the window to the street. The nurse protested against her ejectment, but unavailingly.

WHAT ABOUT PETERBORO?

The Toronto Telegram in one of what it fondly imagines ate prophetic moods has the following to say about the intermediate O. H. A. championship.

"It looks like Berlin or Victoria Harbor for the intermediate O. H. A. tinware. The Germans are said to be a great aggregation but keep your eye on the men from the north. Any team that can go to Thessalon and beat Grindy Forrester's team on their own ice can go some."

A CHALLENGE.

The commercial form of the Collegiate Institute wish to challenge any of the other forms of the Collegiate to a game as soon as the Brock st. rink can be secured.

CITY LEAGUE TO-NIGHT.

MARKHAM TOMORROW.

Tomorrow night's game will be one of the best seen here this yar. The locals report that Markham is a very fast team who will take a lot of beating even on the Brock st. rink. They were handicapped on Tuesday night by the absence of Sullivan their star rover, but he will be in the game tomorrow night and the team are going to make a big effort to pull the game out of the fire. It will be a splendid exhibition and the biggest crowd of the season will be in attendance.

SENIORS PRACTICE TONIGHT.

The senior team will practice tonight from 7 to 8 in final preparation for tomorrow night's big game with Markham

Harbor May Not Be Here Next week.

It is possible that Victoria Harbor may not play here on Tuesday night. The Northern team had been given a bye in consideration of their long trip to Thessalon and they may still be allowed to go into the finals without more games. In that event the locals will go up against the winners of the Western group.

A game with the Dawson City Stanley Cup chasers is a possibility for next week if the Harbor doesn't play here.

CURLING.

At the meeting held last evening the following skips were selected to take rinks to Toronto Friday—J. S. Knapman, S. D. Hall, E. B. Edwards, Dr. T. N. Greer, R. M. Hamilton, R. Neill, R. J. Tweed, T. Rutherford. The curlers will leave on the C. P. R. at 7.12 [illegible] morning. A number will remain over until Saturday.

The curlers say that they never had such a pleasant trip as they had to Orillia, thanks to Bro. Buxton for providing a special car for the curlers only. They were well treated by the curlers and people of Orillia. Long may such brotherly feeling exist between Peterboro and Orillia.

HOW PEAT FUEL IS MADE DESCRIPTION OF PROCESS

Ernest V. Moore Gives Interesting Information Relative to the Industry.

Mr. Ernest V. Moore, manager of the Condensed Peat Fuel Company, submits the following interesting information descriptive of the operationof the industry:—

tion of the industry:—

is located about three-quarters of a mile north of the G.T.R. station at Victoria Road. It is about 29 miles north and 4 miles west of Lindsay. The bog is a perfectly level tract about 150 acres in area is altogether free from trees and brush, but is covered with a dense growth of a short shrub resembling a huckelberry bush. The roots of these shrubs and a thick spongy moss scientifically known as "Spagnum," form the top 12 to 18 inches of the bog, under which is from 3 to 15 feet of a brown to black mass of decomposed moss roots so completely decayed that the fibres and form of the moss are altogether destroyed and the moss is homogenious and of such consistency that when attacked with a shovel it cuts like very soft cheese. This decayed matter is valuable for fuel purposes, and it is this material that is finally prepared ready for the stove.

TWO THINGS NECESSARY.

To do this two things are necessary, i.e., to dry away the surplus water and then show the material sufficiently dense and solid that it may be conveniently handled and stored. To attain these ends much valuable time and money have been expended, with more or less success in Canada thus far, practically all effort has been devoted to accomplishing these ends artificially, that is, to dry away the water by heat, pressure or centrifugal motion, and then to solidify the material by very great pressure. This process has been to an extent successful, as is shown by the fuel now on the market known as "Dobson Peat," manufactured by Mr. Dobson, of Beaverton. To him is due practically all the credit of perfecting this process, and it is the result of very careful and extensive experiment on his part. In fact, at present he stands alone as the one successful man in the manufacture of peat under this method. In Europe, however, where very extensive operations are carried on, between 9 and 10 million tons being consumed annually, the above process in its most perfected stage finds but little favor, and another and entirely different one is adopted; the taking advantage of that property which peat possesses of naturally condensing when thoroughly broken up and slowly dried out. There they simply excavate the peat, thoroughly grind and masticate it till the minute vegetable cells of which it is composed are broken down, and after moulding it in any desired shape, put it out in the weather to dry, during which time it not only loses the water but condenses on itself to nearly one-eighth of its original volume in the bog. That this has not been tried in Canada is due a great deal to erroneous ideas of the fuel produced, and to the idea that labor conditions in Canada would make such an operation prohibitive. These are both, however, shown to be wrong by the success already attained by the above mentioned Company.

TWO TONS AN HOUR.

The Condensed Peat Fuel Co. have simply devised ways and means whereby the peat may be economically taken from its home, thoroughly broken up, moulded and dried in the air, the present plant being capable of handling two tons of the finished material per hour.

The peat is dug from the bog into automatic dumping tram cars with ordinary clay shovels, the men stripping the whole length of the peat deposit as they go along, always working to a face. The cars are filled while standing on light portable tram rails, which can be quickly moved to the working face as it recedes. When full they are shunted by hand for a short distance, when they are attached to a cable which takes them to the top of a trestle fifteen feet from the ground, where they are automatically dumped and returned to the working area again by gravity. This constitutes the first operation in the process, and in it the peat is removed from the bog and collected in a pile immediately adjacent to the machine building. It requires nearly 160 cubic feet (about 6 cubic yards) of the boggy material in its natural condition to make a ton of finished dry peat, so as at present arranged it requires four full cars of 40 cubic feet each for each ton of finished peat produced. For twenty tons per day or two tons per hour, it therefore requires eight cars of wet peat just as it is dug from the bog per hour. The hauling, dumping and returning of the cars is entirely automatic, and apart from power, the first operation is accomplished by four men and a boy for 20 tons per day.

Peat from the trestle dumps directly over a conveyer so that it covers and entirely surrounds it, making it possible for one man with a rake to feed uniform and at the required rate. This is the second stage and is accomplished by one man.

AUTOMATIC OPERATION.

This conveyer when properly fed, takes the peat to the hopper of the machine and is simply a modification of a combination of the machinery in which two things are accomplished, namely, the peat is so thoroughly broken up that the cellular structure is completely destroyed (incidentally the volume of the material is reduced about 40 per cent.) and it is then moulded and delivered in three parallel columns 32 in. by 4 1-4 in. by 2 1-2 in. standing on their edge 1-2 inch apart on slotted pallets 32 in. by 9 1-2 in. This operation is entirely automatic. The pallets rest on an automatic conveyor immediately below the delivery spout of the machine, and are fed continuously to receive their portion of wet peat, each pallet holding about 50 pounds. As each pallet is filled it is automaticaly severed and the pallet travels away on the conveyer till it reaches the drying frames. This may be termed the third stage of the operation and is entirely done by the machine with the exception of one man who stands where the peat is delivered on the pallets and keeps them properly adjusted

DRYING THE PEAT.

The system of naturally drying the peat without either heat or pressure is perhaps the keynote of success of this process. In other countries peat treated as already described is simply spread on the ground and allowed to slowly dry out. This takes up a good deal of space and is of necessity very tedious and even with frequent handling the peat dries but slowly as it is always in contact with the wet ground. This company overcomes these difficulties as follows,—This is, the wet peat is all delivered on slotted pallets leaving it exposed on every side to the drying influence of the sun and atmosphere, and the pallets are stacked eight tiers high but easy of access, in skeleton frames. Each pallet is so designed that it holds the equivalent of 10 pounds of finished product, so for a ton of dry peat 200 pallets must be filled and for 20 tons, 4,000 must be used. If the pallets full of wet peat were laid out to dry side by side they would cover a considerable area, but the skeleton frame in which they are placed reduces the ground area to one-eighth of that covered by the peat, and thus becomes comparatively small.

For twenty tons per day 4,000 of these little pallets must be put out to dry. The ground area covered is that of 500 pallets or about 1,150 sq. feet. So, this area is required for each days operations, till dry. Not only this area, for a passage must be left so as to conveniently place and remove the pallets of peat, so that actually over twice this area is required for each drying frame or 2,800 sq. feet.

Now it is found that in from 6 to 10 days depending on the weather, the peat exposed on the pallets set out on the drying frames dries from about 80 per cent. water to about 35 per cent. If left from 3 to 4 weeks it becomes quite fit for fuel, but each frame only holds one day's output, i. e., at present 4,000 pallets this would require 29 or 30 frames, which would be expensive in space occupied and in maintenance, so a maximum of nine frames giving the material ten days drying owing to the intervening Sunday, has been decided sufficient, or an area of 25,000 sq. feet; a very little over half an acre to dry twenty tons per day. So this part of the plant consists of nine drying frames each of which will hold 4,000 pallets, 36,000 pallets and the conveyor.

The third operation leaves the peat on the conveyor immediately adjacent to the frames. Two men are required to lift the peat off the conveyor and place them in the drying frames and in so doing they are able to, in fact must, remove a pallet of dry peat (i.e., partially dry peat) to make a place for each pallet of wet peat inserted. This then is the fourth operation and actually amounts to replacing on the conveyor the pallets of wet peat with pallets of dry peat (30 to 40 per cent. moisture). It represents simply a drying away of 45 per cent. of the moisture from 20 tons per day, at the expense of the efforts of two men.

The conveyor is so arranged when the wet peat has been replaced by dry material (still on the pallets) is taken to the store ground and there piled up. This is again accomplished by two men or boys who empty the pallets of dry peat and replace them, again on the same conveyor, which returns them to the machine. Here they are again properly adjusted to receive a new burden of wet peat, by the men already spoken of, and so the operation becomes continuous.

The store pile for each drying frame is 40 feet long 5 feet wide and six feet high and is adjacent to the conveyor which loads directly into the wagons which haul the peat to the cars.

THE FINISHED PEAT.

The finished peat is not in regular blocks as the peat heretofore put on the market, but is irregularly broken up and sized as is coal. It takes about 40 to 45 cubic feet to hold a ton of this peat, as compared with 30 to 35 to hold a ton of hard coal. In burning it requires much less draft, and possibly a little more attention, as when burning it is so much better than coal, that to fill up an ordinary coal fire pot and turn on the drafts would almost always result disastrously to the stove. A less quantity of peat is required, fed a little more frequently.

This article, although promised to be brief at the outset, is already rather long, but there is so much of interest to be said about peat, that one has difficulty in choosing what to eliminate.

The Condensed Peat Fuel Co., Limited, have an office over the Central Canada Co's office on George-st., where they have a variety of samples of natural and manufactured peat, and a great deal of information and illustrations of not only the Canadian, but of most of the Continental methods and machines. The office is open to the public, and any questions arising out of this article or from an interest in peat will be cheerfully answered.

EACH man for his specialty. Our designers do nothing else than design. Their whole time is spent in eradicating lines in overcoats and suits which are not artistic. Every inch of a suit or overcoat is considered—nothing is left to chance.

That's one reason why the Semi-ready Tuxedo Dress Suit and Frock Coat are so much more beautiful than the ordinary tailor made garment.

The same specializing continues all through the course of making.

GREEK SCULPTURE

Prof. Carruthers to Lecture Before Fortnightly Club To-morrow Night.

Prof. Carruthers, of Toronto University, lectures under the auspices of the Fortnightly Club on Friday evening next on "Greek Sculpture" in the Y.M.C.A. hall. One of the chief features of the lecture is the display of photographs in the lantern slide. Nothing of greater educative value has taken place in Peterborough for many years. Such a fascinating theme should attract a large audience.

IN THEIR NEW OFFICES

Where the Town Engineer and Tax Collector May Now be Found.

If there are two town officials whom the progress of this community is crowding more than any others, the town engineer and the tax collector undoubtedly occupy that position. To make room for the Bank of Nova Scotia, these gentlemen have been removed from their comfortable quarters at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, to rooms over Mr. C. N. Brown's store. The two offices have been temporarily bunched in one small room while workmen are hammering away fixing up others. "The Eko camp had this room once, I understand, and they left the eabo behind," was the tax-collector's little joke to-day. Just at the present time, things are in such turmoil in the immediate vicinity, that the man who burrows in sufficiently far to find the collector should be given about 25 per cent. discount on his arrearages. Everything is up side down, so to speak, and the officials are doing the best they can to become reconciled. When everything is completed, however, they will have offices handsomely fitted up and in every way adapted to their purpose. Just where the next move will be made to, should the quarters be wanted for some other purpose, is a question and the collector and engineer are unanimous in the opinion that life is but a transitory thing.

NEW OPERA HOUSE FOR PETERBORO'

Mr. W. S. McGuire Will Subscribe $5,000 Toward It.

COST OF PROPOSED BUILDING

Another Citizen Suggests that Town Should Erect One in Connection With New Municipal Building—Offers $1,200 Rent

Mr. W. S. Maguire, the veteran theatrical manager and advance agent for H. Wilmot Young's Big Bijou comedy company which appears here all next week at Bradburn's opera house is in town today.

Discussing the need of a new and up-to-date play house in Peterboro. Mr. Maguire said—"I have been connected with theatrical enterprises for the last twenty-five years and, although my home is in Brooklyn, N. Y., I have spent the past five years in Canada and know every town city thoroughly. I have had my eye on Peterborough for some time and I know of no place where a modern well-equipped and properly conducted theatre would pay better than right here. It would, perhaps, be necessary to build stores at the front with an arcade or entrance leading through to the theatre proper, which would be at the rear of the shops but on the ground floor. I believe a building in every way suitable and adequate to meet the needs of your pretty and growing town, could be met by an expenditure of $40,000. I am of the opinion that it would be a paying venture and I would willingly subscribe $5,000 toward the enterprise. I have some property on which I could realize and would be glad to put $5,000 in any company the might be formed. I hope this matter will be taken up at an early date by some of your public spirited citizens."

ANOTHER VIEW.

Another gentleman who is closely connected with the theatrical business remarked to the Review to-day. I see that it is proposed to expend some $8,000 or $9,000 in altering the present town building so as to give more accommodation for a fire hall. Now what is the use of expending such a sum on an old structure The present building is not a desirable one to patch up. Let the people vote on a bylaw to raise money for a new city hall and in its construction provision could be made for a suitable fire station and also a modern opera house. Why should not a municipality do this? Look at Orillia where the town erected a fine opera house in connection with its town hall and the scheme has worked well; besides I understand is paying a handsome dividend. I would willingly pay $1,200 a year rental for the opera house, and, as the town can borrow money at four per cent., this will defray the interest on an outlay of $30,000 which will cover a large proportion of the expenditure on a town or civic building. By all means let the town erect a new fire hall, town hall and opera house combined. There would be money in it and I would, as I said before, give $1,200 rental for the opera house.

ON ACTUAL WORK DONE

Radical Change Favored in Method of Government Grants to Fairs.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Association of fairs and exhibitions, which was held this week in Toronto decided that it would be in the best interests of scientific agriculture in this province if a radical change were made in the present method of apportioning Government grants to townships and district societies, approximating $80,000, and that henceforth the grants be made on the basis of actual work done and money expended by each fair for purely agriculture purposes. Hitherto the Department of Agricultural has granted $800 to each district society and $420 to be divided equally among the township societies in the district. Many of these societies hold fairs that are not of much educational value to the farmers and stock raisers, and that expend more money on horse racing, grand stand performances, etc., than to prizes for pure bred stock, and exhibits of farm and garden products. The association after a lengthy discussion, adopted the resolution noted above as being calculated to encourage the best fairs and to discourage the extraneous attractions.

MR. CHARLES' RESOLUTION.

The resolution was moved by Mr. Hughes-Charles, president of the Peterborough Industrial Fair, and seconded by Mr. Mooney of Berlin. The chief objection urged to it by a number of the smaller fairs was that the withdrawal or decrease of the grant in the case of the smaller fairs might result in their complete extermination. It was pointed out however, that the desideratum of the association was to consolidate energies to a greater extent by doing away with some of the smaller and inefficient fairs, and that in any event the resolution was simply a recommendation to the Government. It would not affect any fairs for the present year, and the Government would first have to draft some plan for carrying it into effect.

NEW LIVERY FIRM

McCollum Bros., of Orillia, Have Made Good Start.

McCollum Bros., Orillia, have now made a very fair start in their management of the livery business which for the past eleven years, up to a few days ago, was conducted by Mr. R. H. Leary. Mr. R. J. McCollum is in charge of the stables here, and he states that it is his intention to follow in the pace of efficiency which has been set by his predecessor. The livery will measure well up to modern standards, and everything conducted along lines which will give every satisfaction to the patrons of the firm. McCollum Bros. have had considerable experience in the livery business and they are at present also running stables at Orillia and Orangeville. Mr. Leary bespeaks for his successors the same extensive patronage that was accorded him. He intends to take several months' rest, but will still keep a good horse or two in the stables near his residence on McDonnell-st. Pink carnations in vases and also lavishly strewn on the dinner table made a lovely decoration. Many gifts of flowers and letters of congratulations were received during the day by the happy couple who enjoy a large circle of friends.

GRAND DUKE KILLED

Assassinated While Driving Towards the Kremlin—Bomb Was Thrown Under Carriage—The Assassins Arrested.

Special to the Review.

London, Feb. 17.—A despatch from Moscow states that Grand Duke Sergius was assassinated when driving towards the Kremlin and near the Court of Justice. His carriage was followed by another vehicle containing two men.

A bomb was thrown beneath the Grand Duke's carriage. There was a violent explosion, the carriage was shattered and the Grand Duke was killed. The assassins were arrested. One of them was wounded dangerously. Several students have been taken into custody.

AN IRASCIBLE MAN.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 17.—The news of the tragedy in Moscow was no great surprise here as it was known that the Terrorists had already condemned the Grand Duke to death.

Grand Duke Sergius, who was a brother-in-law as well as uncle of the Emperor and who had exercised tremendous influence at court had won for himself the most heartfelt hatred of any man in the clique of hated men at the Czar's court. His opposition to all movements for reform, his manifest detestation of the student body, and his fiery temper aroused against him the most intense antipathy by all classes.

SANDERSON'S

PETERBOROUGH.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, FEB. 17, 1905.

ADVANCE PETERBOROUGH

It is high time that the progressive town of Peterborough should step into its proper niche among the communities of the province and assume the status of a city.

As pointed out in the news columns of the Review, the town solicitor has been instructed to apply for legislation to the Ontario Legislature for incorporation as an urban centre, and the expense of taking on civic airs and name will not be large.

Peterborough as a city would doubtless continue to make the same progress and develop on equally as broad and enduring lines as it has in the past. It would attract greater attention from tourists, manufacturers and business men, and would fill a place in the public eye which it can never do as a town.

The cost of special legislation, the increase in the police magistrate's salary and the payment of members of the court of revision would not mean all told more than $500. There would be no increase in the present tax rate, and as a city Peterborough would have additional exclusive advantages which would more than compensate it for the small monetary outlay entailed by incorporation. The powers which a city possesses over those of a town were reviewed at considerable length in these columns last night and need not be repeated.

It may be pointed out that one decided advantage would be the placing of the police force under a commission composed of the county judge, the magistrate and the mayor. This system has been found to work well, and by it the highest and best results are usually achieved, the constabulary being rendered entirely free from aldermanic influence, and its individual members from annoyances and interferences which crop up more or less in every community where a civic representative too often thinks he has the power and ability to administer justice better than the minions of the law. Peterborough police have not of late suffered from any meddling policy—be it said to the credit of the town fathers—but where the force is answerable to a commission and to a commission alone, it is, generally speaking, in a position to discharge its duties with greater freedom and less friction.

As a city Peterborough would enjoy greater advantages in floating its bonds—especially in the foreign markets. This is important in the future development of the town. Peterborough possesses all the attractions and conveniences of any of the smaller cities of America, in the shape of an excellent street railway, a good waterworks plant and system of sewers and first class market accommodation, besides picturesque parks, excellent railway connection and many other assets. True, we need an electric fire alarm system, more fire fighting appliances and a few other things, but these are bound to come, whether this hustling centre remains a town or not.

The one cry against becoming a city has been that it would be far better for Peterborough to be known as the foremost town in the province, rather than one of the smaller cities. But the town is not going to stand still in any event, and as a city it would be infused with new life and energy and take on its added responsibility gracefully, determined to advance and expand in every direction.

Another thing—we need a free postal delivery system and need it badly. As a city we would doubtless obtain this convenience in a few months. Brantford, Kingston and other places have a delivery system and Peterborough could press its claims until the desired postal facilities were obtained.

Hats off to the new city of Peterborough!

PEN POINTS.

The "City of Peterborough," sounds well.

If the price of butter and eggs goes much higher it will soon be out of sight.

Well there is one consolation in the fact that all these big snow storms will be over by May 24th.

Young men are requested not to smoke during a hockey game, else there may be a fire—by the management of the rink.

Here's hoping that the Peterborough curlers may trim the Queen City aggregation this afternoon in royal style.

A West Virginia clergyman has been arrested for passing raised bills. Perhaps the money was raised at a tea meeting.

The number of "Varies" in town is increasing. The latest additions are the Peterborough Conservatory and the Y. M. C. A. dormitory, not including the Sanitorium.

The Ottawa Free Press has a long editorial on Premier Whitney's policy. Less than a month ago that paper was industriously informing its readers that Mr. Whitney had no policy.

The visit of President Roosevelt to the Hungarian quarter of New York under the escort of two thousand policemen is apt to create the impression among some of the "effete" monarchial rulers of Europe that a republican constitution is a failure as a guarantee of personal safety.

It is now reported that Premier Parent must disprove the accusations made against him before receiving favors from the Laurier administration. Unfortunately the report is not accompanied by any evidence that the Laurier administration has turned over a new leaf, and this seriously impairs its credibility.

Hamilton has offered $2,000 reward for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Constable Barron. The crime was committed about 18 months ago, but no arrests have yet been made in connection with it. Apparently there is some suspicion that the shooting was not done by burglars or tramps, as at first supposed, and that the murderer is still within reach.

A New York bank is considering the feasibility of presenting each of its lady customers with a garter that will be very useful. Securely fastened to the garter is a chamois pocket with a strong lock. In the pocket the lady customer can carry her money and valuables, and when she goes to the bank to draw or deposit money there will be a special waiting room for her accommodation. In the olden times women used to have suspended from their waists large pockets under the outside skirt, and with a slit in the skirt she had free access to it. Nowadays women carry pocketbooks in their hand and expert thieves slip up and grab them. The Peterborough bank that will give its lady customers the new style chamois pocket, attached to a garter, will get the business.

INCREASE IN EXPORT TRADE

This is Attributable Almost to Wheat—Some Interesting Figures.

A despatch from Ottawa says that the Customs revenue for the seven months ending Jan. 31, shows a gain of over half a million dollars, while the gain for the month of January was $30,106. The following are the figures in detail—

For seven months ending Jan. 31, 1904-5, $24, 206,987; 1903-4, $23,626,504; increase, $580,482.86.

Month of January—1904-5, $3,004,849; 1903-4, $2,974,743; increase, $30,106.

YEAR'S TRADE REVIEWED.

The report of the Department of Trade and Commerce notes an aggregate increase in the trade of the country of $5,000,000. There has been an increase, it notes, of nearly $18,000,000 in the imports, and a falling off in exports of over $12,000,000. The increase in imports during the year has been general on all important articles, notably among them coal, coke, etc., to the extent of about $4,640,000; sugar and molasses nearly $2,300,000; tea, $1,221,000; wood and manufactures of, $2,400,000; wool and manufactures of, over $1,700,000; electrical apparatus, nearly $800,000.

On the other hand the decrease in exports amounted to over $1,800,000 on animals living; over $10,000,000 on breadstuffs (wheat); over $1,000,000 on fish; over $4,000,000 on provisions and over $3,000,000 on wood manufactured. There has, however, been an increase in the exports of minor articles, aggregating nearly $8,500,000, leaving a net total decrease of $12,328,480. In point of fact, nearly the whole net decrease is attributable to the one item, wheat. The production for export in Manitoba and the Northwest was considerably less than in the previous year. The quantity inspected at Winnipeg was but 40,000,000 bushels as against nearly 52,000,000 the previous year.

SPRINGVILLE

A very pleasing event took place on Wednesday evening of last week at the residence of Mr. John McIntosh. The choir assembled for practice and at the conclusion of the singing Miss McIntosh was honored, when Mr. F. E. Wilson read an address from the choir and congregation, expressing appreciation of the services rendered by her during the five years in which she has faithfully filled the position of organist, and asking her to accept a gold watch. Miss Tessie Bothwell made the presentation. Miss McIntosh was so taken by surprise she was unable to express her thanks, but her father on her behalf made a suitable speech. Refreshments were then served by the ladies and a very enjoyable hour spent in social intercourse.

SEED BILL DISCUSSED

Enquiries Made As to Mr. Sifton's Prolonged Absence.

The Young Napoleon of the Interior is Not Improving in Health So Rapidly As Hoped For—Immigrants For the Last Calendar Year Numbered 124,223—All Were Medically Inspected—Mr. Borden Becomes Facetious.

Ottawa, Feb 17.—Mr. Fisher's seed bill held the intermittent attention of the House during most of yesterday's sitting. The measure was severely handled by the Opposition, who debated it clause by clause until 10.30 o'clock last night.

Mr. Staples of Macdonald, Man., who strongly condemned the bill, took occasion to tell the committee of the shameful tactics used against him in the general election, when the names of many Conservative electors were marked off the list with red ink. But for that, his majority, which was a large one, would have exceeded that of Mr. Sifton's in Brandon, he said.

Mr. Cockshutt pointed out that another effect of the bill would be to take away from Ontario farmers a profitable source of revenue, inasmuch as it would affect the business of raising seed for export, which netted some two million a year. He suggested that the bill be sent to the committee on agriculture, when it could be licked into shape by the lawyers and farmers.

Mr. Fisher defended his bill with vigor and more or less effect, until it came to the legal features of the measure. At one stage the minister amended the section preventing a dealer from having in possession for export seeds slightly under standard, by adding a clause allowing a dealer to hold screenings, or refuse, for export.

"With my limited knowledge of the subject, the only comment I can make on this is that it comes dangerously near being nonsense," was Mr. Borden's humorous criticism.

The several amendments were eventually concurred in, with the understanding that the bill be reprinted before being taken up for the third reading, this day week, "or later," as Geo. Taylor observed.

Enquiring As to Mr. Sifton.

The absence of Hon. Clifford Sifton, who is sojourning in Indiana for his health, it is said, was made the subject of enquiry in the House yesterday. "Who is administering the affairs of the interior department at present?" Mr. Foster asked in the house to-day, "And when may we expect him back? There are certain matters of more or less importance to be brought up and which are awaiting his return, if it is not too long delayed."

"I had a report some time ago from the minister himself that he expected to be here on the 15th." Sir Wilfrid answered, adding, "I understand, however, that he will not be able to return for some time, as the progress of his health, I am sorry to say, is not so rapid as was expected. In the meantime I shall be happy to give my hon. friend any departmental information in my power."

Dr. Barr was informed in the house to-day that 124,223 immigrants had arrived in the Dominion during the calendar year 1904. The number of children under 13 years was 17,066. All had been medically inspected in Europe at no cost to Canada. All had also been inspected on arrival, the following amounts being paid to examiners: Dr. A. C. Hawkins, $1261; Dr. W. L. Ellis, $1800; Dr. A. Potvin, $1019; Dr. J. C. Howe, $1400; Dr. A. D. Stewart, $1222.

Mr. Foster enquired if it was the intention of the government to bring down a vote for the erection of the new building of the meteorological service in Toronto. He received from Mr. Hyman the stereotyped answer, that the matter was under consideration.

Mr. Boyce was again refused information as to the plans fyled by the Grand Trunk Pacific for its terminals on the Pacific coast. As the plans have not yet been approved by the minister the locations of the proposed terminals will not be divulged.

Mr. Borden renewed his question as to the reasons which induced the returning officer in the Yukon to delay the return of Dr. Thompson.

The prime minister promised to bring the correspondence down on Monday.

Temperance Workers Will Convene.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—A call has been issued for a temperance convention in Toronto next week, commencing on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The annual meeting of the Royal Templars will be held on Tuesday of next week and it is expected that at least 150 of the delegates coming to this convention will remain for the convention later in the week.

The convention will ask to be received by Premier Whitney and the Provincial Secretary, when a strong demand will be made for temperance legislation. How far the convention will go is not known, but it is believed that the demands will be moderate.

Killed But Not Murdered.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 17.—Sam Bowen, a 17-year-old negro student of the Georgia State College, for colored youth at college, was found not guilty Wednesday night of the charge of murder of Prof. E. Cotton, a member of the faculty, whom he killed with a brick on Feb. 2. The professor had ejected Bowen from a class room after an altercation. He followed the boy out, threatening him with a stick, when Bowen hurled a brick, striking Cotton on the head.

A Royal Betrothal.

Coburg, Duchy of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, Feb. 17.—The betrothal is announced of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha to the Princess Victoria, eldest daughter of Duke Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glueckeburg. The Princess is a niece of the German Emperor, while the bridegroom-elect is a nephew of King Edward of England.

Orient Liner Ashore.

Perth, West Australia, Feb 17.—The Orient Line steamer Orizaba, with passengers and mails for Sydney, N.S.W., is ashore off Garden Island, 20 miles out of her course. Her position is not considered dangerous. The British cruiser Katoomba has gone to the Orizaba's assistance.

THE TEA KING OF AMERICA.

What Has Been Accomplished by Mr. P. C. Larkin, of Toronto, in Fourteen Years.

About fourteen years ago, Mr. P. C. Larkin, who is best known among the trade as the "Tea King of America," formed the idea of delivering tea to the public in sealed lead packets, such as is done in England, thereby retaining all the good qualities of the tea.

At that time a good many of the wholesale grocers considered that a package tea could not be made successful in America, but Mr. Larkin realised that in order to give the consumer tea fresh from the gardens in all its purity and goodness it should be packed in sealed lead packets; he, therefore, commenced the packing of "SALADA" Ceylon Tea, which to-day is known from one end of the continent to the other, and is sold at the rate of 12,000,000 packets per annum.

Starting in a small warehouse at 25 Front street East, Toronto, but finding those premises were away too small, they were compelled to seek larger premises elsewhere, removing to 32 Yonge street, but since then they have had to enlarge their premises again and again.

When once well established in Ontario and the Northwest a branch warehouse was opened in Montreal, and from there the business spread throughout the Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. Then a branch was opened in Buffalo, in a year or two another in Pittsburg, then one in Detroit, in Boston, and afterwards in Chicago, New York, Minneapolis and San Francisco, and from these different branches the whole of the United States is well covered, until to-day the "SALADA" Tea Co.'s business is the most gigantic thing of its kind on the Continent of America, and growing enormously all the time.

The policy of the business has been to serve the public well, and this brought its reward in the shape of this enormous business and the Gold Medal and Highest Award for "SALADA" Black and Green tea at the St. Louis Exposition.—From The American Grocer.

FAR EAST BUYS CANADA'S FLOUR

Business Has Been Growing Slowly But Steadily.

THE PROGRESS OF TWO YEARS

Japs Will Have to be Educated in Value and Economy in Using Better Grade of Flour.

A despatch from Montreal says — It is only within the past two years that business in any large quantity in high-grade flours has been carried on between Canada and Japan. An impetus in this direction was given when the Canadian millers placed their products before the people of the island kingdom at the Osaka Exhibition. Prior to that the Japanese had merely imported the inferior grades of flour.

Both the Ogilvie Milling Company and the Lake of the Woods Milling Company are now devoting a great deal of attention to expansion of trade with the East, but both alike are indisposed to give figures that would indicate how the growth in quantity is progressing. They content themselves with pointing out that they are doing a fair line of business with both China and Japan, and especially with the latter — a line of business that is, they think, capable of indefinite expansion.

The business will of necessity be limited for the time being, it is asserted by those who are in a position to know, for the reason that both countries, and particularly Japan, are just commencing to take hard wheat flours. They have been accustomed heretofore to using soft wheats and lower grades. Trade along better lines has improved as the value of hard wheat flours has become more widely recognized.

The Canadian millers in their business with Japan in flours are going through much the same experience that they underwent in attempting to extend their business to the West Indies and South Africa. In each instance it took about five years of education before the bakers became impressed with the value and economy of using a better grade of flour in their products. The difficulty as regards Japan is still further increased by the fact that very little bread is used, the flour, with the exception of that used in making bread for the European population, going into the composition of sweet cakes, in which, naturally, the efficacy of high-grade flours is not so readily recognized.

There came a time in the West Indies and in South Africa, however, when the larger bakers came to see that better products could be made for less money from the high-grade flour. They then refused to purchase anything else, when the smaller bakers were forced to follow their example. A similar transformation is expected to take place in Japan as the trade expands, though the process is likely to take somewhat longer.

A circumstance that will militate somewhat against Canadian millers is the fact that low grade flours are almost exclusively made from the wheat grown in California, thus giving the millers of that State an opportunity of securing more favorable freight rates to the Far East than is possible to those carrying on a similar class of business on this side the line. All Canadian flours have to be carried from Manitoba to Vancouver, going from thence by steamer to Japan and China. They will consequently have a better chance of coping on terms of quality with the American millers when the high-grade flours are more generally in use in the Orient.

GREAT KINDNESS SHOWN.

Mr. John O'Brien and Family are Again Comfortably Situated.

Mr. John O'Brien speaks most appreciatively of the many kindnesses that have been shown him since the misfortune which befell him a few nights ago, when the fiery element consumed his house and almost every thing that was contained in it. Friends have been most practical in redressing his misfortune, and today he finds himself residing in a house, not far from where the last one stood, and it contains comfortable and useful furniture much of which was supplied by those who interested themselves generously in his condition. Not a few financial favors have also found their way to him, and today both he and Mrs. O'Brien are profoundly grateful.

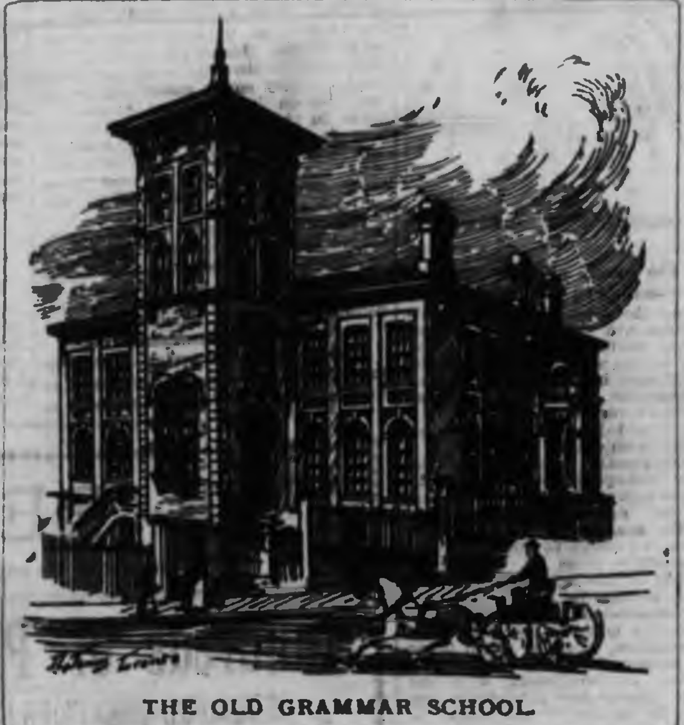
RUNNING OF RIVER DAMS ON SQUARE TIMBER CRIBS

An Old Pupil of Peterboro' Grammar School Describes the Early Sport of Some of the Boys.

How Instruction Was Given Forty Years Ago—Rev. John King Was the Principal in 1865—Building Which Was Opened in 1860 Looks Just the Same To-day—Same Sheds Were Also There—The Classical Text Books Used in the Good Days.

The following exceedingly bright and humorous article appears in Collegiate Echoes. It is entitled "The Collegiate Institute of the Sixties" or "'Tis Forty Years Ago," by an old boy," who says—

If you had asked the average school boy of forty years ago to point out the Collegiate Institute he would not have known what you meant. It was known as the Grammar School in those days. And if you had asked for the Grammar School he would have conducted you up to the third story of the present Central School, and led you to the north-east room of the building. There you would have found a room full of boys. Co-education of the sexes was not in vogue in those days. Presiding over the Grammar School in 1865 was the Rev. John King, M.A., a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin. He taught Latin, Greek and Geography, ancient and modern History and English. He was a good Classical scholar and was most precise and exact as to the quantities of the Latin and Greek vowels. There was no such thing as slurring over the pronunciation of a word. Every vowel had to be indicated as long or short in the reading, whether of prose or verse. Mr. Chas. D. Curry—now Dr. Curry, of Minden—was Mathematical Master and gave his pupils a thorough grounding in his subjects. He occupied the room on the same floor at the south-east of the building. Miss Kyle presided over the highest class of girls in the south-west room on the same floor. She taught the boys French and was a very competent teacher. Greek, as well as Latin, was a compulsory subject. For Junior Matriculation, the texts prescribed in Greek included the first book of Homer's Iliad, Lucian's Charon, and a book of Xenophon's Anabasis. The Latin texts were—Virgil: Aeneid B. II. Cicero: In Catilinam, and Horace: Odes B. I. German was not taught, and there was no instruction in Chemistry. The Matriculation examination had to be taken at Toronto in September. There were no local examinations until a number of years later.



THE OLD GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The building, which had been opened in 1860, looks just the same today as it did forty years ago. It stands to-day as a monument to the wisdom and farsightedness of the men who nearly half a century ago planned for greater things in the days to come. The same sheds—minus the gymnasium room—were there in the "Sixties," and the playgrounds were just as rough and uninteresting as they are to-day. The boys' ground had the advantage of being larger, as the present Collegiate building had not then been erected.

THE DINNER HOUR

Only an hour—from twelve to one—was allowed for the dinner hour. In consequence a good many of the pupils who lived at a distance brought their luncheons. In summer they filled in the time by adjourning to "Goose Island" for a swim. In winter there were snowball fights, sometimes with the pupils of a nearby private school. On one occasion, when the snow was particularly favorable, there was a break-out at recess time, and a stalwart force marched up to the Separate School—then held where the convent now stands—and a pitched battle was waged, while expectant teachers waited in vain for the reassembling of the school. It was a glorious afternoon. Yes, there was a time of retribution.

A sport of those days, which cannot be enjoyed by the boys to-day, was the running of the dams on the river on the cribs of square timber. Not long after the time referred to, the practice of floating square timber down the river was discontinued. In the "Sixties" large quantities of it were brought down. The immense sticks of square pine were placed side by side and the whole bound into a solid crib, from 60 to 80 feet long and between 20 and 25 feet wide. Two long sweeps of oars at the front and two more at the stern of the crib were used to steer it. The crew usually consisted of five men, one for each oar, and a pilot. The crib had to be guided carefully into the opening of the "slide" of the dam, which was usually only a little wider than the crib. Then the men hurriedly pulled in the oars and ran back to the centre loading log—a stick of square timber above the rest—and took their places as near the back end of this as possible, holding on by a rope fastened to it.

RUSHING THE CRIBS

Just at the moment that the crib entered the slide, and while the men were busy hauling in their oars, a boy or sometimes two or three of them, would jump from the pier to the crib and rush back to the loading log, before the plunge was taken. A tight grip was taken on the rope, and everyone braced himself to avoid being jerked off the loading log. With a majestic sweep the crib sped down the smooth, swift water of the slide, and, with tremendous impetus gathered in the descent, plunged under the foaming breakers at the foot. Usually the back end of the loading log rose clear of the waves and after a few breathless moments in the tossing, tumbling waters the danger was over, and the men rushed again to their posts and ran out the long sweeps and pulled with might and main as directed by a wave of the hand from the pilot, in order to keep the crib end on for the slide. Sometimes the whole crib went under water, and men and boys alike were drenched and at times a man lost his hold and was washed off and drowned. The writer well remembers being one of a party of three boys on a crib one day, when one of them, Will Coulter, lost his hold and was being washed off. One of the crew jumped off the loading log and caught him by the hair and held on to him until the crib had safely passed the breakers, and was again above water. And coming closer home, the writer also remembers a thrilling experience, when, in consequence of slipping after jumping from the pier to the crib, he was unable to reach the centre loading log and had barely time to throw himself flat on the forward end of the outside loading log and thus ride through the breakers. As it happened his feet were pointing towards the bow of the crib, and when it went under, his feet were lifted by the water until he nearly stood on his head, and the clasp of the arms around the loading log was that of a grip for life. The sight of his floating up, during the seconds—which seemed minutes—that he himself was lost to sight, gave the spectators who thronged the bridge that afternoon a share in the excitement of the occasion.

Occasionally a stick of timber in the crib was caught by a rock and struck from its lashings and the force of the water was such that the tall stick, pinned at the fore end, was lifted to an upright position, to come crashing down on the back end of the crib as it shot forward. More than once the writer had the excitement of watching one of these immense timbers being lifted to its full height in the air and wondering whether it would fall upon him and the crew standing on the floating log. And as this sport of running the dams was often indulged in at the noon hour, there were not a few afternoons that had to be endured in a wet suit of clothes until four o'clock gave a chance to go home and change them. Sometimes cribs were wholly broken up and several men drowned, but the boys managed to escape such a catastrophe.

The boys of the old Grammar School are a little older, but some of them are still boys enough to look back with pleasure to what they delight to call "the good old days."

FURNISHING THE Y.W.C.A.

Citizens Will be Given an Opportunity to Assist in the Work.

The House Committee of the Y.W.C.A. desire to announce that as the building is nearing completion it is necessary that arrangements be made for the furnishing of the rooms.

The committee feel that very many of the citizens would like to assist in the matter. The custom in all public institutions is to have iron bedsteads, and in order to have uniformity in this particular, the committee intend purchasing these wholesale.

It is almost impossible to specify the articles required, but anything in the line of house furnishing will be thankfully received.

Donations in money or goods may be sent to the Y.W.C.A. rooms, over the Bank of Commerce, at as early a date as possible.

Permanent Cure For Bronchitis
"My second daughter was troubled with bronchitis from the age of three weeks. Often times I thought she would choke to death. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine brought relief and further treatment made a thorough cure. This trouble used to come back from time to time the cure is now permanent." — Mrs. Richmond Withrow, Shubenacadie, Hants Co., N. S.

DR. SCOLLARD IN RETREAT

Will Remain at St. Michael's College Until He Leaves for Peterborough.

The Bishop-elect of Sault Ste. Marie, Dr. Scollard, is at present in Toronto. He went into retreat at St. Michael's College on Wednesday and will stay there until he leaves for Peterborough. As already announced the consecration takes place on Friday, Feb. 24th.

Both the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. have arranged to allow all persons from outside points attending the consecration the return rate for single fare. The arrangement made is that the ticket is applied for any of Toronto, a certificate is issued along with the single ticket. This certificate will be good for the return journey from Peterborough. The attendance at the consecration is certain to be very large.

NORWOOD HAPPENINGS

Village Battles With Storm—Death of Mrs William Day.

Norwood, Feb. 15.

There died in Belleville on Thursday, Feb. 9th, Amy Harvey, relict of the late William Day, formerly of Asphodel, and mother of Mrs. F. W. Wilkins, of Norwood. Deceased was 92 years old.

The funeral took place on Monday, Feb. 13, 1905, from the G.T.R. station, Hastings, on the arrival of the 7.22 a.m. express, to the Norwood Cemetery.

A large number of friends and acquaintances of the deceased joined the cortege on its arrival at the village and followed remains to their last resting place.

The snow storm of Sunday and Monday has resulted in the almost complete blockade of many of the roads in this vicinity.

The Hastings stage was unable to get through on Monday afternoon and traffic and hauling are almost at a stand still. The weather has been the coldest experienced this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Fraser are visiting a few days at her sister's Mrs. Bertram, near Peterborough.

Mr. W. G. Spencer who has been absent attending the funeral of his father at Warkworth, returned to Norwood last week.

Mr. D. J. McLean has been awarded the contract of building a new snow plough for the corporation.

The Methodist S. S. entertainment announced to take place on the 14th inst. has been postponed until Friday evening, Feb. 24th.

Mr. Asa Lobb, of Manitoba, son of Mr. Thos. Lobb, Asphodel, was united in matrimony on Wednesday evening to Miss Alice Oakman, daughter of Mr. Wm. Oakman, Asphodel.

Mr. C. A. Ghent, barrister, of Havelock, was in town last Friday.

The Misses Fraser entertained a number of their friends at their home on Tuesday evening.

We are pleased to be able to announce that Mr. J. B. Pearce, who has been ill for some time is progressing favorably towards recovery.

The new council promised to lower taxes. They evidently did not reckon with four feet of snow and five or six miles of side walks to keep clear. They have been looking after business, however and fairly clear walks are in all parts of the village.

Healthy and Vigorous
Mr. John Shelton, the well known bridge builder of 101 Sherwood St., Ottawa, states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney and liver derangements brought on by exposure, and find them better than any pill or medicine I ever used. They cleansed my system and made me feel healthy and vigorous, and better in every way."

When washing greasy dishes or pots and pans, Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) will remove the grease with the greatest ease.

FRICTION ABOUT FALL FAIRS.

Eastern Men Will Withdraw From the Central Association.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—The Central Fairs Association of Ontario concluded their annual session at Victoria Hall yesterday. The chief matters under discussion were the proposals to change the form of distributing the Government grant and to make no distinction between district and township fairs. No action will be taken on either of these points, but the association will wait for the Government to make an assertion, which it is hoped to be able to discuss at the next annual meeting.

R. B. Faith, of Ottawa, advocated a division of the association into East and West Ontario. He contended that Toronto was too far from the extreme districts. The meeting was not favorable to Mr. Faith's proposal, but the eastern men are determined and the Eastern Fairs Association will take the matter into its own hands and run an independent association.

These officers were elected: President, J. W. Shepherd, Cayuga; first vice-president, James Mitchell, Goderich; second vice-president, Rev. C.D. Clark, Metcalf; recording secretary, Alex. MacFarlane, Otterville; executive committee, John Farrell, Forest; W. B. Sanders, Stayner; William Alexander, Burk's Falls; R. Honey, Brickley; J. Thomas Murphy, Simcoe; W. Black, Parham; D. Quinlan, Barrie.

To Secure Safety of Trains.

Pittsburg, Feb. 17.—A ten-day test of the telautograph was opened here yesterday by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and while a final report will not be given until the end of the ten days, the test of yesterday was an unbounded success, and it is reasonably certain that unless something unforeseen comes up the telautograph will be adopted here, as it has been in the fog stations of St. Louis and New York. By the telautograph yesterday handled by J. B. Blunt, who conducted the experiments at the World's Fair, messages written on the transmitter were recorded simultaneously at various other receivers. Three receiving stations were used in the test. The transmitter was placed in the office of the train despatcher and the receiving stations were in the office of the station master, the train-master and in a nearby tower. Experiments with longer distances will be made to-day and on succeeding days.

Trouble Now Averted.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—The executive committee of the Great Lakes Dredging and Tug Owners' Protective Association yesterday effected a wage agreement with the firemen and linesmen. On Monday the representatives of the owners and the employes seemed on the verge of a deadlock. In the agreement for 1905, wages for firemen remain at $60 per month and for linesmen at $40 per month. Incidental conditions as to hours and overtime are said to be equivalent to ½ per cent. increase for the men. Last week the dredge and ocean men secured a similar 7½ per cent. increase.

Losses Cause Suicide.

Listowel, Feb. 17.—Arthur Dowd, a popular Mornington farmer, committed suicide at his home yesterday morning. After breakfast he went to the barn to do his chores. Not returning, his sister, who had been keeping watch on him for some time, became alarmed. Search revealed his body suspended from a rafter in the barn. Melancholy, caused by real estate losses, and a heavy loss sustained by a cyclone in 1903, is supposed to be the cause. Deceased was an unmarried man and temperate. He was about 37 years of age.

Cameron M.P.P. By Two Votes.

Goderich, Feb. 17.—His Honor Judge Doyle handed out his judgment in the West Huron re-count, holding that M. G. Cameron had a majority of two of the total votes cast. Mr. Holmes gained three votes. Mr. Dickinson, counsel for Mr. Holmes, has given notice that he will appeal from his honor's judgment, to a high court judge at Toronto.

In the Garrow-Beck election of 1900 Mr. Garrow was declared elected by the casting vote of the returning officer.

To Parry Sound By September.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—D. D. Mann, who was in the city yesterday, stated that the James Bay Railway from Toronto to Parry Sound, a distance of 150 miles, will be completed by September next. There are 1,200 men now employed on rock-cutting and other heavy work between the points named. Another large force is in the woods getting out ties. Five locomotives and 200 flat cars for construction work have been ordered for spring delivery.

Toronto Has 900 Chinese.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—The annual meeting of the Toronto Chinese Mission was held last night in the lecture room at Knox Church. The secretary's report was read and adopted. Toronto has now a population of over 900 Celestials, who manage 226 laundries, stores and restaurants, with three or four men for each place.

Suffocated By Gas.

GRAVE DISEASES, DUE TO STANDING
Facts About Miss Merkley's Dangerous Illness and Complete Cure
Have you ever thought why so many women or girls rather walk an hour than stand still for ten minutes?

Miss Margret Merkley
It is because most women suffer from some derangement of their delicate organism, the discomfort of which is less trying when they are in motion than when standing.
In some states laws compel employers to provide resting places for their female employees.
But no amount of law can regulate the hard tasks of these women. They must get the strength which this work demands or run the risk of serious diseases and the surgeon's knife.
Read about the experience of Miss Margret Merkley, 275 3d Street, Milwaukee, Wis.:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"General loss of strength, nervousness, bearing-down pains and extreme irritability compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said I had ovarian trouble and ulceration of the womb, and advised an operation if I wanted to get well. I objected to this and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I soon found that all the good things said about this great medicine were true. The ulceration soon healed, backache, headache and nervousness disappeared, and in a short time I was strong, vigorous and perfectly well. I wish every working girl who suffers would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a vegetable tonic which invigorates and strengthens the entire female organism, and will produce the same beneficial results in the case of any sick woman as with Miss Merkley.

TWO GOLDEN LILLIES

The Salvation Army Song Brigade Gives its First Service.

The Service-of-song Brigade in connection with the Salvation Army gave their first special song service last night at the barracks. There was a very large attendance and the service was heartily enjoyed. The title was "Two Golden Lillies." It was a pathetic story of the sea and showed how a little tot saved her father's life at the risk of her own. The story was interspersed with well-rendered solos, duets and quartettes,all of which made up a very interesting programme. About twenty-five took part.

WILL PURCHASE PROPERTY

Beet Sugar Co's shareholders Sanction an Important Step.

A well attended meeting of the shareholders of the Beet Sugar Company was held in Foresters' Hall, George-st., yesterday afternoon. A by-law authorizing the Directors to take necessary steps to complete the purchase of the property in the south end of the town, was passed. There is reason to believe that interest in the beet sugar industry is to be revived with the opening of spring, and those familiar with the situation state that the prospects for the establishment of a factory here are becoming very bright. This fact was evident at the meeting yesterday, there being a growing confidence among the shareholders that under proper management such an undertaking might be brought to a very successful issue.

At Opera House Next Week.

The best company at popular prices that has ever appeared here.—London Advertiser.

The above notice appeared in the London Advertiser of Jan. 19, '05, and was written of the Bijou Stock Co., headed by Marjie Adams and H. Wilmot Young, which will inaugurate a week's engagement at the Royal Opera House Monday, Jan. 30th. This company carries a car load of scenery—eight big vaudeville features—and has a repertoire of plays new to popular priced audiences. The opening bill, Vermont State Folks, is from the pen of H. Wilmot Young, and as a rural play has been compared favorably with the Old Homestead. The scene of the play, as the title implies, is located in Central Vermont, and the scenery is apropos to the locality.

Mr. Young in the leading character has been warmly praised by both critics and playgoers.

The Bijou Company will be at the Opera House, Peterborough, all week, Feb. 20th, opening Monday night in the comedy drama Fogg's Ferry.

CONSECRATION OF THE BISHOP

Important Event to Take Place Here for Second Time.

DESCRIPTION OF CEREMONY

Very Large Attendance of Clergy at the First Consecration on May 1st, 1889, When Bishop O'Connor Was Made Spiritual Head of Diocese.

On Friday next, Feb. 24, for the second time in the history of the diocese of Peterborough, one of the most imposing, solemn and august rites in the ritual of the Catholic church will be celebrated in St. Peter's cathedral. It was on May 1st, 1889 that His Lordship, Bishop O'Connor was elevated to the Episcopal seat, and on that occasion the gathering of clergy was one of the largest ever seen in Peterborough, there being ten Archbishops and Bishops present.

In view of the consecration of Rev. Father Scollard as Bishop of the new diocese of Sault Ste. Marie next Friday it may be of some interest to give a description of the first event of that kind in the history of the diocese. The ceremony attracted an immense congregation, which filled St. Peter's to its utmost capacity. At ten o'clock sharp the procession entered the church from the vestry, and passed down the east aisle and up the centre to the altar rail. It was led by the cross bearers and acolytes. Then came the minor clergy, then the Bishops, then Bishop-elect O'Connor and the senior and junior assistants, Archbishop Fabre of Montreal and Archbishop Duhamel of Ottawa and the consecrator, Bishop Cleary of Kingston and his chaplains brought up the rear.

The consecrator, who on that occasion was Bishop Cleary is vested in full Pontificals, and the Bishop-elect had on the amice, alb, cincture and stole, crossed upon the breast as a priest and the cope. The two assistant Bishops are in rochets, stoles, copes and mitres. The procession arriving at the altar, the consecrator takes his seat before the altar, and the Bishop-elect is presented to him. The apostolic commission is then read and the oath taken on bended knees. Then the examination follows.

HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP O'CONNOR.

The examination being closed, the assistant bishops lead the elect to the consecrator, before whom he kneels and reverently kisses his hand. The consecrator then lays off his mitre and turns to the altar and commences the mass as usual, the elect being at his left hand, and the assistant bishops in their seats. After the confession the Consecrator continues the mass to the last verse of the sequence, when he again takes his seat before the altar. The bishop elect, after the confession, with the assistant bishops and attendants proceeds to the smaller chapel where he lays aside his cope, and opening the stole, he puts on the pectoral cross and girds on the stole without crossing it on his breast. He is also invested with the tunic, dalmatic and chasuble and puts on the sandals, symbolic of apostolic commission, and then standing at his altar between the assisting bishops, says the mass.

LITANY OF THE SAINTS.

The consecrator and the elect having each read the epistle and the first part of the sequence, the assistant bishops lead the elect before the former, and all, after saluting the consecrator, sit down. The consecrator and the assistant bishops, resting forward in their seats and the elect lying at the left of the consecrator and the others kneeling, the Litanies of the Saints are sung, after which the elect kneels before the consecrator, who takes the book of the Gospels and places it on the shoulders of the elect, where it is so held until given to him. It is placed inversely, the bottom of the page being turned towards the consecrator. The instruction given by this rite is apparent — the Gospel must not be for him a sealed book, the duty of unfolding the truths which it contains especially pressing upon him. This rite is very ancient being found in all the ancient rituals, Latin, Greek and Syriac. The imposition of hands immediately follows the placing of the Gospel upon the shoulders of the elect, and after several prayers for general blessings, the consecrator, placing his hands on the crown of the elect's head, offers up a prayer.

HE IS WORTHY.

After this he takes the Gospel and places it on the table, and puts the summer sacrament on the new Bishop with the words "He is worthy." The prayers which follow are very ancient, and determine the laying on of hands to signify and confer the grace and power of the episcopacy. The head of the bishop elect is then bound with linen cloths to prevent the oil with which the crown of the head is anointed from dropping to the ground, and then after a short prayer the sacred canticle is sung. At the end of the end of the first verse, while the choir continues singing the hymn, the consecrator makes the sign of the cross with holy chrism on the hands of the bishop-elect and anoints the crown with the words, "May thy head be anointed and consecrated with heavenly benediction in the Pontifical Order, in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost."

RECEPTION OF GOSPEL.

The anointing of the hands then follows with the recital of the 132 Psalm. The hands are then joined and placed in a linen scarf, suspended from the neck through reverence of the oil with which they are anointed. Then the book of the Gospels is taken from the shoulders of the consecrated by the consecrator and the assisting bishops and handed to the new bishop with the words "Receive the gospel, go preach to the people committed to thy care, for God is powerful, that he may increase to thee His grace, who liveth and reigneth, world without end!" Then the consecrated receives the kiss of peace form the consecrator and the assisting bishops. The newly consecrated bishop then retires with the assistant bishops to the smaller chapel, where the oil is rubbed off with the crumb of bread. Having washed his hands he proceeds with the mass to the offertory exclusively, as also does the consecrator, after which the latter again seats himself before the altar, and the consecrated prelate, attended by his assistants, presented himself and offers two lighted tapers, two ornamental loaves, and two small ornamental barrels of wine, and kisses the Consecrator's hand as soon as the offering is received. Then the consecrator, having washed his hands goes to the alter and the bishop elect goes to the episcopal side, each having his own missal, and read together there being only one host and one chalice for both.

The kiss of peace is given by the consecrator and after mass continues as usual, the consecrator gives his blessing and seats himself before the altar, the newly consecrated prelate also seating himself before his altar.

The sermon at the consecration of Bishop O'Connor was preached by Bishop Walsh of London. At the conclusion of the sermon the mitre, the crosier and the gloves are blessed, after which the ceremony of placing the new bishop on the Episcopal throne is performed and as the Te Deum is sung the Bishop passes through the church blessing the people as he moves along.

Bishop O'Connor's predecessor here was Bishop Dowling, now of Hamilton, who, it is expected will attend the ceremony next Friday.

MILL HAD CLOSE CALL

Early Morning Blaze at Meldrum's Flour Mill, Foot Simcoe Street.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum's new flour mill at the eastern extremity of Simcoe-st. had rather a close call this morning when a fire broke out in the chop room. It was discovered at seven o'clock this morning when the men came to the mill to resume their work. They smelt something burning and on investigation found a blaze in the chop room. The fire brigade was immediately summoned and soon extinguished the fire which was confined entirely to the chop room. The damage was trifling and will not exceed $30.

The fire is supposed to have originated from a spark from the grinder falling into the wheat bin and smouldering there all night. It is fortunate that the fire was noticed before it had done much damage.

Lifebuoy Soap—disinfectant—is strongly recommended by the medical profession as a safeguard against infectious diseases.

FREQUENT VISITOR DEAD

Ald. Kelly, of Rochester, Who Spent His Summers at Chemong.

Among the summer visitors from Rochester at Chemong, cottagers in particular will remember Mr. J. Miller Kelly, and it will be with regret that they learn of his death, which took place on Tuesday morning last, the result of appendicitis. John Miller Kelly was one of the most prominent men in the political and business life of Rochester. He was an alderman of that city, and at different times he represented his assembly districts at Democratic conventions.

The deceased gentleman on the occasion of his visits here was the guest of the Kondolph family at Chemong and he made many warm friends on these trips.

POLICE COURT NOTES

John Duncan Fined for Being Drunk—Three Italians in Line.

John Duncan was fined $2 and $2.50 costs at police court this morning for being drunk. Mr. H. Rush, J. P., presided.

Duncan was found last night about eleven o'clock trying to force in a door of a Hunter-st. residence. He was very drunk and evidently had made a mistake in his surroundings.

The three Italians, Marfeso, DePalma and Mensi, charged with aiding Pamphilio Marfeso to escape from the arm of the law, were remanded until Monday.

VERY GENEROUS ACTION

How Men of Lock Works Helped an Unfortunate Brother.

The employees of the Lock Works showed their generosity in a very practical way recently. One of the young men employed there is F. O'Brien, son of Mr. John O'Brien, whose home was burned a few nights ago. On hearing of the circumstances, the employees circulated a subscription list and raised a sum of about $45, which they handed to Mr. O'Brien for application in relieving the unfortunate conditions which had overtaken him. The kindly and considerate spirit shown by the men of the Lock Works is deserving of the highest commendation.

FIRE HALL EXTENSION

Fire, Water and Light Considers Ald. Johnston's Proposition.

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was held last evening for the purpose, chiefly, of considering Ald. Johnston's proposal with regard to the extension of the fire hall. That one of the greatest needs of the town is improvement in this department, is admitted on all sides, but there does not appear to be a unanimity of feeling among the members of the Council that money should be expended in the extension proposition. There seems to be a feeling that Peterborough has reached that stage where a modern and thoroughly equipped fire station should be built and should a by-law providing the wherewithall for this purpose be submitted to the people, they, on serious consideration of the circumstances, would undoubtedly sanction it. The council will very likely consider the question at a very early date.

COLLEGIATE ECHOES

Latest Venture in Journalistic Field is Decidedly Creditable One.

Peterborough has a new paper. It is called "Collegiate Echoes," and is issued by the students of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

The publication will appear each month during the school year and is sold at five cents per copy. It is a clean, bright, well-printed and attractive journal of sixteen pages and is devoted to the interests of the institute. It is full of good reading matter of an instructive and entertaining character, and the advertising columns contain the announcements of business men.

An excellent cut of the proposed new collegiate building is shown. A particularly interesting article is "The Collegiate Institute of the Sixties," by an old boy. The staff of the Collegiate Echoes is — Joint Editors L. Smithson, M. Roberts; business manager, S. Fife; assistant editors: Personals—upper school, K. Martin; lower school, C. Clementi; athletics, B. Miller; nature study, M. Fife; humor, G. Walsh.

The officers of the society are — Hon.-Pres., C. Fessenden; Hon.-Vice-Pres., A. Weir, J. Jeffries; Pres., D. Davidson; Vice-Pres., L. Smithson; Sec., A. Hyde; Treas., M. Burnett.

The work of editing and managing is done by the pupils, and their aim will be to reflect as comprehensively as possible the different phases of the life of the collegiate.

Many friends, admirers and former students of the school will wish Collegiate Echoes every success and prosperity. Editorially the publication concluded—"The benefit that the journal will be to the school as a whole will certainly be sufficient recompense for the work connected with it. It is just as good practice to write an article for the paper as to write one of the ordinary compositions, and to those who undertake the editing and managing of the paper, the practice in business systems and methods will be valuable. We hope to create a deeper interest and pride in the Collegiate throughout the town through the publication and circulation of "Collegiate Echoes."

BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA

Directors Decide to Increase Capital Stock to $3,000,000—Prosperous Year.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 16.—At the annual meeting of the Bank of Nova Scotia yesterday a resolution was adopted authorizing the directors to increase the capital stock from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000, should they deem it advisable.

General Manager McLeod said there would likely be legislation dealing with the growth of the reserve of banks. The present law says the reserve must not exceed double the amount of the capital stock.

The general manager, in his address, said that whatever changes might be made in the future, if any, the name of the bank would never be changed, but the institution would always remain the "Bank of Nova Scotia."

The general manager also stated that the affairs of the bank were in the very best possible condition, and that there was nothing in sight to cause any departure whatever from the sound principle on which the bank's affairs have been conducted in the past.

The shareholders expressed the opinion that the annual statement was one of the very strongest ever put out by any bank in Canada, and it was characterized by one of them as "simply marvellous, a credit not only to the province, but to the country at large."

The bank is opening up a branch in Peterborough at the corner of George and Charlotte streets.

THE RACE TRACK.

Referring to the 2.06 event in the ice races in Montreal recently the Star says:—In the 2.06 trot and pace, Deveras had two heats in, and W. C. Trull one. A protest was made to the judge that W. C. Trull was not being driven to win, and for the fourth heat Charlie Kennedy, driver of Gipsy Girl and others, was put up to drive the horse. He looked all over a winner to the three-quarter pole, when he went up, and Deveras had speed enough to finish first, with Black Joe and Helen R. well up. In this race, Mr. Bennet, the driver of Looking Glass, put away his chain and introduced a new method of torture in the shape of a whip loaded with the sharp ends of tacks. Looking Glass appeared not to be acting sulkily, but the speed was too fast and abuse would not put him ahead.

New Electric Power.

Brantford, Feb. 17.—Cecil Smith, the promoter of the Grand River and Western Power Co., which seeks a Dominion charter, was in the city yesterday morning on a brief business trip. He states that his company, if it gets a charter, will develop power at Jordan, near St. Catharines, and will run a line west as far as London. Brantford will be on the direct route and the main line of transmission will be through this city. There is an abundance of power for use, according to the testimony of experts, and a large share of it would be utilized at very low rates in the various manufacturing industries of this city.

To Fight License Reduction.

Galt, Feb. 17.—James Haverson, K.C., of Toronto, has been called by the hotelmen of Galt to come up and aid them in fighting the temperance forces that are endeavoring to induce the town council to cut off three of the nine licenses. The hotelmen have secured about 1,000 signatures to a petition strongly setting forth reasons why the proposed reduction should not be made. This will be presented at the council meeting Monday night, and Mr. Haverson will be on hand to support it with an address. The liveliest possible time is anticipated.

New York, Feb. 17.—Within 24 hours after his release from prison, where he had served a sentence for smashing more than $2,000 worth of plate glass windows, John Grogan early to-day returned to the scene of his escapade and started in to duplicate the feat of two months' ago. He was not so successful this time, however, having broken only three of the large show windows when he was overpowered and again taken to a cell.

Bowling Record Beaten.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The Bensingers of this city have established a new world's bowling record for three games by rolling an average of 1,061 1-3. Teams in Cleveland and Omaha have made higher averages, but their records have never been accepted by the American Bowling Congress.

"They were in a green box," said Margery artlessly.

"What did they consist of?" asked Brendon.

"You need not answer that question, Margery," said Miss Bull quickly, and from that moment Margery preserved a lumpish silence. George rose in despair.

"You will not help me," he said, taking up his hat.

He saw nothing for it but to go, yet he hesitated to abandon the chance of learning something from Miss Bull. He stared at her pinched, white face and wondered if it would be any good appealing to that love of romance which is inherent in the heart of every woman. Old and withered as Miss Bull was she might soften under the influence of a love tale. Brendon disliked telling his business to strangers, especially anything regarding Dorothy, whom he looked upon as a sacred vestal not to be lightly mentioned. But he could not speak in the presence of the girl Margery. She was such a sullen animal that to mention his love in her presence would be like casting pearls before swine. He therefore turned to Miss Bull, who stood with folded hands, eying him frigidly. "If I could see you alone," said Brendon.

Miss Bull cast a shrewd glance at him, rapidly made up her mind and told Margery to go. The girl looked at him tigerishly, as she was evidently jealous, and sulkily withdrew.

"Miss Bull," said George deliberately, "what I am about to tell you, being my own private business, I must ask you to keep to yourself. I am engaged to be married."

"Indeed, and what interest can that have for me, Mr. Brendon?"

"This much. I am anxious for certain information, and from what Mr. Ireland said you alone can give it. To put the thing in a nutshell, I am in love, and you can forward my marriage if you will."

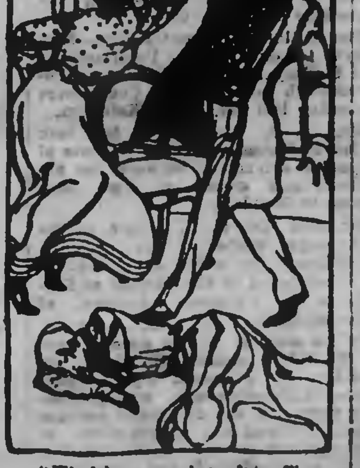
"Who is the bride, Mr. Brendon?" said Miss Bull.

"She is not a bride yet. She never may be," replied the young man gloomily, "for if she does not become my wife she will accept no one else. I can trust her implicitly. Her name is Dorothy Ward."

Miss Bull rose, with an ejaculation, and her face grew red. "Is her mother the Honorable Mrs. Ward who married Lord Ransome's son?"

"Yes. Do you know her?" asked George, surprised at her emotion.

"I have heard of her," replied Miss Bull, resuming her seat with feigned



"What have you been doing?"

indifference, but with barely concealed agitation. "Dorothy Ward. A handsome girl. I have seen her in the park."

"She is as good as she is beautiful," cried Brendon enthusiastically.

"I'll take your word for that," said Miss Bull in a softer tone. "Mr. Brendon, I will help you. Don't ask me why. Perhaps it is on account of your romance, perhaps because—because"—her hand clinched itself, and she fought down an outburst—"no matter. I will do what I can to forward the marriage. What do you wish to know?"

"About Mrs. Jersey."

"In relation to Lord Derrington?"

"Yes. He was the landlord of this house, I believe."

"He was and is. It was leased to Mrs. Jersey, furniture and all, by the year."

"By the year," said Brendon, surprised. "Why not a seven years' lease in the ordinary way?"

"I cannot say. I am only telling you what Mrs. Jersey's lawyer told me. Lord Derrington bought this house from Mr. Ireland, who sold it on account of the last owner."

"He did," said George. "The last owner was Mr. Anthony Lockwood; he was"— George had it in his mind to state that Lockwood was his grandfather, but the time was not yet ripe for such a disclosure, and he said nothing at the moment. "He was a singing master," he finished rather lamely. "Mr. Ireland told me all about him."

"That is all correct, so far as I know, Mr. Brendon. I dare say you wish to know why I saw Mr. Ireland. I did so on behalf of Margery Watson, as I wanted the girl to continue the boarding house. I like the poor creature, and when her aunt died she was left very badly off."

"Didn't Mrs. Jersey leave any money?"

"No. She lived principally on an annuity from Lord Derrington."

"Ah," said Brendon, his suspicions becoming more and more confirmed, "so he allowed her an annuity. Why?"

"I can't tell you that. But with the death of Mrs. Jersey the annuity naturally ceased. I asked Mr. Ireland about the lease and then sought out Lord Derrington. I represented to him the position of Margery Watson, and he was good enough to renew the lease in her name on my security."

"Still by the year?" asked George.

"Still by the year. So now the poor girl can live."

"You are a good woman, Miss Bull, to help her in this way. It shows you have a good heart," said George. "Well, Miss Bull"—he rose—"you have told me what I want to know. I hope to make use of it. In return for your confidence I should tell you"—

"Tell me nothing," cried the old maid quickly. "I don't wish to hear your secrets. The less said the soonest mended. When Miss Ward becomes Mrs. Brendon," she added, with a dry smile, "you can send me a piece of wedding cake."

"She will not become Mrs. Brendon," said George, shaking his head. "I will be frank with you, Miss Bull. My name is not Brendon."

She rose from her seat and looked at him steadily, perusing every line in his face. "I thought I had seen some one like you before. I see now—now—don't tell me your name is—is—but it's impossible."

"My real name is George Vane. I am Lord Derrington's grandson."

The little woman looked at him wildly for a moment and then quietly slipped to the floor. She had fainted, and George rang the bell for assistance. Margery, who had evidently been lurking outside, rushed in. When she saw her friend extended pale and lifeless on the carpet she turned on George with a furious face.

"What have you been doing to the poor darling?" she demanded. "You—you"— She raised her hand to strike, but Brendon caught her by the wrist.

"I have been doing nothing," he declared. "Miss Bull fainted unexpectedly. Thank goodness here is some one."

It was one of the servants, but Margery waved her off. "No one but me—no one but me!" she cried and took the slender form of her friend up in her arms. "Wait here," she added to George. "I'll be down soon."

Brendon did not feel very comfortable. He saw that Margery was a kind of untamed animal who had been brought into subjection by Miss Bull. No other person could manage her, and should she return still in a passion Brendon feared lest she should use physical violence. Still he held his ground, as he was anxious to learn how the old maid was feeling and still more anxious to find out, if possible, why she had fainted on hearing his name. "I wonder if Mrs. Jersey told her anything," muttered George as he looked out of the window. "But that's impossible. Mrs. Jersey would keep her own secret so as to terrorize over Derrington. Besides, Miss Bull declared that she recognized my face. I wonder if she knew my father, and if she can throw any light on the murder. It is strange that she should be connected with the matter and live in the same house as Mrs. Jersey. Upon my word," said George in disgust, "it seems as though there were a gang of shady people here connected with my affairs. And she was moved by the mention of Dorothy's name. I wonder what that meant?"

But whatever it did mean he did not learn that day. Margery returned and stated that Miss Bull was better, but was too faint to resume the conversation. She begged Mr. Brendon to call another day. Margery gave this message in quite a friendly way and nodded smilingly to the astonished George. "You are better disposed toward me," he said, taking up his hat.

"Miss Bull told me to be kind to you," she declared, still smiling, and, then, with a burst of good nature, "I will be kind. Do you want to know about the papers?"

"If you choose to tell me," said George artfully.

"There was a lease in the green box, and many bills," said Margery, "a few photographs, and that was all. I couldn't see the story."

"What story, Miss Watson?"

Margery nodded with a cunning smile and answered in a whisper, as though her aunt was still alive and within hearing. "She told me it was a story she was writing. Oh, such a long story! Sheets and sheets of a story—foolscap sheets. She kept them in a long blue envelope and would not let me see them."

George reflected that evidently Mrs. Jersey had been writing out an account of her early life, and Margery's next words put the matter beyond a doubt. "My aunt said that she would let me have the story to read after she died. But I could not find it in the green box."

"Perhaps you did not look thoroughly," suggested George.

"Yes, I did, and I looked in all other places. But I could not find it. The story was Italian," went on Margery, staring at him, "for when my aunt wasn't looking I peeped. San Remo is in Italy, isn't it?"

"I believe so," replied George, more and more convinced that Mrs. Jersey had left a confession behind her. "Did you tell Miss Bull?"

Margery nodded. "She said I wasn't to say a word about it, but she will not be angry at my telling you. She likes you, and says you are like some one she once knew and loved."

Brendon did not pursue the conversation. He left the house promising to call again. With his head filled with many thoughts consequent on his two interviews, he emerged from Amelia square and walked down to Oxford street. A shout aroused him from his day dreams as he reached the corner. He saw a tall, red headed man crossing the road and a cab was bearing down on him. The man stood paralyzed in the center, and it was apparent that the horse would soon be on him. George, almost without thinking, dashed into the street and, seizing the animal, reined it back on its haunches with a powerful hand. There was a shout of admiration from the throng on the footpath, a few oaths from the driver of the hansom, and the next minute the red headed man was thanking his preserver on the pavement and shaking his hand violently.

"Don't you think I'll forget it, sir," he said, with rather an American accent. "You have saved Bawdsey, and Bawdsey can help you at a pinch."

Brendon was too bewildered by this extraordinary address to take it all in. Besides, the admiring crowd pressed around. Seeing this, Bawdsey took him by the arm and ran him round the corner into a quiet street. George recovered and looked at the man he had saved.

He was a tall man with a thin face, though his body was rather stout. His hair was red, his eyes were blue, and he had an alert manner about him which made Brendon wonder how such a sharp person ever came to place himself in the position of being run over. But Bawdsey gave him no time to think. "What is your name?" he asked.

"George Brendon."

To be continued.

RUSSIAN DIFFICULTIES

Emperor Nicholas Held Council With His Full Cabinet.

Giving of Reforms It is Feared Might Complicate Military Matters, Which Are Now Acute—Japanese Introduce New Projectiles Into the Field of Action At Mukden—Probably From Port Arthur Siege Guns.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 17.—Emperor Nicholas to-day presided over a council at Tsarskoe Selo. All the ministers, including M. Witte, had been summoned for the purpose of discussing the advisability of transforming the present unofficial council of ministers, which is called at irregular intervals by the Emperor into a cohesive cabinet meeting regularly as an advisory and responsible body under the presidency of the Emperor, or the minister president. Intimations find their way to the public that one of the main factors in the present situation tending to influence the Government to convene the zemsky sabor is the increasing difficulty of mobilizing reserves to replace troops bound for the front, the belief being that if the zemsky sabor were assembled, either it would arouse a wave of patriotism in the country and itself facilitate the Government's task, or if it declared in favor of peace the responsibility therefore, however disadvantageous, the terms would rest with the nation's representatives and not with the rulers.

Fire 250 Pound Shells.

Mukden, Feb. 17.—The Japanese fired Tuesday and are firing to-day on Poutiloff Hill with eight inch guns carrying 250 pound projectiles, indicating that they are siege guns used at Port Arthur and the first to be mounted in position before the Russian lines below Mukden. A new situation, therefore, confronts the Russian centre, and the general situations appear to have been rendered more uncertain and more complicated by the battle of Sandepas and the arrival of open weather indicating an early spring.

Russian Officers Wounded.

London, Feb. 17.—The Daily Telegraph's Shanghai correspondent reports that Gen. Stakelberg and three Russian infantry colonels were wounded in the fighting on the Hun River.

Vladivostock Blockaded.

New York, Feb. 17.—A St. Petersburg despatch to The Herald says: Reports received here announce that Vladivostock is being closely blockaded by Admiral Urius' fleet.

Steamships For War.

London, Feb. 17.—The Daily Express says that the Union Castle line steamships Roslyn Castle and Dunolly Castle, and the Clan liner Clan MacPherson have been sold to a mysterious German firm. The names of the vessels, the paper adds, have been changed and it is supposed they are destined for one of the far eastern combatants.

Russian Strike Situation.

Lodz, Feb. 17.—The manufacturers to-night received by telegraph full details of the situation to the minister of finance. Twenty-five factories, among them some of the largest in Lodz, to-day paid off their men, numbering 40,000, and closed indefinitely. Some other mills which previously had closed refused to pay the strikers who demanded money claimed to be due to them. At one mill which thus refused yesterday, the strikers spent the entire night around the offices.

Great Storms in Newfoundland.

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 17.—Newfoundland is recovering from the effects of last week's blizzard, which was the worst ever experienced here. The wireless telegraph mast at Cape Race was demolished and miles of telegraph wires in various parts of the colony were broken down. Telegraphic communication between Cape Race and St. John's was restored yesterday. The island's railway service is still partially interrupted, although the principal routes of travel are now open.

THE BRITISH COMMONS

Asquith's Amendment To Speech Defeated By 63 Majority.

The Attendance Was Large and Guarantees Continuance of Government to End of Term—Chamberlain Opposed to "Instructing" Delegates to a Colonial Conference—Again He Is [illegible].

London, Feb. 17.—H. H. Asquith's amendment to the reply to the speech from the Throne was defeated in the House of Commons last night by a vote of 311 to 248. This amendment declared that the various aspects of the fiscal question had been thoroughly debated, and that the question should be submitted to the people without delay. The majority of 63, by which Mr. Asquith's amendment was rejected, is regarded as giving the Government the first move in the political game, and as finally disposing of any present prospect of dissolution of Parliament. In his reference to the colonial conference and the Opposition's amendment that British members of the conference should be instructed, Mr. Chamberlain in his speech yesterday asked whether the Opposition thought the men from the colonies would come to talk until black in the face knowing all the time that Great Britain's representatives had a mandate in their pockets not to give anything that was asked.

Salisbury's Son Is Strong.

The real event of the night's debate was the brilliant speech delivered by Lord Hugh Cecil, which is admitted both by friends and opponents to have been his finest oratorical effort, and one of the best speeches delivered in the House of Commons since the Gladstone-Salisbury period, and as placing Lord Hugh in the forefront of possible leaders of the Conservative party.

Lord Hugh Cecil is the leader of the Conservative free traders, and the Liberals had placed their hopes in him to turn out the Government. He disillusioned them by contending that the free trade cause would gain by keeping the present Government in office still longer, and while he pulled to pieces mercilessly his cousin Balfour's attitude on fiscal questions, he declined to vote for the Asquith amendment. The majority of Conservative free traders will follow Lord Hugh Cecil's lead, and apart from the possibility of some unexpected snap division, the government's position is considered safe.

Recalled the Late Salisbury.

The scene during Lord Cecil's speech was somewhat curious and was intensified by his peculiar habit of nervous gesture and physical characteristics, recalling the appearance of his father, the late Lord Salisbury, at the same age. Only a couple of yards separated him from Premier Balfour, sitting alone on the treasury benches.

"It is the business of a premier to make himself understood," said his lordship. "If he confesses that he has not been understood then he throws up the sponge."

Then he laughingly added that if Mr. Balfour would give him an office without a portfolio he would undertake to make his policy perfectly clear to the whole country. He feared, however, that his own ministerial career, though sensational, would be brief, and that the Government would soon be defeated. In conclusion, Lord Hugh declared that the free traders were winning all along the line. He had no intention, he said, of leaving the Conservative party. The Conservative free traders were the inheritors of true Conservative principles. In time, the speaker said, "You will forget our bad economics. The future is with us. It is needless that we secede from the party. Why should we symbolize mental stability by an act of physical motion?"

This speech practically concluded the debate and members trooped out to the lobbies discussing it with admiration.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Premier Balfour spoke afterwards, but without any striking effect. Mr. Balfour referred to dissolution as coming "In the fulness of time," and made one personal point against Lord Hugh Cecil by stating, amid laughter, that it would be as difficult for his lordship to give a monosyllable answer to the question whether he was a ritualist as for himself (Balfour) to say whether he was a protectionist.

Bounty On Steel Rails.

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—A cheque for the sum of $60,000 has been given the Lake Superior Corporation representing bounty at the rate of $3 a ton on steel rails manufactured by them. The bounty was supposed to apply only to structural steel, but the corporation argues that it should be paid on steel rails as well. The Auditor-General referred the matter to Mr Aylesworth, who upheld the corporation's contention.

Canadians Do Good Shooting.

Detroit, Feb. 17.—At the Rusch House shoot yesterday C. G. Spencer of St. Louis, had a percentage of 1,000. He was high man of the day, with a kill for every one of the 25 targets shot at. I. C. Chapman of Fulton, N.Y., was tied with three others for second gun, with 24, while Mort Mayhew of Marcy, N.Y., and H. Scane of Ridgetown, Ont., had 23 apiece.

Speedily Sentenced to Death.

Towanda, Pa., Feb. 17.—Bigler Johnson was yesterday convicted of first-degree murder for the killing and burning of his wife last September. Judge Fanning immediately passed the death sentence.

To Irish Art Gallery.

London, Feb. 17.—The Prince and Princess of Wales have presented five pictures, by Constable and Corot, to the new Irish art gallery.

TO TAKE CHURCH CENSUS.

Sarnia Church Workers Will Keep Tab On Themselves and Others.

Sarnia, Feb. 17.—Within the next three weeks a church census of the town will be made for the purpose of finding out exactly how many persons belong to the various denominations, and to report the names to the clergymen.

"The idea has been put into operation in other towns and cities," said a local clergyman yesterday, "and has been found a great help. The work will be done by a committee of 100 or more volunteer workers. The town will be divided into sections and two young men, or young women, representing different denominations, will be assigned to a certain number of blocks and will be required to secure the names and church affiliations of all persons residing therein, including children of Sunday school age. The names and addresses will then be given to the proper clergyman. In this way it is hoped that a large number of persons will be aroused to an interest in church work. There is a natural diffidence on the part of the clergymen towards calling on families of whose denomination they are not certain, and many are overlooked. The census being non-denominational, will remove this objection."

President in Control of Canal.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The Mann bill to provide a Government for the canal zone was passed by the House of Representatives yesterday. The bill gives all the right of Government of the canal zone to the President until the end of next Congress, but provides the inhabitants in the free enjoyment of their liberties, property and religion. It abolishes the Isthmian Canal Commission and places the work of construction of the canal in the hands of the President and such persons as he may appoint and employ. The bill authorizes the President to retain the Canal Commission as a commission or individual members as consulting engineers, if he shall so desire.

Police Chief Suspended.

San Francisco, Feb. 17.—As a result of the recent scandals in the police department in connection with gambling in the Chinese quarter, Chief of Police Wittman has been suspended from duty on charges of incompetency and neglect of duty.

Said Not to Be Smugglers.

Albany, Feb. 17.—The indictments against George Morris and William Anderson of Burke, New York, charging them with smuggling Chinamen across the Canadian border, were dismissed yesterday in the United States Court.

Recognize Colonial Riflemen.

London, Feb. 17.—(C.A.P.)—One hundred guineas have been given from the City of London's funds to the National Rifle Association for a special prize to colonial volunteers at the Bisley meeting.

To Stop Sale of Cigarettes.

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 17.—A bill prohibiting the sale and manufacture of cigarettes was introduced in the Assembly yesterday. The penalty is not less than $50 or more than $1,000 fine.

THINK IT OVER.

Something You Can See in Any Restaurant or Cafe.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from 60 to 80 years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile?

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous, sickly-looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantities any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels, and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly, and thus gives a much-needed rest and giving an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating, as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have pinned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages, and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, itchiness of the skin, eruptions or blotches, pimples in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general depression of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old fogy" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will protect you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

To-Night's Big Game.

The ice will be in fine condition for to-night's game with Markham, which will be one of the fastest games of the year. Both teams will go the limit, and the game will be worth going miles to see. Markham has Sullivan, one of their star forwards, on again, and claim that with his services they can defeat the local seven on the Brock-st. rink. The Peterborough team had a fine workout last night and are going faster than ever. The teams will line up as follows:—

Markham.		Peterboro.
	Goal
Pringle		Wasson
	Point
Halstead		Glover
	Coverpoint.
Gee		Crowley
	Rover
W. Maxwell		Cavanah
	Centre
E. Maxwell		Morgan
	Right Wing
Robinson		Parnell
	Left Wing
Sullivan		Graham

CITY LEAGUE STANDING.

The result of last evening's games leave the City League standing as follows:—

	Won.	Lost.	To play
Ferriers	5	0	0
Karnots	4	1	0
T.A.S.	2	2	1
Colonials	2	3	0
Verniers	0	3	2
Earl Greys	0	4	1

T.A.S. have a game with the Verniers, but should have no difficulty in winning from the boys in white.

HICKEY'S WON AGAIN.

Hickey's Terriers are keeping up their good work. Last night they defeated O'Brien's Blueaways after a Stanley Cup struggle by 7 goals to 3. M J. Hickey was the star.

THESSALON DEFAULTED.

Thessalon has defaulted to Victoria Harbor, and the game between the two for to-night is off. It may be played next week, as the Harbor are desirous of winning a home game with Thessalon.

LINDSAY WON.

Lindsay trimmed Newmarket at the Markham tournament last night by 8 to 4.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

Mr. W. A. McCord, of Toronto, will referee to-night's big game between Peterborough and Markham. The game will start at 8.30 sharp.

Peterborough's big bonspiel next week is already an assured success, as many entries from outside clubs have been received. All local entries must be in the hands of the secretary, Mr. Knapman, not later than Monday.

Two rinks of Norwood curlers are expected to play a friendly game with Peterborough to-night.

BUTTER VERY SCARCE

Farmers Have Difficulty in Coming to Town With Supplies.

There is a butter famine in town. At least that is what Mr. W. J. McCallum, the restaurateur states, and when he makes an effort in several places to secure a supply it is reasonable to assume that the butter-centres have been pretty well felt. Mr. McCallum says that the cause of the scarcity is found in the difficulty experienced by farmers in getting to town as the result of bad roads and cold weather, and it would not be a surprise to see prices take a big jump. One of the grocers when interviewed on the matter stated that he was well supplied, having purchased about three tons of creamery butter in November. He has about one ton left and the people are coming to him in droves. Another grocer stated that he had not a pound in the shop, but expected to be relieved to-morrow. The prices asked for butter, where there is any, are from 25 to 27 cents.

LINDSAY CALICO BALL.

The calico ball held in the council chamber on Tuesday night, in the interests of the Ross Memorial Hospital, was attended by about 125 persons. As a concession to the title of the event the ladies who could not feel at home on a ball room floor in any but the regulation ball-room costumes, wore calico cuffs and collars and badges. The chamber was gay with bunting, and in the south-west angle a cute cosy corner was improvised. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Pearse, of Midland, rendered excellent service. The surplus proceeds for the hospital will be considerable.—Watchman-Warder.

COLONIALS OUT OF THE RUNNING

T. A. S. Qualified for Finals by Victory Last Evening.

KARNOTS BEAT EARL GREYS

Both Were Poor Exhibitions and Were Witnessed by Small Crowd—T. A. S., Karnots and Farriers Go Into Finals—Ernie Ford Was Referee.

Only a handful of spectators saw the City League games last evening, and the faithful few went away wishing they had their money back. The games were by far the poorest of the season and little or no real hockey was displayed. The T.A.S. qualified for the finals by defeating the Colonials by 5—0 in the first game. There was not much danger of the Colonials scoring, as they hadn't half a dozen shots on goal all the way through, but they played a strenuous defence game and kept the T.A.S. score down. The Karnots won from the Earl Greys by 4—0, after a wild exhibition.

THE FIRST GAME.

The first game was about as tame and devoid of interest as a crokinole party. It was very slow at all stages of the game, especially when the defence started a lifting contest, which lasted some times three and four minutes. The forwards on either side did not seem particular about following up. The game was fairly clean, although there was plenty of slashing.

The T.A.S. played the only hockey displayed, but they did not play up to their usual form. They did not work together, as they have done on previous occasions ,and indulged in far too much individual work.

Derocher had comparatively nothing to do in the nets. Meagher checked well and tore off some nice rushes. Quigley's lifting was a feature. He also rushed well. Rose worked hard at right wing and followed up fast. Kenneally did some nice stick handling and shooting. Deforge did not exert himself very much at any stage of the game, but did some great playing at times.

The Colonials never had much chance of scoring, as their forwards were unable to pierce the red and black defence. They checked hard, however, and held the T.A.S. down to five goals. McCoy's work in the nets saved many scores. Henry checked well at point. On the forward line Foley was the star, but was checked too close to be dangerous. Rouille worked hard.

"Ernie" Ford made a satisfactory referee.

The teams lined up as follows:—

T.A.S.		Colonials.
	Goal
Derocher		McCoy
	Point.
Meagher		Henry
	Coverpoint.
Quigley		McWilliams
	Centre.
Kenneally		Rouille
	Right wing
Rose		Foley
	Left Wing
Deforge		Callahan

The game started off at a funeral clip, which kept up until the finish. Only forty minutes was played, which was plenty long enough for the spectators. After the defences had exchanged lifts for four or five minutes Rose scored for the T.A.S. on a nice shot from the side. Kenneally got the next after a pretty rush. Half time score 2—0.

In the second half Deforge scored after one minute's play. The same player also landed the next. Kenneally scored the last goal, leaving the score 5—0.

SUMMARY.

1 T.A.S.—Rose.
2 T.A.S.—Kenneally.
Half Time.
3 T.A.S.—Deforge.
4 T.A.S.—Deforge.
5 T.A.S.—Kenneally.

THE SECOND GAME.

Although there wasn't much more hockey displayed in the second game there was certainly more things happening. While not quite a "saturnalia of savage butchery," as the Montreal Gazette described the Wanderer-Ottawa game, it was very strenuous, especially in the second half, when the fence was kept decorated with offenders. At one time in this period the teams were playing four men a side.

The Karnots won by 4—0, with the half time score 2—0. They did not play up to their usual standard, and displayed little or no combination. Kingscote looked after everything that came near him. Dormer checked hard and lifted well. Mulbern played a nice game at cover. All the forwards did some nice individual work and shooting.

Laing saved many goals by brilliant steps. The defence in front checked strenuously, and the Karnots had troubles of their own in getting through. Cameron played the whole game on the forward line and never let up. He was the best man on the ice, and with any kind of support would have scored more than once.

The teams were:—

Karnots.		Earl Greys.
	Goal.
Kingscote		Laing
	Point.
Dormer		Brand
	Coverpoint.
Mulbern		McKee
	Rover
Gross		Gilbert
	Centre
Campbell		Cameron
	Right Wing
O'Dette		McFadden
	Left Wing.
Gilman		Lattimer

Referee, Ernie Ford.

The game was very rough in the second half and the players laid on the wood in great shape. Gilbert received a bad cut on the nose and had to go off. Those sent to the boards were Dormer 4, Campbell 2, Brand 4, Cameron, Lattimer.

SUMMARY.

1 Karnots—Campbell.
2 Karnots—Gross.
Half Time.
3 Karnots—Gross.
4 Karnots—Dormer.

COMPLETION OF Y.W.C.A. BUILDING

Contractors Say it Will be Ready by April 1st.

AN EXCELLENT ARRANGEMENT

Plans for the Association and Boarding Home Departments Have Accommodation and Comfort in View.

Work is progressing as rapidly as possible on the interior of the new Y.W.C.A. building and Ald. Arch. McIntyre, who has the contract in hand expects to have everything completed by April 1. The very best workmanship and material is being put into the building, and it is doubtful if there will be another institution to equal it from the point of adaptation to the purposes required. It may be said that the building is divided into two parts—that for Young Women's Christian Association purposes and for the boarding home, and in the latter part there will be accommodation for eighty boarders comfortably, but it will be possible in case of emergency to easily find room for one hundred or more. The rooms are all well lighted, and a two horse power fan in the attic in connection with a shaft running from the top to the bottom of the building, will facilitate good ventilation in winter and a comfortable atmosphere in summer. The halls, corridors and stairways of the building on every floor are wide and airy, and Mr. Blackwell in his plans was most careful in observing an arrangement which cannot but prove very satisfactory in making the new building a home-like place.

LARGE ROOMS

To the left of the main hall on the first floor, looking out upon Simcoe-st., is the General Secretary's office, and to the right are the reading room and parlors, which it is possible by means of a dividing sliding door to convert into one hall about 60 feet in length. Continuing towards the rear of the building, there are two class rooms and occupying the full width of sixty-six feet and with a depth of forty feet an excellent gymnasium has been given a place. This will undoubtedly be one of the most appreciated departments in the institution. It has plenty of light, is floored in maple and will be an ideal gym. when fully equipped with the apparatus which is to develop the physical young woman.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

The Association will also carry on a very important feature of its work in the basement, and a domestic science class room will there be fitted up. The dimensions of this department are forty feet by eighteen feet and conveniently adjoining it is a pantry. There are three other class rooms in the basement. All are large and will afford excellent facilities for the educational work of the Y.W.C.A. There is also a large bath room, and it is altogether likely that a swimming bath will be installed, the necessary space having been provided. The building is heated by steam from a 25 horse power boiler. The general layout of the Association part of the basement is somewhat similar to that of the Y. M.C.A.

The two divisions of the building are separated by a corridor and wall in the basement, and the plan from the rear to the front includes the laundry, the trunk room, the cook's sleeping apartment, together with two or three other bedrooms for emergency accommodation, and a store room. There is a handy entrance to the laundry from the rear. On the east side of the building is a wide glass door, which admits to the boarding home, a wide stairway leading to the parlor on the first floor, which is situated on the left of the main entrance, and is 22 feet long by 18 feet wide. From the landing the stairway, wide and well lighted by windows on the east side of the building ascends to the floors above, where the sleeping partments are situated. On the first floor, there is also a very fine dining hall 36 feet by 20 feet, and adjoining this are the serving room, kitchen and pantry. There is a rear entrance and a back stairway leads to the floors above. Provision is also made for a blind waiter, which will be found convenient in the purposes of the building.

On the second floor there is a bath room for the boarders and 26 bed rooms, each of the latter being 18 feet by 7 feet. In some of these the front partitions do not go the full heighth of the building, thus affording ventilation. In fact great attention has been paid to this feature of the building. The third floor has been similarly arranged, and on the fourth floor there are nine large, well lighted and airy rooms, each capable of containing four or five beds. It will be seen, therefore, that the general plan of the boarding home, and of the Association's departments has been calculated to give the greatest possible amount of accommodation and comfort. The cost will be something like $30,000, and no one will question that the expenditure is for a purpose most commendable.

As has been frequently pointed out, the stonework and masonry was done under the supervision of Mr. J. J. Hartley, while Ald. McIntyre has charge of the carpentering and attendant contracts. The mere mention of this fact is an assurance that the work will be done in a thoroughly satisfactory manner. The plans by Mr. Blackwell suggest a fine conception of the building's purposes.

BUTTER WAS HIGH

Citizen States That Better Prices Prevailed in Stores Than on Market.

As touching the matter of butter and eggs, a family man unfolded some secrets this morning. Said he. "There was not a very big supply of butter on the market Saturday, owing doubtless to the difficulty farmers have of getting to town, and the prices jumped up to the vicinity of thirty cents a pound. Those having butter for sale, saw that the supply was small, and hence the raise. A George-st. merchant came into the market and asked the price. Upon being told, he almost fainted, and immediately he tumbled to the scheme that had a few minutes before been worked on him by a hotel-keeper who purchased almost all the butter he had in stock at 25 cents a pound. The fact is that it was possible to get good butter in the stores on Saturday from 25 to 27 cents a pound, while on the market the prices went higher, from one to three cents." The citizen pointed out that the same condition applied to the price of eggs, and he like many another householder is looking eagerly for the time when prices are inclined to drop.

GOING WEST.

The Norwood Register says —"We understand that Mr. James Cumming intends leaving for the North-west about the first of March. Mr. Cumming has been offered a position as manager of a woollen mill at Edmonton, but has not fully decided to accept. He has had under consideration for some time an offer from the Peterborough Cement Roofing Co. to make a tour of the west in their interests which he has decided to accept as it will give him the opportunity to visit Edmonton and many other places in the West. We very much regret the prospect of losing such a good citizen as Mr. Cumming. We were in hopes that he would decide to again open up business here."

Cookery and Government.

Rossini, the Italian composer, is reported to have said a droll thing on the unification of Italy when some one asked his opinion on this matter. He replied that he thought it very difficult if not impossible to effect it for the simple reason that the Neapolitans eat nothing but macaroni, the Florentines nothing but fagiooli and the Lombards only polenta, while the Piedmontese swallow all they can get. "It it clear," he said, "that uniformity of cookery must precede unity of government."

Marriage.

Marriage is not the church, the ritual, the blessing of clergymen or the ratifying and approving presence of one's friends and relations at the ceremony. Still less is it a matter of settlements and expensive millinery It is the taking of a solemn vow before the throne of the eternal. Nothing can make marriage an absolutely sacred thing except the great love, combined with the pure and faithful intention of fulfilling the vow involved.—Marie Corelli.

A Double Request.

"Are you the 'answers to correspondents' man?" inquired the dyspeptic looking caller.

"I am," replied the gentleman addressed. "What can I do for you?"

"Firstly, what will dissolve a chunk of lead in the human stomach? Secondly, won't you please refrain from publishing recipes for plum pudding hereafter?"

Lucky Boy.

Farmer Foddershucks was angry with his scapegrace of a son. "Young man," he thundered, "you're a disgrace to this here fambly! It's a mighty good thing for you that I hain't rich."

"Why, dad?" asked his son sheepishly.

"Becus if I was I'd disinherit ye—that's why!"

Reason For Worry.

Balty Moore—Oh, pshaw, old man, I wouldn't worry about Blowhard's opinion of me if I were you! Calvert, Jr.—It isn't his opinion I'm worrying about. It's the grounds I happen to know he has for that opinion.

Thoughts Supplied.

"Now," said the inquisitive bachelor, "I want to ask you a question. Do you think in the married state"—

"No," replied Henpeck promptly. "I ain't allowed to."—Exchange.

New Concern Spoken of for Peterborough.

LOCATION ON WATER STREET

Rooms Formerly Occupied by the Maccabees May be Converted to Purposes of the Industry.

It is altogether likely that Peterborough is soon to have another industry, and one for which there seems to be an excellent opening—the manufacture of neckties. It is understood that Mr. Atwood of Montreal, has been looking over the situation here with a view to location, and the hall formerly occupied by the Maccabees on Water st. has been favorably considered. Improvements which will be required by the new factory concern are contemplated by executors of the John Hall estate from whom the rooms necessary will be leased. The proposal so far as known is to install a large equipment consisting chiefly of sewing machines which will be operated by electric power. The Maccabees have changed their quarters to Forrester's Hall, on George st. The hall, where the new concern may locate is a large one, well lighted, and when properly fitted up and laid out will make a very comfortable location.

Mr. Atwood has had considerable experience in the business, and with the good opening which exists here may reasonably look for a great degree of success.

GREEK SCULPTURE

Prof. Carruthers' Edifying Lecture Before the Fortnightly Club.

A thoroughly representative audience was present at the lecture delivered before the Fortnightly Club of Peterborough last night on Greek Sculpture.

The lecturer was Professor Adam Carruthers, of Toronto University. Those who assembled at the Y.M.C.A. hall were delighted with the professor's masterly and comprehensive treatment of his subject, which he invested with much interest, variety and humor.

The views shown by means of an electric lantern were clear and well defined and gave the spectators an excellent conception of Greek sculpture throughout the different periods of its existence.

At the close a cordial vote of thanks was tendered the speaker, on motion of Mr. G. M. Roger and Mr. J. Coyle Brown. The chair was ably occupied by Mr. J. H. Burnham, who announced that the next lecture before the Club would be delivered in March by Mr. J. S. Willison, managing editor of the Toronto News, on "The Function of the Independent Newspaper."

At the outset Prof. Carruthers defined art in its broadest and general terms, and said that of all the countrymen of Europe the Britisher was the least artistic. He was, as an Australian newspaper had pointed out, devoted to his flag, his trade and his top hat—inartistic as the latter was. Sculpture might be defined as the art that deals with beauty in scene and form. But the question arose what constituted beauty. Conceptions of it differed. It was not like sound or color on which all generally agreed. Artistic taste was largely a matter of individual opinion. Our conceptions of beauty were influenced by time, place and environment. A woman, whom certain people might regard as beautiful, was not so viewed by others, and the costumes which were considered attractive and artistic a few years ago, were to-day looked upon as hideous, and possessing neither grace nor comeliness. Things, which appeared to our grandsires as pleasing or agreeable were to-day regarded as ridiculous. Different natures viewed art in divers aspects. The speaker dealt at considerable length with some theories respecting beauty, and said Greeks idealized physical beauty. Sculpture was the art of fashioning or chiselling figures in wood, stone and metal. The true worth of Grecian art lay in its perfection, and not its original and antiquity was required to bring Grecian sculpture to its perfected state. The various periods were then dealt with —the Archaic before 600 B.C., the transition between 600 and 480, previous to which sculpture was characterized by arrested development; the golden age from 480 to 400 B.C., noted for its majesty, great originality and creative power; the second period from 400 to 320, also characterized by beauty, grace, tenderness as well as originality, dignity and attractiveness, and the decadence from 320 to 100 B.C., known as the Alexandrian age, when sculpture was colossal, ostentatious, sumptuous and courtly, symbolized by restlessness and prolixity of design. Then there was the Greco-Roman period when there was some affectation of the Archaic, and sculpture represented several religious cults.

The lecturer then showed over a hundred views representative of all the periods, including many by Praxiteles, the eminent Greek sculptor of the fourth century, before the Christian dispensation.

CAMPBELLFORD LOST PROTEST

T. A. S. Champions of District No. 2, Trent Valley League.

EVIDENCE ON BOTH SIDES

Executive Met Last Evening in Oriental—Secretary Clarry Casts Deciding Vote in Favor of T. A. S.—Both Sides Represented by Legal Talent.

An executive meeting of the Trent Valley League was held in the Oriental Hotel last night. There were present Messrs. E. S. Clarry, sec. of the League who presided, Mr. W. T. Wood of Campbellford, and Mr. A. Dorris of Peterborough. Mr. Will Crowley, the immediate past president of the league was also in attendance.

The secretary announced that he had received an official report of the T. A. S.—Campbellford game at Cobourg from the referee, Mr. George Brown of Port Hope, who awarded the game to T. A. S. He (the secretary) had subsequently received notice of protest accompanied by the necessary affidavits from Campbellford team asking that the game be set aside on the ground that there was one minute more to play, that the referee was partial and incompetent and that Meagher of the T. A. S. was not privileged to play in the Trent Valley, he having already played one game in the O. H. A. this year, which strictly speaking was against the rules of the Trent Valley League.

The Campbellford club was represented by Mr. A. B. Colville, barrister, of Campbellford, while the T. A. S. were represented by Mr. F. D. Kerr, barrister, Peterborough. A great mass of evidence in affidavit and statement form was gone into and argument heard from both sides. As might naturally be expected Mr. Dorris supported the T. A. S. contentions and Mr. Wood, the Campbellford side of the case. It left therefore the deciding of the case with Mr. Clarry who reviewed the evidence and expressed his own version of the situation. Regarding the charge that time was not up, and that the referee was partial and incompetent, the secretary of the League held that it would be unwise under any circumstance to overrule the award of the referee, who is given full charge of a match. The league is supposed to have confidence enough in their executive through the secretary to make appointments of referee. The secretary and the executive in turn should have confidence in such appointments as they make. Mr. Brown had been refereeing matches in the Trent Valley League for some years and this was the only complaint that had reached the executive about him. In his official report he declares that the reason the game was concluded one minute before usual time was up was owing to the disorder that was created on the ice by the action of Cole, the Campbellford goal umpire, in striking McGrath on the head.

Regarding the playing of Meagher the secretary of the League assumed all responsibility in as much as he had in the early part of the season misinterpreted the rules of the O. H. A. and notified the T. A. S. club that they were at liberty to play men in both leagues. Almost immediately he had noticed his error and countermanded the order put in in the meantime. Meagher had played one O.H.A. game. It was no fault of the T. A. S. that Meagher played, then why should they suffer for it? It was in view of these facts that he concurred with Mr. Dorris and dismissed the protest.

PEN POINTS.

Somehow the snow looks different at this season of the year from what it did in December. Its appearance changes with the amount one has to shovel.

Here's hoping that the Peterborough intermediates may land the hockey championship. The players are a husky, sturdy lot, a credit to the progressive town of Peterborough and able exponents of Canada's great winter game.

Montreal Star:—Canada is going to spend some money providing itself with a mint, so that it can coin its own gold and silver, and give itself a new feeling of national pride. Why shouldn't it, now, spend some more money on providing itself with clean bank bills, so that it might take another form of national pride in being clean and sanitary?

The cold weather in the south-west has broken all records for twenty-five years. Snow drifts ten and twelve feet deep are a rare phenomenon in Missouri. Over a wide tract of territory in Western Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, quail and wild birds are dying from cold and starvation being unable to dig under the deep and crusted snow to get food. With similar conditions in Ontario, the farmers take care that the birds are fed.

Last week an advertisement appeared from an American firm on the "patent" side of The Star. The same was headed with the word "warning." We have this week received word from a Pembroke firm, asking us to retract and discontinue the advertisement, and express our deep sorrow for publishing it. By doing so it will save us a libel suit. Now, the advertisement appeared on the "patent" side from which we receive no remuneration directly, the American firm state one thing and the Pembroke firm another. We're apt to have a case of libel any way it goes. A case in court would be notoriety and an advertisement for ourselves and see how important we would be. A newspaper never gets up in the world until it has a libel case.—Hastings Star.

The Pioneer does not think that the Mineral Act of this province is all that it should be—far from it. But we are of the opinion that it was generally speaking, a good thing that the act has been left severely alone for the last few years. The two per cent. tax on gross output of mines is not fair nor equitable, as it taxes indirectly the entire cost of mining supplies, wages, etc. An agitation is now afoot again to have it changed, and it should be changed, but mining men generally should agree to some extent, at least, as to the nature of the changes, and how the government will not lose the much needed revenue thereby. If the high-grade mine owners of the Slocan consist, when they know it bears heavily on the low grade mine owners, that the Act is all right and satisfactory, the government will have good reason to decline to alter it.—Phoenix Pioneer.

The farm is a good place on which to raise a boy—a good place to develop him physically, to teach him morality and decency of conduct, to educate him on broad lines. But it could not be expected that these boys would all, or even a respectable minority of them, remain on the farm; neither would it be best that they should. There is an urgent need for them elsewhere. In a physical sense, where are the nervy, pushing, aggressive citizens of the future to come from if not from the farm? Where are the bank, the great corporation and the commercial concerns to obtain men of the requisite energy and ability to plan and conduct our great modern business enterprises if not from the farm? Where does the state most look for rugged and loyal defenders of its national honor? To the farm boys. From where else should the country secure that sterling worth, ability and integrity of character needed in our legislatures and executive offices. It is as true as gospel that if a perennial crop of well-born, sound and healthy country children, reared in an atmosphere of morality and patriotism were not continually available as material for future Canadian citizens this country, great and grand as it is, would go straight to the wall inside of two generations.

That the town is badly in need of more fire hall accommodation all will admit, but in the minds of representative citizens there appears to be a growing conviction that it would not be wise to expend any more money on the present building. It would be only a temporary expedient at most, and in the end would not prove altogether satisfactory. Ald. Johnston's scheme, while a feasible one, is not advisable from an economic point of view, as it would in the long run entail far more cost than a new station; besides, in the erection of a new building a more central site can be selected. True, a by-law for that purpose was recently voted down, but the issue was not clearly put before the people, and the advantages and the need of such a structure forcibly presented. It is believed that if another by-law was submitted it would carry by a large majority. Until this is done it would not be wise to rush into any patching up of the present building. Peterborough can afford to wait better than it can afford to expend $9,000 on a work that would in the end not fully answer the purpose which it is designed to meet.

THEY TALKED ON TELPHONE RIGHTS

Petitions to Restrict Privileges of the Bell Company.

MR. MACLEAN AIRS HIS VIEWS

Urges Government to Remove the Many Grievances Which Oppress the Public—The Right to Erect Poles on Streets and Highways—Sir Wilfrid Speaks.

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—The feature of yesterday's session of the House was a discussion on the rights of the Bell Telephone Co.

Since Parliament opened there has been a steady stream of petitions asking for legislation to restrict the rights of the Bell Telephone Company on the streets of municipalities.

Yesterday W. F. Maclean voiced the public sentiment behind these petitions when he urged the Government to bring in a general act to remove the many grievances which oppress the public.

Mr. Maclean declared that the Bell Telephone Company should not be allowed to erect poles on streets and highways without first obtaining the consent of the municipalities. He contended also that telephone companies should be obliged to interchange traffic and called for an amendment of the law which enables railway companies to refuse independent telephone companies access to their stations.

He received considerable support, notably from Henri Bourassa.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not deny the seriousness of the situation, but he emphasized the sanctity of "vested interests." In so far as Parliament could proceed without infringing on "vested rights," the Prime Minister stated his willingness to promote legislation. "For my part," he said, "I think there is great force in the demand that has been made in this house and which has been presented to us in numerous petitions. I confess that to a large extent I sympathize with the member for South York when he says that the time has come when we should have a general law regulating telephonic traffic and the interchange of traffic between telephone lines."

Mr. Maclean, in calling attention to the telephone situation, said that as the law stands it would appear that a telephone company could override municipal rights and enter upon the streets of any municipality without asking the consent of the corporation. This had been found a very substantial grievance.

Recently when a delegation of representatives of leading municipalities waited upon the Government the Minister of Justice asked them to draft a clause to put in the general law. The municipalities all over the country, feeling that their rights were being encroached upon by the wide powers taken by the telephone company, had prepared another petition demanding the purchase by the Government of the long-distance lines, the amendment of all existing charters, so as to provide that no companies should erect poles or construct conduits on any road or any street in a municipality without the consent of the council of such municipality, "and upon such terms as such council may approve."

Mr. Maclean continued at length, and said that the railway companies had made contracts with the Bell Telephone Co. which were inimical to the interests of the country.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in reply, referred to the City of Toronto's demand that Parliament should pass a law to abridge the power given by Parliament to the Bell Telephone Company in regard to the company's right on public streets, pointed out to the mayor and to the solicitor, that, in his judgment, such abridgment would be interfering with rights which had been given by Parliament. They thought it would not be an interference but that a clause could be framed whereby the act should be so amended as it would not infringe upon the vested rights they had in the city. Thereupon the Government asked the solicitor and the mayor to frame an amendment for consideration. If such draft legislation were received it would be the Government's duty to consider it. If such an amendment could be framed without interfering with any vested rights of the Bell Telephone Company there would be no objection to such a law being introduced.

"But if," said Sir Wilfrid, "such a law cannot be introduced without infringing upon rights which have been granted to the company by this Parliament there would be a serious objection to such legislation. I pass no judgment at this moment upon the question which has been raised. I have been waiting and am still waiting for news from the City of Toronto upon this subject."

Mr. Bourassa strongly supported the idea of regulating the telephone company.

Dr. Sproule said it should not be left to a private member to bring in a bill to remedy this grievance before the House members. It was absolutely the duty of the railway company to deal with all people who use the railway upon the same principle and to give them equal facilities.

Mr. Boyce of Algoma strongly upheld the demand for telephone legislation and gave instances of hardships borne by the public under existing laws.

In 1860 Dr. A. W. Chase was a practicing physician in Ann Arbor, Mich., but such was his reputation that he could not confine his practice to Ann Arbor and vicinity or even to the State of Michigan; for people heard of the remarkable cures that were being brought about, and wrote for advice and treatment.

It was this demand from people at a distance which lead Dr. Chase to put up for public sale a few of the prescriptions which had proven so successful in his private practice, and backed by the integrity of character and honesty of purpose of Dr. Chase, these family medicines soon acquired a reputation for reliability, which has won for them the confidence of the best people of the land.

For some years previous Dr. Chase had made a hobby of collecting, studying and experimenting with receipts and prescriptions, and the result was the publication of Dr. Chase's famous Receipt Book, which has had a world-wide circulation. This work, together with marked natural ability and high technical knowledge as a physician graduated from two of America's leading medical colleges, at Ann Arbor and Cincinnati, gave him undoubted qualifications for the extraordinary success he achieved as a physician.

Take for example Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have become so well known as a family medicine to be depended on for the cure of liver disorders, kidney disease and constipation. Here is a letter from a Canadian who obtained treatment from Dr. Chase personally in 1867.

Cured bv Dr. Chase in 1867.

Mr. W. G. PARISH, Sturgeon Bay, Ont., writes:—"In the year 1867 I was very bad with my kidneys. I could not work on account of my back being lame, sore and painful all the time. Though I carefully followed the directions of our family doctor, he was unable to do me much good. At this time Dr. Chase was becoming known as an especially successful physician, and on the advice of my uncle, Charles Williams, I went to Dr. Chase at Ann Arbor, Michigan, and he gave me a box of his pills for kidney disease.

"You can scarcely imagine how much good they did me. They helped me so much that I went back to the doctor and bought a dozen boxes. In my mind there is not a medicine half so good as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney trouble and headache. We always keep them in the house as a family medicine, and I would not think of using any other."

From the small beginning in Ann Arbor in the sixties, the output of Dr. Chase's medicines increased at first slowly, but later by leaps and bounds wherever their merits became known.

While the advertising has been confined solely to Canada and the United States, the reputation of these great family medicines spread abroad until it was necessary to establish an office in London for the British Isles, while orders have been received at the Canadian offices from such far away points as Belgium, France, Australia, New Zealand, Dutch West Indies, British Guiana, Nyassaland, Central Africa and Aden, Arabia.

Nothing short of genuine merit can account for such enormous demand for Dr. Chase's Medicines, every one of which was prepared by Dr. Chase on the principle of not merely relieving, but positively curing disease, by removing the cause, and to this principle is due, we believe, their phenomenal success.

Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto, Ont., and the Dr. A. W. Chase Med. Co., Buffalo, N.Y. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his medicines.

$1,000 Will be forfeited if the above testimonial is not correct and on file at these offices.

Permanent Cure For Bronchitis

"My second daughter was troubled with bronchitis from the age of three weeks. Often times I thought she would choke to death. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine brought relief and further treatment made a thorough cure. This trouble used to come back from time to time the cure is now permanent." — Mrs. Richmond Withrow, Shubenacadie, Hants Co., N. S.

PETERBORO' BOY WON

Dr. R. B. Boucher Carried Off Valuable Curling Prize in the West.

The Phoenix, B.C., Pioneer, contains the following reference to Dr. R. B. Boucher, son of Dr. R. P. Boucher, Brock street, which shows that he is more than holding his own among the curlers of the west. The Pioneer says—

Apparently, it is a warm winter when the Phoenix curlers do not bring back a bunch of prizes or trophies from the annual bonspiel of the Kootenay Curling Association, and this year was, after all, no exception to the rule. When the stone and besom experts returned last Tuesday from the Nelson bonspiel, they were loaded down with no less than three of such prizes, namely, first prize in the Walkerville open competition, which was won by the rink skipped by Dr. Boucher; first prize in the Hudson Bay trophy, won by the rink skipped by Isaac Crawford, and second prize in the Consolation, won by Mr. Crawford's rink.

The two rinks attending from Phoenix Curling Club were as follows—

C. L. Thornber,	lead	C. H. Reeves
G. E. Dey,	second	A. Strachan
G. L. McNichol,	vice	J. A. Morrin
R. B. Boucher	skip	I. Crawford

From what the returning curlers say, they must have had the time of their lives, or at least, one of the times. They had good weather, good ice and certainly a good time all around in the week they were gone. In all the open events there were 25 rinks entered in competition, and in the closed events each club was represented by one rink—in the case of Phoenix this being the Crawford rink.

MRS. BELCH EXPIRES

Sister of Mrs. John Kincaid Passed Away at Age of 71 Years.

The Millbrook Reporter says:—The death of Mrs. John Belch, nee Miss M. J. Thornton took place at Mount Horeb, recently, after a lingering illness, borne with Christian fortitude and patience. Deceased had reached the age of 71 years, and was highly respected by all who knew her. She was a faithful member of the Presbyterian church, a true Christian, and her many kindly acts will live long in the hearts of those who came in contact with her. She, with her husband, the late John Belch, were among the first settlers of Manvers township, near Mount Horeb. She leaves to mourn her loss a loving mother, three daughters, Mrs. Doyell, Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Wilson, and one son, David, besides two brothers, J. D. Thornton, of Omemee, and W. J. Thornton, of Beulah, Man., and two sisters, Mrs. John Kincaid, of Peterborough, and Miss Thornton, of Omemee.

The funeral was very largely attended on Saturday last. The services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. M. Whitelaw, B.D. The interment took place in Mount Pleasant Presbyterian cemetery.

The committee feel that very many of the citizens would like to assist in this matter. The custom in all public institutions is to have iron bedsteads, and in order to have uniformity in this particular, the committee intend purchasing these wholesale.

It is almost impossible to specify the articles required, but anything in the line of house furnishing will be thankfully received.

Donations in money or goods may be sent to the Y.W.C.A. rooms, over the Bank of Commerce, at as early a date as possible.

LINDSAY'S WHITE ELEPHANT

Many Defects About the New Carnegie Library.

Lindsay's much-tooted Carnegie library is giving that burg heaps of worry, and the Watchman-Warder states that it is more and more evident, that in spite of all the adverse things said about the structure, the half has never been told.

The flooring has already shrunk apart nearly the width of the tonguing, the front door will not close, the roof leaks, the furnace is defective, there is not a tight window in the building, and the sills can be picked off in two pieces by hand. Coal is being burned in it at the rate of 2,000 pounds a week, and the librarian's room with the big radiator in it, has to have articles piled in the window to keep out the cold.

The Watchman-Warder suggests a commission to investigate the corruption that has been practised in connection with the construction of the building.

VERY SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Eccentric of Engine Broke and Struck Engineer.

What might have proved a fatal accident occurred at Sturgeon st., crossing, Omemee, on freight train No. 44 from Belleville to Lindsay, a few nights ago. The eccentric of the engine broke, liberating the large lever which struck Engineer George Napier on the side of the face. The blow was so severe that the unfortunate engineer was driven into unconsciousness, while standing at his post, applying the emergency brakes. He was soon carried to the Presbyterian manse, Omemee, which was heartily thrown open to him by Rev. and Mrs. Whitelaw. Drs. Keith and Cameron attended his wounds. After more than an hour's unconsciousness he recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home in Lindsay on the Belleville express.

BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA

Directors Decide to Increase Capital Stock to $3,000,000—Prosperous Year.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 16.—At the annual meeting of the Bank of Nova Scotia yesterday a resolution was adopted authorizing the directors to increase the capital stock from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000, should they deem it advisable.

General Manager MacLeod said there would likely be legislation dealing with the growth of the reserve of banks. The present law says the reserve must not exceed double the amount of the capital stock.

The general manager, in his address, said that whatever changes might be made in the future, if any, the name of the bank would never be changed, but the institution would always remain the "Bank of Nova Scotia."

The general manager also stated that the affairs of the bank were in the very best possible condition, and that there was nothing in sight to cause any departure whatever from the sound principle on which the bank's affairs have been conducted in the past.

The shareholders expressed the opinion that the annual statement was one of the very strongest ever put out by any bank in Canada, and it was characterized by one of them as "simply marvellous, a credit not only to the province, but to the country at large."

The bank is opening up a branch in Peterborough at the corner of George and Charlotte streets.

IN THE VILLAIN'S POWER

Bound and gaged the maiden was thrust into a gunning sack, and unable to move or scream, she felt herself carried rapidly up a flight of stairs from the dungeon, and then was put into a buggy and driven down the street at a rapid rate. Ineffectually she struggled to release herself from the gag. Alas! She was bound too securely. Finally the conveyance stopped. She was again carried into a building and fainting, gasping for breath, the sack was taken from her head. The villain took the gag from her mouth, his eyes gleamed like coals of fire through his mask, released her hands and hissed through his teeth—"There my pretty bird, scream and yell as long and loud as you like, no human ears will hear you. You are in my power, do you hear? Totally within my power." "Where am I?" she gasped. "You are in a store that never advertises," was the cold and cruel response. "Alas! Alas!" she moaned. "No power on earth can save; no one will look for me here; no one comes this way," and the poor girl fainted.—Ex.

FROM LAND OF VIRGIN FORESTS

Mr. C. E. Hubbs Returns From Brule Lake, Nipissing.

THE LUMBERING INDUSTRY

Enormous Cuts of Pine Being Taken Out of Algonquin Park—Land in Which Nature Yet Runs Wild—Game Very Plentiful.

A gentleman who on Thursday arrived from the midst of "the forest primeval, and the murmuring pines and the hemlocks," is Mr. C. E. Hubbs, formerly of town, but who for the past year has been connected with the office staff of Barnet & Co., the big lumber firm, of Renfrew, who at present are carrying on extensive operations at Brule Lake, in the Nipissing District. It is one of the stations on the Canada Atlantic, the northwestern terminus of which is Parry Sound.

AN UNTAMED COUNTRY.

Just at the present time several big lumber firms are operating in that most favored part of the province, Algonquin Park, a reserve of virgin country about fifty miles square set apart by the Government. It partakes of the character of an immense game preserve and here game of all kinds may run at large unmolested by the hand of man. All are exempt save wolves and bears, and some idea of the untamed nature of the country may be obtained from a story which Mr. Hubbs tells of the lumber company's snow plow gang. It was about 2 o'clock last Monday morning when the men were out with the plow keeping the roads clear in preparation for the day's operations. Suddenly the horses stampeded, and looking around for a reason the men found that a pack of wolves hovered in the vicinity. With great difficulty they controlled the horses and beat a retreat back to camp. Wolves are very cunning animals, and will jump ten feet over a snowshoe track, rather than run any risk of being trapped. The park is controlled by a regular system of police who see that there is no violation of the laws.

The game in the park is very plentiful, the deer being quite tame. The beaver is an animal which is multiplying fast and also proving a great nuisance to the lumbermen, for this little animal throws a dam across every stream he takes a fancy to, and is skilful at turning a gully into a lake. Barnet & Co. had one big dry swamp in that country. The beavers built a dam across it and converted it into a lake of several acres. If their dam is cut they will rebuild it in a couple of nights.

NATIONAL PARK.

All of the limits which are now being cut were sold to the lumbermen before the National Park was set aside by the Provincial government. The latter had then either to buy the limits back or allow the lumber to be taken off. The latter course was allowed and now the pine is being cut, but the hardwood is preserved, and in some places it is difficult to immediately discern the inroads of the woodmen upon the dense forest. It is a beautiful country from a scenic point of view, there being miles on miles of fine hardwood parks and grand stretches of water. Every lake contains salmon and every stream abounds with trout and fishing, but no hunting, is permissible.

HUM OF INDUSTRY.

Mr. Hubbs states that the hum of any other industry but that of the saw-mill does not emphasize itself to any great extent in that part of Ontario. At Kearney, 25 miles above Brule Lake, there is a factory where hardwood furniture in the unfinished state is produced and a large business done with the American side. Just below Brule Lake is where the Gilmour Lumber Company cut a monster limit some years ago. At present there is the old mill and quite a few dwellings, but at present there is only one one family there—that of the man who watches the premises. At one time there were about 1,000 people living at this point, but when the lumbering operations ceased there was nothing further that promised an existence, and the people dispersed. No settlers are allowed to locate in the park—only the employees of the people requiring their services, and it is safe to say that when the timber is all cut the people will leave also. The country is very rocky and offers no encouragement to agriculture. Though the Canada Atlantic made deep and frequent cuts through the rock in connection with the construction of this road, no traces of the existence of minerals have ever been found. The wealth of the country consists in its timber.

NEAR TO NATURE.

Mr. Hubbs states that Algonquin Park is practically a national playground. It is probably the only place in Ontario where a man can get close to nature without having to wear his glad rags. There are no summer hotels, no gay cottages; the swish of the silk skirt and the chatter of the garrulous example of fashion who haunts society's watering places are not heard in the land. A man can go out there wearing a pair of overalls and one suspender and feel as big as a king. It is in the forest solitude where nature lays hold of a man and makes him acquainted with himself. It is an ideal place for roughing it. The salmon fishing in the lakes is said to be unexcelled, and Mr. Hubbs says he has seen speckled trout caught there which weighed two and a half pounds.

ANCIENT MONARCHS.

One thing noticeable about the pine in Algonquin Park is its immense size, and its great age. As many as 275 rings have been counted on old monarchs of the forest, and this means they are just that many years old. When lumbering operations are at their height, there is quite a population of brawny woodsmen in that locality. For instance the Frasers of Ottawa muster something like one hundred and twenty men; the MacLachlin Bros., of Arnprior, four hundred and fifty men; the St. Anthony Lumber Co. of Ottawa, five or six hundred men; the Brennan's of Hamilton, situated at Rainy Lake, one hundred and fifty hands; Barnet & Co., about two hundred men, and so on. Some of the lumber companies have saw mills on their limits, and others at a distance. Some take out their logs by rail and others by water, the latter process being somewhat slow requiring in certain cases, all the time from the breaking up of the rivers until the first of November, to float the logs to Arnprior, Ottawa, or other points of manufacture.

BIG LUMBER CUTS.

Some idea of the immense lumber cut in a season is given in the following approximate figures for last year,—Brennan, six million; Barnet & Co., six million; St. Anthony, sixty million; and MacLachlan, sixty or sixty-five millions. The prices for lumber have become very firm again and there is a brisk demand from the American market. Referring to the Georgian pine which is coming into this country in large quantities, Mr. Hubbs states that it is used for certain lines of business, but does not compete very materially with the white pine. A good market for Canadian hardwood is found across the line, in such cities as Buffalo, while the more extensive shipments of pine go to Great Britain and also United States. The Northwest does not furnish any great demand for eastern lumber, it being the legitimate market for British Columbia, but the lumbermen there are protesting against the action of Wisconsin dealers in making a slaughter market of the Northwest, the object being to thus get rid of their low grade material. An import duty is being applied for.

HEIGHT OF LAND.

Brule lake is situated at what is commonly called the "Height of land," and its elevation is said to almost equal that of Banff, Alberta, which is 4542 feet above the sea level. Not far from Barnet & Co's mills is a little spring lake, the water from which runs out at each end in different directions, one stream going to the Ottawa and the other to Georgian Bay. The weather at Brule lake has not been exacting, the coldest being about 30 degrees below. On the Canada Atlantic, a snow-plow is kept busy over every twenty miles of track and there has only been one late train this winter. This railway is considered the short route from Depot Harbor to the sea-board, and when the steamers are running from Duluth and other American ports considerable business is done.

Mr. Hubbs says he expects to return early next week. He is greatly in love with that country, but likes to take an opportunity to renew old acquaintances here once in a while.

FIGURES FROM THE COW CENSUS

How Seventy-two Farmers Kept Daily Milk Service.

SOME STRIKING CONTRASTS

Average Production Per Cow Must be Improved by Weeding Out the Poor Ones—How to Raise Butter Production.

At the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's convention, Mr. F. C. Whitley, of the Dairy Commissioner's branch, Ottawa, gave a very interesting account of a cow census which he conducted in the vicinity of Cowansville, Que., during the summer of 1904. Under his supervision seventy-two farmers kept daily milk records of their cows and three times a month took samples for testing from the milk of each individual cow in their dairies. In this way reasonably accurate figures were obtained.

For the month of June the general average of all the herds tested was 652 lbs. of milk, yielding 25 lbs. of fat. In one case twenty-two cows had a yield for the month of 17,845 lbs. of milk, and [illegible] lbs. of fat, an average per cow of 811 lbs. of milk and 32.4 lbs of fat. In another herd of eleven cows, every animal was below the general average, the range being as low as 289 lbs. to 806 lbs. of milk per cow, and this herd consisted of Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire and Holstein grades and natives. In contrast to this, another herd of twelve cow in the herd was above the aver- 930 to 1,115 lbs. per cow, so that every co win the herd was above the average. This shows that the flow of milk depends upon the individuality of the cows even more than upon their breeding.

FAT PER COW.

In the month of July a herd of twenty-seven cows, Jersey, Ayrshire, Holstein and Shorthorn grades, gave 13,760 lbs. of milk and 472.7 lbs, an average of 509 lbs. of milk and 17.5 lbs of fat per cow. This was typical of several herds consisting of mixed grades. The average record per cow is poor, noticeably below the average of the whole 1,120 cows for July. The best showing was made by a Holstein grade, whose record is more than double that of the poorest cow. This dairy had five more cows than that fist mentioned, and yet produced 4,000 lbs, less milk in the month. Another July record showed that one herd of six cows gave 2,515 lbs. of milk, while another dairy of twelve cows gave 8,020 lbs.; twice as many cows gave over three times as much milk. In September one lot of twenty-three cows gave 8,120 lbs. of milk, and another lot of 23 yielded 11,280 pounds. These records emphasize the need for knowing definitely the production of each individual cow.

The average production per cow must be improved by weeding out the poor ones. Figures go well with farming. With forethought and figures, the production of butter in the average farm herd can be increased at least 40 lbs. per year in five years. It has been done scores of times. It is safe to say that almost every farmer milking twenty cows has three on which he loses money. Until he keeps record he cannot tell which they are. It will pay him to find out.

WIDE VARIATION.

The wide variation in the total yields of butter by individual animals in the same herd is even more apparent in the records for longer periods. For four months the cows in one herd of fourteen varied from 40 to 114 lbs., the best cow yielding nearly three times as much as the poorest. The average for the herd was 81 lbs. per cow, while the general average of all the cows tested for four months was 98 lbs. Would not this man be better off if he disposed of at least four cows? Another herd varied from 51 to 127 lbs. per cow, with an average below the census average. It is probable that both men think they have pretty good cows.

For a period of five months, one dairy made the creditable showing of 190 lbs. of butter per cow, more than double the average of some other herds, and well above the census average of 115 lbs. per cow for five months. Indeed, every one of the twelve cows in this herd exceeded the general average, ranging from 147 to 251 lbs. These figures are encouraging. This man's record can be, and should be, equalled on a thousand farms in the next five years. Such results are obtained by using the scales and Babcock tester to detect the robber cow and get rid of her. Then, by the use of a good dairy-bred sire, and aiming at a standard of say, 6,000 lbs of milk and 250 lbs of butter per cow annually, a good herd can speedily be graded up. There are hundreds of dairy farmers who have thus raised the butter production of their herds in a few years from 150 or 175 lbs. to 300 lbs per annum.—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The Pine Woods.

The pine stands in the woods like an Indian, untamed, with a fantastic wildness about it even in the clearings. If an Indian warrior were well painted, with pines in the background, he would seem to blend with the trees and make a harmonious expression. The pitch pines are the ghosts of Philip and Massasoit. The white pine has the smoother features of the squaw.

The distant woods are but the tassels of my eye.

Books are to be attended to as new sounds merely. Most would be put to a sore trial if the reader should assume the attitude of a listener. They are but a new note in the forest. To our lonely, sober thought the earth is a wild unexplored. Wildness as of the jay and muskrat reigns over the great part of nature. The ovenbird and plover are heard in the horizon. Here is a new book of heroes come to me like the note of the chewink from over the fen, only over a deeper and wider fen. The pines are unrelenting sifters of thought; nothing petty leaks through them. Let me put my ear close and hear the sough of this book, that I may know if any inspiration yet haunts it. There is always a later edition of every book than the printer wots of, no matter how recently it was published. All nature is a new impression every instant. —H. D. Thoreau in Atlantic.

The Pie Libel.

A piece of pie is not necessarily a death warrant. It depends on what it is made of and how it is made. Pie proper should represent an unobjectionable combination of fruit and bread.

The word "pastry," however, covers a multitude of dietetic sins. Flour and fat rolled into a couple of soggy layers, between which spiced meats, chopped with more fat, mingled with raisins and other fruits and moistened with cognac—this may be pastry, but it is a libel on pie.

A crust made reasonably tender with sweet cream, olive oil or fresh butter or with half butter and half beef suet (the soft variety), with sufficient baking powder or cream of tartar and soda to make it light and porous, filled with wholesome fruit or berries—this is pie, and it is quite as digestible and harmless as the ordinary baker's loaf.

It is about time the pie libel was relegated to the limbo of other lies.—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

SPECIFIC
FOR THE TREATMENT OF ALCOHOLISM.

Used in Connection With the Province of Quebec Probation System With Unvarying Success.

The City Council of Montreal has endorsed this marvellous discovery. The Finance Committee of Montreal recently voted $500 to defray the expense of placing the medicine in each of the city Police Stations, as prompt application of the treatment to bad cases will prevent the fatalities continually occurring in the cells.

No Sanitarium is required. The Treatment can be taken at home. No special diet required. The desire to reform is simply necessary and spirits avoided for a few days.

This medicine is now within the reach of all, the price having been reduced. The wonderful results obtained with worst class of drunkards coming before the Judges of the Recorders' Courts in Quebec and Montreal warrants the statement that the disease of Drunkenness can be cured—readily and surely—under ordinary circumstances and with the reasonable desire upon the part of an inebriate.

This treatment is simply the medicine of the medical profession—the only secret is as to its administration.

Dr. Mackay's discovery is the result of 25 years of practice as a specialist and expert. He is a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Province of Quebec.

The Government of Quebec through the Judges ordered over 800 boxes of the medicine for prisoners appearing in the Courts in 1904—Official Reports establish 80 per cent. of cures with these cases.

With the public and official endorsation and the record of results published it is unnecessary to waste money experimenting further. All communications private.

THE TRAINS ARE RUNNING LATE

Storm Plays Havoc With Railway Schedules.

Railroad schedules are being knocked end ways to-day. Last night's storm did the trick, and its work was perfect wherever it got a chance to fill in. The greatest difficulty is reported on the Grand Trunk lines. The morning train from Belleville was cancelled and the train from Port Hope which arrives here about half past eight on summer mornings, passed through on its trip to Toronto about one o'clock. The Toronto-Lindsay train, due here at 11.35 was one-hour-and-a-half late, and this afternoon a train started out for Belleville one hour behind the usual time. The trains from the north and west were about one hour late last evening.

The trains on the C.P.R. are running pretty well on time. The biggest delay reported was that of the 5.10 express this morning which was one hour late and travelled in two sections. The local was on time and the 11.35 train from the west was only about one hour late.

On the Lakefield branch of the G. T.R. no trains are running to-day, and it will take some hard work to have the track opened up.

The following despatch from Toronto gives an idea of the situation in the Central part of the Province—

Most divisions of both railway lines were more or less blocked last night once more, due to the packing of hard, dry snow by high winds. The snow-plows are in many cases unable to penetrate the drifts, so hard are they packed, and section gangs are at work cutting it out with shovels.

On the Owen Sound and Teeswater branches there are drifts six feet deep, and the latter branch, being further blockaded by the wreck near Shelburne, stands a fair chance of being closed for some time. The train from Teeswater, due at 6.50 Thursday evening, did not arrive till one o'clock yesterday afternoon. The C. P.R. through trains, however, came in on fairly good time, and the Windsor division is reported all clear today.

The Grand Trunk refused yesterday to sell tickets to points on the Kincardine and Listowel, and Haliburton and Coboconk branches. Lines north of Palmerston are reported in bad shape, with trains running with no approach to schedule time.

Local officials express the hope that regular running will be resumed in a day or two, though the heavy snowstorms raging in the northern districts seem to make this problematic.

NEW MATERIAL FOR BUILDINGS

Sand Lime Brick Industry to be Started Here.

PROSPECTS VERY PROMISING

Organization of Company to Take Place Very Shortly—Satisfactory Use of the Material in the States.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams, who for some time past has been energetically engaged in paving the way for the organisation of a sand-lime brick Company, states that everything is about in readiness for the first definite step. On Thursday evening a meeting of those interested in the project was held, and the proposition considered very favorably. The work of organization is therefore going forward with a view to active opeartions in the spring. Mr. McWilliams has visited the sand-lime brick factories in Saginaw, Michigan, and Sibley, Michigan, and went very carefully into a consideration of the industry as there presented. Both of these plants have orders ahead of their capacity. The material is being very extensively used, and in Saginaw alone there are two very handsome private residences, a wholesale warehouse, street railway power house, the Burt Normal Training school, a graphite manufactory and a large number of smaller places, all built of this material. One of the residences had been started with the best pressed brick. This material ran out, however, and the house was finished with sand-lime brick, the result being entirely satisfactory and the cost being only about one-third of that for brick.

In Germany sand-lime brick has been used for many years, but it is comparatively new on this continent. The process of pressing, hardening and drying has been greatly improved during the past few years. The bricks are not touched by fire, but the drying is done in huge steam tanks, which after a baking of eight or nine hours, render the bricks ready for use.

A good, clean, sharp sand and fresh lime are required for the manufacture of the brick, and the promoters of the Company have already a good site chosen for the location of the industry. The prospects of a large business are very promising, as there will undoubtedly be a large demand, not only in town, but in neighboring places, and in Toronto. The capacity of the mill here will be between three and four hundred million. The brick may be made of any color, and fantastic moulds can be very cheaply produced. Sand-lime brick looks like the coming building material, its durability having been thoroughly tested, and builders will view with considerable interest the establishment of such an industry.

ANNUAL MEETING

Peterborough Light and Power Co. Had a Prosperous Year.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, was held on Thursday afternoon at the company's office, George st.

There were present Messrs. Robert Gordon, of Chicago, assistant treasurer of the American Cereal Company, T. E. Bradburn, W. H. Hill, W. H. Clarton, and J. H. Larmouth.

The reports presented for the past year were very satisfactory, showing an increase in business—both in the receipts and in the number of consumers.

The company is now supplying about fifty arc lamps to business concerns, while the number of incandescent lights installed is considerably ahead of last year.

The following officers were elected for the coming year.—

President—T. E. Bradburn.
Vice-Pres.—John Stuart, Chicago.
Sec.-Treas.—Robert Gordon, Chicago.

Mr J. H. Larmouth was re-appointed manager. The prospects for the next twelve months are encouraging.

NUISANCE TO MERCHANTS

Council to be Asked to Legislate Against Itinerant Pedlars.

It is understood a petition is being circulated among the merchants of the town, and which will be presented to the Town Council at an early date, asking that body to introduce legislation to prevent the custom, which they contend is both a nuisance and injustice, of outsiders drifting into town and disposing of their wares from door to door. They claim that these itinerent pedlars injure their business to a considerable extent. They are in no way any value, they say, to the residents of the town, as they take the money they receive for their goods to build up a business in Europe or some centre other than Peterborough. The merchants argue that they have a right to be protected from the inroads made by this element, as all their interests are centred in Peterborough, and they desire the council to take steps to abate the nuisance as far as it lay in their power to deal with the matter. The petition will probably be presented at the next meeting of the Council.

REVIVAL MEETINGS

During the last three weeks twenty have come forward for Salvation and seven for holiness in the revival meetings held in the Salvation Army Barracks. There is a great deal of interest in these meetings. Some have been attracted to the special services that have not been in any place of worship for ten years. The meetings tomorrow will be conducted by Adjt. Jennings and Lieut. Salter, subjects, 11 a. m. "The Will of God;" 3 p. m. "Idolatry;" 7 p. m. "Things That Fail." The band will play special selections afternoon and evening. Good singing has been arranged for each meeting. All are invited.

SOME CHANGES AMONG CLERGY

Rev. Father Phelan Likely to go to Sault Ste. Marie.

FATHER McCOLL MAY LEAVE

Popular Pastor of St. Peter's Named For the Vacancy At North Bay—Rev. Father Fitzpatrick May be Transferred to Peterborough.

A rumor has been in circulation during the past few days in Catholic circles in reference to proposed changes to take place in Peterborough diocese as a result of the consecration of Rev. Father D. J. Scollard as bishop of Sault Ste. Marie. Report has it that Rev. Father Phelan, the popular and beloved parish priest of Young's' Point will be chosen to accompany him to Sault Ste. Marie, and that Rev. Father John O'Brien of the Cathedral clergy will be transferred to Young's 'Point.

Another rumored change and one that (if report prove correct) will remove from Peterborough a priest who is esteemed and loved by the congregation of St. Peter's, as well as by citizens in general. There will be a vacancy in the parish of North Bay, caused by Rev. D. J. Scollard's elevation, and reports give Rev. Father McColl that station, and the promotion of Rev. Father Fitzpatrick of Ennismore to St. Peter's cathedral.

These reports are given for what they are worth, as it has been somewhat difficult to ascertain the source from which they originated.

HIGHWAYS ARE ALL BLOCKADED

Adventures by People who Braved the Elements.

COUNTY TREAS.' EXPERIENCE

Got Within Three-fourths of Mile of His Home and Had to Turn Back—Party of Young People Snowbound—Stages Not Running.

The courageous members of the agricultural community who ventured out this morning all speak of the difficulties encountered in travelling over, or rather through, the drifted roads to-day. All roads are in a bad condition, and in many cases those who would make headway must get out and dig. The roads are what migh be called sinuous, for they wind in and out among the fields, and for long stretches fight almost as shy of the main road as the snow plow in town frequently does of the sidewalk.

TREASURER'S ADVENTURE.

Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, made a brave attempt to reach his home, about three miles out in Smith, last night, and had got within three-quarters of a mile of his destination when he considered it advisable to turn back. With the wind blowing a hurricane and the snow blinding both the driver and his beast, the experience was anything but a pleasing one, and Mr. Elliott was pleased when he again reached the Munro House and thawed out.

YOUNG PEOPLE STALLED.

A merry party of young people left town about four o'clock yesterday afternoon to drive to Chemong for tea. They made the journey all right, but a proposition developed when, arriving at Finlay's hill, about three miles out, it was found that the horses could go no further owing to the blockade of snow. It was thereupon decided to put the hospitality of Mr. Finlay to the test, and though to prove equal to the emergency involved the entertainment of about 25, he never flinched, but threw his doors wide open to receive the unfortunate travellers. There they spent the night, and this morning a young lady walked to town on snowshoes to acquaint the people at home of the circumstances. The party arrived in town safely this morning.

Dr. Halliday and Dr. McNulty were summoned to Ennismore yesterday and their experiences on the road were anything but comfortable. It took them about six hours to return.

There are no stages from Warsaw, Ennismore or Hiawatha to-day. The stage from the latter place generally has four "injuns" on it, but the roads were too bad to make the trip today.

Down in Keene yesterday Dr. Shaw drove with his team to the G.T.R. station. The rig upset, the horses ran away, and the doctor had to walk home, a distance of a couple of miles. The horses arrived there before him.

BUTTER STRUCK THE TOP NOTCH

Prices Ranged From 35 to 40 Cents per Pound.

SUPPLY WAS VERY SMALL

Farmers Have Difficulty in Getting to Town—Eggs are 35 Cents per Dozen, and Chickens are Also Away Up—Good Supply of Beef.

Prices were elevated and both buyers and sellers were very scarce on the market this morning. The roads coming from every direction are almost impassable. One lady, whose home is five miles out on the Norwood road, stated that she had to sit on the sleigh while men found it necessary to shovel out certain parts of the road. Up to almost nine o'clock only four sleighs had passed over this highway, and such was the difficulty they had to contend with, that all were bunched one after the other. It took about as many hours to cover five miles in almost every case this morning. There were no people in town this morning who lived farther than half a dozen miles out.

Butter and eggs constituted the bulk of the produce on the inside market, and the prices were eye-openers. Butter went at from 35 to 40 cents a pound, and this seems to be regarded as justifiable by the ladies who braved the inclemency of the weather to come to town. There seemed to be very little butter bought up to twelve o'clock. "Eggs is eggs" again this week, and if the situation is not relieved pretty soon the seed of the unprolific hen will soon be in the same list as Johannesburg diamonds. The hen is simply not doing her best, and does not appear in a hurry to get busy until after the cold snap. Chickens were also away up, selling at from 50 to 60 cents each. There were no turkeys, ducks or geese of any account.

On the outside market there was any amount of beef, and the prices ran from 4 1-2 to 5 1-2 cents per lb.; pork was also quite plentiful at 8 and 9 cents a lb. As long as the supply of pork and beef hang out the country is safe, and as one old gentleman put it to-day, "the egg and butter producers may go hang." Lamb sold at 10 cents a lb.; potatoes were from 80 to 65 cents a bag, and apples brought from 60 to 65 cents per bag.

The moderation of the weather and consequent improvement of the roads would loosen things up a bit and undoubtedly result in a huge market and better prices, at least to the purchaser.

MILL BROKEN INTO

Several Articles Belonging to Mr. Robert Clinkscale Taken

Robt. Clinkscale's planing mill in the Fifth Ward was broken into last night and a quantity of articles stolen from it. This is the second time that the mill has received the same treatment. On the last occasion a quantity of tools were taken and this time the thieves helped themselves to some more. Several planes, saws and other articles were taken. Entrance was gained by forcing in an unused door. Mr. Clinkscale reported the matter to the police this morning, but they have no idea of who are the culprits.

FARMER'S ICE HOUSE

How One Can be Constructed Very Cheaply and Conveniently.

The season of the year has arrived when the ice house may be filled. There is no reason why most farmers should not have a continuous supply of ice throughout the summer. Where a stream or sheet of water is within reach, the cost is but trifling.

An ice house can be constructed very cheaply after the following fashion.—Large posts six or eight inches in diameter may be sunk into the to support the framework forming the walls. For a small ice house two, or at the most, three posts on each side would be sufficient. Inside the posts two inch plank may be nailed on, the posts and the plank completing the walls of the storage. A door may be constructed of short pieces of plank kept in place on the inside by the ice itself and on the outside by the posts. As the ice is used the boards closing the doorway may be taken down one after another. The roof may be made after any fashion to suit the builder. The shanty roof shingled would perhaps be as cheap and satisfactory as any.

In the filling of the ice-house the floor should be covered about a foot deep with saw dust or dry chopped straw. The ice may then be laid upon this, leaving a space all around between the ice and the wall about a foot wide. As the ice is filled in, this space should be filled with saw dust or straw, whichever is used. As each layer of ice is completed the crevices between the blocks should be filled in with ice chips and soft snow so as to exclude all air from among the ice. After the full supply of ice is in place the top should be covered a foot deep with straw or saw dust.

The site for the house should be carefully chosen so that good drainage is provided. It is important that the ground below the ice should be kept dry.

A building twelve feet square and eight feet high, affording space within for ice 10 feet by 10 feet by 6 feet will contain about 15 tons of ice, which would undoubtedly be ample for all purposes on the farm. The material required to construct this building would be only a trifling cost, and a few trips to the nearest pond or creek would bring enough ice to fill the house.

—At the meeting of the Fortnightly club in the Y. M. C. A. hall last night twenty new members joined. This is very gratifying to the officers of the club.

—The Bobcaygeon correspondent of the Lindsay Watchman-Warder says —"Mrs. Thos. Gilgore of Peterborough was present last week at the funeral of her nephew, Wm. Kelso.

—While turning the corner of Charlotte and George streets to-day at noon Wm. Taylor's sleigh upset and threw him out. He was badly shaken up but was able to continue on his way.

—The local office of the C.P.R. has received advices not to sell any tickets on their lines north of Orangeville as they are blocked with snow. The Central Ontario road is also out of business on account of the recent storm.

—R. C. Clute, K.C., of Toronto, who has been appointed to the vacancy in the Exchequer division of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, will in all probability be sworn in to-day, before the Hon. Chancellor Boyd.

—Rev. Dr. Moore of Ottawa, secretary of the Canadian Association for the prevention of tuberculosis will lecture before the Peterborough Sanatorium Association in the Y. M. C. A. hall on Tuesday evening, February 28th. Dr. Moore will speak on the cause and cure of tuberculosis and the public is cordially invited.

—Wm. Austin, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of assaulting Fred Adlam, comes up for trial on Wednesday morning. After a heated political discussion in the shops of Peter Hamilton Co., Austin struck Adlam on the side of the head with a piece of iron, inflicting a severe wound.

—The increase in the summer business at Coboconk last season, was so encouraging that Mr. Jackson has decided to add fifteen more bedrooms as soon as spring opens. The upper end of the Kawartha lakes have developed wonderfully of late years, a regular boat service having much to do with the improvement in traffic.

—The Toronto Express was about two hours late this morning. It had a hard time getting through owing to the storm and drifted snow. The train was pulled by two engines, which were veritable masses of ice and resembled moving icebergs. The past week has been one of the most severe ever encountered by the railways.

—A German paper gives a test for watered milk which is simplicity itself. A well-polished knitting needle is dipped into a deep vessel of milk and immediately withdrawn in an upright position. If the sample is pure some of the milk will hang to the needle, but if water has been added to the fluid, even small proportions, the milk will not adhere to the needle.

—All of Collingwood's school buildings but one have been condemned as unfit for use, and according to the newspapers, the town is facing an expenditure of about fifty thousand dollars to make things up-to-date. The people of Lindsay will be up against a similar bit of unpleasantness in the course of a few years. —Post.

—The present outlook is said to be favorable to a large amount of building as soon as the season opens. Several parties have secured lots and are figuring on building residences. Then in all probability the Hotel Royal will be started on a large scale and will have to be rushed with a large staff of workmen in order to have it ready for the summer trade. —Bobcaygeon Independent.

—A Chicago man is supporting his nineteen children and their mother on an income of $9 a week. When it comes to expert financeering there is something worthy of study. Lindsay aldermen should secure his address, because if we continue to spend money as lavishly as in the past, a few years hence we shall need the services of an economist who can whittle close.—Post.

—The only railway, which seems to have solved the storm proposition and to be master of the whole situation is the Peterborough Radial Railway Co. It has kept all the lines open this winter and furnished a regular service on every route. While old Boreas may put other enterprises out of business, the electric road defies him even in his worst moods to seriously impede regular traffic.

—At the opera house on Monday night H. Wilmot Young's Big Bijou Comedy will appear in "Fogg's Ferry," a splendid production which has been most favorably spoken of by the press. During the evening several new and excellent vaudeville features will be introduced. The company appear at the opera house all next week. There will be matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. The Bijou Company is a superior one in every way.

—Messrs. Lithgow and McCain joined a deputation that waited upon the Victoria County Council last week and asked that the county fee for pedlars license be largely increased. Some action might also be taken by local authorities to stop the nuisance of children hawking stuff from house to house. The sale of lottery tickets is another nuisance that should be stopped. If a charitable collection is needed by anyone let it be taken as a charity, and not under the guise of a lottery.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

—Mary Sheehan, relict of the late James Moher, died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Redmond Carey, 6th con. of Douro, on Thursday, aged 84 years. The family consists of Mrs. Redmond Carey, of Douro; Mrs. Maloney and Mrs. McFadden, of Mount Pleasant; William and John of Douro, and Daniel of Peterboro. The funeral took place today to St. Joseph's Cemetery. Requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father Keilty of Douro.

—The Toronto News says — "The congestion of freight traffic on the railways, owing to the frost and snow, is hampering the wholesale houses. Cars laden with spring goods such as millinery, mantles, and dress fabrics, many shipments intended for the annual openings, are sidetracked all along the line. Spring openings are supposed to be two weeks or so away, but the rigorous weather is causing uneasiness in commercial circles. Already the Customs receipts are feeling the stringency. While the total to date is much greater than for the same period last year, the duties collected on Toronto imports on Wednesday and Thursday of this week showed a decrease. Then, too, the railways were having their difficulties this time last year.

PATRONS AND GRANGERS.

Oppose Free School Books and Railway Subsidies—Elect Officers.

Toronto, Feb. 18.—The Dominion Grange and Patrons of Industry concluded their thirteenth annual session at the Albion Hotel yesterday and placed themselves on record as opposed to the state furnishing school books to scholars in the public schools of Ontario. They are also opposed to the newer system of education inaugurated at Guelph in connection with which busses are run to bring to and take children from school.

The committee on legislation waited on Premier Whitney in the afternoon. They reported: "That we consider the unequal proportion in which the burden of taxation is at present adjusted as between farmers and railways, telephone and telegraph companies to be one of the greatest grievances of which farmers have to complain. We recommend the new Government in this province be requested to present a measure at the coming session with the essential features of the Pettypiece Bill."

The committee views with alarm the several proposals looking towards an increase in the burdens already imposed upon the farmer in the form of Dominion taxation. Among the proposals referred to are: To place an import duty on No. 9, 12 and 13 wire, now free; to put a tax on binder twine, and to levy an import duty on lumber. They protest against adding the above articles to the list of taxed articles, and are also opposed to any proposal looking to a restriction by Parliament of the markets the farmers sell in. A serious restriction would be imposed by putting an export duty on wheat. Protests are also made against the granting of subsidies to railway promoters and bounties to iron manufacturers.

The report said: "In view of the fact that even Cuba can secure railways without bonusing them, the Grange emphatically declares that the time has come when an end should be put to the granting of land to railway corporations; and that where aid is necessary it should take the form of a loan, to be repaid with interest."

The Dominion Parliament will be urged to enact a law limiting the speed of trains crossing streets in villages and towns, and the railway commissioners will be urged to adopt measures to prevent the loss of life by shunting at crossings.

A local law which the Grangers want changed is the Assessment Act. A secret ballot will be welcomed. They recommend that the Dominion Government take over trunk telephone lines in order to facilitate the formation of municipal or co-operative telephone systems.

Election of Officers.

The session adjourned to meet next year at the same place after electing the following officers: Master, Henry Gross, Lefroy; overseer, Thos. McMurphy, Loree; secretary, Wm. Fisher, Burlington; treasurer, Jas. Fallis, Newbridge; chaplain, S. Goodfellow, Duncan P.O.; lecturer, Jas. Glenn, Glenworth, P.O.; steward, Albert Caruthers, Whitby; assistant steward, J. G. Lethbridge, Strathroy; gatekeeper, W. A. Coulter, Painswick. Lady officers: Ceres, Miss Cowan, Whitby; Pomona, Miss L. Brennan, Whitby; Flora, Mrs. E. Brennan, Whitby; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Warnica, Painswick; executive; Wm. Fisher, Burlington; Jabel Robinson, Middlemarch; auditors, F. M. Warnica, and W. Ralston.

IMITATING THE JAMES GANG.

Six Men With Revolvers Hold Up Twelve and Secure $800.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Twelve men were held up by six armed robbers in the office of Max Mildenberg, Clybourne Place and Hawthorne street. The highwaymen fired several shots as they entered, wounding two persons. They knocked another unconscious with a blow from a revolver. They then took more than $800 and escaped.

There were four men in the office when the robbers entered. Without warning the six robbers appeared and began firing. Julius Bensey, a clerk, and Mildenberg, dropped to the floor to escape the bullets, but two foremen were struck and slightly wounded. After the shooting the robbers ordered the four men to hold up their hands.

At this point eight of the drivers and fillers who were in a barn at the rear ran in. Revolvers were pointed at them and they were told to "line up" against the wall.

While two of the robbers kept the victims in subjection, the other four took Bensey into the inner office and ordered him to open the safe. An inner compartment remained locked, which contained only the private papers of the proprietor Bensey was commanded to open this, and when he said he could not two of the robbers struck him with their revolvers, making him unconscious. They then carried him to the outer office, where they forced the twelve men to lie face downward on the floor until they could be searched. When they secured all the plunder they could find the robbers ran out.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value, when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carrys them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much-improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

London Season Opened.

London, Feb. 18.—The first court of the year was held in Buckingham Palace last night. It was exceptionally brilliant and essentially diplomatic function. The attendance was large, with a particularly full representation of the Embassies. King Edward and Queen Alexandra were accompanied by the royal circle, the only absentee of which was Princess Victoria, who has not yet recovered from a recent operation. There were a large number of presentations, including Princess Ena of Battenberg and Lady Eileen Wellesley. The front of Queen Alexandra's gown was a blaze of jewels, with a beautiful single diamond of great size in the centre of the corsage.

Date Not Yet Decided.

Toronto, Feb. 18.—At the close of yesterday's meeting of the Provincial Cabinet the Premier announced that he had no news to give out. The next meeting will be held on Thursday when it is expected the date of the opening of the session will be fixed if the Ministers are all re-elected. There is some talk of opposition to Hon. Nelson Monteith in South Perth, and a convention of Liberals of that riding will be held on Monday next. Hon. Mr. Whitney expects to go home to-day to remain until after the nominations on Tuesday.

Cures Spinal Meningitis.

New York, Feb. 18.—That cerebro-spinal meningitis, frequently called "spotted fever," is to be robbed of its terrors is believed at the Gouverneur Hospital, where a method of treatment, discovered by Dr. Edward Waitzfelder, visiting physician there, has led to many speedy recoveries of late.

Died in Denver.

C.P.R. Engineer's Experience With Dodd's Kidney Pills.

They Brought Back his Strength When he Could Neither Rest nor Sleep.

Winnipeg, Man, Feb. 17.—(Special.) —Mr. Ben Rafferty, the well-known C.P.R. engineer, whose home is at 175 Maple Street, is one Winnipeg man who swears by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Long hours on the engine and the mental strain broke down my constitution," Mr. Rafferty says. "My back gave out entirely. Terrible, sharp, cutting pains followed one another, till I felt I was being sliced away piecemeal. I would come in tired to death from a run. My sole desire would be to get rest and sleep, and they were the very things I could not get. Finally I had to lay off work.

"Then I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, and the first night after using them I slept soundly. In three days I threw away the belt I have worn for years. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Roosevelt Wants Big Navy.

Washington, Feb. 18.—To several congressmen President Roosevelt said yesterday, that he hoped the pending naval appropriation bill would provide for three battleships, instead of two, as the measure now stands, saying he thought it unfortunate not to carry into effect the program for the building up of the new navy and that retrenchments might better be made in other departments.

YOUR EYES TELL THE STORY

Sparkling, bright eyes indicate vigor and health. Drooping, weak and watery eyes show some internal ailment which in ninety cases out of one hundred is a weak heart. When the heart becomes weak, the blood thickens and moves sluggishly and the organs become diseased for want of a proper stimulant. So we invariably trace these ills to a weak heart.

Bawdsey stepped back and a look of genuine surprise overspread his freckled face. And he was apparently more astonished than he showed, as Brendon guessed by the trembling of his hands. "I have lived over fifty years in the world," said Bawdsey, "and this is the queerest thing I ever dropped across. And I drop across many queer things, stranger."

"Well, Mr. Bawdsey, if that is your name," said George good humoredly, "it is a good thing I have saved your life. But you seem as though you could"—

"I can—I can," interrupted Bawdsey, anticipating the remark. "But have you ever heard of that disease—fear of open spaces?"

"No," replied Brendon. "What is it?"

"I shan't give you the medical name," said Bawdsey, "as you would not understand, but it is a dread to cross any open space. At times it takes me unexpectedly, and I get a sort of paralysis of the will and cannot move. That was why I stopped in the middle of the road. I should have been killed but for you."

"Perhaps I had better see you home, then," said Brendon.

"No. I shall take a cab. It is only now and then that the thing takes me. It can't be cured, and maybe it will get worse. At present it does not prevent me attending to my work. Come home with me, and I'll tell you more. I live in 43 Amelia square."

"What, in that house?" cried George, for this was the number of the Jersey mansion.

"Yes. What do you know of it?"

"Nothing."

"Oh, yes, you do, but you won't trust me. However, I'll see you again, and I'll trust you. Take care of Lola Velez. She means you harm."

The next moment he was gone, and George was staring after him.

CHAPTER VIII.

LOLA VELEZ was the rage for a season. She sprang into fame in a single night and thenceforth held an undisputed position as the favorite of the London public. She was not exceptionally handsome, nor was her dancing distinguished by any special grace, but about her there was something weird and original which appealed to her audience. George Brendon had been instrumental in introducing her to the public, and she owed her position as much to his kindness as to her own genius.

It was a snowy winter's night when Brendon found her. He had just entered Pembroke square, where he had lodgings, when he heard a moan. Turning aside into the shadow of a wall, he found a woman lying there exhausted with cold and hunger. Always anxious to do good, he brought the poor creature to his rooms. Under the influence of food and wine and warmth she revived sufficiently to tell her story.

Her name, she stated, was Lola Velez. She was Spanish by birth, but had lived many years in Italy. Trained as a dancer, she had appeared at several of the best theaters with more or less success, but owing to her violent temper she had lost all chance of gaining a permanent position. She had danced her way to Paris through various small towns, but here, as elsewhere, her temper proved her ruin. Then she had crossed the channel only to find that the market was overstocked with dancers. Unable to obtain employment and having very little money, the unfortunate woman had fallen lower and lower until she was reduced to begging in the streets. Finally she was turned out of her poor lodgings and had expended her last sixpence on food. It was shortly after this that Brendon found her.

He acted the part of a good Samaritan. Giving her a sovereign, he sent her away, restored in a measure to her right mind. The next day he saw the proprietor of a music hall with whom he was acquainted and procured her an engagement.

Her success was immediate. She enacted her part with a reckless abandon and a wild frenzy which thrilled the house. For the moment Lola was not herself, but a wild Theban queen raging in the orgies of the wine god. All London came to see the frantic revels over which Lola presided, and night after night the little music hall was filled to overflowing. Lola made good use of her fame. She insisted that her salary should be raised, took modest lodgings in Bloomsbury and for a time saved her money as a provision against old age and poverty. On the stage she was a dancing demon, but at home no one could have been more modest. There was not a breath of scandal against her, in spite of Mrs. Ward's hint to Brendon.

This change in the formerly reckless woman was caused by love and gratitude to George. He had saved her from starvation, from death; he had procured her the engagement which had led to her success and present ease. She desired him to marry her and, figuratively speaking, cast herself and all she had at his feet. Brendon found this excessive gratitude rather trying. Even then he was in love with Dorothy, whom he had met twice or thrice, and he was not disposed to accept the wild passion which Lola so freely offered to him.

Lola could not understand his coldness. She was accustomed to see men at her feet and to spurn them. Now that she was willing to surrender her liberty and to give her love, it exasperated her to think that the one man she had chosen would have none of her. As yet she knew nothing of Brendon's love for Dorothy, but with the instinct of a jealous woman guessed that some such passion engrossed the mind of the man she desired to marry. Wearied of her persistency, Brendon stepped away, and for a few weeks Lola did not see him. Then she saw his name in the papers connected with the Amelia square tragedy and wrote to him. He accepted her invitation and came to supper, less because of her desire than because he wished to speak to her about Bawdsey. The name of Lola Velez on the lips of the red man had startled Brendon almost as much as the fact that Bawdsey appeared to be acquainted with him. George could not recall meeting the man, and as he was not yet sufficiently famous for his name to be on the lips of the public he wondered how it came about that Bawdsey knew of his existence. Anxious to know who the man was, he sent a note marked private to Miss Bull and received a reply stating that Mr. Bawdsey was a new boarder, and, so far as she knew, a gentleman who lived on his income. There remained Lola to question, and to Lola George went a night or two after the rescue of the red man. George made up his mind, and a strong mind it was, that he would not leave Lola until he knew positively how her name came to be mentioned by Bawdsey.

Having just returned from the music hall, Lola wore a loose tea gown of scarlet trimmed with glittering jet. It was a bizarre garment, but the vivid color suited her dark face and southern looks. She was rather tall, very slender, and she moved with the dangerous grace of a pantheress. Her face was oval, sallow and thin, with ever changing expressions. She was never two minutes the same, but her prevailing mood was one of fierce intensity. The smoldering fire in her great black eyes blazed into passionate love as she swept forward to greet her visitor.

"My deliverer, my adored!" she cried in moderately good English and kissed his hand with burning lips.

George snatched it away. "Don't, Lola. You know I hate that sort of thing!" And so saying he threw down his coat and hat on the sofa at the far end of the room.

"There, little friend," cried Lola, when he was seated comfortably by the fire and was puffing at a cigarette, "now we must talk. Why have you not been? Oh, you wicked young boy!"

"I have been engaged," replied George.

"Engaged!" she repeated, with a flash of her wonderful eyes. "That in words for 'I don't want to come.'"

George laughed, shook his head and changed the subject. "Have you ever been in San Remo, in Italy?" he asked.

"Ah, bah! Have I been anywhere? All Italy I know—all—all."

"You know it better than Spain. Yet you are Spanish."

"I am whatever you desire, my George. Yes, I am of Spain—of Cadiz, where my parents sold all to their ruin. They came to Italy, to Milan, and made money to live from wine. I was trained to the dance. They died, and I, my friend"—

To Cure Catarrh the Germs must be Killed

Japanese Catarrh Cure does it.

Catarrh is a germ disease, like typhoid fever and smallpox. It is a minute germ that weakens the membranes lining the nostrils, starts up inflammation and ulceration, takes away taste and hearing, and in the advanced stages affects the lungs, kidneys and liver.

Japanese Catarrh Cure kills the germs, and cures. It is the only remedy that reaches every part of the affected surface. Hundreds of testimonials prove that Japanese Catarrh Cure is the never-failing cure for Catarrh.

Mr. Frank Brown, Port Hope, writes:—"I have been subject to Catarrh for over three years and could get nothing to help me. A friend advised the use of Japanese Catarrh Cure. I purchased a package from my druggist and got relief after three applications. I followed up the treatment, and am thankful to say, am now completely cured."

Need Never Reproach Himself.

"What word did her father send after he had found out about your elopement?"

"Oh, he wrote me a very kind letter, saying he was glad we'd taken that course, as it relieved him of the necessity of giving his consent and having it on his mind all the rest of his life."

Sympathy.

"Have you congratulated our hostess on her birthday?"

"No," answered Miss Cayenne; "I have condoled with her."

BLINDED BY A BLIZZARD

Six Engines Crash Into Each Other Near Shelburne

One Man Killed and Several Others Injured—The Engines Derailed and the Storm So Fierce That They Cannot Be Dug Out—Traffic Completely Blocked and May Not Be Reopened For Days—How It Happened.

Toronto, Feb 18.—An accident unique in railroad history occurred at 9.30 yesterday morning a few miles below Shelburne. As a result:

Frank Hartley of Shelburne is dead. He had his leg and harm hurt, and a report states that death followed amputation of the leg.

The injured are:

Norman Morley, fireman, Toronto Junction, leg bruised cut about head and face, slightly scalded.

Robert Thompson, conductor, Toronto Junction, tendons of stomach slightly strained.

E. Carson, brakeman, Toronto Junction, sprained ankle, body slightly burned.

The injured men were taken to Shelburne, where they must remain until the line can be re-opened. An auxiliary was despatched from Toronto Junction, which arrived at the scene of the wreck about 2 p. m. Work was begun at once on clearing the line, but so terrific was the blizzard that raged that it had to be given up, without anything having been really accomplished. The line is thus still completely blocked. It may be cleared to-day.

How It Occurred.

The affair was the tragic outcome of the determined battle waged by the railroad to keep its Owen Sound line open against the arrayed strength of the elements, cold, wind and snow. There is a water tank a few miles below Shelburne, and thither three locomotives, the propelling force for a large snow plow, had gone to take in a supply. The engines were long in returning to join forces with three other locomotives with which they had been acting in concert, and those in charge of the latter, thinking that their co-workers had become blocked and were unable to move, set out to lend aid.

Might Have Been Worse.

A driving wind was scurling the banked up snow alongside the tracks blinding clouds that obscured the vision. It was not until the violent impact that the engineers of the divided forces knew of one another's proximity.

As it was, three of the massive engines were hurled from the tracks, while the others "slewed." The tender of one engine rolled over upon its side, while two others were thrown into a position crosswise of the track.

One Killed, Six Injured.

Hamilton, Feb. 18.—One man was killed outright and five or six others seriously injured last night on the T., H. and B. at Smithville. A snow plow had been sent out to clean the snow off the track. Another engine followed, and crashed into the plow, killing one man and injuring six others, who had been taken out to help clear the tracks. Both engines are stalled at Smithville and the track completely blocked. The local officials could not learn fuller particulars of the accident.

Killed On the Track.

Hover, Feb. 18.—Last evening about half-past five o'clock, a freight train coming from the north struck Donald Ross, an old man, who was walking on the track, and instantly killed him. Mr. Ross was about 80 years of age and a little deaf. He heard the train coming, but was too late, as the snow was banked high on either side of the track and he could not find an opening to escape.

Killed At Aurora.

Aurora, Feb. 18.—James McCluskey, an employe of the Davis Tanning Co. of Aurora, met with a terrible death yesterday afternoon. He was working at a machine used for splitting leather, when his hand got caught between the rollers. His hand and arm were crushed to the shoulder, and amputated but the shock proved fatal.

A BRIDEGROOM'S SUICIDE.

After Three Days of Married Life He Gave Up Because of Sickness.

London, Feb. 18.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Major Harry Pakenham on his honeymoon at Folkestone, Kent, last week, has been partially cleared up by the discovery of his body on the seashore. Major Pakenham was a son of Gen. Ralph Pakenham. He married, Feb. 7, in London, Miss Markham, sister of the late Lady Annesley, and was staying at Folkestone. Three days after the marriage he went out for a stroll, telling his wife that he would not be long. The next day his overcoat was found in the harbor, and a note in a pocket said he was sick and saw no prospect of getting better.

Major Pakenham contracted enteric fever during the South African war.

Will Vindicate Justice.

Brantford, Feb. 18.—W. S. Brewster, the Conservative candidate in South Brant, has been in communication with Premier Whitney regarding the re-opening of the Kennedy case, and Mr. Whitney has given assurance that his department will see that justice is vindicated. A lawyer of prominence will be employed by the Crown for the case, which will come up at the spring assizes, on March 6, before Mr. Justice Teetzel. Kennedy was acquitted on the charge of murdering Irene Cole on false testimony.

Parcel Post Treaty Signed.

Washington, Feb. 18.—A parcel post treaty between the United States and Great Britain was signed yesterday by President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hay and Postmaster-General Wynne. It has already been signed by the British officials and will take effect April 1.

To Recover $40,000.

Montreal, Feb. 18.—Papers were served yesterday on R. A. Black to recover $40,000 on behalf of the widow of Simon Howard, who claims that the money was unlawfully given to R. A. and William Black.

What Sulphur Does.

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and, mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a teaspoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health: sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this remedy."

At any rate, people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers, a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

ASSASSINATED SERGIUS

The Czar's Uncle Blown to Fragments By Terrorists' Bomb.

He Was the Leader of the Russian Reactionary Party and Hated Reformers—Had Shown Cruelty to Jews and Students—Sentenced to Death By the Revolutionary Party Months Ago—The Bomb's Terrible Force.

Moscow, Feb. 18.—While Grand Duke Sergius was driving yesterday from the Nicholas Palace through the Senate quarter, his carriage was followed by two cabs. At the Law Courts a sleigh in which were two men, one of whom was dressed as a workman, went quickly ahead of the Grand Duke's carriage. The sleigh then slowed up to allow the carriage to pass, and at that moment a bomb was thrown beneath the carriage. The force of the explosion broke all the windows of the Law Courts and the report was heard outside the city.

The carriage was blown to pieces, nothing but the four wheels remaining. The horses were not hurt and bolted.

The Grand Duke was instantly killed. His head was blown off actually being separated from his body, which was frightfully mangled.

The coachman was also killed. He was so frightfully burned by the explosive with which the bomb was charged that he died while being taken to a hospital. The murderers were arrested.

Sensation in St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 18, 4.50 p.m.—The news of the tragedy in which Grand Duke Sergius was blown up created a tremendous sensation in St. Petersburg, where the announcement by telephone from Moscow arrived during the afternoon.

Owing to the intense excitement prevailing at Moscow, few particulars are ascertainable.

The tragedy in reality was no great surprise, as it was known that the terrorists had already condemned the Grand Duke to death, and ever since the affair of January 22 the inauguration of a bomb-throwing campaign had been expected.

Grand Duke Sergius, who was a brother-in-law, as well as uncle, of the Emperor, and who had exercised immense influence at court, was regarded as the most reactionary of the Grand Dukes.

Persecuted Jews and Students.

As Governor-General of Moscow, the Grand Duke Sergius was intensely unpopular. His advent as Governor-General was followed by expulsion of the Jews from the central Provinces, and throughout the Administration his rigorous and harsh measures aroused the greatest hostility, especially among the students. Two years ago, after the students' riot, in which many were killed or wounded, several hundred expulsions to Siberia followed under the orders of Grand Duke Sergius and General Trepoff, now Governor-General of St. Petersburg, but who was then Chief of Police of Moscow. As there were many threats made against his life, the Grand Duke was obliged to flee to his summer residence, twenty miles from the city. During the recent strike disturbances the Grand Duke left the Diskoutchny Palace on the outskirts of the city, where he had been living, and took refuge inside the ramparts of the Kremlin, where he had since lived in what is known as the little palace, opposite the famous statue of Alexander II. The trip to the Kremlin on that occasion was made at night, between solid lines of troops.

Wealthy and Handsome.

Grand Duke Sergius was the wealthiest member of the Imperial family. He was tall, handsome, and cordial in manner, in spite of the ruthless fashion in which he exercised his authority as Governor-General. He was childless, but had adopted two children of his brother Paul, who was banished on account of a morganatic alliance. Sergius' record as a soldier was not brilliant. He suffered a disastrous defeat at the hands of General Kuropatkin during the famous Koursk manoeuvres.

Revolutionists Decreed His Death.

The Grand Duke is understood to have been condemned to death by the revolutionary party in December last.

The Governor-Generalship of Moscow was abolished early in the year, and the Grand Duke, according to despatches from Moscow on January 4, kept closely to the well-guarded Mokouski Palace on the outskirts of Moscow, retaining his position of commander-in-chief of the military district. Later in January, however, it was announced that the Grand Duke had sought refuge in one of the palaces of the Kremlin. He has been classed as the most reactionary member of the Imperial family, as the head of what is referred to as the war party, and has been stigmatised by the Liberals as Russia's evil genius.

Grand Duke Sergius was born in 1857, and was married in 1884 to Princess Elizabeth of Hesse-Darmstadt. They have no children.

Explosive's Frightful Power.

The deed was committed by a single terrorist, who threw beneath the Grand Duke's carriage a bomb charged with the same high power explosive which wrought Minister Von Plehve's death. The missile was loaded with nails and fragments of iron, and its explosion tore the Imperial victim's body to ghastly fragments, which strewed the snow for yards around. Every window in the great lofty facade of the Palace of Justice was shattered and bits of iron were imbedded deeply in the walls of the arsenal, a hundred yards away.

The assassin belongs to the noted "Fighting group," of the Socialist revolutionary party, which has removed other prominent officials, and long since passed sentence of death upon Grand Duke Sergius.

Grand Duchess Elizabeth, who had been engaged in the task of preparing comforts for the sick and wounded Russian soldiers in Manchuria was about to drive to the palace to join her husband. When she heard of what had befallen the Grand Duke she was driven in haste to the scene of the tragedy and knelt hatless and coatless on the bloodstained snow and murmured prayers for the welfare of the soul of her slain consort.

King Edward Sympathizes.

London, Feb. 18.—King Edward as soon as he was informed of the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius at Moscow telegraphed to Emperor Nicholas expressing his horror and sympathy.

Pope Is Saddened.

Rome, Feb. 18.—The Pope, on learning of the murder of Grand Duke Sergius, yesterday, said: "How sad it is that people think they can find relief in violence."

Students Did It.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 18.—United States Ambassador McCormick cabled the State Department yesterday from St. Petersburg as follows: "Grand Duke Sergius assassinated at Moscow yesterday by bomb. Waylaid by three students, one of whom threw bomb, two of them killed."

Japs and Russians Clash.

Tokio, Feb. 18.—The following official announcement was made here yesterday: "On Thursday the enemy's artillery bombarded our positions in front of Shaleopao, Hanchanpao, Mengtapao, and their vicinities. Yesterday at 5 in the morning the officer in command of our scouts encountered and repulsed a detachment of the enemy's infantry about 100 strong, near Pinniulupao. The enemy had come southward since Wednesday and retreated north to Liukanfang, ten miles northwest of Chitaitse."

Wentworth Liberals Will Appeal.

Hamilton, Feb. 18.—The Liberal executive of Wentworth had another long session yesterday afternoon, and decided to appeal against the judgment of Chief Justice Meredith, who ordered a new election. The Liberals will take the case to the supreme court. E. D. Smith, the Conservative candidate, who was in the city this evening said that it was not his wish to appeal.

Murdered For a Dog.

Gloversville, N. Y., Feb. 18.—The jury in the Jeptha Johnson murder case returned a verdict yesterday of murder in the second degree. Justice Kellogg at once sentenced Johnson to life imprisonment. Johnson was the city dog catcher and shot Charles Rohr in a dispute over a dog.

Aged Engineer Dies.

Brockville, Feb. 18.—Timothy Jento, a pioneer steamboat engineer on the St. Lawrence and Rideau Lakes, died here yesterday after a lingering illness. He was engineer many years for the Brockville waterworks. Mrs. Jento died in September last within a short period of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. He leaves three sons, N. T., Hamilton; Dr. C. P., London, and W. J., Brockville.

AT FIRST GLANCE.

It Would Appear That Local Remedies Would be Best for Cure of Catarrh.

It would seem at first glance that catarrh being a disease of the mucous membrane that salves, sprays, etc. being applied directly to the nose and throat, would be the most rational treatment but this has been proven not to be true.

The mucous membrane is made and repaired from the blood and catarrh is a blood disease and any remedy to make a permanent cure must act on the blood and when the blood is purified from catarrhal poison, the secretions from the mucous membrane will become natural and healthy.

In this climate thousands of people seem scarcely ever free from some form of catarrh; it gets better at times but each winter becomes gradually deeper seated and after a time the sufferer resigns himself to it as if it were a necessary evil.

Catarrh cures are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but are nearly all as inconvenient and ineffective as to render their use a nuisance nearly as annoying as catarrh itself; anyone who has used douches, sprays and powders will bear witness to their inconvenience and failure to cure.

There are a number of excellent internal remedies for catarrh, but probably the best and certainly the safest is a new remedy, composed of Red Gum, Blood Root and similar antiseptic remedies and other valuable catarrh specifics.

This remedy is in tablet form, pleasant to the taste and sold by the druggists under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and anyone suffering from catarrh may use these tablets with absolute assurance that they contain no cocaine, opiate nor any poisonous mineral whatever.

A leading druggist in Albany speaking of catarrh cures says, "I have sold various catarrh cures for years but have never sold any which gave such general satisfaction as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. They contain in a pleasant, concentrated form all the best and latest catarrh remedies, and catarrh sufferers who have used douches, sprays and salves, have been astonished at the quick relief and permanent results obtained after a week's use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets." All druggists sell full sized packages for fifty cents.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

City League Executive Meets.

At a meeting of the City Hockey League executive held last night the games of the first round scheduled to be played Thursday next, Feb. 23rd were called off, and in their place the Karmels and T.A.S. will play off in the semi-finals, the winners will then play the final game for the championship with the Furriers on March 2nd.

T.A.S. for Fenelon.

The T.A.S. team will go to Fenelon Falls on Tuesday night to meet the speedy team of that place in the first game of Trent Valley finals. The Abstainers are playing fine hockey and should make things more than interesting for the cataract team. They will likely be accompanied by a large number of supporters.

Trent Valley Finals.

Fenelon Falls will play in Cobourg on Friday night and the team from the lake front will be here on Tuesday, Feb. 28, for a game with the T.A.S.

Last Saturday night's game between the Riversides of Peterborough and Bobcaygeon, resulted in favor of the home team. The visitors were oystered after the game at the Rockland, and a very social hour was enjoyed. The Riversides came by train Saturday noon, and returned Monday morning. The attendance at the rink was good, but the play was too one sided. There are enough players in the Club to play a different seven occasionally, and so allow others to enjoy the honor of playing against visitors.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

The O.H.A. executive will meet this afternoon to arrange dates for the next games. Just when Peterborough will meet next is uncertain, but this afternoon's meeting will settle the matter. If the locals are drawn against Victoria Harbor, the game will come off next week. If on the other hand they have to meet Berlin, there will be no games next week.

Cobourg Lost.

St. Andrew's College won at Cobourg last night by 8—6, thus winning the round and putting Cobourg out of the running.

The locals are certainly great scorers. In twelve games they have scored 138 goals to 53; an average of about 11 goals to 4.

Following is their league record—

At Peterborough. — Peterborough 21, Port Perry 6.

At Lindsay. — Peterborough 6, Lindsay 8.

At Peterborough — Peterborough 17, Lindsay 5.

At Port Perry. — Peterborough 5, Port Perry 5.

At Peterborough. — Peterborough 11, Port Perry 4.

At Lindsay — Peterborough 13, Lindsay 6.

At Peterborough. — Peterborough 11, Lindsay 6.

At Port Perry — Peterborough 5, Port Perry 4.

At Smith Falls — Peterborough 5, Smith's Falls 3.

At Peterborough. — Peterborough 8, Smith's Falls 1.

At Markham — Peterborough 9, Markham 6.

At Peterborough. — Peterborough 27, Markham 3.

The Campbellford Herald says—The hockey match between Campbellford and the T. A. S. last Friday night at Cobourg, ended in a rather unbecoming manner. It appears that Brown, the referee, was very partial in his decisions to the T. A. S. Cobourg citizens who saw the game, were disgusted with his rulings and threw in their sympathy with the Campbellford team. The game ended in a row but our boys claim it was brought on by some of the T. A. S. playing a very rough game. Both teams were in fine form and played well, the score as given by the referee being 5 to 3 in favor of the T.A.S. The game has been protested by Campbellford, and the protest will likely be sustained.

The Young Electrics and the Beavers played a tie game after the Peterborough-Markham match last night.

T.C.S. Did Not Arrive.

The game scheduled for this morning between the Aberdeens and T.C.S. II. of Port Hope, was called off on account of the non-arrival of the Port Hope team. The game between the T.C.S. seniors and the West Ends which was to have been played this afternoon is off for the same reason.

The Norwood players suffered a slight defeat at the hands of the locals last night. The following is the score,—

"Flourfax" Fables

The Honest Flour Barrel and the Farmer's Wife.

Once upon a time an honest flour barrel was sent out to a farmer's house, full of flour—the wise wife looked the barrel over carefully and then said to her husband,—

"I don't think this is the flour I wanted—I don't see 'Royal Household' on it."

"No; it aint' 'Royal Household' said the farmer,

—but it is just as good

—for the grocer said so.

—"when I asked for 'Royal Household' he recommended this kind saying it was just as good, but didn't cost as much, so I said I'd try it."

"I wish you had done as I said,—I don't think much of them "just as good" grocers any way—I want the flour that is purified by electricity for I believe it is healthier. However, since we have got this, I suppose we might as well use it." and she had the barrel rolled into the pantry and opened up.

"Looks pretty good," she said to herself.

"Madam," spoke up the Honest Flour Barrel "even flour experts can't tell about flour just by looking at it. Any flour, if there is no other flour to compare it with, looks white and nice—but if you bake it into bread and then bake "Royal Household" into bread you can see the difference.

"Now, the truth about this flour is, it is made of cheap wheat, in a cheap mill by a cheap process. Flour that is not highly purified contains a lot of stuff that isn't flour and the process of taking all of it out is expensive—that's why pure flour costs more.

"Pure flour is worth all it costs and more too. If you knew the whole truth about flour, you'd send me back and get 'Royal Household'."

And the Honest Flour Barrel having said its say subsided, but after the first baking, back went the barrel to the grocer and "Royal Household" Flour was sent in its stead.

—now the Farmer's Wife uses "Royal Household" and nothing else

—and the grocer dont sell the "just as good" flour any more.

Any reader may have the "Royal Household" recipes free by sending name and address to the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd. Montreal.

The Old, Old Golden Rule.

"The Sayings of Lao Tsu," the great Chinese philosopher, who was born 600 years before Christ and fifty before Confucius, have been translated into English by Professor Lionel Giles of the British museum. They contain some utterances which remarkably anticipate the morality of the sermon on the mount—for instance, "Requite injury with kindness" and "To the not good I would be good in order to make them good."

Unconscious Frankness.

A London editor received from Berlin a printed notice of a new hair dye, described in English. "I deliver the hair dye from the fair to the deepest dark," the Berlin man said. Then, with a burst of candor, for which he cannot be sufficiently commended, he adds: "It produces a natural color and is thoroughly injurious."

'Twould Be a Relief.

"Now," said the voluble salesman, "here's a piece of goods that speaks for itself."

"All right," interrupted the weary buyer. "Suppose you keep quiet for a couple of minutes and give it a chance."

Certain of One Thing.

"Well, little boy," said the kind hearted dentist, "does the tooth hurt you?"

"I don't know whether it's the tooth or whether it's just me," groaned the boy, "but I'm blamed sure that if you'll separate us the pain'll go away!"

Positive Proof.

"Yes, I'm getting old."

"Why, you're looking younger than ever."

"That's it. You may be sure you're getting old when your friends tell you you're looking younger than ever."

A Safe Listener.

He—So you are in the habit of talking to yourself? She—Yes. You see, I've got to tell somebody, and if I tell it to myself I'm sure that it won't get any farther.

From the time a baby is six months old everything he sees and hears has an influence for good or bad upon his character.—Lavinia Hart.

Healthy and Vigorous

Mr. John Shelton, the well known bridge builder of 161 Sherwood St., Ottawa, states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney and liver derangements brought on by exposure, and find them better than any pill or medicine I ever used. They cleansed my system and made me feel healthy and vigorous, and better in every way." 8

MARKHAM BOYS OUTCLASSED BY FAST PETERBORO' TEAM

Local Septette Defeated Tournament Town in Easiest Kind of Way by Score of 27 to 3.

PETERBORO' NOW IN THE SEMI-FINALS

Visitors Were Never in the Running—Locals Played Brilliant Hockey at All Stages of the Game—Biggest Crowd of the Season, Despite Inclement Weather—Peterboro's Combination Work and All-round Good Work the Feature.

The biggest crowd of the season saw Markham receive a terrible beating at the Brock street rink last evening. The score was 27 to 3. The half time figure was 9—1. The game was far too one sided to be interesting and the visitors were never in the running at any stage. The only feature was the brilliant playing of the locals who skated rings around their opponents passed and repassed with machine-like accuracy and shot like demons. The game was very clean only a few men being ruled off and no one was hurt. The large crowd went away delighted with the showing of the locals and confident that they wouldn't be far away when the intermediate O.H.A. silverware is given out.

LOCALS' FINE PLAYING

The Peterboroughs played the fastest kind of hockey from start to finish. The forwards would swoop down the ice three or four abreast, there would be three or four lightning passes, and up would go the umpire's hand. Nearly every goal was scored in this manner. The rush line never had any trouble in breaking away and the Markham forwards couldn't check back fast enough to stop them while the visitors defence was utterly unable to break up the deadly combination. Markham forwards never got clean away. Each Peterborough forward would come checking back on his man and as a result Markham often lost the puck before reaching the defence. The few times they got inside the defence they generally threw away their opportunities by poor shooting.

Wasson took care of nearly every thing that came along and turned aside some good ones. Glover was a veritable stone-wall at point. He checked hard, but clean and the visitors only got inside him two or three times during the whole game. He also rushed nicely. Crowley was as reliable and effective as ever at cover point and broke up rush after rush. He was equally as effective on the offensive and his rushes were one of the features of the game.

THE FORWARD LINE.

On the forward line all were stars. They played the game as it should be played. There was no hogging the puck. The rubber was always passed when a pass meant a goal, and always passed cleanly and taken cleanly too. There was no misses or many bad passes, but the puck was transferred from one to the other, fast and accurately. They were far more speedy than their opponents and never had much trouble in breaking away. Their shooting was also the kind that wins games. Few opportunities were missed by taking long shots. On the contrary they went right in on the nets before shooting and the result was always a score.

Cavanah at rover did some great rushing and stick handling. He was far too speedy for the visitors and when he got going nothing could stop him. Many of the goals were scored on brilliant rushes by him, with a neat pass to one of the other forwards. Morgan, as he generally does, led in the scoring. He is always there or thereabouts to take a pass from the side, and rarely does he miss an opportunity to find the nets. His rushing was very fine. Parnell at right wing is playing grand hockey. He is very fast, a fine stick handler and a most unselfish player, always passing when he thinks it will benefit his team. He has a deadly shot from the wing, sending them in on a line and always on the nets. Graham played a fine game last evening. He figured in most of the combination rushes and while he did not score as many as the rest of the rush line, many were scored on passes from him.

CAN TRIM THE HARBOR.

Mr. A. Brodie, of Toronto, when in his prime one of the fastest of the St. George's team, acted as penalty time keeper last evening. He has seen all the fast teams in action and during the early part of the game was of the opinion that Victoria Harbor would defeat the locals. However, before the contest was over he changed his mind and now says that if Peterborough play the game they did last night that the locals will win from the Harbor and incidentally gather in the championship as he does not think that Berlin are in the same class with the locals or the Harbor.

VISITORS OUTCLASSED

The Markham team were hopelessly outclassed. They seemed to have some idea of combination, but the local forwards doubled back on them too fast to allow them to get going. Neither the defence or forward line were especially strong. Pringle turned some aside, but they were generally coming too fast for him. Gee at cover point was by far their best man and with better support he might have made the game more interesting. He did some nice individual rushing. The forward line worked hard, but that was about all. They did not shine either in combination or in individual play and their shooting was of juvenile standing. The crowd who saw the game are still trying to figure out how Markham scored their three. Sullivan was about the pick of the forwards and scored two of the goals.

Mr. W. A. McCord was referee and gave much satisfaction. He saw everything and kept the play clean, although he was a little severe in his penalties.

THE TEAMS

The teams lined up as follows—

Markham		Peterborough
	Goal
Pringle		Wasson
	Point
Halstead		Glover
	Coverpoint
Gee		Crowley
	Rover
Maxwell		Cavanah
	Centre
Sullivan		Morgan
	Right Wing
Robinson		Parnell
	Left Wing
Wilson		Graham

Goal umpires, H. Tally, Markham; E. Hurtubuise, Peterborough.

Timers, G. W. Wilson, Markham; F. A. Clarke, Peterborough.

Penalty time keeper, A. Brodie, Toronto.

The game started off at a fast clip and from the face-off the locals pressed. It was soon seen that they were going to make a runaway game of it. Several rushes failed to score. Finally Graham got busy and after a nice dash along the side, centred beautifully to Cavanah, who scored easily. Score 1—0. Time 2.45.

Halstead broke his skate and Graham went off with him. Peterborough kept peppering away at the nets and Morgan soon located them. Score 2—0. Time 2 min.

The locals were playing beautiful hockey and nothing could stop them for very long. Gee repulsed one attack, but they came right back and after a pretty combined rush, Parnell scored on a pass from Morgan. Score 3—0. Time 2 min.

Crowley went to the boards for two minutes for tripping. However, Peterborough still kept Markham busy and Pringle had troubles of his own. On an effective combined rush Morgan again found the nets on a pass from Cavanah. Score 4—0. Time 3 min.

The next soon came, Crowley started a rush, transferred to Cavanah, who handed the rubber over to Parnell and the puck hit the back of nets. Score 5—0. Time 1.15.

Markham stood them off for a while and for some minutes no scoring was done. At last Cavanah rushed beautifully, passed over to Morgan, who beat Pringle. Score 6—0. Time 4 min.

Graham and Halstead came on again. Maxwell went off for two minutes for tripping. Peterborough would not be denied and Parnell scored again on a pass from Morgan. Score 7—0. Time 7 min.

From the face off Morgan passed over to Parnell, who went down and scored. Score 8—0. Time 45 secs. Glover went off for two minutes for bodying. Cavanah got the next on a pass from Parnell. Score 9—0. Time 6.45.

With Glover surveying the game from the time keeper's stand Sullivan scored the first for the visitors. Score 9—1. Time 40 secs.

Crowley went off for the rest of the half, three minutes, for tripping and was immediately followed by Cavanah for the same period. With Glover, Cavanah and Crowley on the fence, Markham couldn't score. Indeed it kept them busy defending their goal until half time. Half time score 9—1.

HALF TIME

The Peterboroughs kept up the good work in the second half and Markham never had a look in. Cavanah got the first on a pass from Morgan. Score 10—1. Time 45 secs.

The locals never let up. Several shots were blocked, but Morgan secured possession at the side, and scored with a pretty shot. Score 11—1. Time 2.15.

Parnell got the next one, slamming it in after Pringle had turned aside several hard shots. Score 12—1. Time 4 min.

The locals began to score them at one a minute clip. Cavanah tore off a nice rush and sagged the net with a pretty shot. Score 13—1. Time 45 secs.

Graham rushed up the side and centred to Cavanah who again scored. Score 14—1. Time 30 secs.

A nice combination rush landed the next, Morgan doing the trick on a pass from Parnell. Score 15—1. Time 45 secs.

Morgan went off for two minutes for slashing. Graham scored but the referee called them back for an off side. Morgan made it 16—1. Time 6 min.

Morgan rushed and passed to Parnell who just for luck slammed in another. Score 17—1. Time 1 min.

There seemed to be only one team on the ice. Crowley made a nice dodging rush and passed to Morgan and another one was notched up. Score 18—1. Time 2.45.

Parnell tore off a fine rush and got the next one. Score 19—1. Time 2 min.

Morgan started a rush from the face off and after some pretty passing scored. Score 20—1. Time 10 secs.

Morgan and Graham united for a rush and the latter found the nets. Score 21—1. Time 1.55.

Cavanah got the next one by a nice dash after several had been turned aside. Score 22—1. Time 4.45.

A combination rush netted the next, Morgan doing the trick. Score 23—1. Time 3.15.

Graham made it two dozen by a nice rush and shot. Score 24—1. Time 15 secs.

Glover indulged in a brilliant rush and passed to Cavanah, who made the figures stand 25—1. Time 4.45.

The next went to Morgan on a nice rush. Score 26—1. Time 3 min.

Graham got Peterborough's last goal on a pass from Morgan. Score 27—1. Time 4 min.

Markham got busy just at the finish and landed two goals, Sullivan getting the first in 1.35 and Robinson the second in one min.

WHAT IS ANTI-PILL?

A Somewhat Peculiar Name Explained—How Dr. Leonhardt Came to Call his Famous Prescription "Anti-Pill".

Dr. Leonhardt found in his practice that chronic constipation and its kindred complaints were the result of a dried-up condition of the mucous membrane lining of the stomach and bowels. He investigated further and found that this condition was invariably brought about by the use of cathartics, which all contain a certain amount of resinous matter.

After the first action of such medicines a resinous residue remains behind and this has a drying affect on the lining of the stomach and bowels.

He made up his mind to produce a medicine for all stomach and bowel derangements which would be entirely free from all resinous matter.

After much experiment he succeeded, and to emphasize the difference between his treatment and the old-fashioned treatments, he gave it the name "Anti-Pill."

Anti-Pill will cure dyspepsia, biliousness or constipation perfectly and for ever—cure to stay cured—with no pill habit left to be overcome later.

ORIENTAL PEOPLE.

Grace of the Women and Classic Drapery of the Men.

Passing us occasionally, going to Jerusalem with butter and eggs and little jars of leben that showed their thick, creamy throats as they were held up to us, were small companies of women in single file. As one blue procession went by the leader called to us: "Why should you ride and we walk? Why is your lot better than ours?" Given the opportunity for leisurely argument, we could not by any philosophy have made satisfactory answer. We could only admit the fact as they saw it and recognise the universal world plaint of discontent.

They carry themselves, these women, like figures on an antique frieze. As they stride along, holding in sure balance on their heads their jars and baskets of homely produce, they tread the stony paths with the grace and largeness of action that we of the occident have grown to regard as belonging only to the age of Praxiteles.

The men are also admirable in the simplicity of their gestures, the big lines of their attitudes, the swing of their draperies. I saw a youth fling his mantle over his shoulder and fold it about him exactly in the manner of the classic Greek sculptural in his finely unconscious pose. God save the day when these sons of Canaan clothe their limbs in our ungainly garments!

OPEN AIR TREATMENT.

Reasons For Its Good Results in Cases of Consumption.

The advantages of the open air treatment for consumptives may be thus briefly summarised: The patient exposed continuously to fresh air gains in appetite, assimilates his food better, sleeps more soundly and awakens more refreshed. Free exposure to air is the best antipyretic. Sweating at night, formerly so common a symptom, usually ceases. Colds are practically unknown among patients leading an open air life. Secondary infection, on account of the comparative freedom of the air from micro organisms, is much less likely to occur. Tolerance of outside air is very quickly established, and no one who has tried the open air life will willingly go back to the former conditions of stuffiness. I have never seen any one made worse by exposure to fresh air. Even during a thick London fog patients get on better lying in bed on a balcony or in rooms with windows wide open and a good fire burning than when attempts are made to shut out the fog by keeping the windows shut.—Dr. H. W. G. Mackenzie in London Lancet.

RELIGIOUS TATTOOING.

A Custom That Is In Vogue In One Part of Italy.

In the "vanity" section of a museum at Florence there is an interesting collection of blocks used for what is called "religious tattooing" among Italian peasants of the district inclosed between the Abruzzi, Umbria and the Adriatic.

Peasants in these parts at work with shirt sleeves rolled up display a Christian symbol of some sort or a text tattooed in blue ink on their brown skin. This has been imprinted on the occasion of some special festival.

A wooden block is pressed upon the tightly drawn skin to mark the outlines of the design. This is then punctured, and a blue ink is rubbed into the wounds, which usually heal in about twenty-four hours. The custom, which is essentially Christian, is in commemoration of the branding of St. Francis, who founded a monastery close to Loretto.—London Telegraph.

The Gentleman.

"The true gentleman," said Cardinal Newman, "carefully avoids whatever may cause a jar or jolt in the minds of those with whom he is cast—all clashing of opinion, all collision of feeling—his great concern being to make every one at his ease and at home. He guards against unreasonable allusions or topics which may irritate. He never speaks of himself except when compelled, never defends himself by a mere retort. He is scrupulous in imputing motives to those who interfere with him and interprets everything for the best. He is never mean or little in his disputes, never takes an unfair advantage, never mistakes personalities or sharp sayings for arguments."

Their Only Chance.

A party of soldiers was taken to the shooting range for the first time.

The men first fired at a target 300 yards away, and not one hit it. They were next tried at a target 200 yards away, and still every one missed. They were at last tried at one just 100 yards away, but no one hit it.

"Attention!" thundered the drill sergeant. "Fix bayonets! Charge! It's your only chance!"

GRIPPE HAS THEM

It Is Epidemic Throughout the Province—Insurance Men Caught.

An interesting proof of the widespread illness throughout the Province, owing to the grippe epidemic, is furnished by the Insurance Department of the Provincial Administration says the Toronto News. This is the time of year for receiving from each insurance company doing business in Ontario a statement of the business of the last twelve months. This statement is certified to under affidavit, signed by the President, Secretary and Treasurer of the company. Under ordinary circumstances all the returns would have reached the Parliament Buildings by Feb. 1; this year, however, over one-third of them were delayed from one to three weeks, because so many of the officials were sick and unable to make the necessary affidavit's. One Company president had become dangerously ill through grippe complications, and had required the services of seven doctors.

FIERCE BLAZE IN THE FRAMERY

H. Dunsloy's Premises Gutted by Flame Sunday Morning.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT $1,200

Only Partially Insured—Other Places Had Close Call—Fire Evidently Started in the Cellar and Burned Quickly—Good Work Done by the Brigade.

Fire completely destroyed the stock and premises of Mr. Harry Dunslow, 428 George st., shortly before three o'clock on Sunday morning.

His shop which was known as "The Framery," is today a complete ruin. Mr. Dunslow estimates his loss at $1,200.

On the stock of picture frames, mouldings, artist's materials, mirrors, and mathematical instruments, he had an insurance of only $600, in the Merchants Company of Toronto.

The shop is in the block owned by Mrs. Birdsall, but as only the first floor is damaged and part of the second, the loss to the owner will not be great—probably $200 or $300

When the firemen arrived and broke in the door the flames shot out in all directions owing to the current of air admitted. The blaze seemed to be the fiercest under the stairway on the south side. It was five o'clock when the brigade quitted the scene and the members deserve credit for confining the devouring element to the premises occupied by "The Framery." Owing to the inflammable nature of picture frames, mouldings, etc., there was no hope of saving the contents which were wiped out entirely.

Mr. Archie Campbell, barber, occupies the rooms over the store and his household effects suffered considerable from the water. Mr. Jos. Trennum, who lives in the rooms adjoining is also a loser owing to the same cause. Hawley's confectionery store was filled with smoke and his show cases somewhat damaged. There is only a thin partition between his premises and the Framery.

Speaking of his misfortune today Mr. Dunslow, who came here from Toronto two years ago and embarked in business, said he was at a loss to account for the origin of the fire. He had a stove in the cellar, which was enclosed in a galvanized iron casing. The pipes were in good condition, being recently renewed. Mr. Dunslow left his place of business about 12.30 at night, after placing a tamarac stick in the stove, and securely closing all dampers. He was aroused at his home on Edinburgh street shortly after three o'clock by Mr. William Dundas. Mr. Dunslow bustled out of bed and down town reaching there only in time to rescue his day book, his insurance policies and some photographs, which were in his desk. These were the only things saved. He had just rented the premises in the rear of Hickey's tailor shop to use as a workroom, intending to devote all the ground floor to display of pictures. He feels his loss keenly but has resumed operations in the rear room already. He says that few of his customers will lose pictures, the majority of the ordered work being called for on Saturday.

The large handsome group portrait of the Shamrock Lacrosse club, Montreal, presented to the T. A. S., by Rev. Dr. O'Brien, and recently framed by Mr. Dunslow, was delivered last week.

It appears a Mr. Blackwell, who claims to be an eye specialist, from Toronto, and who has been in Roseneath for about a week or ten days, had some trouble with his wife last night, and in some manner both were severely shot by each other.

The authorities have left for Roseneath.

Later-The doctors who are in Roseneath and have operated on Mrs. Blackwell are unable to say how the accident occurred.

Blackwell has a bullet wound in the face, Mrs. Blackwell being shot in the neck.

The statement that the shooting was the result of a quarrel is wrong. Full particulars are not obtainable until the operating physicians arrive here to-night, about six or seven o'clock.

MENTAL SIDE OF RELIGIOUS LIFE

Sermons Delivered by Rev. Dr. Galbraith, of Toronto.

EDUCATIONAL SOCIETY'S WORK

Object of the Fund—Educational Qualifications of the Ministry—Rev. Dr. Potts Unable to Come to Peterborough Owing to Illness—Special Collections in Methodist Churches.

Sermons in the interest of the Educational Society of the Methodist church of Canada were preached in the George and Charlotte street churches yesterday and attracted large congregations.

It was expected that the Rev. Dr. Potts, the eloquent secretary of the society, would be present to deliver sermons along with the Rev. Dr. William Galbraith of Toronto. At the last moment Dr. Potts was taken ill, being threatened with pneumonia, and was unable to come.

It was too late to obtain the services of another gentleman to fill his place as the pastors of the local churches had themselves to each preach one sermon in the interest of the cause.

Rev. Dr. Galbraith, whose discourses were forcible, impressive and scholarly, preached in Charlotte street church in the morning and in George street church at night. Rev. W. J. Jolliffe occupied his own pulpit in the evening and Rev. Dr. Crothers officiated in George street church in the morning.

The collections were large, being in aid of the educational fund, the object of which is to assist the different colleges of the church and to help poor students, who are anxious to enter upon the work of the Christian ministry, by way of loans, which are repaid in certain regular installments without interest.

Speaking in the morning in the Charlotte street church, Dr. Galbraith chose as his text Malachi II, 7, "For the priest's lips should keep knowledge and they should seek the law at his mouth; for he is the messenger of the Lord of Hosts." In the beginning he said that the qualification God requires of his Ministers are of three-fold nature, physical, mental and spiritual. There were two reasons why a priest officiating should be sound physically. He, while at the altar was a representative of God and if he was weak or blemished would carry ill-repute to God. His duties were also so onerous that he must have a strong body. A minister must write as much as an editor, talk in public as much as a lawyer and make as many visits as a physician. He must have a sound body, in which an active mind may operate, ready utterance, must be apt to teach and have good common sense as well as a considerable amount of executive ability.

In the second place God requires mental qualification. There is a difference between education and intelligence. Education was the drawing out and enlarging of the powers of the mind while intelligence was the filling of mind with useful knowledge. Education is obtained in schools, while intelligence is the growth of later years. Both are indispensable to a minister of Jesus Christ. He must have a mind trained to originate thought, and well furnished to be able to fill people with wisdom and understanding.

God has always selected men of large education to go forth as leaders of great reformations. First we have Moses as leader of the Israelites. Then when Christ wished to establish Christianity we find Paul, a man at the head of the intellectual world as leader, coming down to later times we find Wycliffe, Luther, Knox, the Puritans of the 17th century, John Wesley, all men of great mental culture.

ANOTHER QUALIFICATION.

In the third place, God requires the highest spiritual qualification of his minister. This was the greatest qualification of all. Without the spirit of the Holy Ghost or intimate communion with God no man is qualified to go forth as a leader. Holiness is not incidental but fundamental. No man can teach beyond the range of his own knowledge. "How," asked the speaker, "can a man teach spiritual things that does not know them?" There were two great formal commands from Jesus. The first was a comprehensive one "Go forth and teach all nations." The second a restrictive one, was "Tarry ye at Jerusalem until ye have received power from on high." Holiness was a philosophic as well as a new testament necessity. Impurity can have no fellowship with purity. The Methodist church always paid attention to these three qualifications—physical, mental and spiritual.

In closing Dr. Galbraith referred to the special collection and explained how the educational fund was expended. One quarter was used in giving loans to young men studying for the ministry. Another part was used to assist educational institutions connected with the church, the third quarter was used to pay the salaries of officers of the educational society and the fourth quarter was expended in defraying the expenses of young men, who are candidates for the ministry.

Piles And Piles

A prolific cause of Piles is the use of cathartics and pills of a drastic, violent nature, which is always followed by a reaction on account of the ruinous, drying properties they contain.

There are other causes, but no matter what the cause or what the kind of Piles, Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid can be relied upon to cure—to stay cured.

It's an internal remedy that removes the cause of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Suppurating Piles.

MR. CARNEGIE HONORED

Popular Representative of East Victoria Tendered Banquet by His Friends.

A most successful, splendidly managed and highly enjoyable banquet was tendered Mr. J. Hilliard Carnegie, M. P. P. for East Victoria, at Scott's Hotel, Kinmount, on Friday night.

The affair was arranged by a number of his friends in and around Kinmount, but many were present from all parts of the constituency to congratulate Mr. Carnegie, who is an old Peterborough boy, and a son of Mr. John Carnegie, ex-M. P. P., on his recent signal victory at the polls. They wished him every success and usefulness in his future career in upholding the cause of good honest and clean government under Mr. J. P. Whitney, the able and honored premier of the Province.

The speakers included Mr. Dobbin of the Peterborough Review, who in the unavoidable absence of Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M. P. P. for West Peterborough, represented that gentleman; J. H. Delamere of the Minden Echo; Geo. Lyttle of the Lindsay Watchman-Warder; A. Train, secretary of the local Conservative Association; A. W. Hopkins, Jas. Mark, and Drs. White and Frost of this village.

Reeve Wilson of Somerville, was in the chair. Frequent happy reference was made to Mr. Carnegie's majority of 1,081, which was double that received by him in 1902. Mr. Carnegie made a feeling and grateful reply to the many kind references to him and promised his hearers that Premier Whitney would fulfill all his election promises.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

Mr. Wilmot Young Will Present the Difficult Dual Role on Saturday Night.

Mr. H. Wilmot Young will present on Saturday evening next his own adaptation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. It is different from the versions used by Richard Mansfield and Thos. E. Shea. In Mr. Young's version the portrayal of the difficult dual role is a strong characterization. The play is taken from Robert Louis Stevenson's mysterious and interesting novel of the same name. Mr. Young's dramatisation differs slightly from the book, inasmuch as there is a very strong love interest in the play.

The story relates the researches in the annals of medical science, by a certain doctor in England, named Jekyll, who claimed that in man there are two physical natures, and by taking a certain potion, the main ingredient being a salt which he had discovered, that all good in man would vanish and the body would assume a hideous shape, in keeping with the evil intentions that the human race is heir to.

In order to prove this theory he experimented upon himself, and lo and behold, the transformation actually appears, and instead of the lovable, kind-hearted Dr. Jekyll he becomes the horribly distorted, murderous Mr. Hyde.

He has tried this experiment so often that he finds he is gradually and naturally assuming the hideous form of Mr. Hyde, and has to keep a certain antidote by him constantly to prevent him from remaining in the ugly shape. The strain is so great from possessing such a horrible secret knowledge that it tells on him, and he finds himself growing melancholy and morose. His condition is noticed by his sweetheart, the daughter of Sir Robert Leigh, who chides him for his downheartedness. She claims it is overwork and promises to shake off his gloom. On one of his visits to the Carew Mansion he feels that the change is about to take place. He excuses himself, intending to return home, but before he has walked three rods the horrible form of Hyde takes possession of him. He retraces his steps, striking terror and consternation in the hearts of the passers-by, enters the house and strangles the father of his fiancee, Sir Robert Leigh, and escapes detection.

London is horrified and the hue and cry is raised to unearth the perpetrator of the foul deed, but all of no avail, as seated in the doctor's office in the fashionable part of the city is the murderer, in form and face, the placid, benign Henry Jekyll.

The last act shows the doctor in an utter state of collapse. Unable to obtain any more of the antidote and rather than remain in the hideous form of Mr. Hyde, he takes poison, thus ending the strange story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

HAPPILY WEDDED

Following are some further particulars concerning a wedding in St. Peters' cathedral, which was referred to last week.—

On Thursday morning, at six o'clock a very quiet and pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Peter's cathedral, when Miss Marceline Gougeon, became the wife of Mr. Justus Blodgett, son of Mr. Z. Blodgett. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Father John O'Brien in the presence of a number of the friends of the contracting parties. The bride's dress was cream crepe de chene trimmed with lace and chiffon, while the sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a pale blue lustre, trimmed with cream lace, and hat to match. Mr. George Blodgett acted as best man. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was partaken of and the bride and groom left on the 7.12 train for Toronto. The presents were numerous and pretty. Mr. and Mrs. Blodgett will reside in town.

HIS DEATH FORETOLD

Very Day Was Fixed 20 Days Before Bomb Was Thrown.

Shows that Revolutionists Must Have Been Well Posted on Grand Duke's Plans—M. Witte Has Been Warned of Bomb, and Grand Duke Vladimir Condemned to Death by Kerosene.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—David Macbeth, the correspondent of The Tribune at St. Petersburg, in a letter dated Jan. 30, states that the organization of combat had fixed, weeks in advance, the exact day of Sergius' death. The letter reads: "To an occidental, the Russian idea of political murder is extraordinary. Assassination is regarded almost solely as a political—not a criminal—act. The officials themselves take this point of view. The murder of a minister or a czar means that he has met with political defeat—his political enemies have triumphed over him. That he has also lost his life is considered to be of inferior importance to the fact that he has lost his influence.

"No political assassin ever feels the slightest moral compunction either before or after his attempt. He never acknowledges that what he does is either a sin or a crime. He believes a man is a wicked ruler. He cannot strip this ruler of his political influence except by killing him. That is the only political path which in the past has been open to the Radicals.

"So they have tried it. Not one of them would dream of killing a man for his purse.

"At the present moment, although no more open demonstrations against the troops seem likely, an era of bomb throwing is feared—the organization of combat. The executive committee of the Revolutionary Socialists has publicly announced through Paris press that it has condemned the Czar to death. Grand Duke Sergius, the Czar's uncle, a few days ago, received a letter: "You have twenty-two days to live." The next day came a letter: "You have twenty-one days to live." Then: "You have twenty days to live."

"According to present calculations, from to-day, Jan. 30, Sergius has 18 days to live.

"Several notes have reached M. De Witte, former minister of finance. "Your bomb is made." Grand Duke Vladimir has had more than one letter. 'Your bomb is not made. We shall put you in a barrel of kerosene and set it afire.'"

CAUCASUS REGION ABLAZE.

Mayor of Large City Shot—Dowager Empress of Russia Threatened.

London, Feb. 20.—Despatches Saturday evening from various parts of Russia show that a new reign of terror has been inaugurated by the assassination of the Grand Duke Sergius. The mayor of a large city in Trans-Caucasia has been shot and killed near his residence. The Dowager Empress has received a threatening letter, warning her that she will be the next victim of the assassins. The revolution, started by Father Gopon and followers in January, has taken a new lease of life. Disorders are spreading everywhere throughout the Empire.

Whole Caucasus Now in Revolt.

The reports from Odessa say that the whole Caucasus region is in revolt. Armed mobs have stopped the railway traffic, cut the telegraph wires and looted the arsenals. The workmen in St. Petersburg, Moscow and all the great industrial centres are assuming a threatening attitude.

Funeral on Thursday.

Moscow, Feb. 20.—Until the funeral, which has been fixed for Thursday, Feb. 23, the remains of Grand Duke Sergius will rest in the ancient dining-room of the Charidoff Monastery.

The assassin remains persistently silent. His identity has not yet been established.

Sergius Rests in Moscow.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—It has now been definitely decided that the remains of Grand Duke Sergius will not be brought to St. Petersburg for the present, but instead will be placed in a temporary receiving vault of the cloister of the Chaudoff Monastery, to await the completion of alterations now in progress in the Romanoff mausoleum in the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, where the permanent interment will occur, among the tombs of his ancestors.

The revolutionists have decided upon further assassinations at the earliest opportunity.

Royal Family Must Stay Indoors.

Evry member of the Royal Family has been warned to stay indoors, and extraordinary precautions have been adopted to prevent assassins reaching them.

The Czar has called an extraordinary meeting of the Council of the Empire to deal with the entire situation. Kuropatkin has been ordered to make a demonstration against the Japanese in order to distract attention from the reign of terror at home, but the Japanese report having checked Kuropatkin's movement.

Other Crimes Expected.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—The public is greatly concerned over the developments of the immediate future. Other terrorist crimes are generally anticipated. According to reports, many cities and towns are in a kind of political ferment and several officials have been assassinated in Southern Russia. According to a telephone message from Moscow, the students there are afraid to appear on the streets in their uniforms. In addition, the strike situation has again grown menacing, especially in the matter of the railroads, three of which entering Moscow are almost completely tied up. In St. Petersburg the strike has assumed the form of a lockout. Forty thousand men are out of work.

Japs Press on Sergius.

Tokio, Feb. 20.—Commenting on the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius at Moscow, The Jiji Shimpo expresses its sympathy at his cruel death, but declares the act is attributable to the high-handed manner of the Russian government in suppressing the recent labor demonstrations. The paper says that oppressive measures against expression of national wishes invite such outrages from the oppressed. The war in the far east resulted from the aggressive action of the Russian government, with which the Russian people have little sympathy. The Jiji Shimpo adds: "In one sense Japan is waging a war against the Russian national wishes, arising from oppression by the autocracy, but Japan is fighting the government, and not the people of Russia. The paper predicts a better understanding with increased sympathy between the two peoples after the war is ended.

King Condoles With Russia.

London, Feb. 20.—King Edward and the Prince and Princess of Wales paid a visit of condolence yesterday to Count Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador here.

REDMOND'S AMENDMENT.

Present System of Government Opposed to Will of People.

London, Feb. 20.—John Redmond's amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, declaring that the present system of Irish government was opposed to the will of Irish people, and which will be moved in the house of commons to-day, is expected to place the government in a position even more difficult than the fiscal debate.

It is so framed as to enable the opposition to raise the whole question of position of Sir Antony MacDonnell, the under secretary to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and the Dunraven devolution scheme on which there is evidently much dissension within the cabinet itself, and, it is anticipated, will engage all of Premier Balfour's skill to enable the government to emerge victorious.

Lord Lansdowne has admitted in the house of lords that Lord Dudley, lord lieutenant of Ireland, knew that MacDonnell was helping Lord Dunraven in his devolution scheme, and Lord Dunraven has declared that Secretary Wyndham and MacDonnell had many long conversations on the "conditions of moderate opinion in Ireland."

Mr. Wyndham's disavowal of MacDonnell causes a certain amount of caustic comment, while the orange section loudly calls for the resignation of both Lord Dudley and Sir Anthony MacDonnell. The debate will extend over two days and probably will be acrimonious.

The opposition will endeavor to drive home their views that MacDonnell is being made a scapegoat.

FOXY MRS. CHADWICK.

Said to Be in Possession of a Cold Million.

Cleveland, Feb. 20.—The Leader says: "One million dollars is the amount believed to be securely hidden by Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick. Customs Collector Reach is in a position to know that the item saved from her many financial transactions is $1,000,000 in cold cash.

"In addition to this sum, the woman has just safely placed $150,000 worth of jewels. Her arrest nipped plans right at a time when they were about to bloom. A delay of a few more days would certainly have placed her fortune at $2,000,000. It was her desire to make just one more deal, with $500,000 as the stake.

"Up to the present time, there have been traced purchases in Paris and Brussels aggregating $122,000. It is estimated that the receipts of Mrs. Chadwick in four years amounted to $1,539,000. Her expenditures in that period are estimated at $500,000."

Opposed to Treaty.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 20.—On their way from Winnipeg to Italy, Sir Charles Tupper, former Conservative Premier of Canada, and Canadian High Commissioner in London, and Lady Tupper and their daughter reached Boston on Friday. They sailed on Saturday on the White Star Liner Canopic for Naples.

Sir Charles, while not wishing to say anything on the Hay-Bond treaty, with Newfoundland, plainly indicated that he was opposed to such a step.

He said the interests of Canada and Newfoundland are bound reciprocally together, and the two should never be pulled apart. It would be unwise from the viewpoint of the welfare of each and the empire as a whole.

More Evidence Found.

Brantford, Feb. 20.—Joseph Kennedy will be brought from the Central Prison next week and receive his preliminary trial before Police Magistrate Woodyatt at the police court on the charge of criminal assault. It will be remembered that one of the witnesses for the defence testified to being on the dyke about the time Kennedy was also sworn to have been seen there. Two witnesses will, at the forthcoming trial, give evidence that he was mistaken in regard to his date, and that, in reality, he was on the dyke the day before the Cole murder.

Three Children Burnt.

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 20.—Three children of Mrs. Amos Heffelinger, Irene, aged 3 years; Howard, aged 2, and George, three months old, were burned to death on Saturday. Amos, another child, 5 years old, was rescued by George Chapman, a larger boy.

The mother had left the children but 10 minutes before to warn another neighbor that her son was skating in a dangerous part of the canal. It is supposed the Heffelinger children pulled burning coals out of a stove and set the house on fire.

Wealthy Man's Fatal Fall.

New York, Feb. 20.—Charles E. Rogers, a wealthy lumber dealer of Brooklyn, on Saturday was killed instantly by falling down the hatchway of the steamer Cuss while he was inspecting a cargo of mahogany consigned to his farm. Mr. Rogers, who was 65 years old, was a friend and neighbor at Oyster Bay of President Roosevelt.

Priest Returns School Deed.

Lindsay, Ont., Feb. 20.—The litigation in connection with the Downeyville School case has just been settled. Father Bretherton, the local priest, called personally at the office of Mr. T. R. Weldon, solicitor for the Public School supporters, and returned deed of the Public School. He also paid the total expenses of the action, amounting to $175.

Revolution Pending.

San Francisco, Feb. 20.—The steamer Denderah, from Hamburg, via Central American ports, brings a report that a revolution in Guatemala is likely in the near future.

WOMEN LAWYERS

Only Three Have Availed Themselves of the Privilege Granted Twelve Years Ago.

In the twelve years that have elapsed since the Law Society of Upper Canada decided to admit women to practice at the bar, only three have availed themselves of the privilege. The first was Miss Clara Brett Martin, the second Miss E. M. Powley, and the third, Miss Gertrude Robinson, has just completed the first of her three years of study at Toronto. Miss Martin was admitted to the bar in 1896. She practised in Toronto for several years, but has lately retired, and is no longer actively engaged in the profession. Miss E. M. Powley, who is now in Port Arthur, has the distinction of being the only lady lawyer practising in Ontario, and probably in Canada. Miss Powley was called to the bar in 1902, three years having elapsed between Miss Martin's call and her entry on the study of law.

To Miss Martin belongs the honor of opening the profession of law to her sex, and it is probably characteristic of Canada that, small as was the sentiment against the innovation, the desire among women to compete for legal honors has been even smaller.

THE LATEST ASPIRANT

The latest aspirant, Miss Robinson, is a daughter of John A. Robinson, of the legal firm of Robinson & Green of St. Thomas. Her idea in taking up the course was to assist her father in his profession, and she does not look forward to building up a practice and a name for herself. She is a University graduate, and so accustomed to attending lectures surrounded by members of the sterner sex, but she feels a trifle strange and out of place among the student body at Osgoode Hall. But Miss Robinson is a quiet and unostentatious little lady and slips in and out to and from the lectures almost unnoticed, and although everyone knows that there is one lady student at the school, the interest her advent first excited has quite died away. Moreover, taking advantage of the rule which exempts students from office work during the period of their attendance at the Law School, Miss Robinson devotes all her time to her studies, and does not come in contact with the majority of the others in the daily conduct of legal business at the Hall, which is largely carried on by students.

The result of her application was seen in the Christmas examinations, which Miss Robinson passed in creditable fashion, although she failed to carry off honors. She stood well up on the list, and proved once more, if further proof were needed, that sex is no bar to legal learning. If Miss Robinson is equally successful in future examinations she will be called to the bar in 1907. She will then take up active work in her father's office.

A PERMANENT CENSUS

(London Free Press)

The bill for a permanent census bureau introduced by Hon. Sydney Fisher provides for such a staff of clerks as the Minister of Agriculture may appoint. The duties of the chief officer and secretary as defined in the bill are practically those of a census chief officer and secretary under the present law. A census is to be taken in June, 1911, for all Canada, and every ten years thereafter, and a census of the North-west and Manitoba, in June, 1906, and subsequently every ten years. It is provided that the new bureau shall collect, tabulate and publish agricultural, commercial, criminal, educational, manufacturing, vital and other statistics during the inter-censal years; but it is provided that arrangements may be made for using Provincial statistics. Statistical abstracts of public reports and documents are also to be made by the department. In the matter of criminal statistics it is provided that returns shall be made yearly by every judge or other officer presiding over a criminal court, as well as by wardens of penitentiaries and reformatories and by sheriffs. Custodians of public records are obliged to afford access to such records to all statistical officers of the government under penalty on neglect, while a penalty of $10 to $100 is provided for false returns or statements. The penalty for refusal to answer questions of the statistical enumerators is fixed at $5 to $50. A census officer is also empowered to make enquiry under oath. The civil service act is not to apply to appointments under this act.

Slavery in America.

"One of the common, everyday errors which are taught in the schools in America is that which relates to the introduction into the western hemisphere of African slavery," writes a critic. "The school histories which the schoolgirl and schoolboy study say that it dates from 1619 or 1620, when a Dutch sea captain sold the English settlers the first African. The year 1501, however, is the date of the earliest reference in American history to negroes coming from Spain to America, 122 years before Albany, N. Y., was settled by the Dutch and 106 years before Jamestown, Va., was settled by the English. In 1505 King Ferdinand of Spain wrote to Orando, then governor of Hispaniola, 'I will send more negro slaves, as you request.' In 1510 fifty negro slaves were sent to work in the mines of Hispaniola. There is a record of King Ferdinand's response to a request of Las Casas, bishop of La Concepcion, in Hispaniola, that more negroes should be imported. He said, 'There are already many negroes on the island.' This was in the year 1514."

The Jap Baby.

How do you suppose the babies in Japan take an airing? In baby carriages, you say? Of course not. The Japanese never do anything the way we do it. When the baby's about three days old it goes out for its first glimpse of the world strapped on somebody's back, and that's the way it goes every day till it can go on its own feet. Sometimes its mother or its nurse takes it, but very often it rides on the back of a brother or sister, who is perhaps not more than four or five years old. These little nurses don't seem to be troubled at all by their charges, as you would suppose. They play ball and tag and run races and fly kites in spite of the heavy loads on their backs. What is more remarkable, the babies are perfectly happy and hardly ever cry, though when their young nurses run with them the poor babies' faces bang back and forth against their caretakers' shoulders till an American baby would howl with pain and rage.—Bertha Runkle in St. Nicholas.

Why She Turned Vegetarian.

An English countess who has many American friends recently became a vegetarian. The other day in a letter to New York she accounted for her abandonment of flesh food.

"Not long ago," she wrote, "I visited a slaughter house.

"I can't tell you how everything was stained deep with blood; how there arose from the drenched, dark floors the peculiar odor of blood.

"As I was hurrying away three beautiful lambs were led in by a man with a long, shining knife. Filled with pity and indignation, I said:

" 'How can you be so cruel as to put those innocent little lambs to death?'

" 'Why, madam,' said the man, 'you wouldn't eat them alive, would you?' "

OIL FOR LIFE'S WHEELS.

Saving Time and Nervous Energy and Preserving Genuine Sentiment.

If women in the smaller towns would adopt the custom which obtains in the larger ones of having an at home day in each week, when social calls could be exchanged, they would find that the domestic machinery would run more smoothly and both time and nervous energy be saved.

Especially would such an arrangement prove a boon to the woman who is maid as well as mistress and to whom the interruption attendant upon the advent of a caller at an inopportune hour counts for so much, often completely breaking up the routine of work for the day, thereby converting what should have been a pleasant recreation and would have been had it come at the proper time into a note of discord the very memory of which is disagreeable. The average woman is not so happily constituted that she can sit and chat comfortably when she is sure the roast is burning, the bread is spoiling for want of attention or the dishwater growing cold, and yet often for lack of some suitable and convenient arrangement between herself and her friends she is called upon again and again to endure just such trials, insignificant perhaps when viewed singly, but making a disastrous sum total.

The at home day sets matters right. Having appointed a time for receiving her friends, she and her house are in order, and she can with a clear conscience give herself up to the full enjoyment of their presence. The custom is well worth testing. Fashion is often derided as a senseless jade, but more often than not she has her whims based upon sound reasons, and this is one instance.

The courage of their convictions is too well recognised to need proving, preferring to make martyrs of themselves and incidentally those about them, too, rather than raise the voice of protest.

Take the matter of Christmas giving —a most beautiful custom, worthy, when observed in its true sense, of perpetuation, but which is fast becoming a burden and being degenerated into a matter of mere barter and exchange from which the sentiment of the season has all been extracted.

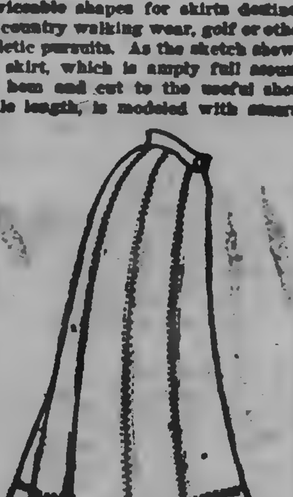
Men rarely give voluntarily where the affection is not placed, and at their doors the charge certainly cannot be laid. It is refreshing to find a woman whose Christmas list includes only those bound to her by ties of love and to whom the joy of giving is not coupled with a speculation as to what she will receive in return.

Not only has the giving mania robbed Christmas of one of its sweetest features, but it has also invaded our most sacred home customs. Recurring birthdays are no longer simply milestones to mark life's journey, but are the signals for gift showers. An invitation to the wedding of a casual acquaintance calls for the untying of one's purse strings. Death itself is not exempt from the craze, for simultaneously with the announcement of the funeral services the orders go in by phone for so called floral tributes—too often a pleasant sounding name for the fancied discharge of one's social obligations. And thus it goes. Whichever way we turn the gift problem confronts us. It remains for womankind to set matters right. To give is more blessed than to receive, when the giving proceeds from right motives and the gifts are directed in proper channels.

And all this leads us to remark upon the disastrous effects which often follow in the wake of a shower of wedding gifts. Many a couple in moderate circumstances who, if left to freight their own bark, would have made the harbor in safety have been wrecked in their attempt to live up to the wedding presents imposed upon them by well meaning but misguided friends and acquaintances. The piano lamp is of no use in the new home without a piano, and forthwith the instrument is purchased—very probably on the installment plan. The beautiful rugs call for curtains in keeping with them. The cut glass creates the necessity for a handsome sideboard, and so it goes on throughout the list.—Table Talk.

An Ankle Length Skirt.

This will be found one of the most serviceable shapes for skirts destined for country walking wear, golf or other athletic pursuits. As the sketch shows, the skirt, which is amply full around the hem and cut to the useful short ankle length, is modeled with several gores, the seams of which are double stitched, while some rows of ornamental stitching complete the hem. At the back small inverted plaits are likewise stitched down.



Jim Dandies

By John Murray

Copyright, 1905, by T. C. McClure

There were six men in Company B, Ninth infantry, who were nicknamed Jim Dandies. They were six spick and span fellows, who always looked fresh and clean and presentable, and they were always detailed for the best headquarters posts. This caused jealousy, and it was natural that by and by a story should get afloat that the six recruits were fellows without sand. It could be truthfully said that their courage had not been tested, as the Indians had been quiet for a long time, but no one argued thus. It was easier to go with the majority and say with some of the old veterans:

"You just mark my words. If we ever get into a brush with the reds it will take four men apiece to hold these dudes on the firing line."

The Jim Dandies were attracted to each other and formed a coterie. They organised a glee club, sang love songs, read popular novels and bought toilet soap. They even wore linen collars, and it was said of at least three of them that they rubbed their faces with bay rum after a shave. The Jims were guyed and ridiculed, but they went their way and bided their time.

They had put in a year of this when the call came for the Ninth to take the field. The red men had grown tired of peace and wanted war again.

"Now keep your eyes on our Jim Dandies," said the veterans to each other as they went marching away. "If we buck up ag'in the Sioux you'll see six sissy men fainting away to be chucked into the ambulance."

The Ninth went out for business and found it. On the third day after leaving the fort it found a big force of Indians in its front, and the fight was hot from the beginning. The reds had the advantage of numbers, and by and by they began to work around on the left flank of the command. The colonel saw it, but he could spare only a few men to checkmate the move. They must get into the broken ground and die fighting. It was a military necessity that a small force should be sent, but he hesitated to issue the order, and finally called for a sergeant to lead a band of volunteers. The six Jim Dandies came to the front at once. Even on the march they had clean collars on.

THE SIX JIMS SANG AS THEY WENT.

"What in time is this!" growled the sergeant as they stepped out. "It's going to take old veterans to hold that ground, and these are only dudes."

"Give us a chance, colonel," appealed one of the Jims.

The seven men took open order and double quicked across the open into cover, and the six Jims sang as they went. The colonel looked blank, and 500 men laughed, and the Indians almost ceased their fire as they wondered what was up.

"Now, dudes," said the sergeant as they reached cover, "this is no making love to a red headed girl on the veranda of a summer hotel. We've got to hold them Injuns off this flank if we die trying. You've got a chance to show what you're made of, and durn my buttons if I don't plug the first man who looks to the rear!"

For answer the Jims sang a verse of a war ballad and then dropped down just as the Indian bullets began to sing about them. The sergeant cursed and muttered, and over on the line, half a mile away, the major said to the colonel as the singing reached their ears:

"Did you ever know the like of that? I'm afraid this minstrel show business will end in our being flanked."

But even as he spoke the muskets got to work and rattled away so rapidly that there seemed a score instead of half a dozen, and the colonel's face lost its look of anxiety. A force of thirty Indians were sent down against the half dozen, but they could not get nearer than a certain line. There was an open space to cross, and every redskin who tried it was tumbled on his face. When there was shooting to do, the Jims buckled down to it. When there came a lull, one of them would strike up a song, and the others would join in the chorus. The sergeant sought to hush them, saying that songs did not belong to Upton's tactics, but they sang the louder and sang him down.

The Ninth had got itself into a hole. It was not strong enough to drive the enemy from its front, and were it to attempt a retrograde movement the Indians would be encouraged to swarm out in full force. The officers saw the situation before the men did, but when the latter became aware of it there was a flutter along the line. It might have been more than a flutter, and the colonel's heart was in his mouth and his teeth set hard when from the Jim Dandies over on the flank came the rousing chorus of "John Brown." It stopped the flutter. Some men laughed and some swore, but the song led their thoughts into another channel.

Again the Indians pressed down on the left flank. They had discovered that only half a dozen men opposed them and that to win the flank was to win the battle, but even with five to one, owing to the nature of the ground, they could make no way. The Jims were shooting to kill when they were not laughing or singing, and the sergeant watched them closely and muttered to himself:

"I've been down on these dudes along with the crowd, but blast my eyes if I ever saw purtier fighting. I guess I've got to take back what I've said. Say, now, but what's the matter over in the center?"

The matter was that a company was being withdrawn to re-enforce the right, but the movement caused uneasiness and a slackening of the fire. Men were beginning to look to the rear and breathe heavily and the Indians to utter whoops of exultation and make ready for a rush when the six Jim Dandies, who were temporarily out of it, leaped up on the rocks and began to sing a topical song. It was new to most of their comrades, and the jolly air caught on at once and started cheers all along the line. Two hundred men joined in the chorus, and they were singing yet as the colonel perfected his plans and ordered a forward movement. There was a grand charge and a rout, and the Ninth had not only extricated itself, but won a victory to be proud of.

"Splendid move of yours, colonel," said the major when the fight had been won.

"But I couldn't have made it without the singing. Tell Captain Barnes to send his six Jim Dandies to me. I want to thank 'em personally. A dude glee club beats artillery all to pieces at fighting Indians."

Influence of Sainte-Beuve.

Sainte-Beuve is the foremost literary critic of the nineteenth century in the influence he has exerted upon his fellows. In a very real sense Matthew Arnold in England and Taine in France are his disciples, or at least he is their literary ancestor. They derive from him, and the doctrines they have made explicit are often implicit in him. The part of Taine's critical theory which has withstood the test of time is that which Taine acquired from Sainte-Beuve, and not a few of the points which Arnold pressed insistently on the attention of all who read English he took over from his French predecessor. There are no real critics of literature of our time, from Mr. James in America to M. Brunetiere in France, who have not come under his spell at some period of their own development and who have not sharpened their own vision by a more or less deliberate application of the methods of Sainte-Beuve.—Brander Matthews in Century.

Three Queer Animal Tales.

The Indians say that if a beaver sent out from the parents' lodge fails to find a mate he is set to repair the dam. If he fails a second time he is banished.

An Arab writer has the same story. He tells us that those who buy beaver skins can distinguish between the skins of masters and slaves. The latter have the hair of the head rubbed off because they have to pound the wood for their masters' food and do it with their heads.

One more story is about the puma, the "friend of man." A certain Maldonada, a girl of Buenos Ayres, was falsely accused of having sought to betray the town to the Indians and was condemned to be exposed in the forest. An enormous puma guarded her all night from the attacks of other beasts. The next day she was taken back to the town and pronounced to be innocent.—From Edmund Selous' "Romance of the Animal World."

The First Meerschaum.

A shoemaker, Kavol Kowates, who in 1823 lived at Pesth, the capital of Hungary, smoked the first meerschaum pipe. Besides being a shoemaker, however, he was one of nature's handicraftsmen, being gifted with an intuitive genius for carving in wood and other material. This brought him into contact with Count Andrassy, with whom he became a great favorite. The count on his return from a mission to Turkey brought with him a piece of whitish clay, which had been presented to him as a curiosity on account of its extraordinary light, specific gravity. It struck the shoemaker that, being porous, it must be well adapted for pipes, as it would absorb the nicotine. The experiment was tried, and Kavol cut a pipe for the count and one for himself. This first meerschaum pipe made and smoked by Kavol Kowates has been preserved in the museum at Pesth.

Holland Cheese.

Holland is the land of flatness, windmills, dikes, canals and cheese. Of the latter they produce 40,000 tons and more in a year and consume only a fourth part. Alkmaar, one of the most noted and historical towns in the country, is the great cheese market, and in its streets over 12,000,000 pounds are sold annually.

Passed Away This Morning Aged 63 Years | Esteemed Resident of Peterborough

There passed away at ten o'clock this morning Mary Ward, relict of the late Patrick Begley, at the residence of her son, Ald. Thos. Begley, Victoria Avenue. The deceased lady, who was 63 years old, had been ailing for over a year from a complication of diseases.

The late Mrs. Begley was born in Roscommon County, Ireland, and came to this country at an early age. She settled in Belleville, where she was married to Mr. Patrick Begley. They later removed to Bowmanville, Oshawa and Lindsay, and came to Peterborough twenty-five years ago. Her husband died about five years ago. A family of three sons and two daughters are left to mourn a kind and loving mother. They are Messrs. Robert, Joseph and Thomas, all of Peterborough. The daughters are Mrs. John McCabe, of Lindsay, and Miss Minnie, town. The late Mrs. Begley was prominently identified with church work, being a leading member of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's Cathedral, and a devout and active member of the congregation. She had a wide circle of friends who will deeply regret her demise and sympathise with the family in their irreparable loss.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her son, Thomas J. Begley, Victoria Avenue, on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. Interment will be made at the Roman catholic cemetery.

MRS. JOHN HARPER.

The death occurred yesterday of Anne Jane Harper, relict of the late John Harper, of Otonabee. Death was due to old age. The deceased was born in Ireland 89 years ago, but had lived the greater part of her life in Otonabee. In religion she was a Methodist. She lived on Lot 17, concession 14, Otonabee. The funeral will take place at Pontypool to-morrow morning.

Margaret Methven, relict of the late Stephen Miller, died yesterday. The deceased was seventy-one years of age.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Lot 12, Concession 2, Douro, to-morrow morning, at 11 o'clock, to Little Lake cemetery.

SARAH HARRINGTON.

The death occurred this morning of Sarah Harrington, formerly of Ennismore, and wife of Daniel Sullivan, 612 Stewart street, Peterborough. The deceased was 26 years of age.

WOMAN AND BOY WERE KILLED WHEN GETTING OFF G.T.R. TRAIN

Mrs. Sarah Jane Hannah and Her Grandson, Harry Cobourn, Met an Awful Death

WERE RETURNING FROM PORT HOPE VISIT

Express Stopped at the Diamond and Deceased Evidently Thought She Was at the Station—Her Body Nearly Cut in Two—The Boy's Remains Horribly Mutilated—Scene of the Fatality About 200 Yards North of Perry Street—Bodies Viewed by Hundreds on Saturday Night and Sunday.

THE DEAD.

MRS. SARAH JANE HANNAH, aged 52 years.

HARRY COBOURN, aged 5 years.

One of the saddest fatalities ever recorded in Peterborough, is that which occurred on Saturday night between nine and ten o'clock when Mrs. Sarah Jane Hannah, a widow lady residing at 13 Lake street and her grandson Harry Cobourn, met death, being killed by a train from Port Hope.

The scene of the accident was about 200 yards north of Perry street on the G.T.R. track between that thoroughfare and Rink street. The grandmother and the boy were returning from a visit to Port Hope. As the train stopped at the diamond (where the G.T.R. crosses the C.P.R.) it is believed that the woman and her grand child either undertook to get off there in order to take a short cut to their home on Lake street, or else in the darkness they mistook the spot for the station. It would seem that just as they were about to alight the train started for the depot with the result that the woman was thrown under the wheels of the rear coach and killed instantly. The boy does not appear to have been run over, but to have been caught by the snow scraper on the rear of the express. His body was terribly mutilated.

THE INJURIES

Mrs. Hannah was run over by the train at the waist and her body nearly cut in two. She was disemboweled. The boy—a good looking little fellow of five summers—had a severe cut over the right eye. His neck was broken and his left cheek bone, his chest was fractured as well as his right arm above the elbow while there was a deep cut at the back of the left shoulder. His body was otherwise bruised in several places.

The train which should leave Port Hope, where the parties got on and reach here at 5.35 p.m. was late owing to the blockaded condition of the track and did not arrive until about 9.15 o'clock. It was drawn by two engines with a snow plow in front. Messrs. George Mimms and T. Wilkinson were the engineers and Conductor Buller was in charge. They were not aware that any accident happened and the remains of both persons would have remained lying across the east rail of the track only to be run over by the Toronto express going south to Port Hope, which was waiting at the station for the incoming train, had it not been for their timely discovery.

Mr. John Martin, 23 Sheridan-st., happened to be walking up the track a few minutes after the accident when he saw the bodies lying opposite the coal shed of the Peterborough Feed and Cartage Co. and just a short distance north of the Canadian Cordage Works. He naturally received a bad fright. He ran up the track to the watch tower at the diamond and met W. N. Graham, 95 Westcott street, who was on his way home. He told Graham to run over to the residence of Dr. Gray, coroner, which he did and notified the doctor. Martin also met Wm. Vass, 77 Chamberlain street and J. Penrose, the night man at the diamond and told them about the horrible discovery. He next went over to R. C. Braund's grocery store and telephoned to Comstock's undertaking parlors and the police. He acted promptly and with good judgment.

HOW THE BODIES LAY

Coroner Gray was soon on hand and the bodies had not been disturbed. His first duty was to inform Mr. Penrose to notify the station not to allow the G.T.R. train south bound to pass until the remains had been removed. This was done. Dr. Gray says the bodies were lying across the east rail within three feet of each other. They were both with heads to the west, about midway between the two rails—facing toward the north, the faces being partially turned down. The boy's body was nearer to the diamond.

Dr. Gray thinks that the woman in getting off had the boy by the hand and that the train must have started just as she was alighting from the step. She carried a piece of meat under one arm and also had a hand satchel. He believes the high snow bank along the track at this point would cause the woman to fall back when alighting and force her under the wheels. The rear truck of the coach, so far as he can judge, passed over her body, but the boy's weight being lighter he evidently was caught by the protruding snow scraper at the rear of the car and received his injuries in this way. This would account for the fracture of the arm, neck and chest, as well as the wounds on the right side, and the cut on his back near the left shoulder.

VIEWING THE BODIES.

After the bodies had been removed to Mr. Comstock's establishment—although the hour was well on to midnight scores called to view the remains but not one caller could identify them. On Sunday morning a steady stream of visitors also wended their way to the room in which the bodies lay on stretchers, but no one knew who the woman or boy was. It was about eleven o'clock when a young girl by the name of Desautel, from Lake-st., came in, and she at once said, "I know the woman. She is Mrs. Hannah, and lives near us at 13 Lake-st." This information was imparted to the police, and the persons residing at the house on Lake-st. It appears that the woman has been in town only three months, hence was not known to many. She was housekeeper for Mr. Charles W. Bryan, who lives at 13 Lake-st., and is employed in the Cordage Works.

MRS HANNAH'S MOVEMENTS.

It appears that Mrs. Hannah had been visited here by her daughter, Mrs. Harold Cobourn, of Port Hope. The latter left for home on the 11.45 a.m. train on Thursday, being accompanied by her mother and Harry Cobourn (the grandson of Mrs. Hannah). Mrs. Hannah told another daughter, Bertha, who resided with her at Lake-st., that she would be home again on Saturday night or Monday morning. Bertha went to the G.T.R. station on Saturday night to meet her mother, but when she could not find her came to the conclusion that she had decided to remain until Monday, little dreaming that her fond parent had been killed and lay cold in death's embrace up the track.

The grandson, Harry Cobourn, has been residing with his grandmother ever since she came to town.

Mrs. Hannah, who was about fifty-two years of age, was Sarah Jane Smith before her marriage. Her father died some years ago, and the mother married a man named Wesley Hannah.

The deceased lady married a brother of her step-father, Thomas Hannah by name, and had lived for years near Rossmount, eight miles north of Port Hope, in Hamilton township, where the deceased lady still owns a farm. Thomas Hannah, husband of the woman who met death yesterday, was killed in a tragic manner about fourteen years ago on his farm by being attaked in a field by a vicious bull. Three children are living—Mrs. Cobourn, of Port Hope; Charles Hannah, who has been working in the woods, and only returned to town during the past week, and Miss Bertha, aged about 17, who resided with her mother at 13 Lake-st. Mrs. Hannah leaves besides this family two sisters and five brothers living around Rossmount.

DR. GRAY'S OPINION.

The Coroner remarked Sunday:—An inquest may be held to determine just why Mrs. Hannah happened to leave the train at this point. I do not know whether it was to take a short route home or whether she mistook the spot where the train stopped for the station. However, I have frequently been on the train from Port Hope. It has to be stopped before crossing the diamond, and generally before it comes to a standstill a brakeman shouts out the name of the station "Peterborough." To those not familiar with the town or who are travelling at night, they are not aware of the stop at the diamond and think that is the proper place to get off on account of the station having been called out. Now, I have seen several passengers often get up to leave the car, but some one would generally shout that we were not at the station yet, and then they would sit down until after we had passed the diamond and reached the depot. I believe it would be time enough to call out Peterborough after the diamond is crossed. It seems to me there would then be plenty of time for the passengers to get their things in shape and depart in safety. At present both sides of the track for a considerable distance are piled high with snow, and it is dangerous getting off at any point except the platform—even if the train is standing."

PASSENGER SPEAKS.

Mrs Martin Connors, of town, who was in the same car as Mrs. Hannah, states that when the train stopped just below the diamond, the unfortunate woman went out of the front door of the car and left it open. She was carrying the little boy, who was fast asleep, in her arms. Mrs. Connors went to close the door, and as she did so just caught a glimpse of Mrs. Hannah's skirt as she jumped off the steps. The train had started again by that time. On returning to the car a gentleman then asked her if the woman had left the train. On being told that she had he exclaimed, "She will be killed."

HOW THEY WERE DRESSED.

Mrs. Hannah when found was dressed in a dark skirt, with plaid underskirt. She wore a black and white spot print waist, a felt hat with some feathers in front. She also had on a dark coat, three-quarter length, with metal buttons. She wore a pair of slippers and a good pair of overshoes and had her laced boots done up in a parcel. Her hands were in a pair of imitation fur gauntlets, and she also had a small hand satchel and carried a piece of meat—enough for a roast.

The boy wore a blue sailor suit, marked "Grafton & Co." a pair of laced boots and rubbers, a fawn colored overcoat and a red toque with brown stripes. He had on a flannel shirt and warm undershirt, and a pair of fur mitts. He was a good looking little fellow and evidently a bright child.

Before the bodies were identified on Sunday morning, at the request of Coroner Gray, the different clergy were asked to announce the particulars of the accident from their pulpits. This was done in most of the town churches.

NO INQUEST.

Coroner Gray and County Crown Attorney Wood, upon considering the circumstances, have decided that an inquest is unnecessary.

The piece of meat which Mrs. Hannah was carrying was found close to the body, and another parcel contained a pair of shoes.

The remains of Mrs. Hannah and her grandson Harry Cobourn will probably be removed to Port Hope to-morrow for interment.

SEVENTY PRIESTS COMING

They Will Attend the Consecration of Bishop Scollard.

It is expected that over seventy five priests and ten bishops from outside places will attend the consecration of Bishop Scollard in St. Peter's Cathedral on Friday morning next. The capacity of the cathedral will undoubtedly be taxed to the utmost and to avoid extreme and uncomfortable crowding tickets of admission are being issued.

On Friday morning at 9.30 the procession will start from the sacristy of the cathedral and during the mass which immediately follows, the impressive ceremony will take place. The consecrator will be His Grace Archbishop Gauthier of Kingston, and his assistants, His Lordship Bishop O'Connor and His Lordship Bishop Lorrain, of Pembroke. His Lordship Bishop McEvoy of London, will deliver the address.

BOUGHT OUT WHOLESALE FIRM

Mr. J. A. Sutcliffe Makes Important Business Deal.

WILL REMOVE TO TORONTO

Has Made Purchase of Fancy Goods Business of F. & E. W. Kelk, York Street, Toronto—Will Not Close Peterborough Store.

An important business announcement was made today to the effect that Mr. J. A. Sutcliffe had purchased the wholesale fancy goods business of F. & E. W. Kelk, an old established firm located on York st., Toronto. Though this change will necessitate Mr. Sutcliffe's removal from town, his dry goods business here will be continued under Mr. Alfred O. Sawyer, his right-hand man.

Mr. Sutcliffe could not be seen this morning as he had gone to New York on a purchasing trip, but it is understood that he will take charge of the Toronto business immediately. The new firm name of the Toronto house will be the Kelk, Sutcliffe Company, the name of the former business head being retained.

Mr. Sutcliffe has conducted a dry goods store in Peterborough for upwards of six years, most successfully, having shown a fine business ability which will undoubtedly be used to splendid advantage in the management of his new enterprise.

TRADING STAMPS

Montreal Merchants Ask Assistance of Local Business Men to Abolish Their Use—Meeting Called.

The local Retail Merchants' Association has received a communication from the Secretary of the Federation of Retail Dealers, Montreal, in reference to the use of trading stamps or cash receipts. The aid of Peterborough business men is asked to obtain legislation from the Federal Parliament to abolish the system and a petition has been sent for local men to sign. It will be presented along with others to the Senate and House of Commons.

While an act was passed by the Ontario Legislature some time ago abolishing the use of and dealing in trading stamps its scope is only provincial in character and does not apply to the Dominion in general.

A meeting of the local retail dealers will be held in the Y.M.C.A. hall to-morrow evening at 7.30 o'clock to discuss the matter and a large attendance is requested.

The petition will then be presented for signatures and it is hoped every business man will turn out to strengthen the hands of the Association in Montreal in their campaign.

Following is a copy of the petition which is addressed to the members of the Senate and House of Commons—

"We, the undersigned, retail merchants, respectfully petition you in view of the evils without number, caused to the retail trade of the petitioners by the distribution of trading stamps known also as cash receipts, to amend the criminal code in such a manner as to declare illegal the issuing, sale and distribution of said trading stamps or cash receipts, and your petitioners will ever pray."

Hear Prof. Needler, of Toronto University, on "Luther from a Literary Standpoint," on Friday evening next, in George Street Church.

W. C. FORMAN

AN UNFAIR PRACTICE.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir—I wish to call your attention to an injustice being done our citizens by at least one of our George-st. merchants. On Saturday morning about 9 o'clock an acquaintance of the writer went to market and approached two women for the purpose of buying their butter. She was informed they had been selling at 30 cents but this particular grocer sent word to wait for him and he would allow them 40 cents.

Now Mr. Editor this thing should be stopped and I, with others, would like to see the Council deal with this matter and make it hot for such people. Thanking you for your valuable space, I am yours, etc.

ONE WHO PAID 40c

THE SNOW PLOW EVIL.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir—Permit me space to suggest that the side walk snow plow drivers be each supplied with a good toboggan for use at the present time instead of the so-called snow plows. I am serious. These are my reasons—first, it would be very much easier on the horse, hence a kindness to dumb animals; second, it would be much more comfortable for the driver, seeing that he could ride without so much danger of being thrown off; and third, the toboggan would leave some sort of passable track behind it, and not, as the plow now does, leave huge chunks of ice in the middle of the path (!) over which we are obliged to stumble.

I have noticed, sir, that for years you and your correspondents have been hammering away at this iniquitous snow plow system, but without apparent effect, except that it is gradually becoming worse. In the old days of Ashburnham that little village could show the town how to clean walks, but now, alas, we are part of the town and our walks are as badly kept as yours. Doubtless an apparent advantage of town life. I consider the snow plowing system by contract a pure waste of our taxes. Can you imagine a greater gamble than for a man to figure on doing a work which depends on the most fickle and uncertain element in the universe—the weather?

Now, Mr. Editor, we are all aware that there is not a passable sidewalk in this town that has not been cleaned by hand, not one. The snow plow leaves a narrow, meandering treacherous Indian-file streak that is a disgrace to everyone responsible for it. If the walks are to be cleaned with public money let it be done by the civic officers in charge of walks, then we shall pay what it costs and no more. But why not let every person clean his own as they do in all the cities.

No one can deny the fact that the street railway is a great benefit to us. A score of times this winter the space between the rails is the only path in town. And we have this consolation, if we cannot afford to ride in the cars we can walk on the track. But we don't all live beside the track.

A WALKER.

INTERESTING EVENT

Wedding of Miss Alice Darling to Mr. Walter Northy—Two Popular Young People.

A very interesting event took place on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Blewett, when Miss Alice Darling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Darling of North Dummer, was united in marriage to Mr. Walter Northey of North Smith, son of Mr. A. Northey. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. W. Leggott, in the presence of about eighty friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride, who looked charming in a very becoming costume of dark grey poplin, trimmed with white silk applique, was assisted by Miss Evy Blewett, who wore a dress of blue voile, trimmed with applique. Mr. Henry McIlmoyl of North Smith, acted as groomsman. After the ceremony, which took place at half-past six the assembled guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, the evening being spent in a social manner. The bride was the recipient of a large number of useful and beautiful presents. The happy couple will take up their residence in North Smith, and have the best wishes of a large number of friends for their future happiness and prosperity.

QUEER JAPAN.

A Land Where Laughter Has No Relation to Pleasure.

In "More Queer Things About Japan" Douglas Sladen says: "Perhaps one of the severest of etiquettes in Japan is that of smiles. When you have lived in that land of smiles you will learn in time that when you can understand a Japanese smile you may hope to understand the people. A daughter-in-law must always present a smiling face to her mother-in-law; the servant must smile when his mistress dismisses him. But the news of a death must be told with laughter. Laughter is reserved for very special occasions and has no relation to joy. Smiles are used on every occasion to conceal real feelings. They are not always significant of pleasure.

"No wants has the Japanese," the same writer continues. "He can live in his clothes without a tent, he can live on rice or offal of the sea, and he is so accustomed to carrying heavy weights and running long distances that he can be his own commissariat and even his own horse."

If the Japanese are somewhat lax as regards their religion, they are at any rate believers in cleanliness. The writer says: "Personal cleanliness is a virtue which all Japanese servants possess. It is no unusual thing for a Japanese servant to apologize to a mistress for not having had time to bathe more than three times that day."

Drinking Water.

Our physical well being would be greatly increased if we would drink a large glass of water immediately on arising and again on retiring. The morning glass may be of hot water to advantage. Then take another large glassful between breakfast and dinner and another between dinner and supper. Encourage the water drinking habit in the children as well as in yourself, for thereby the eliminating processes of the body are satisfactorily carried on.

Male and Female Buyers.

Whereas some women will go into a vast establishment intent on spending a certain sum—say, on an article of dress—and will successively scrutinise half a dozen things besides what she originally wanted and retire without buying any, a man will stray in without any fixed plan of purchase and will sometimes purchase large quantities of goods that he never dreamed of wanting when he entered the shop.—London Truth.

A Mean Retort.

"If you don't stop talking," cautioned the husband, "I'll not be able to catch any fish." "That's funny," answered the wife. "When a girl angles for a husband she has to talk a great deal." "I know. But there's a difference between fish and lobsters."

The Smart Student.

"Every year," said the professor, "a sheet of water fourteen feet thick is raised to the clouds from the sea."

"What time of the year does that happen, professor?" asked the freshman. "I should think it would be a sight worth going to see."

Bacon's Crime.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

SERVANTS IN ENGLAND.

The Case of Muggins, Who Wished She Were Dead.

The terrors of etiquette below stairs! There once strayed into my employ a housemaid whose career hitherto had been confined to lodging houses. Upstairs she always looked frightened, and her face had a great attraction for "sweets," but she was very willing and very competent.

"It is not for me to ask madam to send Muggins away, but the rest of us will go if Muggins stays. I don't know where she has lived out before, but she drinks out of her saucer and does not even know that we expect her to be down in our sitting room at half past 4 dressed in her black and ready to pour out the servants' tea." Of course I gave Muggins notice, recognizing that the lodging house was her proper sphere, and in the month that followed I knew she suffered martyrdom. She used to wipe her eyes stealthily, and as she was not proud I showed her some sympathy.

"They ain't nice to me downstairs like you are, ma'am," she sobbed, "though I'm doing my best. Cook says she won't wipe up the dishes for the likes of me."

"Never mind, Muggins. You'll be going soon, and, after all, you have learned a good deal here," I consoled her.

"I wish," said Muggins, "I was dead."—Mrs. John Lane in Harper's Bazar.

The Violet In Mythology.

"Violets," says N. Hudson Moore in his "Flower Fables and Fancies," "occupy a conspicuous place in Greek mythology. We are told that Io was beloved by Jupiter, who, on account of Juno's jealousy, changed her into a heifer. Such common food as grass was far too gross to serve as nourishment for the sweetheart of one of the gods. Therefore as something wonderfully delicious he created the violet, that Io might feed upon its fragrant petals." The Greek name of the flower is Ion, and the Greek adopted it as their national emblem. The Romans also extolled this emblem of modesty, and it was the favorite flower of Mohammed. Besides being the emblem of humility, the violet is held to signify love of truth.

Four flowers only, Mr. Moore reminds us, have entered into politics—the rose in England, the lily in France and the chrysanthemum in Japan. The fourth is the violet, which was more closely associated with one man than with the country. The violet is ever reminiscent of Napoleon the Great, whose emblem it became.

How Sarasate Taught Singing.

"I was in South America once years ago as a young man, and I was stranded after a very unsuccessful tour in a city there. 'Teach,' said somebody, 'and you will easily earn enough to pay your debts, such as they are.' But, alas, nobody wanted to learn the violin.

"'Never mind,' said my enterprising acquaintance, who was genuinely sorry for my plight and wanted to help me, 'teach singing.' Here was another difficulty. I never had as much voice as a crow and knew nothing about singing. But 'needs must'—I need not finish the proverb. My pupil, a lady, came, and I played my violin to her. 'There,' I said, with all the assurance of the most fashionable voice producer, 'sing like that. That is the way to sing.' She was amazed, but I honestly believe she learned more from my tone and phrasing than if I had taught her scales and songs."—London Express.

A Conscientious Jury.

On one occasion a native in Kail, Hawaii, cheated a neighbor out of a small sum of money. The community was indignant and determined that the guilty party should be punished. The day of the trial came, the testimony was conclusive, the judge closed his charge, reminding the jury that "it takes nine to convict," for a three-fourths majority was required instead of a unanimous jury. It was thought that the twelve might decide in the box, but the Hawaiian likes form, and they gravely withdrew to the jury room. They were gone an unconscionable time. At length the judge, impatient, sent to find out what in the world was the matter and discovered this predicament: All twelve were for conviction, and no three could be induced to vote for the defendant.

Her Pious Wish.

Robert Burns' friend, Dr. Blacklock, the blind poet, was a licentiate of the Church of Scotland and used to preach occasionally.

One Sunday he was supplying a country pulpit. Certain deaf old women, as was the custom in those days, had squatted on the pulpit stairs to be as near the preacher as possible. Like the mass of the Scottish people, they abominated sermons that were read.

One of them as soon as the discourse was begun said to her neighbor in a tone that was audible through the whole church, "Is he readin'?"

"Tuts, woman! No, he canna read. He's blind."

"Blin, is he, eh? That's real fortnate. I wish they were a' blind."

The Original Fruit Canners.

We are indebted to Pompeii for the great industry of canned fruit. Years ago, when the excavations were just beginning, a party of Cincinnatians found in what had been the pantry of a house many jars of preserved figs. One was opened, and they were found to be fresh and good. Investigation showed that the figs had been put into jars in a heated state, an aperture left for the steam to escape and then sealed with wax. The hint was taken, and the next year fruit canning was introduced into the United States, the process being identical with that in vogue at Pompeii twenty centuries ago.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company

"You told me all this before," interrupted Brendon ruthlessly. "I ask if you have ever been to San Remo?"

"Why, yes, assuredly, and why not?" She looked at him with narrowing eyes as she put the question, blinking like a cat.

"There is no reason, only I was thinking"— He paused.

"Eh, you think—of what?"

"Oh, something which does not concern you, Lola."

"All that is of you is to me," she responded. "I love you."

"Lola, be reasonable."

"Pschutt! I mock myself of your reason," she cried, snapping her fingers and speaking in quite a French way. "I leave reasons to your chilly English ladies. I—oh, but you know I am of the south. To you—to you, my adored preserver, do I give myself."

George grew angry. "If you talk like this, Lola, I shall go away."

"Ah, then, good night to you. Let it be adieu and never come back."

"That's grateful," said George quietly, and she was at his feet.

"Ah, but no! I am a bad woman. I am entirely all wicked. You are an angel of the good God. Dearest—my own"— She stretched adoring hands, and her eyes glittered like stars.

George reasoned with her. "Lola, do you wish me to be pleased with you?"

"Assuredly. And why not?"

"Then sit down and talk sensibly."

She sat down, or rather flung herself into the chair, with a whirl of scarlet draperies. "Decidedly I am a Christian. I go to mass, I confess—yes, I confess to the priest how I love you."

"Do you really love me, Lola? I was told that you wished me harm."

She started from her chair with a passionate gesture.

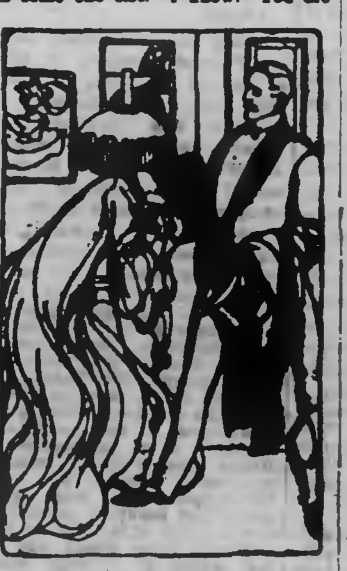
"Who says it is liars of the worst! Tell me who speak, that I may tear and scratch."

"No, no! I don't want a scandal."

"For her sakes, oh, yes!" She subsided sulkily. "I am nothings."

"For whose sake?" asked Brendon, rather alarmed, for he did not wish this tigress to know about Dorothy.

"The other woman's. Oh, yes, there is some one else. I know. You are mine all, and would be but for the other womens. Imbecile that I am to think of you who kick me hard—hard. And I can learn nothing—nothing. If I did—if I knew, I"— She stopped and breathed hard.



"My deliverer, my adored!"

"I wonder you don't have me watched," said George, thoroughly angry at her unreasonable attitude. Lola tossed her head and her expression changed to one of alarm. Brendon saw the change and guessed its meaning. "You did have me watched."

"And what if I did?" she demanded defiantly. "You are mine."

"I am not yours," he retorted angrily. "I have given you no cause to think that I would marry you."

Lola burst into tears. "You took me from the stones and snows," she wept with extravagant grief. "Why did I not die? You fed me with foods and made me shine in this London. You win my heart and then—then—pschutt"—she snapped her fingers—"you toss it aside."

"Why did you have me watched?" asked George sternly.

"I want to know of the other woman," she replied sullenly.

"There is no"— He broke off. "It has nothing to do with you."

Lola sprang to her feet with fierce eyes. "Then there is another—another—oh, you cruel! Name of names, but I shall find her. I shall tell her"—

"You shall tell her nothing—you shall not see her."

"But I will. Eh, yes. You do not know me." This with a stamp.

"I know you cannot behave decently, Lola. If you have me watched again, if you dare to—to—bah!" George stamped in his turn. "I have had enough of this. Behave, or I go and will not return."

She flung herself at his feet with a wail. "Ah, but no," she sobbed, "I do love you so dearly—I will die if you love me not."

George drew himself roughly away, and taking her by the hands placed her in a chair, where she hid her face and sobbed. "Who was it you got to watch me—you hired to watch me?"

George advisedly used the word "hired," as he thought she might have engaged one of her friends to do the dirty work instead of engaging a professional. Yet he knew she was quite capable of going to a private detective office.

"I shall not tell you," said Lola, sitting up with a hard expression on her mouth and in her eyes.

"Did you pay him much?" asked Brendon dexterously.

"I paid him what I chose," retorted Lola, falling into the trap.

"Ah! Then it was a professional detective you engaged. You have been to one of those inquiry offices."

"That is my business," said Lola, who, seeing she had made a slip, became more obstinate than ever.

George shrugged his shoulders. He was not going to argue with her. Remembering that Bawdsey had mentioned her name, and that Bawdsey appeared to know all about himself, he began to put two and two together. Certainly he might be wrong, and Bawdsey might have nothing to do with the matter. Still it was worth while trying to startle Lola into a confession by the use of his name. His rescue of Bawdsey hinted that the long arm of coincidence might be at work.

"I should have thought that the red man was clever enough to"— began George.

She rose to her feet with such manifest alarm that George knew his guess was correct. "You talk foolish," said she.

George looked at her angry face serenely. "Did Bawdsey when he said you wished me harm?"

"What?" She flung up her hands, with blazing eyes. "Did he say I do wish you harm? Was it—that—that cow—pig"—

"Don't call names, Lola, and don't distress yourself. It was Bawdsey."

Lola saw that she had gone too far. She tried to recover lost ground. "I do not know his names," she said sullenly, then burst out: "But I wish you no harm. Eh, will you believe that, my preserver?"

"I'll believe nothing if you will not tell me the truth," said Brendon, a little cruelly. "Come, Lola, admit that you paid Bawdsey to watch me."

"I did not pay—no, not one sou. He did it for love."

"Oh, indeed! So Bawdsey is in love with you?"

Lola threw back her head defiantly. "Yes, he is, and I care not one, two, three little trifles for him. Chup! He is old—he is red—he is one big fool, that I can twist and twist"—

"And you apparently have done so. Well, then, Lola, did you get him from a private inquiry office?"

"No, I did not so. He loved me, and sent me flowers—oh, many, many flowers—those roses." She pointed to a silver dish filled with roses. "He has flowers from a friend in San Remo."

Brendon sat up with an eager look in his eyes. So Bawdsey knew some one in San Remo. Brendon began to think that there was some meaning in all these things and plied Lola with questions. She was sulky at first and would not answer. But Brendon knew how to manage her, and before the conclusion of the conversation he got the whole truth out of her.

"So Bawdsey knows San Remo, and he is fifty or over fifty years of age. H'm! He knows all the history of the place, I suppose."

"I know not—nothing do I know."

"Ah, that's a pity! Bawdsey could tell you some nice tales." He fixed a keen glance on her. "About some yellow holly, for instance."

Lola winced, for the shot had gone home. But she still held to her declaration of ignorance. "I know nothings—absolutely."

"But apparently this man knows a great deal. He is in love with you and must have told you much. Did he inform you of a certain murder which took place at San Remo?"

"Ah, bah! Why should he? I knew of all already."

"You! How did you know?"

"My father and my mothers, they lived in San Remo when—oh, they did tell me all of that Englishman."

"Did they know who murdered him?" asked George, marveling at this unexpected discovery.

"No. No one knew anythings."

"Was there no suspicion?"

"Not one suspicions. I know nothings," she repeated doggedly.

"It strikes me that you do. How did you and Bawdsey come to be talking of this matter?"

"We did not talk." Lola looked down at her feet as she told the lie and moved it restlessly.

George rose and took up his hat. Throwing his coat over his arm, he moved toward the door. "Good night, mademoiselle."

She sprang to her feet and flew after him. "No, no!" she cried in lively alarm. "You must not go, my dearest dear!"

"What is the use of my stopping when you will not show your gratitude toward me by telling the truth?"

"I will tell! I will tell! Sit down. The coat—you shall not go. I will say all. Ask what you will. Sit, my little cabbage—a wine in the glass—ah, yes—and a cigarette. Come, be good. Am I mademoiselle?"

"No," said George, smiling on her pleading face. "You are my friend Lola now that you are sensible."

"Ah, only friend!" she said sadly. "But I speak. Yes?"

George began at once to question her lest the yielding mood should pass away. "You made the acquaintance of Bawdsey at the hall?"

Lola nodded. "He loved me; he sent me flowers. I learn that he looks after people, and I made him watch you. I told him your name."

"Did he know my name?" asked Brendon quickly.

"He knew everything—oh, yes—all—all!"

Brendon was taken aback. "All—all what?" he asked, amazed.

"Why"—Lola twirled her fingers—"all what you would not tell to me, my dear. That your names is Vane, and miler"—

"Derrington! Did Bawdsey mention Lord Derrington?"

WASTING AWAY

It's the small but constant loss of flesh that indicates physical waste—the gradual slipping away of healthy flesh, pound by pound, which no ordinary food seems to restore. Scott's Emulsion will restore it. This Emulsion is the greatest flesh builder obtainable. Scott's Emulsion first stops the wasting—that's one gain. Then when it supplies new flesh and takes one back to normal strength and weight, that's another gain and a big one.

GRAEME HUNTER AGAIN

Secures Commission to Investigate Charges of Fraud.

The Notorious Emigrant Agent. Will Call for Witnesses — The Social Democratic Federation Oppose the Sending of Young Men to Canada —Earl Derby Exposes English Ignorance of Geography.

London, Feb. 20.—Graeme Hunter made a successful appeal at Glasgow for the appointment of a commission to take evidence in Canada regarding the charge of fraud. The court ruled that the witnesses must be produced in court to tell the story themselves. During the course of the hearing, the crown said it would show that Hunter had made no provision for the hundreds of emigrants who were left on the streets to do what odd jobs came along. The minister of the interior was mentioned as one of the witnesses for the defence.

Englishmen's Ignorance of Geography.

At a meeting of the Empire League Lord Derby drew attention to the ignorance of many Englishmen regarding the size of the Dominion, many cases of which came under his notice when Governor-General. The late Duke of Cambridge fell into the same error, giving an order for the removal of troops from one part of the Dominion to another, which Lord Derby had to remind him was like sending men from London to Khiva. He thought a closer study of geography was necessary for the citizens of the Empire.

Reynolds' Weekly on Canada.

Reynolds' newspaper publishes another warning about Canada—this time from "A British Workman," regarding British Columbia, who says that thousands of Japanese laborers are imported to work in the west for nothing, and take the places of white men. He can truthfully say there is not more than 50 per cent. of able-bodied white men at work at the coast.

Protest Against Canadian Emigration.

At a meeting of the Social Democratic Federation, opposing the Tunbridge Wells Colonizing Society, which is sending young men to Canada, H. Lavder specially denounced emigration to Canada. Three classes of persons were benefiting, railway magnates, land speculators and manufacturers.

Haldane's Sunny Ways.

Mr. Haldane, speaking at the Empire League meeting, said the colonies were conscious enough of their duty to the Empire, as shown by the aid given in the late war. They did not like to be reminded of their duties. He for one had always been careful to avoid pressing the points about naval contributions and other points of that kind. What he looked to was the common ideals, aspirations and purposes which bound the colonies to the mother country. He wished to emphasize that we were dealing with people as free as we, and who would remain in connection only if they had the same sense of freedom as we.

Brockville and Graeme-Hunter.

Brockville, Feb. 20.—Saturday's mail brought a letter to Chief of Police Burke from the City of Glasgow police department, saying that Graeme-Hunter and Gavin-Cowper are to be tried at the assize court in Glasgow on Feb. 28, current, on charges of fraud in respect that they induced a considerable number of tradesmen and others to take passage to Canada (Toronto, etc.) and to proceed there on the pretense that they or the "Associated British Canadians" had provided employment on their arrival. Hunter, the letter says, has given in a list of persons whom he alleges had arranged with him, or his agents there, to give employment to those sent out, and local information is wanted at once.

The attached list referred to: Mr. Struthers, President Farmers' Association, Brockville, and R. J. Fields, secretary Farmers' Institute, Brockville.

In the early part of last summer it was told how young immigrants had arrived here with letters of introduction from Hunter to "Mr. Struthers, President of the Farmers' Association of Brockville." The young men expected to find jobs awaiting them on their arrival here, and were greatly disgusted to find that no such person as Mr. Struthers existed, and that there was no farmers' association of Brockville. R. H. Field, secretary of the Brockville Fair, took compassion on them and secured employment for some of the dupes. He also wrote a sharp letter to Hunter that unless he stopped such work he would expose him in the Glasgow papers.

Doctor Loses Suit.

Windsor, Feb. 20.—Dr. Campeau of Harrow is consulting attorneys with reference to the collection of an account for attending Owen McCann, who was shot and seriously wounded while attempting to break into his house. Dr. Campeau was authorized by the provincial detectives to attend McCann. Since then the board of audit of criminal justice accounts and the County Council have refused to pay him.

BOMBS IN PARIS.

A Spaniard Who Says He Was Ruined Attacks Mexican Legation.

Paris, Feb. 20.—Inhabitants of the Champs Elysee quarter on Saturday night were aroused by a loud explosion, and the police were hurriedly summoned, and discovered in front of the Mexican Legation a man severely wounded, and lying amid fragments of a bomb.

He was taken to an hospital and cross-examined. He claimed that his name is Garcia, and that he is a Spaniard. He asserted that he had been ruined by the Mexican Government, and in revenge, threw a bomb, which, however, exploded too soon and he himself was injured. The police found a revolver, a dagger and some Anarchist pamphlets on Garcia, and a search of his lodgings led to the discovery of two bombs, identical to that which he had exploded.

Garcia declares that he was born in Santander in 1862, and denied that he is an Anarchist.

Working for Arbitration.

Washington, Feb. 20. — President Roosevelt has not abandoned his idea of obtaining with leading powers of the world definite, comprehensive and effective arrangements as to a scheme for international arbitration.

He discussed the subject of international arbitration on Saturday with Hayne Davis of New York, who has made a study of the subject, and Representative Barthold of Missouri, president of the Inter-parliamentary Union.

Mr. Roosevelt's callers found him confident that much would be accomplished in the cause of arbitration at the proposed conference at The Hague.

Newfoundland's Case Stated.

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 20.—Sir William McGregor, Governor of Newfoundland, has prepared for the British Government an important statistical report covering the trade and fisheries of the colony for the past 16 years, the period covered by the modus vivendi, arranged at Washington as supplementary to the Chamberlain-Bayard fisheries treaty of 1888, whereby American fishermen secured inshore fishery privileges in the waters of Canada and Newfoundland.

This report has an important bearing on the Bond-Hay discussion and will place the situation clearly before the Imperial cabinet.

Didn't Know She Was Divorced.

Cincinnati, Feb. 20.—The climax of the supposed double marriage of Samuel Lawrence Barriett, the famous electric inventor, whose dead body was found in a Dayton boarding house early in the week, came to light on Saturday, when the attorney of the second wife showed a certified decree divorcing the first wife, who until now believed herself still married to Barriett.

Both women are solely anxious to protect whatever rights their children may have.

Prince Edward Co. Election.

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Argument was heard on Saturday by Justice Maclennan in the appeal from the decision of the County Judge in the matter of the Prince Edward County election recount. Curry (Liberal) was elected by 7, the recount giving each candidate 6 extra votes. Counsel for Norman (Con.) contended that in subdivision 1, where the vote was, Curry 60, Norman 48, as the D.R.O. failed to give a statement, the count should be thrown out. Judgment was reserved.

THINK IT OVER.

Something You Can See in Any Restaurant or Cafe.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from 60 to 80 years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile?

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous, sickly-looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantities any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels, and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly, and thus gives a much-needed rest and giving an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating, as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have placed their faith in Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages, and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

RUSS VICTORY CLAIMED

Japanese Squadron Reported to Have Been Annihilated.

Russians Report Trifling Loss—Oyama on the Contrary Reports Russ Engaged on Defenses—Rumors That the Chinese Are Taking a Friendly Stand—Jap Artillery Much Stronger—Two Villages Burnt.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—Gen. Sakharoff, Gen. Kuropatkin's chief of staff, reports that a detachment of Russian cavalry, while reconnoitring, encountered and annihilated a Japanese squadron, losing in the affair one officer and three men killed and 24 men wounded.

Tokio, Feb. 20.—Field Marshal Oyama reports that the Russians are continuing their defensive works in all directions. They continued to shell portions of the Japanese line on Friday. On the same day they essayed a small infantry attack, but were repulsed.

Suspicious Movements.

Mukden, Feb. 20.—Rumors of suspicious movements by General Ma, military governor of the Province of Chili, and Chinese troops in neutral territory, are causing apprehension lest they are co-operating with the Japanese, and Chinese bandits, who are reported to be advancing toward the Russian communications. Two companies of frontier guards, who were sent to investigate mysterious signals seen at night at the railway station of Goudzhou Pass, encountered eight squadrons of Japanese cavalry and were obliged to retire with heavy losses. The Chinese are distributing among the soldiers fictitious despatches, giving imaginary details concerning the strikes in Russia.

Japs Got Artillery.

Motouran, Feb. 20.—There are noticeable reinforcements to the siege artillery. The Japanese fire now exceeds that of the Russians in intensity, and Poutiloff (Lone Tree) Hill is constantly bombarded. Two new Japanese batteries are being erected east of the Russian centre. Japanese cavalry is seen with the main army of late, and it is believed that branches have been released for service in Mongolia.

Quiet at Front.

Headquarters of the Russian Army, Huan Mountain, Feb. 20.—All is quiet at the front. The second and third army corps in front of the first army of the Japanese made an unimportant demonstration Feb. 16, advancing on the Villages of Stosintun, Koutiatsze, Vatishan and Sachetun, but retired after two hours.

BRITAIN TO BUY PHONES.

Price to Be Fixed by Arbitration on Value of Plant and Works Only.

London, Feb. 20.—In view of the trouble which the workers are having with the Telephone Trust, special interest is lent to the announcement that the British Postmaster-General has come to an agreement with the National Telephone Company to take over its business from Dec. 31, 1911.

Lord Stanley is congratulated by the London press upon submission to Parliament of what is considered a good bargain, by which both the taxpayers and the telephone user should do well. The price to be paid for the business is to be settled by arbitration. All that is to be paid is the fair market value of the plant and the works of the company, nothing for goodwill.

When, in April, 1896, the Postoffice took over the trunk lines, the cost was $2,295,570, but the purchase of the whole business is a more serious matter, from the fact that the company has a share capital of $22,500,000, with debentures amounting to nearly $20,000,000.

Burnt Women and Children.

Salonica, Feb. 20.—In a fight between Bulgarians and Turks at the Village of Kukiltch, near Strumitza, on Feb. 16, the Bulgarians lost 20 killed or wounded. The Turks subsequently burned the village. A commission of enquiry sent to the spot from this city, discovered in the ruins of the village the charred remains of 14 women and several children.

Solicitors Steal Securities.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 20.—Much mystery surrounds the disappearance by a law firm on Saturday of securities said to be the property of a client and to have a face value of $250,000. The papers, $50,000 of which are negotiable, were removed from a safe or vault about Jan. 17, since which time unsuccessful efforts have been made to locate them.

Fiendish Treatment by Comrade.

New York, N. Y., Feb. 20.—His hands tied and his clothing saturated with kerosene and then set on fire, was the treatment accorded to Max Spitz, a car cleaner, by fellow workmen in the Merrisiana yards of the New York Central Railroad, according to a statement made by Spitz to the police yesterday.

Murdered on a Steamer.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 20.—John A. Hart of this city, 25 years old, and an engineer employed last summer on H. H. Rogers' power boat Vixen, was murdered on the Joy Line steamer Larchmont while a passenger from New York to this city last night.

Would Irrigate More.

Bombay, Feb. 20.—Sir William Willcocks whose work in connection with the irrigation of Egypt is so well known, has been investigating the practicability of restoring the ancient Chaldean irrigation works on the Euphrates and Tigris.

To Banquet Sir William and Borden.

Montreal, Que., Feb. 20.—Sir William Mulock will be banqueted by the Montreal Reform Club on March 4, while R. L. Borden will be the guest of honor at the Lafontaine Club on Saturday evening, Feb. 25.

Twenty Die in an Explosion.

Baku, Lower Russia, Feb. 20.—An explosion on board a naptha barge yesterday set fire to several other barges and a landing stage. It is reported that 20 people perished.

Team Frozen to Death.

Kinmount, Feb. 20.—The other evening W. McNish and Archie McArthur, two young men who live at Long Point, Fenelon Township, left Fenelon Falls for home with two teams and sleighs. It is said they were the worse of liquor. They both rode in McArthur's sleigh, and McNish's team was tied behind. While going across a 3-mile stretch of Balsam Lake the tie line came undone and the team that was being led wandered off on the lake. The night was very cold, and stormy, and the animals got stuck in the deep snow and were frozen to death.

As to Inebriate Homes.

London, Feb. 20.—Temperance reformers are indignant at Justice Wills for laying down the opinion that homes for inebriates are perfectly useless. An experienced London police court missionary says the judge is right to a certain point, such as that reformatories, whether maintained by the Government or by private philanthropists, are useless to reclaim habitual drunkards. But a surprising measure of success is obtained in preventing men from becoming chronic drunkards when their detention has begun early enough.

Baby Born With Two Heads.

North Tonawanda, Feb. 20.—Facts were made public yesterday of the birth of a boy last Wednesday who lived until Saturday morning, with two heads and necks, and one body from the shoulders to the waist line. Below the waist there was also a double formation, with four legs. The child had but two arms. It weighed ten pounds.

Armature vs. Coil.

Probably the most exciting game of the season took place on Saturday afternoon on All Saints' rink between teams from the C.G.E., representing the coil winders and the armature winders. These two teams have been brought togther through the able management of Mr. J. G. M. Wilson who was present at the game and showed the great interest he took in the matter. In the first half the coil winders put it all over the armature winders, and had the score 4—2 in their favor, but in the second half they showed lack of condition and were completely outclassed the armature winders scoring 4 to their opponents 1; thus winning by 11 goal. This game was for an oyster supper and came as a surprise to many. It is to be hoped that the armature winders will continue to stay in the game and they will make things hot for a few of the City League teams before the season is over. The teams were—

Seniors Practice To-night.

The Seniors will practice tonight between 7 and 8. A full attendance requested as the boys must eakp in shape.

The Bridgenorth hockey team drove over to the village on Tuesday evening last and played a game with a local team says the Lakefield News. Both teams put up a very good game but the locals proved too much for the visitors, who were defeated by three goals, the total score being 7 to 4 in favor of Lakefield. The playing of Ben Robinson in goal was a feature of the game. Following are the players,—

Bridgenorth—Goal, Redmath; point, W. Mann; cover-point, F. Joplin; forwards, N. Kelly, A. Coons, J. Conway and B. Cullen.

Lakefield.—Goal, B. Robinson; point, B. Crawford; cover-pount, R. Kennedy; forwards, J. Morin, C. Crawford, L. Quinn, and J. Watson.

Referee—Dr. Gibson.

Barrie's Bedelias will play Best's Happy Thoughts this evening at the Brock street rink this evening, between 6 and 7 o'clock. The line of the Bedelias will be as follows—Goal, Casey; point, Armstrong; cover-point A. Seymour; rover, Graham; centre, McCormack; right wing, J. Seymour, left wing, Bay.

The Aberdeens again challenge the Nationals as soon as Brock-st. rink can be had.

Stratford Tied Goderich.

Goderich lost in Stratford on Tuesday night by 10-2, which leaves the score on the round 10 all. The game was ordered to be played off tonight at Berlin and the winner will meet Berlin on the same ice tomorrow.

No Local O.H.A. Games This Week.

Berlin will play home-and-home games with the winner of the Goderich-Stratford game this week, and Victoria Harbor will polish off Thessalon. There will be no league games for the Peterborough team this week, but they will likely meet the winner of the Western group next week. An exhibition game with the Marlboros is a possibility for Thursday night.

Armstrong, the Star.

The Marlboros rather easily defeated Smith Falls on Saturday night by 8 to 3. The Toronto papers have evidently come to a realisation of Harold Armstrong's worth at last. The Globe says of him—"Armstrong was the luminous light of the game. He played in dashing form throughout, checking hard and rushing brilliantly. He was a decided factor in the scoring, keeping the forwards well fed, and shooting when the chance was offerred in deadly fashion.

Lindsay Won.

Lindsay won its second game in the Markham tournament on Saturday night, defeating Broadviews of Toronto by 2-1. They will meet Markham tonight and should win easily.

BASEBALL.

A card has been received at the Review Office from Guy W. Green, of Lincoln, Nebraska, manager of Green's Nebraska Indian ball team. He would like to arrange a game here. Last year this team won 149 out of 175 games played.

AN UNPLEASANT WINTER MISHAP

Dr. Mars McClelland Met With Painful Accident.

THROWN FROM HIS CUTTER

High Snow Bank on Water Street Caused the Accident—The Doctor's Left Leg Was Injured.

Dr. Mars. McClelland, about half-past twelve to-day had a very unpleasant experience and one that resulted with painful injury to himself. He was driving south on the west side of Water-st., and as he was about to turn west on Smith-st. the sleigh was upset by the high bank of snow which has accumulated at that point. Dr. McClelland was thrown out, and his horse endeavored to get away. He clung to the lines, however, even after the horse had worked the shafts free from the cutter. The doctor was in a very dangerous predicament as the horse was making a strenuous bid for freedom. Before the animal could be controlled it stepped on Dr. McClelland's left leg below the knee, and inflicted a very painful wound, the iron shoe cutting through the trousers and undergarment. The doctor was able to walk to his home on Brock-st., although the wound bled profusely and his plucky argument with the horse had given him a severe shaking up.

It is remarkable that this is only the first accident on that part of Water-st. referred to. The snow has been piled up high on either side of the roadway, and driving is rendered dangerous. Some action should be taken to remedy the condition of the street.

TWO SPLENDID SERMONS

Delivered by Rev. Gilbert F. Davidson in St. John's.

Large congregations yesterday listened with pleasure to two splendid sermons delivered in St. John's by Rev. Gilbert F. Davidson., Vicar of Guelph, former lecturer at Trinity University. Rev. Mr. Davidson's morning subject was "Honoring the Almighty," and in the evening he preached upon "Resisting Temptation."

This evening Rev. Mr. Davidson will lecture in St. John's school house on "A walk through Paris," which will be illustrated with lime-light views and promises to prove very interesting.

Facial Paralysis

Mr. W. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My face was all twisted out of shape with facial paralysis, and five doctors failed to cure or even relieve. By the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been entirely cured, and have returned to work strong and well. I have gained in weight and feel that I have a new lease of life." 10

When washing greasy dishes or pots and pans, Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) will remove the grease with the greatest ease. 4

ALD. MASON'S PURCHASE

Will Take Over the Stock of the Co-operative Grocery.

Ald. E. F. Mason has purchased the stock of the Co-operative grocery store, which has been conducted for about two years by W. H. Tuck, who recently made an assignment. Mr. Mason has secured this very fine stock at a very low rate on the dollar. He has already assumed charge and states that it is not his intention to continue a grocery business permanently at the corner of Brock and George-sts., but will dispose of the stock as soon as possible.

Cured Kidney Disease

Mrs. Fred Hills, Walton St., Port Hope, Ont., states: "I was troubled for some time with kidney disease, and though I tried a great many different medicines never succeeded in obtaining relief until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. By the regular use of this preparation for a time I was completely cured of kidney disease."

MR. LANGFELDT'S LECTURE

Mr. Langfeldt's Orillia experience ought to be repeated with even greater enthusiasm.—Com.

Helpless With Salt Rheum

"For many months my wife was unable to serve herself with her hands because of salt rheum. Dr. Chase's Ointment has entirely cured her and we strongly recommend it to any who suffer from siliar ailments, believing that it has no equal." — Mr. Ludger Duquay, Pigeon Hill, Missisquoi Co., Que.

Put in Too Much Poison.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 20.—An attempt was made to murder Mrs. Jane L. Stanford within the past month by placing poison in a bottle of mineral water. Mrs. Stanford drank three times of the mixture, but the poison had been used in such a large quantity that it acted as an emetic. Mrs. Stanford was taken violently ill.

Sufficient poison was found to kill a dozen persons if it had been used with any judgment. Mr. Stanford has gone to Japan.

Divorce in Turkey.

A woman in the sultan's realm when divorced from her husband is not treated with contumely and often marries again. A husband simply says to his wife, "I have divorced you." She leaves him, and he tells the same to the cadi, who gives to him a paper of written divorcement. If it is the first or second time that this has occurred he may take her back again without any formality ensuing, but after a third divorce she will be lost to him forever. Men abuse this license and sometimes divorce their wives for a very small fault, like a bad dinner or a button unsewed, each knowing that if he repents he can have his wife back before evening. It is not uncommon that a wife is divorced from five husbands and lives with a sixth.

—Mr. Wm. English, of Stirling has purchased the hardware stock of Frost Bros., Hastings and will be ready for business in a few days.

Tropical Countries and Spices.

In tropical countries, between latitudes 23 degrees south and 23 degrees north of the equator, the inhabitants use spices with their food as we use pepper. A certain beneficial effect is caused to the digestion—namely, stimulant and carminative. But there is a secondary effect, which is perhaps even more beneficial, seen in the fact that the volatile oil passes out from the body mostly unchanged through various channels, but chiefly through the lungs and skin. So that in the tropics nature has provided antiseptics which in passing out by the lungs and skin kill the hurtful microbes which might be breathed in and also prevent to a great extent the attack of mosquitoes. It is a well known fact that insects, including mosquitoes, dislike volatile oils and will probably not attack an individual using spices as a food adjunct. It is interesting to note that spices grow where there is a high rainfall combined with much heat, conditions under which malarial influences prevail. The author quotes various authorities in regard to the antiseptic, antipyretic and other properties of aromatics.—Journal of Tropical Medicine.

Man Who Did Too Well.

"A man may sell too much of the article which he is displaying to his customers, and I know of a case in point which happened to a friend of mine," said a commercial man.

"My friend had a fine place offered him with an organ factory, and he accepted it, the salary being up in the four figures. He went out and to his first customer sold the entire output of the plant. The customer agreed to take all that the factory could make. Having nothing more to sell, my friend returned to the house well pleased with his success and for several days sat around smoking good cigars, while the firm patted him on the back. One day he came in, and the boss called him over, saying in this fashion:

"'I will have to give you the usual thirty days' notice. You have done so well that we have no further use for you or any traveling man. We are sorry to lose you, but you sold too much at the first crack.'"

A Till Tapper.

During luncheon the subject of widows arose, and on this interesting topic many original ideas were expressed. One of the company said:

"Some widows are to be pitied; others, again, are to be felicitated. My father used to describe a widow of the latter sort. She lived in Maryland and kept a little village store. Her husband was a worthless fellow. He never worked, and he drank a great deal. A worthless fellow, I repeat, but nevertheless when he died suddenly many persons made calls of sympathy and condolence on the widow. My father did not call, but one day, stopping at the store to buy some trifle or other, he thought it was no more than right to say in a feeling tone:

"'You must miss your husband a great deal, madam?'

"'Well, sir,' said the widow, 'it does seem strange to come into the shop and find something in the till.'"

The French Apron Fad.

The wearing of aprons is one of the old useful fashions now being revived, greatly to the saving of our frocks and the comfort of the wearers. The coquettish apron has been set aside for awhile, but is now once more asserting itself. The strictly useful has always held its own. The French have turned a kindly eye to them, and in the days of Louis XIII. women wore them and their bunch of keys, showing they were veritable housekeepers. In the time of Louis XIV. ladies of the court donned them when employed in needlework and other arts, and it is from that period we are restoring the airy nothings of lace and muslin to our favor. Sometimes they are of light colored crepe de chine, worked in gold. More useful ones of thicker fabric have large pockets. These are adorned with pretty ribbon bows, and these ribbons sometimes draw up the pocket. Sometimes strong linen aprons are laced with ribbon at the edge by means of eyelet holes.

There is no Salt for table use that can compare with WINDSOR SALT. It is absolutely pure, never cakes, and is always the same perfect quality.

—The Belleville Reform Club met on Monday night, and appointed a deputation to go to Ottawa and interview the government and urge that the outlet of the Trent Canal be at Trenton. No need of troubling the government, Cobourg has the cheap, reliable and only feasible route for this canal. Port Hope and Trenton might as well hang up their fiddles, as with their rock bound courses they are not in it.—Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

—The question of protection from dogs is a live one. There is no doubt of that. Merchants and other people should be protected against vagrant and vicious canines, and the question is, how can the needed protection best be obtained. Frankly, we do not think that raising the tax on dogs generally is going to bring about the better state of things wished for. The Council should do as is done in other places, namely, compel all dogs to wear a collar and license tag, and take steps to destroy all dogs which run at large without them. It would not be long before the number of dogs in this city would be greatly decreased.—Belleville Intelligencer.

—"You may talk about the railways having their troubles and losses by the storms, and the man getting up with the shovel early in the morning, and taking it out again at night when he comes home from his daily work, but what about us poor merchants? You would hardly imagine the difference it makes in our receipts when the farmers and their wives cannot get to the city. More than that, even if they could they wouldn't have much money to spend for their earning powers have been lessened very greatly by the deep snow. I heard of a farmer in one place having to use his snowshoes to get to his barn to feed his cattle." such was the statement made by a well-known business man this morning.

—The Postmaster-General, according to a notice which appears in the Canada Gazette, has had under consideration the liability of articles of celluloid to explode or catch fire under certain conditions, and cases having occurred that strongly pointed to mails being injured from this cause, it has been decided that such articles may in future only be mailed if packed in tin boxes with close fitting lids. Notice, is therefore given, that from the standpoint of mailable matter celluloid is regarded as of the nature of an explosive, and the mailing of such articles, except as prescribed, is prohibited, and renders the sender liable to prosecution, under the section of the Post-Office Act relating to the sending of explosives, matches, etc., in the mails.

—The long suffering and sorely tried people of Cobourg have yet to make their weary way amidst snow and ice, blizzards and strong temptations to swear, to that place called a post office, near the snowy banks on the icy waters of Lake Ontario. We would ask, with the patient people of Cobourg how long, O Lord, will that state of things continue. If the government are paralyzed and cannot get an outfit, let the old boxes be moved until such a time in the sweet bye-and-bye that the new boxes can be obtained. If not, for heaven's sake, give the people some relief, have a box at the corner, where the mail can be posted, have a place uptown where the people can purchase stamps, without waiting for a mail to be distributed and the crowd to get out. What are the people thinking about? They should make their voices heard and let Sir William Mulock know that we have people with a little sand in Cobourg.—Sentinel-Star.

LECTURE ON PARIS

Rev. G. Davidson, of Guelph, Gives Interesting Address at St. John's Church.

There was a large attendance at the lecture in St. John's school house last evening under the auspices of St. John's Ladies' Auxiliary. The lecturer was the Rev. Gilbert Davidson, Vicar of Guelph and his subject was "Paris." The rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson occupied the chair, and introduced the speaker in a few well chosen words.

The address was a very enjoyable one. Mr. Davidson is an eloquent and witty speaker and his descriptions of various scenes in Paris were very vividly given. Many beautiful views illustrative of the parks, streets, boulevards, theatres, cathedrals and other features of Paris were thrown upon the canvas by Mr. B. M. Roy. They were remarkably clear and distinct and added much to the interest of the lecture.

At the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Rev. Mr. Davidson for his very enjoyable lecture.

DR. PRINGLE HAD AN ADVENTURE

Heroic Yukon Missionary Was Lost in Snow.

TRACKED ACROSS THE WILDS

How Congregation at Sulphur Waited For the Preacher Who Did Not Come.

Rev. George Pringle, the heroic missionary to the Yukon, who visited Peterborough and other eastern points last spring, is prosecuting his work under very difficult conditions just now.

The Yukon World gives a thrilling account of an adventure of which Mr. Pringle was the hero. It says—

"Rev. George Pringle preaches every third Sunday at Sulphur, in the evening, but last Sunday found a congregation waiting for the word, and no preacher. It is Mr. Pringle's custom to preach at Gold Run in the morning and leave for Sulphur on the said Sundays during the afternoon. The distance is from seven to eight miles along the divide.

One day last week Mr. Pringle was chatting to Mr. Broxon, of Sulphur, as to the difficulties of travelling across the divide in the dark, but he concluded: "I shall be in Sulphur next Sunday night, unless something happens to me on the trip." And he further remarked, as if he had some prescience of coming trouble, "If I am not there in time for service you had better start out to meet me."

It just happened as Mr. Pringle predicted, but he did not intend to and the reverend gentleman did not put in an appearance. They waited and waited until an hour was passed. Then his words were remembered, and a sleigh was procured and a search was set in progress for the missing preacher.

Then it was determined to go first to Gold Run to find out it he had started and to track him from there if necessary.

So Mr. Broxon and a companion made their way with some difficulty, Mr. Broxon says, to Gold Run, and found that Mr. Pringle had left there in the afternoon to go to Sulphur to preach. Their worst fears were realized. He was lost.

The search party was augmented by Mr. Patten and Constable McDonald, and they started to track the preacher across the wilds, where the snow was badly drifted and the trail was sometimes lost. But the constable, like a true sleuth, kept up their spirits and kept them going. At length the trail, in the morning hours, and with the coming light, was more easily distinguished. It led them up to Gold Run Creek to the Jo-Jo roadhouse. There it ended.

And there they found the reverend gentleman they were mourning as lost had taken refuge about 11 o'clock the preceding evening, entirely worn out with his long trip.

Mr. Pringle had left for Sulphur before they got here, so they did not hear his story until later.

This was short. He had started from Gold Run in the afternoon, and a few miles afterwards lost his way, owing to the drifting. He wandered for several hours and at length saw a light in the distance. He concluded that the point where the light was, was the head of the gulch. But he travelled for a long distance before he came up with it and then he found it to be the Jo-Jo road house. He had been travelling at a good speed for six hours.

But the preacher is not talking as much of the difficulties as Mr. Broxon is.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, FEB. 21, 1905.

Mr Whitney will keep his promises. He says the secret ballot must go, and it is about time.

The change in the weather is as welcome as the political change in the province last month.

This is an excellent time of the year for an examination to be made of all the hydrants in town to see that they are not frozen up.

The names of the two new Canadian provinces are to be Alberta and Saskatchewan. They are bound to be the homes of millions in the coming years.

The plebiscite in Charlottetown, P. E. I., on city lighting resulted in a voted of four to one in favor of city ownership. There was a large majority in every ward, and in all classes of voters, real estate, rental and poll-tax voters.

Interest amounting also to excitement is being shown in the West over the selection of sites for the capital of the new province which is to be created. The land boomer is evidently laying his plans for interesting eastern investors in a way that will be profitable to himself.

Mr. Monteith, the new minister of agriculture in Ontario, is big enough to admit that his predecessor, Mr. Dryden, was an able and useful man. This is a promise of success for Mr. Monteith. A public man who can do justice to an enemy can usually, in connection with his work, do justice to himself.

The British Postmaster-General has come to an agreement with the National Telephone Co. to take over all its business and buy its plant by Dec. 31, 1911. The price is to be settled by arbitration, and all that is to be paid is a fair market value. The trunk lines have already been taken over by the post office department and by Dec. 31, 1911 the whole telephone business will be owned by the Government. In our enlightened country the tendency seems to be to allow the telephone company to run the country, instead of the country running the telephone business.

The merchant who can out-distance his competitors in any one branch of his business—who has a larger store, for instance, or a better delivery service, or a more varied assortment of some particular line of goods, or lower prices, or more attentive salespeople, or what not—and who fails to lay particular emphasis on his specialty in the advertising columns of the newspapers, deliberately throws away his advantage. His superiority counts for naught unless he tells the public about it. A business man must blow his own horn. His rivals will never take that task off his hands.

We have no fear that the abominable spoils system will prevail under Mr. Whitney's rule. Such a line of action is contrary to the best principles and traditions of the Conservative party, whose policy is to preserve the stability and efficiency of the Civil Service. Civil servants are expected to be non-partisan, and in the present situation no innocent civil servant need fear dismissal.

Every true Conservative should try to realise what a great responsibility has been thrown upon the Conservative party and should try, also, to lighten that burden by a loyal support of Mr. Whitney and his colleagues even should it demand a little personal sacrifice.—Brockville Times.

Events, an Ottawa journal of recognized authority on such matters, calls attention to the fact that retiring Provincial ministers are deprived of the title of "Hon." on leaving office, according to the rule laid down in Parliamentary guide books. This rule was founded on a despatch from the Duke of Buckingham, and accepted by the Canadian authorities. Even an ex-speaker of the House of Commons is not entitled to anything but plain "Mister" and for that reason the practice has grown up in Canada of calling the ex-speakers to the privy council, so as to give them the title of "Honorable" for life. It is really too bad: Events observes, that the press should persist in mis-calling public men by the prefix of "Hon." when they are not entitled to it.

"We will not say anything to you of a party nature. We are here as a body of business men, to do what we think is right, and we expect criticism. We believe criticism is good for all men in authority, and we welcome criticism; for if we do meet it, it will be fair, and good will come to the criticised. It is well that our British system of government provides for the strife of parties. The swing of the pendulum from one party to another is the best safeguard of the people. We must realise that our neighbor who disagrees with us is just as good as we are. As far as the upheaval or landslide that has been referred to is concerned, I do not refer to it with any feeling of triumph. The action the people have taken has been of such a nature as to shut out all dispute as to what the people desire. It is better in that sense that the majority was so large, although it may not be better in a party sense. We represent one of the political parties, both of which have done great things, and have made mistakes, and we will continue to make mistakes, but we will go on and do our best, confident that we will receive the criticism of fair-minded men."—Premier Whitney to the delegation from the Dominion Grange.

CHILDREN'S TEETH.

The dental statistics gathered in many European cities have revealed such an alarming condition of affairs that Germany, at least, has decided to adopt combative measures, points out the Municipal World.

In all large towns dental clinics have been founded, consisting, as a rule, of specially fitted up rooms, in one of the central schools.

Fully qualified dentists are appointed, who devote their whole time, to their duties, but in Stuggart the duties are done voluntarily by the local dentists. That such a movement is necessary can scarcely be doubted, when one learns that of many thousands of boys and girls, examined from the ages of 8 to 13, only two per cent. had a perfectly healthy set of teeth. To give an idea of the amount of work done in a year at Darmstadt schools it is necessary to quote figures for 1903. During the year 1,376 children were examined and 1,561 teeth were filled, while 1,871 were extracted. In Strassburg, 22,-666 children were examined, 609 teeth were filled, and 2,912 were extracted.

Another interesting fact is that 40 per cent. of all teeth examined were bad. The method of work is very simple, the teacher brings his class to the dentist, who examined each mouth quickly, and marks on the card which each child has brought whether treatment is necessary. If so the child must come again on a Saturday. Russia is also joining in the movement and has already fitted up nine institutions in St. Petersburg alone, while Moscow has also several.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

MANY DISEASED PERSONS

Physicians Are Complaining of Conditions Among Immigrants.

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Physicians are complaining about the number of diseased pauper emigrants that are coming to Toronto. A prominent physician told a reporter to-day that the free wards at the sanitariums were overrun with consumptive emigrants, who had been sent here for their health. Consumption, while not the only disease, for all sorts of infirmities are charged, is the most prevalent. The next most frequent is tracoma, granulation of the eyelids, a contagious disease resulting from uncleanliness, and curable only in its first stages.

CAN'T GET INTO STATES.

One doctor, speaking of this class of immigration, said:—"They cannot go to the United States, for the law there is so strict that they would be immediately deported at the expense of the steamship company that brings them over. But the medical examination at Montreal, Halifax and St. John is so easy that very few are rejected. The inspection there is a farce.

One local doctor said he had at present five cases. One had ringworm, another violent hysteria, a third was a hunchback with criminal tendencies, a fourth was a physical wreck, and a fifth had tuberculosis. All were paupers.

LAW GOOD, ENFORCEMENT BAD.

Thomas Southworth, of the Ontario Colonization and Immigration Bureau, says that the letter of the Canadian immigration law is as strict as that of the United States, and if the weakness existed it was in the method of enforcement.

The Scotch and Irish immigrants, he said, made good citizens as a rule, but most of the Londoners who come out were of a worthless type, sent away by friends to be got rid of. They naturally made for Toronto and stayed here. He pointed out that Canadian Immigration was only beginning. In 1901 3,000 immigrants, last year 25,000, and the tide for 1905 was already setting in.

WHAT DR. SHEARD SAYS.

Dr. Sheard was asked this morning about the diseased pauper immigrants. "We have them in here every day," he said, "looking for hospital relief, but our rule is not to give orders to any who have not been in the city a year."

"Your humanity naturally prompts you to admit a man who is too ill to crawl along the street, but in my judgment we were fast reaching the limit of the city's possibilities. Apart from the sick we are also receiving numerous applications daily from individuals who appear to be nothing more than tramps with a cough or cold. Five or six presented themselves yesterday and were refused admission and referred to the House of Industry. Some of them have been maintained by various secret and benevolent associations until the societies are unable to continue the relief longer, and they gravitate to the City Hall for a Relief Officer and Health Officer to grapple with.

"In my opinion it is a simple outrage to allow such characters into the country. I believe the best and cheapest way to handle the difficulty is to have a fund at the disposal of the City Relief Officers."

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

Our Working Capacity—Drawing Made Easy—Gums a Germ Product.

The new science of "Psycho-mechanics," has received attention in France from Dr. Charles Fere. He finds that a man has a greater capacity for average than for either intense or feeble work, and that one's powers vary greatly with mental conditions. Contrary to the general belief, mental work does not rest one physically tired, or vice versa. Capacity for work increases to a certain degree with heating of the head; light has a stimulating action and darkness depresses; even colors have influence, while sounds have a complex and variable effect; and odor and taste stimulate and then depress to a greater degree. Digestion diminishes muscular work. Most nerve-poisons—opium, hasheesh, valerian, alcohol, tobacco, coffee, tea, etc.,—produce transitory stimulation, which is followed by depression, diminishing the total work.

The perspectivegraph of Otto Eichenberger, of Geneva, is claimed to make an accurate perspective easy for the amateur artist. A folding box opens to form a table, and near the top of its extensible sides a telescope is so mounted that as it is moved about in following the details of any view a pencil is made to draw a corresponding line on a sheet of paper. Crossed hairs in the telescope give precision, while the pencil is kept upon the paper by sliding in a suitable holder. Beautiful drawings are made with little practice, and work exhibited includes a panorama of the Alps and a view of Geneva.

Gums are a botanical puzzle. Dr. Grieg Smith, of Sydney, has now shown that some are due to bacteria, and he has isolated some species—like that of "arabin"—and made them produce their gums in the laboratory. He suggests that all other gums are bacterial products, and that the world's supply might be increased by judicious selection of susceptible trees.

Human heads are characterised by potassic hair, silicic hair and sodic hair in the classification of J. Gaube, a French chemist. He finds blonde hair to contain much soda and much silica, and black hair to have a great deal of potassium, but little soda and scarcely any silica.

A curious motor—not likely to be put to practical use—has been devised by M. Laboyer, a French experimenter. After careful search he has discovered a stone—called the domite of Auvergne—in which water rises by capillary attraction to a height of four inches. Placing two sheets of this stone vertically in a basin of water, he suspends from them pieces of saltpeter-soaked fungus, and beneath this puts a little wheel with blotting paper paddles. As the water passes from the stone to the fungus, the latter wets the blotting-paper on one side of the wheel, causing that side to fall. Evaporation then lightens the lower part of the wheel while another portion is made heavy by wetting, rotation being thus set up, the rate varying with the state of the atmosphere.

An attempt to give scientific expression to the degree of agreeableness of a climate is being made by Capt. W. F. Tyler, F. R. Met. Soc, of London. Concluding that our sensations are chiefly influenced by temperature and humidity, he has coined the word "hypher" to indicate the joint effect, and represents a perfectly pleasant day as 0 on the hypher scale and an intolerably oppressive one as 10. He has succeeded in getting ten persons to make observations through one month. The results indicate that other factors—possibly barometric pressure and electric conditions—have appreciable influence upon sensation, and that much training of observers will be needed before trustworthy records can be made

In the electrical bleaching of flour by the lately patented process by J. N. Alsop, the apparatus consists of two arc lamps in parallel, with a coil yielding an 18-inch arc. The arcs are enclosed by tubes, and the air in these is electrified, producing a gaseous mixture containing nitrogen peroxide and traces of ozone. The gas is drawn off into a revolving hexagonal drum, where it is thoroughly incorporated with the flour. The treatment not only bleaches and purifies, but is claimed to add to the nutritive quality, analysis showing increased nitrogen.

The case of a healthy man of 61 whose heart beats only 30 times a minute, the normal rate being from 70 to 80, has been recorded by Dr. Seiffert, of Berlin. In another case reported, the beats numbered only 22, but the patient was suffering from heart disease.

In a new Hungarian washing machine, electrified water, it is claimed, removes all spots and dirt from 300 garments in less than fifteen minutes, no soap being used.

STOCK AGAINST MONTEITH.

Nominated, But Does Not Know Whether to Accept or Not.

Mitchell, Feb. 21.—The Liberals of South Perth met in convention here yesterday. The convention was well attended, over 100 delegates being present. The convention tendered a unanimous nomination to Mr. Stock to contest the bye-election against Hon. Mr. Monteith. Mr. Stock asked that a committee be appointed to advise him as to the desirability of contesting the riding. This was done, and the decision of Mr. Stock and the committee will be made known at the nomination in St. Mary's to-day.

Port Arthur, Feb. 21.—Mr. Preston, the Conservative candidate, has filed papers and put up a deposit for a protest against Mr. Russell in Port Arthur, whose majority is claimed to be fourteen.

L'Original, Feb. 21.—In the recount of Prescott County election for the Legislature, Mr. Labrosse, Independent Liberal, was yesterday declared elected by the casting vote of the returning officer. Hon. Mr. Evanturel, ex-Speaker, was his opponent.

34,862 Popular Majority.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—Colonel Clarke, clerk of the Crown in Chancery has received the official returns from all except nine of the returning officers. This gives a total popular majority for the Conservatives over Liberals of 34,862.

NERVOUS WASTE CAUSES DEATH

Physician Says Men Should Live 120 Years.

WHAT PREVENTS LONGEVITY

Observations Made While Performing Autopsies —The Natural Life of Man.

(N.Y. Herald.)

Since the mystery of life first agitated the mind of man the great question which servants have sought to solve is whether there is an arbitrary limit to the span of years we are alloted, and if there is not, by what means existence may be continued beyond what is regarded as the normal period.

Dr. Philip O'Hanlon, coroner's physician, who has performed thousands of autopsies, and is therefore in a position to speak with authority as to the causes which bring life to an end, is firmly convinced there is no good reason why the years of an average person should not be prolonged to 100 or 120. "Nervous waste" is the way Dr. O'Hanlon accounts for the majority of deaths in middle age.

In a Census Bureau statement the increasing age of the population from the year 1800 is noted. The median instead of the average age is computed, half the population being under and half over. This median age of the total population in 1900 was 22.8 years, as compared with 21.9 years in 1890. It is explained that "the rapid progress of medical and sanitary sciences, the decrease in the relative number of children born and the influx of adult immigrants increase the number in the old age periods."

All those persons in this country who have lived one hundred years have done so without the aid of the serum for longevity which a Russian savant formulated. The so-called discovery excited some interest in the scientific world, but it soon died out. The centenarians, it has been pointed out by authorities, should not be considered abnormal; rather should they be thought exponents of the rational life.

NATURAL LIFE A CENTURY.

Scientists say the central life of man, deduced from physical law, is one hundred years. According to Flouren's law the life of a warm blooded animal is five times the period it takes its bones to harden. The bones of man harden at twenty years, which, accordingly, brings his age to one hundred years. This age is rarely attained because of the artificial conditions under which he lives. It is possible, authorities say, if man lives naturally, as wild animals do, he would not die before his alloted time. Now his lease of life is largely dependent upon his vocation—the length differing according to the severity of the mental and physical strain of his calling.

Perhaps the most celebrated case where a man had been marked for early death, his physicians thought, owing to his habits of life, and succeeded in reaching an unusual age, at the same time retaining his mental and physical faculties, was that of Cornaro, a Venetian nobleman. In his youth and up to his fortieth year Cornaro had been indeed a "sad dog." Then he turned over a new leaf, although the doctors assured him that, owing to the impaired condition of all his organs, the endeavor was useless, and set about the task of longevity. Medicine he eschewed; the entire pharmacopoeia was useless in his case. His rule follows:

Each day he took not more than 360 grammes of solid food and 420 grammes of wine, distributed over four meals, composed each of ninety grammes of food and 105 grammes of new wine, as old wine did not agree with him. His diet consisted of bread, soup, the yolk of eggs, to which he sometimes added a little meat. This meagre regime lessened as he grew older, and it enabled him to live a century and more, a marvel to all who knew him.

Some of the superficial results Dr. O'Hanlon has reached are set out in a statement made to the Herald. They cover a wide experience over a varied field.

CENTENARIANS

"I believe," says Dr. O'Hanlon, "the time is coming when the average of human beings in civilized communities will be one hundred years and possibly one hundred and twenty years. There is no reason why human life should not be prolonged to that extent. Vital statistics of the present day show that persons live to a greater age now than they did fifteen or twenty years ago. Of course I do not refer to individual cases, but the general run of mankind in countries where civilization and advancement in science have had an opportunity to make their effects felt.

"Improved sanitary conditions, education, and the advances which have been made in surgery and in medicine are chiefly responsible for this. The tendency of medical age is toward prophylactics—that is, the ability to prevent disease. The researches in chemistry with the microscope make it possible to tell many weeks in advance the character of certain diseases that are developing in the human body, the condition of the blood revealing this and affording to physicians an opportunity to kill the germs before the health of the patient runs down and the disease develops. When the germs are killed or removed the patient goes on living with renewed health, until a trolley car or some other death dealing agency ends his life.

"In many autopsies which I have made on the bodies of big, healthy men I have found in the lungs indications that consumption had existed at some time in their lives but nature took a hand in their treatment and effected a cure by depositing lime or chalk in the diseased spot. That put an end to consumption in the men's bodies. The building up of a diseased lung with chalk is nature's way of bringing about a cure. If man knew as much about it as nature dies he could prolong life without difficulty.

SEEK PREVENTIVE FOR PNEUMONIA.

"There can be no doubt that in time preventives will be found for many diseases for which there now seems to be no cure.

"Improved sanitary laws, aseptic methods and the great knowledge gained in surgery and in medicine have saved the lives of hundreds of thousands of persons within the last quarter of a century. The forward movement in the direction of additional knowledge of how to combat diseases and ills to which man is subjected is bound not only to keep down the average death rate, but will tend to insure to people, who observe the ordinary laws of health many additional years of life, which should in the majority of cases, I am convinced extend to one hundred years and even more.

"Of course, if a man abuses himself, either by drink, overwork, loss of sleep or in the many other ways that nature will not countenance without compelling the individual who transgresses its laws to pay the penalty, there is every probability that he will be deprived of many years of life.

"I fully agree with that authority who declared that man can prolong life by sleep. If a man has $2,000 and spends only $1,000 in one thousand days, he will have a reserve fund of $1,000 to fall back upon, and so it is with the man who does not force nature to get along with less sleep than is intended should be the case.

"Every man who does not take at least eight hours of sleep out of every twenty-four is robbing himself of just that much vital energy. The man who in the future will live to be one hundred years old will take more than eight hours sleep every day of their lives. Man cannot burn the candle at both ends, because nature will not permit him to do it,

"The men who should realise this the most forcibly are those who go down into Wall street and remain there day after day and year after year, undergoing the most intense mental strain, denying themselves requisite mental and physical rest and recreation. They go there to make a few points in the market, and whether they do it or not they never fail to lose a few points in their health. Then some day the vital cord snaps suddenly and without warning, and another example is held up before Wall street men, which they, of course, will not heed until their own turns come and it is too late.

"There will always be a comparatively large death rate among certain classes, especially in the cities, because some persons perversely violate the laws of health, either through ignorance or because they possess naturally vicious and careless natures, and no matter what steps might be taken to provide them with means to observe the laws of health, would not avail themselves of such opportunities. With that class little can be done in the way of aiding them to attain longevity. If a man will not help himself, neither science nor his fellow-man can be expected to do much for him."

'Tis the Liver Rules the Body

AND YOU CAN SET THE LIVER RIGHT BY USING

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

"The governor of the organs of the body," is the way medical men describe the liver, because of the wide influence it exerts over these organs.

Once the liver grows sluggish and fails to filter the bile poisons from the blood, there arise complications which bring pain and disease.

The head aches.

You get bilious.

The tongue is coated.

Indigestion and stomach troubles arise.

Constipation and looseness of the bowels alternate.

There are pains under the shoulder blades.

The complexion gets sallow and muddy.

You get down-hearted and depressed and suffer from weakness and dizziness.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have a direct and specific action on the liver and completely remove the cause of these annoying symptoms.

They quicken the filtering process which is carried on by the liver, and by effecting a good flow of bile, aid digestion and keep the bowels regular.

Time is wasted in doctoring symptoms. Strike at the cause of trouble by setting the liver right.

The quickest and most certain way of doing this is by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills—the great regulator.

Mr. Jas. H. Hervey, baker, 641 George-st., Peterborough, Ont. states—"I was troubled very much with constipation and pains in the back. At times the pains were sharp like a stab with a knife and caused me great suffering.

"I heard of many being cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and decided to try them. I am pleased to say that they soon helped me, and I used them right along until cured. I never have pains in my back now and only occasionally take a pill in order to keep my bowels regular."

Health of Canadian Women

A Subject Much Discussed at Women's Clubs—The Future of a Country Depends on the Health of Its Women.

Miss Helena McKinnon Mrs. Anna McKay

At a large State Assembly of Mothers a prominent New York doctor told the 500 women present that healthy Canadian women were so rare as to be almost extinct.

This seems to be a sweeping statement of the condition of Canadian women. Yet how many do you know who are perfectly well and do not have some trouble arising from a derangement of the female organism which manifests itself in headaches, backaches, nervousness, that bearing-down feeling, painful or irregular menstruation, leucorrhoea, displacement of the uterus, ovarian trouble, indigestion or sleeplessness? There is a tried and true remedy for all these ailments. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored more Canadian women to health than all other remedies in the world. It regulates, strengthens and cures diseases of the female organism as nothing else can. For thirty years it has been curing the worst forms of female complaints.

Such testimony as the following should be convincing.

Mrs. Anna McKay of 236 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Being a mother of five children, I had had experience with the general troubles of my sex. I was lacerated when one of my children was born, and from that hour I date all of my afflictions. I found that within a few months my health was impaired, I had female weakness and serious inflammation and frequent flooding. I became weak and dizzy, but kept on my feet, dragging through my work without life or pleasure. A neighbor who had been helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound insisted that I take at least one bottle. I did so and felt so much better that I kept on the treatment and it made me a strong and well woman. The few dollars I spent for the medicine cannot begin to pay what it was worth to me."

Miss Helena McKinnon of Sand Bay, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I consider Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the best medicine in the world for a woman sick and weak from exhaustion, irregularities and overwork. I have found from personal experience that it is all and more than it is recommended to be. I only wish that every sick woman would try it, for it cured me of suppressed menstruation and irregularity, and has cured many of my friends of the same difficulty, in fact all who have used it have nothing but good to say of its efficacy. Please accept a grateful woman's thanks for all it has accomplished in my case."

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A light heart, a cheerful countenance, and all the charms of grace and beauty are dependent upon proper action of the bodily organs. You cannot look well unless you feel well.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice and medicine have restored thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

By the regular use of this preparation for a time I was completely cured of kidney disease."

His Dream Worth Thousands.

Andrew Sabel, twenty-one years old, employed in the Keystone flour mill at Nanticoke, some time ago in a dream saw an invention for separating foreign substances from grain just before it was ground. He told some friends and asked their assistance in making it, but they laughed at him. Preserving a clear conception of the invention in his mind, he went to work, built a model, got a patent on it last month and has now received an offer of $10,000 for the patent rights from a Massachusetts firm. The principle of the invention is magnetism. It removes foreign substances from the grain and averts accidents to the grinding machinery.

Deadly Absinth.

Statistics show a steadily continuing increase in the consumption of absinth in France. Between 1885 and 1892 there was an increase of 85,000 hectoliters. From 1892 only four years more were needed to add another 85,000 liters to the consumption. A recent experiment demonstrated that six drops of essence of absinth in three gills of water were as deadly to fish life as six drops of prussic acid in the same quantity of water.—London Globe.

A farmer had a narrow escape from being killed by a street car at the corner of Hunter and George-sts. this morning. He and a companion were driving west on Hunter-st. on a long sleigh and attempted to cut across a south bound car. He managed to turn his horses around out of the way but he and his companion were thrown out. The horses almost crashed through the Bank of Toronto window. Neither man was hurt, but both as well as many spectators of the incident received a bad scare.

SHAKESPEARIAN EVENING SPENT

Mr. J. Jeffries Interprets the Character of Macbeth.

ABLE REVIEW OF THE PLAY

Before St. Luke's Young Men's Guild—Different Stages of the Drama Outlined—Disposition of the Hero and the Influences that Surrounded Him.

A most instructive and profitable talk was given before the Young Men's Guild of St. Luke's church last night, when Mr. J. Jeffries, B.A., of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute teaching staff, spoke on "Macbeth."

He handled his subject in an admirable manner, and at the close was tendered a hearty vote of thanks by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt and Mr. J. W. Kelly.

Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., presided. Mrs. W. A. Turner rendered an excellent piano solo. Mr. Jos. Legg sang in good voice, "A Challenge for the King," and responded to an encore. Mr. J. R. Sproule also gave a vocal selection in fine style. There was a large and representative attendance, the Sunday school room being well filled.

Mr. Jeffries, in beginning, expressed his pleasure at being present. He touched upon the subject in hand at once and said that Shakespeare's career as an author extends over a period of about 24 years, 1588-1612. The turn of the century marked a turn in his mental history and authorship. About 1601 his genius was directed towards the creation of serious, dark, inimical comedy, and deep, harrowing tragedies. This condition of mind lasted until about 1608. During these years he devoted himself to the analysis of evil triumphant over good. Malignant passions and heinous crimes formed his subjects. He depicted man at war with destiny, breaking the bonds of nature, only to be at last overwhelmed by defeat and ruined. To this period belong Hamlet, Othello, Lear, Macbeth, Coriolanus and Timon. We are glad, however, that this attitude of the poet changed to a brighter and more cheerful one. He came out of the depths to walk the heights. His last dramas set forth the victories of good over evil. Benignant feelings and good and virtuous acts formed their subjects. Man was working now in harmony with destiny, knitting together human bonds and obtaining the rewards of goodness and love. Here belong Cymbeline, The Tempest, and the Winter's Tale

WHEN PLAY WAS WRITTEN.

Macbeth was probably written in 1606. It is a drama of man at odds with fate, yielding to evil propensities within and evil influences without, committing sin after sin, until at last engulfed in the maelstrom of retribution Nemesis had in store for him. The scenes are laid in Scotland in the 11th century. Duncan is —King—a gentle, generous, and amiable, but weak, impulsive and guileless man. Macbeth is his cousin and aspires to the throne. At the commencement of the play Scotland is engaged in war against native rebels and foreign foes. Macbeth is leader of the King's forces and is assisted by Banquo. In the conduct of the war he proves himself possessed of dauntless courage, unwearied energy and experienced resourcefulness. The war is brought to a speedy and successful close by Macbeth. King Duncan, under the spell of elation at this announcement, sends messengers to meet and reward Macbeth with the new title of Thane of Cawdor. But before he receives this new honor, while on his way to pay his respects to the King, he and his colleague, Banquo, are accosted by three weird sisters, or witches. They proclaim him Thane of Cawdor, and further promise that he is to become King. This promise reflects his guilty thoughts and echoes the sinful hopes he had already formed. When a short time later messengers arrive from the King and confirm the first prediction of the witches, he is still more excited. He resolves to murder the King and thus realize the second hope. But Macbeth has an extremely excitable imagination, and resolve to commit murder fills his mind with horrible fancies. He decides to wait until chance crowns him; but when he hears the King appoint his son Malcolm his successor, his hopes are dashed, and he sees that if his ambition is to be satisfied, it must be by foul means.

LADY MACBETH'S PRESENCE.

Lady Macbeth now appears on the scene. She is very devoted to her husband and anxious that his ambition to become King should be gratified. She is endowed with extraordinary will-power, quick perception and keen insight. The announcement that the King is to pay a visit to Macbeth's Castle suggests an opportunity for carrying out the secret, dark purpose her husband had on a former occasion made known to her. She appreciates the difficulty that will follow her husband's instability, irresolution and superstitious fear. But he desires the crown, though he may be too weak to take it. She decides to employ her firm nature in holding him in the path which he is anxious to walk in and to which he had committed her. She must apply her full force of character to sustaining his faltering will. To this end she appeals to the spirits "that tend on mortal thoughts" to unsex her. As a woman she fills with feminine repugnance to the bloody deed, which, nevertheless, her imperial will insists on. Her mental discipline and perfect self-control will be true to her in the struggle against her womanly sensibilities. With almost superhuman energy of will she plays the part of an unfeeling conscienceless being when her husband joins her at the castle. Without ado she opens the question of murder by declaring that it must be committed that night. She promises to assume all responsibility. But Macbeth's face is like "a book where men may read strange matters." His practical mind sees great difficulties in carrying out the crime, and foresees detection and punishment.

THE GAME OF MURDER.

To commit murder may be to suggest the same act to others against himself, murder is a game that two can play at. He wavers in his resolution. Lady Macbeth feigns anger and disgust. With an audacity of tongue that amazes her husband she charges him with cowardice, inconsistency and inconstancy. She unfolds to him the details of her plan. They are so cunningly devised that Macbeth sees success and yields again to temptation.

A time of waiting follows. Macbeth is helpless in suspense. He has no passive courage, no self-restraint. He is thrown into hallucination. He sees in fancy a blood stained dagger. He recovers a measure of composure and in part carries out the scheme proposed by his wife; but only in part. Lady Macbeth is obliged to complete the work, much to her dislike.

Mr. Jeffries took his audience through the succeeding stages of the drama; the discovery of the King's murderer; the killing of the two grooms; the flight of the King's two sons; the accession of Mabeth to the the throne; the plot against Banquo; his assassination; the flight of Macduff; the murder of the Macduff family; the visit paid to the witches; the arrival of an English army; Lady Macbeth's suicide, and Macbeth's death in battle by the hand of Macduff. The speaker pointed out the opposite effects that crime had upon the minds and subsequent lives of Macbeth and his lady. He does not believe that Macbeth's was a noble disposition dragged down by the influence of the coarser nature of his wife; nor does he think that the witches sowed the seed of murder in Macbeth's mind. In fact, his interpretation of the play differs in not a few points from the orthodox one. He supplemented his able and scholarly address by readings from the drama.

WALTER SAGER SEVERELY HURT

Fell Through Skylight of Summer Kitchen.

NEEDED PAINFUL OPERATION

Very Unfortunate Accident—Young Lad Had Just Recovered From an Attack of Diphtheria—He is Resting Easily.

Walter Sager, the 16 year old son of Mr. S. Sager, McDonnel-st., met with a very painful accident last evening. The boy was playing on the roof of the summer kitchen adjoining his father's house when he stepped on the sky-light and fell through to a second window about three feet below. The frame and glass of the window inflicted severe cuts, the rectum being seriously injured and rendering necessary a painful operation at Nicholls hospital.

The boy was found in his perilous condition shortly after the accident. Dr. Bradd, Dr. Carmichael and Dr. Young were called. The wound was such that many stitches were necessary. The boy is reported to be resting easily at the hospital to-day, and it is thought that no serious results will develop from the injury which is of a most unusual character.

The accident is the more unfortunate when it is considered that the boy had but recently recovered from a severe attack of diphtheria at St. Joseph's hospital. It is not so very long ago that his brother lost his sight through the explosion of a dynamite cartridge and he is now attending the school for the blind at Brantford.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Thomas Robinson, of the Union House, Gooderham, has returned home after visiting his mother and sisters here for a short time.

KINMOUNT CUT OFF FROM THE WORLD

Measures Adopted for Relief of Northern Village.

IN RECENT SNOW BLOCKADE

Belated Traveller Relates Some of His Experiences—An Impromptu Concert—How Railway Cleared away Huge Banks of Snow Banquet to Mr. Carnegie.

A returning traveller from the north tells of some incidents of the recent snow blockade which tied up the Midland lines.

Kinmount is on the Lindsay-Haliburton line, and about 43 miles north of Lindsay. After passing through the farm lands and beyond Fenelon Falls the surface of the country is broken up by rocky hills, sparsely covered with a growth of small pine and cedar. For many miles the rails follow the course of the Burnt River, a stream that is a torrent in spring and a peaceful rivulet in August days. At Kinmount there are several local industries, and it was at one time a place of considerable importance in the lumber trade. The village is the trading point for the people of the townships of Somerville, Dulton, Galway and part of Cavendish.

It is higher up than the section along the Ontario front, and the moisture laden clouds that meet the chilly north winds dump their loads of snow giving that part of the country first choice. Consequently the inhabitants are favored with snow falls that are seldom duplicated in lower parts of the Province.

All during the winter Kinmount has had its share. It is a lively memory in the village, that of the snow blockade of last winter, when for eight days communication with the outer world was cut off, and when on Friday of last week the weather settled down to shed snow. For a time during the afternoon the snow fell in a perfect sheet, so dense that objects a few feet away could not be seen.

All Friday night the storm howled and when Saturday morning broke the landscape showed the village snow bound to the doors. No one came into the village during the day. The snow, driven by the strong wind piled up in drifts. Men who were accustomed to move about in storms and stress of weather shook their heads and settled down to wait. The railroad line was blotted out, and could only be located by the poles of the telegraph line that stood sentinel along the route. In the village boys amused themselves by climbing to the roofs of the stores and leaping off into the drifts. Several attempts were made to take out teams but after a few minutes experience these were abandoned.

On Friday evening had been held the banquet to Mr. J. H. Carnegie, M. P. P., and a crowd of friends and supporters had gathered for the event. It was a big success, but the men from Galway and Cavendish, who had come across to join in the occasion, had to stay where they were. One adventurous spirit started out with a team and driver to go to Minden some 11 miles to the west. He started at two o'clock and wired back that he reached Minden after struggling and wallowing for nine hours in the snow.

About four miles from Kinmount is the junction of the Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa railway with the Haliburton line. The "I. B and O." as it is termed, does not snow up, as the line passing through the forest is protected to some extent and running east and west escapes the most of the drifting. Anyway, a lot of commercial men at work along this line, concluded that they had better get out while there was a chance. They gathered at the Junction and finally walked into Kinmount on Saturday. They were welcomed, for Mine Host Scott of the big Northern Hotel, has ample room, is a capital fellow, sets a good table and is a general favorite. The house filled up during Saturday and Saturday night. New arrivals struggling in had to tell the story of their escapes and to be fed and warmed back into comfort. An impromptu entertainment was gotten up and a programme run off and everyone enjoyed themselves.

Over the wires from Station-Agent Brendon, something was learned of the outside world, and of the blockade, and that when the snow ploughs had cleared the main line of the Midland, that the Haliburton line would be opened. The best that could be done was to start the plow from Lindsay on Sunday at two o'clock a. m. and it reached Kinmount at 6.30 p. m., driven by two engines and smothered in snow. Starting at Lindsay all the section men were picked up to help fight the drifts, and they were needed. One of the worst drifts was encountered at Cameron, above Lindsay, and it required a deal of bucking, shovelling and heaving to clear the line. The snow was packed fully 15 feet deep at this point. All along the line were huge drifts that had to be opened up. The plow reached Haliburton a little after nine o'clock with the crew thoroughly tired out. To keep the line open the plough was hitched to two fresh engines and sent south during the night and by morning the line was open for traffic and doing business at the same old stand

HIS CLOTHES DESTROYED

Drug Clerk's Uncomfortable Experience With Bottle of Sulphuric Acid.

Mr. Ed. Mahon, of Ormond & Walsh's drug store yesterday had an undesirable experience with sulphuric acid. He was filling a bottle for use at the fire hall, when the vessel broke and quite a large quantity of the acid was distributed over his clothes, the result being, of course, that they were entirely spoiled. It is fortunate that the chemical did not come in contact with his face or hands, in which case the consequences would have been very serious.

ENJOYABLE CONCERT

Given Under Auspices of the T. A. S. Band Last Evening.

A large audience was present at the concert given under the auspices of the T.A.S. band in the T.A.S. hall last evening. The programme was a varied and enjoyable one, although Miss Cline, of Lakefield and Miss Bryce, of Keene, who were to have taken part, were unable to be present on account of the impassable condition of the roads. Mr. J. Weir made a very acceptable chairman.

The T.A.S. band under the leadership of Mr. L. A. Hadley, was heard in two well rendered selections during the evening. This organization which is now twenty-two strong, has reached a very creditable state of efficiency. Their numbers, Mascotte and Light of Foot marches, were rendered in a musicianly manner and reflected great credit upon themselves and their leader, Mr. Hailey.

Miss Carrie White, always a favorite with Peterborough audiences, gave two recitations in her usual inimitable style. Both were rendered with spirit and expression. Her first number was "Yes, I Am Guilty," and for an encore she gave "A Queer Hospital." Her second selection was "Bisgah's Story" and her encore number "The Giggling Girl."

Mr. L. A. Hailey gave an excellent and enjoyable rendition of the clarionet solo "Serenade" and received much applause. Mrs. Morrow played the accompaniment sympathetically.

Mrs. Callender, of Norwood, was heard to advantage in the vocal selection "Awake." She is the possessor of a rich soprano voice and her number was greatly enjoyed. As an encore she gave "Sing on My Dens." in excellent voice.

A selection by the Harmony Orchestra was one of the pleasing features of the evening. The orchestra is composed of Messrs. Hailey, leader and clarionet, Ramsay and McPherson, violins, McDonough, cornet, Scott trombone and Oleson, piano.

Mr. J. Weir's solo, the "King of the Main" was well given and warmly received.

Miss Josephine Delaire contributed a delightful solo "The Sentinel Asleep" and for an encore gave "My Pretty Little Kickapo."

Mrs. Morrow and Miss Legree were the able accompanists of the evening.

AN INTERESTING TALK ON MONEY

Mr. John Crane Addressed All Saints' Guild.

CANADIAN SYSTEM EXPLAINED

Some Facts of Historical Importance—How the Banks Assist Enterprising Communities.

The members of All Saint's Young Men's Guild entertained the members of the congregation last evening in the Sabbath school. There was a good attendance and the principal feature of the evening—an address by Mr. John Crane, local manager of the Ontario bank, with regard to currency as applied to banking was very greatly enjoyed. A programme of vocal and instrumental numbers was contributed by Miss Ida Mulholland and Miss Charlotte English, Miss Marion Elliott and Master Will Allen. These numbers were well received. Mr. Poole, the President of the Guild, was in the chair.

ONTARIO BANKING SYSTEM.

Mr. Crane stated that it was quite impossible to give even a short talk on currency without realizing how closely it was connected with the wider and more comprehensive subject of banking in general. He expressed the opinion that the banking system in Ontario was undoubtedly the best possibly suited to the needs of the province and he explainplained that different conditions in countries made the adoption of one general and similar system the world over impossible. The United States did not use branch banks and the relation existing between the many hundreds of those institutions in that country partook more of the nature of individual independence. In Canada there were 35 banks, the branch system working like machinery and sensitively responsive. One feature of the banking system here, which was considered as placing it before that of the United States, was that by which the money from unenterprising sections was rendered available for the purpose of encouraging industry in other places. For instance in rural communities more money was deposited than was required to carry on industry. On the other hand, the money required to carry on business in Peterborough might be much larger than deposited. Under the present system it is far more possible in Ontario to make the transfer of finances as indicated than it is of the United States.

INTERESTING COMPARISON.

The speaker stated that there was ample room for interesting comparison between the present system and that of the Greeks, the similarity in some cases being remarkable. The prototype of the banking system was the temple which in many ways contributed in no small degree to the commerce of the ancient Greeks.

Discussing the definition of currency, which it was pointed out, was that which passes freely from hand to hand in the discharge of financial obligations, and was not questioned by the party receiving it or the party giving it, the speaker went into an able explanation of the relation between gold, the basis of currency and its representative paper money, of which there were two kinds, the convertible, which which could be immediately redeemed by gold, the standard; and the non-convertible, of which an example was found in the American silver certificate. The issue of notes was claimed by the Chinese 1,000 years before Christ. It probably was not generally known that in Canada, paper equivalent of money was used as early as 1685, the time of the French regime. The Intendant at that time could not pay his soldiers. France was bankrupt. Canada was a struggling country, and how to pay the soldiers was a problem. Taking some playing cards and cutting them in pieces, the Intendant converted them into "promises to pay," with the seal of France on the back, and for practically 30 years this was the only kind of money the people of this country had, to redeem which was one of the most troublesome questions the British had to deal with afterwards. The Bank of Montreal, the first joint stock institution of its kind in Canada was formed in 1817.

REDEMPTION DAY.

Mr. Crane touched upon some peculiarities in the manufacture of the paper used for money, especially that of the American bill, which was specially prepared, its distinguishing peculiarity being a small silk thread discernible on close examination. He explained what is known as the day of redemption. Every morning each bank sends to the others all the bills which it received the day before belonging to those banks, the result being that the bills are very carefully scrutinized and if any are torn, mutilated or are counterfeit they are retained. All bills must have two signatures, and it is necessary that one of those names be signed by hand. The one, two and four dollar bills were issued by the Government of Canada. Since 1871 the banks have not been allowed to issue small bills, that is none under five dollars. The Government issue stands as the necessary legal tender, money that is unquestionably good, such as is required in the payment of a lawsuit or other similar purpose. The restricted issue of these bills by the Government was $25,000,000 of which 25 per cent. must be kept on hand. A bank was autorized to issue bills to the extent of its paid up capital, and the speaker went into a careful explanation of the fact that for every dollar issued the holder had some eight dollars security.

The speaker in conclusion held for the Canadian bill system an elasticity which tended more to the interests of the country, than that in vogue in the United States. It was a clear and able exposition of a subject which the general public are prone to regard all too carelessly.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mr. W. Reid and seconded by Mr. Jas. McLaren and heartily approved by the audience. Rev. Mr. Major afterwards delivered a short address expressive of appreciation. Refreshments were served at the close of the programme.

Bijou Comedy Co. Drew Large Crowd—Ton of Coal to be Given Away.

Bradburn's opera house was packed to the doors last night to hear the production of Fogg's Ferry," by H. Wilmot Young's Bijou Comedy Co. The drama was well produced, the company being above the average repertoire troup, each performer playing his or her part with professional skill. The specialties, which were given between acts, were of a high order and received well merited applause. Miss Reynolds' songs and acrobatic work were really wonderful and the audience were loth to allow her to leave the stage. Ed. Paull's musical selections on different instruments also gained for him very hearty applause. Others doing specialties were William Dyer, Willie Conlin, Ralph Wordly and Edward Stauffer, all of whom pleased their hearers greatly. "Under Two Flags" will be presented to-night by the same able and popular Co. The engagement in Peterborough lasts the week, with an entire change of programme each night and a Wednesday afternoon matinee.

A feature on Saturday night is the giving away of a ton of coal. Each one entering the hall will be given, each evening, a card upon which the person writes his or her name. These cards are placed in a box and shuffled. AYLESWORTH TO BE CALLED.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Announces He Is to Be Made a Minister—To Check the White Plague.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—In the House yesterday, R. L. Borden asked if Mr. Aylesworth was still a member of the Government.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that shortly before the election last fall he had asked Mr. Aylesworth to became member of the Cabinet without portfolio. Mr. Aylesworth agreed and entered into the Federal electoral contest as a candidate in Durham, but was not elected. He had not, however, been sworn in as a member of the Cabinet before the election. After the election he was asked again to enter the Cabinet, but his answer was that, under the circumstances, he did not desire to do so. Sir Wilfrid said that he hoped, however, that at a later date, Mr. Aylesworth would become a member of the cabinet.

Independent Phone Companies.

Mr. Boyce of Algoma moved for correspondence in connection with the telephone applications of Port Arthur and Fort William, to have access to railway stations.

W. F. Maclean said the decision given by the Railway Commission was very unsatisfactory, as he argued at some length that the right should be given independent telephone companies to enter railway stations.

Sir William Mulock explained that the Railway Commission had upheld the rights of independent telephone companies to gain access to railway stations, but it was not agreed on the question of compensation. Before the law was amended, it would be necessary to know the effect of the present law. The resolution passed.

To Check the White Plague.

George H. Perley moved a resolution declaring that, "in the opinion of this House, the time has arrived when Parliament should take some active steps to lessen the widespread suffering and great mortality among the people of Canada, caused by the various forms of tuberculosis."

Mr. Perley said that during 1903 the number of deaths in Ontario and Quebec was 60,543, in Quebec 2,943 had died of consumption and 2,017 from all other contagious diseases; in Ontario there were 2,728 deaths from consumption and 1,960 from all other contagious diseases. On this basis there were probably 8,000 deaths from consumption in the Dominion this year, or about 10 per cent. of the total deaths; or if all deaths from consumption had been recorded, the percentage would have been one-eighth to one-sixth.

Besides this, it was estimated that between 30,000 and 40,000 were affected with consumption, over one-tenth of whom were unfitted for work, so that their families were in a measure dependent upon the public purse.

Those who participated in the discussion were, on the whole, favorable to the Dominion Parliament taking some action. The Minister of Agriculture, though sympathetic, raised the point that the public health was a question beyond the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament. It was a question that belonged to the Provinces.

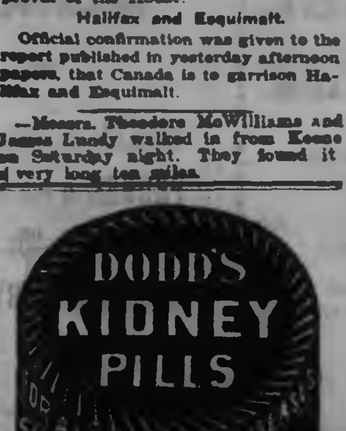
R. L. Borden referred to the ravages of consumption, and said if there were any means by which Parliament could minimise or wipe out the scourge it should not hesitate to do so. He thought Parliament had a right to deal with the question. It was not doing its duty in sitting idle while private individuals did all the work.

The resolution passed. Sir William Mulock stating that there was no reason why it should not receive the approval of the House.

Halifax and Esquimalt.

Official confirmation was given to the report published in yesterday afternoon papers, that Canada is to garrison Halifax and Esquimalt.

—Messrs. Theodore McWilliams and James Lundy walked in from Keene on Saturday night. They found it a very long ten miles.



DEMANDS OF STUDENTS

Resolutions of First Joint Meeting Ever Authorized.

Russian Students Suspend Studies, Tear Up Czar's Portrait and Shout for Freedom—Scholars, Professors and Directors Hold Rousing Meeting in St. Petersburg—Decide to Close Universities Till Fall.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 21.—With the decision of the student body of the University of St. Petersburg yesterday to suspend studies for the remainder of the university year, almost the whole educational system of Russia has entered upon a period of stagnation. Other universities, gymnasia and even grammar schools already were on strike, and the military throughout the Empire has been obliged to be resorted to to restrain school boys of tender years, who are joining the general movement.

The meeting of 3,000 St. Petersburg students, besides voting solidly to suspend studies until Sept. 1, adopted a set of political resolutions demanding the formation of a constituent assembly, and characterizing the proposed summoning of the Zemsky Sobor as inadequate for the emergency. A large faction voted to stop the war. A strong revolutionary feeling was manifested, the red flag was waved, and the Marseillaise and other revolutionary songs were chanted. A large portrait of the Emperor was torn in strips. The police did not interfere.

Strong forces of Poles and Cossacks had been posted outside the building to make an expected street demonstration, but none occurred. Many professors and instructors in the university were present, most of whom were in full sympathy with its objects. Two tutors and a small number of students who wished to obtain their diplomas this year, made an ineffectual attempt to stem the general tide.

Closed Till Fall.

The first joint meeting of students, professors and directors ever authorized assembled at noon yesterday to discuss the question of joining the general strike inaugurated by similar institutions in Russia, and decided to close the university till fall. Over 4,000 students attended, but the room would not hold one-fifth of that number. Strong speeches were delivered in support of the demand for freedom of speech, conscience and the press, and for the convocation of a national assembly and the professors were unable to stem the storm.

Still more extreme addresses were delivered at overflow meetings, and the foreign newspaper correspondents present were amazed at their incendiary character. Wild scenes followed, the students singing the Russian Marseillaise, which begins, "You fell victims to love of your country." A red flag was unfurled, on which was written: "Hail to the constituent assembly."

Resolutions Passed.

After adopting a set of strong resolutions, the student body, by an almost unanimous vote, decided to suspend all university work till September. The resolutions demanded:

A constituent assembly on the basis of universal suffrage and under conditions of liberty of speech, of the press and of association and the freedom of laborers to strike.

Second: Full amnesty for religious and political offenders.

Third: Autonomy for each part of the country, not of Russian nationality.

In conclusion, the resolutions call on every self-respecting citizen to struggle for the achievement of the above aims.

After the meeting broke up a band of the more violent students tore up the Emperor's portrait, stripped and demolished the frame and carried off bits of canvas and gilding as souvenirs.

Czar Still Obdurate.

There is no confirmation of the report that the Emperor Nicholas has decided to issue a decree on March 4, convening the Zemsky Sobor. In well-informed circles here it is believed that the question of convoking of this ancient form of land parliament has not yet been decided.

"Yes. Oh, many times he speaks of miler. I speaks of San Remo. This—this Bawdsey ask me of the blue domino—of the holly"—

"Of the murder, in fact."

"It is quite so, my friend. Of the murder of your father."

"What?" George started from his seat. "Did he know that the man who was murdered at San Remo was my father?"

"Yes, and that it was difficult about the marriages."

"That also. He appears to know the whole story. And he mentioned Lord Derrington. That is how he comes to be acquainted with these facts. A spy—Derrington is employing him. And the man is boarding in Amelia square." George struck his hands together. "By Jove, it's a conspiracy, and I never knew anything!"

"I do not wish you to have the marriages right, George," said Lola, with a pout. "If you are as what you are, then you will marry me. She will not be madame."

"Did Bawdsey tell you the name of the lady?"

"No. But he will tell. But she is a well born one, and I am of the gutter. But I love you—ah, yes, I love you!" She threw her arms round him. "Be still Brendons, and not miler, and I am yours."

"No, no!" George took her arms from his neck and spoke more soberly. "Lola, hold your tongue about what you have told me, and I'll see you again. If you speak, I see you no more."

"I will be silent," she said as Brendon put on his coat. "But you are cruel, wicked. You shall never be miler, never!"

CHAPTER IX.

"AN invitation—an invitation to dinner. By Jove, I never thought I'd get that far. The Honorable Mrs. Ward too. Hurrah!"

Leonard Train made these remarks over a letter which had come by the morning post. It was a delicate perfumed friendly note, begging dear Mr. Train to come to dinner the next evening without ceremony. "I have just learned that your dear mother was at school with me," wrote Mrs. Ward in her most gushing style. "So you will see why I write informally."

To account for Train's exuberant joy, which seemed out of all proportion to its reason, it must be explained that, notwithstanding his money and what he regarded as his talents, he had never managed to enter the fashionable world. As he was as vain as a peacock and anxious to shine and be admired among people worth knowing, this was a great grief to him. George took him to several houses, but Leonard did not seem to be a success, for after one visit he was never asked again, although he left cards assiduously. The desire of his life was to be fashionable; hence his delight at the letter.

"Of course I'll go," soliloquised Leonard when calmer. "I wonder if George will be there. He loves that Ward girl, so he might. Mrs. Ward does not approve of the match, so he might not. I wonder if there is a regular engagement. If not I might have a shot myself. The Honorable Mrs. Train—no, that would be the mother."

It will be seen that Leonard was not very faithful to his absent friend, but the fact is that Train was less devoted to Brendon than he had been. The episode of Amelia square made him fight rather shy of George. The story of the marriage was shady, and in some way—Leonard couldn't exactly explain how—seemed to be connected with the murder of Mrs. Jersey. Moreover, Leonard knew something which he had not mentioned to Brendon and would not have mentioned for the fashionable world. However, he had said nothing about George's history and so far had kept faith. But Brendon saw that Leonard was no longer so pleased to see him as formerly. He therefore avoided the fat young man, and Leonard did not seem to mind the avoidance.

Leonard never intended to speak, being weak, but honorable in his own foolish way. But when Mrs. Ward's invitation came he walked blindfolded into a trap set by that clever little woman. She asked Train to dinner, not because she had known his mother—although that was true enough—but for the simple reason that she wished to hear what he knew about the Amelia square tragedy. Brendon had told her much, but it was probable that Train, being a weak idiot in the hands of a pretty woman like herself, would tell her more. Mrs. Ward wished to find some scandal smirching George, that she might induce Dorothy to break the engagement. She would have utilised the tales about Lola and Brendon, but she was not sure of her ground in this particular direction, and, moreover, having seen the Spanish dancer, feared lest so passionate a woman should make an open scandal. It was the aim of Mrs. Ward's life to do wrong things and to avoid troubles arising from them. Therefore she, for the time being, put Lola on the shelf and arranged in her own scheming mind to make use of Leonard.

When Leonard entered the drawing room he was welcomed by Dorothy, who told him that Mrs. Ward would be down shortly. "It is only a small dinner, Mr. Train," she said. "Mr. Vane is coming; no one else."

"I expected to find my friend Brendon here," said Leonard, thinking how beautiful she looked.

"No. Mr. Brendon is very busy at the present time with his book. He would have come otherwise."

"All things should give way where a lady is concerned," said Train gallantly.

Miss Ward laughed. She had heard much of Train from Brendon and thought him a kindly but foolish young man. "I am not a woman of that sort, Mr. Train. I have no desire that a man should neglect his work for frivolity. You are a great friend of Mr. Brendon?"

"The greatest he has."

"And he was stopping with you in the house where that tragedy took place. He told me about it."

Train secretly wished that George had held his tongue on this particular point, as he had his own reasons for not wishing to be questioned. With the very best intentions as to holding his tongue, he knew his weakness for babbling well enough and found it easier to abstain from talking altogether than to be temperate in speech. "Brendon certainly stopped with me," he said reservedly, "but we were sound asleep when the murder took place. Neither of us heard anything. After the inquest we both returned to the west end."

"It was a most unpleasant experience," said Dorothy thoughtfully.

"Very," assented Train, wiping his face. "I shall never go in search of types again."

"You can find amusing types in the west end," remarked Dorothy in a low voice. "Here is one."

The young man who entered the room was a small, attenuated, precise atom of a creature, immaculately dressed and with a rather shrill voice. He answered to the name of the Hon. Walter Vane and was the cousin of Brendon, although he did not know of the relationship. But Dorothy and Train both knew and compared Vane's physique disadvantageously with that of Brendon.

Lord Derrington, who was a bluff old giant of the country squire type, sneered at his degenerate descendant. All the same he would not replace him by George, who was a man in looks and tastes after the old lord's own heart.

"Mr. Train—Mr. Vane," said Dorothy, introducing the two.

Vane stared and muttered something about "pleasure." Leonard caught no other word. He then continued his conversation with Miss Ward. "I sneezed twice at the Merry Music hall the other night."

"That is where Velez dances," said Leonard, determined to speak.

Vane stared again, and it was Dorothy who answered. "My mother went to see her and says she is a most extraordinary dancer."

"I saw your friend Brendon at the hall, Miss Ward—the writing man, you know," said Vane; "a fine looking chap, but sulky."

"The best man in the world," said Leonard, whereupon Dorothy gave him an approving look. She wondered what Vane would say did he know that the man he criticised so freely was his cousin and the legitimate heir to the Derrington title.

"Well, he has his larks like every one else. They say he is sweet on the dancer."

"Mr. Vane!" cried Dorothy, the blood rushing to her face.

"Well, good people," cried Mrs. Ward, entering the room at this very opportune moment, "are you all here? Mr. Vane, I am pleased. Mr. Train, how good of you to come! Ah," Mrs. Ward sighed, "you have your dear mother's eyes, and lovely eyes they were!"

Having slipped in this compliment to put Leonard at his ease and throw him off his guard, Mrs. Ward delivered him to Dorothy and took Vane into a shady corner. "Dinner will be ready soon," she said, fanning herself, although it was a cold winter's night. "I hope you are hungry, Mr. Vane."

"I was," admitted her guest, "but I have to nurse my appetite carefully, you know, Mrs. Ward, and I am rather put out."

"Not by Mr. Train, I hope. He is a nice fellow, really, very nice, with money made out of pigs or whisky or something," said Mrs. Ward vaguely, for she was not certain. "What did he say?"

"He said nothing, but Miss Ward did."

Mrs. Ward shrugged. "Oh, well, you know, Dorothy has such odd ideas and all that sort of thing. I suppose it was something about books, or philosophies, or grammar, or something—enough to spoil any one's appetite, I'm sure."

"No. But I mentioned that Brendon—you know, the writing fellow"—

"Yes, I know," said Mrs. Ward viciously and at once on the alert.

"Well, I said that it was rumored he was sweet on Lola Velez, and Miss Ward fired up. Is she so great a friend of his as all that?"

To be continued.

—Serious reports of stock damage from the recent prolonged cold are persistently circulated in the ranch country of Central Alberta. Ranchers disagree as to the proportion of loss, but some insist that it will be very heavy. Much stock was carried over last fall, because of low prices. This has increased the loss.

SHOOTS WIFE AND SELF

Toronto Man First Hand in a Tragedy At Roseneath.

In Fit of Drunken Frenzy, W. H. Blackwell, at Some Fancied Wrong, Fired a Bullet Into His Wife's Cheek, and Then Inflicted a Serious Wound in His Neck With the Same Weapon—Has Brother in Toronto.

Cobourg, Feb. 21.—Roseneath, a small village back of Cobourg, was the scene of a serious shooting affray on Sunday evening. An eye specialist named Blackwell, who has been doing a big business throughout the back townships, in a fit of drunken frenzy at some fancied wrong, deliberately shot his wife and then turned the weapon upon himself.

The Blackwells have been making their home at the Commercial Hotel, Roseneath, and, according to all reports, have always lived on the happiest terms. The shooting occurred about 8 o'clock Sunday evening and enquiry into the cause of the noise by another boarder was greeted by Blackwell, with a smoking revolver in his hand, declaring that he would blow his enquirer's brains out, too. He then shot himself in the neck, inflicting a serious wound.

Mrs. Blackwell's injuries are not so serious, the bullet having lodged in the cheek. Blackwell originally hails from Toronto, where he has relatives among the higher circles. No legal action has yet been taken, as the self-inflicted wounds may result fatally.

Were on Good Terms.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—Blackwell has a brother living at 24 1-2 Scollard Street, who says the wounded man went east last week, his wife joining him on Saturday. They were on good terms, and he could not imagine what could have led up to the tragedy.

FIRE BURNS BOSTON PIERS.

At 2.30 Blaze Unchecked and Lives May Have Been Lost.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 21.—A fire entailing immense losses broke out on Pier 4 of the Hoosick Tunnel Docks, Charlestown, at 1.30 o'clock this morning.

The flames spread with startling rapidity, communicating soon after with the Furness-Leyland Line steamer Philadelphia, which was tied alongside the pier, and in a few moments was in flames from stem to stern. Captain Dickenson and his crew of 40 men had a narrow escape, if, indeed, all were saved. It was feared this morning that two of the sailors have been lost.

When the flames were discovered most of the crew jumped overboard. Capt. Dickenson himself hung by a rope over the boat's side until he was assured that no one remained on board.

From the Philadelphia, the flames jumped over to the steamer Dalton Hall of the Antwerp Line, which was soon aflame. It is thought that the crew of the Dalton Hall escaped.

At 2.30 o'clock this mornig the flames were apparently unchecked.

PHYSICIANS EVERYWHERE

Know the Value of Pyramid Pile Cure.

Gratitude alone prompts me to testify to the efficacy of Pyramid Pile Cure. Last March I bought a dollar package at the drug store, which cured me of bleeding piles, and I was a sufferer from them for eight years; but I had not been troubled with them since, until last September, when I gave birth to a baby girl, and after that I had a very severe case of protruding piles, which a trained nurse said was the worst case she ever saw, and my doctor told me to get Pyramid Pile Cure again, which I did and was completely cured in three days. I have not had piles of any kind since, and it is all owing to this wonderful remedy. My nurse took a box, which I was glad to be able to give her, for I know she will be able to help lots of suffering people whom I could never see or know.

"I recommend 'Pyramids' whenever I know of any one suffering as I did. It gives me great pleasure to be able to say I am entirely cured, which my doctor says is true. I say God Bless Pyramid Pile Cure." From a former great sufferer, Mrs. F. Ancott, 1206 Unity-st., Frankford, Philadelphia, Pa.

This remedy, which is sold by druggists generally, in fifty cent and dollar packages, is in a suppository form, is applied directly to the parts affected and performs its work quietly and painlessly. Its value is evidenced by the testimony given above, and we urge all sufferers to buy a package now and give it a trial to-night. Accept no substitutes and remember that there is no remedy "just as good." A little book on the Cause and Cure of Piles is published by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., and will be sent free to any address.

THE EMPIRE'S BURDEN

How the Dominion of Canada Takes a Share Therein.

Government of Canada Has Agreed to Maintain and Pay for the Imperial Defences at Halifax and Esquimalt—Means an Expenditure by the Dominion of $2,000,000 Annually—The Order Passed on Saturday.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—On July 1st next the Canadian Government will assume control of the fortifications at Halifax and Esquimalt. Negotiations between the Canadian and Imperial Governments have been in progress for some time past with the result stated above. The Imperial authorities would have preferred from Canada a yearly contribution of about $250,000, and to have themselves retained control of the fortifications. But the Canadian Government insisted upon having control of the expenditure of their own money, and at last the home authorities acceded to their wishes. On Saturday another stage in the matter was reached, when an order in Council was passed, specifying the terms and conditions upon which the transfer will be made.

Cost Probably $2,000,000.

The change marks a further step in the progress of Canada towards nationhood. The cost to Canada will probably not be much less than $2,000,000. The maintenance of the Halifax fortifications will require the greater part of this sum.

The present garrison at Halifax includes the 5th Battalion Royal Garrison Regiment, Companies Nos 18 and 46 Royal Engineers, No. 103 Company Royal Garrison Artillery, and Companies of the Army Service Corps and Army Ordinance Corps.

Halifax Artillery Officers.

The artillery officers are: Lieut.-Col. R. B. Anderson, Capt. G. T. C. Dwyer, Adjutant; Captain H. W. Goyer, instructor in gunnery; Major R. C. Stevenson, Capts F. M. Rickard, S.F. Alderson, Lieuts. W. A. Edmeades, M. Meares, W. F. M. Bagshaw, Second Lieutenant D. P. Gilbert. At Esquimalt there is stationed No. 52 Company Royal Garrison Artillery and 48 Company Royal Engineers, and a half of No. 44 Company Royal Engineers. The total force at Halifax aggregates about 2,000 men, and at Esquimalt some 400. The officers of artillery at Esquimalt are: Major C. E. English, Capts. R. L. Muspratt, — Williams and J. E. H. Cockburn, Lieuts. J. A. Geary, H. H. Fall, P. Elliston, W. R. Thompson.

The Force Necessary.

The Imperial Government will likely name what force it will be necessary for Canada to maintain at both points. There will undoubtedly be a regiment of infantry at Halifax and probably at Esquimalt also, as well as engineers and garrison artillery. The Imperial troops will be withdrawn gradually so as to permit their places being taken by trained Canadian soldiers. The cost to Canada of the third special service battalion, which was maintained for over twelve months at Halifax, was under $360,000. For some years past, Canada has devoted in the neighborhood of $120,000 a year towards the Esquimalt defences.

Opportunities for Promotion.

The assumption of the fortifications means that a number of important military appointments will be at the disposal of the Canadian Government. General Sir Charles Parsons, head of the Imperial forces in Canada, will withdraw his staff. Whether he will be replaced by a Canadian officer of the same rank is not certain. Sir Frederick Borden will make a full statement on the matter at an early date.

Confirmed in the House.

Official confirmation was given in the House last night to the report published in the afternoon papers, that Canada is to garrison Esquimalt and Halifax.

Col. Sam Hughes called the attention of the government to the report.

"I do not know," he said, "whether the article is inspired or not, especially the last clause of it. As far as I am personally concerned, I would be very sorry that Great Britain should so far forget her duties to the Empire as to surrender Halifax and Esquimalt, and, secondly, I would say that if Canada is to contribute to Imperial defence, (and I trust at no far distant day she will) in place of garrisoning Halifax and Esquimalt, she may be found garrisoning Portsmouth, Gibraltar, Malta, and other places, and we will contribute our fair share towards the defence of the Empire."

Article Not Inspired.

Sir Frederick Borden denied that the article was inspired. It was true, he said, that Canada a short time ago renewed the offer which was made to the Imperial Government in 1902, at the time of the Colonial Conference, to relieve the mother country from all expenditure in maintaining the garrisons at Halifax and Esquimalt, and that the offer had been gladly accepted by the Imperial authorities. Correspondence was now going on, and negotiations were pending, by which the transfer could be carried out. The principles upon which this transfer is to be made are these:

Nature of the Transfer.

First, that the Dominion Government will bear all the expenditure connected with maintaining them. In 1902, said Sir Frederick, it was stated in general terms—and there was no doubt as to the meaning—that, while Canada was not able to accept the suggestions of the Imperial Government, the War Office and the Admiralty, particularly as to the method by which Canada would aid in the defence of the Empire, the Government and people of Canada would be desirous of relieving the British taxpayer, so far as that could possibly be done.

Sir Frederick said he thought Col. Hughes was differing from the views of a large majority of the people of Canada. Col. Hughes, while he was not willing to take over the expenditure in connection with the garrisons at Halifax and Esquimalt, wished to send troops to Malta and other places outside of the country.

"Charity begins at home," said Sir Frederick. "Let us bear our own responsibilities within our own borders first."

Mr. Borden's Question.

"Will these two ports—Halifax and Esquimalt" asked R. L. Borden, "be maintained in the same state of efficiency as they have been in the past, so far as the fortifications are concerned?"

"Probably so," was the minister's answer.

Mr. Borden said: "It had been suggested that the main reason for maintaining the defences, which exist there at the present time, is the fact that Halifax is a naval base for the North Atlantic Squadron. If it was not to be a naval base in the future, would that modify the attitude of the government in regard to these fortifications?"

Sir Frederick replied that, so far as the negotiations had gone, there was no indication of any intention on the part of the British Government to abandon Halifax as a naval base.

"But have they not dismantled the dockyard?" Mr. Borden enquired.

"Well, they have removed some men from there," answered the minister, "but I do not think they have dismantled it in that sense. I think it is to be continued as a naval base."

Commends Canada's Action.

London, Feb. 21.—(C. A. P.)—The Morning Post, commenting on the taking over of the charge of Esquimalt and Halifax by the Canadian Government, says: "It is a commendable product of the realization of her growing strength, and the wish to take a proper footing in the commonwealth of the Empire."

Referring to the importance of Halifax in the contingency of war with the United States, The Post says, it is vital to ask what guarantees the Imperial Government are taking that the present standard of defence, both in personnel and material, will be fully maintained on the transfer of the fortress to the Canadian authorities.

Though expressing no desire to belittle the fighting qualities displayed by Canadians in South Africa, The Post says the Dominion Government, with commendable frankness, has shown by its yearly publications that the Canadian forces as a whole are lamentably deficient in training, organization and administration, and that their system of administration has far more regard to political considerations than preparation for war.

The Post thinks it is to be regretted that the Imperial tie should be dissevered by the removal of the Imperial troops from Canadian soil. It thinks our aim should be not to encourage the colonies to build up separate armies and navies, but rather to encourage the blending of British and Colonial troops into one great Imperial force for the protection of the Empire as a whole.

Nova Scotia's Blockade.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 21.—It is now apparent that the snow blockade will result seriously to the Province of Nova Scotia. Passenger trains in some parts are moving irregularly, whilst, in other sections, not a wheel is turning. Everywhere freight trains are stalled, and in many cases will have to remain so for weeks. In Hants County, the rails of the Dominion Atlantic Railway are covered with ice, and the railway officials have abandoned the work of clearing the road. The liability of a coal famine is very serious. Already several large concerns in Windsor have been compelled to close down in consequence of shortage of fuel. Mails are stalled everywhere.

G. T. R. Telegraphers Win.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—The award of the board of arbitration to settle the differences between the Grand Trunk Railway Company and its telegraphers on three stated points, was made public last night. The telegraphers win. It is not a unanimous decision, G. F. Shepley, K. C., who represented the company on the board, agreeing with his colleagues only on that point which is decided favorably to the G. T. R. J. Harvey Hall, for the telegraphers, and Hon. Justice Teetzel, the third arbitrator, however, as being the majority, bring to an end a long period of dissatisfaction and disagreement between the masters and men.

AT FIRST GLANCE.

It Would Appear That Local Remedies Would be Best for Cure of Catarrh.

It would seem at first glance that catarrh being a disease of the mucous membrane that salves, sprays, etc. being applied directly to the nose and throat, would be the most rational treatment but this has been proven not to be true.

The mucous membrane is made and repaired from the blood and catarrh is a blood disease and any remedy to make a permanent cure must act on the blood and when the blood is purified from catarrhal poison, the secretions from the mucous membrane will become natural and healthy.

In this climate thousands of people are scarcely ever free from some form of catarrh; it gets better at times but each winter becomes gradually deeper seated and after a time the sufferer resigns himself to it as if it were a necessary evil.

Catarrh cures are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but are nearly (all as inconvenient and ineffective as to render their use a nuisance nearly as annoying as catarrh itself; anyone who has used douches, sprays and powders will bear witness to their inconvenience and failure to cure.

There are a number of excellent internal remedies for catarrh, but probably the best and certainly the safest is a new remedy, composed of Red Gum, Blood Root and similar antiseptic remedies and other valuable catarrh specifics.

This remedy is in tablet form, pleasant to the taste and sold by the druggists under the name of Stewart's Catarrh Tablets, and anyone suffering from catarrh may use these tablets with absolute assurance that they contain no cocaine, opiate nor any poisonous mineral whatever.

A leading druggist in Albany speaking of catarrh cures says, "I have sold various catarrh cures for years but have never sold any which gave such general satisfaction as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. They contain in a pleasant, concentrated form all the best and latest catarrh remedies, and catarrh sufferers who have used douches, sprays and salves, have been astonished at the quick relief and permanent results obtained after a week's use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets." All druggists sell full sized packages for fifty cents.

TORONTO JUNCTION LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were light, owing to snow blockade on the different branches of the railways. The total receipts were 24 carloads, composed of 413 cattle, 24 sheep, 213 hogs and 1 calves.

Prices ranged from $4.40 to $4.85, with one load at $4.90 per cwt.; the bulk sold at $4.50 to $4.75; export bulls sold at $3 to $3.75 per cwt.

Not many real choice butchers' cattle were on sale; in fact, there was not one straight load of choice butchers' heifers offered, nearly all being mixed loads. Picked lots of the best offered sold at $4.25 to $4.40, and two very choice heifers were reported as selling at $4.50; fair to good mixed loads sold at $3.75 to $4.15; common at $3.25 to $3.50; rough and inferior at $2.50 to $3.

One lot of choice lambs, 25 in number, 100 lbs. each, sold at $6.75 per cwt.

H. P. Kennedy reported the hog market as being a little firmer than at the close of last week. Selects sold at $5.00 to $5.50, and lights and fats at $5.25 per cwt.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Feb. 20.—Cable advices to-day from Liverpool and London came weak and noted a decline in prices for cattle of ½c to 1c per lb., owing to continued heavy supplies and a limited demand. The receipts in this market were 500 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 100 calves and 300 hogs. The feature of the trade was the continued strength in the market for hogs, and prices advanced 75c per hundred lbs., owing to the scarcity and the good demand for the same from packers. Sales of selected lots were made at $6.40 per 100 lbs., fed and watered, which is equivalent to $6.75 weighed off cars. In cattle, the feeling was firmer owing to the smaller run. The demand was fair and a better trade was done, the market being well cleaned up. Choice sold at 4½c to 5c; good, 4c to 4½c; fair, 3½c to 3¾c; common, 2½c to 3c, and inferior 1½c to 2½c. Sheep and lambs quiet but firm. Sheep sold at 3½c to 4c; lambs, 4½c to 5½c; calves brought $2 to $5 each.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

T.A.S. for Fenelon Falls.

The T.A.S. Trent Valley team left this morning for Fenelon Falls where they will meet the Cataract team to-night in the first game of the finals. Fred McGrath is out of the game with an injured foot and Kenneally is under the weather and may not be able to play. The boys, however, are in good shape and are confident of giving the Falls team a hard game. The team will line up as follows—

Goal—Clancy.
Point—Meagher.
Cover point—Quigley.
Rover—T. McGrath.
Centre—Kenneally.
Right wing—Ross.
Left wing—Deforge.

If Kenneally is unable to play Carson will take his place.

Dr. Walters, of Lindsay, will referee.

Lindsay Out of Tournament

Lindsay went down to defeat at the Markham tournament last night by 7 goals to 4. Markham did the trick and presented the same line-up that Peterborough trimmed 27—3. The question now arises how bad would Lindsay be defeated if they were to meet the locals once more.

Stratford Doing Well.

Stratford juniors and intermediates are both doing well. The juniors are in with the last three and the intermediates in with the last four teams. Both are playing to-night.

Stratford Won.

Goderich were defeated by Stratford by 7 goals to 2 at Berlin last night. This leaves Berlin, Stratford, Victoria Harbor and Peterborough still in the running. Stratford and Berlin meet to-night at Berlin.

T.A.S. vs Karnots.

One of the best of the series of City League games should be seen on Thursday night when the T.A.S. and Karnots meet. Both teams are confident of winning and both have to win in order to keep in the running. The game will be a splendid exhibition. The winners will meet the Furriers in the final game for the championship of the City League, on March 2nd.

No Games this Week.

The Peterborough team will play no games exhibition or otherwise this week. They have no O. H. A. games scheduled for this week and do not wish to take a chance of having any of their men injured in an exhibition match.

CURLING.

The Peterborough bonspiel opened this afternoon and all sheets of ice are being utilised. The spiel is the biggest in the history of the club and promises to be the most successful. Thirty-seven rinks are taking part including rinks from Lindsay, Port Hope, Oshawa, Beaverton, Scarboro, Keene, Lakefield, Norwood, Bobcaygeon and Peterborough. Following is to-day's draw.—

PROSPERITY OF FORT WILLIAM

Mr. T. L. Anderson Returns from Two Months' Visit There.

NEW INDUSTRIES SPOKEN OF

The Town's Franchises Have Been the Source of Considerable Revenue — Great Power Development.

Mr. T. L. Anderson, 516 Water st. has returned from Fort William, Ont., of which town he has been a resident for the past two months. He refers to what in many respects, is a remarkable fact that there is less snow in that part of the country than there is here, and that on arriving at North Bay, Saturday, he was surprised to hear that the storm king had been playing havoc with eastern lines. In spite of this the run to Peterborough had comparatively few interruptions as the result of snow blockades.

TIDE OF PROSPERITY.

Mr Anderson states that the tide of prosperity which struck Fort William about three years ago bids fair to be continued during 1905, and conditions point to the town becoming a great industrial city. The water, light and telephone services are all owned by the town, and have cost to date something like $300,000. These franchises have been successfully operated during the past year, the revenue amounting to $37,000, leaving a clear surplus of something like $600, after defraying all expenses, and providing interest and sinking fund out of the debt. It is expected that the gross revenue from these sources this year will exceed $50,000.

FLOUR MILLING POINT.

The Ogilvie's intend building a huge flour mill at Fort William this year, the contract for which has already been let. It will have an output capacity of 3,000 barrels per day, and according to designs, will be the finest flour mill in the British Empire. Hopeful business men in Fort William look upon the town as destined to become one of the greatest flour milling points in the Dominion.

Engineers are now on the ground carrying out survey and development work looking to the utilization of the Kakabecka falls water power. The company which has charge of this property will have the full development completed within eighteen months at a cost of something like one million dollars. This asset will be productive of cheap electric power and must give great encouragement to industrial location.

A large implement manufactory, the J. I. Case Company of Wisconsin will establish their business at Fort William having purchased 160 acres adjoining the western town limits for that purpose. Another large implement concern is also looking for sites there; likewise one of the largest wood fibre manufactories in Canada. The Atikokan Iron Mining Company may locate a 100-ton blast furnace at that point.

Mr. Anderson states that the question of transportation is one that is regarded with keen interest in view of the expansion which is going on, and the C. P. R. it is understood will accelerate the work of double tracking between Fort William and Winnipeg as rapidly as possible. It is likely that the company will improve the terminal facilities in the town. A sorting yard with a capacity of something like 1,000 cars is spoken of. Everything points to great activity in Fort William this coming summer, and undoubtedly the place will make even more rapid strides than in the past.

OLD RESIDENT CALLED

Death of Mrs. Andrew Montgomery, in Her Eighty-second Year.

The death of Mrs. Andrew Montgomery, a lady who has long been a resident of Peterborough, occurred last evening at the family residence 310 London st. Mrs. Montgomery's final illness was of long duration, and a very serious development appeared last Thursday in nervous chills, which gradually reduced her vitality.

Mrs. Montgomery was a woman whose general beauty of character won for her a wide friendship, and the circle of her home will feel most keenly the bereavement. Though for many years an invalid, her patience and brightness have been remarkable and were signal proof of true Christian character. She was a wide reader and hence very intelligent and well informed.

Mrs. Montgomery was born at Lockport, New York on November, 16th. 1823, her parents being north of Ireland people. She lived in Ontario since a child, and on Dec. 6, 1843, at Peterborough, she married Andrew Montgomery, a prominent and representative resident of Smith, and who at the age of 90 years still survives her. They have resided on London st., town, since 1880, and there on Dec. 6th. 1903, they celebrated their diamond wedding. Besides her husband there are three sons and six daughters surviving. Mrs. Montgomery displayed to the last the greatest Christian fortitude and trust. The bereaved husband and family will have the sincere sympathy of the community.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 and will be private.

THE EXTENSION OF GEORGE ST

Difficulty in Getting Right Thro' McMahon Property.

THE CHANGE IS DESIRABLE

Town Willing to Pay $1000 for the Property Which is Causing the Difficulty—The Street Railway Problem.

A piece of what may rightly be considered municipal improvement, which the Town Council is anxious to put through as speedily as possible is the extension of George-st., straight south from Lake-st. to the driving park. Negotiations are at a standstill at the present time, because of the difficulty met with in coming to an arrangement with the Widow McMahon, who resides at the corner of Lake-st and the lane running to Westcott-st. It appears that Mrs. Mahon is not inclined to part with her property, as she seems to be comfortable in her little rough-cast house, which is situated there. The town, it is understood, is willing to give $1,000 for the property, and this is considered a fairly good price. It is not thought there will be any difficulty in connection with the expropriation of the other lots on the line of the proposed right of way. Mayor Best and other gentlemen are granting the town permission to cross certain lots which are owned by them, in order to facilitate the change, which it is hoped will be in such a shape as to be proceeded with when spring opens up.

In the event of George-st. being opened straight through to Park-st. it would be desirable that the street railway should follow suit, but it is a question whether the Company would undertake such a change, at least in the immediate future. Mr. Lermouth stated that it would involve considerable expense. It would be necessary to obtain an Order-in-Council to permit the electric railway to cross the G.T.R. tracks on the new street, and should such a course be deemed advisable the tearing up and re-laying of track at present running on Lock-st. would be expensive, unless, perhaps, a loop could be built by way of George, Lansdowne and Lock-sts.

However, it cannot be denied that the proposed extension would be a great improvement to George-st., besides having the result of improving much property which otherwise would remain comparatively valueless.

Representatives of the town are also carrying on negotiations looking to the extension of George-st. north as far as Victoria Avenue to connect with the right of way to the Hilliard property. The figure asked for the intervening property is $1,000.

The negotiations which have in view the opening and extension of streets is going forward carefully and it is expected that definite settlements will be arrived at shortly.

Vegetarian Wolves.

One of the most extreme vegetarians is the well known Russian sculptor, Prince Troubetskoi, who recently visited Paris. He considers meat eaters not much better than cannibals, tabooes even eggs and milk and lives on vegetables boiled in oil, salads, fruits and bread. At his home in St. Petersburg he has a number of animals, including a bear, two wolves and nine dogs, none of which is ever allowed to eat meat.

FIGHTING THE WINTER STORMS

Cost to Canada's Two Largest Railways $500,000 Yearly

SOMETHING ABOUT THE WORK

Management Are Burdened With Troubles Which the Public Scarcely Comprehend.

It costs Canada's two largest railway systems—the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific—in the neighborhood of $500,000 a year to battle with snow and ice. This figure is based on necessary expenditure during a normal winter. A year ago, of course, the storms were unusually severe and the outlay of money ran more than half a million. So far this winter there have been no figures compiled to show what the expenditure has been. Until ten or twelve days ago few complaints were heard from the operating departments about the difficulties of running trains on schedule time. But since the snow fall has become so heavy and the gales so rough, the officials who direct the movements of both passenger and freight trains have been burdened with troubles which the public scarcely comprehends. So accustomed have they become to an annual battle against snow, ice, wind and sleet that they prepare for winter storms while autumn is still reigning. At terminal points on their systems, snow ploughs are placed ready for service, portable and permanent snow fences are built along main lines, snow signs are erected, and section men are given instructions on keeping open switches, crossings and sidings. There are many kinds of snow ploughs and shovels in use. Among them are the rotary, used mostly in extreme cases, snow bank cutters, ice cutters, winged wedged, and double track ploughs, car flangers, snow pilots, snow scrapers, Crobbet flangers, and priest flangers. These machines, if such they may be called, are used to meet different conditions, as for instance, where a double track is blocked, a plough has to be used which will not throw the snow from one track on to the other, but will clear both. So many kinds are required that it is not difficult to calculate why a heavy expenditure is required. The cost to a company of one snow plough, even if the company constructs it, varies from $1,500 to $2,000. When a system has 150 or 200 of these ploughs, cutters and scrapers in use, the cost price of them alone reaches several figures. But the cost of operation is what causes most concern. From two to six men accompany each plough, while it is in service. Their wages, therefore, amount during a winter to a big sum, and in addition gangs of men are necessary in cuts, through certain portions of the country.

Main lines require constant attention. They must be kept open, if possible regardless of expense. To accomplish this plows are often sent out an hour or more prior to the departure of a passenger train from a terminal. The plough keeps ahead and clears the way so that the passenger train may not be delayed. Between Montreal and Toronto this is often done even though a pilot plough on an engine might be sufficient to remove a light fall of snow. Companies are anxious to have trains arrive at stations on schedule time, both for the benefit of the public and of themselves and consequently no expense is spared. Sometimes passenger trains are allowed to leave terminals without having these plough forerunners to clear the way, and when a mild snow-storm comes on the train is stalled or so impeded that it arrives at its destination several hours late. Freight is frequently left in sidings, when there might seem no reason to the lay observer why it should not be hustled along to the city or town to which it is billed. Operating officials know the risks encountered in moving freight trains during a blizzard and choose rather to leave cars in sidings than have them stalled on main lines to the disadvantage of travellers and also manifest freight. Besides these several kinds of ploughs, the C. P. R. is obliged to expend several thousands of dollars in building what are known as snow sheds and wedges. These sheds are required in the Rocky Mountains to protect tracks from snow and ice slides. Wedges are constructions placed in the ridges on the sides of mountains for the purpose of breaking a snow and ice slide so that the weight and force of such obstructions may be somewhat distributed. The Grand Trunk is not confronted with these mountain conditions, but it has many lines intersecting Ontario where deep cuts are numerous on its lines. Hence its expenditure is exceedingly heavy. The Intercolonial and Canadian Northern Railways are also obliged to operate all kinds of ploughs and shovels, because of their large interests. Smaller roads can sometimes escape outlays that are forced on these large railways. During the past few days all the difficulties of a rough winter have been experienced. Storms have raged both east and despite all the efforts made to operate trains, according to schedules, it has in some cases been found impossible.

Facial Paralysis

Mr. W. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My face was all twisted out of shape with facial paralysis, and five doctors failed to cure or even relieve. By the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been entirely cured, and have returned to work strong and well. I have gained in weight and feel that I have a new lease of life." 10

In the battle of Fenghuangcheng the Japanese took among their captures two enormous Chinese vases of thirteenth century workmanship. On learning that they were a present to General Kuropatkin, General Kuroki promptly dispatched them to the Russian outposts with a polite note ending, "May the flowers of friendship blossom high in these vases." In Kuropatkin's reply he referred to the Japanese as "a people of generous friends whom I visited in peace, of magnanimous foes in war, at whose hands even defeat is no disgrace."

A Quaint Story.

The Irish solicitor general, speaking the other day upon delusions, told a story of a north of Ireland Protestant who was perfectly sane save on one point. This stanch Protestant harbored the delusion that one of his legs belonged to a Roman Catholic, and therefore when he went to bed every night he used to leave the Catholic leg outside the blanket by way of punishment.

FREIGHT RATE QUESTION

Railway Commission Going to Sit in Lindsay—Suggestion for Local People.

The Lindsay Board of Trade is manifesting a considerable degree of commendable enterprise these days, and a question which has received received attention from them is the interchange of freight between the two railways at that point.

At a meeting of the Transportation Committee of the Board of Trade, held on Monday afternoon, a communication was read to the effect that the Railway Commission had consented to visit Lindsay in connection with the matter of interchange of freight between the two railways.

If a suggestion is in order would not it be a good idea to either invite the Commission to Peterborough after they have finished their business in Lindsay or for an influential committee to wait upon them in that town with the object of presenting Peterborough's arguments with regard to the much discussed question of freight rates.

TRENT CANAL FOR COUNTY OF YORK

Large Deputation is Interviewing the Minister.

NEW PROJECT IS ADVOCATED

Extension of Canal from Lake Simcoe to Aurora—Larger Country to be Benefitted.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—A large deputation from the County of York is in town to request an extension of the Trent Canal so as to benefit the northern portion of the county. The deputation represented the Trent Valley Canal Extension Association, and was composed of Mayor Cane, Newmarket, president of the Association; Mayor F. T. Daville, Aurora, Vice-President; and T. H. Brunton, Newmarket, Secretary; Hon. E. J. Davis, T. Herbert Lennox, M.P.P.; J. F. Wildman, Ezra Lundy, W. L. Rogers, J. E. Hughes, Robert Schmidt, L. Cane, Charles Webster, T. H. Lloyd, T. Somerville, W. H. Evans, and C. G. Ross, Newmarket; ex-Mayor Fleury, L. L. Hartman, D. A. Radcliffe, L. A. Wilson, W. G. Baldwin, W. J. Knowles, W. J. Basset, N. C. Towns, of Aurora, and M. McCartill, Sutton, West.

The project which they advocate is the extension of the canal from Lake Simcoe, about nine miles, to Aurora, by way of Holland Landing, Newmarket and Aurora, so as to enable the products of these towns to enter the Trent Valley Canal at Beaverton, and an outlet by water transport. Other projects which are suggested are to extend a canal from Lake Simcoe to Schomberg, and to connect Sutton by a canal with the lake.

The interview with the Ministry will take place to-day.

MR. CULVERWELL TALKING AGAIN

Wants Port Hope to Get After the Canal.

FORGET THE HEATED PAST

Hint That Port Hope Canal Association Was Dead Provokes Retort—Activity is Urged.

Mr J. Alex. Culverwell is breaking out again. At Port Hope on Monday evening he addressed the council pointing out that since the strenuous campaign of last fall, nothing had been done in connection with Port Hope's claim for the outlet of the Trent Valley canal. He thought it time to make a move. He believed at present there was a childish party feeling among some of the citizens. The last general election was the first one that Mr. Culverwell ever took an active part in and he trusted that anything he had done would be looked upon by the citizens as in the best interests of the municipality. In fact citizens of both political creeds now state that. He would suggest that the Mayor call a public meeting in reference to the survey now going on. He had information to offer the association in reference to what we should expect as to specifications in the report of the outlet survey. There are several specific promises given previous to the elections by the Government as to that survey, and on that account he promised his support to the government for their candidate in this election. He did not believe the ministers would be careless, but it was necessary for us to keep the issue before them and tell them what we expect in the interest of the canal, and of Port Hope, Toronto and Hamilton who have joined us. It behooves us to forget everything that has happened in the heated past.

We are living here to help each other and let us remember the old adage, "united we stand, divided we fall." We want to re-organize the Port Hope canal association with as few party partisan officials as possible. That is what I advise and what leading citizens of both political creeds think, and they have asked me to give that idea publicity. In fact prominent citizens will simply stand fast until that is done.

The Mayor said that there was now a new Board of Trade in town and he asked Mr. Culverwell what he though of their taking the matter up.

Mr. Culverwell replied that the Board of Trade was organized for general purposes. This was a matter that should be handled by the Canal Association and with officials elected for that purpose.

Ald. Long said that from Mr. Culverwell's remarks one would be led to believe that the present Canal Association was dead. They are at present waiting for an opportunity to act; they have funds on hand and a public meeting to re-organize this association is not at all necessary.

Ald. Burnham said a public meeting would be no use. What we want is a strong and businesslike action taken. We deserve the canal and must have it.

OPPORTUNITY TO ACT.

Ald. Outram was much surprised at Mr. Culverwell treating the Association as a dead one. A public meeting was not necessary; they had a good strong, live Association. Whenever there is an opportunity to act the Association is ready and he did not think the council need take any move in the direction recommended by Mr. Culverwell.

Mr. Culverwell said that he had been asked by leading members of the Associations of both political creeds to have the Mayor call a public meeting and re-organize the Association on strictly non-political lines.

Moved by Ald. Ralph, seconded by Ald. Garnett, that the Mayor and Councillors Garnett, Ralph and Burnham be a committee to wait upon the officials of the Port Hope Canal Association and request that in the interest of this town they should take immediate action to further push our claim upon the Dominion Government for the outlet at Port Hope. Carried.

REASON No 12
WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Red Rose Tea

Because the quality never varies.

Did you ever use a pound of good tea, and after ordering more of the same brand, find it much inferior?

The Eastern climate changes very rapidly, and for this reason tea planters find it impossible to produce the same quality from month to month—two lots from the same garden are seldom the same quality. This is probably the reason why the tea you got the second time was not as good as the first.

In Red Rose Tea this serious difficulty has been overcome by scientifically blending several teas together, so to always obtain uniform flavor and strength, and this has been one of the greatest triumphs of Red Rose Tea.

The quality never varies—you can rely on getting exactly the same quality of tea as long as you use it.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 22, 1905.

Unless the snow is removed from some of the leading streets there will be more collisions with street cars and less narrow escapes to record.

The old Severn brewery in Belleville, which has been idle for years is to be turned into a vinegar factory. The people of the Bay City are bound to have something to drink.

Mr Stock in South Perth showed good discretion when he decided not to oppose Hon. Mr. Montieth in a bye-election. He saved himself from the ignominy of another sound trouncing at the polls.

They hanged an ex-Mayor in Virginia the other day. This solves the perplexing question: "What shall we do with our ex-Mayors?" It might do in Belleville, but it would not in Peterborough.

Belleville city fathers grew hilarious in their discussion of the dog by-law and the measure was given a two week hoist—a sad oc-cur-rence, indeed. But, seriously speaking, the number of mongrels in Belleville should be curtailed.

The award of the arbitrators in the dispute between the Grand Trunk Railway Company and the telegraphers in its employ has been given out. On the whole the award proved favorable to the operators. This is the keynote of their success, and no wires were pulled, either, to obtain a favorable verdict.

Confidence in the new Whitney Ministry was expressed yesterday when all the members of the cabinet were returned without opposition. This shows a disposition on the part of the people to give the ministers a chance to get to work at once and demonstrates that constituents are well satisfied with the selections the Premier has made. An early session of the new legislature will now be called.

Mr. M. A. James, proprietor of the Bowmanville Statesman, who recently resigned his seat in the town council owing to a technicality, is running for office again. He hands out this shot to the citizens:—For 26 years M. A. James has boomed Bowmanville, its institutions, its industries, its boys and girls. What has any one of the clique opposing him ever done to help the town or its citizens?

The British people are learning a lesson political economy, says the Mail and Empire. When they had a duty on wheat and a duty on flour their bread cost them less than it does today, there was more money made by their farmers, their flour millers were more prosperous, and afforded employment to more hands. When the duty was taken off, the first to rejoice over the change was the flour trust in Minneapolis. That trust is now robbing both British and Canadian mills of business, whereas while the British duty was in force Minneapolis flour export flour trade steadily declined.

The failure of Premier Parent to heal the breach in his cabinet affords good ground to conclude that when the legislature meets in Quebec on March 2, if not before, he will have to acknowledge defeat and relinquish the reins of Government. The Montreal Gazette forsees defeat, possibly disaster for the party. "Unless," it says, "there is something in the situation of which there is no surface indications, and which he can avail himself of at once, Mr. Parent will have to admit defeat, and looking to the fortunes of his party and the good of the province, the sooner he does it the better it is likely to be for all concerned. He can hardly ask for the dissolution of a newly elected Legislature, because it does not give him personally its confidence."

The Toronto Telegram very justly says the prefix "Hon." is too much used in the United States and too little used in Canada when strict accuracy would rob Mr. G. W. Ross of the title he has worn for twenty-two years. Every partisan no-body who is pitch-forked into the Senate of Canada is "Hon." for life, while Hon. N. Clarke Wallace became Mr. N. Clarke Wallace when he resigned, and Hon. G. W. Ross became Mr. G. W. Ross when he was overtaken by defeat. Liberal organs were unnecessarily quick to reduce Hon. N Clarke Wallace to the rank of Mr. N. Clarke Wallace and Hon. Joseph Martin to the rank of Mr. Joseph Martin. Honor has its origin in the substance of a man's deeds, not in the form of his post office address. Still there is room for improvement in the usage which compels public journals to describe a former Premier of Ontario as Mr. G. W. Ross, and to allude to a Senator of Canada as Hon. James McMullen.

With reference to the power of Municipal Councils to regulate the number of liquor licenses in any municipality Sec. 20 of the Liquor License Act, which provides that every council of the municipality may by by-law passed before March 1st, in any year, limit the number of tavern licenses being issued for the ensuing year, beginning the 1st of May next. A council has a right to pass such a by-law within certain limitations. It must not have any such by-law exceed the number of licenses provided for by statute as that would be illegal. Neither can it reduce the number of licenses to one in the municipality because some of the courts have held that would be creating a monopoly. The council must pass the by-law before March 1st, and cause a certified copy of such by-law to be immediately after sent to the License Commissioners of the district.

Fears are expressed that the agricultural community would be displeased by an increase in the salaries of the members of the Ontario Cabinet. We fancy, says the Orillia Packet, that the majority of the farmers would take much the same view as that expressed at Edgar during the recent election campaign, by Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, President of the Farmers' Association, when he said that he would not grudge good salaries to the Ministers, provided that they gave their whole time to the country's business, and kept out of corporations which might be asking for favors and whose interests might conflict with those of the public. By all means pay members of the Government salaries in keeping with the dignity and responsibility of their office, but insist on their staying off boards of directors and remaining entirely free from business relations with the institutions that come before them seeking special legislation. And in particular Mr. Whitney should stipulate that the Minister of Crown Lands and the new Minister of Mines should have nothing to do, directly or indirectly, with timber deals or mining enterprises.

CANADIAN FORESTS.

The Canadian Forestry Journal, published by the Canadian Forestry Association in the interest of forest preservation, has been issued. It contains a sketch of the history of the Forestry Association, by the editor, which shows that the association was organized in 1900 and has now a membership of about six hundred.

The reason for the establishment of such an association is well summarized in the statement, quoted from M. Milord, one of the leading French foresters, to the effect that the consumption of wood in the world at present is greater than the normal production of the accessible forests, and that in this production there is a deficit which is for the moment supplied by the destruction of the forests. If Sweden, Finland and Canada should supply alone the importations of all the countries requiring manufacturing woods, their normal production would not suffice, and their forest capital would be promptly dissipated.

Among other leading articles is "Canada as a Field for Intelligent Forestry," by E. Stewart, Dominion Superintendent of Forestry. Mr. Stewart adds another strong argument for the preservation of the forests by pointing out the evil effects of their destruction. As he states, if the destruction of the northern forest covering by fire or otherwise is permitted, to say nothing of the evil effects on the climate of the fertile lands further south of that would result from the destruction of this barrier against the northern air currents, the severe winter of those high northern latitudes will be made almost intolerable by the winds that will then blow uninterruptedly over the denuded lands; the streams bereft of the present natural reservoirs which the forest covering at their sources affords, will then be torrents in the spring time and dry during the summer and winter months, causing destruction to the fish and to navigation; the fur-bearing animals and other game will practically disappear; and instead of having a land with many possibilities, we will have an arctic desert.

HERE'S TO OFFICER McGINTY

Popular Constable Has Been Captured by the Wily Cupid.

It is reported around town that Police Officer Charles McGinty is soon to take unto himself a bride. In fact the popular constable is already receiving congratulations and wishes of all kinds of happiness in the prospective event. Mr. McGinty declined to discuss the matter to-day; but it is no discredit to him to know that he is yet susceptible to the darts of Cupid, who will lead him very shortly a captive to the altar. Officer McGinty cannot be charged with resisting arrest.

TRAIN DELAYED NEAR BURKETON

Snow Plow Outfit and Engine Derailed ---Auxiliary from Havelock to the Rescue.

As a result of an accident on the C. P. R. between Pontypool and Burketon the 11.35 express from the west was several hours late today.

A snow-plow train consisting of an engine, a van and plow, while working between the two places was derailed about eleven o'clock this morning. The entire outfit is off the track, and the great difficulty consisted in clearing away the large engine.

An auxiliary train from Havelock passed through here shortly after noon for the scene of the accident.

A special passenger train was made up at Havelock and was despatched to the spot. The passengers were transferred from the regular train to the special together with baggage and expressed goods, and the journey east was begun about four o'clock.

No word had been received from Pontypool about the east bound special up to four o'clock but it is expected that it will reach here shortly before five o'clock.

Quite a number of passengers for the east were delayed here.

BORNE TO THE TOMB

The Funeral of the Late Mrs. Patrick Begley Took Place This Morning.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Patrick Begley took place this morning from the residence of her son, Ald. T. J. Begley, Victoria Avenue, and the large attendance was striking evidence of the friendship which the deceased lady enjoyed while living, and of the fact that her memory will long be cherished. The following gentlemen acted as bearers;—Messrs. J. Kiley, J. C. Sullivan, Jos. Primeau, J. Coughlin, T. Cleary, and P. J. Murphy, of Lindsay. Solemn requiem mass at St. Peterborough's Cathedral was celebrated by Rev. Father John O'Brien. Interment took place in the Roman Catholic cemetery, where Rev. Father Galvin conducted service. A number of Ald. Begley's colleagues in the Town Council attended the funeral.

BUTTER TAKES DROP

Price Asked on Market To-day Was Thirty Cents.

Probably on account of the difficulty experienced by the farmers in reaching town Saturday there was a better attendance today and the supply of butter was quite large. The prices ranged from 28 to 32 cents a lb. One lady said she had come a distance of about twelve miles to attend the market, and that the roads had greatly improved. On Saturday last, she had driven to Fraserville station, but as there was no train and no definite possibility of reaching town she had to return home.

Eggs are still high in price, 30 cents per dozen being asked today while chickens sold at from 35 to 50 cents each. There was a very small supply of fowl on market, but there was any amount of meat, and this sold at regular prices.

Enquiry at the grocery stores show that the stringency in the money market had been somewhat released this morning, as the result of the supply which had come to town from the country.

CHOSEN FRIENDS

FENELON FALLS WON FROM T.A.S.

Local Team Easily Defeated in First Game of Finals.

VISITORS FAILED TO SCORE

T. A. S. Were Short the Services of Fred McGrath—Fenelon Falls Played Fast Hockey—Abstainers Did Not Play in Their Usual Form—Visitors Were Hospitably Treated.

The T. A. S. journeyed to Fenelon Falls last night to play the first game in the Trent Valley finals and were defeated rather easily by a score of 20—0. The half-time score was 14—0. The villagers played great hockey, displaying great speed, clever combination and accurate shooting. The T. A. S. team were off color decidedly. This is accounted for in a great measure to the absence of Fred McGrath and the resulting disorganization of the forward line. Keneally who took his place was ill and not in fit condition to play, he however played pluckily throughout. Deforge was left wing, a position he is not accustomed to and was not as effective as he might have been at his old place as rover. He put up a good game and with a little better luck might have notched up a few goals. The team worked hard and the game was closer than the score would seem to indicate.

Fenelon Falls played fine combination but a lot of it was off-side. Referee Irving of the Lindsay team allowing many forward passes to go unnoticed. The T. A. S. say that the Fenelon team is a very fast bunch and on their own ice almost unbeatable. They know all the turns and corners of the little rink. Their shooting was deadly and many of the goals were scored on long shots. Boyce, the right wing player, who only weighs 105 pounds was the star of the game. He had all kinds of speed and his stick-handling was wonderful.

The T. A. S. have only nothing but good words to say of the way they were treated by the home team. They were entertained to an oyster supper after the game and both off and on the ice were treated hospitably.

A pleasing feature in connection with the contest was that there was not a man on either side sent to the fence. There was a large attendance at the game. The teams lined up as follows—

T. A. S.		Fenelon Falls.

Clancy		Gould

Meagher		Davis

Quigley		Deyman

THE BIG BONSPIEL

Consolation Matches Began To-day—The Draw for This Afternoon.

In the single rink competitions, Reid of Bobcaygeon defeated Giroux of Peterborough by 16 to 10; Brown of Peterboro won from McFadden of Lindsay by 13 to 5; and Finlay of Norwood beat Strickland of Lakefield by 14 to 7.

The draw in the Consolation this afternoon was,—

Sharp of Uxbridge vs. Morrow of Peterborough.

Galloway of Beaverton, vs. McSweyn of Lindsay.

The draws from the Primaries this morning were,—

Ray of Peterborough vs. Peacock of Port Hope.

Walters of Lindsay, vs. Carswell of Oshawa.

VanNorman of Bobcaygeon, vs. Patterson of Scarboro.

One of the very exciting games last night was that between Davis of Bobcaygeon and Galloway of Beaverton. The first half was very close, but in the second, Davis changed his boots and from that out won easily.

FIRE ENGINE TESTED

Does Not Hold Her Steam Satisfactorily—Repairs Have Been Made.

Ald. Johnston, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Mr. Thos. Rutherford, Chief of the Fire Brigade, attended a test of the fire engine this morning on Water street, near the market. The engine has been undergoing repairs lately and in order to see that everything was in good condition a trial was held this morning. It was attached to a hydrant with 90 lbs. pressure to begin with and a good head of steam was developed, the result being a fairly strong stream. The engine, however, does not hold her steam as well as the department would like and further improvements may have to be made.

The engine is just about 30 years old, and it would appear that it is about time for some one to suggest that Peterborough purchase an engine that will be a credit to and meet the requirements of a place large enough to be incorporated as a city.

The bullet entered the lower part of the right cheek and came out just behind the right ear. Mrs. Blackwell sprang forward to snatch the revolver from him when the weapon was again discharged and a bullet entered her throat and lodged in her shoulder. The attending physician succeeded in removing the bullet. The probability is that both will recover, unless blood poisoning sets in.

A New Idea on The Cause of Colds

Pneumonia, La Grippe and Consumption, and a Reminder of the Phenomenal and Continued Success of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Scientists have a new explanation for the great prevalence of colds, la grippe and pneumonia.

They tell us that when we pass out of doors we enter an atmosphere where the humidity averages about 70 per cent. when it might have been as low as 30 in the house or office.

The sudden change from the dry and overheated air of the house to the cold and more moist air of out doors is a shock to the mucous membranes which induces colds, la grippe or pneumonia.

This evil is largely due to modern methods of heating, and can be overcome by keeping the air moist in buildings.

But there are colds to be cured, sufferers from la grippe that require treatment, and every day these ailments are developing into pneumonia and consumption. In these cases Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is at hand as a tried and proven medicine of far more than ordinary merit.

Bronchitis.

Pneumonia.
La Grippe.
Throat Irritation.
Tickling in the Throat.
Soreness and Dryness in the Throat.
Irritation and Inflammation of the Bronchial Tubes and Lungs.

You know something of the value of turpentine as a medicine. You know something of the healing and soothing properties of linseed or flaxseed as it is most commonly called. In Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine these ingredients are so combined with half a dozen others as to make a treatment which is at the same time pleasant to the taste and of most exceptional curative power.

But you need not accept this medicine on theory, or on what we say, for it has been before the people for many years, and each year has witnessed a great increase in the quantity used.

Ask your friends and neighbors about it.

Ask the mothers who have saved the lives of their children when in the clutches of croup.

Ask the men and women who have shaken themselves free from the grasp of la grippe, pneumonia, bronchitis or asthma by its use.

Ask the thousands of people who have learned to trust to this great medicine to cure coughs and colds and prevent such deadly diseases as consumption and pneumonia.

Imitative Hens.

Hens are like sheep in one respect—they follow a leader, and if that leader becomes addicted to some vice she will soon have all the others in the barnyard following her example.

Cost of London Fogs.

It has been estimated that fogs cost London £5,000,000 each year, or about £150,000 each foggy day. Extra gas, the laying of torpedo signals, damage to property and the general stagnation of business are some of the items which go to make up this big bill.

What Arabs Eat.

The Bedouin Arabs are small eaters. Six or seven dates soaked in melted butter serve a man a whole day, with a very small quantity of coarse flour or a little ball of rice.

The Golden Bee.

It is said that when the tomb of Childeric, a king of the first Frankish dynasty in the fifth century, was opened in the seventeenth century hundreds of golden bees were found in it. So when the French empire was established the golden bee was adopted as one of its emblems.

Tender Feet.

Tender feet should be bathed in alum water. If colored hosiery is worn have the soles and heels white. Tender feet are made more sensitive by the dyes used in the stockings.

German Coffee Cake.

German coffee cake, much liked for breakfast, is merely sweetened yeast bread dough to which eggs and butter are added. It should be baked in a shallow pan, and before being put into the oven the top should be dredged with sugar and cinnamon.

People of Greece.

About one-half of the population of Greece are agriculturists and shepherds.

Corsican's Privilege.

Mr. Justice Darling at the Newcastle (England) assizes in summing up a case of stabbing said the fact that the prisoner was a Corsican, whose blood was hot for the constant use of the knife, must be taken into consideration.

Necklaces of Ants.

In the island of New Guinea, or Papua, the chief adornment of the ladies is a necktie made of black ants. The native girls find the ants in the gardens, they bite off and swallow the lower end, throw away the head and thread the thorax. One woman, the bride of a chief, wore a necklace eleven feet long, on which were the bodies of 1,800 ants.

Drunkenness.

According to the diagnosis of a learned physician, drunkenness is voluntary illness.

Paupers Put to Work.

There are few ablebodied paupers in Holland. A tract of public land containing 5,000 acres is divided into six model farms, to one of which the person applying for public relief is sent.

Battleship Armor.

The thickness of armor on modern warships is truly astonishing. The side armor of a first class battleship usually varies from sixteen and a half inches thick at the top of the belt to nine and a half inches at the bottom. The gun turrets are often protected by armor from fifteen inches to seventeen inches thick.

WHIST AND THE WOMAN.

"I knew when I first heard the case
There was a woman in it!
Oh, Mr. Brown, is that your ace?
I'll play in just a minute.
Poor boy! I don't know what he'll do;
It seems a dreadful scandal!
Oh, dear! I've dropped a card or two!
They are so hard to handle!

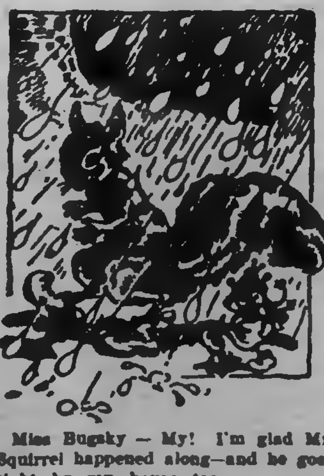
"Oh, thank you, thank you, Mr. Brown!
I fear you got a bump, sir!
It seems 'tis known all over town—
What did you say was trump, sir?
Was that your ace? Oh, well, then, I
Will change the card I'm playing.
Oh, yes, you did it, Mrs. Bly!
Let's see—what was I saying?

"Dear, dear! What was it that you led?
I wish that I were able
To keep the cards all in my head!
It fell beneath the table,
I think—yes; it's right over there!
How careless 'twas to let it
Slip from my hand! Oh, Mr. Dare,
How good of you to get it!

"My lead? Oh, pardon me! I thought
You took the trick—that last one.
Has diamonds been led or not?
How these things do slip past one!
Oh, Amy, did you hear that Sue
Was coming for a visit?
What! Did I take that club trick too?
Oh, that's trump signal, is it?

"Oh, pshaw! I've lost my king! Dear, dear!
How stupid 'twas to lose it!
I thought that ace was played—back here!
Pray, Mr. Brown, excuse it!
They get the odd! I thought we had!
Some one reneged, I'm certain!
Oh, Mr. Brown, that is too bad!
I'm awful sorry!" (Curtain.)

Right In It.



Miss Bugsky — My! I'm glad Mr. Squirrel happened along—and he goes right by my house too.

Memory Insured.

"George," sighed the maiden fair to see, leaning softly against George's vest, "are you sure you will not forget me?"

"Perfectly, my precious," whispered George, straining his neck to pull his head back far enough to get her pompadour out of his eyes.

"I know you say so now, but are you s-u-r-e, ducky, that you will think often of me?"

"I shall think always of you, my pigeon."

"Of course you tell me this now, but —but—men are so fickle. Sometimes I fear your mind may turn to another."

"Never, my heart's jewel," declared George, recollecting how the matinee heroes swear undying affection.

"You make me so happy, but nevertheless I have this haunting doubt. I wish I could feel perfectly sure and confident that you will go right on thinking of me for months and months."

"My darling, if you want to be positively sure you need only to reflect that the ring I gave you on your birthday I bought at a dollar down and 50 cents a week."

Blissfully happy in the knowledge that George could not fail to have her in his mind for some time to come, the apple of his eye permitted her alabaster brow to rest against his cheek

Another Nickel Lost.

The motorman was making his complaint.

"The fellow gave me the signal," he said, "and when I refused to stop he smashed one of the car windows."

"H'm!" said the superintendent. "Was the car full?"

"Well, it was full, but I suppose he could have squeezed in some way."

"Thirty days' layoff. You've been working long enough to know the rule of the company."

Walter's Prayer.

Walter and Willie were playmates. The death one day of Willie's grandmother made a deep impression upon Walter. He, too, had a grandmother, whom he dearly loved. At bedtime that night Walter's papa was not a little startled to hear his little boy supplement his evening petition with:

"I thank you, God, that you took Willie's grandmother instead of mine." —Lippincott's Magazine.

A Foreboding.

"Have you ever done anything that will make future generations proud of you?"

"I don't know," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "I suppose my grandchildren will wish they could enjoy my wealth without being reminded of how I made it."

That Would Help.

The infant began crying as soon as the visitor arrived and continued to wail for some time. At last its mamma said:

"Please don't mind the baby."

"If you would mind it," suggested the guest, "maybe I wouldn't mind it." —Judge.

One Man's Theory.

DAN. CRANLEY'S SUDDEN DEATH

Douro Man Took Choking Spell at Craig House, Lakefield.

EXPIRED IN HALF AN HOUR

Had Been Working in the Shanties and Had Only Been in the Village Since Noon—No Inquest Will be Held.

News of a very sudden death at the Craig House in Lakefield was wired to Coroner Gray, by Dr. Baker, of that village, last night.

Daniel Cranley, of Douro, who had been working in the lumber shanties, was taken with a choking spell, while eating his tea, and expired about 6.30, one half hour after the attack. Cranley came to the hotel about 12 o'clock. For two or three days before he had been at Buckhorn. He was not indulging in intoxicants to any great extent yesterday. He had dinner at the hotel, and for tea he was eating some cold roast beef, when he complained of choking, and of being unable to get his breath. The bar-tender, T. A. Lysett, took him for a walk outside to see if that would give any benefit, but this was without success, and returning to the House, Cranley laid himself upon the sofa, and not long after he died. Dr. Baker was summoned and arrived a few minutes prior to the man's death, but every possible measure taken to relieve his condition was ineffective. It was thought that something which the man ate had lodged in his throat, but this was found not to be the case.

Dr. Gray, Coroner, on learning the circumstances from Dr. Baker, was of opinion that death resulted from natural causes, and advised the Lakefield physician that unless he found evidences indicating otherwise, an inquest was unnecessary.

Daniel Cranley was a man about 60 years of age, and unmarried. He has been working in the lumber shanties all winter, and only a few days ago came out to Buckhorn, and yesterday to Lakefield. Two brothers, John and Patrick Cranley, live in Douro township.

The remains were last evening removed to Bickell's undertaking rooms. There is no evidence pointing to suicide: the man had made no complaint as to illness, and the theory at Lakefield is that in some manner Cranley's windpipe became clogged while he was eating his supper, and that he choked to death.

The objection against the reduction of the number of licenses, namely, the restriction of shed accommodation for the farmers, has been met by the organization of a joint stock company, which will erect a $5,000 stable and shed near the market. The houses cut off are the Galt and Central hotels, old landmarks on Main street.

MERCHANTS RESOLVE

To Co-operate With Montreal Merchants Against Trading Stamps.

A meeting of the Peterborough Retail Merchants' Association was held last night when the request from the Federation of Retail Dealers of Montreal was considered. The mattter was the subject of some discussion, and in view of the evils which trading stamps had done here in the past, it was unanimously decided by the local Association to help the Association of the Sister Province to procure the legislative enactments asked for.

The following resolution was passed—"That having heard of the representation of the Montreal Federation of Retail Dealers, regarding the trading stamp system, the members of Peterborough Association desire to express their appreciation of the efforts that are being made to secure such federal legislation as will stamp out effectively such unfair methods, and which encourages such unfair competition in business within the confines of the Dominion of Canada. That with the view of co-operating with the movement and securing legislation, the president and executive officers of this Association are hereby authorised to sign or append their signatures to the petitions asking for such legislative enactment, and that the same be forwarded to the proper authorities at Montreal.

GOOD FLOW OF WATER

Power Owners Well Pleased With the Quantity—Reason Is That Dams Have Not Been Closed Up.

The water in the Otonabee River is higher at this season of the year than it has been for many winters. Power owners and users of the water in large quantities are well pleased with the present condition of things. The flow is greater than it has ever been before and this is a matter of importance to Peterborough and district.

Naturally many have inquired the reason, and in conversation with Mr. J. H. Larmouth this morning, he incidentally expressed his pleasure at the flow. He was asked if he could suggest any reason for it. He said that one of the chief causes was that the dams up north were not closed up this winter, but the water allowed free flow. In the spring the lakes instead of being filled up would naturally have plenty of water owing to the thaw and there would be less danger of a freshet by reason of the water being low all winter. There would also be a more even distribution.

Continuing Mr. Larmouth remarked, "Last fall I accompanied Mr. R. B. Rogers, the superintending engineer, on a trip over the reservoirs in the north country, which up to the present time are under the control of the Ontario Government. We found that the custom of the caretaker of these dams was to close up every dam by putting in the stop logs on his last trip over the dams in the fall. Mr. Rogers said to him, "Why, this accounts for the sudden drop in the flow of the river at Peterborough at the beginning of every winter." He asked the caretaker if he would not agree to let the stop logs remain out until the spring and thus allow the natural flow from the immense drainage area to come down. The overseer of the dams agreed to do this and the result is that the flow of the river during the winter is almost doubled in consequence of having the natural drainage from the immense district drained by the Gull and Burnt rivers—in fact it is the whole area from which we draw our water supply.

Can you say what the object has been in closing the dams in the fall?

"Well, the caretaker of the dams said that he wanted to be sure that the dams would be filled up for the following summer, though he said he guessed that they would perhaps fill up during the spring.

Are the lakes large in the back country?

"There are some very large lakes. Kenesis is about ten miles long and about a mile wide. There was about three feet in depth of water pouring out of that lake when we were passing and to have this shut off would make a great difference in the flow of the river. There are many other streams like this and if all were shut off it would make a tremendous difference in the flow of the river during this winter, especially as there was no rain after the beginning of July last.

"So it is a good thing that this shutting off of the dams was discovered.

"Yes! if these dams had been closed up during the winter there is no doubt but that there would have been a great scarcity of water for power purposes, as we have had such a long dry season."

AUSTIN WAS SENT DOWN FOR TRIAL

The Charge of Assaulting Fred Adlum Heard in Court.

TROUBLE OVER POLITICS

Two Belligerent Young Men in Court, but They Shook Hands Before the Acting Magistrate and Forget Their Grievances.

The police court was crowded this morning when Wm Austin appeared to answer a charge of assault laid against him by Fred Adlum. Both are employees of the Peter Hamilton Co. His Worship H Rush was on the bench.

Adlum was the first witness. He testified that there had been trouble between Austin and he for some time, arising from political differences. Austin was continually taunting him with being a turn coat. At last on Friday, after some insulting remarks made by Austin, witness went over to the blacksmith shop where defendant worked and told him to stop his abuse or he would find a way to make him, meaning that he would have Austin arrested, whereupon the defendant had struck him over the eye with something hard. He was not certain what it was, but it appeared to be iron and dangling from a strap or elastic. Adlum fell to the ground and crawled upon his hands and knees through a nearby door and escaped further blows.

Dr. Amyot testified to the nature of the wound, which he said had evidently been made with a blunt instrument. The injured man was doing well and he did not anticipate any evil results.

The defence offered no evidence and His Worship committed Austin for trial. Mr. R. E. Wood, Crown Attorney, appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. F. D. Kerr conducted the defence.

A well known young man was charged with assaulting a barber shop employee about equally as well known. The mix-up originated out of a friendly scuffle which soon grew warmer. His Worship was of the opinion that the best way to settle the affair was to shake hands all around, which was done amid the laughter of the crowd.

William McCormack appeared to answer to a charge of being insane. He was discharged by County Magistrate Edmison on the same offence some time ago. He has a strange idea that some one is going to kill him or that he will some day kill himself. This morning he was committed as insane and dangerous to be at large.

WALTER SAGER DEAD

Injuries Received in Monday Night's Accident Proved Fatal.

Death came early this morning to Walter Sager, the 14-year-old son of Mr. S. Sager, McDonnel-st., who, on Monday morning, fell through the skylight of the summer kitchen adjoining his father's house and sustained fatal injuries. It seems that in falling through the skylight the boy's body was pierced by the glass in such a manner as to puncture some of the internal organs, and to properly treat the wound, a delicate and painful surgical operation was immediately necessary. The boy rested easily after the operation, but the strain upon his vitality, and the serious effect of the injuries inflicted were too great, and about seven o'clock he expired. His father left some days ago upon a business trip to the mining country in the east, and to reach him by wire entailed great difficulty. Mr. A. O. Kidd left yesterday to acquaint him, as soon as possible, of the very sad occurrence.

Walter Sager was born in Rochester, Pa. He was the third eldest in a family of eight, the other children being Herman, the eldest, aged 19; Laura, Floyd, Gail, Helen, Ruth and Mildred. The deceased was a very bright lad, and his sudden death will come as a great bereavement in the home and be deeply deplored by all who knew him. Mr. and Mrs. Sager chose Peterborough as their place of residence a little over a year ago, and in that time have made many friends, whose sincere sympathy will now go out to them.

The funeral arrangements will not be announced until the arrival of Mr. Sager

GONE TO SAN FRANCISCO

Mr. James Stevenson Leaves Upon Long Journey.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson was around town saying good-bye to his friends this morning. For the next month he will enjoy a holiday involving a trip to San Francisco where he will be the guest of his sister Mrs. Swayne. This is quite a trip for a gentleman of Mr Stevenson's advanced years to undertake, but his sturdy constitution and energetic disposition will undoubtedly make the jaunt for him one of great pleasure. It is his intention to visit friends and relatives along the route—his brother at Port Hope; his nephew, Mr. A. H. Grom, Chicago; his son Rufus, at Kalb, Indiana, and others whom it will delight him to renew acquaintance with. He states that it is the first time he has taken a whirl across the continent. He expects to enjoy it.

The 57th Band will be at the Brock St. Rink to-night. The ice is in good condition.

DOING WELL IN WEST

Mr. Robert Lang Gives His Impressions o That Country—A Mild Winter.

Mr. J. T. C. Lang, of Lang & Maher, clothiers, this morning received a letter from his brother Robert, of Alameda, Assiniboia, in which he says there is just enough snow there to make sleighing. He adds they are having bright, beautiful weather there now all the time—about thirteen hours daily of daylight. The sun is strong after it gets up. The people in Ontario have no idea of what a fine climate there is around Alameda.

Mr. Lang further says that Yankee speculators are making big money out of the C.P.R. lands which they purchased—about ten dollars per acre over and above what the land cost them and without any improvements whatever being made. He refers to some people from this district who have settled in Assiniboia and are now in comfortable circumstances. Mr. Robert Byers, formerly of Cavan, is happy and prosperous. The prospects for next season are bright.

Mr. Lang, who formerly resided at Centreville, has 480 acres of land, and, although he has been located in the west only a year, is well satisfied with conditions there and says that it is the only country for a man to make money in agricultural pursuits if he wants to make it fast. He states that horses are pasturing on the prairie and thinks a horse would have a hard time picking up a living in Ontario at this time of the year.

BIG BONSPIEL NOW GOING ON

There Are Thirty-Seven Rinks in the Contest.

CURLERS INVADE THE TOWN

Very Exciting Finishes in the Single Rink Competition — Lindsay Quartette Defeated—To day's Draw.

Thirty-seven rinks are entered in the big curling bonspeil which opened here yesterday afternoon with the single rink competitions. Peterborough curlers entered thirteen rinks, and it is to be hoped that the hoodoo of the unlucky number doesn't apply in curling. Oshawa has two rinks, Scarboro, one; Uxbridge, two; Bobcaygeon, three; Norwood, two; Port Hope, three; Beaverton, three; Keene, three; Lakefield, two; and Lindsay, three. The bonspeil bids fair to be one of the most successful ever held in Peterborough, and every arrangement has been made with that object in view.

The six ices were kept hot all yesterday afternoon and evening, and great enthusiasm was apparent. There were very many close finishes such as that between McCamus of Keene and C. N. Brown of Peterborough during the afternoon, the local men winning by one shot or the game between Burton of Port Hope and Finlay of Norwood, the latter winning by 13 to 11. Other afternoon contests resulted as follows—G. McFadden of Lindsay from Harrison of Beaverton by 13 to 8; Strickland of Lakefield, from Cummings of Norwood by 17 to 13; Reid of Bobcaygeon from Edwards of Peterborough, by 21 to 7; and Peacock of Port Hope, from Sykes of Oshawa by 17 to 9.

A feature of the results in games played between five and eight o'clock was the great difference in the figures. For instance Hamilton of town beat R. J. Frost of town by 12 to 4. T. Rutherford put it all over Hamilton of Uxbridge by 20 to 5; Walters of Lindsay, trimmed Cameron of town, by 22 to 4, Sam Ray beat W. G. Morrow by 21 to 9: Capt. Henning of Port Hope, who skips a rink with that fine sea-dog air, which has followed him from the quarter-deck of the Mary Ann Lydon, was defeated by Van-Norman of Bobcaygeon by 16 to 9; and Galloway of Beaverton was beaten by Davis of Bobcaygeon by 16 to 8.

Dave Hall worked a big surprise in the evening when he defeated McSweyn of Lindsay in a hard fight by 16 to 14. Ridpath of Lakefield won from Keneally of Keene by 14 to 6. W. G. Ferguson defeated Robert Neill by 12 to 11, and Matthews beat Campbell of Keene by a similar score. Carswell of Oshawa finished eight up against Sharp of Uxbridge. Roche of Beaverton, arrived late with his rink and played up to twelve o'clock to finish against Paterson of Scarboro.

The games consist of fourteen ends and can be finished comfortably in two hours and a half. Luncheon is served in the rink parlors.

A great deal of credit is due Mr. Angus McIntosh for the excellent ice which was available. The weather was very mild, yet the temperature of the rink had been so regulated that the ice was very keen, and of such smoothness as to rejoice the heart of the curler. All other arrangements in connection with the management of the rink and the accommodation and entertainment of the visitors was carried out to perfection by Mr. McIntosh.

The secretary, Mr. Knapman, was a busy man all day, but having had much experience the different draws were made and carried out to the great satisfaction of all concerned.

Following are the results of yesterday's games,—

A GOOD PRODUCTION

Bradburn's opera house was again filled to the doors last night to hear Young's Bijou Comedy Company. Last night's play was "Under Two Flags." The performance was up to the previous nights and fully as highly appreciated.

The specialties between acts were good, each number being encored. To-night's production will be "Kathleen Mavourneen." A matinee is being given this afternoon.

The 57th Band will be at the Brock St. Rink to-night. The ice is in good condition.

HUMOR

JUST LIKE A WOMAN.

The Beautiful Girl and the Young Man Whom She Rejected.

"What! You refuse me?"

His face betraying his intense astonishment and chagrin, the young man who faced the beautiful girl who had just blasted all his hopes staggered back in an excess of emotion. Then he drew himself up haughtily.

"It is, of course, your privilege," he said, "but do you realise what I have done for you? Six months ago, when we first became acquainted, I began to spend money. Look at the carriages we have had, the flowers I have sent, the elaborate suppers I have given you! Perhaps it is wrong to speak of these things, but did you not permit me to do all this? Indeed, did you not encourage me in my lavishness? How comes it now, in view of these facts, that you reject me? Was I not right in hoping for victory?"

She shook her head.

"Certainly not," she replied. "I did the right thing. Why, my dear boy, if I had had the slightest idea of marrying you do you suppose I would have permitted you to spend all that money?"

Willing to Pay For It.

The proud father was talking with the principal of the school about his girl.

"Your daughter, sir, is not making the progress she should. She's backward in French, doesn't seem to take to German, despises mathematics and"—

"Wait a minute, professor. Now tell me what's at the bottom of all this. Does she like her teachers?"

"I am afraid," replied the pedagogue, "that your daughter lacks capacity."

"Capacity! Capacity! Is that all? Then find it for her, sir; find it for her and charge it up in your bill."

Other Things.

Two small country lads met on the way to school.

"Howdy, Bill?" said one. "Have you all planted any potatoes?"

"Sure," replied Bill. "We all's planted nigh three bushel."

"Three bushel!" cried the other. "Say, Bill, me and pap planted twelve bushel."

Bill was at a loss for a minute or so and his little face lengthened. Then suddenly it brightened.

"Well," he said, "you see, we all eat somethin' besides potatoes at our house."

A Phenomenon.

"Your husband ain't very industrious, is he?" said the woman who was sitting in the sleigh in front of the village store.

"Well," answered the woman in the spring wagon, "sometimes he is and sometimes he ain't. He'll travel for miles and miles with a shotgun on his shoulder, but he can't walk a hundred yards with an armful of wood."

Nothing but the Truth.

"My work," remarked the baldheaded dentist, "is so painless that my patients often fall asleep in the chair while I am at work."

"Huh, that's nothing!" retorted his rival. "My patients nearly all insist on having their pictures taken while I am at work in order to catch the expression of delight on their faces."

Where It Was Warmed.

"Br-r-r-r! This car's as cold as Greenland. Why don't you warm it?" complained the passenger.

"G'wan!" retorted the conductor. "Wasn't it warmed all night last night in the car barn? You people want the earth, don't you?"

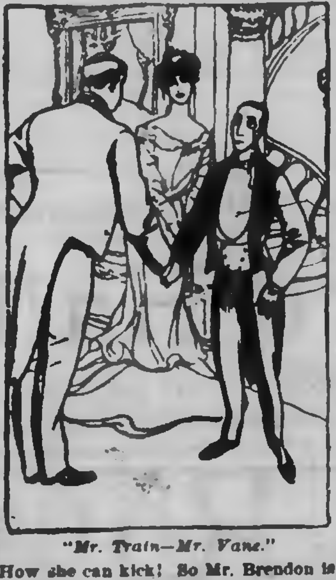
The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Company

"Oh, by no means," responded Mrs. Ward vivaciously. "A mere acquaintance, you know. I'm sure he's dull enough. Lola Velez—oh, a perfect dear! How she can kick! So Mr. Brendon is in—well, I never should have thought it of him; but these quiet men are always the worst."



"Mr. Train—Mr. Vane."

So Mrs. Ward rattled on in her incoherent manner, but perfectly clear in her own mind as to the good Vane's injudicious observation would do. If Dorothy once got it into her brain that George was an admirer of Lola, then there would be a chance of breaking the engagement. Before Vane could make any more remarks the gong thundered. "You take in Dorothy," she said to Vane, thus getting him off her shoulders, but not hoping to find Leonard a pleasant change. "I will take Mr. Train under my wing."

In this order they entered the dining room, Mrs. Ward trying to stifle a yawn and wondering how she would get through such a dull evening. Luckily, Vane mentioned that his grandfather had expressed his intention of looking in during the course of the evening. "If you will not mind, Mrs. Ward," he said politely.

"Oh, I'm rather glad," replied the little woman. "Such a delightful old gentleman! His anecdotes are quite in the best style. Do try this dish, Mr. Train. It is good."

Leonard did try it and did full justice to the merits of Mrs. Ward's cook. She kept a particularly good chef, as she knew the value of good cooking. "People like nice things to eat," she explained to Leonard, while Dorothy labored to entertain Vane. "One can break all the Ten Commandments if only one feeds the men." Then, thinking she had said too much, she added sweetly. "But of course I am only joking, Mr. Train, as one must be good and all that sort of thing."

"I'm sure you are all that is good and kind, Mrs. Ward."

"Now, that's really very nice of you. Mr. Brendon would never say a really nice thing like that. Of course he's a great friend of yours, isn't he? And he stopped with you when that poor woman"—

Leonard uttered an ejaculation. It seemed to him that he was pursued by the Amelia square tragedy. First Dorothy and now her mother. Was there no other topic of conversation? He would have answered an ordinary person rudely, being wearied of being questioned, but Mrs. Ward, having the key of the door which led into the fashionable world, was to be conciliated. He replied to her almost in the same words as he had used to Dorothy. "Mr. Brendon did stop with me," he said, "but we were asleep when the murder took place."

"How extraordinary!" said Mrs. Ward languidly, yet with a keen eye on the change in Leonard's face. "I wonder who killed her?"

"No one knows," replied Train shortly. "The police are quite at fault."

"Oh, the police!" said Mrs. Ward, in a proper tone of contempt. "They never do anything except make love to cooks. Do you suspect any one?"

Leonard flushed. "I, Mrs. Ward? Why should I suspect any one?"

"Oh, I don't know. You have a clever face. Just the kind of a face that one would think a brilliant detective would have. You must have some suspicions?" Again her eyes searched his face.

"No," he protested. "I was asleep. I know nothing about the matter."

"How stupid of you!" said Mrs. Ward, beginning to think that her condescension in asking Leonard to dinner was wasted. "But you men are always so blind, poor dears! Did Mrs. Jersey and Mr. Brendon get on well together? I suppose Mrs. Jersey liked him?"

"I think she did," replied Leonard, on whose weak head the claret was beginning to take effect, "but she was rather startled when she saw him first. It wasn't at him exactly, but at a piece of yellow holly he wore in his coat."

"Yellow holly," repeated Mrs. Ward, with feigned surprise. "Why, of course Mr. Brendon wore a sprig. My daughter gave it to him."

"So he told me, Mrs. Ward."

"And I gave it to Dorothy," continued Mrs. Ward, who for some reason wished to make an explicit statement. "It is very rare, you know, and a man who lives in Devonshire sent me a bunch. Dorothy mentioned that Mr. Brendon had begged for a piece. Yes, he would naturally wear it on that night, as he had just left my house. But why was this unfortunate woman surprised?"

"I can't say, but she was," answered Train. "She turned white, and we all thought she was about to faint."

"Did she give any explanation?"

"No. In a few moments she recovered, and nothing more was said."

"Oh?" Mrs. Ward seemed disappointed. "Was that all?"

"Why"—Leonard turned his dull eyes on her flushed face—"what else did you expect to hear, Mrs. Ward?"

"Nothing! Nothing," she said hurriedly, for she did not wish to make him suspicious; "but it seems so odd. Dorothy giving the holly, you know, and that Mrs. Jersey should be upset. We must continue this conversation, Mr. Train. It is really most interesting. But you literary men are quite fascinating. After dinner in the drawing room, Mr. Train. Dorothy!" She signaled with her fan, and her daughter arose. "Don't be too long over your wine," said Mrs. Ward as she left the room. "We can't spare you, Mr. Train."

Leonard believed that all this attention was due to his own fascinations. His head was still heated with the wine he had drunk, yet he began to regret that he had said anything about the yellow holly. Certainly he had not promised George to be silent on this especial point, but he nevertheless thought it wiser to hold his tongue about all that had taken place in Amelia square on the night of the murder. Warned in this way by his mother sense, Train took no more wine, but after a rather dull conversation with Vane he went into the drawing room. Dorothy was at the piano, and thither repaired Vane. But Mrs. Ward, seated near the fire, called Leonard to her side. "I must introduce you. Lord Derrington—Mr. Train."

The grandfather of George was a huge man, burly, red faced, white haired and with a rather truculent expression. He was over seventy, yet carried his years like a boy. Under his bushy white eyebrows he shot a quick glance at Leonard from a pair of keen gray eyes and summed him up at once as a fool. But Lord Derrington had been a diplomatist many years before and knew that even fools are sometimes useful. Moreover, he had learned from Mrs. Ward's aimless chatter that Train was a great friend of Brendon's, and he knew more about George than George thought. However, Derrington, after that one glance of contempt, was very civil to Leonard.

"I am glad to meet you," he said, with a nod. "You go in for books, I understand from Mrs. Ward."

He had a deep, raucous voice like that of an early starling, and spoke in an abrupt staccato kind of way. Train, who stood before him like a rabbit before a snake, compared him in his own mind with Becky Sharp's friend, the Marquis of Steyne. Derrington was quite as wicked and savage and unscrupulous as that celebrated nobleman.

Derrington seemed to Leonard to have the instincts of a despot, and Leonard could imagine him slaying and burning and doing all manner of evil things. He wondered how Brendon ever came to have such a villainous grandfather. It was on the tip of his tongue to say something about Brendon, just to observe the effect on Derrington. At that moment fate intervened. The drawing room door opened, and a servant announced, "Mr. Brendon!"

The next moment George came face to face with his grandfather.

CHAPTER X.

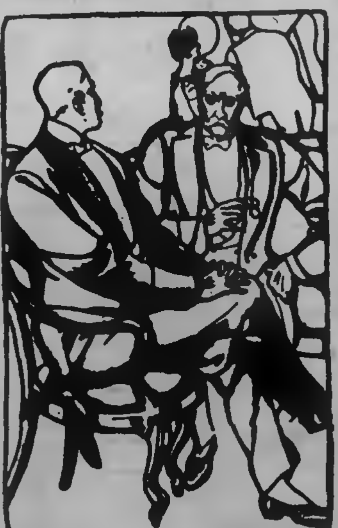
It was a most awkward meeting. Dorothy, Train and Brendon knew the truth, but Mrs. Ward and Vane were ignorant. As to Lord Derrington himself, George was not sure. After his conversation with Lola he had a vague idea that, since Bawdsey was connected in some way with his grandfather, Lord Derrington must have somehow learned that Brendon was the name his grandson had taken. There was no other way of accounting for the mention of Derrington's name by the private detective.

However this might be, Lord Derrington was too clever a man to betray himself. George felt that the old man knew who he was, but he could not be sure, for Derrington welcomed him with a well bred air, as he would have done a stranger. Mrs. Ward watched the meeting curiously, and Brendon noticed her inquiring gaze, but he put this down to his knowledge that Derrington knew he was a suitor for Dorothy's hand and wished the girl to marry Vane. Leonard was the only person in the room who displayed any visible disturbance. He grew red and restless. Brendon was perfectly calm.

"How delightful of you to come, Mr. Brendon," said Mrs. Ward, rising and apparently forgetting that she had forbidden him the house. "I must introduce you. Lord Derrington—Mr. Brendon, and you know Mr. Train."

"We are old friends," said George calmly. "Miss Ward"—he bowed to Dorothy, who emulated his serenity, although she felt anxious. But when she saw her lover's composure she knew that nothing disagreeable would occur, and her apprehensions were relieved.

There ensued a general conversation relative to the weather, to the doings of a certain politician and to sundry other subjects more or less vague. George talked excellently and was conscious that Derrington was listening with approval. Again and again he wondered if the old man really knew who he was, and again and again he failed to arrive at any conclusion. After a time Leonard went with Dorothy to the piano, where she played for his delectation, and Mrs. Ward seized the opportunity to show Vane some new photographs of herself. Derrington and Brendon were practically alone, and the old lord appeared anxious to make himself agreeable.



"I have heard of you from Mrs. Ward."

"I have heard of you from Mrs. Ward," he said in his harsh tones, which no amount of politeness could render agreeable, "but I do not think we have met before. Are you related to the Brendons of Shropshire?"

"No. I have not that privilege."

Derrington chuckled at this reply. He thought George had a good deal of the man in him when he answered thus fearlessly. "I have seen your name somewhere lately," he observed, "but I can't recall where or in what connection."

Brendon laughed, quite at his ease, although he did not know if this was an attempt to make him speak out. However, he did speak out, with the idea of seeing what would happen. "I can supply the connection," said he lightly, but keenly observant of the old man's face. "My name appeared as a witness at an inquest a week or so back."

"Ah, now I remember, Mr. Brendon. Quite so. It was that Amelia square murder."

"You have a good memory, Lord Derrington."

"In this case you flatter me, Mr. Brendon. There is no difficulty in my remembering the especial case, as Mrs. Jersey was a tenant of mine."

George was not supposed to know this and displayed suitable surprise.

"Indeed," he said; "then you have lost a good tenant."

"Possibly," replied Derrington, rather grimly. "She always paid her rent regularly. You saw her?"

"Yes. My friend, Mr. Train, was stopping in the house"—

"That young man." Derrington cast a look in Leonard's direction. "I did not know he was there on that night."

"He was a witness also," said Brendon significantly.

"I can't remember all the names, sir. Well?"

"I stopped for the night with Mr. Train and during the night Mrs. Jersey was murdered."

"You heard nothing—saw nothing?"

"I was sound asleep the whole time," said Brendon calmly.

"Humph!" Derrington pulled at his gray mustache in the very same way as George did when he was reflective. "What a pity. You might have discovered the assassin."

"I don't think the assassin will ever be discovered."

"That's lucky for the assassin," rejoined the old lord cynically. "You appear to be very certain, Mr. Brendon."

George shrugged his shoulders. "No more certain than the police are," he replied. "They examined every one in the house, and no one could be accused—there was absolutely no evidence."

Derrington for some reason appeared to be rather relieved. "I read all that in the papers," he said roughly. "You are telling me nothing new. But there, you didn't say you would. By the way, do you know a Miss Bull?"

George nodded. "She told my fortune," he said.

"She told Mrs. Jersey's fortune also, and a very true fortune did she tell," said Derrington grimly. "What did she prophesy about you?"

"There were trouble and enemies and the promise that I should get my wish," said Brendon, with a quick look.

Derrington laughed. "What is your wish?"

"If I tell it I won't get it," replied George, also laughing, "but I don't believe in fortune telling. It is rubbish."

"It wasn't in Mrs. Jersey's case," said the other, who appeared to be a trifle superstitious.

"Oh, that was a mere coincidence. But you asked me about Miss Bull, sir. Do you know her?"

Derrington nodded. "She came to me on behalf of Mrs. Jersey's niece and wished the lease renewed. I heard her story and consented. I dare say the niece will be quite as good a tenant as the aunt."

To be continued.

—The executive of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute as well as the officers of East Peterborough and East Durham will meet in the council chamber on Saturday to arrange for the annual excursion which will likely be to the Model Farm, Guelph, in June next.

A QUESTION OF CARPETING.

A Neat, Pretty and Inexpensive "Hit and Miss" Solved It Satisfactorily.

Our new house was to be finished in the fall, and by that time all of our extra capital would be finished also. I was trying to think of some nice but inexpensive way to furnish the second story rooms when Aunt Anna came to visit us for a month, says a writer in the New Idea Magazine.

"Twenty years ago the carpet question did not worry young housekeepers, for every bride was expected to have a fine web of rag carpet to begin with, and really I think there is nothing prettier or more suitable for upstairs bedrooms than the soft tones of a well made rag carpet," said Aunt Anna after I had told her of my plans and the size of my purse. "But how can I make one?" I asked after thinking of all of the castoff garments in the family. "By going to work," she replied, "and when you run out of material at home call on your aunts and cousins."

So we began at once and soon had all our material collected. "To insure a smooth, even carpet we must use all cotton rags and cut them all of such width that when woven they will be of uniform thickness. Rags cut from soft goods will beat up closer in the weaving than those cut from stiffer material and should be about as thick as six ply of the chain or an oat straw when woven into the carpet," said Aunt Anna as she rolled and twisted a strip between her fingers.

First we cut in strips all the dark and all the bright colored rags. These we mixed well, lapping the ends about an inch and sewing them diagonally across with the machine. Not stopping to clip the thread each time, we soon had a long strip sewed, and then, clipping it apart, we wound it into balls of about one pound each. We had decided to make rugs 9 by 12 feet. These would require twelve yards of yard wide carpet. Each square yard of carpet requires one pound of rags, so we stopped when we had sewed twelve pounds of rags.

The rags were sewed hit and miss and of so many colors that we selected the chain in six different colors, a pound of each, and had it laid thread about so that there would be no stripes.

Besides the rags the carpet cost: Six pounds of chain, at 25 cents per pound, $1.50; twelve yards weaving, at 10 cents per yard, $1.20; total, $2.70.

DR. MACKAY'S SPECIFIC FOR THE TREATMENT OF ALCOHOLISM.

Used in Connection With the Province of Quebec Probation System With Unvarying Success.

The City Council of Montreal has endorsed this marvellous discovery. The Finance Committee of Montreal recently voted $500 to defray the expense of placing the medicine in each of the city Police Stations, as prompt application of the treatment to bad cases will prevent the fatalities continually occurring in the cells.

No Sanitarium is required. The Treatment can be taken at home. No special diet required. The desire to reform is simply necessary and spirits avoided for a few days.

This medicine is now within the reach of all, the price having been reduced. The wonderful results obtained with worst class of drunkards coming before the Judges of the Recorders' Courts in Quebec and Montreal warrants the statement that the disease of Drunkenness can be cured—readily and surely—under ordinary circumstances and with the reasonable desire upon the part of an inebriate.

This treatment is simply the medicine of the medical profession—the only secret is as to its administration.

Dr. Mackay's discovery is the result of 25 years of practice as a specialist and expert. He is a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Province of Quebec.

The Government of Quebec through the Judges ordered over 600 boxes of the medicine for prisoners appearing in the Courts in 1904—Official Reports establish 80 per cent. of cures with these cases.

With the public and official endorsation and the record of results published it is unnecessary to waste money experimenting further. All communications private.

SAVERS OF HUMAN LIFE.

Three Notable Discoveries Made by Japanese.

We are in debt to Japan for at least three notable discoveries, two of which have already saved many European lives, says the London Academy. The oldest of these is the discovery by Kitasato, a Japanese bacteriologist, of the bacillus that causes lockjaw, or tetanus, leading to the production of an antitoxin serum which is now regularly used and is by far the most efficient remedy we possess for this terrible disease.

A Japanese observer named Shiga has recently discovered the bacillus which causes a great many cases of dysentery, and, though that discovery has not yet led to any improvement in prevention or treatment and will, therefore, not lower during the present struggle between Russia and Japan the death rate from that dire foe of the soldier in wartime, no one doubts that this is the first step toward our control of another deadly disease.

The third discovery is really more interesting because it raises newer problems. There is in the body of each of us a pair of organs known as the adrenal glands, yet unknown to the public, though life could not continue without them. It was a Japanese chemist, Takamine, who isolated from these glands the invaluable substance which they produce for the benefit of the rest of the body. It is known as adrenalin. It is the most powerful of all chemical agents for stopping hemorrhage. It will arrest bleeding from the nose when everything else has failed. Not that that much matters, for the nose is accessible to mechanical means, but adrenalin has already saved many lives that were oozing away in a thin red stream no surgeon could reach.

The Dish That Cannot Break.

It is found—the boon that housekeepers have sighed for, the fatal gift that will drive mad the cook in her tantrums—the dish that cannot break. Mr. McNally, United States consul at Liege, Belgium, reveals to a happy world this wonderful kind of plate, which is made in that town. It is of specially hardened crystal and looks like fine, translucent china. The consul has seen plates of it "hurled to the stone floor of a warehouse and go bounding along the whole length of the building without suffering the least damage." Elastic, immortal! Plunge it in boiling water, then into ice water, and you only improve this plate of genius. You can use it as "a hammer for driving nails into wood." In the same town and by the same company is made glassware equally robust and immune from fracture. Glass and china are no longer to be marked "perishable." But how will cook relieve her feelings now?—Everybody's Magazine.

The World's Savings Banks.

In the savings banks of the world 82,640,000 depositors have over $10,500,000,000 to their credit, says the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics. This is the detailed record of the larger countries: United States, $3,060,178,611; Germany, $2,273,406,226; United Kingdom, $906,854,253; Austria, $876,941,982; France, $847,224,910; Italy, $482,263,472; Russia, $445,014,981; Hungary, $432,810,515; Denmark, $236,170,057; Switzerland, $193,000,000; Australia, $164,161,981. The average deposits range from $418.89 for the United States to $5.46 for Japan. Canada is second with $289.14. The deposits per capita of population vary from $66.41 for Denmark to 15 cents for Italy. The American per capita is $37.38. The Japanese per capita is 90 cents, the Russian $3.16 and the Canadian $10.99. Switzerland is second with $62.26.

College Fudge.

Forty words in the English language are spelled the same forward and backward.

Tulips.

The origin of the names of plants is often curious if not quaint. Tulip comes from a Persian word meaning turban and having reference to the shape of the flower.

A French Market Custom.

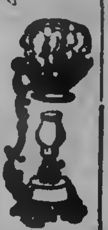
In France a man or woman who goes to market on the day of the saint whose name he or she bears receives a bouquet of cut flowers or a pot of "fragrant roses" or "graceful lilies attractively dressed in their stiff, white paper collaret."

Robinson Crusoe.

Charles Dickens once said of "Robinson Crusoe" that it was "the most popular story in the world and yet one which never drew a smile or a tear."

Fighting Crickets.

Among the curiosities of Canton are shops where crickets are reared for fighting, as the Filipino fighting cocks. The Chinese gamble on the results, and a good fighting cricket is sometimes sold for $100.



A Siege

The matrons of the Edison Orphanage at Lowell, Mass. U.S.A., wrote they had a siege of whooping-cough in their institution. They said that every case was promptly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene. Its value in coughs and colds was so great they always kept it ready for use. You know how it's used, don't you? 'Tis heated by a vaporizer and you inhale it. Write us for a book that tells all about it.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists, or sent express prepaid on receipt of price. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit including a bottle of Cresolene, complete $1.50. Send for free illustrated booklet. Leeming, Miles Co., Ltd., Agents 288 St. James Street, Montreal, Can.

A Convenient Kitchen Table.

The design shown herewith illustrates a table that represents not a little experience and consideration of what goes to make the most convenient table, says the Ladies' World. It has a large top, which keeps dishes and pans from getting into inextricable confusion, and it has a large number of drawers, which are always convenient, and also closet room. Two slides pull out, on which pans may be set when one is sitting at work at the table, while in the long space under the center of the table is a chance to hang a multitude of kettles and other kitchen utensils. These are protected from dust by a washable curtain that slides upon a rod at the front of the opening.

Bell Ringing Curiosity.

A curiosity in the matter of bell ringing is to be met with at Fulburne, near Cambridge, England. The church bells there not only ring the hours of the day, but at intervals also the date of the month. Thus at 12 o'clock noon on the 31st there would be forty-three strokes.

Rats Eat Oranges.

Lover's Queer Test.

Suitors for the hands of the fair maidens of lower Austria are subjected to a curious ordeal. Before he is accepted a young man has to stand open mouthed near a hive of wild bees. If the bees are not attracted by his breath he is accepted as being no drinker.

THINK IT OVER.

Something You Can See In Any Restaurant or Cafe.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from 60 to 80 years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile?

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous, sickly-looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantities any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels, and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly, and thus gives a much-needed rest and giving an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating, as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have pinned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages, and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

Julia—She doesn't hold it at all. She gives it away every time she smiles.—Chicago Tribune.

The Lobster's Advantage.

The lobster has been endowed by nature with two gifts which go far to offset the evils attending his lot. One is the ability to fight early, often and all the time if necessary, and the other is the ability to grow a new member—an eye, a leg or a claw—whenever the original is lost in the fortunes of war or by reason of any domestic unpleasantness. It is these two gifts which enable him to grow up and become a useful member of society, most of his members being secondhand, so to speak, by the time he is really grown.

There are no paupers in Servia. Even the poorest people succeed in establishing homes of their own, and most of them own them.

The Seal's Human Cry.

The cries of no animals approach more closely that of the human voice than those of seals when lamenting the loss or capture of their young. They emit a wailing and affecting cry similar to that of a woman in deep grief.

When Children Walk.

Nearly 10 per cent of children learn to walk by the time they are ten months old.

Trees of Finland.

The trees of Finland are the money bags of the people. A peasant even makes his shoes from birch bark and thatches his roof with shavings. He virtually lives on wood.

Frank, if Callous.

A north country (England) manufacturer, when asked why he had built for his work people cottages which paid no regard to sanitation or to comforts and decencies of life, replied that the cottages were to sleep in, his work people living in the factory.

Milk Bacteria.

In the best milk bacteria number 10,000 to a spoonful. In a really bad sample of milk the astonishing total of 600,000,000 is reached.

The Better Way

PEOPLE used to chew cinchona bark until the quinine capsule was invented. People used to take raw cod liver oil, too, until Scott's Emulsion was introduced. The person who would take raw cod liver oil now would, no doubt, also use a spirit lamp and spinning-wheel. The reason Scott's Emulsion is so vastly superior to the raw cod liver oil and the results of its use so much more satisfactory is because it is perfectly adapted to weak conditions of the body. The stomach can accept and retain it even when vitality is low and the functions slow to act.

Scott's Emulsion

enters the system almost entirely digested. It puts no strain on the stomach or weakened organs. The nourishment it gives passes quickly into the blood. Its goodness reaches the seat of weakness quickly, easily and without effort. An improvement begins at once. There's nothing in the world like it for thin, weak people or pale, delicate children. Consumptives and those affected with chronic colds, coughs and bronchitis are invariably helped by Scott's Emulsion.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

There will be no games in the Guild League this evening. The schedule has been completed with the exception of a postponed game and two tie games. These will be played off as soon as possible.

City League Game.

To-morrow's City League game is arousing a lot of interest. Both outfits are in the pink of condition and the game should be a good exhibition. The winners of this match meet the Karnots in the final, while the loser goes down and out. Mr. R. M. Glover will be referee.

Seniors Practice To-Night.

The seniors will practice to-night between 7 and 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

George st. and St. John's Guilds will meet in a guild league match tomorrow evening between 6.30 and 7.30 at the Brock st. rink. This has an important bearing on the championship.

Berlin Won.

Berlin won from Stratford last night by 4 goals to 1. The Classic City should have no trouble in reversing the score in the return game.

The Harbor Out.

Thamesites defeated Victoria Harbor at the Harbor last night by 10 goals to 2. Thamesites thus wins the round by 12 goals to 7. Peterborough will play the winner of the Western group and the successful team will in all probability play a sudden death game at Barrie with the Thamesites team.

CURLING.

Will Try Again.

A Lindsay despatch says—After a short game of five rinks a side last night, in which the tankard rinks, Winnipeg rink, and District Cup rinks took part, a supper was tendered to Mr. Flavelle and his men at the Benson House. The President of the club occupied the chair and had on his right hand the Winnipeg rink and on his left the Mayor of the town, Mr. D. Ray, and Mr. R. Kennedy, the president of the Board of Trade. About one hundred of the citizens were present and a very jolly two hours were spent.

After the usual loyal toasts were honored, the toast of the Winnipeg rink was given, speeches being made by Messrs. O'Connor, Ray, Stewart, and Kennedy. Mr. Flavelle and his rink made replies, thanking the club and citizens for their welcome. They appreciated it the more as this year they had not been fortunate enough to bring back any of the much-coveted cups that are put up for competition. Mr. Flavelle in his speech referred to the pleasure they had in having been associated in the trip out and whilst in Winnipeg with the Scott rink, of Toronto; the Vernon rink of Collingwood; and two rinks from Montreal. The Ontario curlers had no reason to feel anything but proud of the showing made by the three rinks that represented the province in Winnipeg. He had enjoyed his trip very much. Winnipeg curlers always give you the fairest of treatment and play the noble game like true sportsmen and have always a hearty welcome for curlers from the East. He stated that it was his intention to go back again next year for the tenth time with a Lindsay rink.

COMPARATIVE STATISTICS

Relating to Area, Population and Products of Canada and United States.

U (Weekly Sun.)

Here are some statistics relating to Canada and the United States which may prove interesting to our readers. They have been compiled from the latest available official reports—

The area of the United States in 1800 was 827,000 square miles; to-day it is 3,000,000.

The population of the country in the same time has increased from 5,308,000 to over 80,000,000.

It was not until 1820 that the United States began producing coal. In that year production was limited to 365 tons. In 1900 production ran beyond 2 1-2 billion tons.

Gold production began in 1810 with an output of $2,463. In 1903 the total amounted to over 74 1-2 millions.

The United States did not begin making steel until 1870, and in that year production reached less than 69,000 tons. For 1900 the figure was over 10,000,000 tons.

In 1830 the railways of the United States had a mileage of 23; even in 1860 the total was less than 31,000; to-day it is 200,000.

Exports of cotton have grown from less than 800,000,000 pounds in 1830 to over 3 1-2 billion pounds in 1903.

The number of telegrams sent have increased from 9,000,000 in 1870 to nearly 92,000,000 last year.

FENELON FALLS MAN DIES

His Bravery in Rescuing One Employee and Trying to Save Life of Another—Comparisons as to Worth.

A special despatch from Revelstoke, B. C., dated Feb. 8, says,—"W. R. Beatty died in the hospital in this city this morning at one o'clock from the effects of burns on his head, shoulders and hands, just twenty-four hours after receiving injuries in the fire at Arrow Head Lumber Co.'s boarding house." It is mentioned, says the Fenelon Falls Gazette, incidentally, that "Robert Taggart was burned to death after saving the life of one of the employees and trying to save another man." It is almost but not quite, certain that the Robert Taggert who thus died heroically was a former resident of this village who distinguished himself by owning for a few days (or hours) the afterwards celebrated trotting horse "Little Hen;" for the ownership of such an animal, for ever so brief a period confers a distinction of which any man of the slightest sporting proclivities might feel proud. "Bob" left here several years ago, and as he was lately heard from out British Columbia way, he was probably the man we now read of. But whether he was or not makes no difference. The man who lost his life while trying to save the life of another was undoubtedly some "horny handed son of toil," and the bare announcement of his death (notwithstanding the circumstances under which it happened) was all that was thought necessary. But Mr. Beatty was a much more important person, politically and financially speaking, and receives a much more extended obituary notice. He had represented Parry Sound for two terms in the Ontario Legislature, and was widely known in lumbering circles by his varied interests, being engaged alternately in Ontario, Nova Scotia, and British Columbia;" and—which in our opinion is greatly more to his credit—was large-hearted, sympathetic and generous. Now, we have nothing to say against the implied eulogy of Mr. Beatty, but we think poor Bob ought to have had more than three out of forty-eight lines in the despatch from Revelstoke. True, he wasn't an ex-M.L.A., and hadn't varied interests anywhere, which latter was the cause of his being so summarily treated but he saved one man's life and perished in the attempt to save another's, and we think he deserved a few words of approval. It is not what a man has but what he is, that he is judged by, and the last act of Taggart's life showed that he was capable of something far more heroic than getting elected to Parliament or acquiring "varied interests." Scripture says "Do good unto thyself and men will speak well of thee," and no truer words were ever written. Mr. Beatty did good unto himself; Robert Taggart—partly from want of ability and partly from want of favoring circumstances was not able to do so, and the fact that he was able and willing to do good unto others doesn't seem to count.

LOVE FINDS A WAY

How Toronto Bridegroom Overcame Difficulties to be Wedded at Minden.

Messrs. Norman A. and Ross Craig, of Toronto, with Mr. Chas. Noice, had a rather trying trip on their way from Toronto to Minden on Tuesday last being due on Wednesday forenoon for the wedding of the first named gentleman.

Arriving at Lindsay, they found the train on the Haliburton branch cancelled for the day owing to the snow blockade on that line. Nothing daunted the party started to drive through, and reached Fenelon Falls, where they got a fresh team, and started onwards on their journey through night. After driving three hours in the storm the driver found himself lost, so he turned back on his tracks, reaching Fall's Crossing after a 7 mile return drive, here the driver deposited his passengers on the railway track with their grips in their hand, to walk to Kinmount, 17 miles, where they reached a little after 5 o'clock in the morning, tired out and nearly frozen. After getting some food the party got a livery rig and made a start for Minden, reaching here after 5 hours struggling through deep snow drifts, and arriving in time to keep the wedding appointment.—Minden Echo.

Facial Paralysis

Mr. W. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My face was all twisted out of shape with facial paralysis, and five doctors failed to cure or even relieve. By the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been entirely cured, and have returned to work strong and well. I have gained in weight and feel that I have a new lease of life." 10

EXCITING WINTER MISHAP

Adventure of a Bensfort Party—Other News From That Place.

Bensfort, Feb. 21.—Mr. Edgar Wood on Saturday evening, Feb. 4th, left his home to go to his brother-in-law's. His sister, Mrs. Wordie Perrin, Miss M. Howson and Miss Mary Moncrief accompanied him. They were a mile on their way, when the horses became unmanageable, breaking the tongue from the cutter and throwing them out into the snow. The unfortunate young man was rendered unconscious by the fall, and was almost smothered to death in the deep snow. The young ladies got off without any serious injuries, with the exception of having to walk home through the deep drifts. They have been suffering since from a bad cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Wordie Perrin entertained a number of their friends on Friday evening, February 10th. An excellent spread was made and the oysters were well prepared by Mr. Bert Byers. The company enjoyed the sumptuous feast. After supper a short programme was rendered by Mr. Bert Byers and Miss Minnie Howson. Mrs. Wordie Perrin performed upon the piano. Among those present were Mr. W. E. Wood, of Bensfort, and Miss Lily White, of Peterborough.

The company remained over until Saturday evening, when they drove to Mr. Alfred Wood's, near Keene, where a pleasant time was spent.

On Monday evening, February 6th, an "At Home" was held at the residence of Mr. Bert Byers, Lakeview Mansion, where a very pleasant time was spent. Progressive games were played until supper was given, and after that music was provided for dancing.

Mr. W. E. Wood has in his possession a very valuable animal which he is offering for sale. He has refused the sum of two hundred and twenty-five dollars by several who have been there to see it. Mr. Wood has an excellent stock of horses on hand, which he has raised himself.

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 22nd, a ball is to be given in the town hall, Bensfort, by the C.O.F. of that place. A good time is expected and music is to be provided by the Bensfort orchestra in charge of Mr. David Chambers.

Mr. William Smith has been very busy this winter sawing up logs for the farmers. Mr. Smith is making it a very paying business. He has now on hand three hundred and fifty logs to be sawed.

WOMAN'S GREATEST ENEMY

Constipation the Cause of most Women's Troubles—An Easy Way to Permanently Cure this Painful Condition.

There are few women indeed who do not suffer with chronic constipation. Nearly all are slaves to some kind of medicine to correct this trouble, and yet they get nothing but temporary relief. One period of constipation is followed by another, and it's physic, physic, physic, year in and year out, till life becomes a burden.

There is now a sure cure for this condition and a cure that does not have to be repeated. It is Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill.

Dr. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., is the author of this prescription. He used it for years with wonderful success in his own large practice as a remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, and constipation.

Many ladies who have suffered for years are now enjoying good health and a perfect freedom from the old constipation through the use of Anti-Pill.

Mrs. Tabb, 287 Emerald St. North, Hamilton, Ont., says:

"I am no longer troubled with constipation. I cannot praise Anti-Pill too highly."

OUR SLOVENLY BOND ISSUES

Money Saved by Adopting Businesslike Methods.

POINTER FOR MUNICIPALITIES

Great Dissatisfaction Expressed With Careless Manner in Which Bond Issues are Frequently Made.

Great dissatisfaction is expressed with the slovenly manner in which the greater number of Ontario's 800 odd municipalities make their bond issues, and it is maintained that this slovenliness seriously handicaps the successful flotation of such issues. Mr. A. L. Cronsin, of the Toronto General Trusts Company, deals with the whole question in an interesting article appearing in the Municipal World. Mr. Cronsin says in part—Certain well understood qualities should attach to all securities seeking the markets of the world. The power of the issuing corporation to pledge its assets should be readily proved. The debentures should be attractive in form, well printed on good paper. They should be payable at a financial centre. The coupons should be easily detached and promptly paid.

The municipal issues of the Province are ear-marked by their defects. The by-laws authorizing the issues are crudely drawn and often defective. Whoever purchases securities thereunder without the assistance of a solicitor does so at his peril.

The debentures themselves are badly printed on cheap paper and usually hideous in their ugliness. Cheapness and vulgarity are writ all over them. Frequently the paper is so flimsy that the security will not bear handling.

The debentures are often issued in inconvenient amounts, perhaps in very large denominations; the coupons may be payable at out-of-the-way places. Typewritten debentures are an evidence of poverty, perforated coupons of exaggerated cleverness.

Investors who have purchased municipal debentures and have paid the inevitable solicitor's fees, and later the bank exchange on the collection of the coupons, perhaps fondly anticipate that the worst is over. Two or three days after depositing the coupons in the bank a messenger walks in with the coupons and the information that funds have not been provided at the place of payment to meet them. In blunder language, the municipality has defaulted.

This apparent contempt of financial obligation may be explained. The bonds expressly declare the place of payment. As a matter of convenience, this is usually the office of the bank where the municipality's account is kept. Subsequently, new banking arrangements are made without reference to the outstanding debentures. When these are presented at the old bank payment is refused—perhaps, under a sense of injury, with a grim satisfaction.

The contrast between municipal securities and those of railway, industrial, and other companies is a striking one. The latter seek, by every means in their power, to popularize their bond issues. They study the convenience of investors. The assets offered as a pledge are mortgaged to trustees whose signature on the bonds attests their regularity. An independent counsel furnishes an opinion that the issue is binding on the company. The issue is listed on the Stock Exchange.

When these securities come into the hands of the investor they are found to be handsomely lithographed on the best linen paper in a form which lends itself to the filing system in current use, while the coupons are conveniently arranged for clipping. The place of payment is invariably a prominent bank or trust company in the leading financial centre of the country.

Municipalities in Ontario rely upon the acknowledged superiority of the security offered to obtain a market for their debentures. A little attention to the other factors in fixing the price of their securities, the window dressing if you will, would so popularize this form of security as to effect a reduction in the rate of interest commonly paid. Should this reduction amount to only one-quarter of one per cent. per annum, the saving would be $175,000 per year. The fact that the banks hold scores of millions of dollars on deposit at low rates of interest would indicate that a field for the planting of municipal debentures is yet unworked.

It is not the purpose of this article to suggest the means of securing the reforms demanded. It will probably be found in the surrender by the municipalities of some of their power to a central bureau after the model of the Local Government Board of Great Britain. Many students of political science in Canada support the establishment of such a department on grounds of general efficiency.

SENT DOWN FOR TRIAL

Harold Pamphillion Issued Cheques For Which There Were no Funds.

A young man named Harold Pamphillion was yesterday committed for trial at Lindsay by County Magistrate Deacon on a charge of fraud. The particular charge on which he was sent up was only one of a dozen that could be lodged against him for Pamphillion went into the business wholesale, and over a wide territory. His particular line was issuing cheques for which there were no funds. He was in trouble in Toronto in 1902 for similar conduct.

A month ago he operated in Orillia. Then he visited Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay and Peterborough, in each case perpetrating more or less of his favorite fraud. Constable Brock, of Fenelon Falls, was after him most of this time with a warrant from Orillia and in Peterborough he was arrested, but let go because the police thought he did not answer to the description sent. The other day Constable Brock arrested him at Cavanville.

PUT DUTY ON BINDER TWINE.

The letter which we produce to-day from the Ottawa Citizen amply justifies the consistent course the Review has always taken on tariff matters.

At the time the duty was taken off binder twine we pointed out that the Laurier Government was making a huge blunder, that the removal of the duty on twine would stifle what was destined to be a large industry in Canada, and that ultimately the Canadian farmer would be obliged to pay tribute to the monster, which even then was being warmed into being and which has within the past two years developed into the most colossal combine of history. But no heed was paid to the warnings, and now, unless the Government move quickly, we will see the price of an article used exclusively by the farming community regulated by an American combine, who, after they have shifted competition, will make our farmers pay dearly for the so-called blessings of free trade.

A comparison of the prices of binder twine during the past ten years will show that the farmers of the country have been paying more for their twine since the duty was taken off this article than they paid for it while the duty was maintained. As the Canadian harvest is the last to come on, on this continent, the American makers have always been able to so regulate the production of the twine as to cause an apparent shortage in Canada at the time the twine was needed. A scarcity of any article always means higher prices. Only the other day during the passing of estimates for the Department of Justice, it developed that even the Dominion Government is only operating the convict binder twine plant at Kingston Penetentiary one-half or one-quarter the time, that, to-day, the penitentiary twine plant is idle because the Government finds itself in the humiliating position of being afraid to go with the market to purchase fibre for the coming harvest's requirements, not knowing if the International Harvester Co. will allow them to sell their twine at a price which will give them back the cost of their raw material. When this is the position which the Government finds itself in at the hands of the trust, is it any wonder that the twine mills at Chatham, Ayton and Walkerton in this province, and at Brandon, Manitoba, have been obliged to close their doors and throw hundreds of deserving working people out of employment.

In the United States within a few weeks, the Standard Rope & Twine Co., and the New Bedford Cordage Co. have been forced into liquidation. These two Companies were probably the largest makers of binder twine outside of the Harvester trust, in the United States. They were made the special target of the Harvester monopoly and were forced to succumb to the cannonading of the artillery turned on them by such generals in the art of trust warfare as Rockefeller, Morgan and other multi-millionaires, who constitute the International Harvester Co. These men are not content to bleed the farming community of the continent by night by their Standard Oil manipulations, but must now hold them up in daylight by making them pay tribute on every farming implement and pound of binder twine they and their descendants will use for all time to come.

It is not yet too late for the Dominion Government to save the important binder twine industry to Canada. The placing of an adequate duty on all binder twine imported from the United States will stimulate the stagnant industry and save the farmers of our fair Dominion from the clutches of the greatest octopus which has yet fastened its tentacles on this or any other country.

PEN POINTS.

The revenue from succession duties in January amounted to $132,287. If this is any indication of the rate of accumulation during the current year the total should be far in excess of that for 1904, which was $458,083.

Frozen hydrants so interfered with the work of the firemen in New York the other day that when an insignificant blaze was discovered in a factory it developed into a $100,000 loss before it was extinguished. The town authorities should during the present mild weather make a thorough examination and see that there are no frozen hydrants in Peterborough.

Ontario millers of oats have a grievance against the operation of the tariff, which is being voiced more strongly now that oats are selling at 46 cents. This duty on imported oats is two cents per bushel and with the price in the United States about 30 cents, this duty amounts to 33 1-3 per cent. on the raw material, whereas the duty on oatmeal is only 20 per cent. This, it is claimed, gives an advantage to American millers in our market.

Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, referring to the discussion in the House of Commons in regard to the prevention of tuberculosis, said he liked the suggestion that the Dominion Government appoint a commission to look into and report upon the whole subject. If it should be carried out he hoped the recommendations adopted would be such that they would not be followed by the Dominion authorities, but would be of valuable assistance to the Provincial and municipal organization in the erection and maintenance along economic lines of suitable sanatoria. He pointed out that the cost of these sanatoria, would not as in the case of asylums and other institutions, be constantly on the increase, through continuous additions to buildings and growing number of inmates, because people would not become educated up to the point where they would realize that personal hygiene was a great factor in preventing disease, and the infection would be circumscribed. Hence it was quite reasonable to predict that after the initial expenditure the tendency would be towards an ever-lessening cost.

What is Paralysis?

A QUESTION OF INTEREST TO THOUSANDS WHO HAVE NOT LEARNED THE CURATIVE POWER OF

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Paralysis is loss of power of motion.

Movement is the result of contraction of muscle.

Muscles cannot contract of themselves, but are entirely controlled by the nerves.

As a result paralysis is almost always due to lack of nerve force.

Increase the nerve force in the body by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Revitalize the wasted and depleted nerve cells. Restore vigor to the weakened nervous system, and paralysis must disappear.

But it is not on theory that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is recommended as a cure and preventative for paralysis.

It has established a surprising record of cures, and the cured ones are willing and anxious that other sufferers should know about it.

But do not wait for helplessness to overtake you before beginning treatment.

If you suffer from weakness, sleeplessness, irritability, headache, twitching of nerves and muscles, trembling of limbs, loss of memory and of power to concentrate the mind, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will prove of incalculable worth to you. Put it to the test.

Mrs. Barbara Bush, Dixon, Stormont, Co., Ont., writes—"I suffered a great deal from dizziness in the head and numbness of the whole system, more especially the arms and hands, feet and legs. When I tried to walk my legs seemed to want to cross each other and I would be afraid of falling and grasp for a chair or table. I also had distressing nervous feelings at times and suffered from a gnawing sensation in my stomach.

"I am pleased to say I have derived a great deal of benefit from using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It has built up my nervous system and removed the miserable feelings from which I suffered. I am very grateful that I ever heard of this great medicine for it has done wonders for me. As I am seventy-three years old my system was run down and this treatment seemed to be exactly what I needed. I hope others will benefit by my experience."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

God Save the King

A GIGANTIC TRUST

Condition Which Threatens Existence of Several Leading Canadian Industries.

To Editor of Ottawa Citizen

Sir—An editorial article entitled "A Vicious Octopus" appeared in the issue of the 12th inst. of the Minneapolis Times which is of special interest to Canadian farmers, to the Canadian agricultural implement manufacturers and to the twine manufacturers. The opening paragraphs of this editorial are as follows—

"If there is one trust more vicious than another—with the possible exception of the beef combination—it is the International Harvester Company an incubus that has fastened its suckers on the agricultural community of the United States and strangled competition in a most shameless manner.

"That prince of promotors who has much to answer for, J. Pierpont Morgan, was the chief sponsor for this combination, which originally included the Deering Harvester, McCormick Harvester, Champion, Plano, and Milwaukee companies.

"It came into being with a burden of over-capitalization and bonded indebtedness in order that the owners might be recompensed and the founders reap their full quota of "easy millions". It was incorporated in 1902 with a capital of $120,000,000.

The International Harvester company, of which Mr. Harold McCormick, son-in-law of the multi-millionare, Mr. John D. Rockfeller, is the head and front, is undoubtedly destined to be the most gigantic trust of modern times. The design and policy of this trust seems to be to sell binder twine at the cost of raw material, allowing nothing for the cost of making or the cost of selling with a view of thereby driving out of business every cordage manufacturer in the United States and Canada. It is plainly to be seen that no manufacturer of binder twine in the United States or Canada can afford to buy raw material, pay for the cost of making and selling it and do it at loss which in the aggregate would amount to millions. The result of the continuation of this policy will in one or two years leave this Chicago trust in absolute control of the binder twine business.

If once the cordage manufacturers are driven out of business the International Harvester company can still continue to sell their twine at a small margin of profit with a view of preventing the cordage manufacturers from again entering into the business or they may raise the price as harvest advances to "corner" prices and thereby recoup themselves the evident loss which they are now making. The practical result of the well laid and matured scheme will be that the farmer who does not use the International Harvester self-binder will be forced to go to that company or to its agents for his twine. They can say to the farmer "You do not use our reaper. We will not sell you our twine. Give us an order for a new self-binder and we will sell you all the twine you want."

In what position would the Canadian manufacturers of self-binders be? In the face of such a policy the Canadian manufacturer could not induce the farmer to buy his reaper because it would not be any use without twine. The Chicago trust would therefore not only have a monopoly in binder twine but would also have a monopoly in self-binders as well, and not alone in self-binders, but possibly in seeders, mowers and other agricultural implements, because the selfsame gentlemen of the Chicago trust could practically force the farmer to give an order for any agricultural implements which he might require.

The introduction of the Standard oil methods into the manufacture of all kinds of agricultural implements is perfectly apparent in the deep laid scheme of the Chicago trust. That same trust has behind it the millions of Wall street as the above quotation from the Minneapolis Times indicates. They can afford to sell twine at cost or below the cost of the raw material because this is merely a fractional adjunct of their business and employs about one-twentieth of their capital. They can afford to make a loss on one-twentieth of their capital and make huge profits out of the farmer on the sale of their reapers, mowers, seeders and other agricultural implements which they manufacture and which they are in a position to force the farmer to buy from them.

Already in the United States the vicious effect of this octopus has been apparent. The editorial continues as follows,—

The Aultman Miller company, the Osborne company, the Buckeye and the Minnie Harvester and several other corporations that for many years maintained a successful business have been forced to the wall or into the capacious maw of the combine, which means the same thing."

The Standard Rope and Twine company with its capital of millions has been forced into the receiver hands. The new Bedford Cordage company has also been forced to the wall. The following companies in Canada have also been forced to the wall—The Brandon Cordage company, the Walkerton Cordage company, the Chatham Cordage company, and the Ayton Cordage company.

The article further goes on to say "It is charged that Mr. Perkins, a partner of Mr. Morgan's, using the leverage of the mighty name of Morgan has made it impossible for the independent companies in competition with the Harvester combine to secure the usual banking facilities that are available to business men generally. He is accused of discrediting some of these minor companies at the banks and thus cutting off their credit, without which business might as well stop first as last."

Surely it is time for the Canadian government to step in and legislate against such a huge octopus instead of playing into its hands by placing and keeping binder twine upon the free list and giving this enormous trust a free hand to plunder the Canadian farmer and drive out of employment the thousands of hands who are employed in the various agricultural implement and cordage establishments of Canada. The millions that are invested in Canada in these companies surely are entitled to immediate consideration at the hands of the Canadian government.—ANTI-TRUST.

AGAINST THE BRITISH

International Commission's Decision in North Sea Case.

Declaration That Rojestvensky Legitimately Believed His Squadron in Danger, and That He Was Justified in Doing as He Did—Report to Be Sent to Russia and Britain Prior to Its Publication.

Paris, Feb. 23.—A semi-official statement appeared last night relative to the work of the International Commission which has been considering the North Sea incident. It is as follows:

The commission gives no opinion on the question of the presence or absence of Japanese torpedo boats in the North Sea, declaring that the Russian Admiral quite legitimately believed that his squadron was endangered and that he had the right under the circumstances to act as he did. The Commissioners refer to the Russian Government's engagements to indemnify the victims of the deplorable incident.

The report will be sent to-day by special messengers to the Russian and the British Governments, not because it is liable to modifications at the instance of one or other of the Governments, the Commission's decision being without appeal, but the Commissioners do not wish the powers interested to simply learn through the press of the the last public action and the conclusions arrived at. There is nothing in this preliminary communication or report except an act of deference.

The public sitting for the reading of the conclusions will probably be held on Saturday.

Members of the commission who were seen last night refused either to confirm or deny the statement; but officials having favorable opportunities to judge of the results of the enquiry consider the report to be substantially correct.

BRITAIN INDIGNANT.

London Newspapers United in Sounding Note of Discord.

London, Feb. 23.—A strong chord of indignation is sounded by the London daily newspapers this morning over the semi-official statement relative to the decision of the North Sea Commission, giving to Russia the victory, but it is still hoped that the publication of the full text of the Commission's report may modify the impression produced by the preliminary version, which is one of intense disappointment.

The Daily Mail goes as far as to declare that the decision has dealt a death blow to arbitration. Some of the newspapers blame the Government strongly for ever consenting to subject such a matter to arbitration, while some of the Governmetn organs find that the cold comfort in the fact that the Government by doing so avoided war with Russia. No question is raised that the decision must be respected,and Great Britain's share of the heavy costs will be gracefully paid; but it is considered that the decision leaves the question of a neutral rights on the high seas in a deplorably unsatisfactory state, and creates a dangerous precedent.

The Morning Post says: "A new dogma of international laws thus established, under which the commander of a belligerent fleet may attack and destroy neutral unarmed vessels without any other plea than that he conceived his ships might be in danger. This doctrine is so monstrous and inconceivable that we can only yet hope the official report will give a different reading."

Just before Parliament rose last night, replying to the question whether any precaution to protect the fishing fleet on the Dogger Banks was taken during the passage of the third Russian squadron, Premier Balfour said that His Majesty's Government placed implicit reliance on Russian assurances that they had taken every precaution to guard against the recurrence of any such incident, and that special instructions had been issued to the whole Russian fleet, with this object in view.

TRAPPIST MONKS KILLED.

Two Fatalities at Oka Caused by Grinding Explosion.

Montreal, Feb. 23.—Two Trappist monks were killed and a lay worker seriously injured Tuesday at Oka, where the celebrated monastery is located on the hillside of the Ottawa River. Attached to the monastery are several industrial establishments, managed and worked by the monks. In one of these some kind of grinding was going on, when an explosion took place, which killed Brother Marc instantly, and so badly injured Brother Abel that he died in a short time. One of the lay assistants was injured at the same time, but his name is not known. Following the explosion, fire broke out in the mill, which caused damage to the extent of several thousand dollars. The worldly names of Brothers Marc and Abel were Cousineault and Ducharme, respectively.

PUNISH THE UNWORTHY

Gen. Oku's Method Would Gain Victory At Any Cost.

One of His Secret Orders to Commanders Captured and Given to the World—Lt.-Gen Mistchenko Tells of Japanese in a Panic—Cossacks on a Raid—Naval Battle Inevitable.

Mukden, Feb. 23.—A secret order issued by General Oku has been captured. It says:

"Through all fights, all, from the chief to the last soldier, have done their duty. They have not spared their stomachs, and have driven back the enemy everywhere. Nevertheless, we have not yet been able thoroughly to defeat the enemy. The most difficult and heaviest fighting is yet before us, and the end of the war is far distant. Let commanders instruct subordinates that any hesitation or irresolution increases the loss, and a determined attack causes less. It is, therefore, imperative to advance with determination. Commanders must punish the unworthy without the slightest mercy. There must be no following personal inclinations, but in the strict line of duty."

Tells of a Panic.

Lieutenant-General Mistchenko,commander of the Eastern Cossack Brigade, who was wounded in the knee during the attack on Sandepas last month, permitted the following important statement to pass the censor last night:

"On Jan. 27, I saw for the first time a real panic among the Japanese. We penetrated into the Village of Saerpon and captured 200 men. The rest fled to the next village, where they were strongly reinforced. The Cossacks, who followed the Japanese, were received with volleys.

"I was standing in a square and called up a battery, which opened fire. We were short of ammunition, while the Japanese were all the time receiving reinforcements, and the place became too hot for us.

"I gave instructions to have the ditches of the village well examined to avoid abandoning wounded men, and then ordered the battery to retire and began slowly retiring myself with the Cossacks. At that moment a bullet hit me in the leg."

Cossacks on a Raid.

A company of Cossacks, which has returned from a long and perilous reconnaissance toward Korea, penetrated by mountain paths, as far as Hagoumin, eighteen miles northwest of the Yalu River, where they burned a large depot of Japanese provisions. Turning south, the Russians captured a transport of supplies, of which the small command was in great need. During the course of the night Japanese surrounded the command on three sides, when the positions of the Russians was desperate, but a Chinese guide discovered a mountain pass, by which they escaped to Khuaizhen Mountain, 100 miles due north of the mouth of the Yalu River, from whence they rejoined the army by way of little known trails.

Caused Indignation.

The news of General Grippenberg's attack on General Kuropatkin has caused great indignation at Russian headquarters here, and in army circles. Gen. Grippenberg's departure was a surprise, as he had received no orders from General Kuropatkin to quit his post. He left Manchuria unceremoniously, without taking leave of the Commander-in-Chief.

KUROPATKIN IN RETREAT.

He Has Been Compelled to Retire From the Shakhe River.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23.—Rumors are current in this city to-night that Gen. Kuropatkin has been outflanked in the vicinity of Simmintin and compelled to retire from the Shakhe River; but official despatches, so far made public, and the Associated Press' Mukden advices gives no intimation that such a contingency is even remotely possible. Military circles scout the report entirely, and say no body of Japanese of sufficient strength has been observed operating on the right Russian flank to force General Kuropatkin to abandon his exceedingly strong position on the Shakhe without a hard fight lasting several days.

Naval Battle Inevitable.

Paris, Feb. 23.—Capt. Clado, who came to Paris to testify before the International Commission of Enquiry into the North Sea incident, will leave Paris to rejoin Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky immediately after the commission announces its decision. In an interview Capt. Clado said: "I believe Rojestvensky will seek to avoid an ecounter, although I consider that a great naval battle is inevitable."

May Meet Rojestvensky.

London, Feb. 23.—The correspondent at Tokio of The Daily Telegraph states that Admiral Kamimura and his squadron are in the Indian Ocean, and the correspondent believes that important naval developments are imminent.

Kuropatkin Sustained.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23.—Emperor Nicholas is said to be dissatisfied with the conduct of Gen. Grippenberg in Manchuria, and he has not only sustained Gen. Kuropatkin, but has ordered Gen. Grippenberg to return to his post. It is gossip in court circles that Gen. Grippenberg's face was far from cheerful when he left the Emperor's cabinet.

To Build Destroyers.

Tokio, Feb. 23.—The Japanese Government has ordered the immediate construction of 25 torpedo boat destroyers. Fifteen are to be built in the Government yards, and ten in private yards.

It is reported that a steamer bound for Vladivostock has been caught and held in the ice in Iso Strait, between the islands of Kunashiri and Hokkaido, since Feb. 17. The name of the steamer has not been ascertained.

Japanese Nervous.

Mukden, Feb. 23.—Reports from scouts show that the Japanese have constructed three lines of narrow-gauge railway from Betaligai to Fadyaza, or Houhai Hill, and from Shakhe to Sinchinpu.

The staffs of Field Marshal Oyama and Generals Kuroki and Oku are at Liaoyang, which is strongly fortified. The ninth division, commanded by Gen. Nogi, has arrived at Liaoyang, and the first division now is arriving there.

There are reports that the Japanese are reinforcing Korea. Chinese say siege guns are being retired.

Sharp Skirmishes.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23.—A telegram from Huan Mountain, Manchuria, says sharp outpost fighting occurred on February 20 in the Tsinchen Mountain district.

The Russian losses in the outpost skirmishes southwards of Tsenti Pass where 14 killed and 48 wounded.

Damaged Railway.

Tientsin, Feb. 23.—About 200 Russian raiders reached and slightly damaged the railway between Haicheng and Tatchekiao on Monday night, and again disregarded the neutrality of the territory west of the Liao River. The presence of Chinese soldiers was not reported. It is evident that the villagers keep the Russians well informed as to the disposition of the Japanese troops. The damage to the railway was immediately repaired.

Siberian Line Is Giving Out.

London, Feb. 23.—According to The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg despatches, the Siberian Railway is giving way under the tremendous strain to which recently it has been subjected. A general sagging of the rails and other serious defects are showing themselves, and though the railway is only capable of carrying barely sufficient provisions for General Kuropatkin's army, this is becoming increasingly difficult, and the number of trains daily soon must be reduced.

Perhaps They Can't Read.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23.—It is explained at the Foreign Office that the departure from San Francisco of the three officers of the Russian cruiser Lena, breaking their paroles, was owing to a misunderstanding.

CZARINA COLLAPSES.

In Terror for Life of the Czar, She Is in Delirium at the Point of Death.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23.—Fear of the assassination of the Czar has brought the Czarina to serious collapse. Six specialists are now in attendance on her in the palace in Tsarkoe-Selo. It is said the Imperial patient is in delirium and close to death, but so far no official announcements have been made, and every detail of her illness is closely guarded.

The Czarina, following the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius, became frantic at the thought that the Czar would be the next victim of the Terrorists. It has even been reported that she believed the revolutionists would not spare her baby heir to the throne and that she gave herself to such gloomy brooding that her mind became temporarily affected.

The specialists went to Tsarkoe-Selo Tuesday night on a special train from St. Petersburg. They held a conference yesterday morning. The Czar is greatly distressed at his wife's condition, and has requested a German specialist in nervous troubles to hurry to her bedside. The Czarina was one of the closest friends of Sergius, his wife being her sister. The piteous grief of the widow has had a disastrous effect on the Empress.

Czar Grants All Demands.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—A despatch to The Lokal Anzeiger from Warsaw says the Russian Minister of Railroads has telegraphed that, by command of the Emperor, all the demands of the workmen on the state railroads are to be immediately granted.

CONDEMNED TO DIE.

Grand Duke Alexis Says He may as Well Go to Funeral.

New York, Feb. 23.—A St. Petersburg despatch to The Herald, dated Tuesday, says:

Grand Duke Alexis started to-night for Moscow. When remonstrated with, he replied: "I am on the list of those condemned to death, so it does not matter."

The Grand Duke Vladimir is too ill to go. The Emperor sent a representative to the frontier to meet Grand Duke Paul, bearing all his uniforms and decorations and a message. He has been restored to full rank and all his titles and emoluments, which were sequestrated at the time of his recent marriage.

Dantchenko, a famous Russian war correspondent, and a friend of General Kuropatkin, has made a sensational speech at the Hermitage Restaurant in Moscow. He denounces the war as futile, benefiting the bureaucrats only, and says it means ruin to Russia.

Coachman Succumbs to Injuries.

Moscow, Feb. 23.—The coachman who was driving the coach in which Grand Duke Sergius was riding when he was assassinated, is dead of his injuries. He sustained 76 distinct wounds.

Sabbath Observance Argument.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—Argument in the Sabbath observance jurisdiction reference was continued yesterday in the Supreme Court by Mr. Paterson, counsel for Ontario, who argued in favor of the draft bill, which assumes the power to legislate in this respect to be vested in the Provincial authority. The observation of Their Lordships all through indicates that the court is strongly inclined to the view that such legislation is ultra vires of the Province, being a matter wholly within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government.

Conspired to Control Price of Coal.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 23.—The Illinois Supreme Court yesterday, in the case of Wilmington Coal Company v. the People, sustained the judgment of the Cook County Circuit Court and the Appellate Court in the cases where the Wilmington Coal Company and 16 other coal companies were found guilty of a conspiracy to control the price of coal.

Cheques Without Funds.

Lindsay, Feb. 23.—A young man named Harold Pamphillion was yesterday committed for trial by County Magistrate Deacon on a charge of fraud. His particular line was issuing cheques for which there were no funds.

Hundreds of Autos Burned.

London, Feb. 23.—Long Acre, the centre of the motor car and carriage industry of this city, was the scene of a disastrous fire yesterday, resulting in damage estimated at $1,250,000. Hundreds of automobiles were destroyed.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

Redmond Springs Debate and Cuts Balfour's Majority.

Compels Mr. Wyndham to Show That Sir Antony MacDonnell Was Given Wide Powers—Morley Scathingly Assailed Government, But Admitted None of the Parties Had Acted Dishonorably—Premier Explains.

London, Feb. 23.—Encouraged by the reduced Government majority in the division in the House of Commons on Tuesday night, the Irish party unexpectedly returned to the attack yesterday more fiercely than ever. Immediately after the session opened, John Redmond gave notice of a motion to adjourn in order to discuss the conditions under which Sir Antony MacDonnell holds the post of Under Secretary to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. This move came as a surprise, and caught the Government off its guard.

The Speaker set the debate on the motion for the commencement of the night session. It had been expected that the debate on Mr. Morton's amendment, calling the attention of His Majesty to the condition of the army, showing "negligence," which came up yesterday, would occupy two days. A number of Unionist members accordingly absented themselves. Mr. Redmond's tactics caused a great scurrying by the whips and much upsetting of arrangements.

Defeated by 265 to 223.

The debate lasted till midnight, when a motion to adjourn was defeated by 265 to 223; but Mr. Redmond scored a point by compelling Mr. Wyndham, Chief Secretary for Ireland, to read the correspondence between himself and Sir Antony MacDonnell, by which it was shown that the Under-Secretary was given extraordinary powers and authorised to arrange for co-ordination in the control and direction of the board and administrative agencies. It was also shown that Premier Balfour had concurred in this arrangement.

John Morley scathingly assailed the Government's administration in Ireland. He said Sir Antony had been censured without a hearing for doing what he had warned them he would do, and which they had invited him to carry out. The Earl of Dudley, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Mr. Morley said, had been overthrown by the Premier, and the Under Secretary's conduct was described as "indefensible."

"What a picture," said Mr. Morley, "of confusion of administrative forces worse confounded." Mr. Morley admitted, however, that nothing was shown by the correspondence that was dishonorable to the parties concerned.

Premier Balfour Explains.

Premier Balfour said the letters showed that when MacDonnell was appointed Under Secretary to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, nothing in the shape of devolution was contemplated. Sir Antony's conduct, he said, was indefensible, because, in respect to the Dunraven scheme he had exceeded the bounds laid down. This, however, Mr. Balfour said, implied no criticism of his great services. The whole episode was due to a misunderstanding, and Mr. Balfour appealed to the House to bury it.

Mr. Moore, on behalf of the Irish Unionists, said the resolution showed that Mr. Wyndham had tried to form a moderate party in Ireland, which, while directed against the Nationalists, would have destroyed the Irish Unionist party. This, Mr. Moore said, justified the attitude of the Irish Unionists towards Mr. Wyndham.

Mr. Asquith said it was clear that Sir Antony MacDonnell had been censured for acting under the terms of his appointment.

The division followed on a motion to adjourn, which was defeated by 265 to 223.

Irish Heckle Balfour.

A lively scene at question time arose from the affair of Sir Antony MacDonnell (Under Secretary to the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland). The Nationalists were heckling Premier Balfour and Mr. Wyndham, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in an effort to extract further information as to how far Mr. Wyndham was involved in what he has termed the Under Secretary's "indefensible" course connected with the devolution scheme, when John Redmond, the Irish leader, turning to Mr. Wyndham, shouted:

"You might as well tell the truth at once."

Mr. Balfour immediately raised a point of order. The speaker ruled that the remark was "offensive," and Mr. Redmond promptly apologized and explained that he had not meant to imply that untruths had been told, but that the whole truth had not been told yet, and that he was not obliged to drag it out piecemeal.

Mr. Redmond ultimately secured an adjournment of the House to call attention to Sir Antony MacDonnell's position.

None of Britain's Business.

James Keir Hardie, Socialist, attempted to extract from Premier Balfour an expression of opinion on the recent events in Russia, especially the shooting of workmen at Warsaw, and asked if the Government had any intentions of making representations on the subject. The Premier, however, merely said:

"We have received no confirmation of the story of the shooting of 120 workmen at Warsaw. I must decline to discuss matters outside of the province of the Government and the House. It is absolutely impossible for the Government to interfere in the internal affairs of Russia or express any judgment on those affairs."

81 Dead Accounted For.

Virginia City, Ala., Feb. 23.—The bodies of 61 victims of Monday's mine disaster here have been taken out and the rescuers say they have just discovered a room in which they counted twenty more corpses, making a total of 81 dead accounted for.

Was Instantly Killed.

Sydney, N. S., Feb. 23.—Metro Melnolk, a Pole, was instantly killed yesterday morning at an open hearth furnace of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company by being struck on the head by a flying piece of steel.

AGAINST SEPARATE SCHOOL

Petitions Presented in the House From Various Quarters by Dr. Sproule—In Supply.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—A return presented to the House yesterday by the Prime Minister, shows that the lands undisposed of in Provincial districts of the N.W.T., are as follows:

Alberta 38,190,964 acres,Assinibia 22,-285,876 acres, Saskatchewan 31,323,-246 acres, Athabasca 155,622,704 acres, Franklin 320,000,000 acres, MacKenzie 340,886,420 acres, total 938,818,210 acres.

A petition from the City of Toronto against the passage of the Ottawa Electric Company's bill, was read.

Against Separate Schools.

Dr. Sproule presented the petition of G. Wallace and others of Centre York, praying that in the bills providing for Provincial autonomy in the Northwest Territories, no enactment or other restriction should be placed upon the new Provinces, which will interfere with their freedom to control the question of education and the establishment, maintenance and operation of schools. Dr. Sproule also presented a petition to the same effect from E. F. Hicks of Calgary and others.

In Supply.

The House, in Committee of Supply, passed $288,000 for Toronto Customs House, military and postal requirements in the way of buildings, and plant equipment.

Uruguay Imprisons Canadians.

D. D. McKenzie of Cape Breton drew the attention of the Government to the plight of several Nova Scotians who are prisoners of the South American Republic on the unproved charges of poaching seals. The facts of the case seem to be that the schooner Agnes P. Donahue, formerly owned in Halifax, left Nova Scotia last autumn for British Columbia via Cape Horn, to engage in the sealing business. En route the vessel captured seals in the South Seas, was seized by the Government of Uruguay and taken to the port of Montevideo, where, since November 11th, the captain and crew of nineteen men have been detained as prisoners on board their vessel.

There was no charge proved against them, although there had been a sort of trial before the Supreme Court of Uruguay. Mr. McKenzie observed that as an international question this might seem a small matter, but it was a serious affair for the parties concerned, and he hoped the Government would see that justice was secured, also as compensation was likely to be made to the owners, it was only right that the crew should be considered, as the men were not on wages but on shares. The charge alleged against them was poaching seals, but there were no laws in Uruguay on the subject of sealing.

Preparing a Law.

Mr. Prefontaine said that while the subject was a new one to the House, it was not new to the Department. About a month ago complaint of the illegal seizure was received, and the Department at once communicated with the Home Government, with the result that after exchange of one or two cables the men had been released. But the Government of Uruguay had insisted on keeping the captain a prisoner while a new law was being prepared to meet the case. (Laughter). Further representations had since been made to the Home Government, but to them no reply had yet been received.

Can't Be Helped.

The British Consul in Montevideo, the Minister said, was doing his best for the victims, but it was one of those peculiar cases which were to be met with in dealings with those South American Republics. Everything possible was being done, however, to secure justice for the Canadians concerned in it.

Mr. Foster caused the Prime Minister to laugh by asking if the Government was sending the armed cruiser Canada down there.

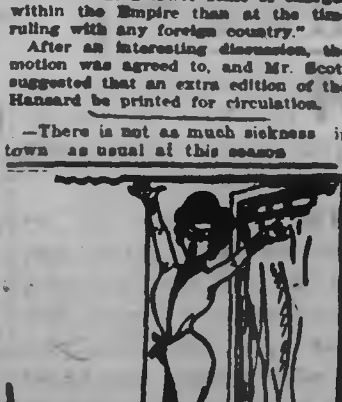
Change Postal Charges.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—In the Senate yesterday, Hon. Sir George Drummond called attention to certain anomalies in the postal charges and moved the following resolution:

"That the attention of the Government be directed to the local, foreign and Imperial postal charges, with the view of remedying certain inequalities therein, and the Senate affirms the principle that the conveyance of letters, newspapers, books, periodicals, etc., should be at a lower scale of charges within the Empire than at the time ruling with any foreign country."

After an interesting discussion, the motion was agreed to, and Mr. Scott suggested that an extra edition of the Hansard be printed for circulation.

—There is not as much sickness in town as usual at this season



DON'T BE ALARMED is a favorite expression used by friends when you complain of the first attacks of rheumatism. "It will pass away" they tell you, but instead it grows worse and worse. Sometimes it does pass away, only to return a few days later in a more severe form. Don't let your friends assuage your fears with mere words; what you want is practical treatment, and there is no better treatment than with the great

It gives immediate relief and will save you much suffering and prevent further attacks of this distressing and dangerous disease.

Geo. W. Platt, Manager, "World's" Newspaper Agency, Toronto, says—"I am at loss for words to express my feelings of sincere gratitude and thankfulness for South American Rheumatic Cure. I had a severe attack of rheumatic fever and your remedy relieved and cured me."

HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From this Sad and Costly Experience.

Mrs. Robt. Glenn

It is a sad but true fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals. More than three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow white beds are women and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, leucorrhœa, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the womb or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries or womb, and if not heeded the trouble will make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

The following letter should bring hope to suffering women. Mrs. Robert Glenn, of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need my recommendation, but I am pleased to add it to the many which you have in its favor. I suffered untold agonies from ovarian troubles for nearly three years, and the doctors told me that I must undergo an operation, but as I was unwilling to do this, I tried your Vegetable Compound and I am only too pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attending the same. Pray accept my hearty thanks and best wishes."

Just as surely as Mrs. Glenn was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. Address, Lynn, Mass.

BRIGADER SOUTHALL

Will Conduct Services at Salvation Army on Sunday.

Meetings of great interest will be held in the Salvation Army barracks on Saturday and Sunday next, the occasion being the visit of Brigadier Southall.

A glance at the Brigadier's career as a salvationist cannot fail to be of interest. He began as a printer in England, and came to this country when the army opened operations. He has filled the following positions.—Field Officer, Divisional Officer, Principal of Training Home, Provincial Officer, editor of the War Cry, Secretary for special efforts. These positions have been filled in different parts of the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and at the present, the Brigadier is Trade Secretary at Toronto.

BRIGADIER SOUTHALL.

The subjects of Brigadier Southall on Sunday are—11 a. m., Microscopic Wonders; 3 p. m., "The Day of Victory"; 7 p. m. "The Conquering Hero."

WILL BURN MORTGAGE

Interesting Ceremony Will Take Place in Mark Street Church.

An interesting ceremony will take place on Tuesday evening of next week at Mark st. Methodist church, when the mortgage given seven years ago to meet an expenditure in connection with certain alterations to the church will be burned. The arrangements in connection with the celebration of this very important event in charge of the Ladies' Aid of the church.

The amount of the mortgage was $1,200 and during the last two years, in which Rev. J. G. Lewis has been pastor the remaining amount of $450 has been wiped out. The last payment of something like $120 was made in December.

It is a pleasure to note the progress of the church indicated by the above facts, and Mark st. congregation, as well as the entire community will be deeply interested in Tuesday night's event.

CHANGE OF BUSINESS.

Mr. J. T. Richmond of Brantford, has purchased the photograph business of J. M. Green & Son, corner George and Hunter sts. This is an old established business and no doubt Mr. Richmond will find his purchase a profitable one. The new proprietor brings with him some excellent samples of his art, executed by himself. His long experience in the business will no doubt bring him a large and profitable trade from Peterborough citizens.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All Druggists.

CUPID CLAIMS HAPPY COUPLE

Nuptials of Miss Pearl Fitzgerald and Mr. Ernest Hannah.

EVENT OF PLEASING INTEREST

The Residence of Ex-Warden Fitzgerald was the Scene—Many Well Wishes—Mrs. Hannah Returns to old Homestead.

"May they live long and be happy" was the wish frequently expressed last evening at the wedding supper which succeeded a pleasing ceremony at the residence on London-st. of Mr. Geo. W. Fitzgerald, ex-Warden of Peterborough County. The bride was his youngest daughter, Miss Pearl, and the groom was Mr. Ernest Hannah, son of Mr. Jackson Hannah, of Smith Township. The guests formed a large and happy company, friends of the young couple, not a few of whom were from a distance.

The ceremony was performed at 6.30 by the Rev. Freeman J. Scott, pastor of Murray-st. Baptist church, the bride being given away by her father. She was attired in a very handsome gown of white silk organdie with lace insertion and sequin trimmings. She wore a bridal veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Her bridesmaid was Miss Belle McConkey, of town, who wore a pretty gown of white silk organdie, trimmed with lace, and carried pink carnations. Mr. W. Hannah, brother of the groom was best man. Mr. Geo. F. Schneider played the wedding march.

The enjoyable wedding supper was held in the new house, on the adjoining property, built by Mr Geo. Schneider, and which, being just completed, has not yet been occupied. The large dining room made an excellent scene for last evening's event which proved in every way enjoyable, the serving being under the direction of Mr. Fred Miles.

A toast list was introduced by Rev. Mr. Scott, who made a short and appropriate congratulatory speech, expressing best wishes for the long continued happiness of the newly married couple. A toast to Mr. and Mrs. Hannah was proposed and very heartily honored by the company. Short and felicitous speeches were made by Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald, father of the bride; Mr. Jackson Hannah, father of the groom; Mr. E. M. Elliott, Mr. W. R. G. Higgins, Dr. Bagshaw and Mr. Robert Kerr. Great compliment was paid the charming bride, and all of the sentiments which found utterance must assure the young couple that a pleasant journey through life will confirm the standing of many of their friends here as pronounced prophets. The remainder of the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by the company, in a social way, at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hannah left last night for their home in Smith Township. A pleasing feat is that the bride is returning to the place of her birth, the old Fitzgerald homestead, lot 21 con. 7, about seven miles from town. The bride's going away costume was of green basket cloth with picture hat to match.

That the bride is a very popular young lady, with many friends appreciative of her estimable qualities, was evidenced by the large number of very handsome presents with which she was favored.

There were about seventy-five guests at the wedding, and among those who attended from a distance were Miss Heyward and Mr. Marshall, of Lindsay. Others were present from Bethany, Millbrook, Lakefield and other places.

TAKING WRONG BOOTS

Some One Doing Illegal Trading At the Brock-st Rink.

Complaints are still being made of persons taking away boots and other articles not belonging to them from the Brock st. rink. It is not an uncommon thing to find on coming off the ice that someone has walked off with your good boots and left a dilapidated pair in their place. The persons who are in the habit of doing such a trick are warned to be careful as anyone caught at it will be vigorously prosecuted. There is quite an array of boots at the rink left by some person who has got away with better pairs.

ENJOYABLE TRAMP

Snow Shoe Club Entertained by Mr. Hazen Ritchie at Club House.

A very enjoyable tramp of the Peterborough Snow Shoe Club took place last evening, starting from the Bank of Commerce Chambers and finishing at the club house of the Peterborough Golf Club. There were about forty young people in the party, all of whom appeared to thoroughly joy the exercise.

The host last night was Mr. Hazen Ritchie, who furnished a most appetising repast to the members of the club. The exterior of the club house was beautifully decorated with Chinese lanterns, while the interior presented a very home-like appearance.

During the evening some interesting races were run off. The ladies' race proved most exciting, the winner of the event being Miss Pearl Lundy. The prize for this race was a large box of bon-bons. The gentleman's race was won after a most exciting contest by Mr. Frank Barnham. The prize was a handsome pipe. The mixed double event was won by Miss Olive Bradburn and Mr. F. D. Kerr.

The formal presentation of the prizes to the winners took place after the supper had been served. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Ritchie for his hospitality.

The party left the club house about 11 o'clock, reached Auburn car and were conveyed to town in good time.

A POPULAR COMPANY.

"Kathleen Mavoureen" was presented at the opera house last night by H. Wilmot Young's Big Bijou Comedy Company and drew a large and appreciative audience which thoroughly enjoyed the presentation. The specialties proved to be a decided hit, and were liberally applauded. The company is an all-round, capable one, and the leading roles taken by Mr. Young and Miss Adams are cleverly interpreted. This evening a western comedy dram, "My Jack" will be the attraction. It is a four-act production, and one of the best in the company's repertoire.

THE NEW ARMORY

Government Engineer From Ottawa Was Here Taking Measurements.

Mr D. Hewitt, an engineer of the Public Works Department, Ottawa, has been in town for the past few days taking measurements and securing other information in connection with the site for the proposed armory. He was assisted in his work by Mr. T. A. S. Hay, the town engineer. The new armory will be built on that part of the Murray st. grounds now occupied by the old drill shed. Mr. Hewitt did not have plans of the new building with him—in fact his work here was of a preparatory character with that object in view. It would appear that the intention is to begin work on the armory with the opening of spring

AUTONOMY MEASURE

Premier Introduces Bills Creating Two New Provinces.

School Question the Dominant Issue—Sir Wilfrid Did Not Attempt to Minimise the Separate School Feature — Public Money for Both Classes of Schools—Mr. Borden Replies in General Terms.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered the House yesterday afternoon to a greeting of loud Ministerial applause. The galleries of the House were full, and there was a very large attendance of members. The autonomy bills had second place on the order paper, and the foresight of somebody was responsible for the display of a large map of the Northwest Territories on the clerk's table.

The Northwest members were in the House in force, and there was a very considerable sprinkling of Roman Catholic clergy in the galleries. Bishop Duhamel of Ottawa sat in the front row of the Senate gallery.

The Premier's Speech.

Sir Wilfrid began to speak at 20 minutes past three.

He had the honor, he said, to introduce two intimately connected bills for the admission of two new members into the Canadian family. The twentieth century was a century of Canada. The time had come for giving the Northwest "all the rights" enjoyed by the Provinces under the constitution. The Premier sketched the history of Confederation, and said that under the Act of 1875, the Territories had reached that manhood now to be crowned with "complete absolute autonomy."

In 1875 the Territories had been given Separate Schools ,as in Ontario. "To that I will refer at a later stage in my observations."

Four Great Questions.

Going on to deal in detail with the history of the Territories' Governments, Sir Wilfrid declared that the Northwest had already full ministerial responsibility and constitutional government. Another step must be taken, but an easy one. "We must put upon it the seal of Canadian nationality."

Two years ago the west had asked for immediate autonomy. An election was imminent, and the time not opportune.

In the recent negotiations, Sir Wilfrid said there were four dominant questions—the number of Provinces, the control of lands, the finances, and the school question—"last, but not least in importance, by any means." As to the first question, the Territories comprised a larger area than all the seven Provinces. Consequently, there must be two Provinces, not one.

No Manitoba Extension.

"We propose to give autonomy not to the whole Territories, but from the American boundary north to the northerly limits of Athabaska. The area is 550,340 square miles, and you will have two Provinces of 275,000 miles each, with 250,000 souls in each."

Sir Wilfrid referred incidentally to the demand of Manitoba for an extension east and north of its territory. The demand had been made in 1884, and categorically refused. It could not be granted then, and it could not now. The Legislature of the Territories will not consent.

Manitoba, however, asked to have its northern boundary extended to Hudson Bay. So also might Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan ask. Accordingly, the district north of Lakes Manitoba and Winnipegosis was to be left alone for the present.

The Premier here announced that representatives of Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan were to be called to Ottawa to consider the extensions of these Provinces north to Hudson Bay.

Regina and Edmonton.

The provisional capitals of the two new Provinces are to be Regina and Edmonton. There will be a Parliamentary representation of 25 for each Province.

The ownership of lands will remain with the Dominion Government. The bill goes into effect on July 1.

Sir Wilfrid announced that, in return for the revenues which the Provinces would otherwise get from public lands, they were to have generous and liberal grants.

The School Question.

Sir Wilfrid did not attempt to minimise the importance of the schools clause of the bill. He said:

"I am not here to advocate Separate Schools as an abstract proposition, but we have introduced into this bill the two propositions that the minority shall have the power to establish their own schools, and that they shall have a right to a share in the public moneys."

Replies in General Terms.

R. L. Borden replied in general terms. He said he had been afforded no facilities to examine the bill carefully, and would not, therefore, discuss it in detail. He congratulated the Prime Minister on the change at heart he had experienced. Two years ago, Sir Wilfrid had given a number of reasons why the granting of autonomy to the Territories should be delayed for many years. Every one of those reasons was as strong to-day is it was two years ago. A resolution favoring autonomy at an early date had been voted down. Mr. Borden commented on the absence of the Minister of the Interior, who, it was recalled, was also absent when the resolution in question was voted on. The leader of the opposition regretted that control of the lands had not been left to the new Provinces. The only argument against local control of the lands was in regard to immigration. All the rest of Sir Wilfrid's argument would justify the Imperial Government in retaining every acre of Crown Lands in the colonies. He was surprise that such a strong advocate of responsible government as the Prime Minister should not be willing to trust the people of the Territories.

As to the School Question.

Referring to the Separate Schools aspect of the bill, Mr. Borden said the Premier had spoken with great eloquence and tolerance. Undoubtedly the clause would invite discussion. Mr. Borden said he understood that up to the present there had been no school question of the Northwest would not be made a political question in any sense. "Let us be careful," he said, "lest any act of ours create discord in the Northwest." Mr. Borden pointed out that when George Brown spoke of the Separate Schools clause governing for all time, he did not speak in a legal sense. It was clear, he said, that Parliament, in a constitutional sense, could deal as it pleased with the Territories."

Mr. Borden closed with an expression of hope that the question would be discussed in a different spirit than that which actuated or was said to actuate the hon. gentlemen opposite on a certain occasion eight or nine years ago. It had been said that religious feeling had been deliberately introduced to the political arena for the advancement of the political interests of the Liberal party, and he hoped the opposition of to-day would not emulate that example.

"We should realise," he said, "that there are two sides to a question, that the question must be considered from the standpoint of those who differ with us, as well as from our own natural feelings."

He hoped that by the exercise of a proper spirit a solution of the question might be found, which would be acceptable to the people of Canada.

Don't Shackle Them.

Dr. Sproule gave the proceedings a less serious turn by congratulating the Prime Minister on the healthy pair of twins he had brought into the family of Provinces. He hoped the Prime Minister would not shackle their limbs and prevent their development. Dr. Sproule suggested that the second reading of the bills should be delayed for three weeks or a month, so that the Territories might have a chance to make themselves heard.

Both bills were then given their first reading.

CATARRH

The only Sensible Treatment.

How absurd to think of curing catarrh with tablets, tonics and blood purifiers. These so-called cures (?) go first to the stomach, then into the intestines, mix with the food and the excretions, are taken up by the blood, and eventually an infinitesimal part may reach the nose. If you had an acute attack of indigestion, would you put the medicine up your nose and expect to be relieved. Vice versa, how can you cure catarrh by dosing the stomach?

Japanese Catarrh Cure is an aromatic, antiseptic pomade. It is inserted in the nostrils, melts at the temperature of the body, and reaches every part of the afflicted tissues. It soothes and heals inflammation, kills the germs of catarrh, clears the head, stops all discharges, and sweetens the breath.

Japanese Catarrh Cure is sold by druggists everywhere, 50c.

160 MINERS DEAD.

Desolation in Alabama—Harrowing Scenes Among Helpless Families of the Dead.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 22.—Although 160 bodies are believed to be buried therein, thus far only 56 bodies have been recovered from the mines at Virginia City—victims of Monday's mysterious accident.

The recovery of these bodies precludes any idea that any of the entombed men still are alive. With the first ominous rumble of the coming catastrophe, by common impulse, everyone in the village rushed to the mouth of the main slope.

The scenes at the mines yesterday were the most harrowing that were ever witnessed in the mining section of Alabama. The corpses are mangled and disfigured frightfully, and identification is almost impossible. Many of the bodies are so bruised, twisted and discolored that negroes cannot be told from white men.

All day long at the mouth of the mine were wailing and moaning women and children, whose relatives were among the unfortunates. One hundred families and three hundred children are left destitute and without the means of support.

Signs of life remained in one of the bodies recovered yesterday, and every effort was made to bring the man back to consciousness. However, all these failed, and although the victim is still alive, no hopes for his recovery are entertained.

Kennedy Back in Brantford.

Brantford, Feb. 22.—The local police last night brought Joseph Kennedy back from Toronto Central Prison for re-trial in connection with the murder of Irene Cole in this city. At the first trial he was acquitted on perjured evidence. This time the charge will be of a minor character, not punishable with death. Kennedy was serving a term in the Central for an assault on a Toronto woman.

This conversation was all very well, but there was nothing to be learned from it on either side. Brendon could not discover if his grandfather knew to whom he was speaking, and Derrington found it impossible to learn if George could tell him anything of the case which had not been reported in the papers. For some reason Derrington wished to know what had transpired, and Brendon felt convinced that this anxiety was more than that of a landlord for the loss of a good tenant. He wondered if Derrington knew that Mrs. Jersey had written out a confession and that it was missing. He would have liked to find out, but since he could not reveal himself as Derrington's grandson there was no chance of getting this information. Besides, Derrington appeared to grow weary of discussing the murder. "It is worn threadbare," he said. "All the papers have been talking about it. I agree with you, Mr. Brendon, that the assassin will never be discovered. However, there are pleasanter subjects to talk of. What about yourself—your aims, your ambitions, your chances of success?"

"Are those pleasant subjects?" laughed Brendon.

"To an old man such as I am," nodded the other. "I like to hear of the castles in the air which youth builds."

"I am afraid my castles will never turn to bricks and mortar," said Brendon, with a sigh.

However, he was not averse to showing his grandfather that he was no fool, but a man with a head on his shoulders. George had a quick brain and a strong will and a considerable fund of information. He had taken a good degree at Oxford, and his literary articles always received praise from the public and from his brethren of the press. Moreover, George was fond of politics and could converse excellently on that fascinating subject. He laid himself out to please Derrington, knowing that the old tyrant was disappointed in the languid Vane, who was chattering commonplace to Mrs. Ward. In a short time Brendon and Derrington were engaged in a discussion about Ireland and Irish home rule.

"You ought to be in the house, Mr. Brendon," said the old lord.

"I have no one to help me to such a goal."

Derrington was about to speak and fastened his little eyes on the keen, handsome face of the younger man, but he suddenly changed his mind and turned away to talk to Mrs. Ward. Brendon knew that he had succeeded in pleasing the old gentleman and was glad that so much was accomplished. If Derrington found that he was clever and presentable and likely to add luster to the family name it was not improbable that he would recognize the marriage. But by this time George had it in his mind that Derrington knew who he was and had been talking advisedly under the cover of pretended ignorance so as to see what manner of man his unacknowledged grandson was. "Well," thought Brendon, "he has learned that I am no fool, at all events."

Mrs. Ward came across to George and left Derrington talking to Dorothy, for whom he professed a great admiration. He knew that Dorothy liked Brendon, as Mrs. Ward had told him so, and he frankly acknowledged to her that Brendon was a clever man.

"I wish my grandson had his brains," said Derrington regretfully. "Do you like Brendon?"

Dorothy did not see why she should conceal her feelings. "I love him," she said quietly and firmly.

"Ha!" replied Derrington, showing no surprise. "Mrs. Ward hinted at something of that sort, but I thought that Walter"—

"Please say no more, Lord Derrington."

"Well, then, I won't." Derrington's eyes rested wrathfully on the withered young man he called grandson. "I don't wonder at your choice, my dear. What Walter requires is a nurse."

"That is a profession I have not taken up," said Dorothy, laughing. Derrington said no more about Brendon, but Dorothy noticed that his eyes were rarely off the face of her lover.

Meantime Vane joined Mrs. Ward, and Dorothy, seeing that Leonard was alone, beckoned him to approach. Derrington was not particularly pleased at having his conversation with a pretty girl interrupted, but he was polite, and, on learning that Train knew Brendon intimately, he began to ask him about his friend.

"But really, you know, she is a great artist," Mrs. Ward was saying to Brendon. "There is something so original about her."

They were speaking of Lola Velez, and it was Vane who had introduced the subject. George, to whom the subject was distasteful, tried to avoid the discussion, but Mrs. Ward would return again and again to the topic.

"They say you know her very well," she declared.

"I am not sorry to put you right on that point," replied Brendon, his eyes hardening. "Many false rumors are about, to one of which you alluded the other day, Mrs. Ward. This is another. What I know of Senora Velez and how I know her can be put in a nutshell." And George quietly related his rescue of the dancer.

"Then you did make her the success she is?" cried Mrs. Ward when he ended. "Oh, yes, it's no use denying it. You picked a jewel out of the gutter and gave it a chance of shining."

"Perhaps I did that much. But she made a success by her genius."

"I hope she is grateful," murmured Vane, with a malicious smile.

Brendon turned on him sharply. "I don't know what you mean by gratitude," he said deliberately.

"Well," drawled the little dandy, "she is pretty and"—

"She is not at all pretty, Mr. Vane, and were she as lovely as Cleopatra it would not matter to me. My connection with her ceased when she made her success." George quite forgot the presence of Mrs. Ward and spoke vehemently. "Can't you understand that a man may do a kind action without being biased by the beauty of a woman?"

"Some men can," said Mrs. Ward politely, "and I am sure you are one, Mr. Brendon. But suppose the woman"—

"I don't suppose anything, Mrs. Ward. I know. Senora Velez was poor. I helped her to attain to the position she now holds because I endeaver to follow the preaching of Christ, and she is to me a grateful friend. There is no more and no less to be said," and, a trifle ruffled, George turned on his heel to join Dorothy.

"Well, I'm sure," murmured Mrs. Ward, "and in my own house too!"

Vane sniggered. "There must be something in it," he said. "She's too pretty."

So these two scandal mongers talked on, and George had only made matters worse by his explanation. However, he believed that he had nipped the scandal in the bud, and strolled into the next room with Dorothy to quiet his mind. Behind them they left Derrington talking to Train and rather enjoying himself.

"Do you think Lord Derrington knows who you are?' asked Dorothy as she and George seated themselves on a divan.

"I am not sure," replied George, who did not want to tell her what he knew lest he should have to introduce the name of Lola Velez. "I have an idea that he does."

Dorothy shook her head. "I don't think so. If he knows you he must be aware that you know him, and about the relationship, and would not speak so freely. I think he is taken with you, George."

To be continued.

AT FIRST GLANCE.

It Would Appear That Local Remedies Would be Best for Cure of Catarrh.

It would seem at first glance that catarrh being a disease of the mucous membrane that salves, sprays, etc. being applied directly to the nose and throat, would be the most rational treatment but this has been proven not to be true.

The mucous membrane is made and repaired from the blood and catarrh is a blood disease and any remedy to make a permanent cure must act on the blood and when the blood is purified from catarrhal poison, the secretions from the mucous membrane will become natural and healthy.

In this climate thousands of people seem scarcely ever free from some form of catarrh; it gets better at times but each winter becomes gradually deeper seated and after a time the sufferer resigns himself to it as if it were a necessary evil.

Catarrh cures are almost as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but are nearly all as inconvenient and ineffective as to render their use a nuisance nearly as annoying as catarrh itself; anyone who has used douches, sprays and powders will bear witness to their inconvenience and failure to cure.

There are a number of excellent internal remedies for catarrh, but probably the best and certainly the safest is a new remedy, composed of Red Gum, Blood Root and similar antiseptic remedies and other valuable catarrh specifics.

This remedy is in tablet form, pleasant to the taste and sold by the druggists under the name of Stewart's Catarrh Tablets, and anyone suffering from catarrh may use these tablets with absolute assurance that they contain no cocaine, opiate nor any poisonous mineral whatever.

A leading druggist in Albany speaking of catarrh cures says, "I have sold various catarrh cures for years but have never sold any which gave such general satisfaction as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. They contain in a pleasant, concentrated form all the best and latest catarrh remedies, and catarrh sufferers who have used douches, sprays and salves, have been astonished at the quick relief and permanent results obtained after a week's use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets." All druggists sell full sized packages for fifty cents.

RUSS PEACE POSITION

Conditions Have Practically Been Agreed Upon.

What the "Bear That Walks Like a Man" is Prepared to Concede to Japan—Greatest Difficulty Will Lie in Settling the Question of Indemnity, Upon Which Japan Insists.

London, Feb. 22.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from St. Petersburg confirming advices of Feb. 17, and Feb. 18, from St. Petersburg, to the effect that peace was under consideration, adds:

"The question of peace has not only been formally discussed, but the conditions on which Russia is prepared to make peace have practically been agreed upon. These are as follows:

"Corea to be placed under Japanese suzerainty.

"Port Arthur and the Liaotung Peninsula to be ceded to Japan.

"Vladivostock to be declared a neutral port, with an open door.

"The eastern Chinese R. R. to be placed under neutral international administration.

"Manchuria, as far north as Harbin, to be restored as an integral part of the Chinese Empire."

The difficulty lies in settling the question of indemnity upon which it is known that Japan insists, but it is thought that this question is not insuperable.

The most trustworthy opinion at St. Petersburg is that, in view of the internal situation and the enormous difficulty in carrying on the war, peace on the terms outlined will be concluded within a comparatively short time, if the indemnity question can be arranged, but it is quite possible that Russia will risk another battle before a decision is reached.

STOESSEL ON HIS SURRENDER.

Expresses Indignation at Reports of London Newspapers.

Kaffa, Crimea, Feb. 22.—Lieut.Gen. Stoessel, the former commander at Port Arthur, arrived here yesterday.

Gen. Stoessel was welcomed by a cheering crowd, and a deputation from the municipality presented an address of welcome.

The general expressed indignation at the London newspaper reports regarding the numbers of the available troops at Port Arthur at the time of the surrender of the fortress, and said the statements made were all untrue. The Russian fleet, he added, was destroyed beyond repair. There was no medicine in the fortress; it could not have held out more than a day longer and the surrender saved the women and children.

Used Heavy Guns.

Tokio, Feb. 22.—Field Marshal Oyama, reporting yesterday, says that a small infantry attack was made on Fang Mountain on February 20. The Russians shelled Lapatai on the night of February 19, using heavy guns.

Duke Reinstated.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 22.—It is officially announced that Grand Duke Paul has been re-admitted to the Russian army, with his former rank of lieutenant-general and aide-de-camp general.

Join the Squadron.

Frederickshaven, Denmark, Feb. 22.—The third Russian Pacific Squadron anchored yesterday in Skagen Bay, and is now coaling. The squadron has been joined by some other units, and now consists of five ironclads, an auxiliary cruiser, a gunboat, and three transports.

THE SIGN OF DEATH.

Placed on Other Grand Dukes, Says Sergius' Assassin.

Moscow, Feb. 22.—The assassin of Grand Duke Sergius maintains an attitude of profound indifference. When pressed to reply to questions, he declared that all the efforts of the authorities would have no result. Before his victim was laid under the earth, other victims would be found.

Regarding his motives, the assassin said he only acted in the interests of an oppressed people. He considered the deed was an act of duty. The Grand Duke had for years violated every canon of ordinary decency and ruined the country, while exploiting the weak will of the Emperor for their own ends. They had made him a tyrant, so that people execrated him.

He was aware that the Emperor was an innocent dupe, and his party had decided to deliver the Emperor from the influences surrounding him, in the hope that he some day would join in the movement, and become head of a national Government, based on western lines.

Neither the police nor their spies, he added, will be able to protect those who are doomed to death.

ILLINOIS TO AID KANSAS.

Offers to Loan Sister State $100,000 to Fight Octopus.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 22.—The House yesterday reported two resolutions affecting the Standard Oil Co. One resolution offers to loan the State of Kansas $100,000 without interest, for six years, to aid in establishing a state oil refinery, and refers to the Standard Oil Co. as "that merciless octopus, whose tentacles now encircle every State of the Union." The other resolution asks for an investigation on the laying of pipe lines through Illinois by the Standard Oil Co., and provides for the appointment of a joint committee to confer with the State officials of Kansas to agree on steps to be taken toward declaring such pipe lines common carriers.

Adulteration of Food.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 22.—Of 6,000 samples of food products of 61 different kinds examined during the last year at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, more than one-third have been found to be adulterated. Among the forms of adulteration dangerous to health, the report finds that the chemical antiseptics, borax and formaldehyde, are used largely with milk as a substitute for cleanliness in the dairy.

REDMOND DEFEATED.

Imperial Government Sustained on the Home Rule Amendment by Fifty Majority—The Issue Stated.

London, Feb. 22.—John Redmond's amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne was defeated in the House of Commons last night by 286 to 236, after a two days' debate on the Irish situation. The amendment declared, in effect, that "The present system of government of Ireland is opposed to the will of the Irish people."

The net result of the debate showed general agreement that the present system of government of Ireland is unsatisfactory, but there was a distinct disagreement concerning methods by which discontent might be abated and Ireland cease to be a disturbing element in the politics of the United Kingdom.

At the opening of the discussion yesterday, John Dillon and Timothy Healy supported the amendment.

Mr. Healy's Speech.

Referring to the claim of Irish-Americans that they had laid the Anglo-American arbitration treaty, Mr. Healy said: "God bless the Irish in America. They are faithful to their country, regardful of its interests and are determined that if you make a treaty of peace with the United States it shall be abiding and lasting."

Mr. Healy bitterly assailed the Ulster Unionists, and eloquently appealed to the Conservative party to concede the wishes of the Nationalists in the interest of Imperial policy.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman said that he supported the policy of a thorough fundamental alteration of the whole system of Irish government. "The Irish people," he said, "deserved a better government, springing from and controlled by themselves."

W. S. Kenyon-Slaney (Independent Conservative) directed his speech against home rule.

Premier Balfour Enigmatic.

Premier Balfour, in winding up the debate, said that every Unionist and every one of the ministers agreed that the broad lines now existing as to the government of Ireland should not be preserved.

Beyond these expressions, neither the leader of the opposition nor the Premier committed themselves concerning home rule. Sir Henry supported Mr. Redmond's amendment in the division, but was unable to secure the support sufficient to achieve the real object of the amendment, namely, the defeat of the Unionist Government.

The second day's debate brought out no striking speeches, and there was an absence of anything approaching the excitement that frequently is attendant on debates of the Irish question. Throughout the afternoon and night, Sir Antony MacDonnell, Chief Secretary Wyndham and the Earl of Dudley were the chief centres around which the attack and defence turned. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman demanded the publication of the correspondence between Secretary Wyndham and Under Secretary MacDonnell, and Mr. Balfour, who, at considerable length, defended MacDonnell and Wyndham, said he profoundly regretted the misunderstanding but refused to entertain the suggestion that it touched in the smallest degree the honor of any of the principals concerned.

Burying Home Rule Decently.

Mr. Balfour's speech frequently was interrupted by hooting from Irish members and the Speaker was obliged to intervene to request order, while Mr. Balfour, who calmly waited until the disturbance was over, on one occasion said that he was not being treated with the courtesy which had been extended to Irish members, and, referring to Lord Hugh Cecil's statement that home rule was dead, said that home rule was being buried decently. He viewed without fear the end of the battle, if the great party in favor of union remained undivided, but it was vital that all smaller controversies should be sunk in this great national and Imperial issue.

The announcement of the division showing an unexpectedly large reduction of the Government's majority, was greeted with prolonged opposition and Irish cheers.

PHYSICIANS EVERYWHERE

Know the Value of Pyramid Pile Cure.

Gratitude alone prompts me to testify to the efficacy of Pyramid Pile Cure. Last March I bought a dollar package at the drug store, which cured me of bleeding piles, and I was a sufferer from them for eight years; but I had not been troubled with them since, until last September, when I gave birth to a baby girl, and after that I had a very severe case of protruding piles, which a trained nurse said was the worst case she ever saw, and my doctor told me to get Pyramid Pile Cure again, which I did and was completely cured in three days. I have not had piles of any kind since, and it is all owing to this wonderful remedy. My nurse took a box, which I was glad to be able to give her, for I know she will be able to help lots of suffering people whom I could never see or know.

"I recommend 'Pyramids' whenever I know of any one suffering as I did. It gives me great pleasure to be able to say I am entirely cured, which my doctor says is true. I say God Bless Pyramid Pile Cure." From a former great sufferer, Mrs. F. Ancott, 1296 Unity-st., Frankford, Philadelphia, Pa.

This remedy, which is sold by druggists generally, in fifty cent and dollar packages, is in a suppository form, is applied directly to the parts affected and performs its work quietly and painlessly. Its value is evidenced by the testimony given above, and we urge all sufferers to buy a package now and give it a trial to-night. Accept no substitutes and remember that there is no remedy "just as good." A little book on the Cause and Cure of Piles is published by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., and will be sent free to any address.

—Complaints are made that the driveway on Water-st. north of Smith between the wall of snow on either side and the street car tracks is very narrow and that an accident will occur there one of these days as a result.

ATLAS SUES FOR $90,000.

Alleges Fraud in Sale of Stock of the Atlas Company.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—Another Atlas bomb burst in the court yesterday.

Damages to the extent of $90,000 is asked now from Thomas N. McConley for alleged "fraud and misrepresentation on the sale of stock" in several American companies. They are chiefly the Sprague Mercantile Agency Company of Chicago, the International Mercantile Agency of Newark, N. J., and the Sprague Mercantile Agency of New York.

Mr. McConley is the manager of the latter.

The suit is also for a return of the amounts paid by the Atlas to these companies. The National Trust Company, as liquidator of the Atlas, enter the suit through Holman & Co.

R. T. of T. Membership Decreases.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—The twenty-third annual session of the Grand Council of Ontario, Royal Templars of Temperance, opened yesterday in St. George's Hall. About 200 delegates are in attendance. The association has decreased 400 in membership during the year; 1,287 members were initiated; 142 reinstated, 2,141 suspended, 46 expelled, and 77 died. The present membership is 7,586.

Grand Secretary McMillan reported a good financial year. The deficit of $1,000 had been reduced to $497.

Approves Commission.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—Dr. Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, approves of the suggestion to appoint a Dominion Commission to enquire into the tuberculosis danger. He hopes it will result in some practical encouragement for the assistance of the Province and municipalities for the erection and maintenance of sanitariums. Such a plan should prove a preventive to the disease, and the plan so worked that the cost would decrease year by year.

C. P. R. Wire Extensions.

Montreal, Feb. 22.—The C. P. R. Telegraph Co. has made arrangements to erect 1,000 miles of copper wire and 800 miles of ordinary wire during the coming season. Most of the lines will be on new railway branches in the west, including an additional line from Winnipeg to Revelstoke, making the fourth line from Winnipeg to Vancouver.

Ross Benefit Fund.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—The sum subscribed by friends of Mr. George W. Ross, ex-Premier, for his benefit, will be presented on his return from Jamaica, which will probably be about the end of March. It is understood the fund amounts to about $35,000.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

To-night's Game.

A great deal of interest is being taken in tonight's city league game between T. A. E. and Karnots. The winner will meet the Farriers next week in the final game for the championship. Both teams are in the best of shape and will have their strongest line-up on. The T. A. E. will have nearly all of their Trent Valley team on the ice while the Karnots will be strengthened by the addition of Parker of last year's juniors. The game should prove a fast exhibition and no doubt a large crowd will be in attendance. It is the only match of the week. Mr. B. M. Glover will referee, which guarantees good fast hockey. The teams will line-up as follows—

T. A. E.		Karnots
	Goal
Derocher		Kingscote
	Point.
Meagher		Dormer
	Cover Point
Quigley		Parker
	Rover
Deforge		Campbell
	Centre
T. McGrath		Mulbern
	Right Wing
Ross		Quinn
	Left Wing.
Kenneally		Gilman

In Good Shape.

The seniors had a good workout last night and are in the best of shape and ready for anything. Morgan, Paxnell, Crowley, Graham, Glover and Fitzpatrick were out last night and all showed good form. The team that beats them will have to go some.

St. John's and George st. Guilds will meet tonight at the Brock st. rink between 6.30 and 7.30. The game is an important one. George st. must win to keep in the running for the championship.

Armstrong Chosen.

The annual hockey match between picked teams from Eastern and Western O.H.A. districts will be played within the next ten days. Armstrong and Birmingham will be the chosen ones from the Marlboros.

West Ends for Port Hope.

The West Ends will journey to Port Hope on Saturday to play the Trinity College School team.

George-st. and St. John's will meet to-night in a Guild League game at the Brock-st. rink between 6.30 and 7.30. Following is the line-up:—

St. John's.		George-st.
	Goal
Staunton		Metharal
	Point.
Comstock		Best
	Cover Point.
Seymour		Wood
	Rover
Ellis		Weeks

Morphet		Mann
	Right Wing
Ray		Humbers
	Left Wing.
Weir		Robertson

Marlboros Chopped Up.

With the score 6 to 4 in favor of Smith's Falls, at the end of the first half the Marlboros were unable to go on the ice for the second period, and the referee declared the game off, reporting the matter to the O.H.A. executive. The Falls chopped, slashed and battered the Toronto team into subjection. Armstrong was badly cut over the mouth, his upper lip being cut completely open.

The score at Fenelon Falls is almost enough to give a set-back to the temperance cause, but there may be a different aspect to the case when the return game is played in Peterborough.—Toronto Globe.

CURLING.

The Peterborough Curling Club advertise three gentlemen's "travelling companions" as a prize at their bonspiel. But they fail to provide a railroad ticket with each prize.—Toronto Telegram.

THE TURF.

George Powell recently sold the noted pacer, Sphinx B., 2.15 1-4, the price reported being $500.

The Globe has the following to say of Conduct, the grey gelding which figured in the recent ice races here:—Such was the case with the grey gelding, Conduct, which incidentally lowered the previous record by 23 3-4 seconds. The fact is that Conduct was so rank in all his races that a mile was too short for him to steady down. He is a stayer par excellence, and in races at from three to five miles very few, if any of the horses in his class would have the slightest chance with Mr. Mason's good, if far from handsome, "grey ghost."

BASEBALL.

Cured Kidney Disease

Mrs. Fred Hills, Walton St., Port Hope, Ont., states: "I was troubled for some time with kidney disease, and though I tried a great many different medicines never succeeded in obtaining relief until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. By the regular use of this preparation for a time I was completely cured of kidney disease."

FELL DOWN A WELL

Mr. Harry Morgan Had Rather Exciting Experience Near Lift Lock.

As Mr. Harry Morgan, foreman for the Peterborough Canoe Co. was walking on the hill just above the hydraulic lift lock a few days ago, he fell in an old unused well that was covered up with snow.

Mr. Morgan and a couple of men were delivering some goods there, and in stepping off the sleigh, the genial Harry broke through the thin planks on top of the well and took a sudden drop of twelve feet. There was no sign near to mark the existence of the dangerous spot. He was badly shaken up, but is now none the worse of an experience which he would not care to repeat.

Facial Paralysis

Mr. W. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My face was all twisted out of shape with facial paralysis, and five doctors failed to cure or even relieve. By the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been entirely cured, and have returned to work strong and well. I have gained in weight and feel that I have a new lease of life." 10

A Pleasing Item For Housekeepers.

A new preserver of time and patience is something to wrap the silver in when it is to be laid away for company use. It is a tissue paper in which there is no sulphur, and it positively keeps the silver clean and bright any length of time, says a correspondent in an exchange.

Notes From Jewelers' Circular.

Sleeve link buttons in amethyst and aventurine are rimmed in plain gold.

Etched and hand chased silver in scroll and flower designs is becoming popular.

Little receptacles for hatpins are of the gypsy kettle style or in the vase-like forms of silver.

Fascinating little handy pins are in sets of three in lizard skin cases. Peacock and other feather designs are shown in fine enamels and gold.

Insects, animals, ferns, leaves and wayside flowers are now generally utilized as motifs in original and charming designs of standard articles of jewelry.

Among the stones upon which fashion at present bestows her approval are the peridot, amethyst, tourmaline, aquamarine, zircon, garnet and the new American stone, kunzite.

BANQUET AT KINMOUNT

Pleasing Evidence of Esteem in Which Mr. J. H. Carnegie is Held.

On Friday evening of last week the supporters of Mr. J. H. Carnegie, M. P.P., tendered him a banquet, which was held at Kinmount. Supporters in the riding desired to give expression to their feelings, and to get together and congratulate one another on the successful outcome of the recent campaign. The gathering included well known and popular men from the northern townships of the riding, and in spite of the bad condition of the roads, many from Galway and Cavendish were present. It was expected that Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the member-elect for West Peterborough, would also be on hand to greet his supporters, but the G.T.R. line failed to make connection in time for Mr. Bradburn to reach Kinmount. The banquet was provided by Mr. Jas. Scott, of the Northern Hotel, who put up a spread that would have done credit to a city house. The large dining room was filled, and the utmost good feeling prevailed.

The chair was filled by Mr. James Wilson, reeve of Somerville, the vice chair by Dr. White, of Kinmount, and among those present were: Messrs. A. T. Hopkins, H. S. Hopkins, Jas. Dawson, S. G. Henry, Arch. Holmes, John Wellington, Rich. Smith, Neill Wilson, J. W. Wilson, F. Martin, L. Hopkins, Rich. Scott, Amos Train, Jas. Mark, W. T. Craig, Alex. Moore, A.H. McGrawth, Alex. Watson, A. Brandon, Fred. Dettman, D. Kirkpatick, Geo. Train, A. Newman, A. E. Hopkins, of Kinmount; and Messrs. C. Grainey, W. Henderson, Jas. Quinn, S. Lisle, W. Dudman, W. Ritchie, Geo. Sharlett, of Galway; Messrs. John Wilson, R. H. Henderson, and J. Newman, of Somerville; J. H. Delamere and Jas. Thompson, of Minden; John Hoyle and Ed. Long, of Snowden; A. Boldt, Lutterworth; George Lytle, A. Mallet, A. Baker, of Lindsay, and F. H. Dobbin, Peterborough.

The banquet having been disposed of Mr. A. Train, secretary of the committee, read telegrams and letters of regret at not being able to join with the company from Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.; R. M. Mason, Sam Hughes, M.P.; S Fox, M.P.P., and Mr. M. Mansfield.

The chairman in a neat speech proposed the toast of "Our Guests," referring in complimentary terms to the member-elect, and reply was made by Mr. J. H. Carnegie, who thanked his supporters for the earnest work that had made his candidature successful. He assured them that no effort would be spared on his part to serve them and their interests. He recalled incidents of former campaigns, and said that no candidate had been blessed with more loyal supporters and friends than he had been. The victory, he assured them, was not a party one, but a judgment from the people, who had grown tired of a state of affairs that was a disgrace to the province. They could rest assured that Mr. Whitney and his cabinet would carry out the policy and programme to which they were pledged, and which he was sure would result in the progress and prosperity of the province. He thanks his supporters for their kind services, and assured them that the recollection of the night would ever remain a green and pleasant memory.

"The Press," was proposed, and responded to by Mr. J. H. Delamere, President of the East Victoria Conservative Association, and by Mr. Geo. Lytle, of the Watchman-Warder, Lindsay, and Mr. Mallet, editor of of the same paper. Mr. F. H. Dobbin of the Review, Peterborough, also spoke, and took occasion to deliver a message to the men of Galway and Cavendish which Mr. Bradburn had entrusted to him in case he failed to get there.

A humorous recitation, "The Scotchman's Prayer," was given by Mr. Richard Smith.

In proposing the toast "Trade and Commerce," Dr. White, vice chairman, made a neat speech, touching on the relation of the interests to our lives and progress, and replies to thes toast were made by Mr. W. T. Craig, of Craig & Austin, lumber merchants; Mr. A. T. Hopkins, Mr. Jas. Mark, and others.

The toast of "Agriculture" was responded to by Messrs. A. Boldt, and Jas. Quinn.

"The Ladies" and "Our Host" were proposed and duly honored by bachelor members of the party, and by mine host, Jas. Scott, of the Northern, who said that the best in the house was ever at the service of the friends and public.

The gathering broke up at an early hour, all of those in attendance from the townships remaining in the village for the night, the heavy storm having blocked the roads.

FAIRMOUNT HAPPENINGS

Presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Coulter—Man's Thumb Bit Off by a Pig.

On Thursday evening last an event of considerable interest took place at the residence of Mr. John Greer, where a number of friends and members of Fairmount congregation assembled to bid adieu in a tangible way to Mr. and Mrs. John Coulter, who intend moving to Colborne in a short time.

After doing justice to a most excellent menu in which oysters were especially prominent, Mr. and Mrs. Coulter were presented with a three piece parlor suite. In the absence of Rev. H. V. Mounteer, on account of the storm, who was to read an address, Mr. Thos. Molendoo expressed the sentiments of those present in a very appropriate speech. Mr. Coulter, though taken by surprise, made a very suitable reply in behalf of himself and his very estimable wife.

Mr. Joseph Manahan had the misfortune to have the top bit off his thumb by a pig of Mr. Frank Staples which he was assisting to place in a pen.

Mr. David Galloway lost a valuable horse, while attempting to reach Mount Pleasant, the track being so narrow his horses crowded and continued to do so until one was dead. It is time for a change in the width of sleighs.

BENSFORT SNOWED UP

During Week Ending 18th. no Rigs Crossed the Bridge.

Bensfort, Feb. 23

No school for nearly two weeks owing to severe weather and deep roads.

Mr. Geo. Smithson is contractor for new and more commodious buildings to be erected for Mr. John Buckham next summer.

On Friday, 10th inst., a deputation from the Point interviewed Mr. Wm. Smith for the purpose of obtaining consideration with a view to having him turn furnished logs into ready building material in the form of boards and timber. As there is no competing saw-mill within easy reach Mr. Smith is kept quite busy, though the recent wintry weather prevented the hauling of logs any distance. During the week ending the 18th no rig of any kind crossed the Bensfort bridge for Peterborough and came through. About the middle of the week, Mr. John Smith, our pioneer road breaker, undertook to make it, but the elements were too many and he returned naturally homeward. Mr. L. Nicholson also crossed with horse and cutter, solely for the purpose of obtaining medical advice for sickness in the home, but he too found the roads much too deep and heavy for travelling.

The latter, however, who felt bound to go through, put up the horse by the way, and footed it the remainder of the distance about six miles.

FOWLER'S CORNERS

Presentation of Handsome Sideboard to Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Finley.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Finley on Feb. 17. As Mr. and Mrs. Finley are about to retire from farm life their many friends thought it very suitable to spend their last night with them and to make them a contribution for the many kind acts and deeds they had done during their life in our midst. About nine o'clock their friends began to arrive and after they had all arrived and shaken that wild northwestern blizzard from their coon and lamb skins and thanked kind Providence that their blood was once more freely circulating Mr. John Bradley then read the following address and Messrs. S. Bailey and G. Deyell made the presentation,—

Fowler's Corners,
Feb. 17, 1905.

Mr. and Mrs. Finley.

Dear Friends, — We, your friends and neighbors assemble here tonight to spend one more enjoyable evening with you before you depart from among us. We are very sorry and regret that you are leaving us, but as the best of friends must part we hope that by it being our loss it may be your gain. We will not forget the many pleasant days and evenings we spent with you. We now wish you to accept this present as a slight token of our esteem and hope that you may live long to enjoy it, and as we are now starting on a duration we hope that the last great move we will all have to make sooner or later may bring us into unity new year and this life is of short again in the eternal heaven, not made by hand but by the Bountiful Providence. In closing we all join in wishing you prosperity in your new home.

The address was signed by Messrs. B. Nunn, George McGee and Evan Storey.

Mr. Finley made a very touching reply. He was indebted to his friends for their gift and regretted his having to depart from among so many kind friends. The present was a beautiful and costly sideboard. The friends then sat down to a sumptuous repast prepared by the ladies. Mr. John Bradley of Fowler's Corners taking the place at the head of the table, and after making a few strong spiritual remarks the friends then partook of the farewell supper with Mr. and Mrs. Finley. The remainder of the evening was spent in various games and amusements till the small hours of the morning when it became the sorrowful duty to bid Mr. and Mrs. Finley good-bye and wishing them success in their new home. In the future Mr. and Mrs. Finley will reside in Mount Pleasant.

THE NEW BISHOP.

Brief Sketch of His Lordship's Career and Early Associations.

Rev. Father D. J. Scollard, who was to-day consecrated as Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie was born in the Township of Ennismore, on Nov. 4, 1862. He is the son of Mr. John Scollard. His mother's maiden name is Miss Catharine O'Connor. His primary education was received in the local schools, and resolving to take holy orders he studied classics and philosophy for six years at St. Michael's College, Toronto and theology for three and a half years in the Grand Seminary, Montreal. He applied himself diligently to his studies and always took the highest standing in St. Michael's, where he won a gold medal in philosophy. His career at the Grand Seminary was likewise a brilliant one. At the end of the second year there he took the degree of B.D. and at the end of his third year his licenciate. Rev. Father Scollard was ordained in St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, on December 21st, 1890, by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, who was assisted on that occasion by the late Rev. Father Laurent, V.G., Lindsay, as Archdeacon, Rev. Father D. O'Connell, parish priest, as deacon, Rev. Father Connolly, of Emily, as sub-deacon, Rev. Father Rudkins, of St. Peter's as Master of Ceremonies, and Rev. Father Kelty, of Douro, who delivered the sermon. Rev. Father Scollard was the first priest to be ordained by Bishop O'Connor. He was stationed in Peterborough for five years, and in February, 1896, he went to North Bay, where he has been located ever since. During his eight years there he has most faithfully and efficiently discharged the duties devolving upon him, and has won a warm place in the hearts of those with whom he came in contact.

BIG BONSPIEL IS FINISHED

Sam Ray's Rink Carries Off the Primary.

LOCAL RINKS ARE WINNERS

Only One Prize Goes Out of Town—Fourth in the Consolation Won by Walters, of Lindsay.

The big curling bonspeil is over, and all of the prizes save the fourth in the Consolation came to Peterborough rinks. The affair was a great success and much credit is due the energetic committee which had charge and to the energetic secretary Mr. J. S. Knapman for the entirely satisfactory manner in which matters were carried out.

The semi-finals in the primaries brought together Hamilton of Peterborough and Sam Ray of Peterborough. The latter won by 13 to 10. The other draw was Davies of Bobcaygeon and Matthews of Peterborough. The visitors were defeated by 18 to 5, and it remained for Matthews and Ray to play the 18-end final.

The Consolation events played yesterday afternoon resulted as follows.

Edwards Peterborough, 8; Frost Peterborough, 15.

Sykes, Oshawa, 8; Giroux, Peterborough, 15.

Brown, Peterborough, 11; Connal, Peterborough 12.

Patterson, Scarboro, 16; Hall, Peterborough, 3.

Between five and eight o'clock, Connal of Peterborough, defeated Reid of Bobcaygeon by 14 to 9.

Rutherford of Peterborough, defeated Peacock of Port Hope by 17 to 9.

Finlay of Norwood lost to Walters of Lindsay by 16 to 3.

There being seven rinks left for the finals Walters of Lindsay withdrew, he being in a hurry to get home, and he was given fourth prize—four fountain pens.

The single rink competition was captured by S. Ray's rink who defeated T. F. Matthews' aggregation last night by 21 to 6. The rinks were—

H Foote	M Lyle
J S Knapman	D Belleghem
C Rutherford	A H Stratton
S Ray	T F Matthews
skip 21	skip 6

In the consolation events last night Walters, of Lindsay won from Patterson, of Scarboro, by a score of 14 to 12. Dr. Walters defaulted his remaining games. Hamilton, of Peterborough defeated Davis, of Bobcaygeon by 18 to 6. T. Rutherford won from J. Connal by 15 to 3. Giroux, of Peterborough was victorious over Frost, also of Peterborough by 19—9.

This morning Rutherford defeated Giroux in the semi-final game by 16 to 8. Rutherford and Hamilton will meet in the final game to-night. There will doubtless be a large number of spectators this evening.

LOST HIS THUMB

Accident to Andrew Goodfellow, of the Canadian General.

Andrew Goodfellow, an employee of the Canadian General, lost the thumb of the right hand at the first joint yesterday. Goodfellow is a carpenter and was working at a buzz planer when the accident happened. Dr. Young was called and the lacerated member was properly dressed at the works surgery. Goodfellow showed great pluck when he met with the accident and while his thumb was being attended to.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN SERIOUS

Mr. J. J. Turner Struck by Snow Falling from Roof.

Mr. J. J. Turner, sr., considers that he had a very narrow escape from serious accident yesterday. He was passing the customs house when a large quantity of hard snow from the roof fell and struck him on the side of the head. He was somewhat dazed by the blow and it was some time before he recovered from the shock. Had it been a chunk of ice that struck Mr. Turner, the result would undoubtedly have been very serious.

During these mild days some steps should be taken by the authorities to see that all ice and snow is removed from roofs sloping towards the street.

AT OPERA HOUSE

Another Good Audience Greeted the Bijou Comedy Co. Last Night.

Bradburn's Opera House contained another large and appreciative audience last night when H. Wilmot Young's Big Bijou Comedy Co. presented the great Western drama, "My Jack." The play possessed plenty of life and action but was not of the blood curdling variety, and although typical mining scenes were portrayed, not a pistol shot was heard. All the characters were ably interpreted and the specialties were particularly good. Baby Marguerite, the ten months' old child and the pride of the company, who made her first professional debut at Cornwall in June last, was an exceptionally pretty and well behaved tot. To-night the company presents Nell Gwynne, with special costumes and electrical effects. To-morrow afternoon there will be a matinee, "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" and the engagement here will be closed on Saturday night with "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

FRIDAY, FEB. 24, 1905.

BISHOP SCOLLARD

This morning there took place in St. Peter's Cathedral one of the grandest, most impressive and solemn ceremonies that has ever been witnessed in that historic church.

It is indeed an occasion of rare interest to all, irrespective of creed or doctrine, that a Peterborough country boy—a native son of the township of Ennismore, in the person of Rev. D. J. Scollard has been elevated to the dignified and responsible post of spiritual head of the new diocese of Sault Ste. Marie. The hundreds of friends of the new Bishop in all walks of life will congratulate him on his elevation to the episcopacy. During his residence in this progressive town and amid the earlier associations of his youth in Ennismore His Lordship proved by his ability, his sincere piety, his unaffected disposition, his great administrative gifts and his talents as a scholar as well as by the exercise of many other admirable qualities that he is in every way worthy of promotion, and that he will discharge his duties and obligations as spiritual head of the new diocese in a highly satisfactory manner, and with zeal, earnestness and devotion.

The esteem and respect in which His Lordship is held is evidenced in the wording of the address presented to him by the priests of the diocese of Peterborough, and from his old-time friends and associates in the parish of Ennismore.

To the latter, as pointed out in the address, it is a source of pardonable pride and an honor to the parish that so brilliant an ornament to the church should have been born and brought up in their midst.

The priests of the diocese also joined in wishing Heaven's choicest blessings upon the new Bishop and expressing their confidence in his capabilities and the good work which he will be able to accomplish. Both addresses were accompanied by suitable presentations. In the division of the large diocese over which His Lordship Bishop O'Connor has so ably, enthusiastically and graciously exercised his care and influence, he will be able to devote his time and attention more directly to the needs and spiritual requirements of the eastern portion; while the great and growing northern and western section—now the diocese of Sault Ste. Marie—will have for its spiritual head a magnificent field for the display of his apostolic zeal. That Bishop Scollard will faithfully discharge his episcopal duties with the love and tenderness of a prudent father and with zeal, tact, aggressiveness, great administrative and executive ability cannot be doubted, in view of his excellent record in the past, and the fitness with which he is by nature, grace and education endowed. Hundreds of friends will join on this auspicious occasion in extending to the new Bishop of Saulte Ste. Marie their heartiest well wishes for a long and useful career, blessed with kindly deeds, noble acts and crowning achievements.

AN EXCELLENT REPORT.

The statement submitted at the annual meeting of the Confederation Life Association held at the head office of the company on Tuesday, the 14th inst., was a most gratifying one, showing as it does, the increased confidence of the public in this old established company. The amount of new business written is the largest in the history of the company, and there have been splendid gains in every department. The remarkably clear and definite statement of the company's business for the past year will be found on another page, and bears testimony of the sound and economical management which has resulted in the high position which the company holds in the estimation of the public. The directorate must have exercised great care in the selection of risks and the investment of the funds, as the interest income for the year not only paid all death claims among the insured, but left the large balance of $90,871. Taking the entire history of the company, the interest for the whole period exceeded the death claims paid by the sum of $732,387.

The cash surplus of the company is now $[illegible], while the total surplus security for policy holders is $1,[illegible]. The total insurance now in force is $30,347,247.00, which is a gain over 1903 of $[illegible]. During the year $380,190.25 was paid in death claims.

Mr. H. Bush is the cashier of the company resident in Peterborough while Mr. H. P. Lindsey is the general district agent.

The National Good-Road Association of the United States, has completed arrangements to operate Trans Continental Good-Road Trains. It is the purpose in inviting the co-operation of the railroad companies to visit 38 general state and territorial assemblies, hold conventions, and secure a joint meeting of the Senate and House and urge the enactment of good-road legislation. Millions of dollars are annually spent now in the good-roads channels, a large portion of which is wasted. System and economy, through the supervision of a state highway commissioner, is recommended. State co-operation with townships and counties is also a measure advocated by the national association. The utilization of the labor of all tramps, vagrants, paupers and criminals is a strong recommendation of the association. Fully 40,000 men are now housed in prisons annually, and a much larger army in the jails of the country that should be used in preparing material, loading it on cars and placing it upon the public roads.

Statistics show that Canada is the most temperate-liquor drinking country on earth. The following table shows at a glance the per capita consumption in gallons of alcoholic beverages in twelve countries, including our own.

	Wines	Beers	Spirits
United Kingdom	0.4	29.7	0.19
Germany	1.3	25.6	1.76
France	30.4	4.8	1.56
United States	0.4	15.0	1.22
Italy	24.2	...	0.28
Spain	10.0	...	...
Portugal	18.3	...	...
Holland	0.4	...	1.72
Belgium	1.0	47.7	1.19
Australia	1.2	11.6	0.82
New Zealand	...	9.5	0.75
Canada	...	4.8	0.83

The report says that, although exact figures are not available, the consumption of wine, in New Zealand an Canada is relatively insignificant.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

A sad fatality is reported from Hastings. It appears that last Friday night, John Young, employed with William McAllister, a farmer living on the boundary between Richmond and Hastings, went to the post office for the mail, intending to bring Thomas Saxsmith's as well as Mr. McAllister's. Not returning that night nothing was thought of it, as it was supposed he stopped over night with Mr. Saxsmith. On Saturday morning as the farmers were ploughing and shovelling out the Willow Swamp road, they discovered his body frozen stiff. He was about twenty-four years of age, and had no relatives in this part. The roads were in such an impassable condition that Napanee could not be reached to procure a coffin, and one had to be made for the unfortunate man. The remains were interred on Sunday in a near-by cemetery.

ENJOYABLE OYSTER SULPER

An oyster supper took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Huston, Otonabee, two miles south of town, on Wednesday evening at which a very pleasant time was spent by those present, who numbered about sixty.

To the promotors, Messrs. F. Kitney, R. Spears, J. Pimmott, W. Huston and P. Gillespie, through whose generosity the evening's pleasure was due, the thanks of all present were extended.

At the conclusion of the repast the guests spent the balance of the evening most enjoyably, a number of songs being rendered in a most excellent manner. Games and other amusements also contributed largely to the evening's pleasure.

HORSES FROZEN TO DEATH

On Wednesday of last week Mr. Archibald McArthur and William McNish, two farmers who live opposite each other near Long Point, in Fenelon, drove to the Falls, a distance of ten miles, each with a load of oats; and when they left for home in the evening Mr. McNish rode with his neighbor, leaving his own team to follow, without (as far as we can learn) tying them to the leading sleigh. He is sure they were behind at No. 13 school house, about six miles from here; but it was then dark and a snowstorm was raging, and when the men reached home, Mr. McNish's horses and sleigh were nowhere to be seen; and no tidings of them could be obtained until they were found three or four days later in the bush near Birch Point, in Balsam Lake, the teams still hitched to the sleigh, but both dead and frozen stiff. With something to eat they probably have lived longer, but the combined hunger and cold proved fatal.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

YOUNG'S POINT

The trouble in the cheese factory affairs has been satisfactorily settled, and the following public statement has been issued—

We, the undersigned, do hereby state that we have looked over the bank book of the Young's Point cheese factory for 1903, comparing it with all deposits made in the Toronto Bank in that year, and have found, to the best of our knowledge, everything correct, and have seen that A. Wilson, maker, and W. Young, salesman, are exonerated from all blame regarding the story which has been circulated against them.

Facial Paralysis

Mr. W. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My face was all twisted out of shape with facial paralysis, and five doctors failed to cure or even relieve. By the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been entirely cured, and have returned to work strong and well. I have gained in weight and feel that I have a new lease of life." 10

MR. PEDLEY ON THE PRESS.

(Montreal Star.)

Rev. Hugh Pedley, in his sermon of yesterday, dwelt upon the fact which has so frequently been pressed upon public attention of late, that a great and growing share of the reading indulged in by busy people to-day is provided by the newspaper. Sometimes this development of modern life is mentioned to be deplored, though Mr. Pedley took the saner view that it rather increased to a vast extent the responsibility of the men who make the newspapers. What is to be deplored in this connection is that men have become so busy in the rush of modern times that they have no leisure for the more careful literature of the book; but this fault in our lives will not be corrected by condemning newspaper-reading.

The truth is that much of the literature which is written to-day for the book publishers is quite as hasty and superficial as the frothiest newspaper can possibly be. This Mr. Pedley sees, and raises his voice in wholesome warning against what might be called the intoxication of the novel. The novel to-day must be galvanic in character if it is to claim and hold public attention. The calm pictures of placid English life given by Jane Austen, the philosophic studies of human nature presented by George Eliot, even the spiced satires on "high life" offered by Thackeray, could hardly compete in popular sales at this time with an account of somebody's adventures in "a Bishop's carriage," or a re-hash of the lurid loves of the author of "Don Juan."

But the modern newspaper is not all made of such stuff by any means. Some of the best things which are being produced by the pens of today, are published in full in the press. Let a literary man prepare a particularly good paper for a heavy review; and the chances are that half the papers in the world will print the gist of it, and that some will print it all. The best things in books usually appear in the press; and this by no means refers to the spiciest things. The newspaper is becoming more and more a people's magazine; and the man who reads it is probably better off than if he were competing with the other patrons of a circulating library for the latest novels.

Merely to refer to some recent instances of the kind of reading which the modern newspaper finds it necessary to give its patrons, we may mention the full accounts of the discovery of and experiments with radium which were published by the best journals of the world, the earlier accounts of the "X-ray" experiments, the paper by Canon Henson on the position of the Bible—by no means a light subject, and the many excerpts from books and reviews on abstruse questions. It is not, of course, the business of the pulpit to wander a-field in this way; but it is a question when the average pulpit would bear comparison with the average newspaper in the spread of valuable and important information. This tendency of the modern press to grow in bulk and become magazine-like will increase; and it may as well be recognized that the daily presses will produce more and more of the reading of the busy man.

FIRST WHITNEY HOUSE

Legislature Assembly to Assemble Wednesday March 22.

Premier Whitney, in Making the Announcement, Had Nothing to Add in the Way of a Statement—Cabinet Meeting in the Afternoon, Owing to Absence of Several Ministers, Was Said to Have Delayed Settlement of Date.

Toronto, Feb. 24.—The Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario is called to assemble on Wednesday, March 22.

Premier Whitney made the announcement last night at the Queen's. He had nothing to add in the way of a statement.

In the afternoon a Cabinet meeting had been called, but owing to the absence of Hon. W. J. Hanna, Hon. Dr. Willoughby and Hon. Dr. Pyne, it was stated that the settlement on the date of calling the House together would be deferred until this afternoon, when a full Cabinet meeting will be held.

Some Appointments.

David McGillivray of Little Current has been appointed clerk of the Second Division Court in place of W. H. Becks, and James T. Burns has been appointed clerk of the Third Division Court of Manitowaning in place of W. J. Tucker, who resigned, to run against R. R. Gamey. Both appointments are in Mr. Gamey's riding.

Will Take No Action.

Premier Whitney has received the report of Provincial Detective Rogers on his investigation of the charge that jurors in a case against the Street Railway Company had been corruptly influenced. Mr. Whitney would not give out the substance of the report, but intimated that no action would be taken.

John Dryden, former Minister of Agriculture, called on his successor, Hon. Nelson Monteith, yesterday.

Petrolea, Feb. 24.—The banquet tendered the Hon. Mr. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, here last night was a success. Hundreds attended from all over the riding, representing all shades of political feeling. Hon. Mr. Hanna and party arrived on the 6 o'clock train. A torchlight procession a mile long, with three bands, escorted the guests. The banquet was held in Victoria Hall.

MURDER ALMOST DONE.

Fred McAllister Fires With Shotgun at Roy Isbister.

Hamilton, Feb. 24.—Fred McAllister and some chums were playing pool in the Waldorf Hotel yesterday afternoon. They got into an argument about who was to pay for the game. While they were arguing, McAllister got in the way of Roy Isbister, 125 South Wellington Street, who was playing at another table. Isbister asked McAllister to get out of the way, and McAllister refused. They had a tiff, and Isbister slapped McAllister's face.

McAllister left the place, muttering something about a shotgun, and getting even. He returned to the hotel about 5.45 carrying the gun. Isbister was passing along the hall from the pool room, and McAllister raised the gun and fired. The load of shot grazed Isbister's head, and struck the corner of a door in front. McAllister then rushed out of the hotel.

The police were not notified until about an hour after. He had not been caught at a late hour last night.

ABOLISH THE BARS.

Ontario Alliance Will Ask Premier Whitney to Do So.

Toronto, Feb. 24.—The annual convention of the Ontario Alliance was held in Guild Hall yesterday, with O. F. Marter presiding, and delegates numbering about 200 present. The executive made arrangements for a delegation to wait upon Premier Whitney at 12.30 to-day in the reception room, Parliament Buildings. He will be asked to abolish the bars.

A committee was appointed in the morning to prepare resolutions to be presented to the Legislature. The committee worked assiduously and brought in a carefully worded report.

The officers were then elected, with practically no change.

ARMY INCREASED BY 25,000 MEN.

Arnold-Foster Defends War Office Plans and Expenditures.

London, Feb. 24.—The House of Commons yesterday and last night debated Mr. Norton's amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, calling the attention of the King to the condition of the army, which the amendment asserts, shows "negligence and mismanagement" by the Ministers.

War Secretary Arnold-Foster defended his conduct of affairs, saying that the efficiency of the army for the defence of the Empire had increased, and that the total strength of the army had been increased since the Boer war by 25,000 men, while the estimates had been reduced $5,000,000.

It was the intention of the War Office, he said, to bring the army up to the needs of the country. "Anything less than that," he added, "means waste of money."

C. P. R.'S WEIGHTY DEFENCE.

Prosecution for Smoke Nuisance Restriction of British Commerce.

Detroit, Feb. 24.—Yesterday the smoke nuisance cases were called against the Michigan Central, Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railroads, that complaint in each case originating from the volumes of smoke the transfer boats poured out while trying to crash their way through the ice.

The C. P. R. presented questions entirely new in this State, and which were set for hearing on March 16. The defence was that the C. P. R. boat is a British ship, operated under British rules, and that the smoke ordinance as applied to it amounted to an unreasonable restriction of international commerce.

The other roads asked for more time.

Palmerston Station Gutted.

Palmerston, Feb. 24.—The G. T. R. station here was badly gutted by fire on Wednesday night. The building contains the offices of Assistant Trainmaster White and Roadmaster R. Davey. The cause of the fire is not known. The building was heated by steam carried from the roundhouse by underground pipes, and lighted by electric light. The baggage room and express office are not injured.

Hon. Mr. Tarte Marries.

Ottawa, Febb. 24.—Hon. J. Israel Tarte was married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Turcotte, who, for some years has been engaged on the clerical staff of the Public Works Department. The ceremony took place at the Basilica. Fred Gelinas, secretary of the Public Works Department, was best man. The bride was given away by her father, B. Laurencelle.

MR. SIFTON WALKS IN.

Parliament Taken Up With Some Routine Matters Thursday.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—A variety of routine matters engaged the House yesterday. During the afternoon Mr. Fitzpatrick's bill, providing for a retiring allowance for the Chairman of the Railway Commission, was put through committee and stands for third reading, but not before Mr. W. F. Maclean presented some amendments, which were ruled out on a point of order.

Armories for Small Places.

Last evening Sir Frederick Borden outlined his policy respecting the erection of armories, and said he hoped to make them far more numerous than they are now.

Hon. Clifford Sifton made his first appearance in the House for the session.

Public Works estimates amounting to $1,736,000 were voted.

The following bills were introduced:

To incorporate the Canadian Canals Corporation—Mr. Calvert.

To incorporate the Montreal & Quebec Southern Railway—Mr. Gervais.

The Autonomy Bill.

Before the orders of the day were called, Mr. W. F. Maclean asked when the House might expect the autonomy bill to have its second reading.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that it would not be for some time to come yet. He could not say when the resolutions would be introduced, but it would be before the second reading.

WHITE DOVE HAS SETTLED.

Premier Parent Will Accept Gouin's Nominee for Speaker.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—Peace has at last been arrived at between the warring Gouin and Parent factions in the Quebec Government. This was announced yesterday morning after a caucus held in Hon. Lomer Gouin's office, attended by the three resigned Ministers and 25 of the district deputies. Mr. Gouin, after the meeting, said that an amicable settlement had been reached, but declined to make an announcement, which might compromise final settlement. It was announced [illegible] ment. It was announced by one of those present that Parent would meet Legislature with his present remaining Cabinet.

Parent Admits It.

Parent admits that Gouin has the largest following, and will accept Gouin's nominee for Speaker, which was expected to open the fight. Then the Gouin faction will not oppose the Government. Later developments will, in all probability, be the return of Messrs. Gouin, Weir and Turgeon to the Cabinet, while Mr. Parent will seize a favorable opportunity to resign, and Gouin will become Premier. This will enable Mr. Parent to drop out with dignity, which is what his followers have demanded, and will leave the Government in the stronger hands of Hon. Lomer Gouin.

KARNOTS OUT OF THE RUNNING

T. A. S. Defeated the Purple and White Team by 12—0.

KARNOTS WERE OUTCLASSED

Fast Exhibition of Hockey—T. A. S. Played Nice Game and Deserved to Win—Half Time Score was 7-0—Winners Will Meet Farriers in Finals.

The T.A.S. decisively defeated the Karnots in the first game of the City League finals last night by 12 0. The score at half time was 7—0. One of the largest City League crowds of the season were present. The game, although one-sided, was one of the fastest and best exhibitions of the series, and there wasn't a dull moment all the way through. The contest was not unduly rough, although it might have been if Referee Glover had been less strict. Fast hockey was displayed at all stages.

There is no doubt but that the better team won. The Karnots were outclassed in shooting, team work, and, above all, in checking. In this last particular T.A.S. especially shone. Each forward hung closely to his check with the result that the Karnots very seldom got clean away. The boys in purple and white were checked too closely to work in much combination, and Parker's rushes and Gilman's dashes along the side were easily handled by the T.A.S. defence.

The Abstainers played clever hockey and deserved to win. On the whole they combined nicely, and when they got going were very hard to stop. The forwards shot well and checked back in splendid fashion. The defence was impregnable.

Derocher got everything shot at him. On several occasions he robbed the Karnots of scores by brilliant stops. He also cleared nicely. Meagher played a fine blocking game at point, and the Karnots seldom got past him. He relieved the pressure at many critical moments by nice rushes. Quigley was probably the star of the game. He checked and lifted well and his rushes were a feature. When he got started it seemed almost impossible to stop him. Time after time he fooled the Karnots with his clever stick-handling. Deforge at rover was one of the fastest men on the ice. He easily outskated the opposing forward line and when he got away he was never caught from behind. He scored several goals. T. McGrath also showed up prominently on the forward line. His stick handling was good and his passing excellent. He checked back very fast and broke up many rushes in that way. Rose and Kenneally on the boards put up great hockey. Both men play about the same kind of game, keeping their position well, and holding their men to perfection. Rose scored several on nice shots from the side.

Even the most ardent supporter of the Karnots will be unable to deny that they were outplayed at all departments of the game. They had very little combination, and their individual rushes were of no avail. Every time the man carring puck came down he was stopped before he could do much damage. Parker did fine work at cover point, but could not play the whole game himself. He made several fine rushes, but there was no one to pass to, with the result that he lost the puck before getting a shot. Gilman played nice hockey at left wing and made many pretty dashes along the boards. Campbell was checked too closely to be dangerous.

Mr. R. M. Glover refereed the game to the satisfaction of all concerned. He nipped all attempts at rough play in the bud. The teams lined up as follows :—

T.A.S.		Karnots.
	Goal
Derocher		Kingscote
	Point
Meagher		Dormer
	Coverpoint
Quigley		Parker
	Rover
Deforge		Campbell
	Centre
T. McGrath		Mulhern
	Right Wing
Rose		Quinn
	Left Wing
Kenneally		Gilman

The game started off at a fast clip and for a time was close and exciting. It showed signs of becoming rough, but Referee Glover soon stopped this. Several rushes on each goal failed to score. Kenneally went off for bodying and was soon followed by Deforge for the same offence. Playing seven against five the Karnots couldn't score. Gilman was benched for slashing. Finally after seven minutes' play Quigley tore off a nice rush and passed to Deforge, who scored easily. Score 1—0.

The T.A.S. were pressing, but the Karnots held them off for some time. At last Meagher, after breaking up a rush, started one of his own, passing to Deforge, who tipped the rubber to Rose, and the score was 2—0.

Rose went off for slashing and Kenneally followed for attempting to trip Quinn. Kenneally on his return made a nice rush up the boards, but his shot was stopped. Deforge, however, batted it through. Score 3—0.

Campbell received a blow across the face and retired with Kenneally. Quigley went the length of the rink, but failed to score. Rose made it 4—0 with a shot from a mix-up in front of the Karnot goal.

Quigley got the next one in short order, eluding the whole Karnot team with a splendid rush. Score 5—0.

Quigley made a nice rush and passed to McGrath, and the umpire's hand went up once more. Score 6—0.

Campbell and Kenneally came back again. McGrath notched up the next one from a scrimmage. Score 7—0. Rose went off for slashing. Half time.

Karnots showed an improvement in the first part of the second half, and for a while held the T.A.S. from making further scores. Gilman was hurt and went off with Kenneally. Parker was penalized for tripping. Rose followed for bodying. Gilman was the next to suffer, his offence being tripping. Quigley rushed nicely and passed to McGrath, who found the nets with a neat shot. Score 8-0.

Deforge got the next after a pretty rush by Quigley, whom the Karnots did not seem to be able to stop. Score 9—0.

Deforge uncorked a nice rush and scored once more. Score 10—0.

Rose went off once more for bodying. The T.A.S. forwards reunited nicely, and Deforge once again beat Kingscote. Score 11—0.

The Karnots worked hard for a score, but Meagher or Derocher was always in the way. McGrath broke away and passed to Rose, who made it an even dozen.

There was only a minute or two to play and no further scoring was done. With one minute to play, Rose and Parker got into a mix-up, and both went off for the rest of the game.

INTERESTING ADDRESS

Young Men of George Street Heard Mr Hutchinson Speak on "Liquid Air."

Last night the regular meeting of the Young Men's Guild of George-st. Church was held in the lecture room of the church. Their was a fairly good attendance. The principal item on the programme for the evening was an able and interesting talk on "Liquid Air" by Mr. M. J. Hutchinson, who explained the method of manufacture of this interesting liquid, and compared the different systems used by the various manufacturers. Reference was made to the liquid plant which was in operation at Sault Ste. Marie, and which was the only plant in Canada to manufacture liquid air in commercial quantities.

Some matters of business were discussed, and it was decided to hold the next meeting in two weeks' time when a good programme will be presented.

WEDDED IN ST. JOHN

The St. John N. B. Telegraph, of recent date says,—"Miss Annie Maud Green, eldest daughter of P. H. Green, the Charlotte street photographer, formerly of Peterborough, Ont., was united in marriage last Wednesday afternoon, to Charles Holden Merritt of the office staff of T. McAvity & Sons. The ceremony took place at five o'clock at the residence of the bride's father, 66 Elliott Row, Rev. Christopher Burnett, pastor of Leinster Baptist church, officiating, in the presence of a few relatives. The bride was tastefully gowned in pale grey eolienne silk. She was given away by her father, and the couple were unattended. A large number of handsome gifts were received from friends and relatives in the city, Rothesay and in Peterborough and Berlin, Ont. From the office staff and clerks in T. McAvity & Sons, a handsome carved solid oak chair was received. The groom's gift was a beautiful fur-lined coat and stone-marten stole. Mr. and Mrs. Merritt have many friends in the city, and elsewhere, who will wish them every happiness."

WOMAN'S WORLD

ANNE WHITNEY.

A Famous New England Woman, Poet, Sculptor and Reformer.

Miss Anne Whitney of Massachusetts, poet, sculptor and advocate of the industrial and educational emancipation of woman, is one of that splendid group of New England women who are destined to leave their impress on the sands of time by reason of the prominent part they played in the movement for the advancement and uplifting of their sex, especially at a time in the past when that movement was not so popular as it is today.

Anne Whitney was born in Watertown, Mass., Sept. 2, 1821, educated by private tutors and early evinced a love for poetry and sculpture. Several volumes of poetry were published up to the time of the civil war. In 1873, when she was over fifty years of age, she opened a studio in Boston and began her career as a sculptor. All her great work has been done since. Her statue of Sam Adams stands in Adams square, Boston; Roma and Harriet Martineau are at Wellesley college, Lief Erikson is on Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and Charles Sumner is at Cambridge.

Kitchen Time Savers.

Though not homemade, except to the use to which they are put, there are three little time savers no kitchen should be without. These are a knitting needle, a pair of shears and a package of new hairpins. The latter are for cherry time, for there is no patented article on the market that equals a hairpin for stoning cherries. The rounded end is used and brings the pit out perfectly clean. The knitting needle is better than any tined fork for trying potatoes and other boiling vegetables, especially beets, which lose their sweetness if pierced to the bleeding stage with a fork. It is also good for testing cake and bread. A pair of large scissors or shears, in addition to being handy for cutting twine, paper, etc., is indispensable and much easier to use than a knife in trimming meat, cutting round steak for an Irish stew or cutting fins, tail, head, etc., from a fish. Try all three, and you will be convinced that your kitchen table drawer is incomplete without them.

Tinting Dress Goods.

A secret worth knowing is how to tint laces, chiffons, silk or crocheted buttons, feathers, slippers, gloves, etc., to a gown shade. The process is vouched for by the National Dressmakers' association, from whose journal it is taken. The materials required are oil paints in tubes and gasoline. The gasoline is placed in a porcelain bowl and the paint is dissolved in it. The work has to be done quickly and, of course, in a fireless room. Mix the paint to the required shade in a saucer, comparing it with the goods till the right color. When the exact tone is reached, mix with the gasoline and dip the lace or whatever is to be dyed quickly before the paint falls to the bottom. Do not let the goods touch the bottom, as there might be a spot of paint there. A hairpin comes in handily to hold the edge of the goods. Shake out quickly and pin up to dry. It is well to make a few experiments before risking costly material, but the process is really not at all formidable.

Dressing Quickly.

From the point of view of the husband and father one of the sterling qualities of the woman or girl is to dress quickly. She can be just as prettily attired; the prettier the better. There is such a thing as dressing well and dressing quickly. Let her get the habit as the boy has it, and it cannot be said of her when she grows up to be a wife and mother that her husband will need a fresh shave while waiting for her to accompany him for the evening. Mothers make a mistake in dressing or helping to dress children after a certain age. If for no other reason than discipline, training in self reliance and drilling the child to take care of itself are of enough importance to deserve the attention of any mother. Watching the fireman get from his bed to his place on the hose cart or ladder truck will show what can be done in the way of quick and thorough dressing.—Youth's Companion.

With Two Maids.

The best way of arranging the work for two maids in a household is to have the cook do the washing and ironing and cooking, the other maid waiting on table and doing the work of a waitress and chambermaid. One has all the downstairs work, the other all the upstairs work. On Mondays and Tuesdays, when the cook is busy with the laundry work, the other maid may help with the breakfast and luncheon and have the upstairs work made easier for her. This is better than to divide the laundry work, as a maid who washes cannot be ready to open the front door and do the waiting and work upstairs. If the cook cannot manage all the laundry work it is wise to have the white shirts and collars and cuffs worn by the gentlemen in the family done outside, as they take so much time to do well.—Harper's Bazar.

Handsome Ornaments.

Why does not the average bright woman know that it is actual economy to possess a few handsome objects, such as a jeweled belt clasp, a few old silver buttons, a point lace collar or two? Such things wear forever and may be used on dozens of garments. Often a very simple and inexpensive gown or coat can be made into a distinguished garment by the addition of something rare and handsome. Women spend on fragile passementeries and fancy trimmings in one season the price of a really beautiful ornament that would wear a lifetime.

Charming Old Chairs.

Among the most fascinating chairs to be found in the shops are the English easy chairs, after both Chippendale and Hepplewhite models. The backs are high and square, the wings—or ears, as they are sometimes called—form a tempting resting place for the head, and the hospitable upholstered arms complete a delightful whole. Most of these are entirely covered with chintz or rep, a deep flounce reaching to the floor, but many of them have a base and feet of mahogany or walnut.

These Useful Broom Bags.

For the impossible places to dust—walls and room corners—a broom bag is invaluable. Make it of canton flannel, with the nap inside, and make it just big enough to slip over the whole "head" of the broom. Run a drawing string of tape in to hold it in place at the handle. A couple of these bags will be enough for ordinary usage. They should be washed each time after using to keep them always ready to pass over delicate colored papers in search of dust and cobwebs.

One Way to Cook Chicken.

A Good Housekeeping correspondent says that chicken cooked after the following recipe closely resembles prairie chicken: Large fowls are slowly steamed until tender. In a deep skillet place a heaping tablespoonful of butter, several slices of bacon, half a dozen peppercorns and half a dozen whole cloves. Roll the pieces of chicken in salted flour and fry until brown. At the last moment add a cupful of cream, allow it to heat and serve at once.

To Launder Laces.

In laundering battenburg and renaissance laces it is better not to iron them. Instead pin a white flannel cloth to the ironing board, and over this put a clean white piece of cheesecloth. Pin the lace down carefully at all the scallops and points and stand the board near a radiator or register, where the heat will dry it quickly. The results are far more satisfactory than using an iron, and the lace will last twice as long.

Children and Promises.

Many a woman who would not think of lightly breaking a promise made to a grownup person is utterly careless about keeping her word with her children. She promises whatever is convenient at the moment and apparently thinks that the breaking or keeping of those promises is a matter in which she can please herself and that her children have no right to consider themselves aggrieved if she does not do so.—Woman's Life.

Teach Girls to Work.

Every daughter, no matter in what class she is born, ought to be taught all household duties to make her capable of household command. Marriage is too generally looked upon as woman's sole profession. Every girl should be taught an industry of some sort, according to the bent of her inclinations, which will render her independent of matrimony.—Violet Tweeddale.

Relaxation.

A famous specialist said once if girls and women would make a practice of throwing themselves on a couch three or four times a day in the careless way in which a child flings itself down there would be fewer cases of nervous prostration to treat. Resting this way, even for ten minutes at a time, with every muscle relaxed, does an untold amount of good.

Beating Butter.

When beating butter to a cream, scald the basin for a minute or two, and wipe dry quickly. Put in the butter at once and beat it thoroughly. Add the sugar by degrees. The warm basin will not hurt the butter in the least, and the process is far quicker than usual.

See that you leave your daughters a good legacy. Teach girls occupations that will pay, so that they are not forced into matrimony for a livelihood. —Countess Russell.

For cleaning paint before repainting use two ounces of soda to a quart of hot water. Afterward rinse off with pure water.

White paint when dirty should be washed in milk. Colored paints may also be treated in this way.

A lady is a woman who doesn't have to insist that she is a lady.

SOCIAL EVENING

St. Paul's Ladies' Auxiliary Entertained Young Men Last Evening.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, of St. Paul's church entertained the Young Men's Guild, Christian Endeavor, choir members and managers last evening. A pleasant social time was spent.

Mr. G. M. Roger occupied the chair. After a well rendered selection by the choir, the Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen, assistant pastor gave his interesting and amusing address "My First Sermon." Mr. Ketchen is very fluent and witty and his remarks proved highly enjoyable.

At the conclusion of the address refreshments were served and the balance of the evening passed in social intercourse. The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought a delightful evening to a close.

One of the teachers in Campbellford school reports a rather queer answer given by one of her pupils. She had carefully explained what minerals were, telling the class how they were dug out of the earth. After spending some time in her explanation she asked for an example. One little fellow who was given the first chance to answer, shouted out "Fishworms!"

NEW DIOCESE OF SAULT STE. MARIE CONSECRATION OF BISHOP SCOLLARD

Impressive Ceremony in St. Peter's Cathedral This Morning Witnessed by an Immense Concourse of People.

His Grace, Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston, was the Consecrator---Several Distinguished Prelates in Attendance---New Bishop Made the Recipient of Beautiful Gifts.

Rev. D. J. Scollard, of North Bay, formerly of Peterborough, was to-day, at St. Peter's Cathedral, consecrated as Bishop of the new diocese of Sault Ste. Marie. There were hundreds in attendance, including Archbishops, Bishops and Priests, from all over Canada and several States of the Union, representing many of the religious orders of the Roman Catholic church. Many persons were present from the new diocese to witness one of the grandest, most impressive and solemn ceremonies ever held in Peterborough.

His Grace Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston, officiated as consecrator, while his assistants were Bishop O'Connor, of Peterborough, and Bishop Lorraine, of Pembroke. Bishop McEvay, of London, formerly rector of the cathedral here, preached the consecration sermon.

St. Mathias' Day, February 24th, marks an epoch in the history of the diocese of Peterborough as well as the newly formed diocese of Sault Ste. Marie, as on this date the gorgeous ceremony of the consecration of Rev. D. J. Scollard as the first bishop of the new diocese took place in St. Peter's Cathedral before a very large congregation and in the presence of archbishops and bishops and about one hundred priests. The beauty and solemnity of the service cannot be described in words, and the occasion had a deep interest for clergy and people. The ceremonies with their solemn concomitants were full of meaning, and to those present and it spoke eloquently of the powers, authority and graces of the episcopacy.

It is but a few years ago since His Lordship Bishop Scollard was ordained in his native parish of Ennismore, and during his life as a priest of the Catholic Church he has been remarkable for his piety, prudence, learning and administrative abilities, and his elevation to the distinguished office of a bishop is but a fitting reward for a consistent and brilliant career, and his selection as the bishop of the new diocese is another evidence of the wonderful fatherly interest and careful foresight of His Holiness Pius X.

To-day's ceremony has been looked forward to with considerable interest by both priests and people ever since the joyous message was flashed from Rome that Father Scollard had been chosen from amongst them to be the first bishop of Sault Ste. Marie. At an early hour the people began to flock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and by 9.30 o'clock the edifice was crowded to the doors.

The morning trains brought in contingents from the surrounding parishes, and also from several parishes in the new diocese of Sault Ste. Marie. The township of Ennismore, the birthplace of Bishop Scollard, sent a large delegation, and the new prelate's parents, brothers and sisters and relatives occupied seats of honor in the Cathedral, and it certainly must have been a source of pride and honor to the good parents of the new bishop to witness his elevation to so distinguished an office in the gift of the Catholic Church. The good Sisters of the Convent who had been working assiduously in decorating the altar and chancel during the past few days, certainly made it a bower of beauty, and during the ceremonies it presented a beautiful sight.

The Cathedral choir, under the leadership of Miss N. Lewis, and Miss M. Doherty, organist, sang Loesch's Mass, and the excellent music furnished was a feature of the occasion.

Promptly at 9.30 the ecclesiastical procession entered the Cathedral from the Sacristy, Rev. Father Scanlan acting as cross bearer. It passed down the eastern aisle and returned to the altar by the middle aisle, the prelates taking seats inside the altar and the clergy outside.

AN AUGUST CEREMONY

One of the most august ceremonies of the Roman Catholic church is the consecration of a bishop. The essential rite by which the power of the Episcopacy is communicated is the imposition of hands with prayer; but the preparatory examination—the delivery of the emblems of pastoral authority, and the various other ceremonies—form a whole which is at once splendid and impressive. At the time appointed for the processional the Consecrator is vested in full Pontificals; and the elect puts on the amict, alb, cincture and stole, crossed upon his breast as a priest, and then takes the cope. The two assistant bishops are in rochets, stoles, copes and mitres. In the church two chapels are prepared; a greater for the Consecrator; a lesser for the elect; in the greater the altar is prepared in the usual manner, and all things required in the ceremony are placed on the credence table. In the smaller chapel, besides those things which are usual, there are the Pontifical vestments for the elect, also a cope, ewers and water, pith of bread, comb and cloth for cleansing him from oil, together with large candles, wine and bread ornamented with gold and silver for his offering. The mitre worn by the Consecrator and his assistants corresponds to that which the Jewish High Priest wore and is intended to represent the helmet of salvation wherewith the Bishop, as leader of the Christian people should be specially protected. "Take unto you the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the spirit, which is the Word of God.—Eph. vi, 17.

The Bishop elect uncovers his head when answering the Consecrator, to signify his respect. The Consecrator sits wearing his mitre, because he exercises authority. The frequent taking off and putting on of his mitre arises from the variety of offices which he performs throughout the ceremony. When administering to the Bishop elect the oath, and interrogating him as to his faith, he sits with the mitre, as his superior. When inviting the faithful to unite with him in prayer, "that God would bestow the abundance of His grace upon the elect Bishop," he retains the mitre in token of his authority, but stands as one earnest in soliciting their prayers. He kneels with the mitre on his head during the recital of the Litanies, as humbling himself, even in his official capacity, to God, and acknowledging, that though consecrated a prince over his people, he is but a suppliant at the throne of divine mercy. His head is uncovered whenever he immediately addresses God in prayer.

The Consecrator being vested, sits at the altar, and the elect, wearing his small cap, is led to him by the assistant Bishops; after saluting the Consecrator they are seated, the senior assistant Bishop on the right and the junior on the left of the elect.

APOSTOLIC COMMISSION

The Senior Bishop assistant having presented the elect to the Consecrator, the Apostolic Commission is called for and read, and the oath taken on bended knees. Then follows the examination, and the mass is begun and continued to the last verse of the tract exclusively, no change being made in the Liturgy, save the addition of a prayer appropriate to the occasion.

The elect being again presented to the Consecrator, all take their seats, and the Consecrator states the duties and powers of the Episcopacy in these simple terms—"It behooves a Bishop to judge, interpret, consecrate, ordain, baptize and confirm." Then after the invitation to the faithful to pray, all kneel while the Litanies are sung.

The prostration of the Bishop elect on the floor of the sanctuary is strikingly expressive of the interior humiliation of the soul in presence of the infinite majesty of God. The prayer and benediction which the Consecrator, toward the end of the Litanies, pronounces thrice over the elect, who still remains prostrate, is one of those grand and touching rites whose effect cannot be easily described. Whilst all the congregation and clergy are kneeling, the Consecrator rises up, and with his Crozier in his left hand turned toward them, prays aloud, "that God may vouchsafe to bless—to bless and sanctify — to bless and sanctify, and consecrate this elect here present."

After the Litanies, the Consecrator, with the aid of the assistant Bishops, places the book of the Gospel, open, on the shoulders of the elect, where it is sustained by one of the chaplains until it is delivered into his hands, at an advanced part of the ceremony. It is placed inversely, the bottom of the page being turned toward the Consecrator, which is the natural position, as he transfers the book to the shoulders of the elect.

AN ANCIENT RITE

The instruction conveyed by this rite is easily perceived. The Gospel must not be for him a sealed book, for woe is to him unless he preach the Gospel. The duty of unfolding the truths which it contains especially presses upon him. This rite is very ancient, being found in all the ancient Rituals, Latin, Greek and Syriac, though it seems not to have been in early times universal among the Latins. It is mentioned by Saint Chrysostom, and it is still a part of the Greek ceremonial. The imposition of hands immediately follows the placing of the Gospel on the head and neck of the elect. The Consecrator, making the sign of the cross thrice over the head of the elect, and holding his hand on him, prays—"Sovereign Lord, our God, who hast ordained by thy glorious Apostle Paul the various ranks and orders of ministering and serving in thy venerable and undefiled mysteries in thy holy place of sacrifice, first, Apostles; second, Prophets; third, Doctors—thou, Lord of all, strengthen by thy descent and power and the grace of thy Holy Spirit, even this one, chosen and deemed worthy to enter under the yoke of the Gospel, and to receive the dignity of High Priest by the hand of me a sinner, and of my fellow Ministers and fellow Bishops here present; as thou didst strengthen the holy Apostles and Prophets, as thou didst anoint the High Priest and make his high priesthood above reproach, and adorned with everything venerable, make it holy, that he may be worthy to ask the things that appertain to the salvation of the people, and that thou mayest hear him. For thy name is holy, and thy kingdom glorious."

After some prayers for general blessings, terminating with the invocation of our "all, holy, stainless, more than blessed, glorious, Lady, the Mother of God," the consecrating prelate, holding his hand on the crown of the head of elect, prays thus—

"O Lord, our God, since because the nature of man cannot support the splendor of the divine essence, thou hast established men like to ourselves as our teachers, approaching thy throne, to present to thee sacrifice and oblation for all thy people, do thou, O Lord, make even this man who is constituted a dispenser of the grace of the High Priesthood, become an imitator of thee, the true shepherd, laying down his life for his sheep; a guide of the blind, a light of them that are in darkness, an instructor of the foolish, a teacher of infants, a luminary in the world, that having reformed the souls entrusted to him in the present life, he may stand at thy tribunal without shame, and receive the great reward, which thou hast prepared for the preaching of thy Gospel. For it is thine, O God, to have mercy, and to save. Amen."

After this he takes the Gospel and places it on the holy table. Then he puts on the new Bishop the humeral ornament, (amophorion) saying—"He is worthy."

POWER OF EPISCOPACY.

The prayers which follow, and which are very ancient in the judgment of learned divines, determine the imposition of hands to signify and confer the grace and power of the Episcopacy.

By the imposition of hands Timothy and Titus were associated with the Apostles, and made partakers of their authority, to govern a portion of the Christian flock, and by the same sacred rite each Bishop is constituted by the Holy Ghost to feed and govern the Church of God.

The Sacred Canticle, after a short prayer, is sung by the Consecrator. The typical signification of the vesture of the ancient Priesthood is beautifully set forth, and it is observed that the splendor of the soul must be the chief ornament of a Christian Pontiff.

The Consecrator interrupts this Canticle, and on bended knees invokes the Holy Ghost with the usual hymn: "Veni, Creator Spiritus," &c. Before its commencement the head of the Bishop elect is bound with a linen fillet, to prevent the oil, with which the crown of the head is anointed, from dripping to the ground.

At the end of the first verse, whilst the choir continues the hymn, he seats himself, and wearing his mitre, he makes the sign of the cross with holy chrism on the head of the elect Bishop, and anoints the whole Crown or Tonsure, saying at the same time: "May thy head be anointed and consecrated with a heavenly benediction in the Pontifical Order, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." This unction is intended to signify the interior unction of the Holy Spirit.

The anointing of the hands then follows, with the recital of the cxxxii Psalm: "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together." This unction, like the former, is intended to signify the powers which are imparted to him. The cross is formed thrice by the Consecrator over the hands thus anointed in memory of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who redeemed us from death and gained us a title to the kingdom of heaven. He prays that whatever the new Bishop "Shall bless may be blessed, and whatever he shall sanctify, may be sanctified."

The hands are then joined and placed in a linen scarff suspended from the neck, through reverence for the oil with which they are anointed.

HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP SCOLLARD,
Who was to-day consecrated as spiritual head of the new Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie.

The blessing of the Crozier or Pastoral Staff is intended to signify that the power and grace of the Pastoral office must be derived from "God, the supporter of human weakness." The admonition that is given whilst this emblem of authority is delivered, admirably shows the true character of ecclesiastical power which tempers the exercise of justice with meekness. In delivering it the Consecrator says: "Receive the staff, that thou mayest govern with pastoral authority the flock entrusted to thee, and let it be for the obedient a staff and support, and use it as a rod of restraint, a rod of correction for the disobedient and loose."

The ring, which is blessed and placed on the right hand of the new Bishop, is an emblem of the fidelity which he owes the Church.

KISS OF PEACE.

The Gospel is then taken from his shoulders, and placed in his hands, and he is commanded to go and preach to the people committed to his care, He then receives the kiss of peace from the Consecrator and his Assistants. These conduct him to the side Chapel, where the crown of his head is rubbed and dried, to take away the chrism. The hair is then adjusted.

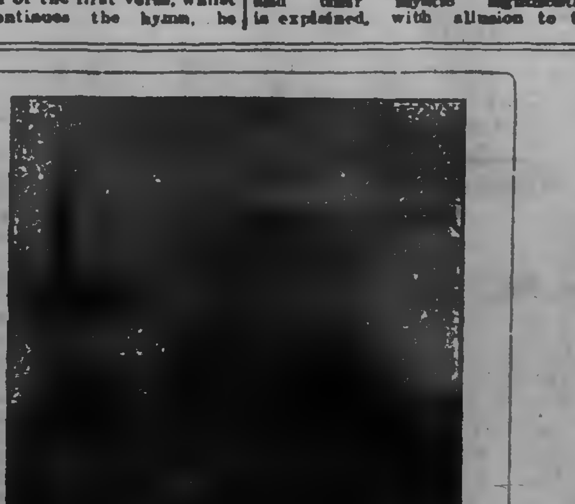
The offering, which is subsequently made by the new Bishop, is a relic of ancient discipline. All the faithful were accustomed to present at Mass various offerings for the support of the Clergy, and other purposes connected with religion. The new Bishop presents two lighted torches, two loaves and two ornamental small barrels of wine.

The mass proceeds as usual, with some additional prayers for the occasion, and the new Bishop communicates from the hand of his Consecrator, out of the same chalice. After the solemn benediction given as usual, by the Consecrator, he proceeds to the blessing of the mitre. In putting it on he refers to its mystic signification, as a helmet.

The gloves are then blessed and put on the hands of the new Bishop, and their mystic signification is explained, with allusion to the covering of the hands of Jacob with with the skins of kids, that he might obtain the blessing of the first-born, and a prayer that he who wears these gloves may obtain a blessing through Christ.

The ceremony of placing the new Bishop on the Episcopal chair being next performed, in token of his being made a judge and ruler; the Te Deum is sung, whilst he passes through the church giving his blessing. On his return to the sanctuary an anthem is sung, and a prayer recited previous to the solemn blessing, which he gives from the altar. Then, having wished long life to the Consecrator, the ceremony terminates with the recital of the commencement of the Gospel of St. John.

Words cannot adequately describe the impressive ceremony of consecration, and any attempt at portrayal of the magnificent scene presented must, at best, fail to do the occasion justice or convey a proper idea of its full significance.



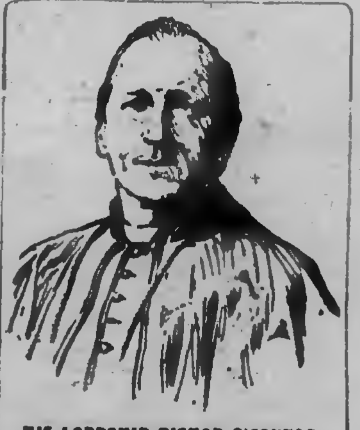
ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL,
Where the impressive ceremony took place to-day.

CONSECRATION SERMON.

The consecration sermon was delivered by His Lordship Bishop McEvay of London, who spoke from St. John 14:16. The words he said were uttered by the Divine Saviour on the solemn Thursday night before His Passion. He had given His disciples to understand that he was soon about to depart from them and sorrow filled their hearts. But the gentle Master spake to them in words of wisdom, consolation and love, and call them His friends, His children, His chosen ones, and assures them that he would not leave them orphans, but send the Holy Ghost, the Comforter, who would grant them blessed peace. On that solemn occasion he also impressed them with the great antagonism that existed between them and what he called the world—not the world of literature, science, art, the progress of which the church had always fostered—but the world opposed to the church was the one referred to by St. John in which ruled the concupiscence of the flesh, and of the eye, and the pride of the life. This was the world which would pass away, but "he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." The Church had suffered persecution but it had gone on since the days when Christ walked the earth, and so it would continue until the end of time. The Kingdom of God was not of this world, but a spiritual kingdom, and all of the powers of hell could not prevail against it. The only power commissioned by God to reach the soul of man was the church, through which the immortal soul was saved and sanctified. The Holy Ghost which was sent from above became the soul of the Church, and the apostles were filled with the Holy Spirit. The Church was the imperishable kingdom of Christ.

NOT EMPTY CEREMONY.

His Lordship stated that the ceremony witnessed this morning was not an empty one. In merely investing the new bishop with the Episcopal robes and insignia of office, it was not sought only to make an impression on the heart and souls of the people teaching them respect for the dignity of the hierarchy. It was not for such reason that prelates had assembled. The purpose was a higher and holier one—supernatural and divine. Besides his legitimate appointment a bishop must also be endowed with power from God. Therefore the Archbishop and his assistants impose hands and the Holy Spirit descends upon the soul of the chosen one, and sanctifies still more a soul already sanctified. The speaker explained the significance of the chrism, the mitre, the ring and the crosier, and pointed to the commission which Christ gave to the Apostles,—All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth to preach the gospels—go ye therefore teaching all nations in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. It was a wonderful and mighty commission, and no human power could ever fulfill it. The power of the Holy Ghost accompanied the commission, and the apostles were the witnesses unto the whole world.



HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP O'CONNOR.

The Church had ever been faithful in complying with the divine commission. Bishops had been consecrated and sent to all the nations, and it would be so to the end of time. She had come down to the present day as fair, and fresh and full of vigor and the spirit of God as in the early ages of Christianity. The speaker thanked God that in this fair and vigorous country of Canada, the Catholics were among the first nations in their devotion to the Holy See, the centre of all unity. Much heroic work had here been accomplished under the guidance and blessing of the Holy Church and the magnificent heritage which had been handed down was an everlasting credit to the priests and people and there was here a grand example of devotion to the See of Peter.

COINCIDENCE.

In the consecration of the new Bishop to the new diocese, there was presented an evidence and assurance of continued good work. The speaker referred to a pleasing coincidence. It was on the Feast of St. Mathias, 1874, that the late Bishop Jamot, was consecrated as Bishop Apostolic to Canada and fixed his place of residence at Sault Ste. Marie. Many would remember how he became Bishop of Peterborough in 1882, and would recall with gratitude, pleasure and pride, the great man's zeal, energy, self-sacrifice and devotion to God. In 1887 his Lordship Bishop Dowling took charge and continued the work for two years. His successor, his Lordship Bishop O'Connor, had long born the burden and heat of the day, in season and out of season, laboring to keep pace with the rapid development of that country forming the new See, as well as building up churches and stations forming the diocese. NEW DIOCESE OF SAULT STE. MARIE new Bishop succeeded worthy prelates in the church of God. It was a high honor to be called to the position of Bishop, becoming an ambassador of Christ, a pontiff chosen from among men to perform things which pertained to God. But while a Bishop received many honors his position was, as St. Augustine said, very laborious and also dangerous. It was necessary for him as a protector of the lambs of the fold to know well the great eternal truths, and the speaker emphasized the necessity for highest realization of the fact that education without religion could not properly be called such, and it was his duty to oppose all influences which tended to separate the one from the other thus robbing the little ones of their rights.

CITIZENSHIP.

His Lordship stated that a bishop did not cease to become a citizen. If the history of Canada proves anything, it proves clearly that among the best and most loyal citizens of the country, were the bishops of the Catholic church. He necessarily becomes an object of hatred to the prince of darkness, yet he knew not the spirit of fear, but ever continued zealous in the promotion of all good work.

THE NEW BISHOP.

Referring to the new Bishop, the speaker said that he was no stranger here but had been born and brought up in the neighboring parish of Ennismore, and three years of his priestly life was spent in Peterborough. He was then sent to the parish of Nort Bay, where he had labored with great zeal and success up to the present time, and now he had been given a wider and more difficult field as a Bishop of God's church. With devotion to the ministry, his knowledge of the needs of the people, his entire reliance upon the Providence of God, he would accomplish great things in the future as he had in the past. While the office of Bishop was necessarily a difficult one, all would admit that it became doubly difficult when beginning in a new See. It was not easy to lay broad and deep the foundation and to build up institutions with slender resources. Yet it was God's work and He would make the burden light and would help the new Bishop when the storms of difficulty beat across his path.

PLEASUREABLE VISIT.

Bishop McEvay, who was once located in Peterborough said it was a pleasure to take part in the consecration of his dear friend, and it became a special pleasure to unite in the rejoicing and praise to God. Although he had been removed many years from the diocese of Peterborough, he spoke truly when he said that his love and affection for the priests and the people here were just as tender at the present time as in the past, and he recalled with gratitude the many acts of kindness he received while living in this part of the country and in this parish. Hence, he could unite in their joy, and he was sure he voiced the sentiments of all present when he extended to the new Bishop congratulations on his elevation to the Episcopacy, wishing him length of days to carry on the work given him under the direction of the mother of God, "to fight the good fight, to keep the faith," and in persevering unto the end, to receive the everlasting reward.

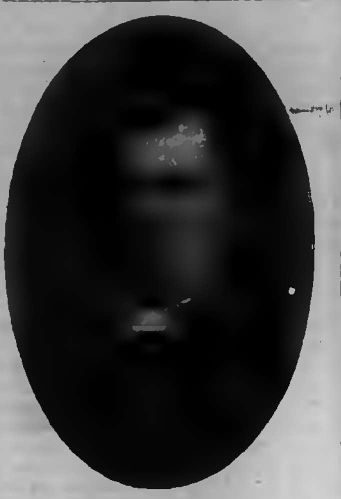
APPRECIATION OF CLERGY.

His Lordship Bishop Scollard was the Recipient of an Address and Purse of Money This Afternoon.

This afternoon His Lordship Bishop Scollard was the recipient of an address from the clergy of the diocese, expressing their appreciation of his many priestly virtues, which have won for him such high distinction. The address was read by Rev. Father Kielty, and the gift which accompanied it was a purse of money. Following is the address:—

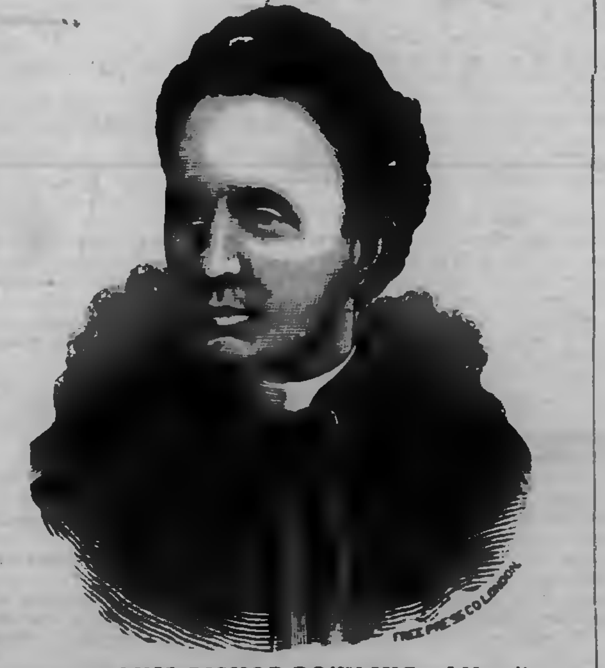
To the Right Rev. D. J. Scollard, Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont:

May it please Your Lordship,—We, the priests, of the diocese of Peterborough, your former associates, and co-Laborers, in the great work of saving souls, deem it an honor, alike to ourselves, to our diocese and to our beloved Bishop, that one of our number, should be chosen by Almighty God for the exalted and responsible position of chief pastor, of so large, so important, and so promising a portion of the Lord's Vineyard.



REV. DR. O'BRIEN.

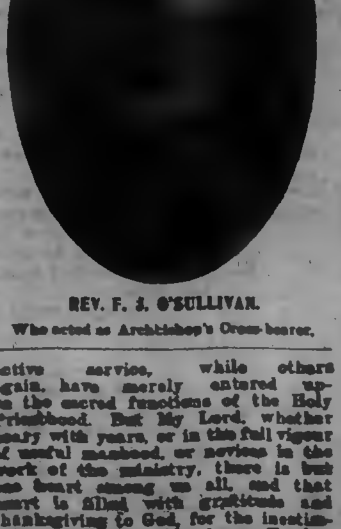
Who Officiated as Master of Ceremonies at the Consecration.



HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP DOWLING, of Hamilton
Formerly of the Diocese of Peterborough.

Gladly, therefore do we avail ourselves of this opportunity, to testify to your Lordship, our deep appreciation of the many priestly virtues, which has won for you such high distinction, and at the same time to offer you our sincere congratulations on your elevation to the Episcopacy.

Among the priests of the diocese, all of whom are proud to be with you today, some bear upon their form and features, the unmistakable marks of time and labor, others, like Your Lordship, have reached the prime of life, with scarcely a visible trace of their years of active service, while others again, have merely entered upon the sacred functions of the Holy Priesthood. But My Lord, whether hoary with years, or in the full vigour of useful manhood, or novices in the work of the ministry, there is but one heart among us all, and that heart is filled with gratitude and thanksgiving to God, for the inestimable graces and blessings He has been pleased to bestow upon you today.



REV. F. J. O'SULLIVAN.

Who acted as Archbishop's Cross-bearer.

For the past fourteen years you have lived and labored side by side with us, and in that time we have learned to know you, to love you and to respect you.

Your sincere and unaffected piety, your superior learning and administrative ability, your uniform kindness and consideration for the rights and feelings of others, your unflagging zeal and devotion to duty, your marked humility and patience in dealing with the thoughtless and the froward, your broadmindedness and spirit of christian tolerance and forbearance; those noble priestly virtues and qualities, could not fail to leave deep impressions on all who knew you, but especially on us, who had the pleasure of knowing you so long and so intimately. For this reason we are loath to part with you. We can assure you in all candor, that we will miss the good example, the wise counsel, the kind cheering word, the warm heartfelt greeting, which ever marked your intercourse with us.

We grieve to see a single link severed, in that golden chain of brotherly affection which binds us all together.

But God has decreed otherwise, and in humble submission we bow before His Holy will.

Henceforth your life will be passed, in a higher, broader and holier sphere,—your activities directed in a different channel. Not over the lambs only of Christ's fold but over the sheep as well must your paternal fostering care be ever exercised. And while we feel confident that you will never lose sight of the years gone by, nor ever forget the support and encouragement which words of sympathy and approval bring to the heart of the struggling priest, in his daily trials and crosses, still we know that in the faithful discharge of your Episcopal duties, the love of a brother must of necessity give way, before the watchful care of a prudent father.

We realize, My Lord, as no others can, the many difficulties that lie before you,—a vast extent of sparsely settled country, difficult of access—but abounding in untold possibilities, —truly a magnificent field for the full exercise of your apostolic zeal. During the wise administration of your predecessor, the Right Rev. R. A. O'Connor, much has been accomplished for the benefit of religion and education, by the erection of numerous churches and schools in various parts of your diocese. The foundation has already been laid, it remains for you to build thereon.

With a confidence therefore, born of an intimate knowledge of Your Lordship's capabilities, we look forward with anxious hope and expectation to the good work you will be able to accomplish in the near future. Say with the apostle of the Gentiles, "I can do all things in God who is my strength."

As an earnest of our sincerity, and as a pledge of our good wishes for your future happiness and prosperity we ask you to accept this as a slight proof of the respect and esteem which we bear towards you.

In conclusion then, we join in wishing you God-speed, and Heaven's choicest blessings—Ad Multos Annos—and in return we humbly ask and it is all we can hope to obtain, that in the midst of your increased cares and labors, you will occasionally in person and often in spirit and prayer, revisit the friends and scenes of your earlier days. Signed on behalf of the Priests,—

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE SLEIGH RIDE.

When the little year us muffled
In its Christmas coat of snow
And the cutters down the roadway
Speed like arrows to and fro,
Then it is a glimpse of heaven
Down the frosty way to ride
With a fancy pair of steppers
And your best girl at your side.

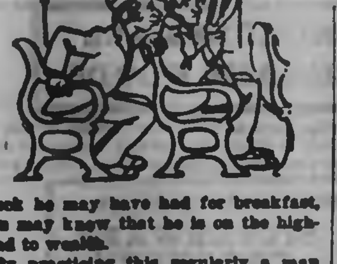
How you pity those who only
Have a chilly auto car
As you cut the biting breezes
Down the speedway flying far!
On your cheeks midwinter roses
Like the garden beauties bloom,
And the pretty girl sits closer,
Just as though there weren't room.

Soon you leave behind the city,
Giving to your steppers rein
As they glide into the country
Down some old romantic lane
Far from human habitation,
Off into some fairyland,
And before you really know it
You are driving with one hand.

And you do not care a cooky
If the horses trot or walk
It would please you quite immensely
If the blooming steeds would balk,
For you're in the seventeenth heaven,
Getting all your money's worth,
And each added mile made townward
Brings you that much nearer earth.

Saving the Pennies.

Oftentimes it is by practicing the small economies we are prone to despise that a man is landed high and dry in the millionaire class. When you see a man who reads the morning papers by peering over his neighbor's shoulder, giving in exchange for the news of the day a breath strongly tainted with onions or whatever cheap truck he may have had for breakfast, you may know that he is on the highroad to wealth.



By practicing this regularly a man may save as high as $6 a year, which he may spend at the corner woe emporium or invest in mining stocks, as suits his fancy, either one being guaranteed to leave a rich brown taste in the mouth or the money refunded.

Of course in that way he cannot bring the paper home to his wife and children, but if he did they, not being strong minded, might be tempted by the dry goods advertisements, and then what would happen to his little old $6, provided he had not already spent it for the stuff that perishes?

Bright Enough.

He didn't know enough to go inside when it was raining.
But that was not sufficient cause in his case for complaining
Or feeling very bad, because this dull and careless fellow
Did know enough when he was out to swipe a good umbrella.

Why He Admired It.

"I love to sit for hours on a sheltered bench watching the ocean roll!" exclaimed the tattered tramp meditatively.

"I did not know you were so poetical," replied his weary companion.

"It's not poetry," declared the wanderer; "it is the pleasure in watching that boundless body of water and remembering that not one drop of it is fit to drink."

Don't Shove.

Don't shove. The earth is not so small
But there is room enough for all.
But you may shove an inch or two
If some one will keep shoving you.

GROWING UP

There's something the matter with the child that fails to grow up. A child that grows up too much, however, without proper filling out of flesh, is almost as badly off. Nothing will help these pale, thin "weedy" children like Scott's Emulsion. It supplies the rounding out of flesh and the rich inward nourishment of blood and vital organs which insures rapid growth a healthy and uniform development.

MEN WITH ANIMAL EYES.

Some of Them Who Pose as Models For Painters.

Some men possess "animal eyes," which defy disguise and which are always liable to prejudice their owner's chances throughout life. That this, however, is by no means invariably the case is evidenced by a solicitor in the north of England, who ascribes much of his prosperity to a look of profound wisdom which has gained for him many clients, but which is lent to what would otherwise be a somewhat commonplace countenance by a pair of "owl eyes."

At least three men who have come under the writer's notice (and there are possibly many more like them) earn a precarious livelihood by sitting to animal painters. All three have come down in the world, and one is unknown to the other two. The first mentioned belonged once to a good Cheshire family, but went wrong and emigrated years ago to Canada, where he found his level on the water side at Montreal.

According to his own story, he was on the verge of starvation when one evening he was accosted by a French-Canadian artist, who asked him whether he cared to earn a dollar by coming to his studio and sitting to him for half an hour. Only when the painting, a very large one, was completed did the unfortunate model discover that the picture was a study in farmyard life and that the hateful and all too familiar expression in his own eyes had been transferred faithfully to the optics of a pig on the canvas.

The two other men with peculiar eyes who earn a living by sitting to animal painters are also expatriated Englishmen. The writer met both in Paris in the winter of 1897. One of them had "dog eyes," while the other wore the expression of a cat. Both are well known to bohemian dwellers in the Latin quarter. In Florence one Benhampi got his living by posing to Majrano, the well known animal painter. Dogs were his specialty. He had their expression, that doglike fidelity of eye which one admires so much in the pictures by Landseer.

Simple Life, Real and False.

There is every reason to expect that Pastor Wagner's doctrine of the simple life will be misinterpreted by many Americans who will endeavor to practice it as a kind of fad. They will pose as livers of the simple life. They will have clubs, circles and guilds. They will read papers and rush into print. They will start a cult, and by dint of persistent affectation they will convince themselves and their coposeurs that they are the disciples of genuine simplicity.

The way to be simple in your manner of living is to be honest with yourself. Don't let the first well advertised enthusiast who comes along with a freak idea chart and forecast your scheme of life. Don't go wild about new cults and read papers about the promulgation of fancy innovations. The essence and gist of simplicity in life is to live your own life as it seems best for you to live it.

Level Headed Boy.

Recently the editor of the Republican witnessed a scene from the rear end of a railroad train showing the fertility of resource possessed by a Kansas farmer boy. The boy had driven a big load of hay close to the crossing and waited for a train to pass. A spark from the locomotive set the hay on fire. Before the last car had passed it was in a big blaze. The boy did not stop to think. He hadn't time. He slid off, cramped the wagon, whipped up the horses, upset the load, and before the train was a quarter of a mile away the boy, the horses and the running gear of the wagon were at a safe distance from the roaring flames that consumed the hay. This young man is a genius, and if he is not elected governor he will be a millionaire before he dies.—El Dorado Republican.

Politics and Tense.

Representative Sydney E. Mudd of Maryland, who has coined many expensive political phrases, has just coined a new one, according to the Baltimore Sun. A young man wanted Mr. Mudd to indorse him for a minor position. "Do you live in my district?" inquired the representative. "No, I live in Baltimore, but have lived in your district." "Well, young man," retorted Mr. Mudd, with a smile, "you should know there is no past tense in politics. Politics deals only with the present and the future. However, I will violate the rule in your case and write you a letter of recommendation."

The Yellow Holly

"Well, he has been putting me through my paces. I only hope that our chance meeting of tonight may bear fruit. What is Train doing here? Your mother only had him in her house once before, and she does not like him."

"I can't make out why she asked him," said Dorothy. "He is a dull young man, though harmless enough. But my mother made a point of asking him to dinner."

"Humph! I wonder what that's for," said Brendon, wrinkling his brows, for he knew well that Mrs. Ward did nothing without expecting an equivalent return. Then he recollected her questions about the crime and wondered if she had invited Leonard so as to pump him.

And that is what she was doing at the very moment. Almost as soon as the lovers had disappeared into the yellow boudoir Lord Derrington had taken his departure. He insisted that Vane should accompany him home, and they left together.

This was an excellent opportunity to find out what Mrs. Ward wanted to know. Taking Leonard's arm, she led him to a chair some distance from the door of the boudoir.

"Now let us have a nice long talk, dear Mr. Train," she said. "We can renew our pleasant conversation."

"I don't think it was very pleasant," said Train unwillingly.

"What an ungallant thing to say!"

"I mean to talk about crime"—

"Is most amusing—I mean instructive. Oh, yes, I have read many of these novels—what do they call them?—detective novels. I have often thought how nice it would be if one could really try to find out who killed a person. Now, in this case, Mr. Train, I am sure you heard something or saw something"—

"Upon my word, I neither saw nor heard," protested Leonard. "I was in bed all the time."

"But you must have heard the fall of the body or the shutting of the door as the—ah!" Mrs. Ward saw from the expression of Leonard's face that she had touched upon something. "You did hear"—

"No, no!" he stammered, wondering how he was to get out of confessing about the opening of the front door without appearing rude.

"Nonsense! Confess! Confess, you silly man!"

But Leonard was too loyal. To lead her away from the point he asked a question. "Mrs. Ward, that yellow holly?"

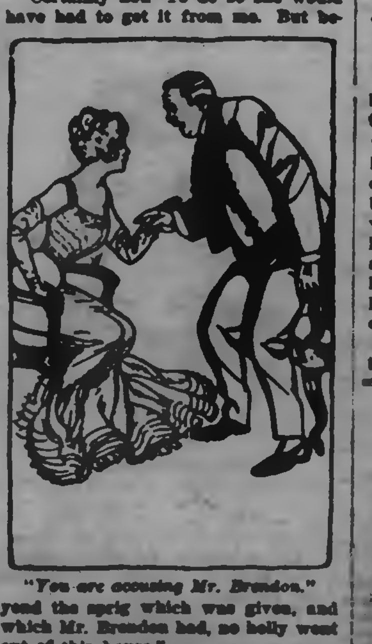
"Yes. What about it?" She leaned forward eagerly.

"Did you give a sprig of it to any one else?"

"No. I only gave a bit to my daughter, and she"—

"She gave it to Brendon. Yes, I know. But did Miss Ward give any of it to a third person?"

"Certainly not. To do so she would have had to get it from me. But beyond the sprig which was given, and which Mr. Brendon had, no holly went out of this house."



"You are accusing Mr. Brendon."

"It is very rare, is it not?"

"I believe so. I dare say there wasn't another bunch in London on that particular night. Of course there might have been; still—but why do you ask all this?"

"Well," said Leonard. "It seems to me that the yellow holly has something to do with the crime."

Mrs. Ward drew a long breath, but said no word. He was speaking half to himself, and she did not wish to interrupt his train of thought. But she listened with all her ears. Leonard continued: "I found a berry in the room where she was killed. Yes. They took us in to see the body, and a horrid sight it was. I turned my eyes to the floor, and there I saw—just by the table—a kind of amber bead. I dropped my handkerchief so that Quex might not suspect, and I picked it up. When in my own room I examined it. It was one of the yellow holly berries."

Mrs. Ward threw herself back with a kind of unholy triumph. "Do you know what you are saying, Mr. Train?" she said in a half whisper. "You are accusing Mr. Brendon"—

"No, no!" Train started to his feet. Mrs. Ward pulled him down again and pointed with her fan toward the boudoir.

"Hush! He might come out," she whispered. "But can't you see? Brendon wore the sprig in his coat on that night. He must have been in the room and have dropped the berry. What was he doing there if it was not to"—

"No," said Train hoarsely. "I half thought of that myself, but it is quite impossible, I tell you. He could not have got out of his room unless he had come to me."

"How do you mean?"

"I locked the door of the sitting room, which was between his bedroom and mine. There was no exit from his bedroom, and to get out and down the stair he would have had to open the sitting room door. Now, the key was under my pillow, and the door was locked in the morning. No, Mrs. Ward, Brendon is innocent."

"He might have stolen the key while you slept."

Train shook his head. "Impossible. I sleep very lightly, and on that night I hardly slept at all."

"Why? Was anything wrong?"

"I can't tell you that, Mrs. Ward, without violating the confidence of my friend. Indeed, I have said too much. Promise me you will not speak of what I have told you."

"I promise, but I am quite sure that the holly berry was dropped by George Brendon and that he was in Mrs. Jersey's sitting room on that night. He is the criminal."

"I tell you he is not, Mrs. Ward."

"Don't excite yourself, Mr. Train. Here are Mr. Brendon and Dorothy." She sailed toward them with open hands. "Finished your talk? We must say good night." And to herself she murmured, while smiling, "I've got you at last—I've got you at last!" And Brendon shook hands with Madame Judas, quite unconscious of her premeditated treachery.

CHAPTER XI.

UNDER the rule of Miss Bull—for Margery was a mere figurehead—the house in Amelia square was much more lively, but in spite of the air which certainly pervaded the house all things were very proper. Miss Bull was lady and saw that things were kept decent. The boarders feared her bright black eyes and her sharp tongue and were always glad when she retired to her sitting room. But Miss Bull was also liked, as she was a very affable hostess. Margery was now, as ever, her docile slave, and Miss Bull governed with a rod of iron.

Among the new boarders Miss Bull took most notice of Bawdsey, who occupied the rooms formerly inhabited by Train. On his arrival he had asked particularly for these rooms, saying that he had once lived in them when he stopped with Mrs. Jersey many years before. After some thought Miss Bull remembered the man. He had boarded in the house and had been a great favorite with madame, but had later gone to America and for some time had remained away. He expressed the greatest sorrow for the death of the old lady, but declared that he was very pleased with the house as managed by Miss Bull. The little woman liked him, as his conversation was amusing and he was most polite, but had she known that he was a private detective she might not have approved of him so much.

What Bawdsey was she never inquired, as she was the least curious of women. His habits were certainly eccentric, for sometimes he would remain away for a week and at other times would stop constantly in the house. He often remained in bed for the day and had his meals brought to him. This he called his bed cure and stated that he suffered from nerves. He told Miss Bull quite gratuitously that he had a small income. "I am simple in my tastes," said Mr. Bawdsey, "and what I have keeps me in luxury. But a man even of my age must be up and doing. Better to wear out than rust out."

Miss Bull assented. She liked to hear Bawdsey tell of his travels, and frequently asked him into her sitting room for that purpose. He seemed to have been everywhere and to have seen everything. It appeared from his own confession that he began his travels at the early age of seventeen, when he went to Milan. And the man talked freely about himself—so freely that Miss Bull, in spite of her suspicious nature, never dreamed that all this chatter was for the purpose of throwing dust in her sharp eyes.

A week after the little dinner at Mrs. Ward's, Bawdsey sent a note to Brendon asking him to call on a certain afternoon, and when George, anxious to continue the acquaintance and curious to know how Bawdsey had procured his address, arrived, he was shown up to the well known room. Bawdsey welcomed him with enthusiasm and much in the same style as Lola did, but in a less theatrical manner.

"My preserver!" said Bawdsey, shaking hands vigorously, and George laughed.

"You put me in mind of a lady I know," he said. "She uses the same term—quite unnecessarily, as it happens."

"I don't agree with you," answered Bawdsey, to the astonishment of his visitor. "When a woman is rescued from starvation she has a right to call her good Samaritan the best of names."

"Oh," said Brendon, taking a seat, "so Lola has told you."

Bawdsey nodded. "I guess so," said he, with a pronounced American twang—somewhat too pronounced, George thought. "She told me all about your visit the other night."

"Did she never speak of me before?"

"Why, of course she spoke. I tell you, sir, that the girl is just bubbling over with gratitude."

"Yet you said when last we met that she meant me harm."

"Jealousy, Mr. Brendon, sheer jealousy. I heard her talking of you and wishing to marry you. You see, I love her."

"So she told me."

"Quite so, and she informed me that she had informed you. Well, I was a trifle jealous, as I'd lay down my life to make that lady Mrs. Bawdsey. But when I learned that you admired and were almost engaged to Miss Ward"—

"You seem to know a great deal about me," said Brendon, nettled.

"I made it my business to find out, sir."

George looked at him helplessly. He found it difficult to understand what all this meant. "Of course I know, from what Lola said, that you are a private detective," he remarked, with hesitation.

"Vidocq & Co.," said Bawdsey briskly, "23 Augusta street, Strand. That's me, Mr. Brendon, but you needn't mention it in this shanty."

"Will you answer a few questions, Mr. Bawdsey?" asked George.

"Yes. Fire ahead."

"You are a private detective?" asked George.

"That's so. Vidocq & Co.—an attractive title, I guess."

"And you were employed by Lola to watch me?"

"I was. Love will do anything for the object of its affections."

"Humph! There are different ways of looking at that. But you were also engaged by Lord Derrington to watch me?"

Bawdsey did not display the least surprise. "That's very creditable to your observation, Mr. Brendon. It's true."

"How did Lord Derrington find out that I was passing under the name of George Brendon?"

"Well, sir, if you will shove advertisements into the paper asking about the celebration of the marriage of Percy Vane and Miss Rosina Lockwood you must expect to be dropped upon."

"And you looked me up?"

"Quite so. I have had you under observation for the last six months. Any more questions, sir?"

"Only one," replied George. "Will"—

"I believe that," said Bawdsey. "If I thought you were guilty I should—no, not even then. You saved my life, and I'm grateful."

"I believe you are my friend," said George gloomily, sitting down.

"You would have been arrested by now were I not, Mr. Brendon."

"No. I tell you neither Mrs. Ward nor Lord Derrington will go so far. They will try to intimidate me, but they won't succeed."

"You'll fight them?"

George set his face. "While there is breath in my body."

"I knew you were a plucky one," said Bawdsey admiringly, "but you must be aware that your position is perilous."

"One moment," said Brendon. "Why does Train believe that I was in Mrs. Jersey's room?"

"He found beside the table a yellow holly berry, and you were"—

George started. "I did—I did," he muttered. "It must have been brushed off the sprig when I stooped to touch her."

"Ah!" said Bawdsey in a voice of triumph. "Then you admit you were in the room?"

"Yes, to you, but to no one else."

"I'm glad you trust me so far," said Bawdsey, genuinely pleased. "Your confidence is not misplaced, Mr. Brendon. And you saw Mrs. Jersey?"

"I saw her body. She was dead."

"At what time was that?"

"About 12 o'clock."

"Why did you not give the alarm?"

"What?" George smiled derisively. "You think I should have put the rope round my neck?"

"No, but—well, no matter. We can talk of that later. But as to getting out of this room when the door was locked?"

"I didn't get out of this room, Mr. Bawdsey. I"—

"Wait a bit. Come into the room you slept in," said the detective, leading the way. "I have made a discovery."

The bedroom was in the same condition as when Brendon had last seen it, with the exception that the wardrobe was moved to one side. The wall at the back, which divided the room from the passage, appeared a blank, but on touching a spring a masked door opened. Shelves were revealed and it was evident that this door formed the back of a cupboard that was in the passage—a cupboard used by the housemaid, as was apparent from the dust shovel and brooms lying within it. For a moment Bawdsey left the door open and looked at Brendon with quiet triumph. Then he snapped the door to and the wall appeared in its former blank condition. No one, without making a close examination, would have suspected the presence of that secret door. "A housemaid might open the cupboard door in the passage at any time," explained Mr. Bawdsey, accounting for his action, "and it would never do for her to look through the back of the shelves into this room. She might talk, Mr. Brendon, and then there would be trouble. Yes"—Bawdsey rubbed his nose and looked at the astonished George—"I am sure there would be great trouble."

"I congratulate you on your cleverness, Mr. Bawdsey," said Brendon when he had somewhat recovered. "You have discovered my secret. I should like to know how you discovered it."

"Well," said Bawdsey, pushing the wardrobe back to its place with an effort, "you see when I learned through the advertisement that George Brendon was the grandson of Lord Derrington I told him of it. He related your history."

"Including the murder of my father?"

TRUTH OUT SATURDAY

Meanwhile Both Britain and Russia Stand to Lose.

Semi-Official Predictions of North Sea Award—Associated Press Says Decision Will Be More Acceptable to British Public and Press Than They Have Been Hitherto Led to Believe.

Paris, Feb. 24.—The International Commission appointed to enquire into the North Sea incident practically concluded its work last night by finally agreeing to the report, which will be publicly announced on Saturday. Concerning the general nature of the report, the following statement was made in a most authoritative quarter to the Associated Press:

"When the text of the decision becomes known it will be far more acceptable to the British press and public than they have been led to believe. The semi-official summaries appearing while more or less accurate, tend too strongly to show Russian success, but as a matter of fact the Admirals have sought a middle ground and the decision is not a pronounced victory for either side. It is of such a character as to preserve self-respect and at the same time to give the British public much ground for satisfaction. If anything, the decision is rather more favorable to Great Britain than to Russia."

Semi-Official Statement.

On the other hand, the Havas Agency last night confirms its semi-official statement of Wednesday night. It says:

"The conclusions, as a whole, are quite favorable to Russia, recognising that Admiral Rojestvensky could legitimately consider himself in danger and act as he did. However, the report contains reservations calculated to satisfy British susceptibilities, the most important being that the Commission esteems that the Russian fire lasted too long, and also that Rojestvensky should have speedily notified the British maritime authorities of the deplorable incident.

"Upon the question of the presence of torpedo boats, the Commission frees all navies from the imputation. The Commission rejected a motion of Admiral Beaumont (Great Britain), blaming the crews. The conclusions are said to be in the form of questions, whereto the Commissioners state their answers, either unanimously, or as a majority."

American Opinions.

The American officials are strongly inclined to accept the view first stated that the decision is more favorable to Great Britain than to Russia.

The four foreign Admirals gave a banquet last night in honor of Presiding Officer Admiral Fournier of France.

The latter will return the compliment on Saturday. President Loubet will give a luncheon in honor of the Commission at the Elysee Palace on Sunday.

No Information Yet.

London, Feb. 24.—Questioned in the House of Commons yesterday regarding the result of the enquiry of the North Sea Commission, published yesterday morning, Earl Percy (Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs) said that no information on the subject had yet been communicated to the Government.

AGED WIDOW DOYLE.

Found Dead in Shed With Deep Gash in Skull.

Brantford, Feb. 24.—The dead body of Mrs. Doyle, a widow 84 years of age, who resided with her son, Felix Doyle, on a farm three miles from Burford Village, in Brant County, was found in a woodshed yesterday morning. A deep gash in the head, penetrating the skull, was the cause of death. As to how this was inflicted there is no evidence. The woman was not wealthy.

Dr. Johnson, the coroner, has decided to open an inquest to-day.

The son is still at the homestead and is in no way suspected of the death, which may have been accidental.

Dream Came True.

London, Feb. 24.—An extraordinary circumstance occurred in connection with the alleged murder of Edward Hayward of Mundham, Sussex, by Tom King, near Edmonton, N.W.T. A few weeks ago a brother of Harry Hayward came down to breakfast looking perturbed, and said to his sister: "I had a bad dream: I saw Ted shot." Two days afterward he received a communication from the Canadian police, telling him that his brother had been murdered, and asking him to come to identify him. He proceeded to Edmonton, with a vivid picture in his mind of the man he said he had been in his dream.

CZAR'S FIRM DECISION

Will Fight the Japanese to the Bitter End.

Advises German Court That War Will Be Pressed With the Utmost Energy, the Domestic Situation Being Under Control—Thinks it Cowardly to Give Up While Possessing Essentials of Victory.

Berlin, Feb. 24.—The Emperor of Russia has elected to continue the war.

His position is absolutely firm, and the German court has been advised in that sense.

The war will be pressed with the utmost energy, the domestic situation being now within the control of the authorities.

Those who have advised peace, and suggested enquiries for Japan's terms, the French and British Governments, are for the present silent, and are likely to remain so unless events of an extraordinary character shake the Russian Emperor's resolution. The considerations that led to the Emperor's decision, as understood here, are:

Why He So Decides.

First—The judgment of the chiefs of the army that Field Marshal Oyama not only cannot defeat General Kuropatkin but stands in danger of defeat himself. How cowardly, therefore, for Russia to ask for mercy, with all the men and money essential to a successful war.

Second—All the forces of criticism now directed against the Government for having fought rather than yield to legitimate interests, and for having failed to win victories, would be continued with added fury against the Government that accepted war and then betrayed the country. A Government that would crave peace of Russia's enemy while still capable of winning victory would be giving the party of change genuine grounds for a revolution. The facts of the military situation, love of country and arguments of expediency were all against peace and for pressing the war hopefully.

Is Big Battle On?

St. Petersburg, Feb. 24.—Although the city continues full of rumors that a big battle is proceeding below Mukden, the War Office does not offer any confirmation of the reports. Special despatches, however, as well as can be judged by the mutilated name in which they were allowed to pass the censure, portend the imminence of extensive operations.

The Japanese are showing activity on flanks, and the railroad has again been damaged by a raid of mixed Japanese and Chinese bandits.

Japs Show Activity.

Tsinkhetchen, Manchuria, Feb. 24.—The Japanese continue to press the Russian advance divisions on the left flank. On February 21st, with a strength of no less than eight battalions, they attacked the outposts. The Russians made a vigorous counter-attack and occupied the Village of Dapindu, forcing the Japanese temporarily to abandon their advance.

FUNERAL DAY OF SERGIUS.

Dowager-Empress Says She Is Not Afraid of Assassins.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 24.—All the members of the Imperial family who attended the requiem for Grand Duke Sergius at Tsarskoe Selo yesterday remained to a family council in the evening. The Dowager-Empress, who has been at Tsarskoe Selo since the eventful Red Sunday, Jan. 22, becoming impatient at the restraints which were advised by the police for her safety, rebelled against the alleged necessity of remaining at Tsarskoe Selo, declaring that she is not afraid, that the sands of her life have almost run out, and that if assassins want her life they may have it. The Imperial family and authorities implored her not to return to St. Petersburg, and she finally yielded. General satisfaction is expressed, even among the Liberals, that the funeral day of Grand Duke Sergius passed off with no untoward incident. Even the extreme Radicals respected the day of grief of the Imperial family. The police precautions, both here and at Moscow, though extensive, apparently were not needed.

The public is discussing with astonishment the sweeping statement of the Metropolitan of Moscow, attributing the guilt of the assassination to the entire Russian society, critics saying that if this be true it justifies the contention of reformers that all Russia is at odds with the present system. The wisdom of such statements at this crisis is generally questioned.

Grand Duke's Body Blessed.

Moscow, Feb. 24.—The solemn ceremony of blessing the remains of Grand Duke Sergius was performed at 10 o'clock yesterday in the midst of the tolling of bells from all the churches and monasteries of the ancient capital. Immense crowds thronged the open squares in front of the palaces, and there was a considerable display of troops in the streets. Grenadiers of the Kieff Regiment furnished the guard at the Chaudoff Monastery, the scene of the funeral services.

Service in London.

London, Feb. 24.—A memorial service for Grand Duke Sergius was held yesterday at the Russian Church connected with the Embassy, and was attended by Count Benkendorff, the Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, and the other members of the Russian Embassy, representatives of King Edward and the Prince of Wales, Ambassador Choate, and other diplomats. Sir Bernard Eric Barrington, private secretary of Lord Lansdowne, the Foreign Secretary, represented the Foreign Office.

"THE RED LAUGH."

Russian Writer of it, With Others, Arrested at Moscow.

Moscow, Feb. 24.—The police last night arrested Leonide Andreff, a well-known author of the Gorky school, and two other less-known writers. No statements of the reasons for the arrests is obtainable. The police refuse to say whether it is in connection with the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius or for complicity with Gorky and other Liberals at St. Petersburg in connection with the alleged revolutionary conspiracies. Andreff, who is known as "Little Gorky," recently has attracted much attention by a powerful sketch entitled "The Red Laugh," which is appearing in a magazine, and which resembles, not only in name, but also in vigor and vividness, Stephen Crane's "Red Badge of Courage." The sketch was written under the inspiration of the tragedy of Jan. 22, first depicting the ghastly merriment of pools of blood in Manchuria at finding themselves repeated in the streets of Russian cities. One critic characterized the sketch as "A Vereschagin in Prose."

STRIKERS FIRED ON.

Workmen on Strike in Polish Russia—Serious Disturbances in Czerinakowsha District.

Warsaw, Feb. 24.—The workmen have struck in all the factories of the Czerinakowsha district, the chief manufacturing suburb of Warsaw. There have been serious disturbances and strong forces of police and troops were summoned. The soldiers fired, but no casualties are reported. The police arrested many persons, but the threats of the mob compelled them to release their prisoners.

The employes of the Lodz-Koluszka Railroad have struck. Lodz is entirely cut off from railway communications.

Fired on Strikers.

The strikers paraded Czerinakowska Street yesterday, smashed the windows of five factories and forced the workmen to leave. Troops were summoned and it is reported fired on the strikers.

Owing to the railroad strike no mails have been received here from the west since Wednesday morning.

No Trains Running.

No trains were running in either direction yesterday on the Vienna Railroad. The management attempted to instal soldiers as firemen, but the strikers had plugged the water gauges, with the result that the amateur firemen ruined four locomotives. The strikers also derailed a number of cars.

The men demand an eight-hour day and an increase of wages. The directors offered an increase of wages to some employes, and to grant a nine-hour day, but the strikers refused.

The employes of the Government alcohol monopoly walked out yesterday.

A general strike on the Vistula and St. Petersburg Railroads is hourly expected.

LANCASTER'S BILL LOST.

Commons Railway Committee Declines to Limit the Speed of Trains.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—The Railway Committee had under consideration yesterday Mr. Lancaster's bill, which provides that the speed of trains at level crossings, in thickly settled portions of cities, towns and villages, shall not exceed ten miles an hour, unless proper safeguards in the way of gates and watchmen are provided. Speaking in behalf of the bill, Mr. Lancaster said that all he wanted was enforcement of a law which was on the statute book since 1887.

Mr. F. H. Chrysler, who appeared for the Railway Company, held that the existing law was sufficient to meet all cases. He said that the bill was unnecessary and mischievous. About 2,000 crossings would be affected. The cost would be $1,000 a crossing, or $2,000,000 in all.

Mr. Wright of Renfrew; Mr. Caldwell, Lanark; Mr. Maclean of York, and others supported the bill. Mr. Talbot favored it. It was defeated by 61 to 23.

THINK IT OVER.

Something You Can See in Any Restaurant or Cafe.

A physician puts the query: Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from 60 to 80 years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray, but none of them feeble or senile?

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous, sickly-looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantities any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels, and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly, and thus gives a much-needed rest and giving an appetite for the next meal.

Of people who travel nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating, as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have pinned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages, and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

THE MARKET REPORT.

CASE OF BUTTER

(Montreal Witness.)

Great Britain has been practically the only outlet for our surplus dairy production of late years, but it is not always that a market can be found there to the satisfaction of holders, owing to the keen competition of the Australian and Continental makers. Curiously enough, a shipment of Canadian butter to Great Britain was, the other day, returned to this country without discharging at the English port on account of prices being higher here than there, so high, in fact, that it was possible to ship it back and make a profit even after paying the heavy freight charges and the duty of 2 2-3 cents a pound under the preferential tariff. The recent spurt in this market caused by the entry of United States buyers will probably only be temporary, the position in that country to-day being very much the same as exists at the present time in Canada—supply is sufficient to provide for the home demand. When buyers from across the line came on this market, the price of creamery was quoted at around 22 1-2 to 23 cents. To-day the market is almost anything the holder cares to ask, but sales are reported at 30 cents, with every probability of a further advance at an early date. The price on this market has already passed out of reach of United States buyers, as values there are now less than ours when the duty is added to the original purchase price. It is more than likely that factorymen over the line will concentrate all their energies to turning out butter to meet the increased demand, and it is therefore hardly probable that the recent state of affairs will be repeated during this season at least. An interesting question arises as to home consumptive demand has not exceeded that of production in the United States. If this were the case, which is very unlikely, there would then be almost an unlimited market waiting for the products of the Canadian dairy manufacturer. As to the quality of the United States creamery butter, it is said that there is none better, and even the very finest gilt-edged Canadian creamery is not better than the Orange State County production.

The clearing out of butter stocks at this season of the year will be of the greatest benefit to the holders of cheese, who are now not so anxious about the new season's make. Those farmers and factorymen whose machinery and aparatus will permit of making butter, will certainly do so under the present great incentive, and thus create a less production of fodder cheese in the spring. All these factors will be taken into account by the English cheese importer, who has been playing a waiting game all the winter, inspired by the great amount of stocks alleged to be held in Montreal. The local consumer of butter will feel the pinch for a time, but the advantages to trade in general will easily outweigh this "distributed" loss. It should be mentioned that the present short supply is not on account of lessened receipts to the city since transportation closed; on the contrary, the receipts this winter have been exceptionally heavy, and there has been practically no other outlet but home demand until the United States stepped in. Ontario has usually sent large quantities of dairy butter to this market, but this season the position has been reversed, and that province has drawn largely from this market for its supplies.

Cables Unchanged—Cattle Dull and Easier in American Markets.

London, Feb. 23.—Live cattle are quoted at 10c to 11½c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 7½c to 7¾c per lb.; sheep, 11c to 13c per lb.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock on the city market since Tuesday as reported by the G.T.R. and C.P.R. were 115 car-loads all told, composed of 2041 cattle, 1717 hogs, 318 sheep and lambs with about 60 calves.

The offerings of shipping cattle were again light, not more than five loads all told. Prices remained about steady at $4.25 to $4.85 per cwt.; three loads of good quality selling at $4.75 to $4.85 but only one load at the latter price. The bulk sold at $4.60 to $4.75 per cwt. Few export bulls were offered and few are wanted and prices ranged from $3 to $3.60 per cwt.

The offerings of butchers' cattle were large. Picked lots of choice quality, equal to the best exporters, held about steady at last Tuesday's prices, but the other classes sold at 10c to 25c per cwt. lower. Choice picked loads 1100 to 1200 lbs. each, equal in quality to best exporters, sold at $4.12½ to $4.50 per cwt., and one lot of six choice heifers, 1100 lbs., picked out of a load of exporters, were bought by Mr. Moffat at $4.62½ per cwt.; loads of good sold at $3.80 to $4.00; fair to good loads sold at $3.50 to $3.80; common at $3 to $3.30; inferior and rough at $2.50 to $2.75; canners at $1.50 to $2 per cwt.

During the past two or three weeks, owing to the storms, deliveries of fat cattle have been light and prices high. This caused drovers to cater to the butcher trade rather than feeders, which caused a scarcity of the latter, which there have been farmers on the market every market day looking for feeders of good quality. W. H. Dunn bought 40 short-keeps, 1150 to 1300 lbs. each, at $4.25, and some other lots at $4 and $4.40 for some extra choice. Light feeders, 800 to 900 lbs. each, are worth $3.25 to $3.50. It is expected that from this time forward receipts will increase.

About thirty-five milch cows and springers, the bulk of which were of the common kind sold at $30 to $35; medium to good at $40 to $50, and choice at $60 each.

There was a fairly liberal supply of veal calves, but prices remained as firm as at any time this winter; in fact, choice old-time, new milk-fed calves sold higher than ever. Two of this class, weighing 175 lbs. each, were sold by Maybee, Wilson & Hall Co. at $6.75 per cwt. Prices ranged from $2.50 per cwt. for inferior to $4.50 per cwt. for common, while good to choice sold at $5.00 to $6.50 per cwt.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were light, only 318 all told. Prices were firmer at $4.50 to $5 per cwt. for export ewes; bucks, $3.50 to $4.25; lambs at $6.25 to $6.85 per cwt.

Deliveries of 1700 were bought by Mr. Harris at unchanged quotations. Selects, $5.40 and lights and fats at $5.15 per cwt.

Acid Thrown in Girl's Face.

Stratford, Feb. 24.—While Miss Edith Sarvis was going from her home to that of her grandmother, Mrs. Lovett, last evening about 8 o'clock, carbolic acid was thrown in her face by an unknown woman or girl, who lay in wait in the shadow of a house on the corner of Brunswick and Front Streets. The T. A. A.—Campbellford hockey match at Cobourg last week, bore no striking resemblance to lawn tennis or parlor croquet, but seemed to be more akin to a game of catch-as-catch-can between a gang of Montana cowboys, where noses, ears, and tufts of hair are left to ornament the grade.—Campbellford Herald.

The Guards will line-up as follows tonight at the Brock st. rink against McWilliams Clear Grits, at 10 o'clock. Goal, Logan; Point, Reid; Cover-point, Richardson; Forwards, Dormer, Curry, Rosborough and Dobson.

The game of hockey between the Lead Pipe Cinch Apprentices and Adam Hall's Souvenirs will be played between the hours of 5.45 and 6.45 on Saturday evening at Brock st. rink. Referee, Frank Frost.

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

County Magistrate Edmison Conducted Two Cases at Norwood.

County Magistrate Edmison held County Police Court at Norwood yesterday. Only two cases were considered.

Terence Smith was charged with disorderly conduct, but the evidence showed that the defendant, who is the proprietor of a Norwood hotel, merely interfered between two men whom he found fighting in the hotel. Smith was discharged.

Fred Woods, one of the men who figured in the above mentioned mix-up was assessed $2 and costs for disorderly conduct.

HAD ENJOYABLE DRIVE

The choir of St. Luke's church held its annual drive last night and a most enjoyable time was spent. The choristers left the post office at eight o'clock and went to the residence of Mr. J. J. Howden, Otonabee township, where a pleasant few hours were passed. Oysters and other refreshments were partaken of and a hearty vote of thanks tendered the genial host and hostess for their kindness.

PERSONAL.

At Nicholls Hospital yesterday afternoon James Eyres, the eleven year old grand son of Mr. William Eyres, Antrim-st., was operated upon by Drs. Carmichael, Bradd and Young for appendicitis. The operation was successful and the patient is now doing well. His condition was reported very favorable this morning.

WEDDED AT ST. ANDREW'S.

At St. Andrew's Manse, on Tuesday, February 21st, Miss Helen F. McKelvie, daughter of Mr. Thomas McKelvie, of town, and Mr. Wm. Geo. Peck, also of Peterborough, were united in marriage by Rev. J. G. Potter. The witnesses were Mr. John Pearce and Miss Pearce. Mr. and Mrs. Peck will reside in town.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES

Record of Latest Happenings in the Town and Surrounding District.

—The Ontario Legislature has been called to meet on Wednesday, March 22nd.

—A full attendance of the 57th band is requested for this evening at the band hall.

—Division Court was held to-day His Honor Judge Weller presiding. There was a large docket.

—A full report of last night's hockey match and other local news will be found on page three.

—The German Conversation club will meet tomorrow evening at the residence of Col. J. Z. Rogers, instead of St. Luke's rectory.

—Mr. E. P. Walker of Indian River, the cattle guard inventor, had one of his fingers badly lacerated in a planing mill accident a few days ago.

—The Primary and Junior Teachers' Union will be held this evening. The lessons will be taken by Miss Langford and Rev. H. B. A. Ketchum.

—At the quarterly official meeting of the Seymour circuit a unanimous invitation was given to the Rev. C. H. Fenn to return for a third year, which was accepted subject to the ruling of the Stationing Committee.

—Police Magistrate Lynch of Campbellford has given his decision declaring the bylaw to enforce local coal dealers to weigh on the market scales to be valid. This settles a much disputed question once and for all.

—Beware of the swindler who is going round offering a canary for $10.00 and agreeing to take $1.00 down and the remaining $9.00 when the bird proves its ability to sing. With the first bath the bird loses its beautiful yellow color, and the purchaser has a sparrow.

—The scenery lately purchased from the Peterborough Opera House, for the town hall, has been placed in position and all who have seen it declare that the hall is improved from $200 to $500 in value by the addition.—Havelock Standard.

—The Havelock Amateur Dramatic Society, comprising a number of the young people, will appear in the town hall, Havelock, on the evening of Friday, March 3rd, 1905, in that popular Irish drama, "The Haunted Mill, or Con O'Ragan's Secret."

—The funeral of the late Mrs Andrew Montgomery, London-st., took place on Thursday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Torrance conducted the services. The pall bearers were Messrs J. H. Cobb, John Sawers, R. Chowen and A. J. Ruddon, of Peterborough; T. Roberts, of Welcome and Dr. Totten, of Lindsay.

—A strenuous kick is being made by a large number of Havelock citizens anent the number of pitch-holes on the streets. They think, and quite rightly too, that the high spots could be cut down and so make driving safer and far more pleasant than it is now, when you are in danger of being pitched over your nag's back every rod or so.

—John Clarke, commonly known as "Uncle John," died at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Duncan McColl, Campbellford, on the 15th inst., in the 89th year of his age. Mr. Clark was born in Auchendrain, Argylshire, Scotland, the first day of January, 1817. In 1831, he came with his parents to Canada, and settled in Seymour township, in what has since been called "the Clarke" settlement.

—Mr .H. Brundatte of Port Hope, and Mr. R. Drayton of Peterborough, were in town today and purchased the well-known steam yacht, Mizpah, owned by Mr. A. Cottingham, which has been plying on the Scugog for a number of years. The yacht will be shipped on the first of May to Rice Lake, where it will be used as a pleasure and tourist boat. We understand the figure paid was a good one. We are sorry to see this fast yacht leave our port.—Lindsay Post.

—The snow plough that arrived here on Saturday was unable to make its way to Belleville till four o'clock on Sunday afternoon. For a long distance between Corbyville and Belleville the snow was piled up in great mounds on the track, and after the snow-plough had been forced through, it appeared like a canal, the banks on either side being so high that it is impossible to look over the top from the car windows. The section men who were employed clearing the track had a hard time, and were furnished with a scant supply of food for twenty-four hours.—Campbellford Herald.

—Anniversary services were held in the Presbyterian church here on Sabbath last. The Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, conducted the services. His sermons from 1 Cor., 5, 18 at the morning service, and Matt. 16, 22 in the evening were able and lucid expositions of the Word of God. The discourses were interspersed with apt and forceful illustrations from daily life, and were much appreciated. At the evening service Mr. Potter sang with much expression the hymn entitled, "Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be white as snow." Doubtless the congregation would have been much larger had the roads been in better condition. Notwithstanding the audiences were good at both services and highly appreciative.—Hastings Star.

OVERCROWDED ROOMS.

Study Simplicity In the Arrangement of the Home.

Order, being heaven's first law, should surely reign in the home. But this does not mean that every chair should be located by a figure in the rug nor that a book or magazine should never, never be found lying on a table where it does not belong. This kind of order is not at all vital. Once, in the long ago, it was called good housekeeping, but it can never be considered good home making. In the home furnished for use and simple beauty there will come the order that brings rest and comfort. This is the kind of order that is vital.

One great fault with many housekeepers of today is that they overcrowd their homes with unnecessary furniture and so called adornments. Two brass candlesticks on a mantel are better than seven; one or two pieces of pottery are more interesting than a dozen, and a few pictures are far better from a decorative standpoint than a number. Get rid of the superfluous. Most rooms have too many pieces of furniture, and all rooms have too many things.

Simplicity of arrangement is so bound up with order and the absence of the superfluous that it cannot well be separated. A few pictures chosen to accord with the room, books that are placed within reach of those who use them, lamps that are located where they are needed, flowers that are arranged with a Japanese feeling for the value of the leaf and stem, are expressions of a love for a simple arrangement. Beauty no less than comfort is dependent upon this vital principle.—Home Beautiful.

HALL ARRANGEMENTS.

The Seat, the Table and the Hanging Hatrack.

Hatracks, with their suggestion of the "ole clo' man," are no longer fashionable, and few well appointed houses now greet the visitor with a display of the family outer garments. The carved settle and hall table suffice to accommodate the hat and coat of the transient visitor, and the men of the house seclude their superabundance of wearing apparel in the hall closet, which is built into the modern house.

If necessary, a hanging hatrack, Japanese or of domestic manufacture, may hang over the settle. A unique one noted recently was the wheel part of an old spinning wheel suspended by brass chains from the wall. The wood of the wheel, dark and rich with years, had been polished to bring out all its luster, and the shining brass chains and hooks placed at regular intervals about its periphery served to make an effective combination.

In another hall an old mahogany bureau, a family heirloom, has been transformed into a high backed settle. The upper drawers were all removed, and the seat was made of the lower ones. Gay leather Moorish cushions add a touch of color to its somber proportions.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

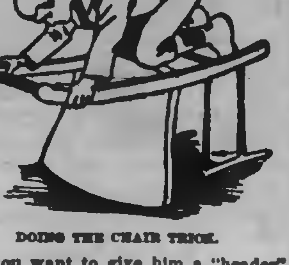
A CHAIR TRICK.

It is Easy to Perform When You Understand the Secret.

The accompanying picture shows this little feat better than any words could do. Place a chair on the floor, front downward, in such a way that the legs are horizontal and the back is uppermost.

Get one of your boy friends to kneel on the lower back bar of the chair and take up with his lips a piece of candy placed on the back of the top bar. The picture shows you his position just as he is about to make the attempt.

It is not unlikely that the boy will think you have set a trap for him; that you want to give him a "header" on to the floor, but you can overcome his reluctance by first doing the thing yourself.



DOING THE CHAIR TRICK.

The trick is easy when you know the secret. All that is necessary is for you to keep the center of gravity back of the chair seat, and this you can do by crouching very carefully. Perhaps it might be as well for you to practice for awhile in private, and you might also find an advantage in having a pillow or some other soft thing just in front of the chair, so that if you come down you will come down easily.

ILLUSTRATE YOUR BOOKS.

How to Add to Interest and Value of Your Library.

You are all aware that there are coming from the presses all the time excellent pictures relating to everything under the sun and especially to the scenes and characters of well known books. The suggestions we would make is that you preserve such of these as may come in your way and then use them to illustrate your own books. It will be easy, for instance, to secure portraits of the authors in whom you delight, and it often is not at all hard to find pictures of noted places referred to in the text of the book. Do not be in too great a hurry about pasting in what you find. It is wiser to keep an envelope—large enough to hold the pictures without bending them—and collect whatever comes rightfully to hand and is thought fit for the purpose. After you have a fair amount of material you can sort out the best and prepare it for the book. Some grownup people who give a great deal of time, thought and money to this "extra illustrating," as it is called, are very finical about the work and have the pictures so prepared as to seem made for the volume. But this would not be worth your trouble. It is to be hoped that you all have something better worth your time and effort. It will be best for you to mount your pictures on thin paper cut to the size of the book, and then fix these in their places with just a touch of paste.—St. Nicholas.

Trees That Whistle.

The musical or whistling tree is found in the West Indian islands, in Nubia and the Sudan. It has a peculiar shaped leaf and pods with a split or open edge. The wind passing through these sends out the sound which gives the tree its peculiar name. In Barbados there is a valley filled with these trees, and when the trade winds blow across the islands a constant moaning, deep toned whistle is heard from it, which in the still hours of the night has a weird and unpleasant effect. A species of acacia which grows very abundantly in the Sudan is also called the whistling tree by the natives. Its shoots are frequently by the agency of the larvae of insects distorted in shape and swollen to a globular bladder from one to two inches in diameter. After the insect has merged from a circular hole in the side of this swelling, the opening, played upon by the wind, becomes a musical instrument equal in sound to a sweet toned flute.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Dry flannel applied as hot as can be endured alleviates the agonies of neuralgia.

An excellent remedy for hiccoughs in young or old is granulated sugar moistened with vinegar.

If you use iodine, don't fail to have glycerin mixed with it; otherwise you will blister the skin.

A solution of salt and water is a common and efficacious remedy for sore throat; also for a sore and cankered mouth.

Should anything get into the eye one drop of castor oil should be dropped in the corner of it, but if it be mortar or lime bathe with a weak solution of water and vinegar.

A teaspoonful of granular phosphate of soda in a tumbler of hot water drank before breakfast for a few days is a blood purifier. This salt agrees with delicate persons and cools the blood, besides promoting a flow of bile.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Doughnuts will not soak lard so readily if equal amounts of lard and beef fat are used.

It is a delicious touch to dip lamb chops for an instant in lemon juice before placing them on the broiler.

When frying fish apply the egg with a brush and do not waste it on the black skin of plaice, etc., if you strive after economy.

The water used in boiling meat should not be allowed to really boil after the first five minutes. After that it should merely simmer to prevent the meat from growing tough.

Almost any creamed meat is doubly good when served in green pepper shells. Creamed chicken, mushrooms, sweetbreads and the like are especially recommended. Chicken salad in pepper shells is delicious.

Stale sponge cake may be transformed into an excellent dessert by cutting it in slices and toasting it delicately over the coals. Spread whipped cream on each slice and into it drop a teaspoonful of jelly.

Pillows.

Pillows wear out just like anything else, says a housekeeping authority, even though one may change the tick covering from time to time. The feathers become impregnated with dust and dirt and lose the life that is in all good feathers at first. Then, too, years ago feathers were not prepared nor pillows made according to the scientific method that now obtains. A pair of feather pillows bought today of a reliable firm are not at all like the feather pillows of our grandmother's day, as one soon finds, and it would be wise for many a housewife to go through her bedchambers and place new pillows on every bed, renovating the feathers in the old pillows, perhaps, but using them for filling sofa pillows, for which purpose they do very well, but not for affording comfortable rest and sleep at night.

Women and Flowers.

Some very attractive women cannot wear flowers at all. No matter how fresh the blooms may be, in a very short time they droop, and roses especially will fairly fall over themselves, soon fading away. If this peculiar effect arises from some natural cause, what is it? One young girl who is devoted to flowers and never more happy than when surrounded by them said rather sadly to me the other day: "What can it be about me, for I have only to look at a flower to have it fade? Is it the evil eye?" I did not think it could be that, for her eyes are lovely in color and expression, but as she is by no means the only "victim," as one may call it, some reason there must be for this antagonism. Can it be physical or spiritual?—Boston Herald.

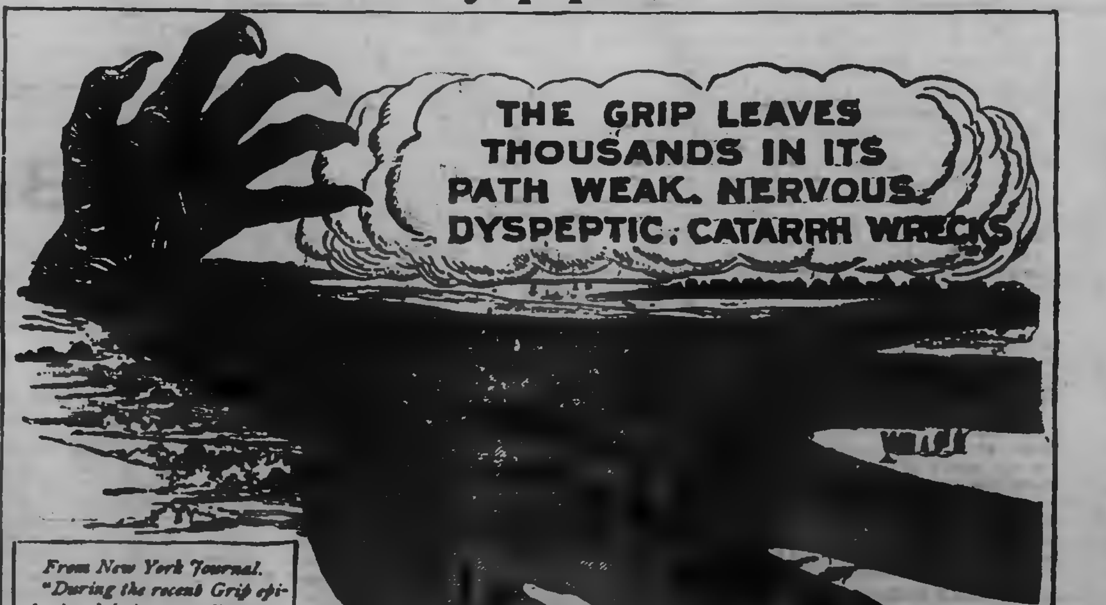
The Grip Leaves Thousands in its Path Weak, Nervous, Dyspeptic, Catarrh Wrecks.



THE GRIP LEAVES THOUSANDS IN ITS PATH WEAK, NERVOUS, DYSPEPTIC, CATARRH WRECKS

From New York Journal. "During the recent Grip epidemic, claiming a million victims or more, the efficiency of Peruna in quickly relieving this malady and its after-effects has been the talk of the continent."

LIKE A DEMON grip has crossed our country, leaving behind scores of physical wrecks.

Victims of catarrh of the head, catarrh of the throat, catarrh of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the kidneys, catarrh of the pelvic organs, are to be counted by hundreds of thousands. Grip is epidemic catarrh, and sows the seed of chronic catarrh within the system.

This is so true that few grip sufferers are able to make a complete recovery until they have used Peruna.

Never in the history of medicine has a remedy received such unqualified and universal eulogies as Peruna.

A New York Alderman's Experience.

Hon. Joseph A. Flinn, alderman Fifth District, writes from 104 Christopher street, New York City, as follows:

"When a pestilence overtakes our people we take precaution as a nation to preserve the citizens against the dread disease.

"La grippe has entered thousands of our homes this fall, and I noticed that the people who used Peruna were quickly restored, while those who depended on doctor's prescriptions spent weeks in recovering, leaving them weak and emaciated.

"I had a slight attack of la grippe and at once took Peruna, which drove the disease out of my system in a few days and did not hinder me from pursuing my daily work.

"I should like to see our Board of Health give it official recognition and have it used generally among our poor sick people in Greater New York."—Joseph A. Flinn.

D. L. Wallace, a charter member of the International Barber's Union, writes from 15 Western avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.:

"Following a severe attack of la grippe I seemed to be affected badly all over. I suffered with a severe backache, indigestion and numerous ills, so I could neither eat nor sleep, and I thought I would give up my work, which I could not afford to do.

"One of my customers who was greatly helped by Peruna advised me to try it, and I procured a bottle the same day. I used it faithfully and felt a marked improvement. During the next two months I took five bottles, and then felt splendid. Now my head is clear, my nerves steady, I enjoy food, and rest well. Peruna has been worth a dollar a dose to me."—D. L. Wallace.

Mr. O. H. Perry, Atchison, Kansas, writes:

"Again, after repeated trials of your medicines, Peruna and Manalin, I give this as my expression of the wonderful results of your very valuable medicine in its effects in my case after repeated trials.

"First, it cured me of chronic bronchitis of fifteen years' standing by using two bottles of Peruna in January, 1894, and no return of it.

"After I was cured of bronchitis I had la grippe every winter for several winters. But, through the use of Peruna, it got gradually weaker in its severity, until it dwindled down to a mere stupor for two or three days. Now the stupor does not trouble me any more."—O. H. Perry.

A Congressman's Experience.

House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen—"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."

Very respectfully,
George H. White.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Thomas E. Boddy Was Given Purse of Gold.

AN APPRECIATIVE ADDRESS

Mrs. Boddy Not Forgotten in the Matter—Retiring C.P.R. Agent Will Take up His Residence in Streetsville.

On Tuesday next Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Boddy and family will leave for Streetsville where they will in the future reside.

Mr. Boddy has been C. P. R. town ticket and telegraph agent for the past eighteen years and feeling that a change was necessary he resigned a few weeks ago and will henceforth devote his time to fruit farming.

A pleasing affair occurred last night at the Snowden House where Mr. and Mrs. Boddy are staying since giving up their residence on Brock st. A presentation took place in the parlor of the hotel, a number of Mr. Boddy's friends being present. Mayor H. Best presided and an address expressive of the many good qualities of the departing citizen was read by Mr. R. A. W. Hay, while two neat gifts were handed over by Mr. W. E. Dodd, C. P. R. station agent. These consisted of a well-filled purse of gold and a set of three beautiful case pipes. On the purse was a shield bearing a suitable inscription.

The address also referred in kindly terms to Mrs. Boddy and she was given a handsome piece of silverware. The committee in charge of the proceedings was composed of Messrs. W. E. Dodd, R. A. W. Hay, Wm Snowden and "Daddy" Taylor.

The most surprised man was Mr. Boddy who knew nothing of the affair, until called into the room. He was so overcome by emotion that he could not reply for some time, when he did find words they were merely the expression of a heart overflowing with gratitude and a mind filled with sorrow at parting with so many true and steadfast friends.

Afterwards songs were sung and a pleasant informal time spent. There were present twenty-five business, professional and railway gentlemen present who all joined in wishing Mr. Boddy, wife and family every success and happiness in their new home.

DUTY ON TWINE.

In view of the formation of the big binder twine monopoly across the border and the danger which threatens Canadian factories by reason of its extensive and unscrupulous methods, the Review this week pointed out that it was not yet too late for the Government to save the important binder twine industry to Canada. To do this and to overcome the encroachments of the octopus across the line, it will be necessary to place an adequate duty on twine. This will save the farmers of Canada from the heavily capitalized aggregation of Uncle Sam and will in the end prove a decided advantage to the farmers of the country. Since the duty was removed farmers have been paying more for this very necessary article than when it was on the free list.

Discussing this matter the Brantford Courier says:—

It has special interest for Brantites in view of the fact that there are two Binder Twine factories in this city and other establishments here, whose products are directly threatened in the alleged plans of a large United States trust.

The [illegible] in the Minneapolis Times is to squeeze out Canadian twine manufacturers by offering twine to the farmers at cost and then by the hold thus secured to make the supply of said twine part and parcel of the selling of other agricultural machines.

Twine at a lower figure is certainly an alluring thing for the agriculturists, but if that "lessened price" leads to the ultimate placing of them in the hands of a giant monopoly, they will be paying most severely and most dearly for a little temporary saving.

The situation is one which should call for earnest attention at Ottawa and drastic measures to prevent the threatened danger.

STUDY OF MANHOOD.

Dr. William Osler, the eminent Canadian, who is fifty-six years of age, is not generally regarded as a practical joker. He some very [illegible] winning the great [illegible] reputation as a humorist, as he has on his own [illegible], at Oxford University Medical School, when he raised such a stir, at John Hopkins University, Baltimore a day or two ago by his [illegible] statements. Here [illegible] from the doctor's address:—

[illegible] two fixed ideas well known to many friends. The first is the comparative [illegible] of men above forty years of age.

[illegible] in [illegible] the man above forty, [illegible] — even [illegible]

"The effective, moving, vitalizing work of the world is done between the ages of 25 and 40, those fifteen golden years of plenty, the anabolic or constructive period, in which there is always a balance in the mental bank, and the credit is still good.

"My second fixed idea is the uselessness of men above sixty years of age, and the incalculable benefit it would be in commercial, political and professional life, if, as a matter of course, men stopped work at this age. [illegible]

"In that charming novel 'The Fixed Period,' Anthony Trollope discusses the practical advantages in modern life of a return to this ancient usage, and the plot hinges on the admirable scheme of a college into which at sixty men retired for a year of contemplation before a peaceful departure by chloroform."

Three fatal accidents in Peterborough within one week is a distressing state of affairs. It is hoped that a long time will elapse before it will be necessary to record any fatalities as sad and painful as those of Mrs. Hannah and her young grandson and the affliction which befell Mr. Sager's family in the death of a bright and promising boy.

Poor little Manitoba. Have you seen how it looks on the map, compared with the two new provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta. Looks like a bit of Buffalo meat on a side-dish. They certainly can't play more than six rinks at a time, without getting the use of Saskatchewan's back yard.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

There is a merry warfare going on in Galt, Ont. The town council decided to reduce the number of hotel licenses from nine to seven, and in order to meet the cry that if the licenses were cut off there would not be stable accommodation for the farmers' horses, a joint stock company of several leading citizens was formed to erect a large barn near the market square. Now one of the hotels which was cut off [illegible] announces to the farmers that henceforth they will be provided with free stabling accommodation. This will have a bad effect upon the new stable project. Meanwhile the excitement continues.

The order issued by the Customs Department at Ottawa to the effect that [illegible] officials must [illegible] a.m. until 1 p.m. on Saturdays and from [illegible] to 4 on other days, is a proper one. Lunch hours are to be provided at the Customs House, and only half an hour allowed for luncheon. The hours might very well be lengthened [illegible] the staffs reduced. A thorough reformation of the civil service is much needed. It should be placed on exactly the same footing as the service of any large private corporation and conducted on purely business principles.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

A novel method of increasing the usefulness of lumber has been perfected in England. The method consists, in brief, in replacing the air in wood with a solution of beet sugar and removing the excess of water by a subsequent drying. Mr. Powell, [illegible] by using a large boiler in which the timber is placed and the beet sugar solution pumped on. [illegible] after the air has all been replaced by the solution the wood is kiln dried. Examination of the wood seems to show that the sugar is absorbed into the fibre of the woody tissue and is not simply held in the intercellular spaces. It is claimed that timber treated [illegible] is no longer porous, [illegible] shrink or warp, and is stronger, heavier and more durable. Moreover [illegible] wood is not liable to dry rot. It is hoped that by mixing the proper poisons with the [illegible] will be made resistant to the attacks of fungi [illegible]

CEMENT WORKS.

Lakefield Company Will Build an Addition—Six New Kilns.

The Lakefield Portland Cement Co., having [illegible] factory [illegible] water power, have decided upon making such additions to their cement mill as will [illegible] the power to its full capacity in cement making, and to take their chances of selling their product along with others, in the overstocked market.

A new building will be erected on the east side of their property, in line with their present works and capable of containing six additional roasting kilns. Three kilns will be installed at once, and three others later. The effect of this will be to increase their output by one-half, in the meantime, and ultimately to double it.

They claim that the raw material plant, up to [illegible] point, now in their present works is capable to supply three additional kilns, and that their grinding plant is also sufficient to grind the additional "clinker" when burned.

[illegible] obvious that [illegible] economy in manufacture will thus be effected, many of the charges upon the cost remaining the same, notwithstanding the largely increased output. The Company will thus be the better enabled to stand the great falling off in price since they began the business, which has proved so disastrous to many companies and is not unlikely to paralize others.

In connection with the cement business it is said that less than one-fourth of the Canadian companies paid any dividends last year, and that none of the American companies did so. It would look as if, here in Canada, in Germany, England, and the United States, it is to be a fight to a finish in the cement business, and as if it is to be hard on the genial promoter who makes cement "in his mind" at 40 cents per barrel and clears up his pile out of the stockholders, and the "promising" stock peddlar, who makes sure of his rake-off of ten per cent. on the amount of stock he sells [illegible] the [illegible] profit likely to be realized in the cement business for some time to come.—Lakefield News.

AT FIRST GLANCE.

It Would Appear That Local Remedies Would be Best for Cure of Catarrh.

It would seem at first glance that catarrh being a disease of the mucous membrane that salves, sprays, etc. being applied directly to the nose and throat, would be the most rational treatment but this has been proven not to be true.

The mucous membrane is made and repaired from the blood and catarrh is a blood disease and any remedy to make a permanent cure must act on the blood and when the blood is purified from catarrhal poison, the secretions from the mucous membrane will become natural and healthy.

In this climate thousands of people seem scarcely ever free from some form of catarrh; it gets better at times but each winter becomes gradually deeper seated and after a time the sufferer resigns himself to it as to [illegible]

Catarrh cures [illegible] as numerous as catarrh sufferers, but are nearly all so inconvenient and ineffective as to render their use a [illegible] as bad as the catarrh itself; anyone who has used douches, sprays and powders will bear witness to their inconvenience and failure to cure.

There are a number of excellent internal remedies for catarrh, but probably the best and certainly the safest is a new remedy, composed of Red Gum, Blood Root and similar antiseptic remedies and other valuable catarrh [illegible]

This [illegible] form, pleasant to the taste and sold by the druggists under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and anyone suffering from catarrh may use these tablets with absolute assurance that they contain no cocaine, opiate nor any poisonous mineral whatever.

A leading druggist in Albany speaking of Catarrh cures says, "I have sold various catarrh cures for years but have never sold any which gave such general satisfaction as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. They contain in a pleasant, concentrated form all the best and latest catarrh remedies, and catarrh sufferers who have used douches, sprays and salves, have been astonished at the quick relief and permanent results obtained after a week's use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets." All druggists sell full sized packages for fifty cents.

FAR-REACHING EFFECTS

Will Probably Follow Resolution of Fairs Association.

The resolutions passed at the convention of the Ontario Association of Fairs and Exhibitions, held in Toronto, Feb. 14th to 16th, are likely to have far reaching effects. The Agricultural societies of the province for many years have been receiving fixed grants from the government irrespective of the work they were doing. At the recent convention, as a result of information furnished by Provincial Superintendent, H. B. Cowan, a resolution was adopted recommending that in future grants should be distributed to societies in proportion to the amount of money they expend for agricultural purposes.

It is probable that the Agricultural and Arts Act will be revised and this change made within a year or so. Should this be done it will result in many of the smaller societies in the Province being cut off and societies which are doing good work being strengthened. An examination of the returns made to the Department of Agriculture, by some of the societies of the Province shows how such a change is likely to work out. In a county in Eastern Ontario, where the district society has been devoting a great deal of attention to horse racing, this society will lose $140 from its grant, which money will go to a township society farther back in the country, which is conducted on agricultural lines. In another Eastern Ontario county the district society will receive an increase in its grant of $101 which will be taken from the grants of three small township societies. This will probably mean that two of the small societies will have to go out of existence and that the third one will be strengthened, leaving two strong societies in the riding instead of four at present.

In yet another county the grant to the district society will be [illegible] it is while two small township societies will lose [illegible] which will go to the third township society. In this county it will probably also mean that two small township societies will have to give up holding exhibitions, while the second township fair will be strengthened. This will mean that all through the Province the best societies will be strengthened, while the weak and the struggling ones, which are doing little or no good, will go out of existence. Such a change in the Act will do away with all distinction between township and district societies and will place all societies on the same footing [illegible] grants.

The convention adopted this resolution requesting the Department of Agriculture to enforce the Act by cutting off the grants to all societies which [illegible] at their exhibitions, and pledged its support to the Department in any measure it may adopt to suppress such features at all fall fairs.

SCOTCHMEN ARE THE BEST.

Most Farmers Like Them for Farm Hands—Peculiar Inquiries Made.

"I want a young man, a Methodist, a Christian, [illegible] if possible, good looking, with dark hair, and dark eyes." This is the partial wording of one of [illegible] received at the Provincial Colonization Bureau Toronto. [illegible] said to a Globe reporter [illegible] which the religious and physical requirements of the prospective hired man were so clearly detailed. While there has been an increase of 25 per cent. in the wages of farm help during the three years that the bureau has undertaken to supply the want, there are still a number of farmers in Ontario who offer very low wages and to [illegible] is that higher pay must be offered. To-day, for instance, [illegible] and that they [illegible] measure—sent in an application offering the low compensation of $100 to $120, with room and board, for a man and wife, the latter to do the housework. By the same mail another applicant offered $[illegible] a year, for a married couple, with board, and a nice furnished room.

An increasingly large number of farmers are now hiring help for the year round instead of only for eight months as was once generally the [illegible] are anxious to keep suitable helpers instead of constantly having new or inexperienced ones. There is also a growing number who offer married couples neat cottages free of rent on or near the farm.

The number of applicants who prefer Scotchmen is astonishingly large, but experienced Scotch farm laborers are [illegible] in their own country and are almost certain of steady employment [illegible] are not many coming to Canada. Scotchmen the farmers find are more willing to learn and adopt Canadian methods than those of any other nationality.

It is practically impossible, Mr. Southworth says, to find positions for farm laborers who do not speak English.

THE IDEAL WIFE

Shapes the Destiny of Men—The Influence of a Healthy Woman Cannot Be Overestimated.

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley

Seven-eighths of the men in this world marry a woman because she is beautiful in their eyes, because she has the qualities which inspire admiration, respect and love.

There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature. The influence of women glorious in the possession of perfect physical health upon men and upon the civilization of the world could never be measured. Because of them men have attained the very heights of ambition; because of them even thrones have been established and destroyed.

What a disappointment, then, to see the fair young wife's beauty fading away before a year passes over her head! A sickly, half-dead-and-alive woman, especially when she is the mother of a family, is a damper to all joyousness in the home, and a drag upon her husband.

The cost of a wife's constant illness is a serious drain upon the funds of a household, and too often all the doctoring does no good.

If a woman finds her energies are flagging, and [illegible] dark shadows appear under her eyes, her sleep is disturbed by horrible dreams; [illegible] backache, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness, whites, irregularities, or despondency, [illegible] build her system up at once by a tonic with specific [illegible] as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This great remedy for women has done more in the way of restoring health to the women of America than all other medicines put together. It is the safeguard of women's health.

Following we publish, by request, a letter from a young wife.

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley of 611 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For three years [illegible] I have suffered [illegible] [illegible]

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and I feel so grateful [illegible] my marvelous recovery. It brought me health, [illegible]"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ainsley it will do for every woman who is in poor health and ailing.

[illegible] It gives strength and vigor from the start, and surely makes sick women well and robust.

Remember Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of woman's ills. This fact is attested to by the thousands of letters from grateful women which are on file in the Pinkham laboratory. Merit alone can produce such results.

Woman should remember that a cure for all female diseases actually exists, and that cure is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Take no substitute.

If you have symptoms you don't understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

Felix Doyle, Near Brantford, Charged With the Crime.

HOW WOMAN MET DEATH.

Sensation in Brant County—Story Told by the Youth, Who is a Weak Intellect and is Subject to [illegible] of Insanity.

Brantford, Feb. 25.—County Constable Montgomery [illegible]ford Thursday night with a warrant for the arrest of Felix Doyle for the murder of his mother. [illegible] opened an inquest at [illegible] yesterday, but adjourned the enquiry until Monday night. There is no doubt that the aged woman was cruelly done to death with an axe. While there is an utter absence of motive known, yet Doyle is said to be of that state of [illegible] which renders such a crime on his part more than probable. He has lived all his life on the farm, is of weak intellect, and is subject to fits, a sort of frenzied outbreak resulting from overindulgence in morbid mopings and imaginings. Felix Doyle is about [illegible] years of age. The murdered woman was twice married. [illegible]

Doyle claims that [illegible] early Thursday morning [illegible] thought [illegible] "After [illegible]," he says, "I noticed the door leading out to the [illegible] on her back in the woodshed, with her head slightly turned. HAMILTON WON CONSOLATION

Big Curling Bonspiel Passes Into History.

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES

Prospect for Still Larger Gathering of Curlers Next Year—Sam Ray's Men Walk off With Travelling Companions—The Other Winners.

If Mr. Sam Ray, Mr. G. Rutherford, Mr. J. S. Knapman and Mr. H. Foote were seen going up George-st. about 12 o'clock last night, each with a travelling companion on his arm, and somewhat happy expressions on their faces, the correct explanation should be made quickly that they were homeward bound with the fruits of victory. They had won the companions, or travelling cases as the result of their skill in the big curling bonspiel, which was concluded last evening. The gentlemen above referred to were winners of the primary, and the handsome leather travelling companions were the prizes. They were not the only ones who went home last evening laurel-crowned, for there were the winners of the second prizes in the primary, four sets of [illegible], the players on the successful rink being Messrs. [illegible], H. Stratton and T. F. Matthews, skip.

Though Peterborough had thirteen rinks in the bonspiel out of thirty-seven, which had the effect rather of scattering than of concentrating the best men, three of the consolation prizes were won by local rinks. The first, four very handsome gold lockets, suitably inscribed, went to Mr. Miles Hamilton's rink; the other players on which were Mr. G. H. Giroux, lead, Mr. A. Moore, second, and Dr. Eastwood, vice skip.

The second prizes in the consolation, four elegant stick-pins, were won by Mr. Thos. Rutherford's rink. He had as his vice Mr. John Stanger, as his second Mr. E. Hiland, and as his lead, Ald. Hicks.

The third prizes, four fine silver match boxes, were captured by Mr. George Giroux's stalwarts, of whom Mr. W. J. Campbell was lead, Dr. Wighman second, and Mr. R. M. Waddell, vice.

THE FINISH.

The final game was played last night between Mr. Miles Hamilton and Mr. Thomas Rutherford, and the result was 18 to 10 in favor of Mr. Hamilton. It was in many respects a fine exhibition of curling, bringing two of the best skips in Peterborough together. Hamilton played a star game, but victory did not come easy, and Rutherford jarred him considerably by scoring five. A large number of enthusiasts watched the game until the finish.

Thus ended the third annual bonspiel—one that has been most successful in every particular. Every arrangement passed off very smoothly, the outside rinks were most enthusiastic in expressing appreciation of treatment received here, and in the farewell [illegible] said they would assuredly return. In the first draw six Peterborough rinks were pitted against each other, while with regard to visiting rinks the rule was observed of not grouping two from one place together. This had the effect of keeping them in the competition as long as their skill entitled them. The draws were most satisfactory, and complaints were very few, if, indeed, there were any at all that could be called such.

THE PRESENTATIONS.

At the presentation ceremonies which took place last evening, credit was properly bestowed where frequent reference was made to the efficient work of the secretary, Mr. J. S. Knapman, and to the Finance Committee of one, Mr. George Giroux. The plans for next winter were also discussed, and if these [illegible] for Eastern Ontario [illegible] competition here there will undoubtedly be a champion which will make Winnipeg [illegible]

Mr. [illegible] President of the club, prefaced the presentation proceedings by a reference to the success of the third annual bonspiel. Thirty-seven rinks entered the contest, a larger number by ten than ever before. Good fellowship and good enthusiasm had existed among the contestants all through, and he referred to the efforts of Mr. J. S. Knapman, the bonspiel secretary, as having contributed largely to the success of the event.

THE COMPANIONS.

Mr. Robert Kerr, secretary of the Peterborough Curling Club, presented the three travelling companions to Mr. Ray and his men, and three cheers were given for the veteran curler. He said he had been on the turf a good while and he handed out some advice to young curlers, urging them to be loyal to their skip, though he played a poor game at times. [illegible] the example set by the members of his rink [illegible] Mr. G. Rutherford, the vice on the victorious rink, also made a short and fitting speech. Mr. J. S. Knapman, the secretary, [illegible] he appreciated the honor [illegible] to devote [illegible] to matters in connection with the running of the bonspiel, and he was glad it had [illegible] a word of [illegible] from any of them.

Paralysis Foretold By Bodily Weakness

Not Weakness of the Arms and Legs Merely, But Also Weakness of Such Vital Organs as the Heart, Lungs, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels.

Every movement of every muscle in the body is accomplished by the expenditure of nerve force.

The breathing of air into the lungs, the throb of the heart as it pumps the blood through the body, the churning motion of the stomach, and, in short, the whole working of the human system, is the result of muscular contraction, which is only possible by the influence of nerve force.

Once the nerve force runs low and is consumed by overwork, worry or disease more rapidly than it is being created, there comes weakness and, ultimately paralysis of some part or of the whole body.

Paralysis can usually be cured, and it can always be prevented, by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which restores health and strength by actually forming new, rich blood and creating new nerve force.

In women weakness of the nerves frequently takes the form of derangements of the peculiarly feminine organs. In men nervous exhaustion is often manifested by headache, brain fag and indigestion.

Symptoms [illegible]

- Brain Fag or Headache
- Irregular Sleep
- Unnecessary Anxiety
- Twitching of the Nerves or Muscles
- Specks Before the Eyes
- Irritability
- Noises in the Ears
- Sudden Starting from Sleep
- Pains described as Rheumatic, Sciatic, Neuralgic
- Restlessness of Movement
- Numbness of Any Part
- Loss of Memory
- Inability to Concentrate the Mind
- Weakness of Bodily Organs

The time to begin the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is when the symptoms mentioned here are first noticed. Then only can you be sure of [illegible] paralysis.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the most powerful nerve and blood restoratives that are to be found in nature, and, acting as it does according to nature's laws, cannot fail to be of benefit to you.

By this treatment the depleted and shrivelled nerve cells are filled with the vital nerve force which runs the machinery of the body, and strength and vigor take the place of weakness and disease.

Through the medium of the blood and nerves Dr. Chase's Nerve Food reaches every nook and corner of the human body, and strengthens and invigorates every organ of the human system.

You can feel yourself getting strong and healthy when the new nerve force is sent tingling along the delicate nerve fibres by this great food cure, and by noting your increase in weight you can prove that new flesh and tissue are being added.

He gave some very interesting statistics concerning the consumption of the visiting curlers. They had accounted for the disappearance of 56 loaves of bread, 50 quarts of milk to soften their coffee, 50 pounds of biscuit and 30 pounds of cheese. Referring to plans for next year he suggested that if the bonspiel rink was also engaged, the [illegible] be [illegible] and there was no reason why it should not be one of the best in Canada.

Mr. Harry [illegible] also made a few appropriate remarks on receiving one of the handsome prizes.

THE SECOND PRIZES.

Mr. John Cameron presented the second prizes. Peterborough, he [illegible] should be called frog-town for having captured most of the prizes, but it was evident that there were curling tastes and better, and he [illegible] before the good town of Peterborough would be able to send rinks to Winnipeg to compete with some of the very best curlers on the continent, [illegible] to keep the place to the front as one of the best towns [illegible]. Mr. Cameron was pleased to refer to the good work done by Mr. Knapman, who, he was sure, [illegible] for the [illegible] of everything he did [illegible] most men.

On behalf of Mr. T. F. Matthews and his rink, [illegible] Mr. G. N. Gordon made an appropriate acknowledgment, expressing [illegible] his rink [illegible] Somewhat unpleased look from his vice, Mr. Thos. Brightman, made Mr. Brown [illegible]

THE CONSOLATION.

Mr. E. B. Edwards [illegible] present the first prize [illegible] Mr. Hamilton and [illegible] on their [illegible] also those who had [illegible]

Mr. Hamilton gave his rink the large share of the credit for having won the prize, and he thanked them for their loyalty to him. Dr. Eastwood and Mr. Archie Moore also made short speeches. The latter said that he had become so fond of curling that he believed he could live at the rink, providing a bed was procured for him.

Mr. Thos. Brightman presented the four stick pins, the second prizes in the consolation [illegible]. He said there [illegible] in the whole club he would rather see have them than Mr. Thos. Rutherford and his rink. He looked forward with pleasure to another year's bonspiel and he wanted on that occasion to see his skip, Mr. Rutherford, instead of occupying the most [illegible] place on the rink. He poked fun at that gentleman for having [illegible] on the last end [illegible]

Mr. Thos. Rutherford, Mr. John Stanger, Mr. Hiland and Ald. Hicks made short speeches. The foreign rinks had all left before the meeting, but [illegible] with assurance that they would return again. All were pleased with the condition of the ice and in that particular, and in many other matters. Mr. Angus McIntosh had contributed largely to the success of the bonspiel.

MR. GIROUX'S TROPHIES

Mr. W. G. [illegible] presented the four silver [illegible] to Mr. Geo. Giroux and his rink, winners of the fourth prize in the consolation. No men [illegible] deserved a prize than Mr. Giroux, said Mr. Ferguson. He also [illegible] a very large bonspiel here, many having stated that they would rather come here than curl in the [illegible]

Mr. Giroux said it was a pleasure to be among the prize winners, and he [illegible] he said he would just as soon win the third prize as any other. He was in the game for the love of it. He had been connected with sports for the last 25 years and of all the games he [illegible] curling was his forte. If a proposition he had heard referred to was properly taken hold of, an eastern tankard might be put in competition here.

At the conclusion of the presentation, Mr. Edwards moved, and Mr. Ferguson seconded a vote of thanks to Mr. Knapman, Mr. Giroux and all others who had anything to do with the success of the bonspiel.

The motion was received with great approval, and the gentlemen thanked [illegible] they would with pleasure. Tribute was also paid by them to the valuable services rendered by Mr. Angus McIntosh, the caretaker and by Mr. F. H. D[illegible], Mr. Robert Kerr and Mr. W. J. Thompson, who had been very ready with their assistance to the secretary of the bonspiel.

Thus came to a close one of the most successful meets in the history of the curling club.

The Fog Wagon.

Did you ever hear of a wagon that could make fogs? There is such a wagon, and it is used in California. Great fruit orchards there would be almost spoiled by a heavy frost. So when the trees are in bloom and there is danger of a frost the fog wagon is driven through the orchards. The fog machine is a big wagon with a grate in the bottom. Where tar is kept burning. Above this there is a tank of wet straw and water. The heat from the burning tar passes through the straw, and a great fog rises and protects the trees from frost.

The Emancipated Woman.

The name of "emancipated" has often been absurdly applied to the woman who has, or is reputed to have, or fancies she has a "higher education"—whatever that may be. But in fact does it not rather belong to the woman who, through the prosperity of her husband, has been emancipated by the employment of servants from all the domestic duties that used to keep her occupied? The notion that women ought not to work originated in the harem, in the home autocracies of the east. It has no place in any true civilization. It is destructive of character and happiness. Yet how many women of our influential classes are girls bold and as wives and mothers [illegible] that woman ought to be supported in a sort of easy going [illegible] by some man or other?—Baltimore Sun.

Senator Scott Is 80.

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—Yesterday was the 80th anniversary of the birth of Hon. R. W. Scott, Secretary of State and leader of the Senate. The Liberal Senators took advantage of the occasion and presented Mr. Scott with a piece of silver, on which was a suitable inscription. Mr. Scott, in accepting the large silver loving cup, the gift of the Senators, thanked them kindly for their thoughtfulness, and for their kind and generous expressions.

Man Crushed to Death.

Wellesley, Feb. 25.—A man named Christian L. Jantzi, living about two miles east of here, was found dead on the road leading to Baden. Jantzi was taking a load of wood to Baden, and going down a steep, but short hill, he slipped off the load. The wood followed, crushing him to the tongue of the sleigh. He was dead when found by a passerby.

AFRAID TO EAT MANY THINGS

If You Are, Take the Advice of a Well-known Toronto Man and Use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—What They Did For Him.

What to eat and what not to eat it probably occupies more general attention now than at any previous time in the history of the world. The reason is that owing to bad teeth and disordered digestive apparatus nearly everybody has some stage of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. People generally will therefore be interested to know that [illegible] of people [illegible] a hearty dinner [illegible] trembling, who now eat what they like, when they like, and enjoy it. They have used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

One of those is Mr. R. A. Barton, of 23 Tyndall Ave., Toronto, well known in Queen City business circles. "Yes," Mr. Barton says, "there was a time when I was afraid to eat many things that would have agreed [illegible] table. Now I can eat whatever is set before me, asking no questions. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets did it after all the doctors I consulted had failed. It took [illegible] to fix up my stomach, but it's all right now. If you're troubled that way try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

The Worry Wrinkle.

It is not always age that makes those disagreeable furrows across our foreheads and around our eyes. There are some grandmothers whose faces have hardly a wrinkle and some granddaughters whose brows are as seamed as they might be at sixty. Time is not responsible for those vexing little lines. A good many of them may be charged up against worry. If one gets in the way of fretting over everything that has gone wrong and everything one thinks likely to go wrong, the record upon one's face will be as plain as print. Bad temper makes a mark which is hard to erase and is far uglier than the lines the happy years bring.—Chicago Journal.

EVANGELISTS COMING

Evangelists Irving and May will visit Peterborough and hold a series of gospel meetings. This will be welcome news to many in town, as no two men in Canada have been more blessed of God in revival enterprise, and the prayer of those interested in the work is that the spirit that has overturned Wales may be evident in Peterborough. The meetings will begin on Tuesday night in the Gospel Hall, corner of George and Brock-sts. These men come without price and take no collections. Everyone welcome.

Mr. James Regan, of Atlin, B.C., who has been visiting his mother here for some weeks, is now spending a few days in Toronto. Accompanied by his wife and mother he will go to Detroit for a short time before returning to the west.

Mr. Fred Taylor, manager of the Bank of Montreal in Chicago, a former manager of the Peterborough branch of the bank, has distinguished himself as a curler in the Windy City, having skipped the rink which won two cups at the big bonspeil there recently.

Miss Florence Miller, who has been the soprano leader in St. Andrew's church for the past two years, is leaving for the West next week, and concludes her engagement at St. Andrew's to-morrow. She will sing at both services.

WERE MARRIED SIXTY YEARS AGO

Diamond Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dunlop.

HEARTY CONGRATULATIONS

Mrs. Dunlop is the Daughter of the Late Hon. T. A. Stewart, and Mr. Dunlop the Son of the Late Major Dunlop—Sixty Years of Happiness.

Friends are to-day extending well wishes and congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dunlop, Water-st. for this is the 60th anniversary of their wedding day. It was on Monday, Feb. 25th 1845, that a happy wedding ceremony was performed at "Dunlop House," Douro, the residence of Hon. T. A. Stewart, when Mr. A. C. Dunlop led to the altar, Hon. Mr. Stewart's second daughter. That they have been spared for over half a century to enjoy the association then formed, must be a source of happy reflection to the bride and bridegroom. Many friends called upon them to-day at their residence, corner of Water and Murray-sts., and there are many outside of the circle mentioned who have learned to respect them, and who will unite with the others in hoping that they may still be spared to enjoy their declining years together. Among the messages received by Mr. and Mrs. Dunlop, was the following letter from Mr. Richard White, of the Montreal Gazette, who was once a resident here and is one of their warm personal friends—

A. C. Dunlop, Esq.,
Peterborough, Ont.

My Dear Mr. Dunlop—

I learned yesterday that you and your good wife are to be permitted on Saturday next to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of your marriage. It is a privilege that falls to few and the occasion is one of such rare occurrence that I felt I could not resist writing you to offer you my sincere congratulations on the occasion.

It is forty years now since I left Peterborough, but prior to that time you will remember me in connection with the old Peterborough Review. Many a pleasant chat I had with you in the good old days between '55 and '64 and I assure you the memory of them has always been very pleasant to me.

Please accept for yourself and Mrs. Dunlop on behalf of myself and family our sincere congratulations and good wishes. Yours very truly,

RICHARD WHITE

On the occasion of their marriage sixty years ago, Rev. Robt. J. C. Taylor, rector of Peterborough, was the clergyman who tied the knot of the happy union. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Bessie Stewart, Miss Maria Strickland, Miss Fanny Reid, later Mrs. Blackwell, of Douro and Miss Cady, while his brother, Mr. Jas. Dunlop, was the groom's supporter. Mrs. Blackwell is the only one of the bridesmaids now living. Mr. Dunlop is the son of the late Major Dunlop, 18th Royal Irish Regiment of Edenderry, County Down Ireland, who served with the English army during the revolutionary war in the United States. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Dunlop resided at "Mulone" the name of their Douro residence. About twenty years ago they came to town and have since resided here respected and honored by a large circle of relatives and friends.

Ten years ago, at the celebration of their golden wedding many were present who had witnessed the ceremony fifty years before, and among them was the late Mrs. Catherine Parr Traill, the aged authoress, who was then in her ninety-fourth year. It had been the intention to hold a celebration of this, the diamond wedding, but owing to illness at their residence this was found to be inadvisable.

BUSINESS COLLEGE SOCIAL

Students Enjoyably Entertained by the Y.M.C.A.

The social tendered to the students of the Peterborough Business College by the Y.M.C.A. has come to be an annual affair.

The students of this institution are closely connected with the Y.M.C.A. as for the past eight years the principal, Mr. Pringle, has provided all the non-resident pupils with tickets in the Association.

It goes without saying that this is deeply appreciated and as Mr. Pringle stated last evening, has had a splendid effect in moulding the habits and characters of the young men.

The social took place in the parlors where a bright fire blazed in the grate. Mr. Williamson discharged the duties of chairman.

Solos were rendered by Messrs. N. Redpath and J. R. Sprowle, both receiving encores.

Instrumentals were given by Miss Dobbin and Messrs. Blewitt and Todd.

Addresses were given by Messrs. J. C. Brown, I. P. S. for Peterborough County and Mr. A. W. Cressman.

Mr. Brown spoke of the need of spelling reform and outlined the principal phases of his phonetic system. He also gave the boys some good advice along the line of business success.

Mr. Cressman's address was packed full of good suggestions out of the experiences of a successful business man.

Mr. Pringle spoke a few words of appreciation of the work of the association in the welfare of the students.

Mr. Dredge favored the company with a number of gramophone selections. After refreshments the gathering dispersed with the singing of "God Save the King."

GENUINE GOLD BRICK.

Star of the East Have $1,000 One on View.

Mr. E. J. Cowan, Superintending Manager of the Star of the East Gold Mining Company was in town to-day, and has placed on view in the office of the company a $1000 gold brick which is part of the first product of the mine. It represents 100 tons of ore, weighs 51 ounces, is about 8 inches long and an inch and a quarter wide and an inch thick. Mr. Cowan states that the prospects of the mine are very bright. There is now a 5-stamp mill in operation and another one will be going inside of five weeks. There are about 35 men at present employed at the mine, but just as soon as suitable buildings can be erected, the staff will be increased. In a short time it is expected that there will be a large settlement in the vicinity of the mine. The company is using steam power in connection with their plant at present, but intend developing electric power from the Missisipi River, a mile and a quarter distant.

BISHOP SCOLLARD HELD RECEPTION

Many Paid Their Respects to His Lordship Yesterday.

SEVERAL PRESENTATIONS

Honored by Clergy of Diocese of Peterborough and by Those of New Diocese—Splendid Gift From Ottawa Friends—Will be in Ennismore To-morrow.

At the conclusion of the consecration ceremonies in St. Peter's Cathedral on Friday, the clergy attended a banquet in the Convent hall, Mr. Harry Long being the caterer for the occasion.

A large gathering was present in the Cathedral yesterday afternoon, when His Lordship Bishop Scollard held a reception, and at 3.30 the clergy of the diocese of Peterborough presented His Lordship with an address and a purse of money. His Lordship, in replying to the address, referred to the new diocese over which he was placed, its area, possibilities and great future. In his farewell words to his brother priests of the diocese of Peterborough, his manifestations of grief were so marked that he was obliged to discontinue his remarks.

The clergy of the Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie next followed with an address in French, and presented His Lordship Bishop Scollard with a beautiful crosier and purse of gold. His reply was a graceful one in every respect. The address was read by Rev. Father Langlois, S.J., Sturgeon Falls, and the presentation made by Rev. Father Primeau, S.J., Sudbury.

Next followed a brief address from a body of laity, comprising several members of Ottawa Council, Knights of Columbus. The address was accompanied by a gift of a pectoral cross, beautifully bejewelled. The address was signed by Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick, Minister of Justice; Hon. John Costigan, M.P.; Hon. F. R. Latchford, J. B. McColl, M.P., West Northumberland; C. A. McCool, M. P., Nipissing; Chevalier John Heney, M. J. Gorman, K.C., Ottawa; W. Powers, M.P., Quebec, and other distinguished Roman Catholics of the Dominion.

His Lordship Bishop Scollard was taken by surprise at this manifestation of loyalty and respect, and characterized their action as one illustration of the faith that they possessed.

His Lordship Bishop Scollard will be in his native township of Ennismore to-morrow, when an address will be presented to him by the parishioners of St. Martin's church.

His Lordship Bishop Scollard will assume charge of the new diocese of Sault Ste. Marie on Sunday, March 5th.

His Lordship Bishop McEvay was warmly greeted by many of his old parishioners Friday.

Rev. Father Lynch, Port Hope, and Rev. Father Fleming, Kearney, were the only clergy of the diocese absent from the consecration services.

Rev. Father Emery, the talented President of Ottawa University, was a prominent figure in the gathering of ecclesiastics.

The Jesuit missionaries from the missions of what is now known as the diocese of Sault Ste. Marie, were all present at all the ceremonies.

Bishop Scollard will return to North Bay on Thursday, where his parishioners will tender him a big reception and presentation. He is very popular in the northern town.

SATURDAY MARKET

There was a very fair sized market this morning, the country roads having improved considerably. The supply of butter was large. The selling price was 25 cents per lb. Fresh eggs were there in abundance, and the quotation was 25 cents per dozen. Apples were offered in good quantities and were disposed of from 25 to 90 cents per bag. Beef was selling at from five to six cents, and there was a fair representation of pork, there being no change in the quotation. The fact that butter has come down in price is particularly gratifying to those who had to buy it. Last Saturday it was selling at 35 cents.

SERGEANT MARTIN'S SON.

Showed Wise Foresight Saturday Evening—His Father's Decorations.

Sergeant and Mrs. John Martin, of Lindsay, are in town visiting their daughter, Mrs. Godfrey, 23 Sheridan-st. It was Sergeant Martin's son, Arthur John Martin, a lad of 18 years of age who first discovered the dead body of Mrs. Hannah and her son on the G.T.R. tracks last Saturday night, and the old soldier is proud of the fact that the boy thereupon did his duty in a manner that was highly creditable to himself in a circumstance which called for prompt action and wise foresight.

Sergeant Martin is a Crimean veteran, is hale and hearty and good for many years to come. He was a member of the 21st Scotch Fusiliers, wears a medal with clasps for service at Alma, Balaklava, Sebastopol and Inkerman, and he also has one for the Turkish War, for long service in the Imperial Army, he having seen 39 years in the regular militia, and he is now a member of the 45th Regiment of Victoria County. Sergeant Martin is wearing another decoration which he is very proud of. It is a badge of the 42nd Regiment, or Black Watch, in company with which valiant corps his regiment fought at Alma. Recently the commanding officers of the Black Watch sent badges to four men in Canada who could justly refer to the veterans of that regiment as comrades. These were Sergeant Ellingsworth, 93rd Highlanders; Sergeant Wilson, 72nd Highlanders; Trumpeter Pearce, Royal Horse Artillery and Sergeant Martin. The first three are resident in Toronto.

GOOD PAPER ON ROBERT EMMET

Read by Miss Hurley Before Ladies' Literary Association.

LARGE AUDIENCE DELIGHTED

Affairs in Ireland in the Eighteenth Century Graphically Described—Biographical Sketch of Irish Patriot.

Miss Hurley's clever paper on "Robert Emmet," was enjoyed by St. Peter's Ladies' Literary Association.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Ladies' Literary Association of St. Peters T. A. S was held in the Association Hall last evening, when a very interesting essay on "Robert Emmet" was read in a pleasing manner by Miss Anna Hurley.

Miss Hurley dealt with her subject in a very creditable manner showing that she possesses the faculty of delighting her audience by her pleasing and effective style.

The writer briefly described the condition of affairs in Ireland during the 18th century and referred in glowing terms to the noble work done by Gratton in his efforts to secure for the Irish people some concessions of justice from the Imperial Parliament. This followed an interesting biographical sketch of Emmet from his earliest youth, his college course, where even then his transcendent powers combined with true moral worth and love of truth, freedom and justice were brilliantly displayed. His extraordinary powers of oratory which when the spring was touched gave to his whole countenance and figure the assumed change of one suddenly inspired.

Miss Hurley in beautiful language portrayed the life work of this noble Irish patriot, in the cause of justice for his oppressed people, his betrayal, his sad death, and concluded her essay by quoting Emmet's immortal speech from the gallows.

The admirable manner in which Miss Hurley handled her subject brought forth congratulatory expressions from the audience.

Miss O'Connell occupied the chair during the evening, and Miss Nora Coughlin and Miss Lillian Hurley contributed to the evening's programme.

The next meeting will be held on March 10th. A paper on "La Salle" will be presented by Miss Mamie Connor.

PLEASING CONVERSAZIONE.

Held by the Young men of Charlotte Street Church.

The young men's guild of Charlotte st. Methodist church held a very successful conversat in the lecture room of the church last evening. Rev. W. J. Jolliffe was in the chair, and the attendance of young people was quite large. A very enjoyable programme was prefaced by a short address by the chairman, who gave some greatly appreciated pointers with regard to achievement of success. Several musical numbers were given by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, which consists of twelve pieces, and under Mr. G. W. Jones has reached a high standard of efficiency. Its contributions to the programme added greatly to the evening's pleasure. The musicians were accorded a hearty reception was accorded the Charlotte st. Male Quartette—Messrs. Freund, Mitchell, Jolliffe, and Jones. They sang Lamothe's "Breeze of the Night," with excellent effect and in response to an encore gave "Spin, Spin." A violin solo, "La Cinquantine," by Mr. G. W. Jones, was executed in a musicianly manner and proved very acceptable. Miss Clara Bellingham's vocal solo was "If Heaven I win," in which her fine voice was heard to great advantage. A vocal solo, "The Veteran's Song," by Mr. Norman Jolliffe was a much enjoyed number and as an encore he sang "Good-Night Little Girl." Mr. Joe Logue was also recalled in his solo "The Troubadour," and as a second number he sang "Legitimate Doubts." These two popular vocalists also sang a duett, "The Battle Eve," and as an encore repeated a portion of it.

During intervals of ten minutes in the programme the social side of the motad, and the refreshment booth conversazione was pleasingly prewas well patronised. The accompanists of the evening were Miss M. Clarry and Prof. Milner.

When washing greasy dishes or pots and pans, Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) will remove the grease with the greatest ease.

LITERARY SIDE OF MARTIN LUTHER

Ably Discussed by Prof. Needler of Toronto University.

LECTURE VERY INTERESTING

There Was Fairly Large Attendance—The Address Proved Most Enjoyable—Prof. Needler is a Fluent and Eloquent Speaker.

A fairly large audience gathered in the George st. Methodist Sunday School room last evening to hear the lecture under the auspices of the Epworth League. The lecturer was Prof. Needler of Toronto University and his subject was "Luther from a Literary Standpoint. Prof. Needler is an eloquent speaker and his lecture proved highly interesting and enjoyable.

Mr. J. Jeffries occupied the chair. Prior to the lecture Miss B. Sperry and Mr. James Browne contributed delightful solos.

In beginning Prof. Needler referred to Luther as a great reformer whose life work began four centuries ago, is still active and will continue to be so. A large proportion of Canada's population looked upon Luther as a desecration while the others regarded him as a hero to be worshipped.

When we study the story of human life we are struck with the fact that underlying human progress there are two principles, those of discovery and protest. The former is more prominently before the world. In all fields and ages we have discoverers. Poets occupy neutral ground ground and are indication of the progress that has been made. They have been able to arrive at a plane which others have not been able to reach.

To the other class of men, the protesters, who are equally valuable belongs Luther. In the field of religion we can hardly speak of discovery, for there is practically no discovery. Amongst all the men to whom the world owes so much Luther is prominent. The speaker here gave a short sketch of Luther's life. He was born in 1483 and died in 1546. His ancestors were peasants. His father was a miner and a man who lived in utter poverty. There was a family of seven children, of which Martin was the eldest. After an uneventful childhood, Martin was sent to school at the age of fourteen and after four years went to a University. After four years there he took his degree and had his choice of profession. His father wished him to take up the study of law, but Luther had a great aversion to it. Luther although sociable and amiable, was a man who was very strict with himself especially in matters of religion and therefore decided to become a monk. He entered an Augustan monastery and in 1570 he was ordained a priest. He proved himself so brilliant a student that the head of the order sent him to Wittenburg, where he commenced a systematic study of theology.

Three years after he was sent on a confidential mission to Rome. There he found matters so different from what he was accustomed to that he was horrified, especially by the licentiousness and loose living of the priests. His mission proved successful and he returned to Wittenburg and took a degree as Doctor of Theology. Presently he became Vicar-general with oversight over eleven monastries.

He began to experience a change in his religious opinions and in 1517 he drew up his famous ninety-five Theses. He was summoned to Rome to give an account of himself. The situation appeared too dangerous to the elector of Saxony who refused to let him go. Luther was ex-communicated by the Pope, but treated the bill of ex-communication with utter contempt. Emperor Charles V. summoned the Imperial Diet to meet at Worms and Luther appeared there but refused to retract anything he had said. The elector afraid that injury might come to Luther had him seized and placed in confinement. During this time he commenced his great work, the translating of the Bible into German.

In 1525 Luther was married and from that time until 1546, the year of his death lived a happy and peaceful life at Wittenburg as professor and teacher.

Luther's literary work might be roughly divided into four classes. 1st, Works of general religious character, 2nd, Pamphlets; 3rd, A more literary class consisting of Fables, poems and hymns; 4th. His letters and table talk.

Paramount of course among his religious works was the translation of the Bible. This was done with great labor and care. In 1522 the new Testament appeared and in 1534 the entire Bible was published. That Luther effectively touched the hearts of the people is seen by the number of Bibles published. He published other religious writings such as the "Freedom of a Christian," which exercised a great influence for good among the German people.

Luther's letters and table talk show his private life and character and are highly interesting. The speaker read extracts from several letters. The table talk was full of the most interesting matter. It contains his thoughts on an endless variety of topics.

He did not rank high as a poet but immortalized himself by his hymns of which he was the author of thirty-seven. He compiled a book of hymns for use in church worship. In concluding Prof. Needler dealt briefly with the result of Luther's influence on German literature.

A hearty vote of thanks moved by Rev. Mr. Crothers and seconded by Mr. Kidd was tendered to the speaker.

WOMAN'S ART ASSOCIATION

Branch Was Formed at Highly Successful Meeting.

AN EXHIBITION TO BE HELD

About Forty Members Have Handed in Their Names for Membership—Constitution to be Drawn Up.

A highly successful meeting was held on Friday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. parlor, for the purpose of organising a branch of the Women's Art Association of Canada. Miss Bertram for some years a member of the Toronto Association and now resident in Peterboro, occupied the chair and explained that the object of the association was the promotion and encouragement of original art. This would be accomplished by holding exhibitions and lectures, and if it were thought advisable, by arranging for studio accommodation. It was further pointed out that there were two classes of members—honorary and professional—the former are ladies interested in promotion Art matters. The latter include artists and serious students who are willing to subscribe to the objects of the Association. It was moved by Mrs. J. B. Stratton, seconded by Mrs. W. H. Hill, that a committee composed of Mrs. Hughes-Charles, Mrs. Burnett, Mrs. Dunsford, Mrs. Dennistoun and Miss Hatton, with the non-resident members, Mrs. Strickton, Miss Bennett and Miss Bertram be appointed to draw up a constitution and make final arrangement for an exhibition to be held in Peterborough early in March.

At the close of the meeting about forty ladies handed in their names for membership.

THE LENTEN SEASON.

Will Begin on March 8th—Rev. E. A. Langfeldt's Address to His Parishioners.

The Lenten season will begin on Ash Wednesday March 8th. Special services will be held in all the Anglican churches during the six weeks preceding Easter.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's church has addressed the following to his parishioners—

As the lover and watchman of your souls, I pray you to make this a real Lent. Hate and avoid the awful sham of pretending to keep the sacred season with "extraordinary acts and exercises of devotion," while secretly consulting your own convenience and indulging your ordinary appetites of the flesh and mind.

Lent is a season of humility, of self-denial, of renewed consecration, of faithful service. Try to realise the spirit of the time in all your religious duties and observances. By real self-denial and real devotion to Christ try to get nearer to God and come into touch with His Holy Spirit. Beware lest you receive the grace of God in vain. Do something for others—some act of real helpfulness, of true sympathy, of Christian kindness—every day, and so get something of the spirit of the One who went about doing good. Open your hearts to every good cause, and especially to God's great cause and prove your interest by doing something and giving something to help it on.

Say "no" to social functions, banquets, receptions, dinner parties, card parties, theatres and other forms of amusement, and be bold and honest enough in declining them to show your colors by saying "for it is Lent."

Lay fiction aside and read the serious books. There are large areas of Christian literature to which you are a stranger. Read Church history, the history of the Prayer Book, the principles of Christian symbolism and ceremonial, the biography of eminent Churchmen, and above all, the Bible. Read the Scriptures daily, according to the lectionary in the Prayer Book.

Lent is a time for self-crucifixion, a season of deliberate and voluntary asceticism. The great object of Lent is a better and a sweeter Christian life, and more grace from God's Church.

Remember also that it is your duty and privilege to come to the Lord's Table at Easter. Let this be a guiding thought throughout Lent. Prepare for your Easter Communion by honest self-examination and thorough repentance.

Make this Lent a real work of devotion, so that with the Lord you may have a holy and happy Easter.

PITCH HOLES TROUBLESOME

Farmers Say They are Hard to Negotiate—Dance at Harwood.

There is a much larger crowd of people in town to-day from the country than a week ago, and it is not easy to find an explanation of this. The roads are in much better shape, but while the drifts have long ago become easy to negotiate, the pitch-holes now cause considerable trouble, and farmers are telling stories which are somewhat on a par with that of the man who was coming to town with a load of hay which got caught in a pitch-hole so deep that rigs coming along behind drove over the top without seeing it. It is necessary to exercise great care in travelling over the roads, especially at night.

A party who drove to the hotel at Harwood to attend the annual ball given by host Cokery on Wednesday night, states that they upset ten times on the road, and when within a quarter of a mile of the hotel the double whiffle tree of the rig broke as the result of an encounter with a pitch-hole. The break was remedied at the hotel, however, and hence the accident did not delay the party to any extent on the journey. Mr. Archie Moore was the floor manager at the dance, which proved a great success. Quite a large party drove from Havelock.

MAY SEPARATE COUNTIES

Action to Bring About Severance of Durham and Northumberland.

A meeting was held in the council chamber in Port Hope yesterday afternoon for the purpose of seeing if it would be advisable to have the County of Durham separate from Northumberland county. Large delegations from Bowmanville, Newcastle, Millbrook, and the Townships of Hope, Cavan, Manvers, Clarke, Darlington and Cartwright were present. The Warden of the united counties, Mr. Kennedy of Manvers occupied the chair and there was much discussion on the subject.

All were in favor of separation and the following resolution was passed—"That after discussing the question of separation of these united counties we would recommend that a committee be appointed to go fully into the financial details and report at an adjourned meeting."

The following committee, consisting of P. C. Trebilcock, W. J. Bragg of Bowmanville, Thomas Long of Port Hope, Thomas Donaldson of Cavan, and A. A. Power of Clarke, was appointed to look into the matter and report at the next meeting.

If Durham county is separated there will be a county town selected which will be between Port Hope and Bowmanville, where a jail and other buildings will be erected. It is the unanimous opinion throughout the county to have the counties separated.

Montreal or Quebec will be the port of call during the season of navigation, and Halifax or St. John when the season is closed. The port of call in France will be either Cherbourg or Havre, at the contractors' option. A NEW ERA IN POLITICS

Premier Who Considers His Statements Binding.

Hon. Mr. Whitney's Reply to the Temperance Deputations—They Ask for Abolition of the Bars and Treating System—Premier Says He is Receptive, and Wishes to Get at Core of Public Mind.

Toronto, Feb. 25.—The deputation from the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance and the Royal Templars of Temperance, consisting of the executive officers and other prominent members [illegible] to the number of upwards of a hundred, waited on the Premier at 12.30 yesterday in Parliament Buildings. The Premier was accompanied by Hon. J. J. Foy, Hon. A. J. Matheson, Hon. Nelson Monteith and Hon. [illegible] Hon. G. F. Hendrie. [illegible] introduced the deputation.

Among those who spoke were F. S. Spence, Rev. Dr. Chown, J. A. Austin and Rev. William Frizzell. The deputations asked for a measure abolishing the barrooms, the treating system, drinking in clubs and imposing upon the liquor [illegible] such restrictions as will curtail existing evils.

The Premier's Reply.

The Premier, who was received with hearty applause, after expressing pleasure at meeting the deputation, said: "The seriousness of the subject which you have come here to discuss, together with the position or situation which in my opinion the members of this Government are as trustees for the people of everything which makes for the benefit of the people, renders the occasion one of more than ordinary satisfaction to myself and my colleagues. As some of you have indicated, we have occupied our present position for but a short time, and each one of you understands fully that, up to the present moment, we have been unable to give our thought to any question of policy which will be carried out on any subject. We have been unable to devote more than an hour a day so far to the work of our different departments, and we have not yet got down to serious thought on any question. We believe, however, our first duty is to the people whose servants we are. Our first duty being that, in our opinion, we consider that every other consideration should give place [illegible] opportunities such [illegible] those who represent a [illegible] lation of the Province, desire to lay before us what the opinions are which they represent.

In a Receptive Mood.

[illegible] Government stands to-day with reference to the objects of this deputation in a receptive mood. (Applause). We believe it to be our duty on all occasions to endeavor to get at the core of the public mind, at the feeling of the people of this Province, and when we have heard opinions on this and other questions of varying opinions—although there can be no varying opinions as to the desirability of measures being adopted which will, as far as possible, minimize the evils of the drink traffic—that is my opinion (applause) [illegible] As far as my opinions are concerned, they have been known for years, and sometimes I have been credit for them, and oftener, discredit for the manner in which I have expressed them, but they have never changed and never will. I shall go along, assured that so long as I do that which I believe to be my duty, credit will be given sooner or later. (Applause) [illegible] the expression of opinion from different bodies on different questions, and consider it our bounden duty to keep the matters before us, and give them our earnest consideration. [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] suggestions with regard to [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] nation which we deserve to receive. As [illegible] give this and other matters our careful thought, [illegible] all sources which seem to be good, we will be glad to embody in any amendments we consider desirable.

[illegible]

Mr. Whitney concluded by reiterating his assurance that the Government was anxious to receive suggestions as to the desires of the people and to endeavor to include such amendments to the laws as would make to the benefit of the Province. All the members of the Government, he thought, knew that the verdict of the people which gave them power was no ordinary triumph, and the effort of the present Government of Ontario would by their acts continue to show that fact.

A brief address by Mr. [illegible] thanking Mr. Whitney and his colleagues for receiving the deputation closed the proceedings.

[illegible] Burned to Death.

Winnipeg, Feb. 25.—Fire, in which nine horses lost their lives, occurred on Thursday night in Sam Berger's stable. Mr. Berger [illegible] while [illegible] of the horses were rescued from the burning building, nine perished in the smoke. They were valued at $300 each.

"Yes, including that," replied Bawdsey, with a queer expression, "but that has nothing to do with the matter in hand, Mr. Brendon."

"I'm not so sure," retorted George. "I should not be at all surprised to [illegible] to keep the [illegible]"

"How do you make that out?"

"Well, she was in San Remo at the time my father was murdered. She loved him, and I dare say, in spite of having been [illegible] watched him. She might know who the lady in blue—But, I forgot, you are innocent of all these things."

"Not at all. Don't I tell you that Lord Derrington told me the whole story? I see what you mean. You think that Mrs. Jersey might know who killed your father, and for the sake of shutting her up the assassin committed the second murder."

"That is my idea," said George coolly.

"It's ingenious, but it won't hold water. However, we can talk of that on another occasion. In the meantime I wish to [illegible] how I discovered the secret door."

"There's no need to. Derrington told you that I knew this house, as my grandfather had brought me up to it. When you knew through Mrs. Ward that I had passed a night here and learned through her, by means of Train, that the yellow holly berry had been found in the woman's sitting room, you set to work to find out how I escaped from this room. You knew that Train had locked the door."

"Yes," answered Bawdsey. "He told Mrs. Ward that."

"He seems to have told her everything. However, to make a long story short, you hunted for an exit and you found it."

"That's so," replied Bawdsey quietly. "And now we had better return to the sitting room and talk over the matter quietly."

"One moment," said George. "Have you told Lord Derrington or Mrs. Ward of this discovery?"

"No, and I won't tell them, either. I wish to get you out of trouble, Mr. Brendon. They haven't the least idea that you could leave the room, and the information with them is that Train [illegible] [illegible]"

"Then you shall know whatever I can tell you." George hesitated and Bawdsey guessed that he was not going to be so frank as was necessary. However, he made no remark, and Brendon continued: "I came to this [illegible] Jersey and get the truth out of her. It was my intention to speak to her [illegible] However, in the drawing room she stated that she wished the company to dispense [illegible] as she had business to attend to [illegible] she came up to this room to see if I [illegible] my friend were in bed at 12. I [illegible] that she intended to see some one, and wondering if the expected person had anything to do with my business, I determined to see her on that night. When Train was asleep I locked my bedroom door and [illegible] of the cupboard. As a boy I discovered the cupboard, and I am ashamed to say that I sometimes made use of it in my youth to go to the theater unbeknown to my grandfather. On that night I used it again and went to the sitting room of Mrs. Jersey. It was about 12 o'clock. The door of the room was closed. I opened it and saw her sitting at the table, dead, as she was discovered in the morning. In stooping over her to see if she [illegible] breathed the berry must have fallen."

"What did you do after you found that the woman was dead?"

"I returned to my bedroom and said nothing about it. You see, since I wanted something from Mrs. Jersey and that desire might have come out in the evidence, there was every chance that I would be accused of having murdered her. There was certainly motive enough."

"I don't agree with you," replied Bawdsey. "However, I quite understand that under the circumstances you lost your nerve. You returned to your room and expressed suitable surprise the next morning."

George nodded. "Quite so, and then Train's having locked the door made [illegible] think [illegible] all was safe. Had he not taken [illegible]"

"He has told very little," rejoined Brendon. "After all, nothing can be [illegible] done if I hold my tongue."

"Nothing will be done in any case," said George grimly, "but I thank you for warning me, Mr. Bawdsey. What are your plans?"

"I have none at present. Lord Derrington asked me to watch you."

"That you certainly have done, and if you choose you can go on watching me. But why do you stop in this house?"

"Oh, I knew Mrs. Jersey some years ago and returned here for old times' sake."

George shrugged his shoulders. He felt convinced that Bawdsey was not speaking openly. But, then, Brendon, on his part, had held something back. Neither man was sufficiently sure of the other to be perfectly frank.

George rose to go.

"Well, how do we stand?" asked Bawdsey.

"Much as we did before," replied George, "save that I know you will hold your tongue and not get me into trouble."

"I shall certainly do that. But remember Mrs. Ward."

"Lord Derrington can stop her mouth."

"Ah, but will he?" asked Bawdsey dubiously.

"I shall call on Lord Derrington and see," answered Brendon, and, with a nod, left the room.

CHAPTER XII.

ORIGINALLY Lord Derrington had started life with a sufficiently imperious will, and, thanks to his position as a titled and wealthy orphan, he had been enabled to exercise it at a very early age. The habit of seeing every one tremble at his mere glance grew upon him, and he became unbearable, not only to live with, but even to meet. His wife, after presenting him with two sons, had died gladly, seeing no other way of escaping her tyrant, and the report went that he had drowned [illegible] [illegible] Derrington [illegible] for the sake of his boys, that he could find no one willing to continue this [illegible] Consequently he became [illegible] of a [illegible] and [illegible] had [illegible] the political [illegible] In this he [illegible] with a certain amount of [illegible] which did him good and [illegible] into a [illegible] member of society [illegible] his [illegible] [illegible] his tongue had full swing, and he [illegible] that everybody [illegible] At the end of [illegible] and was [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] in power, had [illegible] the county [illegible] to send him.

Failing, from his reputation, to get another appointment, Derrington took to quarreling with his sons. Percy, the elder, had a spirit of the paternal temper and refused to submit. Consequently he was forbidden the house and crowned his [illegible] in the old man's eyes by marrying Rosina Lockwood. The younger [illegible] and completely cowed by his terrible father. He married an equally meek lady, and the two were crushed by the old tyrant. [illegible] died as sadly as the late Lady Derrington had done and left Walter Vane to carry on the title. The old man detested Walter [illegible] but he refused to acknowledge George, preferring the fool to the clever man from sheer hatred of Brendon's father.

The meeting with George at Mrs. Ward's had touched the old man deeply. He had never set eyes on Percy's son before, and had to admit that the young fellow was handsome and clever. Derrington felt that he could take some pride in George as a man who would not permit himself to be bullied. He had as strong a will as his grandfather, and the elder man respected him. Moreover, George's refusal to accept an income when he took a feigned name and his determined fight for his birthright pleased the old man. But for his pride and hatred of the father, Derrington might have acknowledged the marriage. He knew in his own mind that such a marriage had taken place, and that George was legitimate, but he did not know where the ceremony had been celebrated. The sole evidence he possessed was a letter, written by Percy from Paris, stating that he had married Rosina Lockwood. Derrington at the time accepted the fact, and had never thought of inquiring about details from his son, and of course when Percy died it was too late. Mrs. Jersey knew, and Mrs. Jersey had made use of her knowledge, but she never told Derrington anything. Had she done so, her hold over him might have waxed feeble, although owing to her knowledge, and to the old man's determination never to acknowledge George, it could not be done away with altogether.

To be continued.

Free, to any Woman who bakes her own Bread

Thousands of women are writing in every week for the "Royal Household" Recipes—they explain the new and easier way of making bread. Make a trial with the new Royal Household Flour, which is purified by electricity—you would not believe there could be such a difference in flour—these receipes are certainly worth asking for. Send a postal card to-day.

SAVONAS, THREE MILE CREEK, B.C., November 1903.

I have been using your flour exclusively since I came to Canada, fourteen years ago, and have been using "Royal Household" since its introduction. To show you how I value it, my grocer lately could not supply me with it, and rather than use another brand, even temporarily, I sent to Kamloops, twenty-five miles away, and had it shipped to me per C. P. R., preferring to pay the railway charges rather than use an inferior brand. In fact, if I could not get it otherwise I would ship it direct from the mill. [illegible] having good bread when using it and nothing tends more to keep harmony in a home.

ROSS GOOD TO FRIENDS.

Gave Four [illegible] Sendoff Last [illegible] Power.

Toronto, Feb. 25.—During the last few days of the Ross regime the Government passed out a little contribution to four of its friends, the particulars of which Hon. J. J. Foy, Commissioner of Crown Lands, will look into as soon as he has the opportunity. The concession is located on the Ottawa River, and consists of a waterpower, the value of which has not been ascertained, but the price paid was a nominal sum.

H. H. Dewart, K. C., [illegible] and Charles Mitchell of Toronto, [illegible] Welland D. Woodruff of St. Catharines are the beneficiaries of this concession. Mr. Mitchell is a cousin-in-law of ex-Premier Ross.

It is believed that the granting of the waterpower was one of the very last acts of the old government.

From Country to City.

London, Feb. 25.—The House of Commons during [illegible] yesterday debated the amendment of Mr. Channing (Liberal) to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, calling attention to the depopulation of the rural districts and the necessity for promoting the cultivation of land and encouraging the agricultural industry generally. The amendment was defeated by 241 to [illegible] votes. The House then adjourned.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions [illegible]

Charcoal [illegible] proves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

What Sulphur Does.

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and, mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this remedy."

At any rate, people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

LEACH PROVIDED PLAN.

Arranged Manitoba to Suit Liberal Party, and Gets "Victory" in Dominion Election.

Winnipeg, Feb. 25.—[illegible] Leach, Liberal organizer [illegible] Manitoba, for whose arrest a warrant was recently sworn out in connection with the mutilation of voters' lists previous to the late Dominion election, [illegible] witness yesterday [illegible] against Deputy Returning Officer Jickling of Macdonald, charged with unlawfully erasing voters' names from the lists. Leach gave evidence under special privilege of the court, and his evidence practically proved the Conservative allegations regarding malfeasance at the elections.

How it Was Done.

Witness was in the box the whole of the session of the court, and from his admissions it is possible to summarize the scheme employed as follows:

Leach, Liberal organizer, notified all returning officers that their lists, as received from the King's printer at Ottawa, must be revised, and that they must bring them to him for that purpose, which was done. These lists were then checked by the clerk in the Winnipeg office of the Liberal organizer by special party [illegible] prepared before the writs were issued by the organizers, and copies of which had been sent to every Liberal canvasser throughout the Province. These canvassers' lists [illegible] on a basis suitable to the party; that is to say, that Conservative voters generally were, wherever colorable excuse could be found, changed from the customary polls to another and inconvenient subdivision. In this process of changes several names were dropped altogether.

After the returning officers' lists had been arranged to comply with these other lists by crossing out names in red ink, or by adding others, they were returned to the responsible officers, who thereupon certified to them as correct and they were sent out in polling books to deputies.

Sent to Wrong Polls.

On election day Liberal voters were well posted as to where they had to vote, and there were few complaints, but Conservative canvassers had been working on official lists and consequently many Conservatives presented themselves at wrong polls, and a large proportion of these failed to put in a vote at all in the time left them. In addition, large numbers of Conservatives were apparently dropped altogether, but Liberals plead this was owing to errors in making the changes. The significant fact remains that only Conservatives are known to have been thus disfranchised.

Such, in a nutshell, is the manner of the Liberal "victory" in Manitoba. The prosecution realizes that returning officers and even Leach himself were only tools, and hope to locate the real author of this novel design.

Turkish Troops Mutiny.

Constantinople, Feb. 25.—A battalion of 950 Turkish troops, while on the way to reinforce the garrison of Yemen, Arabia, mutinied on board the Greek steamer Epiros, killed and imprisoned their officers and compelled the commander to put back to Suez. The mutineers demanded that they be sent back to their homes.

Morales in Danger.

Washington, Feb. 25.—U. S. Minister Dawson, at San Domingo, yesterday cabled the State Department that an attempt was made [illegible] to assassinate President Morales; that five of the assailants were captured, and that the remainder escaped.

Montreal, Feb. 25.—Mrs. McGee, an old lady about 85 years of age, who lived alone in a house at Eaton Corners, about ten miles from Sherbrooke, perished in the flames which destroyed her home at an early hour yesterday morning.

"Eat Plenty of Fruit."

That's what the Doctors say when one is constipated. Because fruit acts on the liver, causing it to excrete bile which aids digestion and increases the peristaltic action of the bowels, thus prevents constipation. But eating fresh fruit alone, won't CURE. The laxative principle is too weak and in too small quantity.

Fruit-a-tives
or Fruit Liver Tablets

are the tonic and laxative virtues of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, many times intensified—by our secret process of combining the juices—and made into tablets.

"Fruit-a-tives" act gently and naturally—tone up the liver—gently increase the flow of bile—effectively cure Indigestion, Biliousness, Headache and Constipation—build up and strengthen the whole system.

Good Practice.

The Farriers and Peterboroughs had a good practice together last night. The seniors are in great shape and will be able to go the full distance at top speed in next week's games.

West Ends for Port Hope.

The West Ends left for Port Hope this morning on the 11.45 train, where they meet the Trinity College School team in a game this afternoon. The team that represents the West Ends is as follows:—

Cover Point—McKnight.
Rover—Whaley.
Centre—Lynch.
Right Wing—Storts.
Left Wing—Cameron.

Aberdeens Lost.

A junior team from Keene journeyed to town yesterday and crossed sticks with the local Aberdeens at Brock-st. rink. The game was a fairly good exhibition and some fast hockey was displayed. The visitors, who were much heavier than the local kidlets, won handily by a score of 5—1. The half time score was 3—0. H. Staunton, of town, refereed to the satisfaction of both teams.

The Aberdeens lined up as follows:—

Goal—Wade.
Point—A. Harrison.
Cover Point—Seymour.
Rover—H. Harrison.
Centre—E. Harrison.
Right Wing—Loch.
Left Wing—Ray.

Guards 4, Grits 2.

McWilliams' Clear Grits and St. Andrew's Guards clashed at the Brock-st. rink last night, and when the smoke had cleared away the Guards were ahead by a score of 4—2. The half time score was 2—0 in favor of the winners. The game was fast and exciting at all stages, and the teams were about evenly matched. The Grits were short a man and played six men against seven for the entire game. "Tommie" Deforge, of the T.A.S. team, made a hit as referee and showed signs of proving a second Chaucer Elliott. The teams lined up as follows:—

Grits.	Guards.

Farriers lose Nicholls.

Gordon Nicholls, the clever left wing player of the Farrier team was injured in a practice game last night. He will be out of the game for the season. He was struck across the mouth with a stick and seven teeth were broken. Dr. Wightman attended to his injuries.

The Cobourg—Fenelon Falls Trent Valley game scheduled for last night was not played.

The Aberdeens will journey to Keene on Monday night to play the return game with the team of that place. A bus will leave the post office at 5.30 o'clock.

See This Game.

The Lead Pipe Cinch Apprentices and Adam Hall's Souvenirs will meet to-night at the Brock-st. rink between 5.45 and 6.45. Frank Frost will referee.

Stirling defeated Campbellford last night by a score of 6—4.

Stratford Out of It.

Berlin were defeated at Stratford last night by 3—1, but win the round by 5 goals to 4. Peterborough will meet the Dutchmen next week, but the exact dates are not yet known. They will probably be decided upon at to-day's meeting of the O.H.A. executive. The locals are in fine shape and are going to give the Wertzburgher bunch the time of their lives when the two clash.

MR. W. H. KAVANAGH.
Popular Captain of the Peterborough Hockey Club.

The Hunter-st. Beavers defeated the Bethune-st. team in a game this afternoon by four goals to three.

CURLING.

Amidst "a drift of thought of Canada's pastimes" in the Port Hope Guide we notice the following—"Peterborough is said to have ten rinks taking part in the bonspiel and it is 10 to 1 that they don't capture a single prize."—The Guide has another thought coming.

The Lindsay rink which carried off the fourth prizes in the Consolation events, four fountain pens, consisted of Dr. Brown lead; Geo. Ewart, second; T. Burke, vice, and Dr. Walters, skip.

THEY WERE TAKEN IN.

Port Hope Ladies Were Victimized by Picture Agents.

The Port Hope Guide contains the following with reference to a fake scheme which may possibly be attempted here:—

We are informed by a number of citizens that they have been "taken in" by a couple of picture agents lately. It is alleged by them that some time ago the agents called at the house and made it very clear that they were enlarging pictures free of charge simply as a matter of advertising. A large number of ladies jumped at the opportunity and a few days later another agent called with the proof and a sample of frames which he wished to dispose of. Of course the picture was no use without the frame, and these were offered at reduced prices at $6 to $4. To bind the bargain half the price of the frame had to be paid down. A few days later, Agent No. 1 returned with the picture in the frame and, according to the stories of the purchasers, the frames were very different from the samples offered. One lady refused to accept the picture and so was obliged to lose her money. A gentleman informed us this morning that he felt sure he could purchase a frame from a local dealer for 50 cents, equally as good as the one offered him by the agent for $4.00.

If such should be the case, citizens should use more precaution before entering into such deals, and in a short time it would do away with such work.

TOILET TIPS.

Massage should always be across the line of conformation.

The use of witch hazel in moderation on the face is not harmful. It is a vegetable astringent.

Skin foods and creams are best applied at night, as the skin has then more time to absorb them.

Sage tea if used constantly will darken the hair. A cupful may be made at a time, steeping in the same manner ordinary tea is made.

For a rough skin lather the face well with a good soap and a drop or two of glycerin, rinse off and dust the face with oatmeal, rinse again and dry with a soft towel.

For a good camphor mouth wash try the following: Take a pint of hot water and dissolve in it two drams of powdered borax. When the water cools add one dram each of spirits of camphor and tincture of myrrh.

For Mother's Pleasure.

The middle aged woman or one whose children have grown past the destructive age should get all the comfort there is in the pretty things that she has accumulated. It is folly to hoard the embroidered table decorations, keep her linen wrapped in cotton flannel bags or the sofa pillows put away lest they be worn out. Now is the time to enjoy them. If she thinks that it would be better to keep them for the children she should remember that when these things fall into their possession they will be out of fashion, but not antique enough to have any value beyond the sentimental one that "they were mother's." Most grownup children take pleasure in seeing their mother's home kept in the present fashion, and if they do not they certainly do not deserve as a legacy what might have made their mother's life more comfortable and more enjoyable.

YOUR VOICE.

Learn to Pitch, Moderate and Manage It Properly.

Harper's Bazar, referring to the voices of Americans, makes these pertinent remarks: "In spite of the vast amount of perhaps kindly meant criticism which has been made in all quarters of late years regarding the American voice it certainly does not improve. It is the exception to find, especially in the middle west, an agreeable voice, and women are more faulty than men in this respect. It is urged that the rattle of the cars and the noises of all descriptions make it impracticable to use a smooth, pleasant intonation. One has to force a nasal tone, we are told, in order to be heard in the tumult which 'civilization' has raised around us. When one considers the charm which a sweet voice gives to its possessor one wonders at the general neglect of measures to obtain it. Complexions fade, dentists ruin beautiful mouths, the eyes lose their glow, the chin and the neck crease and bulge—but the speaking voice shares with the nose the distinction of earthly immortality. It may weaken or crack somewhat with advanced age, but a thrilling speaking voice never wholly loses its power. Every one should determine that she will learn to pitch and modulate and manage her voice properly. Nearly every one has it in her power if she only chooses to attend to it."

THE BUTLER'S PANTRY.

How It Should Be Equipped For Efficient Work.

The kitchen by first right is the cook's domain. The butler's pantry—so called—and the dining room are the field of the waitress' operations. The duties of the dining room are carried on in public, and their perfect accomplishment depends in a large measure upon the preparation made beforehand in the privacy of the pantry. The well equipped pantry is furnished with a small refrigerator and a gas range as well as with the usual cupboards, sink, etc. In one of the drawers beneath the cupboards for china and glassware a box of paper in various styles should be kept, each of which has a distinct and proper use either in the kitchen or the pantry. In this box is a light, soft, silky paper for polishing cut glass and silver; nonabsorbent paper, in which uncooked meat and fish may be wrapped; paper for lining cake pans, ice cream and charlotte russe molds, and waxed paper for wrapping sandwiches and food prepared for luncheons and picnics. This box contains also envelopes holding different sized rounds of paper of various sizes to cover jelly and jam glasses, stoppers to take the place of those lost from milk bottles, paper plates to hold food that is to be set aside in the refrigerator, and absorbent pads, on which fried articles may be drained. After a picnic or luncheon has been sent out the rolls of paper will need to be replenished.—Boston Cooking Magazine.

LABOR SAVERS.

Small Devices That Often Prove Savers of Many Steps.

"I always covered my cupboard shelves with newspapers, and when anything was accidentally dropped or spilled upon them I had all the trouble of removing everything and replacing the papers with clean ones until a happy idea struck me, and that was to have the shelves and the sides as well enameled with two coats of white enamel. This is so easily kept clean, and the cupboard is so inviting looking; no danger of ants creeping in by way of the cracks either.

Sometimes a very small device saves many steps. This is true of a small table or stand fitted with casters, since it can be easily moved to the stove or wherever it is needed. Cover it with enameled oilcloth. When cooking, the culinary utensils can be placed upon it and wheeled up to the stove, thus saving the cook many steps. In baking it will also be found handy.

A cupboard built in the wall back of the stove has proved to be the most handy thing about the kitchen. Here are kept all the utensils, and other things are neatly painted or covered with oilcloth, and plenty of hooks are put on the sides and at the back on which to hang up lifters, stirring spoons, dippers, etc. One shelf is devoted to lids and pot covers. This arrangement saves many fatiguing steps. —Exchange.

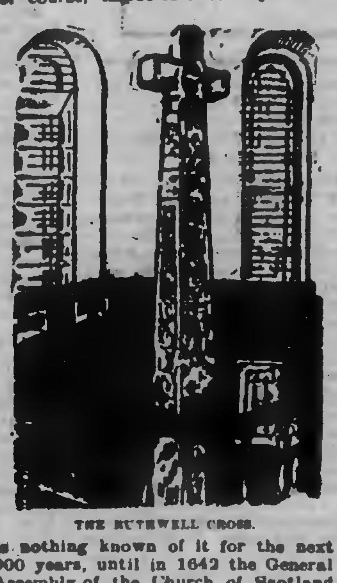
NOW 12 CENTURIES OLD

THE RUTHWELL CROSS, BRITAIN'S OLDEST LITERARY RELIC.

Erected Originally in 680 A.D. in Northumbria It Has Had a Somewhat Troubled Existence—Nothing Known Of It for 900 Years—Put Under Ban of Scottish Assembly in 1642—Hidden by Broad-Minded Pastor.

The Monkwearmouth cross to the memory of the Venerable Bede has called attention to one of the most remarkable and least known literary monuments in these islands, says Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper. In the parish church of Ruthwell (pronounced Rivel), in the County of Dumfries, stands an elegant cross, 18 feet high, on whose broader faces are depicted scenes from the life of Christ, while on the narrower faces appears some finely executed vine tracery. In the chief of these stone pictures the figure of Christ is represented with the aureole, the right hand raised to bless, in the left a sacred scroll. The most noteworthy feature of this beautiful cross, however, is not the exquisite chiseling of an unknown sculptor, but a Runic inscription that long baffled all the efforts of the learned to interpret it.

The history of the cross is a strange one. It is supposed to have been set up in the year 680 A.D. in Northumbria, which in those days extended from the Humber to the Forth. Whether it was originally erected in the Ruthwell district it is, of course, impossible to say. There is nothing known of it for the next 900 years, until in 1642 the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland denounced the old Anglo-Saxon cross as an idolatrous monument, and ordered its demolition. Such a proceeding seems hardly intelligible at the present day, but it must be remembered that the Runic inscription was then unread, and no doubt to these stern Presbyterians it savored of Paganism.



THE RUTHWELL CROSS.

It so happened that the parish minister of Ruthwell at that time was a much broader-minded and more enlightened man than most of his superiors in the church. He had the cross thrown down, as in duty bound, but it was done so carefully that the destruction was only partial, and the cross, now in several pieces, was safely hidden away under the floor of the church, where it lay undisturbed for more than a century and a half. In 1823 the minister boldly took it upon himself not only to dig up the pieces and put them together again, but even to re-erect the ancient landmark in the grounds of the manse. A new crossbeam was added, the original one having long since disappeared along with some fragments of the upper shaft. Attempts were now made to decipher the Runic writing, but to no purpose until in 1840 Mr. Kemble, of the British Museum, unfathomed the mystery of the cross, and his reading was confirmed soon afterwards, when a remarkable literary find was made in Piedmont. This was the discovery of a manuscript copy of Caedmon's "Lay of the Holy Rood," and it quickly appeared that the inscription on the cross was simply an extract from Caedmon's poem.

Thus at last a great literary controversy, that had caused no small agitation amongst the learned, both in Europe and the continent, was finally set at rest, and the Ruthwell Cross, now 12 centuries old, established its claim to a unique association with what is generally regarded as the oldest fragment of English literature that has come down to us. In the year of Queen Victoria's Jubilee the venerable relic of antiquity was taken under Government protection, and safely ensconced inside the church, where a semi-circular apse had been constructed for its reception.

Cost of Great Wars.

According to estimates of French and German statisticians, there has been expended in the wars of the last fifty years no less than the inconceivable sum of $18,000,000,000. Of this amount France paid nearly $3,500,000,000 as the cost of the war with Prussia. According to Dr. Roth, a German authority, the Germans lost in the war $600,000,000 in money, this being the excess of expenditure or of material losses over the $1,250,000,000 paid by France by way of indemnity. Dr. Engel, another German statistician, gives the following as the approximate cost of the principal wars: Crimean War, $2,000,000,000; Italian War, of 1859, $300,000,000; Prusso-Danish War, of 1864, $35,000,000; War of the Rebellion—North, $5,100,000,000; South, $2,300,000,000; Prusso-Austrian War of 1866, $330,000,000; Russo-Turkish war, $125,000,000; South African wars, $8,770,000; African War, $12,250,000; Servo-Bulgarian War, $176,000,000.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR.

Make It a Regular Daily Institution In the Home.

Set aside an hour for the children and preserve it sacredly from all encroachments. Every home where there are children should have its "children's hour," an hour when father and mother lay off the grownup's mantle and become acquainted with the children in the guise of a playfellow. It is the best loved playfellow who receives the real confidences of these little men and women, and that same confidant may be either father or mother if only they are wise.

And so set aside each day an hour when the children may be sure of your company and good fellowship. Make it in the early evening, if possible, when all members are in the home. Then put aside dressmaking worries and stock quotations and enter into child interests with genuine zest—you cannot satisfy them with anything short of the genuine; they are sure to detect it if you dissemble or your attention wanders.

Teach them to love reading by reading to them until they in turn are anxious to read to you, and talk over what they read to you. Tell them stories and encourage them in the art. Teach them to master games. You will be surprised in how short a time they will have got beyond you in most of the games.

Let us all welcome their little muddy footed friends, so there will be no occasion to stand on a dark corner of the street to whisper secrets. Children whose parents are too busy or preoccupied to practice any of these arts will grow away from the love of home wonderfully fast.

THE DISHCLOTH.

A Homely Subject, but an Important One to the Family.

A dishcloth is a homely subject and a very little thing, but one that is often a menace to the health of the family. Nowhere should care and cleanliness be more strictly observed than in this homely household necessity. Don't use just anything for a dishcloth. No one can tell what germs of disease cling to an old garment, even if it has been well laundered. As a rule old garments form the base of the formula after which the dishcloth is put together.

The best dishcloth is one of a coarse cheesecloth, made of several thicknesses, quilted with stout thread either by hand or upon the machine, and the dishcloth should be cleaned after each process of dishwashing with boiling water and dried quickly in the sun if possible. The same care should be given the dish towel, which is also usually a made over utility.

The dishcloth should not be thrown indiscriminately into the laundry basket with soiled clothing, but, with the towel, should be kept apart and washed separately, that its absolute cleanliness may be assured. And when it becomes frayed and unshapely it should be burned—burned hot and forever. Many a family would find less sickness within its midst if these homely instructions were observed.

A Useful Limb.

The Manx Language.

Manx is claimed to be the best tongue for courting, as it has ninety-seven ways in which to say "My dear."

Safe Chloroform.

At an inquest recently the anaesthetist for one of the large London hospitals stated that he had administered chloroform to between 3,000 and 4,000 patients and only one had died under the influence.
